Bedrooms & Beds

There's nothing more important to the bedroom than the Bed itself, is there? From the point of usefulness or ornament it ranks first. Does your Bed suit your taste? Does it harmonize with your room? Does it give you the sleep-comfort you need? No? Well, then it's time to discard it and get another, quick.

We are showing All-Brass, Brass and Enamel, and All-Enamel Beds in all sizes and very fine designs. Each and all of which Beds can be fitted with Springs and Wool or Felt Mattresses if desired.

CHAPTER XL
"ALL IS SAFE—ALL MUST BE SAFE."

The captain nodded approvingly. "And her reply?"

"She sent word to say that she was engaged with Sir Charles, and she would not detain me."

Reginald Dartmouth made a slight gesture with his hand, but not so slight but that the sleek, silent machine saw and noted it.

"So she would not see you but gave you a message?"

"Scarcely a message, sir. Tell Captain Dartmouth's man that Sir Charles Anderson is no better—rather worse—and that I am engaged too much to see him."

Captain Dartmouth nodded. "Did you see—"

He stopped. The machine waited and lifted for a moment his liquid, deep-set eyes to the dark, thoughtful face.

"Did you see any one else, Vigness?"

"No one, excepting the domestic and—I beg pardon, sir, I had forgotten—the old lady, Mrs. Lucas."

A hasty expression of annoyance escaped the captain almost before he was aware of it.

"She there, too?" he muttered; then added: "Thanks, that will do."

And the discreet machine glided noiselessly out of the room.

Captain Dartmouth rose from his black-and-gold chair with lowered brows and commenced to walk the room.

"Strange! Things work round to annoy me. That shallow-pated fool must break his worthless neck at this inopportune moment and fall into that queer woman's hands! Strange, very strange! But I feel some undefined fear, some shadow of dread in that direction. Bah! Undefined, indeed! What can happen? What can come out through that old maid? She has one old cat there already—Mrs. Lucas, the old viper who used to rule the roost here. Hem! Did I do wisely to turn her out? Would it not have been better to have pensioned her off and kept her under my own eye? Bah!" he repeated again, with a shrug of the shoulders. "All is safe—all must be safe. And now for these letters."

With a smile of cunning that was almost defiant upon his handsome face he strolled into the next room.

The sight of the many superscriptions set him thinking again. "Captain Dartmouth! Ah, I wonder how long we shall halt at that? Captain Dartmouth—Count Dartmouth—Lord Dartmouth, and, if all goes well with Vitzarelli's plans, perchance prince—prince! It is a grand title, even in Italian. Grand—next to king—prince!"

While he sat facing his letters, repeating the magic word with fond tenderness, the soft, gentle knock of his valet came at the door again.

"Come in!"

The man entered and, with hesitation, commenced:

"I am very sorry to disturb you, sir; but a young fellow—I am not sure whether a gentleman or not—demands an audience."

Mr. Vigness had been valet to a Russian nobleman, and though he used the word "audience" almost unconsciously he was, perhaps, not unconscious that the ring of it was pleasant to his master's ears.

"He will take no refusal, and is so obstinate that I have ventured to—"

"What name does he give?" asked the captain, opening his first letter and laying it aside.

"He will give none—none whatever," replied the machine.

The captain hesitated for a moment. It was not usual for him to see anonymous applicants. He made this, for some inexplicable reason or impulse, an exception.

"I will see him," he said.

The valet glided out, and almost instantly glided in again, stepped aside and allowed a young man to enter.

Captain Dartmouth looked up and saw a dark face, deadened and made expressionless by a huge pair of blue spectacles—spectacles such as are worn by persons afflicted with weak or diseased eyes.

These, taken in conjunction with a decidedly red head of hair, and an impassive, inert manner, were not prepossessing.

He frowned slightly, lifted another envelope and tore it open.

"You wished to see me?" he asked, as a commencement.

"I did take that liberty, sir," said the youth, humbly, but with anything but a servile air.

The captain listened for a moment, as if to an echo.

He thought that he recognized the voice; yet scarcely the voice—he had never heard so gruff and unmelodious a one—rather a certain something in the accent of the words.

He put another question and listened again with idle curiosity.

"It was no liberty of which I am at present aware. Pray why do you wish to see me?"

"I—I have ventured to implore an interview, sir," replied the youth, "to ask your assistance."

The captain frowned.

"The major-domo or the butler—"

he hinted.

But the youth ventured to interrupt him with a slight flush.

"Oh, not that kind of assistance, sir! I am in no need of money or food—that is, at present."

"Well?" asked the captain, coldly.

The youth went on, not glibly, and with a hesitation that portook of feverish eagerness:

"I will tell my story, sir, in as few words as possible, not even waiting to thank you for your kindness in consenting to give me an interview."

Then, seeing evident signs of impatience on the wealthy captain's face, the youth ran on, rather brokenly:

"I was born in the adjoining village—Crayford—born and bred there; but was intended for a farmer; but always, since childhood, had a hankering for the sea, and at thirteen ran away to the sea-coast. I took ship there as ship-master's apprentice and went four voyages. In the third I was wrecked and fell into the hands of a foreign merchant off the Cape coast, who employed me as clerk and secretary—I implore you to hear me out, sir. Being unwell, and fearing that the climate would be fatal, I ran away and came to England. I have been living in London for three weeks, searching for employment, and finding none, at last ventured to tramp down home. But, having arrived here, I find all my family dead, sir, dead—every one, father, mother, and brother—I only had one—and—I have no one to whom I can apply for assistance. Stopping at the post-office last evening to rest awhile, I heard of you, sir, and of your kindness of heart, and was struck, as it were, all of a sudden, with an impulse to find my way to your presence and beg of you some place in the household—as groom, or—or—servant, or boy—some place about your person or your household."

The captain was very much interested in the youth's story, but he had been a master of the art of concealment much too long to show it.

The youth's tale seemed probable and credible, however, and, still opening his letters, said:

"You were born in the next village, do you say? What is your name?"

"Stanfield—John Stanfield, sir," replied the youth.

The captain laid down the letter last glanced at and, fixed his eyes upon the hideous spectacles, said, with unpleasant distinctness:

"And how much, pray, did you bring away with you from your last master's?"

The youth started and clinched his hands, but after eyeing the captain's cunning face for a moment his own lapsed into the old impassibility and, with a look, he said:

"It wasn't money, sir; it was—an affair of the heart."

"Oh, a love affair, eh?" said the captain, leaning back in his chair and glancing from the youth to the mirror, in which his own elegant form and face were reflected. "So you made love to the master's daughter, eh? And got whipped for it, and then ran away?"

The youth nodded.

"And you ask me to take you into my employ with these credentials?" asked the captain, with a smile of mockery, but with a sharp, inward look and the thought: "A ready tool! In my power and under my thumb the lad will be useful."

"Yes, sir," sighed the youth, in his gruff voice.

"What assurance have I that you will not fall in love with my valuables?—I have no daughter."

"Sir!" exclaimed the youth—"sir, I swear by all I hold sacred—"

The captain held up his hand.

"My lad," he said, with a sneer, "I had almost felt inclined to do something for you, but the conclusion of your adjuration will decide me. I never believe a man who swears by all he holds most sacred. Your story is true, you say?"

OTHER TABLETS NOT ASPIRIN AT ALL

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Genuine Aspirin

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, you are not getting Aspirin—Remember this! Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" are now made in America by an American Company. No German interest whatever, all rights being purchased from the United States Government.

During the war, acid imitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. The "Bayer Cross" is your only way of knowing that you are getting genuine Aspirin, proved safe by millions for Headache, Neuralgia, Colds, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis, and for pain generally.

Aspirin is the trade mark (Newfoundland Registration No. 751), of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacid-ester of Salicylicacid.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger sizes "Bayer" packages can be had at drug stores.

The Bayer Co., Inc., U.S.A.

"Most true, sir. Would I could give you some proof."

"Hem!" said the captain, eyeing him, then glancing at the letters.

"You can—such as it is," he replied, with a smile. "You were a clerk and a secretary, you say? Can you speak and write French?"

The youth hesitated a moment.

"Not so fluently as I could wish; but, sir, try me, I implore. I know something of French and Italian; I have learned of the sailors, and—"

Captain Dartmouth flung him a letter.

"Translate that."

The youth took it up with a hand particularly small and brown, and, after hesitating a moment, repeated, with a fair accent, a tolerably free translation.

"And this."

He threw him a short note of the count's—simply an invitation.

This, also, the youth translated.

"That is passable," said the captain, after a moment's consideration. "Now let me see a specimen of your secretaryship. Answer me those two letters. I accept the first, which requests my name as a director; I refuse the second."

The youth took up a pen and, after reading the letters, wrote in a clear, round, but clerical hand, the answers properly worded and phrased.

Reginald Dartmouth glanced at them and, still holding them in his hand, said, with a cruel smile:

"How long were you bound to the gentleman from whom you escaped?"

John Stanfield thought for a moment, then, with lowered head, said: "Seven years."

