Paris, June 24.-Whether it is true or not that he Germans have been obliged to withdraw troops from the western front to send to Russia, the fact is by no means manifest, for in the familiar Verdun cockpit recent attacks have been well up to the standard of intensity.

They found effectives to deliver a well-nourished onslaught in the Champagne region. Expectations raised by the furious 24 hours' bombardment on the right bank of the Meuse were fulfilled. From early morning until night-fall attack after attack was launched along the short front from Thiaumont

NEAR THE BREAKING POINT.

[Canadian Press.]
Washington, D. C., June 24.—Relations between the United States and the de facto government of Mexico are close to the breaking point today, as a result of the apparently well-founded belief that American cavalrymen were deliberately massacred Wednesday at Carrizal by Carranza soldiers Secretaries Lansing and Baker of the state and war departments, respectively, were early at the White House today conferring with President Wilson. It is known that the possibility of drastic retaliatory action against the Mexican forces in Chihuahua was given grave If the Carranza Government accepts responsibility for the attack at Carrizal, it is considered virtually certain by officials that occupation of most of northern Mexico will be ordered by President Wilson to take place as rapidly as the necessary military forces can be placed at the disposal of Gen. Funston.

London, June 24-12:10 p.m.-The British steamship Brussels, with passengers on board, has been captured by German destroyers, and taken into Zeebrugge.

Announcement of the capture of the Brussels, which belongs to the Great Eastern Railway Company, was made today by officials of the line here. The vessel was on her way from Rotterdam to Tilbury on the Thames, with passengers and mails. It is stated there were no Americans on board. The Brussels was captured yesterday. She is a 285-foot vessel, 1,380 tons gross, and was built in 1902.

The route from Rotterdam to Tilbury lies across the southern end of the North Sea on a line which passes about 40 miles north of Zeebrugge. The German destroyers probably set forth from Zeebrugge. Most of the passengers on the Brus sels were Belgian refugees on their way to England.

Violent Struggle on Both Banks of Meuse Last Night Resulted in French Recapturing Trenches at Hills 320 and 321 -Drive Germans Back Over the Ground They Had Won Yesterday.

(Canadia n Press.)

Paris, June 24, 12:30 a.m.—The battle of Verdun continued last night with the utmost violence on both sides of the River Meuse. The war office announced today that the French have regained a large part of the ground lost northeast of Verdun, near Hills 320 and 321.

Undertaking a vigorous offensive, the French drove back the Germans over the ground which they won yesterday. The battle was particularly violent in the vicinity of Fleury.

The French did not succeed in regaining possession of Thiaumont work.

More than six German divisions participated in the offensive actions east of the Meuse yesterday.

FIGHTING FURIOUS.

[Canadian Press.] Paris, June 24.-Late details show that yesterday's fighting near Verdun equalled in fury anything yet experienced. The total German forces engaged on a two-mile front are estimated as between four and five divisions. It was only by the last overwhelming rush when these defenders were worn out and thinned by many hours of bombardment that the enemy succeeded in rushing the Thiaumont work and the adjacent advanced trenches.

The Thiaumont fortification covers the approaches to Fleury, and the enemy hoped to continue the charge and sweep away the defende of the latter place, but the French counter-attacked with such y that he was able only only to cling to the positions first gained, he was busily engaged in strengthening all night, in preparatio fresh attempts to push his advantage.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE P

London's Civic Transportation Problem.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: Last night's clash between the officials of the local street railway and members of the city council is, in my opinion, the result of decisions arrived alion in England. at during the meeting of the directors late beyond anything they ever desired-Holeman, on their own terms. Their terms do dump carts away to the bushes. Yours naving been fore- not include the expenditure, if they can sincerely, nan of the stamp-ng department at for track extensions which they feel many will be more or less of a loss to them To the Editor of The Advertiser: when their franchise expires.

I feel I am safe in saying that the majority of the citizens are with the tension of the Sunday franchise on the company's terms or on any terms that part. We owe it to the men who govern our city to show them that we feel this way, and it surprises me that knowing what London has put up with from the street railway company that newspapers do not show a greater interest and endeavor to get at the wishes of the people. It is unfortunate that the controversy should have arisen at this time because of the presence

It is obvious that the street railway company are taking advantage of that the council will be shamed into granting a Sunday franchise or forced by public opinion to grant it. I, for one, trust that nothing of the kind will happen. Why not prepare for a change in transportation? The street railway franchise has only eight or nine years to run, and judging from the attempt on the part of the company to foist old second-hand cars on us, they do not anticipate getting very much for their plant when the franchise expires. Are on June 14. He is suffering from shell they looking ahead to something different in the way of street transportation? When the wrangle was on last present service, as I felt sure that the motor bus would eventually take the place of the trolley system. I notice that Manager King dropped a hint of something of the kind at a recent conference with the council, and he has the right pig by the ear.

If I were in the council this year I would ask my fellow members to not urge further extensions unless they are prepared to admit that there is nothing better ahead of us, and unless they are prepared to buy out a bunch of an all-the-year-round vehicle, here is my point: why not abandon the trolley system, with its dangerous overhead wires, its dangerous tracks, and install motor buses that can take on and discharge passengers at the curb; that can run on any street and thereby provide express service with no outlay whatever for tracks, poles, wires or power plant? With thousands of motor cars in use we have got to keep our streets clear of snow in the winter, and the saving in the up-keep of all the paraphernalia mentioned

Just think, too, of the blessed reduction in noise; the quickness of the service and (don't laugh, you chaps who wrestle with the blowouts) the regularity of the service. Not much, it simply skips around the lame duck and goes on its way, while the city-owned busbarn sends out another car to take the place of the disabled one.

Missionary and Sunday School Text Books Studied During the Week.

