Doctor prescribed Carnol and Miss Mosher is now as well as she ever was.

If you could read the many testimonials which have been pouring in from people everywhere telling us of the marvelous results from using Carnol, you would be convinced that Carnol is a wonderful remedy. What Carnol did for Miss Mosher, reads almost like a miracle. She says: "In the winter of 1921 I contracted a severe cold and my cough was so bad that my friends thought I would not live. One day, while I was visiting a friend, a physician was in the house upstairs. He heard me cough and came down to see who it was. He told me that if I did not start doctoring that cough at once, serious results would follow. He gave me a prescription for Carnol. The next day I was taken down with a severe attack of measles, and I was in such a weakened condition my people almost despaired of my life. But I followed the doctor's advice and began taking Carnol, with the result that I improved so much in a short time that on meeting the doctor he did not recognize me. I received so much benefit from Carnol that I feel all I could say would not do it justice. I can safely recommend Carnol to anyone in a weakened condition as one of the best tonics on the market today. Carnol was recommended to me by Dr. Veniot, of Bathurst, N.B., and I purchased it from J. H. Moore, druggist, of Campbellton, N. B.—Miss Helen Mosher, Campbellton, N. B. 12-24

The Heir to Beecham Park

CHAPTER X.

"I am going to propose something," Vane said, slowly, as she drew his hand through her arm. "Let me speak to Aunt Constance. Believe me I shall do it far better than you. You would probably be hurt at what she says, and then you would both be angry. Now, if I speak, Stuart, I being an impartial person, shall be more calm and collected. I will plead your cause well, and—don't think me vain—I think I shall succeed as I wish." Vane drew a quick breath. Stuart did not see the transitory gleam of triumph that flashed from her eyes. "I am your friend; you will trust me," she added, gently. "Trust you? Yes, Vane; but it seems cowardly, unmanly, not to plead for myself."

"Do you want to win your mother's consent? Yes, of course you do? Then be assured, Stuart, that in my hands you will be more certain of it than if you act for yourself. See—here is your servant! Take my advice, rest and be happy, and all will go well." "Vane," began Stuart; but she stopped him. "Do as I ask you," she pleaded; and with a smile of grateful thanks, Stuart retired to his room. "All will go well—yes," mused Vane as she turned back to the colonnade. "I see the end clearly now. I must enlist Aunt Constance on my side, and the rest will follow in due course. Margery Daw, your chance of reigning at Crosbie Castle grows smaller and smaller."

She mounted the stairs to her room, stopping on the way to exchange a few words and embraces with her mother, who was overjoyed to see her darling child so well and happy. Vane made a careful, simple toilet; she exchanged her long pink gown for a dainty white cambric, chose a large white hat and gloves of a light tan shade, and after bidding her maid place them in readiness, descended to the hall just as her aunt arrived. Mrs. Crosbie was dismissing her groom with the ponies when Vane interrupted.

"Forgive me, auntie, dear," she said, lightly, "but may I have the carriage this afternoon? I have an errand to perform in the village." Mrs. Crosbie looked surprised for an instant; then she said, affably: "Certainly, my dear. At what time shall I bring it round?" "About five o'clock. Many thanks, Aunt Constance," she added, prettily, as Mrs. Crosbie gave the desired order.

Luncheon progressed slowly and rather silently. Lady Charteris chatted away to the squire, and Mrs. Crosbie dilated in her proud, cold way upon mission work. Sir Douglas ate and spoke little, while Vane discussed the delicacies in silence.

Several times in the course of the meal she was struck by the strange expression on Sir Douglas Gerant's face; there was a glow of animation, a look of eagerness that surprised her, and she decided mentally that he was pondering some great problem, when she saw his brows darken and his jaw set with determination. She herself had many momentous thoughts troubling her; but her manner was placidly serene. She was awaiting her opportunity to speak alone with Mrs. Crosbie, and though to effect her purpose immediately after luncheon. In this, however, she was foiled; her aunt was claimed by the household of domestic affairs, and it was past four o'clock before she was liberated.

