Thrilling Stories Are Told by Survivors Who Reached Montreal To-Day—British Heroism is Outstanding Feature of Deplorable Affair, Despite the Fact That There Was Scant Opportunity to Save Women and Children—Commissioner Rees of Toronto Died With His Family, Exclaiming, "God's Will be Done"—Captain Kendall Was Last on Board the Doomed Ship—Salvation Army Lassies Spent Last Few Minutes in Prayer.

(By Special Wire to The Courier).
 QUEBEC, May 30.—From the stories of the survivors of the sunken Empress of Ireland brought last night, it is now possible to get a fairly accurate idea of the great marine disaster. The outstanding features could be summarized as follows:
 The collision between the Empress and collier, Storstad, took place in a fog.
 The oncoming Storstad was seen by Captain Kendall of Empress, who had pulled up his vessel.

of so many of the crew was the fact that they were on duty and on deck when the ship went down. The actual number of those lost was 910 and the saved 477.
 With the Empress went $1,000,000 in bars of silver shipped to England from Cobalt.

Preparations were being made to-day in government shed No. 4 at the dock for the accommodation of the three hundred dead the Lady Gray is expected to bring in. All the undertakers in the district have been employed by the railway authorities, while a large number of caskets were placed in the shed, which has been draped. Identification of the bodies will take place here.

SURVIVORS ARRIVE.
 Montreal, May 30.
 With bowed heads and tremulous voices survivors of the sunken liner, Empress of Ireland, arriving on the C. P. R. regular train at the Place Viger station at 6.40 this morning, gave their experiences to reporters.
 Of the small group of rescued disgorged from one of the coaches of the train, a large number were from the Toronto Salvation Army party bound for the big congress in London, while the others belonged to the ordinary passenger list.

TOUCHING SCENES.
 Sympathetic railway officials indicated to pressmen with signs not words the presence of the afflicted ones, many of whom clasped hands with and heard the voices of loved comrades for the last time before retiring on Thursday night.

PITIFUL TALES.
 Tales appallingly pitiful, and appallingly gruesome flowed from the lips of the survivors. Here by the nine-year-old Grace Hannigan, Toronto, who was saved while both her parents went down, lisped forth questions as to their welfare. She had not been told. Here Band Sergeant John Fowler of Vancouver, told how he had been drawn down in the vortex and had struggled with corpses to regain the surface of the water.

THOSE WHO DISEMBARKED.
 The local passengers who were disembarked from the train this morning were Messrs. Kent, Ferguson, Duncan, Weirauch and Miss Kohl. Those from Toronto included Mrs. O'Hara, Miss O'Hara, Miss Lee and Mr. Hunt. Of the Salvation Army survivors, the following remnant landed at the station:
 Mrs. McIntyre, Toronto; Messrs. Toronto; B. Greenaway, Toronto; Captain McAmmond, Toronto; Lieut. Keith, Toronto; James Johnston, Toronto; Major and Mrs. Atwell, Toronto; E. Green, (lost a mother and sister) Toronto; Captain Spooner, Grace Hamilton, Miss Bales, all of Toronto; Mrs. Cook, Vancouver; Band Sergeant Fowler, Vancouver and Miss Wilmot, Winnipeg.

MOST THRILLING TALE.
 The most thrilling tale is that of Band Sergeant Fowler, who saw the actual ramming and battled with corpses under water.
 "I was looking through my cabin amidships," he declared, "when I saw a big black shape loom up suddenly out of the foggy darkness. It seemed to be only a few feet away that that mysterious mass appeared, but perhaps as the vision was not distinct, the distance was greater."
 "Then came the jolt, it could not be called a crash because it was more of a grinding sensation, and before I realized what had happened, my cabin began to fill with water."
 "Rushing out of the cabin I made my way up the main companionway. I saw a girl with a baby in her arms and a little child, aged perhaps six years, following after. She implored me to put a lifebelt on her, so I stopped long enough to do this. By the time Band Sergeant Fowler reached the deck, the ship was listing rapidly, and the passengers were being swept to the rail on the side opposite that on which the Empress was struck to keep from going over the side."
 After rendering assistance to a number of the passengers, including Miss Wilmot of Winnipeg, who insisted that he saved her life, when he jumped he was too late to avoid the suction of the sinking ship.
 "The sensation was a terrible one," he asserted, "I went down, and down until I thought my lungs would burst. Bodies, cold and clammy bumped into me, but I could not think of that in the dreadful fight for life. Once a big husky man threw his arms around me when we were still under water, and I had to fight

A signal from the Empress was answered; the Storstad slackening speed, but too late to avoid the liner, just beginning to go astern.
 Owing to the heavy list the liner took immediately after the accident and the rapidly with which she sank, only two lifeboats could be launched.
 Most of the first and second cabin passengers were caught in their cabins by the rush of water. A boiler explosion occurred which wounded many of the sailors and passengers.
 The Storstad did not seem to realize that she had fatally wounded the Empress, and there was delay in lowering her boats.
 Hundreds of women lost their lives by stopping to dress.
 While the crew represent a majority of the saved, there was no violation of the British traditional heroism of sailors, many sacrificing their lives after putting people in the boats and many being picked out of the water in which they had swam around.
 Another reason for the saving

HAPPENED SO QUICKLY NO ONE HAD A CHANCE

So Said the Survivors Who Were Picked Up by the Eureka—No Crowding on the Life Boats—Those Who Stopped to Dress Were Drowned.

(By Special Wire to the Courier).
 RIMOUSKI, May 30.—"It all happened so quickly that we did not really know what was going on and nobody had time even to cry 'women first'!" Captain Belanger of the Little Mail Tender Eureka, said the survivors he picked up after the Empress had gone down, told him.
 "They stated that there was no crowding in the lifeboats," the captain said, "because the stewards did not have time to rouse the people from their berths. Those who heard the frenzied calls of the officers to get on deck lost no time in obeying them, rushing up from their berths with practically nothing on. They piled into the boats which were rapidly lowered and rowed away. Many who wanted to dress, were drowned."
 "Half hysterical and clad only in their nightgowns the wireless operator at Father Point ran down the wharf to where the Eureka was lying, said Captain Belanger, telling how he got the first word of the disaster.
 "For God's sake," screamed the operator, "get down stream at once." The Empress of Ireland has gone down, he said.
 "I can't say any more. But Captain Belanger got his men together and as he had steam up after taking the mails to the Empress, got under weigh at once. He soon found a number of the Empress' boats and lifted men, women and children, suffering in the cold in their thin night attire out of them. The captain said that fifty dead bodies were picked up and the women cried aloud as they were brought aboard, some eagerly scanning the faces of the corpse for lost relatives and friends. Several of them walked around wringing their hands in a wild hysteria and even the hardened members kept at the terribly pathetic scene. Several of the survivors, distraught, did not want to land at Father Point, afraid that they would be put on another boat and taken to England without a chance of seeking relatives. When assured that nothing like this would be done, they quieted down.

 One woman had to be prevented from jumping into the sea when the boat turned to leave the scene of the disaster. She kept crying and moaning, "My Leonard, my Leonard."
 She is believed to be Mrs. Leonard Palmer, wife of the eminent English journalist, who organized the party of British manufacturers who came to Canada two years ago.

Laurence Irving and Wife Died in Embrace

Graphic Description of How Noted Actor Faced Death in Ocean Tragedy—Tried to Save Mrs. Irving.

(By Special Wire to The Courier).
 QUEBEC, May 30.—Laurence Irving, the noted actor, son of the late Sir Henry Irving, died trying to save his wife.
 F. E. Abbott of Toronto, was the last man to see Irving alive.
 "I met him first in the passageway," he said, "and he said calmly, 'is the boat going down.' I said that it looked like it."
 "Dearie," Irving then said to his wife, "hurry, there is no time to lose." Mrs. Irving began to cry, and as the actor reached for a life-belt, the boat suddenly lurched forward and he was thrown against the door of the cabin. His face was bloody and Mrs. Irving became frantic. "Keep cool," he warned her, but she persisted in holding her arms around him. He forced the life-belt over her and pushed her out of the door. He then practically carried her upstairs.
 Abbott said: "Can I help you, and Irving said: 'Look after yourself first, old man; but God bless you all the same.'"
 Abbott left the two, man and wife, struggling. Abbott got on deck and dived overboard. He caught hold of a piece of timber, and holding on tight he looked around. Irving by this time was on deck. He was kissing his wife. And as the ship went down they were both clasped in each other's arms.
 Out of a large party of English passengers who left this port on Thursday, only one came back.