The first summer school of the Church of England held in London under the joint auspices of the M. S. C. C. and the S. S. C. concludes its ons at Huron College at noon. The attendance was up to the capacity of the accommodation, and was drawn chiefly from the Diocese of Huron, though Hamilton sent up a strong delegation and some came from Quebec city. The school was mainly concerned with missionary and Sunday school work, and specialists in each of these departments of church work led the classes and conferences. Some of those attending the school have been attending the schools from year to year, and find in them the pleasantest kind of holiday combined with a profitable time. The routine of the school begins with the rising bell at 6:30. This is followed by Holy Communion at 7:15, with breakfast and family prayer and address given by Ven. # JURY HOLDS GRAND TRUNK

FEAR FOR CITY'S CREDIT PUT ON MOTOR BUSSES 82 STUDENTS REGISTERED Brings in Verdict of Criminal Negligence Against Watchman Asks Speedy Action From Council in Effecting Solution of Deadly Level Crossing Menace.

> "We find that Capt. John E. Case came to his death at Talbot street crossing in the city of London in the forenoon of June 18, 1916, while going to South London in response to a fire alarm, when the motor truck on which he was riding was struck by an east. bound freight train, and instantly killed thereby.

"We find from the evidence that Crossing Watchman Joseph Premo was guilty of criminal negligence in the discharge of his duties, therefore we hold the Grand Trunk Railroad Corporation responsible for the fatality. "We would urge most strongly upon the civic authorities of the city of London that they get in touch with the Dominion Rallway Commission for the purpose of doing away with this constant menace to the lives of citizens,

The above was the verdict of the jury empaneled by Coroner Dr. Mac-Laren at the inquest held last evening in the police station to inquire into the death of Capt. John Case of the fire department, who was killed when the big auto truck on which he was riding was struck by a Grand Trunk freight train at Talbot street crossing last Sunday morning. The jury deliberated for about an hour before returning a verdict. Apparently public interest in the ease had waned considerably during the week, for the small space for spectators was only comfortably filled last evening when the inquest opened at 8

Some disappointment was evinced by the spectators when Mr. Bartlett stated that he would not put his client in the witness box. Mr. Premo's version of how the accident occurred has yet to be heard officially. Eyewitness Tells Story.

John Murphy, conductor of the westbound freight extra No. 684, was the first witness called. Murphy, whose home is in Sarnia, stated that he was standing on the rear platform of his caboose when his train crossed Talbot and saw the accident happen. He said that he did not know that another train was coming. As his train cleared the crossing he saw a small red auto cross the tracks going south, and as it reached the tracks one of the men in it turned and put up his hand behind him as if to warn those coming in the rear. At the same time he heard the screech of a whistle on the east track about two car lengths ahead of him, and then the extra eastbound freight No. 629 passed the end of his train and struck the auto truck as it was trying to cross the tracks. "Was that about the time No. 629 was due?" Mr. McKillop asked. 'Yes," said the witness "Then railwaymen might expect the rain at that time?"

"Yes. "About how fast was it traveling?" "I should say about five or six miles

Engineer's Story. Joseph P. Woodcock, engineer of the extra eastbound freight No. 629, which struck the auto truck, was then called. Woodcock, whose home is also in Sarnia, said that his run was from Sarnia don by Capt. Beattie Martin, son of to Hamilton. He testified that his train did not run on any timecard. It leaves Sarnia at 7 o'clock in the morning and picks up cars as it comes along, arriving in London between around 11 o'clock.

Witness said that he had signaled from the cove bridge, and had blown two long and two short blasts at the Thames River bridge, at Ridout street, and at Talbot street. He said he was traveling about 25 miles an hour at the cove bridge, and at the yard limit board av the Wharncliffe road subway he had applied his brakes and at the London semaphore, released his train brakes, retaining his engine brakes. As the train crossed the Thames River bridge it was going about six miles per hour, and was traveling at about the same rate when it crossed Ridout street. Mr. McKillop pointed out to Commissioner Mitchell that the bylaw is against the use of whistles for signaling purposes, and that the railway act requires that whistles be sounded for safety.

Willard Early, also of Sarnia, fireman on Woodcock's engine, testified that he had last fired up at the west side of the cove bridge.

"Was the whistle blown?" "Yes."

"And the bell ringing?" "Yes; I was ringing that myself." "Where did you pass the end of the eastbound freight?"

"About two car lengths west of Talbot street. Then I saw something red ome into sight in front of the engine continued Early. "It was the truck, and was just coming onto the track a we crossed the sidewalk. We carried it about three or four car lengths. Our train was moving at a walking pac when the accident occurred.' Early said that his bell did not ring automatically. He said that they met the engine of the westbound train at about the Thames bridge.

Not Going Fast. John Boucher, conductor in charge of the eastbound train, did not see the eccident. He was standing on the rear platform of his caboose, and the first e knew that anything was wrong was when the conductor on the westbound train shouted to him as the trains passed. He swore that his train was not going faster than five or six miles per hour. "As conductor was it your duty to watch the speed of the train?"

Witness said that the conductor stood on the rear platform to apply the brakes if necessary. The caboose was 23 lengths west of Talbot street, and ten west of Ridout. He was not particularly surprised at the train

As soon as the train crossed he raised the gates. Were the gates up before the train was clear of Talbot street?"

"Could Premo, from where he standing, see a train coming from the west?" "I don't think that he could." 'Was the westbound train between him and the eastbound track?" "Yes." "What did you see as you were crossing the tracks?"

"I make it a rule to look both ways when crossing tracks, and saw the eastbound train coming," said Chief Aitken. "I turned in my seat and tried Rev. James McKay, minister of the to wave the truck back, but without ccess. We were traveling fast, and had reached Bathurst and Talbot streets when I saw the engine strike the truck."

Mr. Thos, G. O'Connor, Halifax, N.S., says: 'I am writing this for the public telling of the remarkable cure I received from your great remedy Gin Pills. When I started taking them I was what you might call 'all in.' I ould not bend for any length of time, nor could I lay on my side for a short time without becoming very tired. I had all the symptoms of Kidney Trouble and thought I would not be able to stay at work.