"How much of that apprenticeship do you leave uncompleted?" (to be continued.)

JAPAN GETS TERMINAL

WASHINGTON, July 7. Vladivostok, the last of the first-rate ports of the Asiatic coast north of Arthur remaining in possession of the Japanese, has passed into the hands of the Japanese, which reported the occupation of the town by Japanese.

Harbor of Posselt Bay, seventy miles southwest of Vladivostok, part of Russian Siberia, was ceded for a time by Russia as the terminal of the Trans-Siberian in preference to Vladivostok because of the excellent facilities by its natural position. The position of the Bay together with ports occupied by the Japanese on the Asiatic Coast, according to official advices, gives Japan only the salt water territory of the Manchurian and Siberian railways, but every possible terminal.

SEAMEN STEEL PATOUR NATIONALIZATION

BELFAST, July 7. The Annual Congress of the Seamen's Union of Great Britain, in session here to-day, passed a resolution affirming its support of the nationalization of railways. The union added, "any attempt by the Government to allow the pre-war system to become operative will meet our most strenuous opposition."

GENOA THREATEN REVOLUTION

GENOA, July 7. Representatives of seamen and ship owners clashed at to-day's session of the International Seamen's Conference when Cuthbert Law, representing British Ship Owners, presented an amendment providing that the eight hour day and forty-eight hour week should be applied only when vessels are in port. Law said, "The forty-eight hour week would mean the destruction of the Merchant Marine, which is the greatest asset of the British Empire and raise thereon the black flag of discontent." The representative of British seamen, MacVey, retorted by asserting that the ship owners had been the greatest exploiters and had gained millions during the war. "If you do not treat the seamen as they deserve, it is not a question of the black flag, but of the red flag of revolution," he declared. This was applauded by the seamen's delegates.

BETTING AGAINST CHALLENGER

NEW YORK, July 7. As the time for holding of the International Yacht Race draws near, betting in Wall Street on the outcome is becoming more active. Several thousand dollars were put in Wall Street, yesterday at odds of two to one against Sir Thomas Lipton's Challenger.

DISCUSSING CHURCH UNION

LONDON, July 7. The Lambeth Conference held an all day discussion yesterday on the question of the re-union of the churches and appointed a committee to report to it on the subject.

PRINCE IN RAILWAY ACCIDENT

LONDON, July 7. Official accounts reaching here from Melbourne, Australia, telling of the escape of the Prince of Wales in his recent railway accident, say that the heir to the throne had an extremely narrow escape from serious injury or death. Only the bed clothes broke the Prince's fall when his coach was overturned. An adjoining car caught fire and the Prince crawled through a window the calmest person in the enclosure. "Anyhow," he remarked, "I have done at least one thing that wasn't on the official programme."

Express Passengers.

The Kyle landed the following passengers at Port aux Basques yesterday morning:—F. Wedlock, S. Miller, G. H. Finn, S. B. Moore, M. B. Brainard, Miss Brainard, H. M. Bristol, Miss Bristol, J. O. Flynn, Mrs. A. Adams, J. P. Windler, F. Taylor, R. T. Cunningham, Mrs. S. Buck, Miss R. St. John, Mrs. P. Fahey, J. and Mrs. Mitchell and 2 children, Mrs. J. Saunders and 2 children, Miss M. Hogkinglas, Mrs. R. Taylor, J. McKay, J. P. Hughes, Miss S. Keane, R. A. Dwyer, Miss Vardy, Mrs. E. V. Brady and daughter, Miss Ivany, G. M. Tucker, W. A. and Mrs. Scott, Mrs. G. Shears and daughter, Miss E. Tucker, Mrs. C. Shears and 2 children. The express is due late this evening.

Wedding Bells.

On June 12th, 1920, St. Francis Xavier Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., was the scene of a very quiet but pretty wedding, when Miss Mary Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Bailey, Tremont Hotel, St. John's, Nfld., was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. James A. Grant, of Boston, Mass. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Fr. Scullin, in the presence of the immediate friends of the bride and groom. The bride was gowned in pale pink georgette, with pearl trimming, sable fur, picture hat to match and carried a bouquet of white roses and maidenhair fern. The bride was attended by Miss Katherine Scully, who wore cream lace over blue satin with picture hat to match. Mr. Robert Scully ably supported the groom. The groom's present to the bride was a pearl necklace to the bridesmaid and best man gold pieces. After the ceremony the bridal party motored to the home of Mrs. Scully, friend of the bride, where luncheon was partaken of and the health of the bride and groom duly honored, after which they joined the 3 o'clock train for Boston, their future home. Many telegrams and letters of congratulation were received by the bride from friends in Newfoundland, Boston and New York. The presents received were numerous and costly testifying to the popularity of the bride and groom.—Com.

Summer dresses are quite ribbon-trimmed. The train is used with tight-fitting gowns.

House of Assembly.

WEDNESDAY, July 7.

The House met at 3 p.m. Mr. MacDonnell presented two petitions from the District of St. George's on local matters.

QUESTIONS:

The following questions were asked: Mr. Bennett asked the Hon. Minister of Post and Telegraphs who is the newly appointed mail officer on the S. S. Earl of Devon on the Cook's Harbor service, when the appointment was made and if other applications from returned soldiers were on file when the said appointment was made.

Mr. Bennett asked the Minister of Post and Telegraphs if Miss Chalker, the assistant operator at Brigus, has been dismissed and if so why? and to lay on the Table of the House statement of any charge that has been laid against her.

Mr. Higgins asked the Hon. the Prime Minister: (a) Why David Courtenay, late inspector of meats, was dismissed; (b) To lay on the Table of the House copies of any correspondence regarding his dismissal.

Mr. Fox asked the Minister of Public Works to whom the contract for the painting of the Sanitarium has been awarded; what is the contract price; and whether tenders were called for.

On motion of the Prime Minister the rules of the House were suspended respecting all business now before the House and to come before it.

EDUCATIONAL BILL.

Hon. Dr. Barnes moved the second reading of the Education Bill. He explained at some length the different sections of the Bill from his viewpoint. He wished to say at the outset that in no part of the Bill could it be found that the present denominational system of education was in any way whatever interfered with. Nor is it the intention of the Government to interfere with existing systems in that regard. He said we are now spending more than $500,000.00 on education and it was thought by the Government that it was necessary to have a responsible minister to look after that work and report to the House. He felt that in the past education did not interest sufficiently members of the House to deal with the problem as it deserved. This was due chiefly to the fact that superintendents would necessarily have to shoulder criticism and it was feared that such criticism would be taken to be directed at the different denominations. This office, he said, was not created for him and he did not intend to defend that part of the question. The chief work it appears in the new department will be the looking after a normal school where teachers will be trained for the teaching profession. It was not good enough for Newfoundland for teaching diplomas to be awarded to young people with no other qualifications than having gained a certain number of marks in the C.H.E. examinations. He hoped to remedy this state of affairs by the establishment of a normal school. He then told what other civilized countries demand in the way of professional training for teachers: Switzerland 4 years training, Sweden 3 years, Norway 3 to 4 years. He proposed having appointed ten supervisory inspectors trained for the purpose of supervising the schools. He thought it impossible for the present superintendents and their staffs to look after the work of 1400 teachers. Then he proposed having an advisory board appointed as a court of appeal, in most cases, to settle any dispute that may arise so as to keep the political head of the department clear of the onus of bringing politics in any way in the working of the department. Any dispute of a serious nature the minister should not be called upon to decide. He wished to see the working of the department kept out of the hurly burly of party politics. He announced that the teachers' augmentation grant was to be increased by the sum of $64,975.00, making the total grant for that purpose $226,362.00. An allowance of $180.00 towards expenses would be allowed to each male in training at the normal school and $100.00 to each female. Assistance to the amount of $2000.00 would be given teachers who are broken in health. There is a grant of $10,000.00 to encourage night schools, also a grant for day school libraries.

At the conclusion of Dr. Barnes' address Sir M. P. Cashin asked that the second reading be deferred until to-day, which was granted.

Hon. Mr. Warren moved the second reading of the Municipal Bill which was carried but committee stage was deferred until to-day.

Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs gave notice of resolutions asking for authority to raise a loan for railway improvement.

The House adjourned until to-day at 3 o'clock.

Shipping Notes.

Schr. Preceptor, coal laden to Powney, arrived last evening from Sydney.

The Gordon M. Hollett has left Placentia for Gloucester, with 2674 qts. of salt bulk codfish for G. Peoples.

Issued By Authority.

Codfish Standardization Commission

TO THE FISHERMEN OF NEWFOUNDLAND:

PROPOSAL REGARDING THE METHODS TO BE ADOPTED TO IMPROVE THE CURE OF NEWFOUNDLAND CODFISH.

1. That the position of the Newfoundland Fisheries in relation to those of Norway, Iceland and Britain be placed before the fishermen and the public through the Press, and in any other manner that will illustrate the necessity for improving our cure of fish if we are to successfully market our fish in competition without that from other countries.

