Among those who received a number of new Year cards, was Geo. E. Robinson, a well-known photographer. The callers left orders for their cards, after a sitting.

Wm. White, who for the past three years lived in Goderich for his health, left for Toronto, on Thursday last, much stronger than when he came here. Mr.
White was a good citizen, and we will be pleased to hear of his prosperity in the future.

Wm. Wagon, druggist, now of Chamberlain, is enjoying his holidays at home.
His business has blossomed handsomely since he left town, and his eye has merely twinkled with joy. No marital rumors, have yet reached his friends, however.

Literary Society has adjourned the proposed meeting on "Home Buds for In-the evening.

On New Year's Eve the remains of the late John Connor, who died on Saturday
last, were interred in the R. C. cemetery.
The deceased had been suffering for some years, yet was only confined to his bed for a few days. At one time Mr.
Connor was in the employ of Messrs.
Shepherd & Strachan. He leaves a widow and four children to mourn his loss. The Requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Lutz.

Work was received by telegram from the American Society of the Goderich, that had been handed the late Mr. Connor, who died on Saturday
last, were interred in the R. C. cemetery.

On Friday afternoon the infant class of St. George's Sunday School had a special treat in the shape of a handsome Christmas tree that had been loaded with presents for the little ones. Before the distribution of prizes, a number of songs and recitations were given in a manner that pleased all present. The children also received a beautiful supply of candy, fruit, etc., before their dismissal. Miss Corbett has been indefatigable in her efforts to make the infant class
a success.

Among those spending holidays at home is Samuel Clark, brother of Robert Clark. Mr. Clark has been sailing the world over during the past nine years,
and was last home about three years ago.
He was mate of a merchantman was wrecked off one of the islands of the East Indies during the past summer, and all the curiosities collected by him for the home coming were lost. Mr. Clark has seen a good deal of the world, but makes little ado about his travels, although he must be full of stories of adventures by land and sea.

C. W. A. CONSULATES. - That most enthusiastic of bicyclists, Geo. B. Cox, is happy. He has been appointed consul for Goderich for the Canadian Wheel-men's Association. The neat certificate, signed by the head consul, W. G. Eakin, was received by C. W. A. a few days ago. The appointment could not have been better bestowed. George is one of those ideal wheelmen who are continually "prospecting" for good roads during the summer, and the wandering bicyclist who wheels into town during the season will find the consul for Goderich able to post him fully about the best "runs" in the neighborhood.

toba and U. S. by reference to their

in advance, no papers will in future be

County. This is the only notice that will be given to outside subscribers.

Literary Notices.
"Presbyterian Normal Class Teacher"
is the title of a preparatory course of study designed to help the present and future Christian worker to a larger grasp of the Word of God, and especially suited to Sunday school teachers who wish to make a systematic study of the Bible.
The author, Rev. John McEwen, is the secretary of the S. S. Association of Canada, and he has pressed into his little work a vast amount of instruction.
The book is full of suggestive thought,
and is well calculated to aid the student in getting a wide and comprehensive view of the construction of the whole,
as well as the meaning of the books of the Bible. Mr. McEwen's book is one which we commend to our Sunday school workers. We have found it packed with precepts, hints and comments, good though brief, and as practical as pity. It costs only 30c., in paper cover, and can be had of the author,
Rev. John McEwen, S. S. S. S. Association of Canada, Toronto.

Garza, the most notorious gambler in Europe, has entered a Trappist convent

Anox Church Sunday School.

On Friday evening a large audience assembled in Knox church to witness the entertainment provided by the scholarship. The chair was occupied by the superintendent, J. McMillan, and the Master, W. F. Foot, of St.
George's, presided at the organ in the style, and the singing was led by A.
Sanderson, assisted by a choir of young folks.

The chairman read a statement showing the average attendance of the Sunday school and Bible class to be about 500. The sum of $174.46 had been paid out during the year, over and above the ordinary running expenses of the school, of which $139.21 was paid for a well stocked library of about 250 volumes. Even after the payment of this sum, there was a surplus in the treasury.
The programme was a long one, but it was well attended. The following participated in it: - Rectors - Scott,
Dickson, Kate Russell, Ellen McIvor, Mary McIvor, Esther Robertson, John-
nie Bain, Annie Strathairn, Emily Eagle, Annie McMillan, Willie Geiss, Edith
Reid, and Grace Johnston. Soloists
- Miss Smith, Nettie Stratton and Eva Ralph. Duetts and quartettes were sung by Messrs. James, Sam, Mabel Cameron, Minnie Stratton,
Messrs. Robson and Saunders. A discussion was held on the subject of Fraser and Stuart McPherson.
The Week of Prayer for the Little Girls was very interesting. The collection amounted to $16.