With the aid of Gin Pills I entirely overcame my trouble and I am now feeling fine. I strongly urge any one suffering from their kidneys to take Gin Pills and they will soon feel as if they never had any trouble."

These Symptons Mean Danger If you have pains in the back, constant headaches, incongreat spheres of life. In Business Life. First, business life. In all the ramifications of the commercial world we find no absolute independence. Each leans on the other, for a market or for assistance. Farmers often fanct they can be independent not only of the business and professional men of the town and city, but as well of one an other. It is a huge mistake. The crying need of farmers in this country today is more co-operation among themselves as well as with the men of the towns and cities. Only in this way can the great problems of demand and supply, agricultural efficiency, adequate rural population, better country schools and churches, better roads and the like, be solved. The businessmen of the city have learned the value of co-operation and practice it more fully than the far mers. So do the trades and professions through their unions and associations, but if there were more getting together of all classes and conditions in our towns and cities and rural communities vastly more might be done to make

If some specimens could be discovered and secured, might not a suitable growing place be found for them in Springbank Park? There are plenty of damp and shady spots in that protected ground where the fern could flourish and spread and please the eye of London's nature lovers.

There are other old Canadian natives, growing rare, both plant and animal, that might find a home in Springbank. The place is varied in character of soil, elevation and flora, suited to all sorts of vegetation. It should not be kept with an eye only to a lawn garden, but may be profitably stored with many forms of plant life interesting to the curious student of nature or the exact biologist. In various parks on this continent may be seen specimens of rare survivors in the animal world, bisons, deer, etc., as well as an opulent variety of curious plants. Springbank ought to be a sanctuary of refuge for Goldie's fern or other interesting flora of this region.

The Germans have sacrificed thousands upon thousands of lives to get it-and they are presumed to be fair judges of military values. Lay opinion will be impressed by the obvious fact that Ypres is a railway centre-in fact, the only railway centre in that immediate neighborhood. And much of this war has been fought for the possession of railway centres—as witness the

The Star comments further upon the moral effect of the criticism, and says military authorities must have the moral backing of practically the entire community if they are to persevere in policies which cost heavily in human life. STORIES OF BRITISH NAVAL HEROISM

"How Wilson Got His

Written for The Advertiser by Judge Barron of Stratford

Dedicated to the Boy Scouts of Canada.

"It is one of the most courageous acts I have ever square, The naval brigade of 13 officers and 150 seamen, witnessed," On the 25th of January last, Admiral Sir Arthur K. Wilson succeeded Sir John Fisher as first lord of the admiralty. He is known, or was, as the silent admiral, from which cognomon, he has earned, we may suppose the reputation of being a man of deeds, not words, and in proof of this, we may quote the fact, that he is or "What a shame! But everybody is was familiarly known as "Tug" Wilson. He is regarded busy. My dress did not come home today as the highest authority in the navy on gunnery, strategy and tactics, and in the latter he is said to be supreme. He is regarded as one of England's most distinguished torpedo specialists, and an officer of the highest scientific attainment. Ever since the adoption of the automobile torpedo in the British service he has ranked as a leading torpedo expert, and in fact invented the torpedo net-cutter, now adopted in all navies, and he also invented the double-barreled torpedo tube. Besides which he is a V. C. man, and this is how he won his cross: In 1883, a formidable insurrection broke out in the Soudan against the Khedive who, with England's cooperation had been restored to power in Egypt. At the time fanaticism ran mad among the Soudanese, and a man of themselves, who set himself up as the successor of Mahomet, and who assumed the title of Messiah, was universally regarded as the promised deliverer from the yoke of Egypt. He placed himself at the head of the insurrection, and beyond doubt his followers were great and fierce fighters, for they had to the fullest extent the potent aid of religious zeal and absolute faith in their cause, which to them was the cause of Allah-the only true, great and highest God, whose attributes were so immense that, according to the Koran, "If all the trees on earth were pens, only causing more havoc in his and if there were seven oceans full of ink, they would not suffice to describe the wonders of ALLAH."

Nothing ever daunts them. They learn nothing from defeat, while victory is due to the fact that Allah is pleased with them.

In November of the previous year, they almost annihilated a force sent against them under Hicks Pasha, and thereafter the Soudan was in great peril. The Mahdi besieged the Egyptian garrisons invested Singat and Tokar, and threatened Suakim on the Red Sea. This is where they made a mistake, for to approach the sea, was Admiral Hewitt, with the Sphinx, Decoy, Ranger, and Euryalus anchored off Suakim, and with a landing party effectually defended the town. Baker Pasha, however, was not so fortunate. It may be that his ill-disciplined Egyptian troops, numbering 5,000, were in part responsible his crushing defeat. While proceeding from Trinkitat to Tokar, he was attacked by Osman Digna at El-Teb, and lost more than half his men, and nearly every British officer in his army was slain. The effect of this upon the Soudanese was tremendous. "It is the will of Allah" was repeated far and wide. The garrison of Tokar forthwith surrendered and joined the enemy, and it was felt immediately that if a blow was not struck and struck at once, at the Mahdi's influence, the position of the Khedive, for which England was responsible, might be successfully assailed.

Our enemies never seem to understand, yet the warnbefore dinner. It had been daylight, almost, before he had to got to bed. He not sufficient, then 2,000 will be sent. If 100,000 are not cient then all England will turn out, and if that is not sufficient, then the dominions across the seas will lend a hand, for though she may be licked, England can't and won't stay licked. Thus it came about that, when Baker Pasha suffered so disastrously, English troops were brought up from Egypt and Aden, and eventually they encamped at Fort Baker, two miles on the road to Tokar, which had previously surrendered to the enemy. On the 29th of February, the force advanced in hollow

So when it came A week later Dick and his sister were I put it on and departed, and just aftended interest and bent low, turning waiting for the elevator of the apartment hotel where they lived, when a girl and an elderly man approached.