At last Vane saw her chance. She had seated herself in the colonnade, which was a favorite lounge for the whole house in summer-time, and from here she could see all who came and went. To outward appearance she was absorbed in her book; but in reality she was keenly alive to everything passing around, listening for the first tones of her aunt's voice, and wondering during the moments of her watch that was causing the struggle in Sir Douglas Gerant's breast as he walked to and fro beneath the shade of the trees in the distance.

Vane did not look up as she saw her aunt approach; but she gave Mrs. Crosbie a smile when she addressed her. "So I hear, Vane, that you have been nursing Stuart, and with good results. I have just met Andrew, and he tells me his master has slept nearly all the afternoon; he will soon recover now, I hope." "I hope so, indeed," said Vane, softly.

She pushed forward a chair as she spoke; then, as her aunt sank into it, she said, quietly: "Aunt Constance, I want to speak to you. I said before luncheon that I had an errand to perform in the village, but I did not say what that errand was. I will tell you now." "Do you think I look curious, Vane?" laughed Mrs. Crosbie, her handsome features wearing an air of satisfaction and pleasure as her gaze rested on her niece. "I am going to see Margery Daw," Vane said, slowly, letting her eyes wander across the sunlit lawn, but not before she saw a look of surprise down on her aunt's face.

"See Margery Daw!" repeated Mrs. Crosbie. "Why, Vane?" "Because Stuart has asked me to go." "Stuart! breathed his mother, half rising from her chair. "What do you mean, Vane?" "I mean, aunt, that Stuart loves Margery Daw, and says he will make her his wife."

For a time there was no reply from Mrs. Crosbie, and Vane, turning, saw a heavy frown on her handsome face. "You are jesting, of course, Vane?" she said, at last.

"Indeed, Aunt Constance, I am not," returned Mrs. Charteris, quietly. "My news surprises you?" "Surprise!" repeated Mrs. Crosbie. "I fail to understand you at all." Vane rose and knelt beside her aunt. "Auntie, dear," she said, gently. "You must not be hard on poor Stuart. Recollect, he has eyes, and this girl is beautiful. I have seen her, and love her."

"Has he asked you to plead for him?" interrupted Mrs. Crosbie, coldly. "No, he told me his secret this morning, urged by I know not what," and Vane let her eyes wander away again. "Perhaps," she went on, after a brief pause, "some idea of the warm interest I must ever have in him prompted him; but that I cannot tell. He spoke openly to me, and asked me to be his friend as I was his."

A sneer curled Mrs. Crosbie's lip. "He evidently thought upon your strength," she remarked, dryly. "Aunt Constance, I will not hear your anger against Stuart," Vane said, quickly. "I—I am his friend, and— Her head dropped and her cheeks flushed. Then she went on, hurriedly: "It is not his fault—that I am sure you must blame Margery Daw, if you blame any one."

"Does he expect me to receive her?" asked Mrs. Crosbie, quietly. "I think so. But listen to me, Aunt Constance. I have not crossed Stuart. I have not refused his request, for I feared, in his weak state, to vex him; but he has left everything in my hands, and I will— She stopped, and their eyes met.

"What?" asked Mrs. Crosbie, almost sharply. "Save him from this if I can." The words were uttered very quietly, and Mrs. Crosbie drew a quick breath of relief. "Vane," she said, "forgive me; I was wrong to doubt you, even for a moment."

"I know what it is," Vane went on, hurriedly—"a glamour, a romance. Stuart has been here alone—he has been bewitched. But I know, too, what a bitter awakening it would be when the glamour was gone, the veil of poetry and romance torn down; and, for his sake, I will do it. Aunt Constance do not think me bold—do not think me unwomanly. I cannot help myself; I would do anything for Stuart—for—for I—love him!"