He was Walter Fenton, of Manchester, England, and when he arrived at the hotel he had on only an old dressing gown, which he had hurriedly thrown over himself when the frantic calls came to him from the stewards to get up. He says that the crew behaved splendidly. At one time he thought there was going to be a panic among the women in the steerage, many of whom were foreigners on their way from Canada to their home countries. As it was a case of every man for himself there was much struggling around the boats and he thought that as the steerage passengers did not wait, but jumped into a boat the moment it was ready, that was the reason why so many of the third class were saved.
 M. D. A. Rathling of Shanghai, was saved by a lifebelt that might have saved Sir Henry Seton-Kerr; Darling said to-day:
 "My cabin was opposite Sir Henry's and when I opened my door he opened his arms and we bumped into each other in the passageway. He had a lifebelt and he offered it to me. I refused it, but he said, 'Go on man, take it and I will get another.' I told him to rush out and save himself, but he got angry and actually forced the belt over me. He then hurried me along the corridor to the deck, leaving me there. He turned for another belt and a moment or two after he had left me the ship went down. I was picked up."

ONLY TWELVE WOMEN SAVED FROM EMPRESS

Short Time Allowed for Discipline and Getting People Off Accounted, No Doubt, for Terrible Loss of Life—Died in Their Bunks.

(By Special Wire to The Courier).
 MONTREAL, May 29.—Without any official total of the dead now lying in the Empress of Ireland at the bottom of the St. Lawrence near Rimouski, or lying ashore in the morgue of that town, it was practically assured that nearly 1030 had perished in the worst disaster in Canadian waters and that the saved would not be likely to total many more than 337. During the day news of the marine tragedy filtered through the papers here from wireless operators at the scene of the disaster and from survivors brought ashore in the speedy little government vessel, the Lady Evelyn and Eureka, which rushed to the assistance of the punctured and foundering Empress, after she had signalled for help, when the cumbering and heavy collier Storstad, struck her amidships and ploughed her way sheer along her side to the screws, causing her to lean over at once and sink in a short fourteen minutes.
 Most significant of all the reports which have come out of Rimouski are the statements that only twelve women were saved, taken here to show that little order could be kept in the short time at the disposal of the crew called upon to launch the boats of the rapidly sinking sides of the Empress and that a number of survivors were brought ashore wounded, indicating that they were injured in the terrific impact between the ships.
 Varying reports have arrived during the day as to the condition of the weather at the time of the collision, Captain Kendall, who is reported dying from pneumonia after his exposure in the cold water, said in frantic wireless, sent before the water reached the dynamos and rendered them useless that the vessel was stopped in a fog. A wireless operator's story says the atmosphere was clear.

 Though this may have been true off shore and in the stream. During the afternoon, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, issued a statement, in which he said the officers had not time to rouse everybody.
 Showing that many of those drowned probably never left their cabins.
 The partial list of survivors contains the sad proof that death practically cut in half the contingent of the Salvation Army delegates mustered from all parts of Canada to attend a congress of the organization in London. Early lists of the saved also contained no mention of the actor, Laurence Irving and his wife, Mabel Hackney, and Sir Henry Seton-Kerr, the noted big game hunter.
 Little doubt is felt that practically every big city in the Dominion has its quota of lost, as no word has been received of prominent citizens from Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Hamilton, London, Winnipeg, Brantford, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver, who were on the vessel. As the news of the saved percolated through it was flashed over the wires to Canada, the United States, the United Kingdom and Australia, the interest in the tragedy being world-wide.
 The vessel is not in very deep

SAD HOMES THERE ARE IN BRANT

Awful Toll of Death From This Locality in the Disaster.

As far as Brantford and Paris are concerned, the worst is confirmed this morning by the news which comes through from the scene of the wreck of the Empress of Ireland. Out of 20 known to have left Brantford, 18 are believed to have perished, and to this number there may be additions. Besides the 18 from Brantford, Paris had eight on the ill-fated boat, and no word has been received of any of these.

Besides the known list of Brantford dead is added to-day the name of Miss Florence Taylor. For the past two years Miss Taylor had been living in Brantford. She came from England. Last year her father came out to bring her home. During the six months he has been out he has been residing in Hamilton. The daughter came down from Brantford, and they left Hamilton together. Mrs. Taylor lies ill in England, anxiously awaiting the arrival of her husband and daughter.

In addition to Miss Taylor, the names of James Faulkner and wife are mentioned among the lost. No address is given, but by some it is believed that they are both former well-known Brantfordites.

Thus far only two from Brantford are reported saved, Mr. Philip Lawlor and son Herbert. Mr. Lawlor made a desperate effort to save his wife, but failed, as she slipped from his grasp and sank in the icy waters of the St. Lawrence.

In all, the toll of death from Brantford and Paris may reach the astounding total of 32.

Go to Church and Get Acquainted With Your Clergyman; He's Not a Bad Sort

"I CAN'T be a hypocrite," was the ready excuse of one man when asked why he didn't attend church. "I know that I am not righteous and that I cannot practice what the church preaches."

There is hope for this man. He is the kind the church wants. If he is not righteous he is not happy. Let him acquire the habit of GOING TO CHURCH and he will get a broader, better and happier view of life.

We cannot all be saints. But surely a man can forget the temptations of the world for one hour or one day each week. At least for the hour or so that he is in church he can really think over the big things in life. Let him listen to the word of God and do his best. Of course there are some persons in every community who will criticize as freely the man who GOES TO CHURCH as the man who stays away.

NO MAN WHO GOES TO CHURCH CAN BE A HYPOCRITE LONG. DEEP DOWN IN HIS HEART HE KNOWS THAT HE CANNOT SELL GOD A GOLD BRICK. IF ORIGINALLY HE GOES TO CHURCH SOLELY TO MAKE A GOOD IMPRESSION WITH HIS NEIGHBORS—AND THIS IS TO BE ENCOURAGED—EVENTUALLY HE WILL FIND THAT HE IS GRADUALLY BEING LED TO THE RIGHT SORT OF LIFE. IT IS EASY TO ACQUIRE THE GO TO CHURCH HABIT. TRY IT ONE SUNDAY. WHEN ANOTHER SABBATH ROLLS AROUND YOU'LL FEEL A PANG OF REMORSE IF YOU DON'T GO AGAIN. GET ACQUAINTED WITH YOUR CLERGYMAN. YOU'LL FIND THAT HE IS NOT A BAD SORT. TALK TO HIM. IF YOU HAVE ANY CRITICISM OF THE CHURCH OR ITS METHODS, DON'T TALK ABOUT IT ON THE OUTSIDE, BUT TELL HIM. HE'LL MEET YOU HALFWAY. NONE REALIZES MORE THAN HE HOW HARD IT IS TO WORK UP AN INTEREST IN RELIGIOUS AFFAIRS AMONG SOME PEOPLE.

But give him and his church a chance. GO TO CHURCH once! Then go again!

GIDEONS AT FESTIVE BOARD

Banquet Was Held at the Y. M. C. A. Last Night.

The first annual banquet of the Gideon (Christian Commercial Travelers' Association) was held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last night.

The gathering was held in a large degree, and for enthusiastic good comradeship, hard to beat.

Mr. W. E. Clark ably acted as croupier and chairman.

A program of meritorious solos and speeches was gone through. Among the artists were Mr. Deque, and Mr. Witmer, who are able and entertaining additions to such a function.

An address on the society was delivered by Mr. Coleman, Dominion secretary of Gideons, and his speech, admirable by reason of direct delivery and pleasing style, got a hearty reception.

Mr. Sneath made emphatic references to our city, and the work of the Gideons, then gave some experiences, both secular and every day in the association's life.

Mr. Noble, in his speech referred to some years ago, when there were few Christian travellers, and remarked on the change of things as they are to-day. The movement had done a world of good.

A brother from Hamilton, Mr. Huich, was the speaker of the evening. His remarks were aggressive forward and filled with enthusiasm of the movement. His reminiscences were greatly enjoyed.

Solos were rendered by Mr. Sanderson and Mr. Witmer, Mr. W. C. Ballantyne playing the accompaniments in his usual pleasing manner.

The officers present were Chairman G. A. Witmer, President D. T. Williamson, Vice-President W. E. Clark, Secy Russel Vanstone, with visiting brethren from Stratford, Hamilton, Galt and other parts.