Slowly the square came on, when suddenly it found itself in touch with the enemy in an entrenched position behind a low ridge marked by a number of flags nearly a mile in length. This method of meeting an attack was, it is said, contrary to their usual custom. Their guns were so arranged as to meet a direct attack, hence it was decided to turn the enemy's position and work round its flank. Immediately when this was attempted the square was met by a sharp fire of musketry, and two Krupp guns taken from Tokar, and handled by rebels, opened on the square with shot and shell. Fortunately the aim was far too high, for no damage was done. Our men were at once ordered to lie down, and the machine guns from the Euryalus and the artillery were brought into action. The fire was successful at once. The Krupp guns were silenced, and the gunners killed. "Up and at them," was the cry and away they went with a rush to the music of the bagpipes, straight for the enemy's position. Instantly the Arabs rose like a swarm of bees. With a fierce rush, and to the cry of "Allah! Allah!" they came pouring down on the advancing troops. The naval brigade was, as is always the case, in the brunt of the attack. As the Arabs came on they were met with the deadly fire of the machine guns, which swept away the advancing foe, as hail wrecks the ripened grain, and at the first rush not an Arab broke through the line of bayonets. The hero of this little tale, Capt. A. K. Wilson, R. N., who afterwards became the first lord of the admiralty, was a volunteer with the Naval Brigade. At the corner of the square between the Naval Brigade and the 65th, the enemy made a fierce attack. They came on with such force that they climbed over their fallen comrades. Lieut. Royds, of the Carysfort, was killed with three seamen. The enemy had opened the gap, and the Arabs in force rushed towards it with their spears. "Allah! Allah!" was the cry, and down they came to this angle in hordes. Capt. Wilson saw what was happening. He rushed in and fought desperately to save the gap. For a moment he stood alone. With his sword he slashed right and left, and many a man fell. Then his sword broke, and he was without a weapon. 'Close up, Close up," someone cried, but before the men of the 65th closed the gap Wilson had knocked down with his fists three men as they rushed upon him. It was a desperate single-handed fight for a moment or two, but he saved many a seaman from being speared. He escaped, but not without being wounded, but fortunately his wounds were slight. He saved the square, and got the V. C. for an act, which Sir Redvers Bullers has described as one of the most courageous acts he had ever witnessed. enemy beaten. It cost the navy the life of a brave and sailor has nerves, they must have suffered, for on the wayside lay the decaying bodies by hundreds of Baker's troops, slaughtered a few days before in the engagement with Osman Digna. If they were affected, a fierce fight, of a little later, soon restored them to their fighting trim.

With the position carried, El-Teb was taken and the promising officer and three good seamen, but then they helped to gain the following eulogy in general orders from the officer commanding: The general officer thanks the Naval Brigade for their cheerful endurance, during the severe work of dragging the guns over difficult country, when suffering from heat and scarcity of water and for their ready gallantry, and steadiness under fire while serving their guns. The Naval Brigade contributed materially to the success of the action, and the general officer commanding cannot to highly express his thanks for their services."

MISS PRINGLE'S RECITAL.

The music-lovers of London are ooking forward to Thursday evening. June 29, when a recital will be given at "Bishopstowe," by Miss Marjorle Pringle, soprano of Hamilton. Miss Pringle has for the past few weeks filled the position of soprano soloist in St. Paul's Cathedral and has already created a most favorable impression n local circles by her artistic work. Miss Pringle studied in New York with the eminent teachers, George Sweet and Madame Theslof. She was also a pupil of F. W. Wodell of Boston, and spent some time abroad, where she studied singing and piano in Florence Italy, with Braggiotte and Buonanici. Miss Pringle's program at her recital will be unique, such a program, in fact, as the public of London seldom hear, including two modern arias by Puccinni and Goddard, and a varied selection by modern American and English composers. Almost without exception the program is entirely new. The assisting artists are Miss Florence Egglestone, who will play the subject, "Ave Maria," and the London instrumental trio, which has been so well received on various occasions this season. They will contribute a movement from one of Mozart's trios and a group of shorter numbers by Mendelssohn, Schubert and Wivor. The recital will be in aid of the Western University hospital unit, and it is confidently hoped that a satisfactory sum will be realized. Miss Pringle leaves ing else acts like it, for nothing else ters of the I. O. D. E. Simcoe Street Mothers Club Winds Up Season With Election

The closing meeting of the Simcoe street school Mothers' Club was held on Thursday evening in the kindergarten of the school. There was a large attendance. The election of officers was held, Mrs. Gemmil of Talbot street school presiding. The following were returned: Monorary president, Mrs. Curnoe; president, Mrs. Wright; vice-president, Mrs. Mitchell; secretary, Mrs. Gray; treasurer, Mrs. Campbell.

A musical program was given, and the yearly report presented by the secretary. During the term the club has been most successful, and gratulations were given by Miss Davidson, Mrs. Curnoe and Mrs. Pearse. It was decided that the mothers hold picnic later in the holiday season. Refreshments were served, meeting closed with singing the National Anthem.

A wonderful record in work is being made at St. Andrew's Hall these days; everyone has been working up to their limit, and now they are go over it to get everything finished for the unit this week. It is impossible to mention here the names of all those who have given such constant and magnificent help to the cause. Red Cross auxiliaries, including juniors, have done magnificent work. It was comforting to hear last week the comments of a soldier who is soon leaving for the front the second time, having been severely wounded at Givenchy. He told of the wonderful system of dressing stations, hospitals, etc., and said: "The Red Cross hospitals are perhaps a little bit better than the others—the equipment of better. It is the old standard tried and all is good-that of the Red Cross true all-the-year-round medicine for the superlative." dal and the Zulu Kid are his sparring mates, with Willie Lewis as coach. Moran's bouts with Zulu Kid show nim as he will appear in the ring with Dillon, who is built along the same lines as the Brooklyn Italian. The latter is no broken-down warrior, but a youngster, full of youth and vitality. He recently put young Ahearn down twice for nine counts, and would be a very good man if he had a quick-thinking brain. He also went ten rounds with Dillon, and the latter had no great advantage at the end.