2. That a full and complete statement of the essential features of curing that must be adopted by all fishermen if the cure is to be improved shall be published and circulated throughout Newfoundland and Labrador.

3. That Inspectors shall be appointed whose duty it shall be to examine and inspect all fishery and curing stages, boats, etc., throughout Newfoundland and the Labrador with a view to—

- (a) Explaining the methods to be adopted to improve the cure;
- (b) Bringing about an improvement in the construction of sanitary conditions of Fishing Stages;
- (c) To collect and distribute information as to catch of fish or other matters affecting the interests of the fishermen and the country generally.

NOTE:—The Inspectors should eventually be given authority to condemn stages that are unfit for the sanitary curing of fish.

4. That fish purchased from the fishermen by exporters, whether in St. John's or in outports, shall be bought subject to a cull.

5. That all exports of fish from Newfoundland and the Labrador shall be inspected by duly qualified inspectors and certificates issued specifying the nature, style, cure and quality of the fish, and that specific standards shall, if possible, be laid down for the guidance of the Inspectors.

SUMMARISED, THE REQUIREMENTS MOST ESSENTIAL FOR IMPROVED CURING ARE:

- (1) Clean boats, stages and splitting tables.
- (2) Well split fish.
- (3) Fish to be well washed from knife—all blood, liver and gut to be removed.
- (4) Clean stage for curing fish.
- (5) Regularity in salting.
- (6) Fish to be washed thoroughly on back and face when taken from salt bulk.
- (7) Fish to be bled as soon as taken from the water when possible.

LABRADOR.

Same qualities for all markets.

No. 1 FISH.

Fish to be split to the crux of the tail, washed from the knife, free from blood stains, clots, liver and gut. To be firm, thoroughly salted and well pressed. To be washed out of salt bulk by hand. All slub and slime removed from back. To be dried sufficiently to stand shipment without loss in weight. Fish not complying with these requirements to be classed as No. 2 quality and to be stowed in such a manner in the vessel as to form a distinct part of the cargo.

SHORE FISH CURED LABRADOR STYLE

To be known as Imitation Labrador. All Shore Fish cured Labrador style will be graded as such and not as Labrador, and must be cured as above. The making of this quality of Imitation Labrador is not encouraged as the demand will be very limited.

The black should be removed from the fins of Shore and Bank Fish from 18 inches up. Such fish when well cured will be classed Extra No. 1 and will command the highest price.

CURING OF FISH.

Fish is an article of food, and this fact must be kept clearly before all those who have the handling of it from the time it is caught until it reaches the consumers' table. Unfortunately, this fact is lost sight of by nearly all those who are occupied in the Fisheries of Newfoundland, whether they be the catchers, curers or exporters. There is not sufficient care exercised by any one of the several classes of handlers. The fishermen in their anxiety to get their catch under salt forget the fact that the fish they are curing is to be eaten by some person many thousands of miles away possibly many months hence. The exporters in their desire to, first: secure a large stock, and second: to send it to market quickly, also lose sight of the same fact. This must change, and in future all interested in the fisheries must always remember that they are handling an article of food, and treat it accordingly.

The first essential feature of all processes for handling food products is cleanliness. The boats into which the live fish are thrown from trap or hook must be clean, sweet and free from gurry of past catches. The stage upon which the fish are thrown from the boat must be clean. The splitting tables must be clean and kept clean throughout the whole time that the fish is passing over it. The curing stages must be thoroughly cleaned before the season opens, and kept clean during the whole season. Pound boards should be well washed frequently. Water is plentiful and cheap and should be used without stint. Stages should be limed at least once every year, inside and out.

With thoroughly clean boats, stage heads, splitting tables and stages, the first step towards good fish is secured. The next is cleanliness in handling the fish. All blood, livers and gut should be removed; all slime and gurry thoroughly washed off before the fish is put under salt. This can only be done by well washing the fish when split in plenty of clean water.

The fish should be split to the crux of the tail and laid open evenly without pockets. The sound bone should be removed to about half an inch beyond the end of the sound, to allow the blood in the bone to drain out. If this is done the fish, on going to salt, will have every chance of turning out of salt bulk or pickle a perfect fish.

Salting should be done with care. Much fish is spoiled by irregular salting and by careless packing in bulks. Salting should be completed without delay. Fish should not be laid away to be salted at convenience. Washing out from salt bulk should be done by hand—every fish being washed back and face separately. Eighteen hds. Cadiz salt should be used in salting Labrador cure. Shore cure should not be bulked higher than three feet and from ten to twelve hds. Cadiz salt to the hundred quintals.

The length of time for remaining in salt bulk or pickle is a matter for the judgment of the person in charge of the curing, as also in the curing once the fish has been washed out of bulk.

In some cases it is thought advisable that hook and line men should throat their fish immediately they are removed from the hook. This permits the fish to bleed, and not only insure a whiter fish but retards decay of the fish.

The foregoing approved by the Standardization Commission.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

FROM THE FARM TO THE FACTORY.

RUTH CAMERON

We were discussing the other day the way the farm hands are flocking to the cities to do work in the factories because they can get better pay there.

One woman had just heard of a foreigner who had been getting $7 a day on the farm last summer, but refused to go back because he had been offered $10 if he would go to a nearby mill and work in a factory.

Suppose," I asked, "you had a hand of dollars in agriculture (she woman who lives on invested money) and you had a chance to take it and get a larger per cent, with more risk, in manufacture, wouldn't you be tempted to do that?"

That's different," she said. "I'm talking about labor."

That woman had had as good education as was given to women in the days when she was a girl. She lived all her life in an enlightened community and she has access to the best books and magazines in her town.

The man she criticizes is a foreigner who had little schooling when he was in the old country, who came here a few years ago and barely speaks our language.

She blames this man for not having a broad outlook and an altruistic point of view. Yet it is plain from "that's different" that she would likely have to have this breadth and vision herself.

Keep Up the Food Production. I'm not defending the flow of money from the farms to the factories. It is a terrible thing. It is going to mean awful trouble for our nation soon or later if it is not checked in some way. If the farmers, for lack of help, plant a fourth less than they did last year (this is prophesied), and we are all bidding for the products, food prices will soon be still higher. There are 12 per cent. fewer men engaged in agriculture this year than last. If we keep on cutting that per cent down someone may starve.

The man who sticks by the farm is a public benefactor and is not likely to be the loser in the end.

The Only Thing We Can Do. But the point I do want to make is this: What right have we to blame or criticize people more ignorant than we, for doing things we would find it hard not to do.

This everlasting criticism of the man who is selling his labor in a bull market doesn't do any good and I should think might create needless antagonism.

The only thing we can do in this everlasting tangle we seem somehow to have got ourselves into, is to live simply, produce all we can, interest ourselves in keeping demagogues out of the government, try to understand economic principles, and educate others in them—and wait.

A Logical Conclusion.

"Biddy," remarked the newly-wed Irishman, "go down and feed the pigs."

"Faith, and I will not," replied the bride.

"Don't be after contradicting me, Biddy," retorted the husband. "Haven't I just endowed you with all my worldly goods, and if you cannot feed your own property, then it's ashamed of you I am."

This was a new point of view, so off Biddy went.

Presently she returned. "Have you fed the pigs, Biddy?" demanded her husband, sternly.

"Faith, and I have not," she answered. "I have done a great deal better. As they were my property, I have sold them, and shall not be bothered with them again."

Origin of Visiting Card.

Visiting cards were in common use by the Chinese in the seventh century, this also being the time of the introduction of the "red silken cords" which figure so conspicuously on the engagement cards in China. From very ancient times to the present day the Chinese have observed the strictest ceremony with regard to the paying of visits. The cards which they use for this purpose are very large and usually of a bright red color. When a Chinaman desires to marry, the parents intimate that fact to the professional "match-maker," who thereupon runs through the list of her visiting acquaintances and selects one whom she considers a fitting bride for the young man. The match-maker calls upon the young woman's parents, armed with the bridegroom's card, on which are inscribed his ancestral name and the eight symbols which denote the date of the birth. If the answer is an acceptance of his suit the bride's card is sent in return, and should the oracles prophesy good concerning the union, the particulars of the engagement are written on two large cards and these tied together with red cords.

Capes continue to be the most popular wraps.

LAND SHARKS.

We used to journey off to Rome to spend the long vacation; but now we jaunt around at home, for rest and recreation. Our native land has all the goods that any country offers; our mountains and primeval woods rebuke the world-tour scoffers. We have a string of gorgeous parks, and rivers, lakes and oceans; we also have all kinds of sharks who stir up wild emotions. When any region makes a hit, and people go to view it, the natives say, "Before they fit we'll get their rolls, beshrew it!" The stranger who's within the gates, in his new bib and tucker, is trimmed by profiteering skaters who greet him as a sucker. The landlord dishes up a meal that tastes like brick and mortar, and charges, with his nerve of steel, two dollars and a quarter. The pirate of the rooming shack no conscience has in keeping, and for a bed that breaks your back, his charges set you weeping.