A Presentation

A pleasing event took place at the home of Miss Etta Schuler, organist of St. Basil's R. C. church, when the members of the choir gathered at 46 Duke street. Miss Schuler's home, and presented her with a splendid dinner set of 97 pieces, in recognition of her efficient services, and in view of her approaching marriage. A beautiful illuminated address, by the sisters of the convent, Hamilton, was read by Miss Annie Farrell, and the presentation was made by Mr. Fred Millard on behalf of the choir. Afterwards a splendid musical program was given, and the evening closed with the serving of light refreshments. Among those present, in addition to those named above, were Mrs. John Cook and the Messrs. Katie Donovan and Gertrude Brohman.

Brantford Man and Son Saved---Story of The Dreadful Wreck

Philipp Lawlor Tells How Wife Slipped From His Grip in the Water and Sank—Explosions Occurred on Ship.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] QUEBEC, May 30.—Philipp Lawlor of Brantford, Ont., who lost his wife in the wreck, says there was a fog at the time of the accident, and that after the collision the water rushed into the hole, causing explosions which pushed many into the sea.

Lawlor was on his way to England with his wife and son Herbert, aged 15. He says that the first notion he had of the accident was when the ship listed under a severe shock. Water rushed into the steeage quarters, and a few seconds later there was a tremendous explosion that shook the vessel, he thinks when the water reached the boilers.

"The shock of the explosion was something fearful," says Mr. Lawlor. "People were simply shot out of the ship into the sea. I was pushed overboard with my wife and boy. The boy would swim, so I took care of my wife, but somehow she slipped from my grip and sank."

Another thrilling story was told by Dr. Johnston, chief medical officer on the Empress. He says that he had not the Stordstad backed out so soon from the Empress a larger number of the passengers would have been saved, but said the Stordstad, in backing out of the hole she had boarded into the hold of the Empress simply left it open for the sea to surge into it, thus hastening the end.

A Macaroni officer, interviewed today, gave information as to the time it took for the Empress to sink. "As soon as I felt the shock of the collision," he said, "I was ordered to send the danger signal, and the flash of my S.O.S. was immediately picked up by the operator at Father Point, who answered back, but I could not talk with him, as for five minutes after the impact my dynamo failed me, and seventeen minutes after the collision our boat went down."

Captain Kendall Tells Of Precautions Taken

Collier Stordstad Answered His Fog Signal When Two Miles From the Empress of Ireland.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] RIMOUSKI, May 30.—Captain Kendall, who was yesterday reported to be dying, but who is suffering from injuries, was a little better this morning and was able to talk about the disaster. His story of the tragedy as related by him to a friend is as follows:

"At 1.30 a.m. the Empress had passed Rimouski and was proceeding on her course. The weather threatened a bit, but there was not an actual fog, but the weather had thickened to the extent described by nautical men as being misty. There was "a vaporizing." Captain Kendall was on the bridge and ordered the ship slowed down. Then he made out the lights of an approaching steamer and ordered a stop. He whistled and the steamer answered, indicating that Captain Kendall's signal had been understood. The steamers were two miles apart when the first action was taken on board the Empress. As the big passenger liner and the Stordstad approached, the Empress engines had come to a full stop, but she still was proceeding forward under her momentum. Then Captain Kendall ordered them reversed to "slow astern."

The Stordstad kept in her way toward the liner. It is thought that Captain Anderson, of the Stordstad, tried to cross the bows of the larger boat, but his intentions are not known. What did happen is that she came closer and closer. Her nose missed the bows of the liner and she plunged into the starboard side of the Empress just amidships, striking the big-ge boat in her most vital spot. It was not a severe shock. One man said that he heard a "grinding, scraping sound," but the heavily laden boiler had the weight behind it, and "her bows tore through the liner's plates as though they had been tin rather than tough steel, crushing them in, pitiless destruction and piercing her in the one spot that not all the double, nor all the bulkheads ever made could save life.

Then the Stordstad backed out. That ended the fight between the liner and

He Says He Told His Neighbors And They Told Him to Try Dadd's Kidney Pills

CAMPBELLVILLE, Man., May 29.—(Special) — Cured of Kidney and Heart Disease of two years standing, Mr. Mike Rudy, a well known young farmer living near here, is telling his neighbors that he owes his new lease of life to Dadd's Kidney Pills.

"For two years," Mr. Rudy states, "I suffered with a terrible pain in the small of my back and shoulders. I took many different medicines, and was under the doctor's care, but nothing seemed to do me any lasting good. Finally heart disease was added to my troubles."

"Hearing Dadd's Kidney Pills were spoken of by my neighbors, I decided to try them. To my surprise and relief one box cured me completely."

ONTARIO ELECTION.

As was quite generally anticipated, there will be an election in this province on Monday, June 29th. Sir James Whitney, in an address to the electors, points out that, though the current Legislative term has not expired, nevertheless three sessions have been held, and, according to constitutional practice, it is considered not only wise, but proper, to consult the electorate when measures of more than usual importance are proposed or have been enacted—and indeed to keep, as far as practicable, in touch with the people.

"With reference to this point I draw attention to the very important Act passed at the last session, known as the Act of Compensation for Injuries to Workmen; also to the report of the Public Roads and Highways Commission; and to the legislation providing for the establishment of radial railways by municipalities; all these foreshadowing action of tremendous importance to the people of the province. In our history there is no instance of legislation promising such great and beneficial results. As I have said, we desire to gather your opinions with reference to these great subjects, as well as the other matters to which we have given our attention."

- 1. Abolition of the numbered ballot.
2. Restoration of clean and honest methods in the conduct of elections.
3. Large increases for the benefit of agriculture, "our chief industry."
4. Production of text books at the lowest possible price, thus effecting a saving to the people of considerably over one million dollars.
5. More than doubled the public revenues, maintained unimpaired the provincial credit, and spent the money in useful public improvements.
6. Development of Hydro-Electric power, which has transformed in "a wonderful manner industrial and social conditions in the Province," and with regard to which the authority of the people is asked for further development.
7. The passing of the far-reaching Workmen's Compensation Act.
8. Extended and reconstructed the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway "and so successfully administered its affairs that running rights over the line have been granted at a price which will repay the province one-half the interest on the sum expended in construction."
9. Thorough enforcement of the license laws and of the Canada Temperance Act under which in nine years over 1,200 liquor licenses have been abolished or nearly one-half of the previous whole number in the Province.
10. Development of New Ontario and by securing an extension of territory from the Dominion Government of 146,400 square miles, the Province secures a port on Hudson Bay.
11. Provided for the sum of $5,000,000 for the construction of roads and bridges and the advancement of settlement.

The above record in something less than ten years, certainly constitutes a story of which any administration might well feel proud and that the endorsement of the people will be just as emphatic as upon the occasion of the last Ontario contest, cannot for one moment be doubted.

A Presentation

A very enjoyable event was that held at the noon hour at King Edward school yesterday, when the teachers gave a luncheon in honor of Miss Anna M. Annis, who in several gher connection with the teaching staff of the school, Tables were set in one of the class rooms and amid a profusion of floral decorations looked very pretty. Principal Dickinson presided. A pleasing feature of the affair was the presentation to the guest of honor of a handsome silver baking dish, accompanied by an address. All of the fourteen teachers of the school were present.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Get to it.
The fight is on.
Both Brants, and don't you ever forget it.
Now esteemed Tories get your coats off.

The initial letters in the names of Brewster and Westbrook stand for Both Win.

There isn't one solitary thing which can be urged against the Whitney Government, and there are a hundred reasons why the Administration should be retained.

Rowell candidates are going into the approaching tussle with about as much enthusiasm as a baseball fan experiences when he knows that his side is booked for a large and succulent wallop.

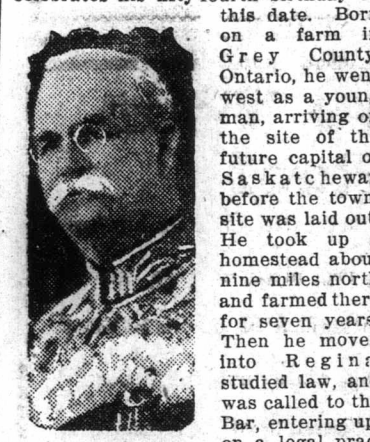

Passed Accounts

The finance committee of the city council met last night in the city hall and passed a batch of accounts. No other business was done.

Birthdays of Note

SATURDAY, MAY THIRTIETH

His Honor, George William Brown, Lieutenant-Governor of Saskatchewan, celebrates his fifty-fourth birthday on this date.