Developing Right Uppercut. Boxing with Moran, the dark-visaged Italian was at a hopeless disadvantage on account of the difference in height, weight and reach. Moran handled him with no trouble at all, using his superior weight and strength to the best advantage. There is little doubt that in a real fight Moran could stop him in a few rounds.

Moran is developing a right uppercut for this fight. It is a blow he never used before to any extent, but in his daily bouts he tries it constantly, evidently figuring that Dillon can be reached with this wallop easier than with any other. He puts plenty of driving power behind it, and is fairly accurate, considering that it is practically a new punch for him. Moran's Best Bet.

If Moran can develop that uppercut until it is the equal of his right cross, his chances will be enhanced considerably, for Dillon being so much shorter,

The clutch is a neglected item and the reason can be attributed to that characteristic of man in which he will first do the work that is staring him in the face and then trust to luck in the behavior of the inaccessible parts, say Wallace B. Blood, writing in Motor Age. It is important that clutch troubles be readily recognized and remedied. The power and speed of the entire vehicle may be seriously affected by improper clutch action. The same ailments will crop up in all types, and the most important of these is a too harsh, or grabbing, clutch, simply because operating a clutch in this condition places a severe strain on the gears, bearings, tires, in the clutch face it is a very simple matter to cut a stick of wood the proper size to fit against the back of the front seat and hold the clutch pedal open. To avoid needlessly spilling the material over other parts of the mechanism-remember Fuller's earth and sulphur absorb oil and may cause harm if allowed to enter bearings-fold a piece of paper into a trough and pour the powder through it onto the leather. Never use rosin for this purpose. It will melt when heated and glaze the leather. It will eventualy be the cause of more slipping instead

We now assume that you have tried the above methods to remedy your clutch troubles without success. The only thing left to do is to replace the clutch leather or the clutch spring, whichever is causing the trouble. If an examination of the leather shows it to be in good condition it is a new spring that is needed. There is a big chance of its shrinking too tightly and pulling away from the rivets. It is best purchase the leather in endless form, that is sealed at the ends, so that it will fit perfectly over the cone. First, place the leather on the conwith one side flush with the larger diameter of the cone. Then pry the leather on until it is evenly fitted onto the metal surface. If the leather hangs over the small-diameter edge of the cone it is not on far enough and should be pried further on to the taper, trouble should be experienced in fitting the leather by use of the hands only.

If there is access to a vise the rivetng operation is a simple process. The holes in the leather should be countersunk deep enough so that the rivet heads will be below the surface. Enough leather should be maintained under the rivets, however, so that there will be no danger of them pulling out. After the facing is applied the high spots should be rubbed off with sandpaper or the edge of a piece of glass.

If, in a multipledisk clutch in which all the disks are nade of metal, there is not proper release, it is because the plate surfaces have become rough and tend to stick ogether. The plates should be smooth and of equal thickness at all points on the surface. If the plates become worn hin in spots and remain thick in others there will be unequal engagement and consequently grabbing. If the clutch is of the type which runs in an oil bath, care must be taken to keep the oil fresh and clean. Heavy or gummy oil will cause the plates to adhere, and the

Each season for a number of years the Overland organization has accomplished what no other automobile manufacturer has even attempted.

Each season it has built a car that would satisfy the demands of the most fastidious -one having all the up-to-date advantages, comforts and conveniences known to the automobile industry—to sell at a price so low as to defy comparison.

Overland organization, Overland experience and Overland factory facilities have accomplished what others have considered impossible.

This year Overland dominance is even more positive.

We have developed and built the ideal small, light, economical car-complete in every detail of construction and equipment-smart in appearance, of highest quality and finest finish-to sell for

Only the economies possible with a production of 1,000 cars a day make possible such a complete car at such a price. This Overland was built to reach a new low level of operating and upkeep expense. It was designed to meet the demands of those who could not afford a big, expensive automobile, yet would not be content to own a little, unsightly, uncomfortable car.

But its success has been such that everyone—people of wealth and automobile experience, as well as those of modest means find in this economical $850 Overland their ideal light

It has beauty, finish, comforts and conveniences that everyone wants.

A look at the car will tell you that.

But you must ride in it to appreciatefully and completely its ample power, its smooth operation, its comfort, simplicity of control and remarkable easy riding qualities.

Yet it is not only inexpensive to buy, but very economical to operate.

You can own this Overland.

Another says: "My Saxon 'Six' is certainly a locomotive for power. A short time ago I ran 100 miles on high through mud axle-deep and averaged 26 miles to the gallon of gas." Still another: "My Saxon 'Six' is giving most excellent satisfaction. Recently I made a drive of 42 miles on two gallons of gasoline and carried five passengers. Not so long before that I made a trip up in the mountains above timber line and drove 121 miles using only seven gallons of gasoline, carrying five passengers, with the thermometer varying from zero to thirty-one above, and pulling up one grade of 271 feet in slightly over half a mile. clutch will spin. If difficulty is exper enced in getting the gears to mesh in car equipped with a multiple-disk clutch running in oil, the trouble will probably be found under the above head. It is a good thing to drain the oil from the clutch case about once every two months, flush thoroughly with kero sene and put in new oil. Leave kerosene in the case over night if possible and in the morning jack up a rear wheel, start the motor, engage high gear and push the clutch pedal in and out until you are convinced that the liquid has thoroughly soaked the plates. Slippage in such a clutch is generally due to weak spring, distortion of the plates, or use of too heavy oil. Never use an inferior grade of oil in a multiple-disk clutch housing. The friction heat will carbonize the oil and pit the plates or coat them with a gummy carbon paste. In most cases a simple adjustment is provided for disk clutches through the aid of adjusting nuts carried around the periphery of the clutch housing.

Worn Disks Must Be Replaced, In the dry-plate type half of the disks are of a friction material—generally a woven fabric containing asbestos. When these become worn they must be replaced and must be purchased already made up either from the factory or a supply house. The kerosene treatment should also be applied to this type at frequent intervals.