On Saturday the regular quarterly meeting of the Sunday school of Knox church, and getting out at Starvation road, found the child perfectly dead, whether by being wrapped up too closely or not is not known. It appeared perfectly well a few minutes before. Great sympathy is felt for the bereaved parents.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

Yes, it's the great one of the day, no doubt, the instigator of crime, the occasion of sorrow, and the cause of sin. All you say is true, deacon, and a great deal more—intemperance is the worm that gnaws at the root of our flourishing tree of modern civilization, and the liquor traffic is the stream that constantly feeds the worm. But, then, what's to be done about it? I'm not by nature a reformer, I wish all manner of success to those who are, but I have my business interests to think of. I can't afford to mix myself up with any unpopular reform.

The next call the good deacon made was upon a man of letters. "You don't begin to know anything about it, deacon," said this one. "Literature is colored with the evil, ancient romance and poetry weave a halo of rainbow colors round the wine cup, and modern history presents a bountiful harvest from such seed-growing. Look at the men of genius who have been bitten by the poisonous serpent, the mighty intellects that have been buried, as the English monarch wished to be, in a butt of Malmsey wine. It's enough to make one's eyes stream with tears to think of the wretched greatness that is traceable to a strong drink."

"Then why don't you seize your brethren dipped pen, and hurl anathemas in thoughts that breathe and words that burn against the evil things."

"Oh," said the other, smiling blandly, "that isn't my business. I am engaged upon a life-long work, the comparison of Egyptian Hieroglyphics with Cuneiform inscriptions. I hope to make some wonderful discoveries, and lay posterity under a vast burden of obligation before I die."

"I am so glad you have won your election," said the deacon to his old friend, the new member of the legislature for his native town, you will have just the chance you have always desired, to let your principles upon the temperance question tell; we shall look for a great lift to our cause when you are in the State House."

Now, deacon, you must not expect impossibilities, I'm a temperance man, always have been, as you know, but I can't go against my constituency. It's the business of a public man to fairly represent those who put him into office. In the particular position of our party just now conciliation and harmony are of the utmost importance. There are leading questions of great interest at stake—the tariff, civil service reform, &c. To introduce a side issue of this kind would be disastrous in the extreme both to our party and to my future prospects. I gave my word—tacitly, of course, but none the less really—that I would not let any private interests or opinions collide with the platform of our party. Besides, I don't think this is exactly a question for legislation; you can't make a man virtuous by Act of Parliament, you know. You and the Philanthropists stick to your blessed work, and when my term of office is over I will help you—just now my business lies in another direction."

"Oh, dear," sighed the deacon, as he sought his pastor's study for sympathy and help, "how differently things do look from different standpoints—circumstances most certainly do alter cases."

His conversation with his pastor was long and interesting. Mr. asserted that the drink curse was the chief obstacle in the way of the success of the Gospel and establishment of Christ's kingdom all over the earth.

Men can't repent and believe when they are drunk," he said, "nor can a man be consecrated to God's service who makes his living out of that which destroys other men, body and soul. How hard it is to draw out young men into the fold of the church, and to bring them to walk in the path of nobility and virtue, when we work in competition with the 'saloon influence' which meets us at every corner. Then, too, when we do succeed in lifting the vicious and degraded to the light, how often they sink again under the strength of temptation which to their weakened will and debased physical nature proves irresistible. Besides, there is the mission field. Civilization and liquor go there hand in hand. Civilization offers the Bible with one hand, rum and whiskey with the other, and fallen nature of course accepts that which is most congenial, except in the comparatively few instances where omnipotent grace is stronger than man's selfishness and sin. I verily believe that if intoxicating liquor was banished from the earth the millennium would dawn the next morning."

"Then," said the visitor, a glad light filling in his eyes, "I am sure you will accede to my request and at once preach a series of temperance sermons which, from your position, eloquence and known consecration, will be of great weight in the community."

