DIXON AND DELAREY ENGAGE IN BATTLE

Boers Eventually Driven off With Heavy Loss—Dixon's Casualties Were Heavy—Fight Took Place at Vladfontein.

London, May 31.—On the anniversary of Lord Roberts' entry into Johannesburg comes the news of severe fighting and heavy losses with forty miles of the Gold Reef City. The battle at Vladfontein, on the Durban-Johannesburg Railroad, reported by Lord Kitchener to-day, is the most serious engagement since General Clements' reverse at Magersburg. The garrison of Vladfontein, apparently largely composed of Yeomanry, had 174 men put out of action. That their assailants came to close quarters and suffered heavily is shown by the number of dead left on the field.

London, May 31.—Lord Kitchener reports to the War Office, under date of Pretoria, May 30, as follows:—"Gen. Dixon's force at Vladfontein was attacked yesterday by Delarey's forces, and there was severe fighting. The enemy was eventually driven off with heavy loss, leaving 35 dead. Four officers were killed." "Gen. Dixon's force at Vladfontein was attacked yesterday by Delarey's forces, and there was severe fighting. The enemy was eventually driven off with heavy loss, leaving 35 dead. Four officers were killed."

ATTACKS ON A CONVOY.

A despatch from Potchefstroom says the Boers made two determined attacks on a British convoy in a drift near Ventersburg. The wagons had choked the drift. The Boers were finally repulsed, leaving thirteen dead on the field. The British loss, which was severe, is not stated.

PERMITS TO BE GRANTED.

A special despatch from Pretoria says:—A limited number of permits will be granted next week for the exportation of "soft goods" into Johannesburg. Each permit will allow the importation of not to exceed ten tons of goods, fifty per cent. of which must be clothing suitable for cold weather, and thirty per cent. of clothing suitable for the poorer classes. Boot makers will be allowed to import goods not exceeding five tons in weight, fifty per cent. of which must be suitable for the poorer classes. A ban to commemorate the entry of the British troops will be given at Johannesburg to-night.

HE DROWNED HIMSELF.

Cape Town, May 31.—Paymaster Henry, of the cruiser Barracouta, who was placed under arrest for overstaying his leave at Port Elizabeth, has jumped overboard and drowned himself.

HEAT-CRAZED CAPITAL SWEEPED BY A DELUGE

Paris Visited by a Terrific Rain and Thunderstorm—Intensely Sultry Weather Followed by Rain in Torrents.

Paris, May 31.—The intensely hot and sultry weather which has prevailed in Paris during the last 48 hours has been responsible for a large number of cases of suicide and madness.

Yesterday morning opened with a double "flood" in the Canal St. Maurice, and to the 102nd Regiment, stationed at Chartres, was found drowned, together with a young woman, aged twenty. Their legs and arms had been tied together.

Albert Dujon, aged twenty-one, a butcher's assistant, residing in the Rue Lapeyrolle, swallowed a large dose of laudanum. He was conveyed to the Pitié hospital.

Before evening three more suicides were registered. Cases of madness were equally numerous, five persons being conveyed to asylums. Sixty cases of madness have been treated since the beginning of the week.

Burels has Paris seen such a terrific thunderstorm as burst yesterday afternoon. The weather had been stifling hot all the morning and shortly after one o'clock the approach of a thunder storm was visible. It broke with tremendous violence at half-past two o'clock. Great drops of rain, mingled with hail, fell by bucketfuls, converting the streets into miniature torrents, while thunder, rolled, and lightning flashed unceasingly. The rain gauges at the Tour St. Jacques reported a fall of six millimetres. During the first downfall hail stones from one to one and a half centimetres in circumference were picked up around the Halles.

RESIDENTS DIFFER ON PARK ST. SIDEWALK

Counter Petitions Presented to the Board of Works Last Evening—Ald Pritchard and Engineer McNab Have Wagered a New Hat.

The Board of Works met last evening. Chairman Marshall, Ald. Pritchard and the city engineer were present. There were many matters of interest before the meeting. Sam McCormick was present with a petition and Albert Merrill had a counter petition in regard to the location of the sidewalk on the north side of Park street. One party wanted the trees inside the trees, the other outside.

Ald. Pritchard after trying to get a lot of a new hat with Sam McCormick and Chairman Marshall became discouraged. Towards the end of the meeting, however, he stuck the engineer.

The disagreement in regard to the Park street sidewalk was first dealt with. The engineer said that the grade had been made for the walk inside the trees. He was taking the levels this afternoon when some of the residents had objected. The initiative had been taken by the council on this walk last year and every thing had been done preparatory to laying the walk. As the matter now stood to lay the walk outside the trees would necessitate another by-law.

Samuel McCormick, who represented the residents who wanted the walk outside the trees first addressed the committee. He said he was willing to leave the matter to the Board of Works.

Ald. Marshall said that the city by-law said that all walks should be laid outside the trees unless otherwise specified. The walk had been advertised into the trees but some of the ratepayers had objected and the work was laid over till spring.

Mr. Merrill said that the ditch at his place was one of the deepest in the city, and he didn't consider it right that a ratepayer should be forced to fill such a deep ditch at his own expense. Even if the walk were built inside the trees, he couldn't take down the fence for people would cut across the corner of his lot. In addition, there were a number of poor widow women on the street who couldn't afford the extra expense of putting the walk outside the trees.

The City Engineer said that the cost of putting the sidewalk outside the trees would be immense, as there was six feet to be filled in at the low grade. The ditch would have to be filled up to the crown of the road.

Mr. McCormick—It has never been done yet.

The engineer—It will be under my time.

Mr. McCormick—My objections to the walk being built inside the trees is that it would be a pity to spoil a street. The lights are hung in the centre of the road, and if the walk on the rest of the street had not been out beyond the trees, I would not have raised my voice in protest. It would be too bad to have a log in the sidewalk.

Ald. Marshall said he would submit the petitions to the city solicitor and find out what power the council had to change the location of the walk, and what influence the petitions had.

The petition of those who wanted the walk was signed by: Marcus Anderson, Henry Jacobs, Francis E. J. Loges, W. Merrill, Mrs. N. Williams, James C. Richards, H. Weaver, S. T. Martin, M. Robertson, Hamilton Provident Loan Co., per J. P. Stone, Mrs. D. Quinn.

Those in favor of the walk outside the trees was signed by: Daniel Trott, S. McCormick, Milton Lewis, Frances E. J. Loges, Maud Northwood, Annie O'Hare, Sara O'Hare, Sarah A. Perry, Harriet Rouse, Mrs. John Quinn, Lawrence Crosby and J. W. Miles per W. K. Merrifield.

The account of J. & J. O'dershaw, $34.49, was recommended paid. The request of Henry Terrington, re enclosing a portion of Incees avenue, was not granted.

The tenders for sprinkling carts were looked over and the council will be asked to purchase a sprinkler from George Hoeman, at $275, and to get the old cart repaired by the same party at $150.

Ald. Pritchard said that the expense of sweeping the streets must be nearly $30 a week. The engineer pointed out that it was just $19.

Ald. Pritchard claimed that the drayman got $4.50 a week, just for carting the refuse from the street. The city engineer said that he didn't and the two shook hands on a new hat. The city engineer said he had notified the waterworks company that no more bricks were to be removed on King street.

The engineer presented the following report:—Gentlemen—I have examined, in accordance with your instructions, the different sewers going into the river, which require additions to complete what is in your opinion placing them in a perfectly sanitary condition, an estimation of which I did not make as it is impossible to calculate such figures under the circumstances, as I have not started to place them. Will hand the same in my next report.

Re new sewer on Head St. I am now preparing plans and profiles of the same and will hand them in in due course. As to the brick pavement on King street, I might say that under the circumstances where we flush the streets once or twice a week and the probability of water precooling the brick into the sand, will certainly have a deteriorating effect upon the solidity of the pavement, and of the opinion that the interstices between the bricks should be properly closed with our cement or tar. Under the existing contract, I believe cement is the material to be used. I do not believe brushing the cement in with a broom in this case would have the effect desired. I think the cement should be placed between each individual brick with a shovel, closed closely and at once, as the life of this pavement, in my opinion, is not of great length and immediate action will prolong the same.

Street grading. I have placed a catch basin at the approach of foot bridge on Sixth St. and graded same from King to river; have placed stone crossing at Standard Bank; repaired wooden crossing on Stanley avenue across Prince and on North side of Church; have repaired crossing at the intersection of 8th and 7th streets; repaired crossing at Church St., west side; have raised and renewed crossing at north side of Stanley avenue on William; also raised crossing on south side of Murray on William.

Steam roller and scraper have operated on the following streets:—Stanley avenue, Cemetery road, Third St.

from King to Wellington. I have hauled earth to fill up road bed, raised catch basin and raised stone to protect crossing at King St.

I have lowered walk on east side of St. Clair, in accordance with opinions expressed by Board of Works while on our tour of the city, and have also placed a box for drainage purposes underneath the walk. I cleaned King street by scraping mud from post of ice to gas house. I received some asbestos walk and placed it on the proper level on the west side of Prince, also fixed crossing on Prince and Wellington. I have scraped Wellington macadam from east side of market to William, King St. to Adelaide, also Queen street from King to Grand Trunk Railway.