In the three-plate construction a single large driven member is used, faced with rings of friction material, operating between two flat surfaces, one connected with the motor and the other with the gearset. With such a construction, owing to the large diameters of the friction surfaces, it is necessary to employ a clutch brake to stop the rotation. Adjusting nuts are provided to take up wear in a similar way as in the multiple-disk. Wear of the surfaces and weakened or broken springs are the usual causes of trouble.

Planetary Adjustments. In the early days of motoring planetary transmissions were extensively used in all grades of cars principally because of their ease in control. The clutch used is the multiple-disk cotter pin and turn up the set screw of the car it will be necessary to replace to hold the clutch in neutral position,

The first thing to do is to get clearly in mind just what the function of each unit is, understand how it operates and what it controls, and figure out the wiring through careful perusal of the instruction book and wiring diagram that comes with the machine. After carefully doing this, if you still cannot understand all the features of the system, either write the car maker, the builder of the electric apparatus or write Motor Age. Having clearly in mind just what each thing is for, you will be surprised how readily you in the symptoms of the case. In a general way, the starting circuit and the lighting and ignition circuits are all separate in so far as a broad consideration is concerned, and thus when one system operates as it should while another does not, you immediately eliminate the former and pay attention only to the apparatus and wiring that is essential to the latter. the storage battery itself. Trouble in the generator, also, is a ssibility, as is some form of open rcuit. The easiest of these possible auses to look for is the short circuit the wiring or apparatus, and if the ouble is not found here, it is necessary to delve deeper. Shorts in the onnections at the lamps may be due non-insulated wires touching one another, due to having become chafed or improperly taped, or otherwise insulated when attached. The wire usually being of the stranded type, a loose will determine when anything is wrong strand might be found to have bridged and why it does not operate as it across the terminals to form a short circuit, a small thing in itself, but important in its troublesome results.

No Barbed Wires. Defective or grounded lamp sockets this kind, though the possibilities of such are more remote than some of the other causes. If the insulation is not what it should be and the socket ouches the metal reflector the short There should not be any bare wires anywhere. Sooner or later they cause trouble, and you should see that everything is as it should be at the lamps, with only the very terminal of the wire uninsulated where it connects to the lamp binding post.

Next look at the connections at the witches, for similar causes of short any notice either of the starting or the circuits are to be found at these points also. See that the insulation is as it hould be and that there are no stray strands of wire hanging around to get into mischief at some future time, even if they are behaving themselves at Sometimes a switch gets rounded because of ineffective or imroper insulation. A short circuit might also be caused by the generator being grounded, due either to defective insulation in the armature of field windings, or to an accumulation of dust from the brushes in the lower part of the generator case forming a short between the brush

The cause of back-firing through the inlet valve is generally a delayed combustion of a weak mixture. The result of such a mixture is a weak exolosion or slow burning of the charge. The fresh charge will, therefore, be ignited by the flame of the previous charge and, as the inlet valve at that time is open toward the air supply lipe or passage, an explosion will oceur in either the intake pipes or the carburetter. The remedy is, of course, to increase the fuel supply or to de-making the insulation defective or rotten and when a wire is discovered to be in this defective condition it should be replaced before an annoying trouble develops. Sometimes when wires are supported in metal brackets or cleats the constant chafing wears off the insulation and the metal comes in contact-result, a short circuit. Short Circuits.

Battery short circuits are either in ernal and the result of defects in the unit itself or they are due to external causes, Internal shorts arise from improper battery care resulting primar ily from not keeping enough water in is not running; they might vary in in-tensity of light or flicker; some might ducive to disintegration of the plates and the collection of sediment in the bottom of the jar which in time collects to such an extent that it touches the bottoms of the plates and shorts

> Sometimes a short has resulted from he battery terminals being too close to the top of the metal battery container, this forming an electrical path from one battery post to another. This an be remedied by fitting a piece of wood or fibre into the under side of the metal container.

The circuit breaker is another unit in which a short circuit might be possible, supposing that you have gone e sometimes the cause of shorts of over the points enumerated above without discovering any cause of current leakage. Dirty contact points in this apparatus or other defects such as wornout contact mechanism are usually not easily remedied, and in such ases of shorting the instrument should be sent back to its maker for repair. Reversing Wires.

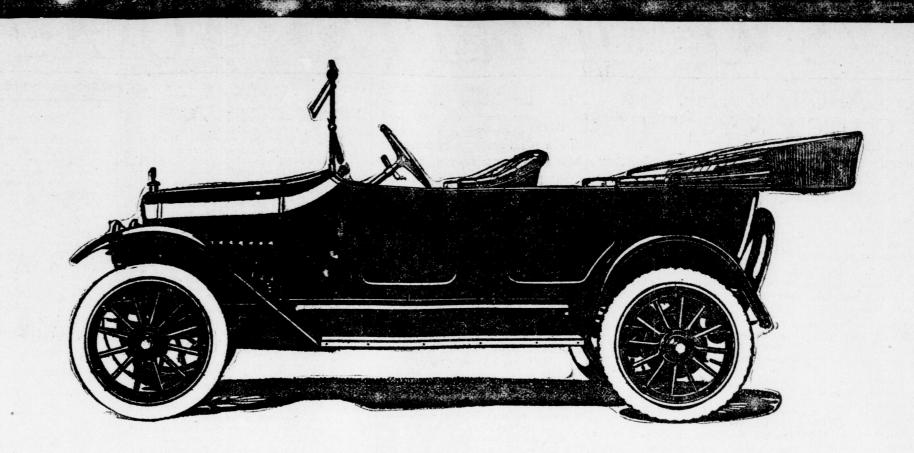

Sometimes the contact points are held closed, this making a dead short on the battery through the generator. It does not take long for such trouble to run the battery down, and if such found to be the trouble one of the battery lead wires should be disconnected at once to save whatever of the battery's energy you can.