Born on a farm in Grey County, Ontario, he went west as a young man, arriving on the site of the future capital of Saskatchewan before the town-site was laid out. He took up a homestead about nine miles north and farmed there for seven years. Then he moved into Regina, studied law, and was called to the Bar, entering upon a legal practice which extended up to his appointment as Lieutenant-Governor in 1910.

Uncle Walt The Poet Philosopher

THE MULE.
A cheerful critter is the mule; his disposition's bright and gay; and when the weather's crisp and cool, he says, "Hee-haw," and runs away. His "Hee-haw" cheers us like the deuce, it's such an optimistic shout, and when he turns that slogan loose, it jars the welkin inside out. At midnight, when the world is still, the mule, from out the barnyard strayed, comes close up to the window sill, and tries to make Caruso fade. We must admit he cannot sing, however, earnestly he tries, but he has such good traits, by jing, that we forgive his frantic cries. How patiently he drags the plow, how earnestly he'll strive and strain, and swallow grub that horse or cow would pass up with a high disdain! He toils to bring his master dimes, so faithfully, the long day through; at night lies down and rolls three times, and then gets up as good as new. He doesn't stall around or shirk, though roads be long, and days be hot; he's always ready for his work and never dies unless he's shot. And yet we greet the mule with jeers, make him the butt of jolocks raw, because he has too many ears, and cannot sing like Ellen Yaw!

ARE YOU GOING TO MUSKOKA THIS SUMMER?

If so take the 10.20 a.m. fast express from Toronto, daily except Sunday, via Grand Trunk Railway and arrive Muskoka Wharf 1.45 p.m. where direct connections are made with steamers for points on Muskoka Lakes. This train carries Parlor, Library, Buffet and first-class coaches and passengers are assured of comfortable ride along the most interesting route to Muskoka Wharf, which is the original gateway to the far-famed Muskoka Lakes.

The curative odor of balsam and pine and the preponderance of water area to land surface together with the high altitude (1000 feet above the sea) render hay fever an impossible condition and perfect immunity from this annoying ailment is assured.

Return connection is made with train leaving Muskoka Wharf 10.30 a.m. daily except Sunday arriving Toronto 2.55 p.m. Tourist tickets at low fares are now on sale to Muskoka Lakes points good for stop over and valid to return until November 30th 1914. If you are contemplating making a trip ask Grand Trunk Agents for full particulars or write C. E. Hornung, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

water as her funnels can be seen at low tide. It will, therefore be possible for divers to go down and secure all the bodies now contained in the hull of the wreck. There was some talk here to-day of raising the ship. It was not treated very seriously though it is obvious that either she must be raised or blown up in order to clear the ship channel in which she lies.

Accounts of the boat accommodation of the vessel, prove that had there been time all the complement could have been removed in safety as the river was calm.

TOLL FROM THIS CITY

to break the clench of his grip. "Struggling up, along with and over the others I finally reached the top, cold and numb. Then I swam several hundred feet and almost exhausted when a boat picked me up."

GRACE HANNIGAN

Little Grace Hannigan was in the same berth with Mrs. Atwell. She is a round-eyed child and has a delightful lisp, but her lips trembled this morning. Although she did not understand, she knew that there was something behind all this fuss. The little girl is the daughter of Staff Bandmaster Hannigan of Toronto and both parents went down. She does not know and confidently awaits them on the next train.

"I came up on deck with Mrs. Atwell," she lisped, giving the latter a hug. "I was only frightened when I saw all the frightened people and when I saw Mr. and Mrs. Atwell go into the cold water."

"Then I went away down deep, oh so deep in the water. I was hanging onto a black rope."

"When I came up again after a long time, I looked around and I saw a light in front of me. Then when I looked a second time I saw my Mamma and Papa, they were swimming. They are coming on the next one."

"I went down once more and I swallowed a lot of nasty salt water this time. When I came up next time I saw the light again and it was very near. In about a minute a man put up a board to me and yelled to 'grab' and I tried to take hold of it. I slid down the rope, my hands were all black as tar and the man helped me to get on his boat by holding the board under my arm."

"Do you think I'll get home before my father and mother," she concluded.

The reporter had no answer to offer to the little newly made orphan.

All the local passengers immediately left the train.

Could Have Been Saved

That Commissioner Rees could have saved himself, was the contention of survivors here this morning.

As it was he went down with his wife, two daughters and a son. Major Morris of London, Ontario, valiantly attempted to save the commissioner, while they were in the water, but failed. The commissioner refused to get into a boat because there were women on board. He stood on deck with his daughter in his arms.

Striking her forehead, and just as the boat heaved over, he exclaimed, "God's will be done." Nineteen other Salvation Army men and women went down with him. Mrs. Rees seemed to be on her knees praying.

Many other Salvation Army ladies were praying, for themselves, for their friends, and for everybody.

Captain Kendall's Work

Thomas Smart, of Toronto, was the last man to speak to Captain Kendall. Mr. Smart said that he had not been feeling well and he was sitting out on the upper deck when Captain Kendall walked past about half past one o'clock and said:

"It is a nice night, but it looks like as if a fog was coming." Then he added significantly, "You never know how soon a fog drops its pall upon you at this part of the river." They chatted together for some time.

The captain soon after went on to the bridge. As soon as the crash came, Mr. Smart says he looked at the bridge and saw Captain Kendall there. He was holding on to the rail shouting some orders to a number of the crew, leaning over and waving his hands to some one.

Mr. Smart does not know to whom he was speaking, but he heard him say distinctly, "Keep your heads there, and don't get excited."

"When a boat dropped sideways into the water, the captain seemed to recognize that she was lost, because he shouted: 'Hurry up there, everybody. There is not a minute to lose. Get the stewards through the corridors. Get the people out, and don't forget that the women and children must come first.'" He spoke through a megaphone, but there was so much screaming and moaning that his voice was drowned.

He stuck to his post to the very last," said Mr. Smart, the last words he said before the ship went down, were: "Heaven help us, because we cannot help ourselves." Then the lurch of the boat threw him into the water. He slipped off, and thought he was sucked under.

"When I got into the Lady Evelyn, I saw him stretched out there and they were giving him some brandy to revive him. When he was able to speak he looked around and asked: 'Where's the ship?' A passenger, who looked like a doctor, told him the boat had gone. Captain Kendall pushed his face into a piece of dirty tarpaulin and cried as though his heart would break.

Woman's Experience.

A curious experience was that of Miss Eva Bales, aged 21 years, 180 Indian road, Toronto. Before the catastrophe she could not swim a stroke, but when it became a case of life and death she learnt how to do it and even pluckily attempted to help others with her new found accomplishment.

"I was asleep at the time and was in a berth with two of my friends," she began bravely straightening a quivering lip. "Miss Whitmot and Miss Cook. We put on lifebelts and went immediately to the upper deck. It was dark with just a faint little moon in the sky."

"I became separated from my friends and cried for my mother. I thought I was going to drown on my home-going for I intended to go home and stay for good."

"All at once the hat keeled over on its side and I found myself immersed in the sea."

"The boat's deck became the side and the boat's bottom the only part out of the water. I clambered up and over the rail on to the wet and slippery keel out to the very edge. There were two or three others in the same situation."

"We waited until the slowly sinking ship had brought our part of the boat to near the water's edge and seeing a lifeboat near I forgot that I could not swim and jumped."

"I did not stay under water and watching a man near me throwing out his arms and swimming, I tried it, and found that I could keep myself afloat. From that time until I was picked up my only worry was the cold water which seemed to make even my scanty clothing as heavy as lead."

"Seeing the man offer assistance to several people and feeling secure in the knowledge that I could swim, I paddled over to a young woman, and we were together when rescued. I saw a light which proved to be on a lifeboat and heard some one say,

"help." We were rescued before the lifeboat reached us, by the crew of the collier. There were ten in our party, and I am the only one left."

"Tears filled the eyes of the plucky girl at the remembrance of her lost companions. Miss Bales had nothing but praise for the wife of the captain of the Storstad. "She is an angel and brought us back to life by her splendid motherly treatment," she concluded.

While Staff Captain McAmmond of Toronto, was speaking to a reporter, a friend who thought he was lost came up and kissed him on the cheek and so overcome were these two strong men that tears filled their eyes.

"We were twenty-three and I seem to be coming back alone," declared Mrs. Atwell of Toronto, between sobs as she sat in her berth beside sweet little Gracie Hannigan.