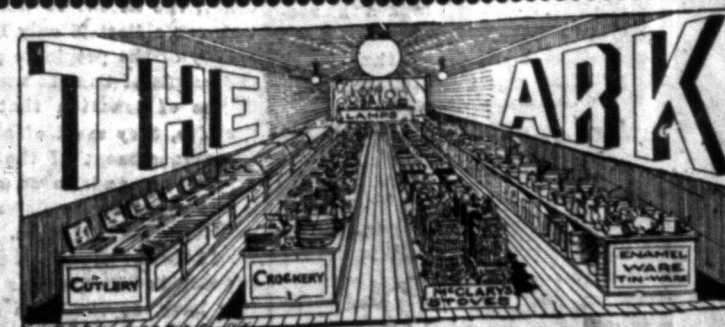

I have raised the wooden crossings on Grey and Raleigh and placed catch basins on the corner of William and King. I have renewed crossing on Harvey at Lacroix. I have scraped mud from Wellington King on William, also repaired iron footings on King St. bridge and have had gas pipe removed off this bridge and placed permanently underneath the river. Bridge in perfect condition to swing at any time.

Under my new process of cleaning crossings, notwithstanding the opinions of different sycophants, I have found perfect satisfaction in putting young blood on old brooms. I have placed new crossings on Victoria Ave. at Amelia St. We are to-day engaged in removing earth excavated by the P. L. Madden Co. and placing it in the gutters on Park St. These gutters I consider dangerous.

I herewith also submit to you a report of the approximate valuation of the telephone plant in the city of Chatham. Kindly understand that an estimation of this kind without the sympathy of the Telephone Co. is a matter almost impossible to arrive at, but such valuation as I have prepared for you I am prepared to vouch for as I am certain that I am 33-1-3 per cent. under the true value of the telephone plant in the city.

Yours, in the city,
J. D. McNAB.

THE EDUCATION OF PARENTS.

Every since Froebel's invention of the kindergarten and the revolution it began in methods employed to teach young children, child study has occupied the attention of an ever-growing number of thoughtful people. Although in a great many cases, valuable psychological discoveries have been made in regard to child-nature by a close observation of tastes and of development, in the great majority of cases, injudicious observation has not advanced the cause of science in any way, but has done the children more harm than if they had been left like Topsy to "just grow."

The only way in which child-nature can be really understood is by sympathetic and intelligent observation. Many a child has had a grain of bitterness introduced into his nature, that never wholly leaves it, through an act of careless injustice; and the sufferings that a nervous, sensitive child, who is misunderstood, endures remain with him as a memory until the end of the chapter.

It is open to question, however, whether too much attention to, and observation of, children is not worse for the children than too much letting alone. Children who are questioned as to their likes and dislikes, whose ideas and impressions of things are talked of before them, very soon come to attach undue importance to themselves and their ideas, and they lose the freedom from self-consciousness that is their chief charm, and the retaining of which has such an important bearing on the development of their character. If a child sees that he is being observed, and that his opinions are being noted, he unconsciously begins to pose; he manufactures opinions instead of allowing them to flow spontaneously, and in a short time becomes one of the greatest contradictions possible to conjure up, an unchildlike child.

Mr. James Sully, an earnest student of children and child education, who has written some thoughtful articles on the subject, thinks that at present parents and teachers are more in need of education than children. He thinks that they—the parents and teachers—should go to school and have all their ideas of right and wrong tuned to the highest pitch, and their standards of morality placed on the highest possible level. Intercourse and example will do the rest. "I take it," he says, "that there is a special behest laid on us to raise our ideals of education. It is not enough to say that we have fallen on a day of vulgar aims and lowered standards of life. It is enough to remind the reader that the air is full, or perhaps it has been full before, of the worship of what is not the best, not the best obtainable. If the parent and teacher fail to hold up the standard of a nobler good, we can have no assurance that our children will ever get near it. One cannot ignore the fact that there is much in the state of education at this moment to make one feel uneasy on this point. The moral training of the home, the most vital of influences, is apt in these days to be shirked. Teachers with the pressure of the inspector and the examiner ever behind them, have but little time to consider any more remote end than school success."

Although home influences have more effect on the nature of a child than any other, the influence of school and teachers is not very far behind and even though the shadow of examinations still hangs over teachers and scholars alike, it is recognized more and more that an education does not consist solely in putting knowledge into the minds of children, but that its real aim is all around development of the head, the hands, and the moral nature. The development of one at the expense of the other, helps to make idlers, fanatics and criminals. The development of all makes the useful citizen who knows how to make the best of himself and thus be of the greatest use to his fellowmen.

POWER OF THE U. S. SUPREME COURT.

The mind of the ordinary small man is almost staggered in contemplating the vast power of the members of the United States Supreme Court, says the Hamilton Post. By a majority of only one, that body has now created, without the guidance or control of any precedent, a system defining the attitude of the Washington government to territorial possessions beyond the limits of the confederate States. It has read into a constitution ideas which, however just and right they may be in this day, were certainly never contemplated by the men who originally created that marvellous document.

The vote of one man on that Supreme Court bench could have changed the whole course of development of what bids fair to be a great imperial nation. It is not for us who are not omniscient to say whether the change would have been better. Certain it is, however, that the motto, "The constitution

Scrofula

Is a disease as old as antiquity, and as young as the newest born infant.

It has infested the blood of humanity from ancient times down to the present minute.

It is hereditary or may be acquired. It appears in swollen glands, scrofulous sores, hip disease, boils, pimples, eruptions, and, as believed by high authorities, even in the forms of catarrh and rheumatism.

It can be cured by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla faithfully and persistently. We know this, because Hood's Sarsaparilla has done it.

It will cure you if you give it a trial. You should begin to take it today.

Hip Disease.—"I suffered from hip disease, had 5 running sores, used crutches and each winter I was confined to my bed for weeks at a time. Hood's Sarsaparilla has accomplished a perfect cure—saved my life. I have a good appetite and feel strong and well." ANNIE ROBERT, 49 Fourth St., Fall River, Mass.

In Her Eyes.—"My little girl had scrofula and sores appeared in her eyes. A few bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla entirely cured her and she has never had scrofula since." MRS. HOWARD POPE, Alpha, Oregon.

follows the flag," would have been an effectual clog upon the wheels of imperial progress, and a powerful barrier in the way of control by the United States of distant and undeveloped lands.

With the exception of the Indians, who do not count as a population and have never had any further effect on the U. S. than to compel the maintenance of a small and wiry standing army, our sister nation has never had to deal with the government of races so markedly inferior in the scale of civilization that they could not possibly be admitted to the federation. If the constitution followed the flag, the flag simply could not go to the Philippines, for example, and it would be extremely undesirable that it should go to Cuba, and the Cubans be admitted to the full dignity of self governing citizens of the U. S. As it is, however, the Supreme Court has endowed the government with power to take and control territories without bringing it within the borders of the select federation of the states, to govern men and women who have no rights of citizenship in the United States. It is a remarkable prerogative for a nominal republic, though there are precedents for it.

A CANDID FRIEND.

We have much pleasure in presenting to our readers some further remarks on the reckless expenditure of the Government, made by that excellent old Liberal journal the Huntingdon Gleaner:

"Excepting during the building of the C. P. R. no such estimates have ever been submitted. There is a certain prospect of an addition of ten million dollars to the debt, and this at a time when the revenue is large beyond all precedent. To the minds of all except thick-and-thin supporters of their party, the management of the finances now overshadows all other considerations. When a business establishment is spending more than it takes in, when it has adopted a standard of expenditure that counts upon borrowing and rolling still higher a debt beyond its power to pay, it needs no prophet to foretell what will be the end. There is this difference between a private business concern and the government of a country, that the creditors of the one can only take what the partners own, while in the other, the extent to which the creditors can collect is only limited by the ability of the people to pay taxes. If the people of Canada want to avoid a degree of taxation that will be oppressive, they must effect a change in the management of the public purse at Ottawa, and do so even if it be found necessary to drive the present ministers out of office. Those who would like to be able to give a hearty support to the Laurier administration have, at the close of every session, entertained the hope that the next would bring a change, and session after session, they have been chagrined to find, instead of improvement, more lavish outlay. To state that the expenditure of the Dominion Government in 1897 was 43 millions, and that for the year ending June 30, 1902, will be 63 millions, indicates the gravity of a situation to which no words can add force."

THE COMING ELECTION.

Toronto Mail.
It is interesting to note that the Toronto Globe calls upon La Patrie to cease its abusive campaign against the English-Canadians. The organ does not object to such campaigns in federal elections. They stir up racial feelings in Quebec, and thus help jobbery. But an Ontario election is coming, and prudence demands caution. Tarte must not dub the Ontario people "bigots and fanatics" until the machine is out of the woods. Then the racialism may go on as usual.

To-morrow evening his excellency will entertain the cabmen of the capital at dinner at Rideau hall. There have been many notable gatherings under that historic roof, but it is doubtful if any more thoroughly interesting than that composed of the guests who to-morrow evening will enjoy the vice-regal hospitality. The Ottawa cabman is more than usually intelligent, and most of them have been in contact with all of Canada's great men since confederation, and are familiar with all their foibles, faults and virtues. Their minds are unofficial archives of political incidents and experiences, which would, but probably never will, illuminate the pages of biographies. To hear King Kelly relate how "me and Sir Charles" ran the government in the halcyon days of yore is a liberal education in the political history of our own times.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound, or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

JESUS OUR HIGH PRIEST IN HEAVEN

International Bible Lesson for Tomorrow—Heb. 9, 11-14; 24-28.

Golden Text—He ever liveth to make intercession.