Usually a short will result from having reversed the connection of the battery and that from the generator, this esuiting from carelessness in replacing the wires after they have been disbe careful to put the right terminal to fective parts have to be replaced, as avoid such mishaps.

Occasionally the engine backfires and runs several revolutions in the reverse direction before it stops. # The Reputation of the Maxwell

THAT is the bore and stroke of your motor," was asked a Maxwell owner not long ago.

"I don't know," he replied simply, "I don't buy cars on figures any more. I buy them on what they've done."

For this man, and for many others like him, it was enough that during the thirteen strenuous years the Maxwell record for performance, reliability and economy had swept it to the front.

Figures—engine speed figures, horse-power figures, wheel-base figures—they meant nothing to him. The name "Maxwell" carried more weight than all the technical description that could be offered.

Maxwell cars have achieved this great good will and this priceless position with the public only by their unequalled record of things done. What is said of an automobile in its specifications is one matter. What the car actually does in the hands of owners, year after year, is another matter.

The Maxwell car has won its position through sheer merit. It has set record after record in competition with cars of all prices and classes.

Everything considered, the Maxwell is the safe investment. It is a known, tried and proved product. It will serve you as it is serving and has served countless others steamship was approximately 550. The disaster occurred about 10 o'clock the morning, off the village of Grigorievka. The passengers felt a tremendous shock in the forward part of the vessel, which staggered ahead for three ship's lengths, and then went down, bow foremost in five minutes. Survivors tell harrowing stories of the scenes that ensued. All available steamers and tugs hastened from Odessa and rescued the survivors clinging to lifeboats and wreckage.

Teutons Bringing Up Reinforcements From Italian and French Fronts.

[Canadian Press Cable.] London, June 23.-10:55 p.m.-Tonight's Russian official communication confirms what already had been learned from Austrian admissions, that the Russians are overrunning Bukowina and are making a dash for the passes to the Carpathian Mountains as they did eighteen months ago, when they reached Kirlibaba Pass, overlooking Austrian Transylvania. A report from Bucharest states that the Russians have taken possession of two railways leading from Rumania into Bukowina The information that the Germans and Austrians are bringing up reinforcements from the French and Italian fronts is also given in the communica. tion from Petrograd. According to speculations in Paris, the tornado of artillery fire on the Verdun sector and the attacks in Champagne are supposed to mask the transfer of troops from this front to the Russian front in view of the necessity of stemming the Russian advance towards Kovel. Reach Carpathians. By means of forced marches along the nanian frontier, the Russians have reached the extreme south of Bukowina and at Kuty, on the north and Guta Humora on the south, have reached the thickly forested spurs of the Carpathian mountains. A good road, roughly estimated about 100 miles long, runs through narrow valleys and gorges from Gura Humora to Bistritza, Hunexcellent opening into their enemy's country.

Crossed Four Rivers. The Russians in their pursuit of the Austrians thus far have crossed four rivers-The Dniester, Pruth, Sereth and Suczava. Two days sufficed to cover the fifteen miles between the Sereth and the Suczava. The objective of the Russians was Radautz, where the Austians were expected to offer stubborn resistence, owing to the fact that the river forms a natural de fensive line to the north and northeas asking that a certain amount be added to their tender. The council held to Austrians failed to make any serious the opinion that the firm should not stand here, inasmuch as no fighting is deviate from their contract, and they described in the official communica-

Radautz is only five miles southwest of the important railway junction of Hadikfalva, close to the Rumanian rontier, which also is in Russian hands. Virtually the entire railway system of Bukowina is now in the possession of the Russians.

WALL STREET REVIEW. New York, June 24.—Mexico formed lmost the sole subject of discussion in amost the sole subject of discussion in Wall Street this week. Among bankers there was some conjecture respecting a possible government bond issue to meet expenses connected with the mobilization of troops and maintenance mobilization of troops and maintenance of border patrols. It was stated by competent authorities that the pending negotiations with British and French interests for new loans or credits would be carried to a satisfactory conclusion, regardless of home requirements.

In the stock market prices suffered a very irregular downward revision. In the stock market prices suffered a very irregular downward revision, especially in certain of the more speculative issues. Heavy declines in shares like United States Industrial Alcohol, Tennesee Copper and some of the other metals and specialties were due to specific causes, notably in the case of Tennessee Copper, whose directors ordered a suspension of dividend disbursements. disbursements.
Rails of the better class, together

Rails of the better class, together with United States Steel and other stock of recognized merit, yielded only nominally. Railroad earnings continue to show satisfactory gains over the corresponding period of recent years, and although domestic demand for iron and steel is generally below the high pressure of the early months of the year, most mills are well booked with orders running into 1917.

The success of the Rusian movements against Austria was more clearly responsible. [Special to the Advertiser.]

WALLACEBURG, June 23.—The Windsor Dredging Company has two dredges working at Otter Creek, and a third land dredge is being placed on the 5th concession to commence operations further than the water dredges can go. The company has a contract for about $20,000 for the excavation for about $20,000 for the excavation against Austria was more clearly reflected in the increasing heaviness of exchange rates to the countries of the central powers, with improvement in roubles. [Reported by Thomson & McKinnon.] New York, June 23. Prices declined some 15 to 18 points on liquidation, partly on stop orders. It meant profit-taking after a recent sharp advance. The weather map on the whole was better and there was less whole was better and there was less demand for July. Shorts have covered heavily during the week and there was less demand from this source also. Besides after a recent advance of some 85 to 90 points a reaction was due.

Liverpool was quiet and lower with the closing barely steady and spot sales of only 5,000 bales. The importations there of late have been large and are likely to increase. Ocean freights from New Orleans to Liverpool are shown to $1.25 per 100 pounds. Liverpool it is $1.25 per 100 pounds. Liverpool it is true bought about 15,000 bales here to undo straddles, but as fast as the straddles are undone here by buying, cotton is sold abroad. some of the crop reports moreover are rather more favorable as the weather grows warm. Spot prices here were reduced 15 points with no sales The forecast for the eastern belt was in the main favorable pointing to fail weather tonight. There was some talk to the effect that the Government acreage and crop report on July 1 may be less bullish than was at one time ex-pected. It will be remembered that Chronicle acreage given yesterday was the largest on record.