"We were in our berths when the shock came. It was more like the rapid closing of a door followed by an explosion, than anything else I can compare it to. My husband did not hear the explosion of the bulkheads, but I roused him and we hastily put on life preservers and made our way to the deck. Men and women were already in the water, and the waves bumped against the boat like the bumping of a log. My husband and I clasped arms and jumped into the water together. We caught sight of a boat near the ship, and as I am a good swimmer made our way to it. We were picked up by the crew of the Storstad and transferred to the Lady Evelyn. There seemed little confusion the collision coming too suddenly."

One of the lost is Miss Briggs, maid of Mrs. J. E. Boynton, of St. Thomas. Miss Briggs lost a sister in the Titanic disaster. Mr. Boynton was an anxious enquirer at the C. P. R. offices to-day but he could only be told that no list of survivors gave that of his wife or her maid.

Mr. Abbott said there was an explosion on the Empress just before she sank. He said:

"When the ship toppled on its side I gave myself up as lost. I actually began to go down with the ship, and was up to my hips in water when an explosion occurred near the centre of the boat, where my berth happened to be. I was blown away from the boat, and I felt myself helplessly being forced away.

"I became unconscious, but I clung like grim death to a deck chair, and I heard some one say, 'Are you alive.' I opened my eyes and saw two men close to me on a raft. One man stretched out a broken oar and he said 'Grab it and I will pull you on with us.' He warned me not to tip the raft over.

When I touched the oar, the man said to his companion, 'Come and give me a hand, or I shall have to let him go.' I pleaded with him, and said: 'For God's sake don't let me go.' He answered, 'No, I won't let you go, even if you pull me off the raft.'

Mr. Abbott was pulled to safety. When he was asked to give the name of his rescuer, he declared: 'I don't know who he is. I only know that he was an Englishman, and he was a brave man.'

There is bound to be something new brought out and he is going to be there to glean the good points and adapt them to our service for your benefit. Is it any wonder, then, that week after week Brantford people are showing added interest in the Brantford Laundry Service?
There is the one supreme test in laundering—and it requires a modern laundry to stand it—the whole family wash. We handle family washes complete, or any part. There are dainty pieces of dresswear and laces that require hand washing and ironing—we do it.
But take a shirt, for example. Did you ever stop to realize what the average hand laundryman does to a shirt? Friction produces the glossy finish you get from the hand laundryman—it is the only means available. Our splendid ironing machine is adjusted so that no friction occurs between the rollers, and a fine domestic finish is produced.
Phone 274 for a Brantford Laundry wagon to call. Then in your spare time come and see our skilled employes handle laundry the right way. Thousands of dollars' worth of garments pass through our laundry every day, and we are justly proud of the record we are maintaining for returning laundry without the slightest damage.

A very interesting entertainment was given last night at the Dufferin St. School, in the form of a garden party. It was a distinct success in every way, and Principal Rowe and those in charge are to be congratulated on their undertaking.

Mr. W. S. Brewster, K.C., M.P.P., acted as chairman for the evening, and in a few words congratulated the school upon their splendid enterprise. He then called upon Mrs. Dr. Ashton, who on behalf of the Daughters of the Empire, presented the school with a big Canadian flag. Principal Rowe, on behalf of the school, thanked the ladies for their splendid gift.

Mrs. M. E. B. Cutcliffe was then called upon, and in a few well chosen words presented the playground equipment to the school board. Chairman M. E. B. Cutcliffe, of the school board, replied in a few words thanking the ladies for their kindness. Short addresses were made by Messrs E. L. Gould and Frank Cocksbutt.

During the evening a splendid drill was put on by the senior girls of the school, which was very pretty indeed. The scholars also sang O Canada, and God Save the King.

The Salvation Army band was supposed to be in attendance to give a concert, but on account of the great sea disaster yesterday, in which a number of their members were drowned, they cancelled their engagement.

An artistic arrangement of foliage and flowers changed the lecture room of the Congregational church into a veritable garden, where under many colored lights a garden party was held last evening. Under the able direction of Miss Whitney and Mrs. Bronson, a programme of songs,

Y. M. C. A. Directors.
The Y. M. C. A. directors banquet was held in the Association Institute, last night. Two able speakers addressed the gathering, Mr. Coleman, General Secretary from Toronto and Mr. Paul Breckan, Secretary from Y. M. C. A., Toronto. Many aspects of young manhood and the means adopted by Y. M. C. A. to so meet these phases that they might be influenced for good, were discussed. The business part of the movement was also emphasized, the day being when such a work could exist on donations of irregular monies. Both speakers were cordially thanked for their addresses. Mr. T. H. Preston resigned and his place on the board was taken by Mr. Franklin Grobb.

Answer to the Cry of Mothers and Fathers Is Locked in the Deep

Graphic Story of How Terrific Impact of Collier Drove Empress of Ireland Down in Fourteen Minutes.

QUEBEC, May 30.—The grim and harrowing story of the latest marine disaster which has shocked the world into a realization of the perils of the high seas unravels hour by hour. Every syllable is black with tragedy. The Empress of Ireland, Queen of the C.P.R. transatlantic liners, freighted with human souls and rammed to her very vitals by the collier Stordal, lies 50 fathoms deep in St. Lawrence Gulf. Half a continent this morning is plunged into an intensity of grief as the horrifying nature of the tragedy grows more apparent. Every word that comes, every flash of the wire brings a stab of poignant grief to men, women and children scattered all through America and the United Kingdom. Messages and appeals are crowding the wires to Montreal, Quebec and the bleak shores of Rimouski. Fathers are asking for their children, but thus far answers of comfort to the vast majority are locked in the deep.

Terrifying Awakening. The setting of the tragedy itself was fearful in its dramatic moment. The Empress, lying dead still off Father Point, was wrapped in the suffocating fog lay about the liner like a woolen blanket. Every moment the great fog siren on the liner opened with a long rendering boom, and far across the water came the responding hellow of the horn on the old headland. Suddenly, without warning, a huge black bulk loomed through the fog and in a moment the crash came. Simultaneously with the shout of the officers and the command from the bridge, rose one long, piercing scream from the throats of more than a thousand who slept below. That cry was heard on the mainland, thirty miles away. In the dimness of their cabins women snatched for their children and valuables and rushed for the deck. A Mortal Blow. In a moment the fate of the Empress was known to all. The smashing blow had done for her and the great bull nose of the 300-ton freighter had crashed through the ribs and bulkheads. The one pitiful sentence of Capt. Kendall summed all. "The ship is gone," he said; "Women to the boats."

Fourteen minutes settled the whole affair. With the decks careening, the captain, officers and crew strove like mad to release the boats. One after one, laden with a mass of humanity, sped away. The Stordal followed suit with as much ability, but the time was too brief. Boats there were a plenty, but time there was none. When the listing increased and the nose of the ill-fated liner twisted skyward, panic seized upon the hardy of persons, and once more a loud, prolonged burst of agony from several hundred throats vibrated through the fog. In a moment the decks were awash, and then with a spasmodic heave as if giant hands from below were pulling her down the massive sea castle tilted to the bottom. Wreckage, spars and bobbing heads, and the few small boats fleeing on sides from the vortex with the slow heaving bulk of the collier in the background alone marked the scene of the catastrophe.

With the City Police. John Howard, an Eagle Place resident, was this morning charged at the police court with a heinous offence against the laws of morality. He was undefended and entered no plea, saying he did not comprehend and desired to engage a lawyer. The case was therefore adjourned until Monday.

Meeting Tonight. There will be a meeting tonight of the relatives and friends of those who lost their lives in the wreck of the Empress of Ireland, at the city hall, to elect a representative to go to the funerals of the deceased.