The worship of God by fallen man demands a priest. Christ Jesus is the God-appointed mediator between God and man. Greater than angels, greater than Moses, greater than Aaron's priesthood. His priesthood never changes, abides for ever—"not in temples made with hands," "but before the face of God for us." Only through Him can "true worshippers worship the Father in spirit and in truth." Such does the Father seek to be His worshippers. God is a spirit, and they that worship Him must worship in spirit and in truth. In Jesus, robed in His righteousness, pleading His own merit, presenting His own blood, we have a great Priest over the House of God; let us draw near with a true heart, in fullness of faith, having our hearts cleansed from an evil conscience. He asks no forms or rituals, but He does ask a receptive heart, a complete submission. Shall He have it from you, my friend?

YOU CANNOT CURE PILES

By Internal Remedies.

The only sure way to cure every form of piles, is to use a remedy like the Pyramid Pile Cure which is applied directly to the parts affected, and its wonderful healing effects are apparent from the first application, because the medicinal properties are rapidly absorbed by tissues and sensitive membranes of the rectum, and the cure is made speedily and almost before the patient is aware of it every trace of piles has left him.

This is one of the reasons why the Pyramid Pile Cure has been so uniformly successful. It is applied directly, just where it is needed, and where it will do the most good. Not by the roundabout way of the stomach, nor the harsh barbarous methods of various surgical operations and so-called systems.

Direct applications to the seat of the disease is the only rational way, and this is fully accomplished by the Pyramid Pile Cure.

If the voluntary testimony of thousands who have tried this remedy is worth anything then no sufferer has excuse for longer delaying in giving it a fair trial, knowing that when you do so the Pyramid Pile Cure will have made one more friend, and the best possible advertisement we can have.

The chief advantages of the remedy are:—It cures without pain, the cure is lasting, it contains no poison, and lastly, it is the quickest and cheapest cure yet found. Your druggist can tell you what it has done for others.

Testimonials of cures from all parts of the United States will be sent on application to the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich.

Little Ones' May Day

Pleasant Exercises by the Kindergarten Students of the Central School.

Mary Charming Songs—Pretty Games and Graceful Movements Credit to Teachers.

The May Day exercises of the Central school kindergarten class were held yesterday afternoon at the I. O. O. F. auditorium, about ninety of the little ones participating.

Among those present to witness the exercises were: Dr. Charteris, Mrs. Richardson, Miss Bennett, Mrs. Kingsmill, Mrs. Turner, Mrs. Schwenker, Inspector Park, Miss Thomson, Mrs. H. Andrews, Mrs. Glenn, J. M. Pike, Trustees Wilson, Campbell, McCord and Thomson.

The room was very prettily decorated with flowers and foliage. In the centre was a May-pole decorated with flowers and ribbons. The children came in first carrying baskets of flowers and singing "Come to the woods." They then had a little prayer, entitled "There Come the First Days of May."

"Little Lambs so Bright and Fair." Miss Green asked the children what helped to make the flowers, and they at once answered rain and sunshine. Then they sang a rain and a sunshine song.

The next songs were "All the birds and bees are singing," and "There is a little brooklet." These songs were rendered with motions by the children.

They next sang the flower basket song and gave the baskets of flowers to their parents, who were there.

Class work was gone through by the different classes. Miss Green's class doing picture sewing, Miss Schwenker's boards and pegs, Miss McCord's school sewing and Miss Turner's weaving.

The tables and chairs were then taken out of the way, and the children had their playtime, which consisted of a series of games. The first was the May-pole dance, which was done very prettily by the children.

The other games were squirrels, birds, butterflies, running, marching, skipping, and the quiet game of bows.

The children then sang the "Good-bye" song, which ended the exercises.

The teachers of the children are Miss Green, director, Miss Schwenker, Miss Turner and Miss McCord. The teachers deserve very much credit for the way in which the children performed.

DELIGHTFUL MUSICAL

Annual Recital by Advanced Pupils of Miss Lillian Pratt.

Admirable Program Presented last Evening—Tribute to Teacher and Taught.

One of the events eagerly looked forward to in Chatham, is the annual recital given by the advanced pupils of Miss Lillian Pratt.

It was presented last evening in the Methodist Church Sunday School Hall and was a splendid success. All the pupils showed the result of careful training and each one played without the use of music. The players were practically the same as those taking part in the musicals last year and all exhibited many marks of decided and further improvement. Miss Pratt deserves the warmest praise and heartiest congratulations for the faultless manner in which all her pupils acquitted themselves.

Mrs. Milton Bogart was too ill to take part, but Miss Allie Humphrey at the last minute kindly consented to take Mrs. Bogart's place. Miss Humphrey sang an exceedingly fine solo.

Miss Ross, Miss Oliver and W. H. Brackin, all well-known Maple City vocalists, rendered solos that were features of an altogether fine program. The violin obligato to Miss Ross' solo, played by Henry McCaw, was a masterpiece.

Those taking part in the musicals were the following pupils of Miss Pratt:

Misses Flossie Bogart, Bessie Brackin, Nellie Richards, Ethel Titus, Dorothy Sheldon, Mary Brockie, Helen Atkinson, Ethel McKerrall, Addie Lilywhite, Nellie Embrey, kindly assisted by Miss Allie Humphrey, Miss Ross, Miss Oliver, W. H. Brackin and Henry McCaw.

THROUGH THE KINDNESS AND PERSISTENCE OF A FRIEND.

An Every-day Story That Will Bring Health and Happiness to Young Girls Who Act Upon the Advice Given.

From the Sun, Orangeville, Ont.

In every part of Canada are to be found grateful people who cheerfully acknowledge that the good health they enjoy is due to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

In the town of Orangeville there are many such people, among them being Miss Lizzie Collins, an estimable young lady who resides with her mother in the east ward, Miss Collins' cure through the use of this medicine was recently brought to the attention of the Sun, and a reporter was sent to get the facts of the young lady's cure.

Miss Collins cheerfully agreed to the interview, and her statement is given practically in her own words:—"Two years ago, I became so weak that I was forced to take to bed. The illness came on gradually, I found myself much run down, suffering from headaches, and was pale as if I used several medicines, but they did not help me.

I suffered a doctor, and he said that I had an anæmic blood, and that my condition was one of danger. Medicine did not seem to do me any good, and I found myself growing weaker. I reached the stage where my heart began to pit, and I was violently all the time. The headaches became continuous, and my condition one which words can scarcely describe. I read and despaired of getting better, and I lost the sight of medicine. I had been confined to bed for about two months when one day a friend called and urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had lost faith in all medicines, but she was apparently determined I should try the pills, for she brought me about half a box she had been using herself.

I took the pills, and when they were used, while I cannot say that I felt much better, I got more confidence in the pills and got a dozen boxes. Before the pills were gone there was no doubt that they were rapidly restoring me to my old-time health, as I was soon able to sit up and then to get around and out. Before these were gone I felt as though I had never had an ache or pain in my life. That is what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me and I think I would be very ungrateful if I did not add my testimony for the benefit it may be to some other young girl."

Miss Collins' story should bring hope to many thousands of other young girls who suffer as she did. Those who are pale, lack appetite, suffer from headache, and palpitation of the heart, dizziness, and a feeling of constant weariness, will find renewed health and strength in the use of a few boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all dealers, or sent by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Catarrh Fastly and Quickly Cured

Four remedies have given Catarrh the reputation of being incurable. But it is curable, easily and quickly, if the right method is employed. Snuffing an irritating powder or ointment up the nose, won't cure Catarrh, neither will tablets, douching or stomach medicines cure. These treatments fail because they are not far reaching enough. They only affect local conditions, but do not remove the cause, which is germ life established deep down in the lungs, bronchial tubes and nasal passages. Ordinary remedies do not reach these remote parts, but Catarrhazone does. For it is breathed through the inhaler into every air cell in the lungs, into every air passage in the head and throat. No matter where the Catarrh is, Catarrhazone will reach it. It kills the germs, heals sore spots, clears the nose and throat instantly. Universally used; pleasant and clean; guaranteed to cure or money refunded. Try Catarrhazone, 25 cents and $1.00. Druggists, or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

An Alluring Abandon

A GARDENED GLADE

CULTIVATED BY HYPATICA.

The underlying and impelling principle of a nation is characterized not only by its political proclivities, its industries, its literature and art, but also by the manner and matter of its holiday festivities. Perhaps, indeed, the latter gives the truest conception because on such occasions of joy and revelry a nation celebrates the innermost phase of its civilization. The special feature of Roman civilization was the sacrifice of the individual for the will of the state, the struggle between individual caprice and obedience to the civil law. The Roman games were crowded with eager spectators to behold the conquests of gladiators with each other and with wild beasts. Here the arbitrary will of the people created and enjoyed the spectacle of sacrificed individuality. The Greeks, on the other hand, were wont to hold gymnastic celebrations of athletic games which portrayed to them their physical freedom in the body. Christianity gives to the world the doctrine of brotherhood of men. "Rank and station are only garments that the human soul puts on and in them masquerades for a brief season." The ruling tendency of national holidays in Christian countries is to unite all men by holding out to their intellectual consciousness a widely-permeating, joy-bringing thought as of patriotism or thanksgiving, etc.

Similarly it may be observed that the true characteristics of an individual find their outburst on a holiday. Necessity exerts no sway over him as it does in his every day work and he is free to give himself up to the heaviest of his inmost self. Of course many "follow the crowd." But the fixed habit of old age is not to be tempered with by a holiday and the man of years smokes and reads and snoozes as usual.