"Why, no," said the minister gravely. "I have my own idea about these things, and one must act upon his own convictions of duty, you know. I think it is a minister's one duty to preach 'Christ and Him crucified'; if he turns aside to anything else he is untrue to his ordination vows. Make the root holy, and all the branches and fruit will be holy also. Reforms are lay-work; you have my full sympathy and my most earnest prayers—go ahead and prosper; as for me, like Paul, 'this one thing I do.'"

Our poor deacon could not but acknowledge the force of his pastor's reasoning, but he went away sorely puzzled as to whose business it was to press forward the temperance reform. For himself he saw but one step to take and he took it. Looking himself into the little room which was both study and office, he threw himself upon his knees and solemnly vowed to make it henceforth the business of his life to fight the greatest of all curses—the liquor traffic with its consequences—at no matter what sacrifice to himself. Would that multitudes who read this sketch would 'go and do likewise.'

Wanted the Boss
A travelling man who makes yearly visits to a country store in Kentucky drove up to the establishment the other day and asked to see the boss.

"How are you, Smith?" he said when a very depressed looking man came to the door.
"How are you? Who do you want?"
"I want to see the boss."
"All right, I'll call."
"Why ain't you the boss?"
"No, not any more, and he looked over his shoulder in a frightened way."
"You were when I was here a year ago."

The Tariff Question

Question—What is the chief object of the tariff?

Answer—To put money into the pockets of the manufacturers.

Q—What is a tariff?

A—It is a tax.

Q—Who pays this tax?

A—Consumers.

Q—Who are the consumers?

A—All the people, but the poor.

Q—For whose benefit is this tax?

A—For the benefit of the rich.

Q—Who are the manufacturers?

A—Moneyed men and capitalists.

Q—Are they a large or a small population?

A—A very small part of the population.

Q—Are they the rich or the poor?

A—Most generally the rich.

Q—How is it that so few get a tax upon so many?

A—Because, as a general rule, they are incorporated.

Q—Of whom are corporations made up?

A—Corporations are, for the most part, made up of the rich, for the purpose of making themselves rich.

Q—What do such corporations become?

A—Monopolists.

Q—What are monopolies?

A—Monopolies, or rings, are combinations to fix the price of goods, and to forestall the market.

Q—Does the tariff protect the poor and help to pay off the national debt?

A—Yes, a tariff, by making goods higher, keeps them in the country, and gives our manufacturers a chance to sell their goods at a price.

Q—Isn't it an advantage to our country to have our goods sold at a price for our goods?

A—Yes, it is an advantage to our country, but it is not an advantage to the poor laboring man, because the tariff is taken out of the poor man's pocket and put into the rich man's pocket. In this way the rich become richer, and the poor become poorer.

Q—Where does the tariff that don't go into the treasury?

A—All the money that does the treasury goes into the pockets of the manufacturers.

Q—But if the manufacturer this money doesn't he divide it among his employees?

A—Yes, sometimes he does, but he doesn't pay the tariff, he obliges manufacturers to pay the tariff, and the workers—aren't they to do it, or the employees who often go on a strike.

Q—If protectionists don't want for the good of their workmen cause of their greater love of try, nor for revenue purposes, they want it for?

A—They want it for themselves.

Q—What kind of a tax, the present protectionists' tariff?

A—It is a tax on the many for the benefit of the few; it is a tax on the poor for the benefit of the rich; it is a tax on the manufacturer for the benefit of the manufacturer.

Q—Would you have no tariff at all?

A—Yes, I would have no tariff.

Q—What is a constitutional tariff?

A—A constitutional tariff is a tariff that is in accordance with the Constitution.

Q—On what should we lay our tariff, wines, silks, jewels, etc. everybody wants, but nobody has.

A—We should lay our tariff on the things that are made in our country, and that we can't get any better elsewhere.

Q—Why should we have a tariff on things that we can't get any better elsewhere?

A—Because it gives our manufacturers a chance to sell their goods at a price.

Q—Isn't it an advantage to our country to have our goods sold at a price for our goods?

A—Yes, it is an advantage to our country, but it is not an advantage to the poor laboring man, because the tariff is taken out of the poor man's pocket and put into the rich man's pocket. In this way the rich become richer, and the poor become poorer.