The system's foolish and insane, so profiteers will find it; and gaudy advertising's vain if piracy's behind it. The man who's stung in Glossy Glen will tell the world about it; and he won't seek that Glen again, and all his friends will flout it.

THE COMMONER. His name is seldom mentioned in the press. No medals come to him to mark his fame. He is not noticed as a world success. Titles are never added to his name. Yet he is brave who keeps his post each day. And truly lives unto the faith he knows. For oft his fondest plans must go astray. And he is victim to life's various woes.

The commoner must see his loved ones die. Must suffer pain and heartache and despair. Lacking the comforts greater wealth could buy. He has to give his children double care. His courage does not flash across men's view. Yet it is there like gold in rock and stone. It holds him to the tasks he has to do. And strengthens him to make his fight alone.

It calls for bravery to face the heat of day. And toll for love of those who wear your name. To keep your post of duty, come what may. And ask no favors from the hand of fame.

To play life's game and miss the thundering cheers. To serve the world and seek no word of praise. To give your best throughout your round of years, And walk erect although on rugged ways.

Few know the glory and the peace of life. Nor are they braver than the patient throng. Who bear the burdens and the hurts of strife. Content to live and love and plod along. They miss the soft sweet hours of careless ease. Yet know the self-same sorrows of the great. They may not follow fancy as they please. Yet they must bear the ironies of fate. Organdie and voile covered parasols are favored. Chemisettes and blouses have regained favor. The sports suit may have a plain, straight skirt.

The Democratic Choice.

As all the indications showed, the choice of the Democratic Convention at San Francisco, for a Presidential candidate fell upon Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio. The balloting, however, proves that the fight for first place between Cox and McAdoo was a strenuous one, the supporters of the latter holding on to the bitter end, and it was not until after the forty-fourth ballot that the final declaration was made, and Cox given the nomination. Governor Cox is a comparatively young man having been born at Jacksonburg, Ohio, on March 31st, 1870, and received a public and high school education, working himself through, his parents not being wealthy. Early in his boyhood days, he entered a printing office in Cincinnati, afterwards becoming a school teacher and eventually joining the staff of the Cincinnati Enquirer as reporter. In the 90's he became the private secretary of Paul Sorg, tobacco millionaire, thus getting his first introduction to politics. Impressed by his shrewdness and ability, Sorg assisted him in purchasing the Dayton News in 1898, which was then a liability for its publishers. Within two years all this was changed, Cox, by careful management placing the paper on a good paying basis. In 1903 Cox bought the Springfield Press-Republic, and formed the News League of Ohio, taking the position of Editorial Director. In 1909 Cox made his initial entry into politics being elected for the Third Ohio District. In 1913 he was elected Governor. Defeated for reelection, in 1915, he came back in 1917 and was again elected in 1919 for the two year term. For the Vice Presidency, the Democrats have selected Franklin Roosevelt, of New York, assistant Secretary of the Navy, and a relative of the late ex-President Theodore Roosevelt. With elections on November 2nd, the political atmosphere of the American Republic will be surcharged with electricity; until a clearing is made by the Electoral College on voting day.

The Fire of '92.

To-day is the 28th anniversary of the Great Fire, July 8th, 1892, the most disastrous that ever devastated St. John's. The conflagration had its origin in the stable of Timothy Brien, at the junction of Freshwater and Fenwaywell Roads, breaking out at about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Unfortunately the water in the mains had been turned off for the purpose of repairing some pipe and the fire had gotten too much headway before the system could be restored to working order. A strong north-west wind was blowing at the time and ere the sun rose next morning, three-fourths of the city was laid in ruins. The loss reached $13,000,000, the aggregate insurance being not quite four and a half millions. The number of dwellings destroyed reached 1872; of stores and business premises, 750. Over nineteen hundred families, representing some eleven thousand people, were thus rendered homeless in a single night. It was not long, however, before assistance in the shape of money and supplies began to pour into the stricken city. Cash contributions from all sources, says Notable Events, amounted to $361,136.00, along with which came goods to the value of $84,815.00. There were sent to the Committee of Distribution appointed, a number of claims for losses, of which 2,042 were considered, aggregating $60,732.00. Two lives only were lost in this fire—Mrs. Stephens and her niece—who were burnt in their home on Victoria St., about one hundred feet north of the northwest corner of the present Crosbie Hotel. On July 11th, H.M.S. Blake arrived from Halifax with stocks of food and clothing, hastily collected by the good people of that city for the immediate relief of the sufferers.

Our Last European Army of Occupation.

On July 7, 1815, the British and Prussians, victors at Waterloo, marched into Paris, and shortly afterwards the number of foreign troops quartered in France was 1,150,000, the French army having, according to the convention signed, retired into the Western provinces. Napoleon, after wearing the imperial crown and directing the destinies of Europe for 12 years, was a fugitive and finally a captive. Those who marvelled at the long interval which elapsed between the signing of the 1815 Armistice and the presentation of the terms of peace, may be interested to know that it was over five months after the Allies occupied Paris that the 1815 Treaty of Peace was signed. All the eastern fortresses of France were occupied by the victors for a term of three years, i.e., until France had paid the sum levied upon her as the penalty of the war, the cost of the army of occupation, the war indemnity of 233,000,000, and all sums due to allied creditors. The headquarters of the British army of occupation were at Cambrai, a town which, curiously enough, was re-occupied by us within a few days of the centenary of our departure in 1815. The commander-in-chief of all the allied forces of occupation was the Duke of Wellington, who commanded the Prussians and Austrians as well as the British. Just as Foch directed the whole allied army at the close of the close of the present war, the Iron Duke received a princely salary, lived in good style at a chateau just outside the town, kept his pack of hounds, and gave brilliant receptions at which kings and emperors occasionally figured. In his own stern and uncompromising way he upheld the British military tradition of proper treatment of the inhabitants, due payment for all supplies, etc. In the parts of France through which the Prussians marched the tale was a very different one, as Sir Walter Scott and other eye-witnesses of 1815 have borne testimony.

Last Evening's Football Match.

A splendid exhibition of football was witnessed by the fans who were fortunate enough to be present at last evening's game between the City and the Regiment. The game ended in a draw. The Regiment forwards did exceptionally good work and gave the City's goal keeper some uneasy moments. In the first half the City scored one goal, the Regiment evening the score in the second half from a penalty kick. Another game between the same teams would prove an attraction. The receipts of last night's game, which amounted to about $150, will go to the funds of the G.W.V.A. Mr. W. J. Higgins was referee and the players were:— REGIMENT—Goal, Noseworthy; backs, Teit, M. Churchill; halves, Galgay, Spurrell, Thistle; forwards, Young, Adams, Earle, Maddigan, Constantine. CITY—Goal, (Rev.) Fletcher; backs, Kavanagh, Power; halves, Barnes, Drover, W. Hart; forwards, B. Hart, F. Phalen, Quick, E. Phelan, T. Duggan.

C. C. C. Sports.

Yesterday's Sports were highly successful, being attended by over 2000 people and the C.C.C. management are to be congratulated on the excellent manner in which the events were conducted. The sports were under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Governor, who arrived promptly at 3 o'clock, accompanied by Capt. Saltmarsh, and was welcomed by Lieut. Col. Conroy, Rev. Chaplain J. P. Pippy and officers of the C.C.C.; and His Grace Archbishop Roach, who was unavoidably absent, but represented by Rev. Fr. Renouf and Rev. Fr. Sheehan. A feature of the sports was the first appearance of Mr. McCall who contested in all the senior running events. In these he was quite successful and only lost to Bell in the one mile race. The latter being one of our foremost runners at long distance, will have a keen competitor in McCall. The Mount Cashel boys' dance, Swedish drill by St. Patrick's Hall school boys and the baseball relay race won the hearty approval of the spectators. The field committee Messrs. Higgins, Ellis, Brown, Byrne, Curran, Pippy, Clancy and McGrath and the ladies who attended to the catering, performed their duties in a highly satisfactory manner. The following are the events:— 1.—Hurdle Race, 1st Skinner, 13 seconds; 2nd Jackman. 2.—Inter-School Relay Race, won by St. Bon's, C. Egan, J. Rogers, A. Slattery, time 1 min., 10 seconds. 3.—100 yards (open)—W. Skinner, 11 secs. 4.—100 yards (Bridges), C. McGrath, C.C.C., 11 1/2 secs. 5.—(a) Putting the Shot, T. Morrisey, 32 feet, 6 in. 5.—(b) Throwing the Cricket Ball, 1st, Finn, 334 feet; 2nd, Ellis, 329 feet. 5.—(c) Mount Cashel Boys' dance. 6.—Football Fives—Feldians vs. B. I.S., won by Feldians, 2 goals to 1. 7.—Quarter Mile won by McCall, time 59 seconds; 2nd Jackman. 8.—Swedish drill by St. Patrick's Hall School, 5, under Major O'Grady. 9.—220 yards—McCall 1st, time 25 secs.; 2nd, McGrath. 10.—110 yards (Junior)—1st, Kavanagh, time 13 secs.; 2nd, Fleming. 11.—Baseball relay race, won by B. I.S., Phelan, Shaver, R. Power. 12.—Football Fives—Saints vs. C.E. I., won by Saints, 4 goals, 1 corner to 1 goal. 13.—Half mile—won by McCall, time 2:57; 2nd Jackman. 15.—One mile, won by Bell, time, 5:9 mins.; 2nd, Jacobs. 16.—Final Football Fives, won by Saints—Tait, Burridge, Quick, Young, Carmichael, 2-2. Owing to the non-arrival of the medals yesterday the formal presentation has been postponed to take place in the C.C.C. Armoury at an early date.