The indolent housewife, after attending to it that the rest of the family get an early start to the picnic, puts in a long and most satisfactory day of scrubbing and scouring and wrestling with dirt in the uncalculated tenacity. Below this in a description of the boy's idea of a good time on a winter holiday. Alas! Poor boy! It is the general opinion that he never lived in Chatham.

A RABBIT HUNT.

Made bold by hard experiences in the gymnasium, excited by Christmas strings of guns and the shop windows, encouraged perhaps by the light fall of snow, I had determined to have an out and out, old-fashioned rabbit hunt during the holidays.

No pleasure can equal that gained by an exciting chase after the hounds. To one who has spent months in pouring over the mysteries of deponent verbs in Latin, or factitive objects in English, who has worried his brains over the intricacies of geometry or traced the wonderful changes chlorine gas may undergo, what can be more refreshing or invigorating than a sharp run over the crisp snow after a bay of hounds and scurrying rabbit?

A good day was chosen for the hunt—so far as choosing goes. Fine weather, hunting expeditions, excitement, humility and school boys are not things that agree very well among themselves. This day was then what was to be expected for me—a miserable one. My friend Croppy and myself, with two hounds, made up the party.

It would, perhaps, be well to give you some idea of our equipments and dress. My gun—who now meets its equal—was an old William IV. musket. One might sum up its virtues by saying that it was very long, very heavy, very old, and as Croppy said, "very useless." My dress was simply indescribable. It frightened all passers-by, myself, and, as the sequel shows, the rabbits.

We marched seven or eight miles in deep snow, across bush fields, over stump fences and around ragged hills. One dog was led by Croppy and a chain; the other dog led us. Did we pass a cross road; he went off on an inspecting tour! Did a swamp come into view, his ears and tail could be seen hurriedly vanishing into the thickest of it. Thus walking and waiting and freezing, perhaps, too, feeling like the Institute cadets, or like the First Form pupils at twelve o'clock, marvellously hungry, we reached the swamp.

The dogs were unleashed and the fun began. Croppy made a dash for the corner of the bush, but in turning rapidly about a log, suddenly vanished—but for a moment only. His feet and his gun-stock soon reappeared, but only to dangle idly in the air. After some mighty exertions his feet and head changed places and Croppy was once more erect. But alas! his expression as he felt his pouch, told a sorrowful tale. A secret I must tell you. Croppy was very fond of nasty things—a log, Croppy, two vigorous Canadian feet, pies and cakes all mixed up in a struggling mass in one small hole. Liberally bestowed upon all things in the neighborhood upon the tarls and jellies Croppy had so carefully packed in his gullet.

However, the hunt proceeded and the cold deepened. Time hung heavily upon our hands, as it does on those of the Second Form pupils on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and the atmosphere—well it froze the very love in your heart.

A last rabbit appeared—a living white rabbit. He came forward slowly, though a hound was evidently trailing him. I was nearest the rabbit with a large frozen stream between us. He advanced—up went my gun. Being accustomed to our own Institute rifles and military training, I prepared to receive the enemy. Like work, forward went my left foot; to my side went my gun and shut went my eye. (This last movement is not given in drill, but in my opinion it ought to be there.)

The gun went off, but that rabbit did not stir. It stared at me with a dazed, pained expression, as though puzzled at what it considered the trick being played upon it. Again the gun went off—for it was a musket, the busher disdained into indignation. But, alas! the hound was fast closing in upon him, and busied with his own injured feelings, the poor hare was easily pounced upon.

All alive now with the fear of losing my prey, I sprang down the bank and away but two steps: Then came an ominous creaking, a sudden rush and down, down, down I went. What thoughts and feelings, what fears and terrors ruled my mind and being for the moment! What visions flashed across my memory, what remorse moved my soul I thought of where I was going, of the landing place of my hurried journey. Some-times I imagined it was but a rapid descent of the Institute stairs with an assistant behind me. Again it appeared as though I were on the newly discovered route to China. Conscience seized the matter and I knew that neither was to be my fortune lot. At last I came to a halt, and as though I were on the bank of a river, I felt remarkably chilly. It was water, I was floating in the stream, while the hound was sailing, too, into the rabbit. Anxiety, despair and enough of fear to prove that we had "bagged" something. The hound again took to the bush.

On consultation with Croppy it was found that he had had enough of hunger and I of cold water. "Home" was decided upon but the hounds were first to be taken off the scent. We parted and walked for half an hour through the bush in all directions after the dogs. At last near by I heard a muffled cry. Making my way over logs and under snow-charged cedars, around stumps and through bog-holes I came in sight of a large elm uprooted and lying with its long trunk about five feet from the ground. Glancing into the upturned roots I saw a curious sight. There suspended between Heaven and Earth, like Mahomet's coffin, was Croppy. In climbing about to find a perch from which to view the surroundings, he had fallen, and what a fall!

I rescued him and we marched out of the woods disgusted. On our way by wisely hurrying my lunch at the dogs who were both on the same track, I secured one animal, but the other having seized his share made off on the old "scent." His bay could be heard fading into the distance and to this day, I doubt, he is still carrying his neighborhood by that same howling. Such activity of tongue and tirelessness of voice reminded me of—well, you know.

HYPATICA.

"Blither's restaurant has the slowest service I ever saw," said the gentleman with the gloomy brow.

"How's that?" asked the individual with the overworked smile.

"I ordered some eggs there once, and I had to wait so long that they brought me—"

"Chickens?"

"No; eggs that had been laid by the chickens hatched from the eggs I had ordered."

"Oh, doctor, is it very dangerous to swallow cement?"

"Very dangerous, indeed."

"And gutta percha, doctor?"

"Very serious."

"And porcelain—oh, doctor, is it very poisonous?"

"Excuse me, madam; have you attempted suicide?"

"No; I've swallowed one of my false teeth."—Pearson's.

On Again, on Again.

"Very well," said she in a huff; "all is over between us. I'll thank you to return my letters."

"All right," said he; "I'll send them to you the first thing in the morning."

"Oh, there's no killing hurry! Suppose you—er—bring them with you when you call tomorrow evening."

SERIES OF SIDELIGHTS

EDITED BY HELEN HALL.

The underlying symbolism of the architecture and arrangement of the buildings of the Pan-American Exposition will form a pleasant field of research for art students and other persons, interested, but not properly termed students. The general style of architecture is a free treatment of the Spanish Renaissance, the models to be taken chiefly from prominent buildings of the Latin-American cities. Beginning with the Triumphal Causeway on the south the building represents the power of the United States and its glories in peace. Then Man and his works are allegorically represented on the east of the great central avenue, while the forces of Nature are treated in a similar manner on the west. To the north centring round the electric tower is the local and specific symbolism of the great inland waters and of light born of these waters. This symbolic arrangement has been carefully carried out in the sculpture scheme by the director of sculpture Karl Bitter. In an article on the sculpture scheme the New York Herald says:

Advancing northward from the Causeway, we find ourselves on the Esplanade, which here crosses the central avenue. On the right hand side is a great cruciform basin with many fountains. The groups and figures that rise therefrom from the water are dedicated to Man. The central and most important is the Fountain of Man; on either side are subsidiary fountains, the Fountain of Hercules the strong and the Fountain of Prometheus the aspiring. Around this basin are six important groups symbolizing man in his various stages of development from savage to civilized. Turning to the left, there is a similar arrangement of fountains in a great cruciform basin. Here the central work is the Fountain of Nature on either side are the Fountain of Kronos, symbolizing Time, and of Ceres, typifying the germinating forces of the earth. The six groups typify in natural wealth animal wealth and labor wealth.

Karl Bitter limited his own work to the four heroic equestrian "Standard Bearers" on the top of the hundred foot high square pillars of the Triumphal Causeway. These can only be fully and finally considered when mounted in their exalted places, but they cannot fail to be tremendously effective. They are the flag carriers of Power and Honor, and although the pose of the man with held up banner on the high rearing horse is substantially repeated in all, there is a differentiation in each a striking and a repetition is bold. The scene of might, of uplift is splendid and inspiring, whether it be the naked Lord of Music with chaplet of bays and antique lyre.

Interest will attach to the six figures in the colonnade body forth the Great Lakes. They are of uneven merit. "Lake Huron," by Louis A. Guderbrad, is the most characteristic—the figure of a Huron brave in the act of spearing a fish. "Lake Michigan," by Carl E. Tefft, a female bearing an Indian fishing spear and looking down into the waters, is good also. The same artist's "Lake Superior," a rather strained male figure, is not so pleasing. "Lake Erie," a seated female with a dignified headpiece, is a serene study in dignified contemplation. "Lake Ontario," by Philip Martiny, is an exceedingly graceful figure. "Lake St. Clair," by Henry Baerer, gives us the same idea in more fleshy form.

In the Fountain of Nature, Mr. George T. Brewster surmounts the work by a nude female figure holding up a golden sun with both hands. It is the form of a young woman, modelled gracefully and with a sense of lightness, but somewhat stiff of pose. The figures of the Four Elements beneath are fair, but not striking. The Four Winds are better; the Four Seasons are again not so good. Altogether, the pile is effective to the glance, however it may be in detail.

Chas. Grafly has pushed symbolism very far indeed in his mysterious Fountain of Man. He has turned to himself for all our self-introspection. He looks blankly out on the world from beneath a cloak which hangs from his Oriental head covering, is gathered in about his waist and descends in Egyptian folds to his feet. His foothold rests upon the Five Senses, who, with interlocked arms, are walking in a circle. The group is attractive, and the figures of the Senses beneath and the struggling Virtues and Vices are vigorously conceived.