ERIE, Pa., May 30.—Erie won the first game of the series with Brantford yesterday 4 to 3. Morse held Brantford to one hit until the sixth inning. In the sixth inning Umpire Bedford missed a play at third by which Erie would have scored a shut out. Burns was caught ten feet from third. Bedford refused to call it. Dolan, next up, hit for a two bagger, scoring two runs. Ivers brought Dolan home with a single. Score:—

BRANTFORD HOMES SADDENED BY GREAT MARINE TRAGEDY

(From Yesterday's Last Edition)

Of the Brantfordites who were on board the ill-fated steamer bound for England, were Mrs. Bert Green, wife of Bert Green, an employee of the Brantford Carriage Company, who resides on Niagara street. Mrs. Mary Ann Hobbs, wife of the late William Hobbs, 8 Emily street, and Miss Louise Hobbs, her daughter. They were on their way to the Old Country to visit Mrs. Hobbs' sons and daughters in the old country. Miss Sarah Hobbs, a sister of the late Mr. Hobbs, resided at 13 Brighton Place. She has two brothers and two sisters. Alfred Hobbs, employed at the Waterous Engine Works, Ernest, employed at Good, Shapley & Muir's factory, Miss Clara Hobbs, of this city, and another sister in Edmonton, Alta. Mrs. Samuel Howell and Lillian, her ten year old daughter, were also on board. They were bound for England where Mrs. Howell hoped to recover from her continued ill-health. It was their intention to remain at the old country where Mr. Howell, who is an employe in the Cocksbutt Plow Co., was going to join them sometime in the near future. One son, Edward, remained with his father with the intention of going to England with him. Mrs. R. J. Steele and her children, Nora and James, and her sister-in-law, Miss Lillian Steele, were on the ship. Mr. James Steele, her husband, has been employed for the past three years as motorman on the Grand Valley Railway. Mrs. Steele and family were bound for Australia, via England, where they intended visiting friends for a few weeks, where Mr. Steele would join them. Miss Steele, who, until recently, was employed at Watson's Mills, was returning to her home in Manchester. She had been out here only since last May.

Mrs. D. White, a widow, who resided at 21 Chatham street with Miss Andrews, and who did considerable nursing for Drs. Bier and Ashton, was on her way home in compliance with her late husband's wish to visit her relatives there. She has a son, Mr. E. Whit, of 103 Aberdeen Avenue, and an employe of the Massey-Harris Company. She was connected with the Salvation Army, although not actively.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Longley and infant baby were very well known here. Mr. Longley was connected with Coles Shoe Store, where he made many friends. Mrs. Longley was a daughter of Wm. E. Day, Insurance Agent of this city, and had been married about a year and a half. They resided on Park avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lawlor and son, Herbert, 16 years old, who resided at 120 Arthur street, were also in the wreck. They were bound for the Salvation Army conference in London, and also to visit Mrs. Lawlor's aged parents. Mr. Lawlor was employed in the Massey-Harris Co.'s moulding shop, having been employed there about seven years. Previous to that he was employed at the Buck Stove Works. He was an active member of the Salvation Army having played the big drum for some time. A son, Thomas, who resides at Flint, Mich., is on his way to England via the Olympic from New York, and had interwoven meeting his parents in London. Another son, James resides in Flint also. Mr. Wm. Garthwaite of Mintern Avenue is a brother of Mrs. Lawlor.

Mr. Charles Rutherford, the men's furnisher, had a brother, Fred, on board the boat. He is also a brother of Mr. Wm. Rutherford of this city. He is well known in this city, having been born here and resided here for a number of years. Leaving this city he went to Hamilton, where he worked for some time, finally going to Montreal where he took over the management of Ogilvie's drygoods store.

THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET

Samuel Woodworth, the son of a modest Massachusetts farmer, was born in Scituate, that state, January 19, 1785. While the family were poor and had no luxuries, their lot was no worse than that of the ordinary New England family, and they lived in comparative comfort.

Young Samuel received the usual education of the country boy of his time, began writing verse at an early age—and was apprenticed at the age of fifteen to the printing trade.

While his life was a succession of ambitions, attempts and failures, his fame rests secure on his faithful portrayal of the old-fashioned well and weather-beaten well-sweep, universally to be found in the farms of that day.

While living in New York City, on Duane street, he came home one July day, nearly overcome with the heat, and with nothing to drink but the tepid water of the city—ice being unknown in those days in the summer months—he exclaimed to his wife: "What would I not give this moment for a long draught from the old oaken bucket hanging in my father's well!"

"Samuel!" replied his wife, "wouldn't that be a good subject for a poem?" Forthwith he sat down—the thronging recollections of his childhood crowded thick upon him—and that charming idyl of bucolic New England sprang into deathless life and fame. The music is said to have been adapted from an ancient Scottish melody by Frederick Smith. Woodworth died in 1859.

This song, like so many of the heart lyrics of an elder day, is found in the famous song collection called "Hearts Songs"—which the Courier is offering nearly free of cost to its readers.

The Changing West

The Western Canada of to-day is very different from the Western Canada of five years ago. Most people realize this in a sort of a way, but it is safe to say there are few living outside of the Western Provinces who fully understand how swift are the changes that are building a nation out of sparsely settled provinces. This matter is dealt with in an extremely interesting way by the May issue of the "Canada Life Echoes" which has just come to hand. This issue takes the form of a special Northwest number and it contains much information about the Western Provinces that is not generally known, and also a tabulation of the grain production, etc., of each province which should be not only of great interest at the moment, but also of much value for reference as occasion may arise, usually interesting photographs of Western life and scenes are scattered throughout the publication and there is also an article on the migration of three million acres of Alberta. This little magazine is published by the Canada Life Assurance Co., and, while they last, copies may be sent on request to Schindler, Thompson, Agents, Canada Life Assurance Company, Commercial Street, Brantford.

BLUE AND WHITE VOILE.

This airy summer frock is most simply made, the three-piece skirt hangs straight and undraped and over this is worn a bodice and tunic of striped blue and white voile, the skirt being of the plain blue. The blouse is in kimono style with surplice closing and has a narrow stand-away collar of white batiste. The little gathered tunic is bordered by a wide ruche of the plain blue voile—a similar ruche trimming the elbow sleeve. Character is given the frock by the use of old blue silk as a girde, a large rosette of the same being placed to the right of the front.

The Golf club was in fete Thursday evening, when Miss Jean and Miss Annette Burt were the hostesses at one of the hostesses, at one of the jolliest dances of the season at the popular resort. Musgrave and his enchanting strains delighted the music lovers, and the new dances were to the fore in their alluring attractiveness. Later a dainty supper was served, when a few extra dances finished the enjoyable evening.

Many friends welcome to town Mrs Everard Cotes (Sara Jeanette Duncan), the distinguished Canadian writer, whom we claim with admiration not unmingled with pride as a native of our little city. Mrs. Cotes story, "His Royal Happiness" is running in serial in the Ladies' Home Journal, and is beautifully illustrated. It is perhaps the author's most popular novel, and is to be dramatized in the near future.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright 1913 by W. G. Chapman.

When the yacht had passed the man resumed the conversation that her appearance had broken off.

"Yes," he said. "I like America very much. I met some very delightful people while I was there. I recall one family from your own city, Miss Strong, whom I liked particularly—Professor Porter and his daughter."

"Jane Porter?" exclaimed the girl. "Do you mean to tell me that you know Jane Porter? Why, she is the very best friend I have in the world. We are as dear to each other as sisters, and now that I am going to lose her I am almost heartbroken."

"Going to lose her?" exclaimed Tarzan. "Why, who do you mean? Oh, yes, I understand. You mean that now that she is married and living in England you will seldom, if ever, see her."

"Yes," replied the girl. "And the saddest part of it all is that she is not marrying the man she loves. Oh, it is terrible! Marrying from a sense of duty! I think it is perfectly wicked, and I told her so. But Jane Porter has convinced herself that she is doing the only honorable thing that she can do, and nothing in the world will prevent her from marrying Lord Greystoke except Greystoke himself or death."

"I am sorry for her," said Tarzan. "And I am sorry for the man she loves." "For he loves her. I never met him, but from what Jane tells me he must be a very wonderful person. It seems that he was born in an African jungle and brought up by fierce, anthropoid apes. He had never seen a white man or woman until Professor Porter and his party were marooned on the coast right at the threshold of his cabin. He saved them from all manner of terrible beasts and accomplished the most wonderful feats imaginable, and then to cap the climax he fell in love with Jane and she with him, though she never really knew it for sure until she had promised herself to Lord Greystoke."

"Most remarkable," murmured Tarzan, "engulging his brain for some pre- text upon which to turn the subject. He delighted in hearing Hazel Strong talk of Jane, but when he was the subject of the conversation he was bored and embarrassed. But he was given a respite, for the girl's mother joined them and the talk became general.

The next few days passed uneventfully. The sea was quiet. The sky was clear. The steamer plowed steadily on toward the south without pause. "Lost remark," murmured Miss Strong in conversation with a stranger, "I had not seen on board before. As he approached the couple the man bowed to the girl and turned to walk away."

"Wait, M. Thurman," said Miss Strong. "You must meet Mr. Caldwell. We are all fellow passengers and should be acquainted."

The two men shook hands. As Tarzan looked into the eyes of M. Thurman he was struck by the strange familiarity of their expression.