Woodford Affidavit Enquiry.

YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS. The Commission appointed to enquire into the charges alleged in the Woodford Affidavit met yesterday morning at 11 o'clock in the Town Room of the Court House. Present, Hon. J. D. Ryan, R. G. Rendell, Esq., C.B.E., Commissioners, P. J. Summers, Esq., Secretary to the Commission, Mr. William Woodford and his solicitor, W. R. Howley, Esq., K.C. The other parties did not appear and were not represented by counsel. Mr. Summers read the commission authorizing Messrs. Ryan, Bishop and Rendell to conduct the enquiry. Hon. Mr. Ryan—This is the Commission by which we are authorized to hold this enquiry. I may say to the parties concerned, that we are ready to proceed with the business when they are prepared. Mr. Howley—I represent Mr. William Woodford, one of the parties to this enquiry, and so far as my client is concerned, he will be prepared at any time that will suit the convenience of the Commission to give his evidence. But it may be necessary to have an understanding before we commence, as to how we are to proceed with the evidence. I presume that you will be taking Mr. Woodford's statement first and the statement of the other parties immediately after, and if any further evidence be required it will follow the statement of the three parties involved. Hon. Mr. Ryan—Mr. Howley and his client may wish to state the case to-day, but we shall suit the convenience of all concerned. We do not wish to prolong this enquiry, but it may be absolutely necessary to give time to those interested. Mr. Howley—My client is entirely at the disposal of the Commission. We are ready at any moment. Hon. Mr. Ryan—Is there any other gentleman present who is interested in this Royal Commission? Mr. Howley—I presume that the parties who are particularly involved in this, will be here to be examined and cross-examined. If it is not objectionable, perhaps, we can adjourn until to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock. Hon. Mr. Ryan—Would Friday suit your convenience, Mr. Howley? Or shall we proceed on Monday morning? Mr. Howley—And day would suit us. Hon. Mr. Ryan—If it is agreeable to you and your client, we will adjourn till Monday at 11. Mr. Howley—Any day would suit other parties to this transaction, who have not appeared here this morning, be commanded by the court to be present here before we start. I do not ask the court to pronounce upon that now, but it is necessary to have them here.

Wesley Bible Class Outing.

The annual outing was held at Topsail yesterday, and perhaps from all view points, the most successful the young men of Wesley Church have yet carried through. The weather was ideal; the balmy breeze from the Bay found the cheeks of the youth and beauty present, the inspiring strains of the "Guard Brass Band," revived the tired ones, and everybody was sociable. There was no "class distinction" and the veterans in church work kicked the ball with the boys and felt young again. The programme of races, etc., started at 4, and the prizes were handed to the winners at the opening of the Concert by Mrs. R. A. Squires—the Premier's wife—who motored out with the Prime Minister and Hon. W. F. Coaker and took tea with the party. The caterer, Mr. Holland of Seaview Hotel, supplied a very beautiful spread, and left nothing undone to please the guests. The prizes awarded were as follows:—11 Jack dashes, 1st, Thos. Butler; 2nd, Jack Parsons; medal; Thread the Needle Race, Miss Cummings; Best Chocolate; Mr. Chas. Goobie, medal; Football Fives—Literary Club vs. B. Class; won by L. Club, E. Luther, Capt.; Relay Race, won by W. B. Class, Q. M. Sergt. A. Goobie, Capt.; One mile race, 1st, Tom Butler; Cup; second, W. Simmonds. Flash Light. The Band Concert was very entertaining, the music good, particularly the Quartette by Messrs. Peet, Dwyer, and DuTot. Rev. Mr. Bugden was Chairman. Miss Florence Pike rendered a very brilliant performance on the piano, and was loudly encored. Miss Russell also had to respond the second time. Her songs were very fine, and Fredk. Gushue's recitations capital. The highest praise must be accorded to Messrs. Hudson, Pelley, Pike, Gushue, and others; the Band, and last but not least, Mr. A. Rooney.

Voters' Lists.

A Proclamation in the current issue of the Royal Gazette, gives authority for the taking of voters' lists in the District of Harbor Main, thus foreshadowing the possibilities of an early bye-election in that district, the two seats for which in the House of Assembly are at present vacant. PASSENGERS BOOKED.—Nearly all the passenger accommodation on the S.S. Portia for this trip to the Westward, has been taken up.

G. KNOWLING, Ltd.

Police Court. A northern fisherman, who was shipped to the fishery at the Battery, was before His Honor, charged with desertion. He was ordered to be examined by a doctor as to his ill health, which he claimed was the reason of his not continuing his duties. A drunk was discharged. A sixteen-year-old boy was fined $10 or 30 days for wilfully destroying flowers in the garden of Mrs. John Browning, King's Bridge Road. His Honor delivered a severe lecture to this youth for his vandalism and commented strongly on the general lawlessness of the growing generation. In a breach of the street traffic regulations, in which a farmer of the West End was the defendant, a witness who was present when the police stopped the defendant and accused him of breaking the regulations, produced a plan of the street, showing where the vehicle was at that time. The evidence showed that at this particular place the vehicle could not pass on the left hand side of the road without difficulty. As there was no wilful violation of the law, the farmer was allowed to go. A Horse Cove Road resident was charged with a similar breach. It being the first offence, the defendant was allowed to go. A witness in a previous case was charged with driving a motor car on the wrong side of the street in the locality where the other breaches occurred between Job's Street and Alexander Street, on Water Street. The evidence of the defendant showed that there was not sufficient room for a car to pass any vehicle that was stopped on the north side of the street. The case was dismissed.

Pleasing Presentation. After the regular business of Terra Nova Council, Knight's of Umbra, had been completed at a meeting held Tuesday night, a pleasing presentation took place. The recipient was a silver tea service sent with a silver tea service by Mr. Cyril J. Cahill, Grand Knight, behalf of the officers and members. The recipient thanked the donors for their gift and also for the appointment address which accompanied it. Stafford's Drug Store, The Hill, is open every night till 11.

An Open Letter

TO THE BOYS OF NEWFOUNDLAND FROM SAMUEL ORKIN.

My Dear Boys:
 The picture that you see on front cover page of the catalogue which accompanies each of my boats is the exact photograph of my working model of the Battleship New York, which took me two and a half years to make and cost me much more money than I like to think of.

It was because I wished that every boy who loves ships—and what boy does not—could have one just like this that the company was formed to make miniature battleships, cruisers, torpedo boats, destroyers and racing boats in quantities, so that the cost for each one would be within the reach of all.

In order to make this possible, special machinery had to be constructed and dies made at a cost of many thousands of dollars, as the boats and various parts in their construction are stamped out of steel.

Every one of the boats which bears the name and trade mark of the "Orkin Fleet" is not only perfect down to the smallest detail of the character of the ship from which it is modelled, but it can be taken apart and put together again, the machinery can be oiled so as to keep it in perfect running order, and the decks can be removed. The propeller shaft and the tubes are made of brass, and the boats are enamelled inside as well as out, and the enamel baked on just as it is on high-grade automobiles.

The motors and gears are lacquered, which prevents them from rusting. When I was a boy, I felt as I know you, too, must have felt towards the cheap toys given us at Christmas, made of tin and soldered which looked pretty, but which could not be taken apart, unless broken open.

We are going to make these toys for you just as you would make them for yourself if you could, with just as much care and thought as they make any other machinery which the grown-ups use to make their own boats, and their own automobiles, and their own factories.

And another thing, if you should be so unfortunate as to break any part of these boats, if you send to us we will send you the part to replace it, or fix your boat at cost. If you handle the boats according to instructions they will last indefinitely. And if you will write to me of any ideas you might have, you may be sure that I will try to carry them out for you.

 Just now I am working out some ideas for dirigible balloons, not those disappointing things that break the minute they hit the ground, but exactly as the dirigible balloons are being made by the government, which will rise up many hundreds of feet in the air and go on a cruise, and come down again.
 Now I know you will have a lot of fun with this boat because I had a lot of fun making it for you.
 BISHOP, SONS & CO., LTD., are now showing some of my boats at $14.00 each.
 Yours very truly,
 SAMUEL ORKIN.

Baseball Cup for Mount Cashel.

Mr. R. G. Reid has generously donated a cup for the baseball games in connection with Mount Cashel Garden Party. Last season the Cubs won outright, the cup presented by Mr. H. D. Reid. The provisions for winning the new cup will be the same as in the previous competitions. The generosity of Mr. Reid is highly appreciated by the baseball players and the Mount Cashel Sports Committee.