It is, however, the work of Isadore Kooti that will probably attract the keenest attention among art lovers and the public generally—the public which so often goes astray in its groping after what is worthy. But there is no mistaking the merit and skill in Mr. Kooti's group, "The Despot's Age." The despot, the tyrant—a grim, powerful figure of Roman type, with back blown toga clasped at his throat and clenched hands, one resting on his knee, the other, a knife, resting on his hip—is seated in his chariot, drawn by four stalwart serfs, three of whom are stooped in slavish resignation, while on one who has risen up in protest a female fury standing beside the despot is laying on the lash. To the rear of the car two women captives—Truth and Justice—are chained.

WHAT'S WORN.

Blouse Accessories.—The advent of muslin and organdie dresses will proclaim the downfall of the white linen collar, the sailor hat, and the "manish" shoe. While the wash blouse with stiff cuffs and front, worn with the dark serge skirt was in vogue, the other rather severe accessories were in keeping. But one likes something a little more dressy than a sailor hat, even with a gingham dress, something a little more dainty, although perhaps warmer, than a linen collar with the prettily colored muslins; and horror of horrors, who can imagine a "manish" shoe showing itself beneath the delicately trimmed ruffles of an organdie gown? The sailor hat and linen collar will, of course, be seen a good deal on our own streets—on some who are wearing their last year's things, and on others who will wear them for convenience' sake. While the whole wash blouse cannot totally annihilate the wash blouse worn with the dark skirt, it will greatly effect the neckwear of the blouse. The result will be more care in dressing the neck. Those who are supposed to speak with authority are predicting the disappearance of the high collar altogether. There is no evidence of this as yet, although it is bound to come if the drooping tendencies in millinery are carried to the extent of making the high collar the low collar. The fashion notes from New York for the summer mentioned those who make lace have rolling or small sailor collars of black or white point lace ready for summer wear. But those who have spoiled the graceful lines of the neck by several years' continuous use of high collars, need not fear but what there will be plenty of styles of the high stock for this year anyway. Some of the local stores are already showing a neat little white silk wire collar frame to be covered with lace or insertion and baby ribbon at the top and bottom. These may be covered in any way the fancy dictates and to suit any gown. They are not to be lined, the idea being for the neck to show through.

A pretty scarf for the neck is made by taking two yards of one inch ribbon, and cutting it in two. Join the two pieces by means of a yard of lace insertion, a trifle narrower than the ribbon. This is done by laying the edge of the insertion on top of the ribbon and running it on by hand. Fold back the ends to form a point, insert a box full of such. If the length is half a yard or three quarters, wrap it around the foundation collar tightly. If a yard and a half, wrap the centre of the top of the collar, cross and bring back along the lower part of the collar and tie either at the back, in front, towards the left side or on the right shoulder. The latter is the most attractive. Then if the ribbon is longer, tie in a knot at the throat. About six inches below tie in bow knot and pin either in front or to the left side.

Another aid in the ribbon collar is to tie in imitation of the puff tie. Cover the foundation collar with the ribbon as before and tie once in the throat. Pin this down firmly with an stiff of pose. The two ends are then pinned with a fancy pin a short distance from the bottom and made to puff out like the tie. To get the required effect stiff ribbon is needed.

Hand made lace tabs are very fashionable on ribbon ends.

A rosette of black velvet ribbon, with the upper ends quite short makes a pretty decoration for the neck. Make it quite large and full and wear a small brooch in the centre.

The narrow taffeta silk belts either black or to match the gown or skirt are seen quite frequently. They are covered either with stitching or fine tucks and crossed in front.

WHAT'S EATEN.

The lunch basket must not be forgotten even if the days are cold and dreary. On top of the sandwiches put lemon pie. Have the paste ready cooked dissolve two table spoonfuls of cornstarch in cold water and pour boiling water over until clear. Add the yolks of two eggs well-beaten, a pinch of salt, three quarters of a cup of granulated sugar, and the rind and juice of one lemon. Pour on the paste. Make a meringue of the whites of the eggs and brown slightly in the oven. This requires no cooking, the eggs be cooked sufficiently in the hot starch.

Daisy Cakes—Take three quarters of a cup of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one cup of milk, two cups of flour, two tablespoonfuls of baking powder, a pinch of salt, and the whites of four eggs beaten separately. Bake in layer tins. For the filling take the yolks of the four eggs, two tablespoonfuls of corn starch dissolved in a pint of milk and a pinch of salt. Sweeten to taste, flavor with vanilla and cook in a double boiler till thick enough to spread. Sprinkle the top of the cake with shredded coconut.

FROM THE OLD LAND

Planet Correspondent's Interesting Letter From the Mother Country.

English Lady Pays a Compliment to This Journal—Many Historical Points Visited.

Special correspondence to The Planet, Bude, England, April 23, 1901.

When travelling among strangers and in a strange land it is indeed pleasant to meet with a familiar face or one who is acquainted with your native land and old home.

I had an experience the other day while in Tavistock, Devonshire, which not only delighted me, but which spoke plainly of the popularity and broad circulation of The Planet. A lady, on being told that I was a Canadian, eagerly enquired from what part of the Dominion.

I replied, "From Ontario, and very near a city called Chatham."

"Oh, from the Maple City." Do you ever get a copy of The Planet?

On being assured that I received a copy of the Weekly every Thursday she begged that I would send her one occasionally, adding that it was "one of the brightest, newest papers" she had ever read and that English papers would profit by copying the idea of a personal column.

I have now been in the ancient Duchy of Cornwall for six months. I have during that time admired many a lordly and ancient castle and been amusedly interested in the tumble-down, cob-walled, thatched-roofed but picturesque cottages of the poorer classes. I have been horrified to see from my point of vantage on the cliffs seven unfortunate men washed from the deck of a ship and drowned within sight—almost within touch—of shore.

I have also stood upon the beach and wept with a multitude of others who were powerless to render aid to those clinging to the masts and rigging of a doomed ship, and whose pitiful cries for help could be heard above the roar of the waves and the whistling of the winds. But even a wreck can at times have its amusing little side scenes, and I laughed heartily at a fat, fussy, foolish man who rushed wildly up to a limp morsel of recently rescued humanity and began to question him by looks, beck, nods and gesticulations as to the name of his vessel, to what country her crew belonged, what cargo she carried, where she was bound for, etc. After many splutterings, partly to rid himself of an over-supply of salt water and partly of rage at the inquisitiveness of his questioner the dripping one shouted, "Why, you fool, I'm Medland, of Marchamchurch." The man had failed to recognize as one of his own neighbors the half-drowned personage before him, who, in his desire to assist one of the crew, had waded out beyond his depth and he himself been rescued, with much difficulty, by small wonder, then, that he was taken for a foreigner unable to even understand the English language.

I have been charmed with the agreeable aspect of the land, the green fields, the hedged abazs with purple and white violets, primroses, crimson-leaved black-berryed ivy, the wee, modest, crimson-tipped daisy and yellow foxgloves, ranunculus and buttercups. The flute-like tones of the blackbird and thrush, the sweet, shrill notes of the robin and tinier wren, the trills of the soaring lark have made "nature seem akin to God" in very truth. I have also watched with unchanging pleasure the bold scenery of the coast, the base of whose brown, rugged cliffs are constantly washed by a silver fringe of waves. But if I feel ashamed of this confession I have left all these scenes of beauty and walked through the little town only to make an unfavorable mental comparison between its crooked, crookedly constructed streets, its treeless and bare residence terraces and the straight, broad streets and shady maples of my own native town.

But there is for me one unfailing

source of delight and this lies in my frequent visits to the ancient and historic churches of Poughill, Marchamchurch, Kilkhampton, Stratton, Launceston and Norwinstowe.

The route to Poughill—pronounced "Poffill"—is a beautiful one, winding over hills and through valleys, and through dainty fern and flower—to say nothing of an occasional nettle-covered hedge. The village itself comprises a crazy post office, a blacksmith shop, a free school, several exceedingly handsome residences placed in the most unexpected places and surrounded by such high walls that their chimney tops alone are visible to those passing by, several straggling cottages further up in the village, one of which is so picturesque that tourists invariably photograph it, and the handsome old church. This, too, has its high stone wall with a heavy latticed wooden gate standing under a wide arch. The graveyard is kept, with handsome flowers on nearly all the graves, and a few very fine monuments. Many of the headstones are very ancient, the oldest I can find being a small, upright, slab, mossy with age and bearing on top a carving of skull and cross-bones and the date 1629.

Several of the epitaphs are both peculiar and amusing. I was particularly struck with the one following:—

"This stone is fixed here in memory of Mr. Stanbury's children by Chas. Rowland, Gent.

"Susanna and Humphrey Stanbury. Candlesmas, 1725; valentines following."

"In Heaven when infants hail the Almighty King,

There little Humphrey and Susanna sing; Their virgin souls straight enter'd Paradise, Dreading no Let because they knew no vice; Too good for earth they soon shook off their clay, And to immortal glory winged their way."