Vane sank back and buried her face in her hands. Mrs. Crosbie put her arms around her niece and drew her to her shoulder. "Unwomanly, Vane?" she said, gently. "I hope you. This is as it should be." "Ah, you will keep my secret, Aunt Constance? He must not know—I would not let him know for untold gold. If we succeeded in satisfying this girl's ambition or avarice—money generally heals such wounds as hers—we must remember he will be troubled perhaps for a time. I would not let him think my heart hungered for him, my pride would suffer—it would kill me."

"He shall not know, I promise," Mrs. Crosbie responded, stroking Vane's soft hair. "But what shall we do—how break this off? It has taken me at a disadvantage; the very thought seems so monstrous, I cannot yet believe it." "I want you to humor Stuart," Vane said. "Let him think that you may consent eventually; be proud and cold, but not unkind. The blow must come from her."

"How?" inquired Mrs. Crosbie, for once roused from her calm demeanor. "She must be convinced of the uselessness of her scheme. I am going to her now, sent as Stuart's messenger. I think I shall pave the way, at any rate."

Eclipse Most Spectacular Sight Ever Witnessed

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Watched by millions the sun went into total eclipse behind the dull, slate-colored disc of the moon, and its flaming corona in the eerie blackness of the morning's sky lurched part of the country with a thrill not to be repeated for 200 years.

Wild shadow bands raced across the earth as an almost complete darkness fell over a stretch of country from Duluth, Minn., to Montauk Pt., N.Y.

It was near night in the territory, through a stretch between 85 and 120 miles wide, over which the moon's shadow raced eastward at the moment when the eclipse became complete.

The greatest mobilization of scientists in the history of heavenly phenomena trained telescopes and cameras on the eclipse from thirteen observatories while millions of lay observers passing of the moon across the sun. They were rewarded with a sight unequalled in splendor by anything in the skies.

Dr. S. L. Boothroyd, astronomer in charge of the observatory of Cornell University at Ithaca, N.Y., reported that conditions for observing the phenomenon were perfect.

"The sun's corona, flaming around the edge of the moon at the moment of totality, was beautiful," Professor Caroline Furness of Vassar said. "Long streamers shot out, assuming unusual shapes such as have not been observed hitherto."

"We saw but few 'prominences,' the jutting knobs on the moon's edge observed in previous eclipses. "All the observations were most satisfactory."

This report was the first flashed along the wires which connected the great observatories of the east, after Professor Harlow Shapley, astronomer at the United States Weather Bureau at Buffalo, had notified his colleagues that weather conditions had been unfavorable there.

scientists in the East. Professor E. W. Brown, of Yale University, reported that "results were very satisfactory. It is too early yet, however, to make a full report." Professor E. G. Free, of the Scientific-American Observation Post at East Hampton, L.I., said: "Conditions perfect. All observations made as planned. Apparently full success. Obtained clear photographs of the corona."

Dr. Frederick Slocum, in charge of the observations at Wesleyan University, where an imposing gathering of scientists participated in the study of the eclipse, messaged: "Everything apparently satisfactory."

Standing out to sea, off Nantucket Lightship, the Navy dirigible Los Angeles, at a height of 8,000 feet, furnished scientists with their easternmost observations.

Atop the giant airship, photographs were taken and records made of the progress of the moon across the face of the sun.

people whispering in church. Suddenly one voice rang over the others, its accents almost indignant, somewhat aggrieved: "For the love of eripes, Jack! Look at them stars over the Tribune building. Ain't that the damndest thing you ever saw in yer life?"

In the eastern part of the country, many scientists were carried aloft in airplanes to view and photograph the eclipse. Twenty planes went up from Mitchell Field, one with a special camera weighing 120 pounds, six feet in length, with which pictures were taken at heights between 10,000 and 15,000 feet.

From these aerial photographs, astronomers hope to obtain information not available in the denser atmosphere closer to earth.