SLIGHT BLAZE—The fire apparatus from the Central Fire Hall was called to the residence of Samuel Omond, 26 Prescott Street yesterday at 1 p.m. A slight blaze in the chimney was the cause for the alarm. No damage was done and the services of the firemen were not needed. The all-out signal was made five minutes after the alarm rang in.

Most People Hate Snakes.

Setting aside the Biblical story in which Satan takes the form of a serpent in the Garden of Eden, and the Divine judgment of the animal which has influenced the minds of countless generations of mankind, there must be something to account for the extraordinary loathing of most people for a reptile. It is not as if snake-bite was such a common peril as it is in hotter climates. The cause must lie deeper than Biblical teaching or foreign tales, being inherent in human nature itself. After all, a limbless creature, whose only mode of progress is a wriggle almost miraculous in its action, without eyelids, and with a tongue so like a sting that the ancients called it one, which looks slimy and lives in a hole and 'bites when attacked, naturally inspires mistrust. On the other hand, people who have no inherited dislike of snakes, are attracted in a curious way by their beauty or by their touch, and perhaps the origin of Eve and the serpent may be due to the fact that women are often drawn towards serpents and enjoy handling them.

CENTRAL SHOW ROOM

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, May 21, 1920.

DUCAL MANSION TO CINEMA

For a long time there has been much speculation as to the future destiny of the Devonshire House, Piccadilly, one of the most famous dual mansions in London. The news that this property in the market excited the ambition of powerful and wealthy syndicates on both sides of the Atlantic. Possessed of frontages to Piccadilly, Leyley Street, and Stratton Street, a grand mansion held out the temptations of a West End site of immense value, and among those known to be angling for it there was at least one American millionaire, who crossed this country in the hope of securing the property for the erection of a monster hotel. A certain significance attaches to the fact that the competition has now ended in the triumph of an interests, who, outbidding their rivals, have landed the prize for one million guineas. It has gone to Shur-Sibthorpe, of Holborn, London, Laurence Harrison, the well-known Liverpool steamship owner, purchasers propose to dispose of the site, and on the remainder at fronting Piccadilly—it is intended to erect a mammoth building which will combine a super-cinema of 5,000, a restaurant, and a magnificent dancing hall.

MAN BONDS ON THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

The London stock exchange is passing through a domestic crisis which has just reached a head. It had been discovered that a number of Japanese Chinese bonds held in Germany found their way into the London market, despite the fact that by the nations each bond from abroad to be accompanied by a certificate showing they had not been the property of enemies. The bonds in question came from Holland. An inquiry instituted, and it was found that a firm of stockbrokers which had the bonds had not exercised sufficient care and that the proper certificates had not been attached to the bonds. The matter was considered a serious one, and although the firm in question is one of the oldest and biggest on the stock exchange the partners have all been suspended for a period of two years. In a large firm this is only one department was ordered, but the punishment, of course, falls on all. Other firms which also shown laxness, though not to the same degree, have been cautioned. The affair has caused much discussion and some strong feeling.

man holders of foreign stock transferred their bonds to Holland towards the end of the war, and it is believed that a good deal is still there seeking for entry into the markets, and strenuous efforts are being made on all exchanges and bourses to defeat all attempts to realise.

THE INTERNATIONAL OF THE BOY SCOUTS.

A big international Boy Scout Exhibition will open at Olympia, London, on July 30. Contingents of scouts are to come from about thirty different countries, and everything so far seems to point to an invasion of London by scouts. A hundred thousand scouts are spoken of as possible visitors for the first week in August. There are to be no youthful representatives of Russia or the Central Empires. Russia started a scout organisation a short time before the war, but it seems to have disappeared during the revolution. Germany and Austria raised battalions of boys, but these were really cadets camouflaged as scouts. Apparently no such character attaches to this country's national boy scout movement. The British War Office, anyhow, does not recognise it. Some time ago the British military authorities were approached by the organisers of the boy scouts' "jamboree" for a loan of some tents which it was hoped to erect at Richmond as a temporary camp for the scouts. The War Office have now replied that it can only assist "cadet organisations and other separate bodies having the official recognition of the country associations." Among the announced objects of the "jamboree" is the promotion of "a spirit of brotherhood among the rising generation throughout the world." As an educative influence on the scouts to the ideal of the League of Nations there will be a stall set aside for propaganda. There are to be representations of principal local industries from various parts of the country. Newcastle scouts are bringing down a model coal mine (the pithead section at any rate) in which they will work. It is hoped that each troop and country team will bring with it at least one pet animal or bird to form a boy scout zoo. Manchester scouts are going to bring the Brontosaurus—the famous animal of their own manufacture.

ITALY'S NEW DREADNOUGHT.

The Caracolo, which the Italians have just launched at Castellamare, is one of two very powerful fast battleships which were laid down before Italy joined the Allies. The other—the Cristoforo Colombo—which was being built by Ansaldo at Genoa, has not been proceeded with. The Caracolo is of 30,000 tons displacement, and with turbines developing 100,000 horse power, she will have a speed of 25 knots. Her thickest side armour is nearly 14 inches, and her armament consists of eight 15 inch guns, sixteen 6 inch guns, and twenty 4 inch guns. She will burn oil fuel.

ROTTEN ROW IN 1920.

With the unmistakable arrival of summer Hyde Park has at least come to its own. The wide spaces of greenward look their best and freshest, with a gentle sun lighting up their beauties, and the big tower beds bordering Park Lane bear their gay load once more. Along the side of Rotten Row heavy clumps of rhododendrons lend a sparkling air to the scene, but even with their help the change that has come over the Rotten Row is only too apparent. Looking up the Long Mile, groups of horses catch the eye at intervals instead of the moving masses of cavalry of former days, and on coming closer they disintegrate themselves chiefly into hired hacks and very unfinished performers, men and women alike. The Speaker of the House of Commons is generally to be seen doing a round on a chestnut of a good weight-carrying stamp, while Cunningham Graham, on a long-tailed, heavily-maned bay cob, is a fairly regular attendant. For the rest, what is one to say of dowdy horsemen and smart horse dealers who think the Row a proper place to smoke a pipe, or ladies who will insist on riding astride, well turned out though some of them may be? The fact is that the motor has altered old ways more than we knew, and with the coming of speed a noticeable laxity of turnout is manifest.

NO AIR RAID MEMORIAL.

London, it appears, is far from desirous of perpetuating the memory of her scars of war. It was suggested that she should embellish herself with memorial tablets partaking of the character of wound stripes. These permanent reminders of honorable scars were to be erected on each building in Westminster hit by German bombs during the air raids, but when the proposal came before the City Council they restricted the scheme so that only the first mark of distinction. It so happened that the last building in that district which was unfortunate enough to stop a bomb from the air was the Lyceum Theatre, and the directors of that place of amusement, not wishing to perpetuate the memory of the misfortune, viewed the plan with disfavour. Hardly less discouraging was the first to be hit. They insisted that the memorial should be placed in a position so lofty as to be unsuitable. The result of this chilling reception has been that the whole scheme has fallen through to (be it said) the financial advantage of the ratpayers, for each memorial tablet was to have cost £20.

THE AEROPLANE AND RECUPERATION.

It is attributable to the irony of fate or to the revolutionary effect of Peace that the aeroplane, one of the mightiest weapons ever forged in the fires of war, has now become a source of delight as well to the aged as to the children? Last year flying became a favourite pastime at the majority of the seaside resorts, and this summer promises to see the new sport—for sport it now is—gaining a firmer hold than ever upon those jaded business men who seek in a pursuit of novelty that bracing exhilaration which alone can bring relief from mental stress. Anticipating a boom, aeroplane companies are laying their plans at all resorts of note to provide pleasure trips for the holiday makers, and flying has a ready commencement at Margate and Blackpool. But these organisations are including travellers, too, within their scope, and daily services are being inaugurated between London and Brighton and Eastbourne. That they will be well patronised is certain; the discomforts involved in a slow night journey in overcrowded railway carriages will ensure that.

THE QUEEN-MOTHER.

The Queen-Mother is now able to take her daily drives through London when the weather is favourable, but she will make very few public appearances in the next few weeks. She hopes to remain in London until the end of the season, and to attend the Royal Tournament, the International Horse Show, and the Richmond Horse Show. Afterwards she will pass some time at Sandringham. She has not yet decided whether she will visit Denmark this summer.

Trade Secrets.

There are at least two trade secrets which have been so jealously guarded that they have remained close secrets for hundreds of years, and may never be known to the world at large. One is the Chinese method of making the bright and brilliant color known as vermilion, or Chinese red, and the other is a Turkish secret—the inlaying of the hardest steel with gold or silver. Among the Chinese and Turks these two secrets are guarded well. Apprentices, before they are taken for either trade, are compelled to swear an iron-clad oath to reveal nothing of what passes in the workshop. They must also belong to families of high standing, must pay a large sum of money as a guarantee, and must furnish certificates of good character and honesty. These secrets have been handed down faithfully from one generation to another for hundreds of years.