M. Thurman appeared ill at ease. Tarzan paid little heed to the conversation that ensued, being attempting to recall where he had met M. Thurman before. That it had been under peculiar circumstances he was positive. Presently the sun reached them and the girl asked M. Thurman to move her chair further back into the shade, Tarzan having been watching the man at the time and noticed the awkward manner in which he handled the chair—his left wrist was stiff. That claw was sufficient—a sudden trill of associated ideas did the rest.

M. Thurman had been trying to find an exact remark in the conversation that ensued, being attempting to recall where he had met M. Thurman before. That claw was sufficient—a sudden trill of associated ideas did the rest.

"What is your game now, Roko?" he asked. "I am leaving France as I promised you," replied the other in a surly voice. "I see you are," said Tarzan, "but I know you so well that I can scarcely believe that your being on the same boat with me is purely a coincidence. If I could believe it the fact that you are in disguise would immediately disabuse my mind of any such idea."

"Well," growled Roko with a shrug, "I cannot see what you are going to do about it. The vessel flies the English flag. I have as much right on board her as you, and from the fact that you are booked under an assumed name I imagine that I have more right."

"We will not discuss it, Roko. All I wanted to say to you is that you must keep away from Miss Strong—she is a decent woman."

Roko turned scarlet. "If you don't I shall pitch you overboard," continued Tarzan. "Do not forget that I am just waiting for some excuse." Then he turned on his heel and left Roko standing there trembling with suppressed rage. He did not see the man again for days, but Roko was not idle. In his stateroom with Paulvitich he fumed

OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS AS VOTING PLACES

The first physical step in straightening out political derangement in the United States is the use of each public schoolhouse as the polling place of its district.

That a good start has been made is evident in the fact that more than 500 school houses throughout the country have already been put to this appropriate use. Seventy school buildings are serving as polling places in Chicago this spring. New York, with 620 public schools and 554 other public buildings still votes in 413 barber shops as well as many pool rooms, bakeries, undertaking establishments, and small stores. Although a bill failed a recent session of the legislature the people of New York are still struggling for a law which will permit the use of the schools as voting centres.

It is claimed that the movement is economical, it is worthy, it is appropriate, convenient, permanent, educative, simplifying, unifying and also promotes better citizenship. The polling registers are the active membership lists of the district voting bodies. The establishment of the voting equipment in public buildings capable of being used as citizens common council chambers, is the constructive first step toward the self-organization of the voting body into a deliberate body. This will substitute clarified common sense for muddy partisanship at the source of government.—Edward J. Ward, in the Survey Press Service.

Play Ground Value

A foot of playground is worth an acre of penal institutions.

That is the sentiment expressed a few days ago at a meeting of the City Club of Philadelphia, when the importance of municipal recreation was being discussed. One of the speakers, an official of the park department, related an incident that bears out the truth of the epigram. He observed a group of boys playing on the turf that had just been put down by the gardeners engaged in improving a square for us and the grass, too. But where can we play?

That was the protest and the plea of thousands of children, not in Philadelphia alone, but in every other city that is growing rapidly and developing new needs. Play is as essential to youth as food is to toiling men—essential to the health and mind and soul as well as body. Dirt has been called matter out of place. Badness among children is largely impulse and energy misdirected.

A vast deal of juvenile crime, if the term "crime" may be used in this connection, is traceable to a lack of adequate playground and recreation.

It is the children who play in the streets that cause most trouble to parents and to the community. But few children play in the streets for choice. Most of them who play there do so simply because the city has failed to provide for their needs. Statistics gathered in many cities show that in neighborhoods where playgrounds are established there is a minimum of juvenile offenses.

Should Labor Men Belong to Militia?

(By H. M. Bell.)

(Extract from Toronto Telegram of May 28th.)

The delegates of the Iron Moulders' Union introduced a resolution deprecating jingo methods used to persuade young men to join the militia, opposing the use of militia in the defence of property rights as against human rights, and recommending local unions and central bodies to do all in their power to keep union men out of the militia, was passed only after a heated discussion, during which James Waters, President of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, repeated a recent assertion of Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, in the House of Commons, to the effect that strikes were incipient civil war, and that the militia should be used to crush out civil war. "In view of what has recently taken place in the north of Ireland, I would ask," said Mr. Waters, "if it would not be better for union men to join the militia and thus secure control of it."

Controller James Simpson declared he could not be a true member of the labor movement and be a member of the militia at the same time.

The resolution was carried after a heated discussion by a small majority.

Therein lies a problem that men who labor and live must give thoughtful consideration to.

In the first place, the workman is a citizen—a citizen with many of the rights and privileges of residence in a land such as ours.

The fact that there may be an industrialism which is rampant with cut-rate wage policies and neglect for humanity in no way detracts from the fact that the rights of citizenship carry with them duties.

The rights are four: Industrial, Political, Social and Religious.

Each of these rights imply certain duties. Take for example the Political. Your vote is exercised in this one to regulate everything from the postage stamp to a battleship.

Now you exercise by power of ballot the decision as to the dispensations of armies and navies their upkeep and necessity of the same.

By so doing you are acknowledging their necessity in the world-to-day.

You believe, moreover, that the social rights are not yet fully realized in daily life. They are subject to a consideration unknown in your father's time. Equally so with industrial and religious rights.

The advance has been steady and despite human conservatism, but as yet the exact relationship has not got down fine enough to permit a true balance, as to the problem of Labor and Militarism.

Locally there has been occasions when the militia were assembled in the face of strikes. The soldiers being drawn to some extent from the ranks of labor.

Now, there is where we are trying to reconcile, self and master; and come to common sense.

Self says when the degradation of some workshop wrong presses hard—when for ten hours I have torn at it, and now possess but $1.60 for my labor? Why should I take oath to fight for my master's security; it would be the same to me, were another flag to fly over Canada."

Or again: "Why should I serve in the militia, I may be called out to suppress a strike of fellow workers."

Now, there lies only one answer to this; the purpose of the military in strike duty is neither coercion nor protection at the call of the government for the masters.

Strike duty is a disagreeable factor in soldiering; ask any soldier; but he returns out that the rabble spirit in every crowd will not take advantage of your efforts for the readjustment of grievances; incite others of weaker will or younger, to acts at once, harmful to every citizen, yourself included, and the well-being of the community.

It would be wise when next this subject crops up to keep cool, and watch that no creature mean spirited, and unfit for citizenship, attempts to influence your mind and plant in you poison whose growth will in time have nurtured, that the soldier or militiaman is a person apart and in direct opposition to your interest.

Your political party maintains him. He protects and relieves you being a volunteer or conscript, thus giving you all liberty to move about freely and engage without hindrance in whatsoever legitimate craft you like.

As to whether you feel you ought to serve in the militia—well, how does it appeal to you? Would your life be just as good elsewhere? Yes—so then. He who is not possessive of enough sense to realize that he is of a community, that interdependence on each other, maintains in their midst a police force, and cannot in the doing of a nation, a need of the same protection to keep safe, commerce and trade routes—well, he is a throw-back, a mistake, a degenerate whose intellect is paralytic from selfishness, and undeveloped mental outlook; if your realization of life centres in self, apply the above panacea.

Painters Win Strike

DULUTH, May 30.—By winning their strike for union recognition, the union painters of this city have again shown the value of persistence. This local strike was locked out 6 years ago and through a combination of employers lost everything heretofore gained.

The outlook was most discouraging. The painters, however, held their heads, and during the intervening years pointed to the demoralization of this industry as the fruit of non-union conditions. Wages and prices were reduced to the lowest point. No one accepted a standard, and in the general price-cutting that followed, wages in many instances were below the living line, while discord and suspicion were rampant among the workers because of the competition. The unionists agreed the time was ripe, and a few weeks ago struck for recognition. The solid line of opposition had disappeared, and their victory will make future progress possible, as the contractors have secured other viewpoints of the much-vaunted non-union, or "open" shop.

Why Children Go to Work

TOLEDO, Ohio, May 30.—Large placards at the Child Welfare Exhibit, on exhibition in this city, answered the question, "Why children go to work." One of these cards stated that: "The average wage of the day laborer in Toledo is $2 a day, or $624 a year, providing he gets steady work. The yearly expense of his child going to high school and living at home is $114.60. This leaves $509.40 a year for father, mother and younger children to live on."

Among the other interesting statistics were the following: "Toledo has five mercantile establishments paying girls less than $4 a week. There are 532 girls under 18 working in Toledo for less than $7 a week and 310 girls for less than $6 a week."