After the moon had passed completely from before the face of the sun, a journey that required some two hours, reports began to come from all parts of the east. Harvard University, where the eclipse was 99 per cent. total, reported excellent observations.

Scientists found their forecasts of the eclipse had been carried out almost to the letter, the period of totality being only a few seconds behind schedule.

The strange shadow bands raced across the earth from left to right as the eclipse approached. Left as the eclipse approached, right as the sun appeared, the light from the edge of the path of totality. It did not get completely dark.

Prof. Chant is packing up just disappointed that it is never to be hopeful. The observations on magnetism, intensity of radio reception, temperature and atmospheric pressure will be carried out. There is still a hope that the contact of the partial eclipse will be timed.

The calculations could not have been more than ten seconds according to R. Meldrum Stewart.

GLOOM AT CORNERS

Long's Corners, Ont., Jan. 24 (9.35 a.m.)—The sun never set its face here after dawn, the appalling everything. They did not see the light from the edge of the path of totality. It did not get completely dark.

BABY'S FACE AT 3 TO DEPART FARENTAGE.

Two babies who recently were taken from their mothers' breasts to be given a bath. They looked exactly alike, and the nurse suddenly realized that she could not remember which was which. The difficulty would, easily have overcome had she returned one baby to each mother; but neither of them died in its bath, neither the nurse nor the mother could tell who was the owner of the living baby and who was the dead one.

An appeal had to be made to the higher authorities of the hospital who, confronted with a problem, might have tested the wisdom of Solomon, decided that the child was brought up in the hospital and is three, when it is thought that the appearance will decide to which of the two women, who hope it really belongs.

RESCUE OF ENTOMBED MAN SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE. CAVE CITY, N.Y., Feb. 5. Floyd Collins is still alive but he has been permanently entombed in his sand cave prison, 125 feet underground, by a rise in the floor of the cave and all hopes of escape through any natural passage have been abandoned. Two trips into the cave have convinced those in charge of the work that their only chance to reach Collins is by sinking a shaft from the top of the hill, and endeavoring to tunnel the imprisoned man. "I am through," said Collins, shortly after midnight, "I'm dejected over the latest turn of events. Collins has been imprisoned in the cave since last Friday morning when a large boulder landed on his legs when he was making his way out of the cave.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR GUEST. FATHER'S ADVICE. My dad and I, long years ago, were walking down the street. When suddenly a little dog came yelping round our feet. He snarled and snarled so violently—that angry little pup appeared to me, as though he thought that he could eat us up. I turned and threw some stones at him which always missed the mark. But when I tried to drive him off the louder he would bark. "Now, son," my father said to me, "just plod along your way. Don't turn your head for yelping dogs. Remember what I say! You'll notice if you pay no heed to him and hold your peace. That little dog will soon grow tired and all his noise will cease; but every time you stamp your foot and shout to him: 'Begone,' you show that he's annoying you and keep him following on.

"It takes a dog to fight a dog! Post that above your shelf! When canines come and snarl at you, don't be a dog yourself. And when you're older grown, and petty men attack, don't stoop to pick up stones to throw; don't try to answer back; just walk right on any pay no heed to anything they say. And very soon they'll give it up and turn and run away. It is a very ancient dodge these petty minds employ. They say the gods first angry make the man they would destroy, and little dogs and little men who snarl behind your back will only snarl the louder if you answer their attacks; and they'll have done the very thing they started out to do. If, being yellow dogs themselves, they make one out of you!"