Strike in Building Trade 3,000 Years Ago

Builders, brick-layers and masons have gone out on strike! Picketing has been resorted to by the strikers! A deadlock having been reached, the chief of police has appealed to the King, who has appointed a Board of Arbitration! Men and employers have accepted the terms offered by the Board and work has been resumed! These read like extracts from the latest editions of daily press, whereas in actual fact they are translations of inscriptions found in a tomb of an ancient Egyptian, and recount incidents that happened in the land of the Pharaohs three thousand years ago. Archaeologists have laid bare a curious story. It appears that Egyptian laborers, weary of the abominable working conditions which prevailed in that country, went out on strike. Violent picketing was resorted to and when hunger began to pinch, the mobs menaced the palace of Pharaoh himself. The Chief of Police was a man named Mahu. He was called upon to quiet the rioters, but so far from doing his duty he refused to allow a spear to be raised or an arrow to be shot against the strikers. Then, seeing that a deadlock was inevitable he went to Pharaoh and laid the strikers' case before that monarch. So eloquently did he plead that Pharaoh appointed a Board to investigate and the strikers won a sweeping victory. Mahu was very proud of his share in the struggle and ordered a full account to be inscribed on the walls of his tomb. There is was found by modern archaeologists and by them transcribed. One pictured inscription shows Mahu receiving deputations of strikers and reading their demands. Another shows him explaining to strike breakers that they were endangering the welfare of the Egyptian worker by continuing to work. But Mahu did not hold with revolution or what we might call Bolshevism. He quelled any attempts in that direction, and one picture shows him bringing three hand-cuffed malefactors to Pharaoh for judgment and execution. After all Solomon was not far wrong when he declared that there is nothing new under the sun. Scholars are not without hope of some day unearthing an Egyptian worker's union ticket!

CHAPTER XXVI.

AT BOSTON—THE BROOKS MONUMENT.

Boston is celebrated for its stately, old renowned for its history. In business it has long been known as the "Hub," and this appellation is justly due the city, for it certainly is a centre of attraction in many ways. Its Museum of Fine Arts, and its Public Library, and its State House, are foremost among its architectural structures; and the many other public buildings which adorn the city, are all in keeping with the traditions of the nation, and the enterprise of the State. Next to the Public buildings may be mentioned the statutory which meets the eye at every turn, and which tells its own history in few words. To statesmen, warriors, poets and clergymen, these monuments are erected, and it is about the monument of one of the latter class that we now wish to write—The monument of the late Phillips Brooks. As many of our readers are aware the Rev. Phillips Brooks was an outstanding ecclesiastic during the latter part of the last century, and his church was a great factor in the religious life of Boston. Contemporaries with him was the Rev. Joseph Cook, and both their names are still fresh in the thought of the people, and their memory is fragrant with good-will.

Phillips Brooks was the rector of Trinity Church, and his monument is erected close by that sacred edifice. The monument is peculiar inasmuch as it presents the figure of two persons—one standing behind the other. The idea of this second figure is that of Inspiration; the second figure being meant to represent the Redeemer. This idea of Inspiration, is, no doubt a good one; but it seems that the attitude of the figure has never met with popular favour; hence it is that steps have been taken to have the monument replaced by a more approved one. This new statue was exhibited in one of the public squares of the city last winter for the purpose of permitting the people an opportunity of pronouncing upon its merits or otherwise. We heard different opinions expressed upon this monument, but do not know what the final views amounted to. The idea of Inspiration as expressed by the dual figures of the Brooks Monument, has much in its favour, for it signifies that behind the life-work and preaching of that good man, there was the divine influence of the Saviour; but somehow as one stands and looks at these two figures, there arises the feeling that the servant is greater than his Master, and that the latter is hidden by the former; because both figures appear on a level, and the figure of Brooks being directly in front, that which stands behind is seemingly secondary. The position of the figures make all the difference, and it has frustrated the idea of Inspiration. Had the figure which stands behind, been placed upon a small pedestal, so that it would give the appearance of standing a little over the preacher, instead of merely behind him, the monument would have been relieved of its objectionable features. To say the least of it, the monument, as placed, displays very poor judgment, as well as bad taste.

This, as far as we could learn, is the reason why a second monument has been considered necessary; but if the position of the dual figures of the first monument were altered there would not be any necessity for its removal. The whole question may not be of any importance, but it tends to show how keen, after all, is the thought of the people on these things. That Phillips Brooks should be honoured by a monument of unusual design we must all agree; but that the monument should place him in a superior position to his Divine Master we do not agree; but that is what happened; though not intended.

Wedding Bells.

BUTLER—ENGLISH.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. English, a pretty wedding took place yesterday at 3.30 p.m., when the Rev. Dr. Fenwick, President of the Methodist Conference, united in holy wedlock the Rev. Wm. R. Butler and Miss Gertrude E. English, in the presence of a few intimate friends and relations. The bride, exquisitely gowned in white silk and georgette, with veil and holding a magnificent bouquet of white carnations and asparagus fern, was attended by Mrs. W. Moore, her sister as matron of honor, and Miss Gladys English, a niece, as flower girl. The groom was supported by the Rev. E. W. Forbes. Many costly and beautiful presents were tendered the bride, who has until recently been engaged in the nursing profession, and had the honor of serving 3 years in France with the Harvard nursing unit. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome gold brooch, to the matron of honor a pearl necklace, a gold bracelet to the flower girl and a fountain pen to the best man. At 5.30 p.m. the wedding party, showered with good wishes and confetti, motored to the Sea View Hotel, Topsail, where the happy couple spend their honeymoon. The Rev. W. R. and Mrs. Butler will shortly be leaving for Change Islands, where Mr. Butler takes up his ministerial duties. It may be interesting to note the fact that Mr. and Mrs. English's family of nine daughters and one son are now all happily married.

Editor Evening Telegram

Dear Sir.—As the press is the only effective medium we have of expressing ourselves on public wrongs I solicit space in your valuable paper to bring before the public what I consider gross mismanagement in one branch of our public service, namely the Coastal Service. I think it will be generally admitted no service in the past has come in for a larger share of public criticism, particularly the Prospero during the time she was under the command of Capt. A. Kean and his son W. B. In the former if the ship grazed a sand bank or touched the bottom in any shape or form the greatest exaggerations were sent broadcast through the country. Even the color of the Buttons on the Captain's coat was criticized and he was dubbed "Brass Button Abe." Although Captain Kean beat all records for quick trips yet on one occasion when through stress of weather the Prospero was a few hours late, one of our city papers said the Prospero should be named "Can't Move." When Capt. W. B. Kean on his first trip grazed a mud bank backing out from Catalina wharf the news found its way to one of our papers with such rapidity that you would fancy that the type was set up in advance for the occasion.

Long before the first of May letters would appear in our papers demanding a steamer to be sent North, and the Government of that day severely criticized for their lack of interest towards the general public. No small share of blame was laid on the Government for the class of Boats that was on the service and the Earl of Devon was particularly complained of. Why has public criticism ceased? Have we now a superior class of Boats? The answer is No! Never in the history of the coastal service was there such a poor service. The Strait's Boat is an old sailing steamer altogether unfit for passenger accommodation and while it was thought she was only put there for the first two trips to relieve the freight congestion apparently this is the Boat that is intended to run all summer to take the place of the S. S. Ethie as an improvement on the service of last year, and to carry out the promise to the people of St. Barbe to place a boat on the route that would give better facilities for freight and accommodation for passengers, and the boat in command of Capt. Bishop on Bonavista Bay has been named the "Bonavista Insult."

And the same old Earl of Devon with the same old Captain is engaged again and rumour has it that Capt. Sandy is boasting that he made a profitable contract with the Hon. W. F. Coaker for that work.

While for slowness in getting around, their present commanders will leave a record behind them which will be hard to beat, the Carmen on Bonavista Bay, it is said, is so uncertain that you can never tell when she is coming next, and the Prospero under her present commander beats all records, on her first trip 32 days, her second trip 52 days, her two trips this spring have taken over a month and notwithstanding her commander is the nominee of W. F. Coaker and the appointment confirmed by the Executive Council he is no more infallible than other people, for coming South this time, going in LaScie, he ran the Prospero ashore in the harbor in broad noon daylight, in clear weather in a harbor easy of access and with plenty of water. And the present Captain of the ship while under command of other masters in the Prospero has been taken in and out of LaScie scores of times without ever grazing the rocks. This is a lesson to Mr. Coaker that those who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones.

So much for the management of these Boats outside of St. John's. We will now come nearer home and have something to say about the management after their arrival here, for which we hold the Minister of Shipping responsible.