The church is a handsome, old grey stone building with a high square tower, with a clock and surmounted by four stone pinnacles, which raised stone knobs placed alternately around them. This tower is 61 feet high, is of three stages and contains the usual chime of bells. The edifice is of the early perpendicular style and is dedicated to St. Olive, while the living is a vicarage in the gift of the Lord Chancellor. Admission to the entrance is gained by means of a heavy screen door of iron. Inside the entrance are seats of stone along the wall. On the walls are several stone slabs sacred to the memory of some long forgotten person and are so old that only parts of the Latin inscription remain and the dates have vanished. An enormous door of worm-eaten wood, studded with huge nails and banded with iron opens from the porch into the church. A solemn hush reigns within the building, the sunlight filters through the diamond-paned windows and lingers on the handsome old oaken benches now black with age and eaten by worms.

The floor is composed of the stone slabs which form the tombstones in memory of the departed who sleep peacefully beneath. One epitaph runs as follows:—

"Here lieth the body of Susanna, the wife of William Warrington, who was buried on the 10th day of Janu. An Do. 1628."

"Here lies my corpse entombed in sable sheet,

Which on the earth could find no place of rest; But now I rest my soule where reste is founde, My body here in a final piece of grounde."

And from that hill, that hill I have ascended, From whence my Savior once for me descended; Live then to learn that die you must, And after come to judgment just; If women kind were like to thee, Wee men for wives should happie bee."

And a very old one with this inscription,—

"Beneath this stone resteth the body of Hugh Gadd, yeoman, of this parish of Poughill, who dyed in the year of our Lord God, 1619."

On the wall are tablets of brass and stone, monuments to ancient families and two paintings of St. Olive, which are remarkable for their oddity and their faulty perspective. Against the south wall is a copy of Charles I.'s "Seater of thanks" to his loyal Cornish subjects and an immense British coat of standing out in bold relief.

The "poore" box is a stout oak box banded with iron and fitted with an ancient lock and key. This with the communion table are of the reign of Edward VI. There was at one time a beautiful carved screen around the chancel, but this was destroyed about seventy years ago. While repairing the chancel some time ago a piscina and an ambo. The parish register of Poughill church dates from 1537.

Stratton is situated about two miles from Bude and lies in a beautiful hollow surrounded by lofty trees and like several other towns of the same name in England it takes its name from the old Roman phrase "straight on" or "street town," meaning a town on the high road. The church and a large part of the town occupy the side of a hill at the bottom of which runs the small but pretty river called Strat. Besides several very good stores the town possesses a cottage hospital, a large county police station, handsome Wesleyan and Free Methodist places of worship and several fine residences, one being owned by Dr. John King, the descendant of a long line of physicians of that name.

The parish church, restored in 1860, is dedicated to St. Andrew, and comprises a chancel, nave, north and south aisles, and is surrounded by a lofty embattled tower. Over the door of the porch is a sundial and you enter the building by means of an old oaken door. Within the building are

SUPERSTITION

Has been responsible for much of human mortality. Men and women die by thousands in an Indian famine, not because of lack of food but because caste superstition prevents them from accepting it. Even in America there are still to be found those who believe that healing herbs lack virtue unless gathered during certain phases of the moon.

The great foe of superstition is science. Every year science increases the territory of the natural at the expense of the supernatural.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery achieves its successful cures because it is a scientific preparation originated by a scientific man.

It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, purifies the blood, establishes the liver in sound health.

As the writer of the following letter says, "It is the best thing for nervousness and for a weak run-down condition that anybody would want. It gives a person new life and new blood."

"Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol and is free from opium, cocaine and other narcotics.

"I must again send a few lines to you to let you know how I am getting along since taking the wonderful medicine which cured me two years ago," writes Miss Bertha Wheeler, of 1416 Benton Street, St. Louis, Mo. "I still continue in very good health and think there is not a better medicine on earth than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the best thing for nervousness and for a weak, run-down condition, that anybody would want. It gives a person new life and new blood."

"I can now work all day long without feeling the least bit tired. I took five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it just made me feel like a new person."

several very ancient relics of by-gone days and ancient families, but the quaint appearance of the building has been somewhat spoiled by the removal of the old carved wood carvings, which are replaced by modern chairs. A poor box, dated 1707, is made of white marble, banded with iron, the floor is of modern tiling. In one of the windows of the north aisle, there lies an effigy of an armored knight, supposed to be one of the Blanchminsters, the ancient lords of the manor. Anthony Payne, of Stowe, a giant seven feet six inches in height, who was the armor bearer of Sir Beville Grenville, is buried here.

There are several brass and marble slabs on the walls, memorials to the members of ancient families, and one old tombstone, which is very interesting. It is built like many others, a square, box-like affair of stone about three feet high and on top a flat stone slab. In the center is a figure of a knight in coat of mail. On the opposite side of the slab is the figure of a woman and in one of the four corners is a row of three boy figures with the names, John A. Richard A., and Roger A., written below them. In the opposite corner are a row of seven girl figures, with their names, Margaret A., Marie A., Jane A., Phoebe A., Grace A., Mary A., and Anne S. A., also inscribed below.

In each of the other two corners the family coat-of-arms and crest are placed. These figures and the band on which the inscription is placed is made of thin plates of brass, nailed down to the stone. This monument is one placed to the memory of John Arundel, esq. A. D. 1591. In the grave yard surrounding the church, the date 1725 is the oldest I can find. On each side of the tower door is a stone inscription, but the names and dates are quite illegible to me.

A twenty minute walk from Stratton through some very romantic lanes, over a narrow footbridge, below which a clear, bright, shallow brook gurgles over the stony bed and through green fields in which young lambs frolic, brings you to Launceston, a tiny village in which is about a half dozen cottages, a very old church and a manor house, once the property of Robert de Montaigne, Earl of Cornwall and half brother of William the Conqueror, but now used as a farm house.

I have not been into the old manor, but I have explored the old church with the keenest pleasure and interest. Luckily, I did not attempt to go alone to Launceston or I fear I should not have been here to tell the tale. As it was, we lost ourselves in the lanes, climbed over impassible ledges, missed the footbridge, and had to wade through the stream and made a circuitous trip which took us considerably over the prescribed "twenty minutes." We at last caught sight of the church tower and arrived at the church door considerably the worse for wear, after our walk. Unless you positively knew that there was a church here there would be no possibility of finding it or the probability of even seeing it from the public road. It is situated in a valley, sheltered by trees, and surrounded by hills, the height of which dwarf the lofty tower. In fact, all that can be seen from the summit of these hills are the four pinnacles of stone, exactly like those of Poughill tower. It has no clock, but has a chime of six bells. We entered this church from the front or "door door" and walked over a floor composed entirely of tombstones. Opening a tiny door at one side we saw a dark, narrow and steep stairway. One of our party immediately proceeded to explore the tower, and established the fact that the hour later very cobwebby, dusty and dim, as the stair wound round the tower. The steps were broken and narrow and ascent or descent difficult. He could look down from the top of the tower to the streak of light beneath, which denoted the position of the entrance door. He brought with him a small branch which he cut from an asycomore shrub growing in one of the windows. Ferns are growing in several of the windows inside the building and in many places tufts of grass grow through the broken floor.

Some of the windows are of the twelfth century, and the following inscription of the pews. Some of the seats are of the high boxed-in variety. One of these only is carved, and evidently belonged to the lords of the manor, as it bears a beautifully carved crest and monogram. There are but few slabs on the walls, and the paintings which once decorated them have been destroyed, the walls and ceilings now being whitewashed. The pillars which support the roof are of stone, and in the middle of the central row of pews is placed the old stone font, covered with a cone-shaped, handsomely carved oak cover, which is now green and mouldy, together with the tiled flooring, is said to be a thousand years old. One of the tombstones in the middle aisle bears a carved coat of arms, shield and the following inscription:—"Here lieth the body of Walter Chamond, Esquire, dyed ye 7 daie of Januari, in ye yere of our Lorde God, 1581. Unto whom the Lorde grant a joyfull resurrection. Amen."

The back of the altar is of white marble, on which are carved scriptural texts in old English lettering. The rector's vestments, which are found carelessly thrown in a heap on one of the pews, are worn and faded. The once handsome rug in front of the altar, the tapestry on the rector's door, the curtains across the oak doors are still more worn and faded, and the Bible and book of common prayer, published in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, are torn and dilapidated. The quaint old Launceston church has felt the touch of time and decay, and looking at the worn benches and stone floor uneven with the tread of many generations we wondered at the history of these modest, old by-gone days worshipped here, wondered at to their aims, ambitions and destiny.

Marchamchurch is a small village with a very interesting church, dedicated, like that of Morwenstowe, to St. Mowenna. The fine old ivy tower has a chime of six bells, but no clock and a sun-dial over the porch door still marks the progress of the hour. As in the case of Stratton church, the ancient appearance of the interior has been lessened by the removal of the old carved benches, and the introduction of new chairs. Some exquisite embroideries cover the altar, two modern paintings decorate the chancel, and the old paintings on the walls which until recently were covered with a coat of whitewash, have been partially restored by the "High Church" party and many brass and marble memorials to dead and gone Brays, Langfords and other old families are arrayed in the walls.