M. C. L. I. Debate.

VERDICT FOR AFFIRMATIVE. The subject for debate last evening was as follows:—"That the general acceptance of a version of Scripture in contemporary English would help to vitalize religion." The Affirmative speakers were Rev. R. E. Fairbairn, Mr. Wilson Clarke, Mr. M. Kelloway and for the Negative, Messrs. A. E. Parkins, I. C. Morris, Wm. Drover. The main arguments to the Affirmative were as follows:—"That contemporary English means the same as is used in daily talk in the market place. That a new version is needed for the same reason that a new version was needed in 1611 in the language of the day. That the old version had a halo of veneration for the early English style and language and that it prevents the 'raw reality' of religion from being effective. That Jesus talked in the common language. That the New Testament was written in the language of the market. That Missionaries translate the Bible into the common language of the natives and it grips them. That Religion is the Truth as contained in the Scriptures and that the average man cannot read it and understand it without the use of commentaries. That the Ethiopian could not get much out of the Scripture until St. Philip talked with him a 'new version.' Then religion became vital to him. That the same 'truths would be contained in the new as in the old version, but that if written in to-day's English the Affirmative contended it would help to vitalize religion. The Negative contended that Religion was recognition of one supreme being and the obligation of humanity to God. That history and experience does not support the Affirmative. That as the new versions multiplied, the churches became dead and then people lost interest. That vitalized religion came through personality. That it was the divine personal touch that vitalized religion, and not the Scripture, witness Moses and the voice from the burning bush. Paul and the voice from Heaven. Jesus did not find proof when he came on earth that the many versions then in existence had improved the people. Luther, Wesley, Knox, Gypsy Smith only became powerful and preached a vitalized religion when they came into personal touch with God. That there is need for quickening of the religious life. That true religion is the golden rule. That the world was not getting from religion the best that religion contains. That America seized the new versions and that many of the great churches were empty. That the speakers had visited packed churches where the old Gospel and the 'Old Book' prevailed. That a new version might simply some ambiguous verses to advantage, but that Dr. Moffat's version was ridiculous. That contemporary English would require a version for Newfoundland, another for Canada, another for America and so on for the different English dialects. That to revise meant to 'cheapen and weaken,' etc.

The following took part, Rev. C. H. Johnson, Ted Drover, Joseph Moore, Wm. White, W. Bursey, J. Bowden, Fred Moore, S. P. Whiteway, Captain Kean, H. Hayward, W. Gerland. On the vote being taken the Affirmative won by a majority of one. Mr. H. Butt occupied the Chair with much acceptance. Several visitors were present and were cordially welcomed.

Regeneration in Loop Receivers

Quite often it is desirable to add regeneration to a superheterodyne receiver which is working on a loop. One reason for this addition is that regeneration gives quite a large amount of easily controlled amplification at the expense of only one additional control to the receiver. Another and equally important reason is that regeneration in ANY receiver greatly increases its selectivity. The simplest method to add regeneration to a loop is the one shown in the figure above. In series with one terminal of the loop, preferably in series with the loop and the receiver terminal which connects to the grid, a coil "S" is inserted. In the plate circuit of the detector, a second coil "T" is placed. This coil acts as a regular tickler feedback coil and controls the regeneration. The coil "S" is wound on a form 3/4 or 4 inches in diameter with 20 turns of any size wire from No. 20 to No. 26. Arranged to rotate inside coil "S" is coil "T." This coil is wound on a form 3 inches in diameter with any size wire not smaller than No. 26 cotton covered. There are from 15 to 25 turns in the tickler coil T. When the added coil "S" is placed in the circuit, it may be necessary to cut down on the number of turns in the loop. The exact number will depend on the size and number of loop turns. Possibly one or two turns will be sufficient. This can be easily determined by experiment. Another method of accomplishing the same thing is to insert a variometer in the plate circuit of the first tube. The two terminals of the variometer should be connected just as the coil "T" is connected in the above diagram. The variometer method is rather tricky to control, however, and is not recommended as being the best.