The S. S. Prospero arrived here on Saturday morning, she berthed at Bowring's Coastal Premises, took out a portion of her cargo, and then went down to Shea's wharf and took out some more freight. Then instead of coming back to the coastal premises to discharge the balance of her cargo, she was ordered to go up to Mudge's to go on the mud to have some rivets tightened to make her sufficiently tight to go North again before going on dock. The public is kept in blissful ignorance of her being rammed on the rocks on entering LaScie. The type that was formerly set up for the occasion with nothing wanting but the name of the place where the accident occurred has evidently been destroyed and it is not thought worth while to mention such trifles now. But sir, what about the freight that has been left on board. What about myself and others who have been waiting to dispose of that freight? A lot of men to my certain knowledge have fish, oil and herring on board of that ship which arrived here on Saturday, and could have made their sales, yet have to wait until to-morrow morning before they can get delivery of that freight. One man was heard to say to-day, I have seven casks of oil on board that boat and unless I take delivery of them this evening, I may lose the sale of that oil. Another man said the quicker Sir John Crosbie gets charge of the boats again the better for all concerned.

Well, Mr. Editor, you can come to one of two conclusions. Either the man in charge of the management of these boats is utterly indifferent to the public welfare, or is utterly incompetent for the job. As I do not think it is the former I am forced to the conclusion it is Mr. Cave's lack of experience in matters of this kind. And still Mr. Cave has had something to do with business and surely he must know that everybody who has freight on boats wants to take delivery of it as soon as possible. However, if this letter serves no other purpose, I hope it will be a reminder to the Minister of Shipping, that in future, as soon as passengers and their luggage are landed, that the next thing is the landing of the freight and let the tightening of the ship for the next trip, whether the damage was done by contact of ice or rocks or the coaling of the ship, be an after consideration. Thanking you for space, I remain,

Yours truly,
A NORTHERN MAN.

Obituary.

MRS. HARRIET TAYLOR.
On Friday afternoon, there passed away at Carbonear, in the 84th year of her age, Harriet, wife of Richard H. Taylor (of John), after but a brief illness, mourned by a large circle of relatives and friends. Notwithstanding her advanced age, Mrs. Taylor was extremely active up to within two weeks of her demise, and but for failing sight, was physically fit for household duties, in the performance of which she took exceptional pride. Left to mourn are a husband, one son, Edward, in the United States, and one daughter, Susie, Mrs. (Cary) C. F. Taylor, living at Carbonear. The funeral took place on Sunday, interment being at the Methodist Cemetery, where, followed to her last resting place by a vast concourse of people, all that was mortal of Harriet Taylor, loving wife, careful mother, valued friend and good neighbor, was laid to rest in the family plot. To the sorrowing relatives the Telegram extends sympathy.

The Boy Scouts.

A few years ago we used to read much about the malevolent influence of the "street gangs" and hear calls for some force to counteract their mischief. Well, that force has been found in the Boy Scouts. They give the boy at his most impressionable age a leader and a "crowd." The leader devises work and amusement for the crowd, and the boys carry it out under influence of the most healthful sort. Every boy who joins a troop is the better for it. The chief obstacle to the indefinite extension of the movement comes from the failure of adult support. The organization needs a larger membership, and it needs more scoutmasters. Its efforts to awaken the community to those needs this week deserves most cordial support and co-operation.—Brooklyn

Turned-Down Best Sellers.

The literary beginner is apt to be downhearted when his first production is returned with a cold printed intimation that it is not acceptable to an editor or publisher. But he is in good company, says Stray Stories. "East Lynne," as novel and play, has been more profitable than a gold mine, yet it was rejected by George Meredith when publisher's reader for Chapman & Hall.

That famous sensational novel, "Called Back," was published by the Bristol publisher, Arrowsmith, and just when it was at the height of its success a young man sent some new stories from India, with a letter which made the publisher imagine the writer thought too much of himself, so he rejected the stories. He regretted it to the day of his death, because the young man was Rudyard Kipling.

Rider Haggard said that "Dawn" was sent back to him at least six times before it found a publisher.

W. W. Jacobs had a similar experience with "Many Cargoes." He tried it all around London until another humorist, Jerome, took pity on it and ran the stories in To-day.

J. J. Bell actually had to publish "Wee Macgregor" himself. He got John Hassell to draw the famous cover and became his own publisher with excellent results to himself and the public.

One publishing house has the record of having declined Stevenson, Harris, Kipling, and Crockett! Certain it is that R. L. S. did not find it easy to sell "Treasure Island."

Where the Fault Lay.
 As the Irish police recruit strolled along on his first turn of night duty, loud yells of "fire!" rent the air. He bolted quickly to the spot and found a house well alight with a man half hanging out of an upstairs window. "Help! help!" he yelled. "If I jump will you catch me?"
 "Sure an' Oi will!" replied the policeman readily.
 So the man jumped, only to crash to the ground and lie there stunned. When, a few minutes later, he recovered consciousness, he looked up at the constable reproachfully, and murmured feebly:—
 "I thought you said you could catch me."
 "Begorra!" replied the Irishman. "Oi was only waiting for yer to bounce an' Oi'd have had yer!"

The Price of a Cake.
 A fussy-looking man went into a bakery recently and announced his intention of buying a cake.
 One after another the obliging clerk showed him, only to be told that this one was too rich, that one too yellow and the others wrong in some way or another.
 "What I want," he finally said, "is an honest, home-made cake. I don't mind the price, so long as I get the right cake."
 "Then if you don't mind the price," retorted the girl wearily, "why don't you get married and have a wife to make one?"

"Thirteen" Unlucky From the Beginning.

The chapel of the Tridendum Paupim which adjoins the church of St. Gregory, on the Coelian Hill at Rome, contains the following inscription which tells that Pope Gregory the Great was in the habit of providing breakfast for twelve poor men every morning.

On one occasion when they were seated at the table Christ appeared and shared their meal with them, thus making a thirteenth guest. Henceforth it was decreed that the number thirteen was to be considered lucky.

The legend was probably the outcome of a desire on the part of the early Church to extinguish the superstition that from time immemorial has clung to this fateful number. If such was the object it signally failed, for down to this day it persists with extraordinary hardihood.

Many people refuse to live in a house that is numbered thirteen, and in many European cities one never sees it in the newer streets. Its omission is supplied by the number 11a or 11 1/2, while many hotel keepers pander to the superstitious fancies of their guests by discreetly dropping the ominous sign from a bedroom door. The Italians are particularly averse to the numeral, and their lottery tickets never bear that number. In Turkey, where ill-luck seems a chronic state, the word "thirteenth" has almost gone out of use.

Even great men, Bismarck, for example, have had the thirteen superstition in virulent form, but, on the other hand, Wagner seemed to rejoice in it. He was born in 1813, and his name contained thirteen letters, counting his Christian name Richard. His operas were thirteen in number, and his most famous one, "Tannhauser," was completed on March 13. He left Bayreuth on September 13, and died on February 13.

Strangely enough one of the greatest and most lengthy of the pontifical reigns was that of Leo XIII, while Alfonso of Spain is the thirteenth monarch to bear that name, and he cannot be said to have been unlucky, for he escaped assassination on his wedding day.

However, these examples of the contrary working of the superstition do nothing to shake popular belief in it, and even governments are not exempt. For in 1906, when the French Cabinet was re-organized, the official announcement was delayed for no other reason than that it was considered unlucky to publish the list of ministers on the thirteenth of the month. It is said that when told of this the Pope smiled, saying: "Evidently being a Free Thinker does not exclude superstition."

At Table.

In nearly every country the sitting down at table occasions misgiving that oftentimes amounts to a determined refusal to do any such thing. Nor is this idea confined to the ignorant and lowly, for on one occasion the late Queen Victoria when passing through Firth on her way South was faced with the prospect of dining thirteen at the table, through the unexpected absence of a guest. The situation was saved by one of the gentlemen asking permission to withdraw, a permission which no doubt relieved Her Majesty as much as it did her attendants.

But it is not given to everyone to escape from such a dilemma so easily, and many a hostess has been at her wits' end to avert the contingency. In Paris and other large cities the difficulty is got over by summoning a "quatorzieme" (fourteener) from one of the establishments that are always ready at a moment's notice to supply such an extra guest.

The superstition is supposed to owe its origin to the fact that at the Last Supper our Lord sat down with His twelve disciples on the eve of His betrayal by Judas, who speedily met his tragic doom.

This view is now held by some to be entirely erroneous, for thirteen was considered unlucky long before the birth of Christ. In Scandinavian mythology there is a legend that the twelve principal gods were seated at a banquet in Valhalla when Loki, the god of mischief, entered and made a thirteenth. He quarrelled with Baldr, the peace god, and shot him with a mistletoe arrow.

Superstition Universal.

Still more remote, we find in the myths of the ancient Hindus reference to the ill-luck that surely followed if thirteen sat at table.

That regions so far separated as Scandinavia and India hold the same belief goes to prove the universality of the superstition that leaves unsolved the source of its origin. It is possible that we may have to trace its beginning to the days of the Garden of Eden, as is the case with the idea that Friday is an unlucky day on which to set out on a new venture, since that is the day ascribed by those who dispute its Good Friday origin to the expulsion of Adam and Eve from Paradise.

It would appear, therefore, that thirteen has always been considered a number of ill omen, and, despite all talk to the contrary, is likely to continue so till the end of time.—Er.