Prices may sag later but there is strong understone of bullish underlying the market.

LONDON, ONT. SHORTHORN CATTLE ARE DUAL-PURPOSED

Kent Brewery

Western Ontario Stock-Raisers Going More Into Well-Known Breed.

Shorthorn, cattle, which are re garded by many farmers and stock breeders as the best dual-purposed beasts that can be raised, are growing in popularity, as evidenced by the demand for them in Western Ontario

At a recent sale at Elora prices as high as $1,125 were realized for a single animal. The Shorthorn is one of the best of milker. The first Shorthorn cattle in Middlesex were raised by the Robsons, Gearys, Smiths and Shores, proneers of this vicinity. George Robson, father of Capt. Thos. Robson, bought some of the first about 1850. The Shorthorn originated in County Durham, England, and although they had been bred pure for several hundred years, it was not until along in the eighteenth century that any record of their lineage was kept. It is supposed they descended from a cross between the native white cattle of England and the Skeby, now known as the West Highland cattle of Scotland, together with some blood of cattle imported from the continent. In their early history they were known as great milkers and at the present day 90 per cent of the dairy cattle in England are pure-bred Shorthorns, and as a beef producer they have all other breeds eclipsed. Early in the nineteenth century the Durham Shorthorn had become known and was being bred in almost all parts of the British Isles. There had been many small associations of breeders but it was not until about this time that a herd book was originated by George Coates and every animal known to be of pure blood was recorded, which worked a great deal of good as well as some harm, as the breeders restricted themselves to too small variety of blood, and by in-breeding produced a type of cattle better known for style and carriage of head and neck than for utility value. From the very origin of the breed, Shorthorns have had two qualities to ommend them to the favorable consideration of farmers and stockmen, and it is this dual capacity for beef and milk production that has made them so popular. As beef producers they are known over the civilized world, but their milking qualities. though excellent when properly developed, are not so well recognized, and so need advertising and further development.

The early history of the breed furnishes many instances that they were great milk producers. One of the earliest breeders to develop 'milk production in his herd was Jonas Whittaker, and in consequence his cows dom. Sir Charles Knightley developed a tribe known as Fawsley Fillpails that did much to establish the fame of pail. The herd of Thomas Bates was C. P. A., London. bred for beef form and soon became the fountain head of bulls for both English and American herds, yet the milking qualities of this herd were so carefully cultivated that the cows had a reputation a's milk producers that was only second to that of their beef

VOU'LL Like It HAMILTON'S LONDON GRAND REUNION OF CAMPBELL CLAN IN CARADOC TOWNSHIP

Held at Home of Oldest Living Member.

A FINE REPRESENTATION

Out of 426 Descendants of Family, 214 Were at

A large gathering of the Campbell clan was held on Wednesday, June 21, at the home of John Brodie, Muncey road, Caradoc. This is the old home of Mrs. Christina Brodie, the oldest living member of the Campbell clan, who was present, hale and hearty, although 86 years of age.

Rain fell in the early morning, but beef cattle in addition to a first-class by 9 o'clock Old Sol made his way out and the crowd began to gather, and by noon the spacious grounds were crowded and the great reunion was under way.

In the year 1764 Robert Campbell was born in Scotland, and in 1794 married Jean McFarlain, and their family consisted of ten children, seven of whom have living descendants, many of whom were present, namely: Duncan, who has 40 living descendants, of whom 32 were present; John, who has 143 living descendants, 58 being present; Robert, who has 138 living descendants, 62 being present; Donald, who has 31 living descendants, 23 being present; Mary, who has 16 living descendants, 3 being present; Humphrey, who has 22 living descendants, 18 being present; Alexander, who has 36 living descendants, 18 being present, making a total of 426 members, of whom 214 were present.

Letters of regret at being unable to present were read from many. Dinner being announced, all were seated at a table and justice was done to the good things provided by the various members of the clan. A photographer from Strathrov ar ranged the gathering and took several photos.

This being over, J. C. Elliott, M. P. P., one of the clan, was selected as chairman, and after a few well chosen remarks called on Miss Sara Brodie, who read a paper on the history of the Campbell clan. This was followed by a long and varied program. After refreshments had again been served, it was decided that a gathering of the clan would be held regular ly in future, as it is some seventeen years since the clan met in a gathering of this kind before.

Members of the clan were present from San Pedro, Cal.; Brown City, Mich.; Caddilac, Mich.; Detroit, Mich.; Seattle, Wash.; Ottawa, London, Forest, Dutton, Iona, Middlemiss, Bosanquet, Appin, Glencoe, Warwick, Inwood, Oil City, Shedden, Melbourne, Delaware, Buffalo, Muirkirk, Watford and Muncey.

MIDDLESEX THRESHERS

Matter To Be Discussed at Meeting This Afternoon.

The Middlesex Threshermen's Asso ciation are meeting this afternoon in the county building to discuss plans for the season's work and to formulate a standard scale of prices. the threshermen their charges are too

At the present time it is claimed by low, considering the initial cost of their machinery, the cost of operation and the chances they have to take at times with the crops not being what they expected. There will no doubt be some argument on the proposed advancement in prices as some of the threshermen believe that if an advance is made that a ton. the farmers will do as they have done in other counties, form clubs and pur-chase threshing outfits of their own. Large This would necessarily put the man Pea Coal, who made a business of threshing alone out of work and this, they claim they must guard against.

Others, who take the opposite view. maintain that unless prices are advanced that they will have to go out of business anyway, because the present scale of prices is not profitable enough to let them make any more than a bare living. The threshermen as the matter stands, face a two-sided problem, but may compromise on the present sit-uation and not take action of such a nature as would bring about the formation of farmers' threshing clubs. PASTOR'S WIFE GIVEN