The name of the parish is derived from "Mar," "Ham," or "name," the home of the sainted Welsh family "Marwenna." The farm house at Whitesborough market, the site of an ancient mansion and chapel of family bearing that name. On this farm is still to be seen the walnut tree mentioned in the Domesday book, and this is the place in the fine old parish church which has been beautifully restored under its present vicar, Canon Thynne, and is now one of the most noteworthy in the county. It contains some fine specimens of Norman arches and mouldings, but is mainly early English in style, being erected by one of the Grenvilles, whose family lived at Stowe, from the conquest until the death of William Henry, Lord Lansdowne and Earl of Bath, in 1714, when the title became extinct. The church contains a beautifully carved oak screen in front of the altar, also, a carved oak chest, black with age and worn eaten so much that to sit upon them seems a dangerous undertaking, and several very fine stained glass windows, three of them being erected in the mortuary chapel by descendants of the "Grenville" family. Lord John Thynne, Canon of Westminster, the Marquis of Bath, the Earl of Ellesmere and the Earl of Sutherland, N. G. Another window, bearing the date of 1861, is erected to the memory of one of the Stueley family, and another was erected "to the memory of Grace, Countess of Grenville, Viscountess Carteret, widow of the first Baron Carteret and youngest daughter and co-heiress of John, Earl of Bath, Viscount Lansdowne."

FROM THE OLD LAND

Planet Correspondent's Interesting Letter From the Mother Country.

English Lady Pays a Compliment to This Journal—Many Historical Points Visited.

Special correspondence to The Planet, Bude, England, April 23, 1901.

When travelling among strangers and in a strange land it is indeed pleasant to meet with a familiar face or one who is acquainted with your native land and old home.

I had an experience the other day while in Tavistock, Devonshire, which not only delighted me, but which spoke plainly of the popularity and broad circulation of The Planet. A lady, on being told that I was a Canadian, eagerly enquired from what part of the Dominion.

I replied, "From Ontario, and very near a city called Chatham."

"Oh, from the Maple City." Do you ever get a copy of The Planet?

On being assured that I received a copy of the Weekly every Thursday she begged that I would send her one occasionally, adding that it was "one of the brightest, newest papers" she had ever read and that English papers would profit by copying the idea of a personal column.

I have now been in the ancient Duchy of Cornwall for six months. I have during that time admired many a lordly and ancient castle and been amusedly interested in the tumble-down, cob-walled, thatched-roofed but picturesque cottages of the poorer classes. I have been horrified to see from my point of vantage on the cliffs seven unfortunate men washed from the deck of a ship and drowned within sight—almost within touch—of shore.

I have also stood upon the beach and wept with a multitude of others who were powerless to render aid to those clinging to the masts and rigging of a doomed ship, and whose pitiful cries for help could be heard above the roar of the waves and the whistling of the winds. But even a wreck can at times have its amusing little side scenes, and I laughed heartily at a fat, fussy, foolish man who rushed wildly up to a limp morsel of recently rescued humanity and began to question him by looks, beck, nods and

gesticulations as to the name of his vessel, to what country her crew belonged, what cargo she carried, where she was bound for, etc. After many splutterings, partly to rid himself of an over-supply of salt water and partly of rage at the inquisitiveness of his questioner the dripping one shouted, "Why, you fool, I'm Medland, of Marchamchurch." The man had failed to recognize as one of his own neighbors the half-drowned personage before him, who, in his desire to assist one of the crew, had waded out beyond his depth and he himself been rescued, with much difficulty, by small wonder, then, that he was taken for a foreigner unable to even understand the English language.

I have been charmed with the agreeable aspect of the land, the green fields, the hedged abazs with purple and white violets, primroses, crimson-leaved black-berryed ivy, the wee, modest, crimson-tipped daisy and yellow foxgloves, ranunculus and buttercups. The flute-like tones of the blackbird and thrush, the sweet, shrill notes of the robin and tinier wren, the trills of the soaring lark have made "nature seem akin to God" in very truth. I have also watched with unchanging pleasure the bold scenery of the coast, the base of whose brown, rugged cliffs are constantly washed by a silver fringe of waves. But if I feel ashamed of this confession I have left all these scenes of beauty and walked through the little town only to make an unfavorable mental comparison between its crooked, crookedly constructed streets, its treeless and bare residence terraces and the straight, broad streets and shady maples of my own native town.

But there is for me one unfailing

source of delight and this lies in my frequent visits to the ancient and historic churches of Poughill, Marchamchurch, Kilkhampton, Stratton, Launceston and Norwinstowe.

The route to Poughill—pronounced "Poffill"—is a beautiful one, winding over hills and through valleys, and through dainty fern and flower—to say nothing of an occasional nettle-covered hedge. The village itself comprises a crazy post office, a blacksmith shop, a free school, several exceedingly handsome residences placed in the most unexpected places and surrounded by such high walls that their chimney tops alone are visible to those passing by, several straggling cottages further up in the village, one of which is so picturesque that tourists invariably photograph it, and the handsome old church. This, too, has its high stone wall with a heavy latticed wooden gate standing under a wide arch. The graveyard is kept, with handsome flowers on nearly all the graves, and a few very fine monuments. Many of the headstones are very ancient, the oldest I can find being a small, upright, slab, mossy with age and bearing on top a carving of skull and cross-bones and the date 1629.

Several of the epitaphs are both peculiar and amusing. I was particularly struck with the one following:—

"This stone is fixed here in memory of Mr. Stanbury's children by Chas. Rowland, Gent.

"Susanna and Humphrey Stanbury. Candlesmas, 1725; valentines following."

"In Heaven when infants hail the Almighty King,

There little Humphrey and Susanna sing; Their virgin souls straight enter'd Paradise, Dreading no Let because they knew no vice; Too good for earth they soon shook off their clay, And to immortal glory winged their way."

The church is a handsome, old grey stone building with a high square tower, with a clock and surmounted by four stone pinnacles, which raised stone knobs placed alternately around them. This tower is 61 feet high, is of three stages and contains the usual chime of bells. The edifice is of the early perpendicular style and is dedicated to St. Olive, while the living is a vicarage in the gift of the Lord Chancellor. Admission to the entrance is gained by means of a heavy screen door of iron. Inside the entrance are seats of stone along the wall. On the walls are several stone slabs sacred to the memory of some long forgotten person and are so old that only parts of the Latin inscription remain and the dates have vanished. An enormous door of worm-eaten wood, studded with huge nails and banded with iron opens from the porch into the church. A solemn hush reigns within the building, the sunlight filters through the diamond-paned windows and lingers on the handsome old oaken benches now black with age and eaten by worms.

The floor is composed of the stone slabs which form the tombstones in memory of the departed who sleep peacefully beneath. One epitaph runs as follows:—

"Here lieth the body of Susanna, the wife of William Warrington, who was buried on the 10th day of Janu. An Do. 1628."

"Here lies my corpse entombed in sable sheet,

Which on the earth could find no place of rest; But now I rest my soule where reste is founde, My body here in a final piece of grounde."

And from that hill, that hill I have ascended, From whence my Savior once for me descended; Live then to learn that die you must, And after come to judgment just; If women kind were like to thee, Wee men for wives should happie bee."

And a very old one with this inscription,—

"Beneath this stone resteth the body of Hugh Gadd, yeoman, of this parish of Poughill, who dyed in the year of our Lord God, 1619."

On the wall are tablets of brass and stone, monuments to ancient families and two paintings of St. Olive, which are remarkable for their oddity and their faulty perspective. Against the south wall is a copy of Charles I.'s "Seater of thanks" to his loyal Cornish subjects and an immense British coat of standing out in bold relief.

The "poore" box is a stout oak box banded with iron and fitted with an ancient lock and key. This with the communion table are of the reign of Edward VI. There was at one time a beautiful carved screen around the chancel, but this was destroyed about seventy years ago. While repairing the chancel some time ago a piscina and an ambo. The parish register of Poughill church dates from 1537.

Stratton is situated about two miles from Bude and lies in a beautiful hollow surrounded by lofty trees and like several other towns of the same name in England it takes its name from the old Roman phrase "straight on" or "street town," meaning a town on the high road. The church and a large part of the town occupy the side of a hill at the bottom of which runs the small but pretty river called Strat. Besides several very good stores the town possesses a cottage hospital, a large county police station, handsome Wesleyan and Free Methodist places of worship and several fine residences, one being owned by Dr. John King, the descendant of a long line of physicians of that name.

The parish church, restored in 1860, is dedicated to St. Andrew, and comprises a chancel, nave, north and south aisles, and is surrounded by a lofty embattled tower. Over the door of the porch is a sundial and you enter the building by means of an old oaken door. Within the building are missed the footbridge, and had to wade through the stream and made a circuitous trip which took us considerably over the prescribed "twenty minutes." We at last caught sight of the church tower and arrived at the church door considerably the worse for wear, after our walk. RAISING THE GUN BOAT.

"If we have good luck and it doesn't rain, we will have the gun boat up as high as we can get it by Sunday," said Sam McCornock, who is superintending the work. To the Planet last evening. "This wreck of His Majesty's navy is about 65 feet long, and her planks are solid. The boat is strongly constructed and was a sloop, having but one mast forward. The mast was a huge one, judging by the stump left. We haven't examined the boat yet and so don't know what is in her. She is the same shape both forward and aft."

arranged before Judge Bell to-day.
The prisoner was convicted and sen-

KNIGHTED THE SKIP.

J. G. Kerr says that City Treasurer
Robert Fleming has been knighted for the remarkable feat accomplished by him at the bowling contest in Thamesville yesterday. Skip Fleming had the last shot of the day and the way the bowls lay on the Thame-sian rink, that club was ahead by a couple of shots. The Thame-sians were jubilant, the Maple Cities had one slight hope. The skip walked jauntily up to the mark, drove his bowl down and squeaked through a hole which Mr. Kerr understandably large enough to let a through. The play was a brilliant one. The bowl of Sir Robert glided gracefully through the opening and lay shot cut lying off the four.
The day was won and nothing was too good for Skip Fleming.