"An investigation of girls from all parts of Toledo, working as clerks, stenographers, nurses, maids, and in offices and factories, shows that 75 per cent of them help to support families."

For the "Kiddies" to Play

TOLEDO, Ohio, May 30.—A permanent Child Welfare Commission, to provide and maintain accessible playgrounds for Toledo's boys and girls, has been appointed. The Commission Council and various civic bodies are represented on this board. Plans for a playground system for the city first are to be made by the committee, after proper organization. Then ways and means of acquiring such facilities will be determined. Playgrounds near the city's most congested districts and a supervisor of playgrounds, to be employed by the bodies represented, are ambitions of the welfare committee. Broader and more general responsibilities and improvements for the future are contemplated. The child welfare committee is being organized by the associated bodies and will be so maintained because the city financially is unable to assume such responsibilities. It shall be the endeavor to have provision for a public welfare department made in Toledo's new charter now in course of construction.

GERMAN NOBLEWOMAN WHO REFUSED TO TESTIFY IN $2,500,000 LOVE ACTION

BARONESS VON KALINOWSKI. Copyright by Marceau.

Baroness Ursula von Kalinowski, who has repeatedly declined to discuss with reporters the $2,500,000 breach of promise action she brought against Michael J. Hurley, a wealthy railroad man of St. Louis, adopted a similar attitude toward the officers of the United States District Court in New York. She had a subpoena calling for her appearance before Commissioner Gilchrist as a witness in the case, but she failed to appear. Mr. Hurley's attorneys got into touch with those of the Baroness, and, under threats of a writ of attachment, they promised to produce her.

When the Baroness finally appeared her attorneys entered objections against the procedure. The case was postponed until the following day.

Mother's Day Bill

WASHINGTON, May 30.—"We honor ourselves and the mothers of America when we do anything to give emphasis to the home as the fountain head of the state," was one of the declarations in the bill passed by the United States Senate, which had already been approved by the House. The bill provides that the second Sunday in May, hereafter, will be known as "Mothers' Day," and be a national holiday. The President is directed to see that the day is observed as such throughout the United States by the raising of flags on all government buildings and by public proclamation calling on all citizens to honor the day.

Prosecute Labor Sharks

DETROIT, May 30.—The State Department of Labor announces that the numerous prosecutions are compelling a greater respect for the law intended to regulate employment bureaus. When the investigations were started last fall it was found that this law was generally disregarded. It was a practice among some of the employment bureaus to send runners about the streets of Detroit, gather up men and send them to the bureau to register, charging them $1 each. They were then told that a job was waiting for them, but that a fee of 10 per cent of the first month's wages must be paid before they would be given the position. The inspectors found cases

This housewife had her little cry, gave up—and scarcely knowing why. Then, from the sombre clouds of doubt, two rays of golden hope crept out. The Gold Dust Twins threw wide the door and entered, eager for a chore. They polished all the silverware, they scrubbed the bathroom and the stair. ## THE PRINTERS WANT SANITARY CONDITIONS

In Printing Offices of Province and Discuss Many Other Matters of Interest to the Trade at Meeting of the O. C. T. U.

At the afternoon session of the Ontario Provincial Conference of Typographical Unions, which met in the Machinists Hall, on Tuesday, last in St. Thomas, the old officers, of the Union, T. A. Stevenson, Toronto, President; G. P. Doughty, Guelph, vice-president; and Philip Obermeyer, Hamilton, secretary, were re-elected. Twenty-four delegates representing thirteen unions were present at the conference.

At the commencement of the session interest centered in a discussion of the situation created in various localities through the operations of the Allied Printing Trades Council and the delegates were instructed to convey to their locals the information brought out in the consideration of the subject.

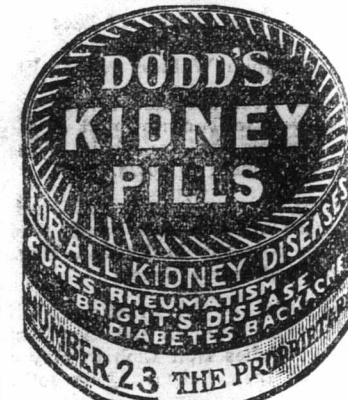

The operation of the privilege laws in small cities and towns, was also considered at length. But no pronouncement was made by officials upon the matter.

The matter of the representation of Provincial and State Conferences at the convention of the I. T. U. was considered, and it was decided to ask the executive council of the I. T. U. to consider the advisability of acceding to such representation.

The question of securing a full attendance of members at meetings of the local unions proved a live subject and it was finally decided that the executive officers should carefully consider methods whereby the attendances might be enhanced and reported at the next meeting of the O. C. T. U.

The matter of better sanitary printing offices was before the delegates for consideration, and it was claimed that through the efforts of the conference and the Ottawa Typographical Union a splendid system of ventilation had been established in the government printing office at Ottawa. A model ventilating plant had been described in the Herald and had been described in detail by the secretary of the conference, amongst trades unions all over the continent.

The next conference will be held at St. Catharines on May 25, 1915.

A SUNDAY SERMON BY PASTOR RUSSELL

MORNING COMES! AWAKE! ARISE! Majority of Humanity Are Not Awake.

STATE OF MENTAL INACTIVITY Some Asleep in Ignorance—Others Asleep in Ignorance and Superstition—Still Others Asleep in Worldliness—Some Christians Half Asleep—The Awakening of the Soul—Mental Eyes Opening to See Things in a New Light—The Light of the World—The Sun of Righteousness Rising With Healing in His Beams Will Dispel Darkness.

On the Atlantic, May 24, 1914, at St. Russell, whose Photo-Drama of Creation is awakening new zeal, but the study of the Word of God everywhere it is being presented, arose from the text, "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light."—Ephesians 5:14.

The Pastor introduced his theme with the observation that the majority of humanity are not awake; that they seem to be passing through life in a dreamy state; that as a rule they are not thinking about the important matters of life, but about the trivialities—what to eat and drink, what to wear, where to go, etc.

Then the Pastor reminded his audience how this state of mental inactivity has been brought about. While the world in general may be said to be asleep, in one sense of the word it is dead. Thus the Apostle declares of the Church, "You were dead in trespasses and sins."

Proceeding to his text, the Pastor discussed his theme in three divisions: the awakening of the world in the present time, the awakening of the Christian, and the future awakening of the world during the Messianic reign.

Then the Pastor showed that the majority of children reach this important crisis between the ages of twelve and fifteen years. At that period there is a great change in the human nature; and therefore it is a most advantageous time for the forces of spiritual growth to spring up in those who have reached the age of responsibility.

One great difficulty, the Pastor declared, seems to be that children lose confidence in those whom they find to be deceitful. Even if the person has never deceived the child, it soon finds out whether he deceives other people or practices falsehood.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson IX.—Second Quarter, For May 31, 1914. THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xvii, 11-19. Memory Verses, 17-19—Golden Text, Luke xvii, 18—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Before we consider the grateful Samaritan it will be helpful to look at the Whitstaid lesson on the revealing spirit in I Cor. ii, 1-10. Whether it be the Old Testament or the New, the great truth stands that "the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God," but what a comfort it is that the believer has received the Spirit of God that he may know the things that are freely given of God.

As to the inability of the wisdom of this world to grasp things spiritual, consider the revelations of God given to the kings of Egypt and Babylon, the utter helplessness of all the wise men of those lands to grapple with them, and the ease with which Joseph and Daniel, men of God filled with the Spirit of God, solved every difficulty.

No one was ever so filled with and controlled by the Holy Spirit as the Lord Jesus Christ, and in Him the Spirit wrought perfectly and unobscured (Acts x, 38). It was so in some measure with prophets and apostles (II Pet. i, 21; Acts i, 8; II, 4; IV, 8; V, 3; VI, 3; X, 44; XI, 2).

In conclusion, the Pastor showed that those who fail to pass the final test will be destroyed in the Second Death, and that this action on God's part will not be unjust or unkind. Mankind were born without life rights as God has not promised them eternal life.

Lady Grace Mackenzie is on her way to East Africa, where she is going on a big game hunting expedition at Nairobi. A hundred or so native carriers and learners will join this modern Diana, and with five white people the expedition will penetrate into the interior.

How happy this grateful leper must have been to hear the Lord Jesus say to him, "Arise; go thy way; thy faith hath made thee whole." We think of His word to the penitent woman in the house of Simon, the Pharisee, "Thy sins are forgiven; ... Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace."