WHO IS IT?

There is a good joke told at the expense of a popular and energetic North Chatham grain merchant. The young man is wealthy and unmarried, and for the past month he has been receiving on an average of four letters a week in the writing of a maiden and signed simply B. The letters made appointments on St.
Charles street, at the Post Office, on Park Ave., at the G. T. R. station, etc. The writer purports to be a young and charming lady who has fallen desperately in love with the prosperous young merchant. The respondent of the letters has always kept the trysts made, but the mysterious B has never appeared. His friends were wondering at the grain sentry duty they found at the grain sentry duty. Judgment was given in favor of the township of Mackillop, allowing its appeal with costs of the trial.
Each party to pay its own costs of inspection. The grand jury of the decision was the insufficiency of the petition for the work. Maybe, K. C.
of Stratford, was counsel for the appellants and Thompson, of Mitchell, counsel for the respondents.

HURON APPEAL CASE.

A drainage case by way of appeal
from an assessment was tried before Drainage Referee J. B. Rankin at Seaford Thursday. The inspection of the locality assessed took place on Wednesday. The appellant township was Mackillop in the County of Huron and the respondent township was Logan in the County of Perth. The locality assessed was in a swamp extending across the township between the two townships and supposed to be the source of the waters of the River Thames. The referee was accompanied in his inspection by council for both parties. Judgment was given in favor of the township of Mackillop, allowing its appeal with costs of the trial.
Each party to pay its own costs of inspection. The grand jury of the decision was the insufficiency of the petition for the work. Maybe, K. C.

LAST BOER DITCH

Burghers are Believed to be Making Their Final and Desperate Stand.Present Scrapping is Thought to be Intended to Check the Opening of Rand Mines.

Special to The Planet.

New York, June 1.—A despatch to the Tribune from London says: Kitch-ener's account of the battle of Vlafontein serves to light up public interest once more in the Boer war.
This has been the first real engagement which has been fought for many months, and it is decisive proof that the Boers, when led by a cool and wary general like Delarey, can still offer strenuous resistance.The details may indicate that Gen.
Dixon's force was surprised. But the Boers, in any event, were assailants.
The Boers are also reported to have fought with exceptional gallantry while in pursuit of Plumer's convoy.A British officer who is on furlough after fighting from Colenso to Lydenburg, has been predicting that the closing skirmishes of the campaign would occur on the line of the Durban-Johannesburg railway in the vicinity of Heidelberg and Standerton.
Both of these affairs were within the theatre of war defined by the Boer months ago at the last Boer ditch.The natural explanation of the fighting is that one mine after another is opening in the Rand, and the refugees are returning to Johannesburg in small groups, and the Boers have been making desperate efforts to frighten them and to prevent resumption of industry in the gold belt.Vlafontein was probably designed to be a loud warning to the refugees that the war had not ended, and that Johannesburg was still an unsafe place of residence.

HURON APPEAL CASE.

A drainage case by way of appeal
from an assessment was tried before Drainage Referee J. B. Rankin at Seaford Thursday. The inspection
of the locality assessed took place
on Wednesday. The appellant township was Mackillop in the County of Huron and the respondent township was Logan in the County of Perth. The locality assessed was in a swamp extending across the township between the two townships and supposed to be the source of the waters of the River Thames. The referee was accompanied in his inspection by council for both parties. Judgment was given in favor of the township of Mackillop, allowing its appeal with costs of the trial.
Each party to pay its own costs of inspection. The grand jury of the decision was the insufficiency of the petition for the work. Maybe, K. C.
of Stratford, was counsel for the ap-
pellants and Thompson, of Mitchell,
counsel for the respondents.

Chas. Senior, who for many years has carried on a photograph business in Blenheim, has disposed of his business to Mr. Arnold of Stratford, Ont. Mr. Arnold comes here highly recommended as a first class workman in the photograph business, and it is hoped he will be well patronized, and while Mr. Senior has disposed of his business interests in Blenheim it is hoped that he will decide to still make his home here with us. Mr. Arnold takes possession about June 4th.

INTER-CLUB
YACHT RACE

Big Fixture Scheduled for Competition in the Near Future at Mitchell's Bay.

Sir Thomas Lipton Will be Unable to be Present, but has Cabled his Regrets and the new Rules.

"New York may have its international yacht race, and so can Montreal and Put-In-Bay, but locally we pride ourselves on the great inter-club race between the yachts of the Big Point Yacht Club and that exclusive yachting association the Joy Club," said a local enthusiast to the Planet recently. "You will remember that these two clubs have not held the annual race since the Dunraven fiasco a couple of years ago. The two clubs have now done ravine and their boats will shortly meet in the deep."

"The race that caused all the trouble is well remembered. The Tick-a-Tack, of the Big Point Yacht Club, was in charge of Commodore Wells, while Commodore Col. Holmes, of the Joy Club, had command of the Lillian, the pride of the last named social organization. The race was well under way when much the same accident happened to the Lillian as that which recently befell the Shamrock II, and Commodore Holmes had a narrow escape. The unfortunate part of the whole affair was that after the spar and main sheet had been carried away the Lillian went on and won the race. The crew of the Tick-a-Tack complained that the sailors on the Lillian had won unfairly, for, on the last leg after the sails had been carried away, the members of the Joy Club used oars, Mackintoshes, coats, etc., and won the race."

"It was claimed that this action was contrary to the rules governing civilized yacht races. Referee Chas. Hicklin has written Sir Thomas Lipton and has secured the rules governing the international yacht races and, with slight alterations, it is thought that they will do. Commodore Wells, meet Commodore Holmes, of the Joy Club, at any distance, any depth, from six inches up or down. Colonel Holmes has remodeled the Lillian and fixed her up, and says he can now beat the Tick-a-Tack without the aid of oars, coats, etc. He says that his boat being so much more costly than the Shamrock II, has taken three years instead of three months to repair. His only regret is that his friend, Sir Thomas Lipton, has cabled regretting his inability to be present, owing to the accident to Shamrock II."

UNDERWEAR
For Warm Weather

A timely subject now. Even the sheep, whose natural coat it is, likes to get rid of his fleece before June. If your doctor or your wisdom says "wool all summer" here are appropriate summer wools—thin, porous, elastic, as nearly unshrinkable as wool can be made.

We sell the Dr. Deinel Linen Mesh Underwear. The makers of these goods have secured the warm endorsement of many physicians on account of the sanitary properties of the porous linen fabric used. Owing to its cellular texture, this fabric drinks moisture as readily as a buck towel and evaporates it more readily. Perspiration is quickly seized by it and passed into the air without danger of a chill to the wearer. These goods are handsomely trimmed.

Mr. Arnold comes here highly recommended as a first class workman in the photograph business, and it is hoped he will be well patronized, and while Mr. Senior has disposed of his business interests in Blenheim it is hoped that he will decide to still make his home here with us. INTER-CLUB

Big Fixture Scheduled for Competition in the Near Future at Mitchell's Bay.

Sir Thomas Lipton Will be Unable to be Present, but has Cabled his Regrets and the new Rules.

"New York may have its international yacht race, and so can Montreal and Put-In-Bay, but locally we pride ourselves on the great inter-club race between the yachts of the Big Point Yacht Club and that exclusive yachting association the Joy Club," said a local enthusiast to The Planet recently. "You will remember that these two clubs have not held the annual race since the Dunraven fiasco a couple of years ago. The two clubs have now done ravin' and their boats will shortly meet in the deep."

"The race that caused all the trouble is well remembered. The Tick-a-Tack, of the Big Point Yacht Club, was in charge of Commodore Wells, while Commodore Col. Holmes, of the Joy Club, had command of the Lillian, the pride of the last named social organization. The race was well under way when much the same accident happened to the Lillian as that which recently befell the Shamrock II., and Commodore Holmes had a narrow escape. The unfortunate part of the whole affair was that after the spar and main sheet had been carried away the Lillian went on and won the race. The crew of the Tick-a-Tack complained that the sailors on the Lillian had won unfairly, for, with slight alterations, it is thought that they will do. Commodore Wells, of the Tick-a-Tack, is very anxious to meet Commodore Holmes, of the Joy Club, at any distance, any boat being so much more costly than the Shamrock II. has taken three years instead of three months to repair. His only regret is that his friend, Sir Thomas Lipton, has cabled regretting his inability to be present, owing to the accident to Shamrock II."

The officers and committees of the sergeants' mess of the 24th Kent Regiment were elected at a meeting of all the non-coms. held at the orderly room in the drill hall last evening. The Sergeant-Major presided.

Secretary—Sergeant Will. A. Coltart.

Mess Committee—Colonel Sergeant Burrill, Sergeants Northwood, and Lampman.

Committee to select quarters—Sergeant-Major Embrey, Color-Sergeant Burrill, Sergeants Tucker, and Staff Sergeant Brackin.

The meeting listened to a very instructive address from Lieut-Colonel Rankin, and received much valuable advice from Adjutant Spry.

We sell the Dr. Deimel Linen Mesh Underwear. The makers of these goods have secured the warm endorsement of many physicians on account of the sanitary properties of the porous linen fabric used. Owing to its cellular texture, this fabric drinks moisture as readily as a buck towel and evaporates it more readily. Perspiration is quickly seized by it and passed into the air without danger of a chill to the wearer. These goods are handsomely trimmed.