A Vivid Picture

of Wembley

The British Empire at Wembley was the theme of an extremely interesting talk given by Miss Ada Howard in the Gower Street School room last evening. Miss Harwood had been fortunate in being able to secure from London a remarkable series of pictures of the exhibition, showing in clearest detail the pavilions of all the exhibition countries and their contents. The pictures of themselves were educating, but their value was enhanced by the lecturer's descriptions, which were clear, concise and entertaining. Her hearers saw the exhibition and were able to appreciate its vastness and wonder, almost as well as if they had visited it, and certainly with far less fatigue. Rev. Hammond Johnson acted as chairman and introduced the lecturer. In spite of the unpleasant weather there was a good audience.

A successful sale of work was conducted by the Cathedral Girls Club at Synod Hall yesterday afternoon. Establishing Eel

Grass Industry

In connection with the eel grass industry it is stated that an enterprising business man is fitting out on an extensive scale to collect the material for export. Operations will begin in season at Hermitage Bay. From all parts of the country people are enquiring where they can dispose of the grass should they collect it. Mr. Andrew Pinnent, of Bellevue, T.B., formerly Tickle Harbor, who is at present in the city, has interviewed a number of business men with a view to finding a market for this product which he states can be obtained in large quantity where he came from. He further states that $20 would pay him for harvesting. At this figure there would be a considerable margin for some enterprising buyer who could make connection in the English market.

LADY INJURES HER ARM.—Miss Mrs. Delaney, of Dunworth St. was proceeding east along Queen's Road, last night, she received a heavy fall on the slippery surface and injured her arm. She was assisted into Dr. Paterson's residence where her injuries were attended to.

Who is Responsible?

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—Within the past few days the whole Island has heard of the terrible disaster which has overtaken the fishermen of the West Coast from Grand Bruit to Channel, in the blizzard of January 23rd, resulting in the loss of 16 lives and many boats. Friday evening the news was flashed over the wires that 20 skiffs were missing, 5 from Ross Blanche, 4 from Burnt Islands, and 1 from Isle aux Morts. Saturday morning further news was received that the number was increased to 13, two from Petites and 1 from Grand Bruit being added. News was also received that some had reached land at various points along the shore, but that 3 were still missing with 21 men. The Magistrate, Mr. Squawey, immediately got in touch with the authorities at St. John's, asking that the steamers Prospero, Glencoe and Kyle be sent in search of the missing boats and men. The authorities responded by ordering the Prospero, then (I think) at Hermitage, to take up the search, which she did, without success. But why was not the Kyle, which was on her way from Sydney to Port aux Basques, also sent in search of the missing men? This is the question the people of the West Coast want answered. The Kyle on Saturday evening and Sunday morning must have been within twenty or thirty miles of the scene of the disaster, or rather the place where they probably would have been, but from all accounts no attempt was made to divert her from her course to search for them. The Kyle arrived at Port aux Basques at 11 a. m. on Sunday and remained tied at the wharf until Tuesday at 5 p. m., when she left on her return trip for North Sydney—54 hours tied to the pier in Port aux Basques, and 21 men probably perishing for want of help. The weather on Sunday and Monday being fine and clear, why this neglect? Messages were sent to the authorities on Sunday and again on Monday pleading with them to order the Kyle out in search. A reply came back saying "Kyle will be sent immediately," but still she remained tied up at the pier. Now, Mr. Editor, I would like to ask who is responsible for this? If instructions were given for her to proceed in search of the missing men, why did she not go? If no instructions were given, why not? The public news on Tuesday stated the Kyle, Glencoe and Prospero are gone in search of the missing boats. The Kyle never left the wharf. Why did the compiler of the public news make this statement? Was it to mislead the people in the other parts of the Island? Or was he informed that the Kyle had gone? I cannot for one moment think he would deliberately mislead the public. Why did the Kyle return at all on Sunday before making some attempt to rescue the perishing men? Was the desire to accommodate passengers or the landing of mails and freight more important than 21 precious lives? There are those who may think so, but I can assure you, Mr. Editor, the people of the West Coast do not think so. Some one has blundered, let the responsibility fall on the right shoulders. Sixteen men have probably perished (as there is very little hope for them now) whose lives might possibly have been saved had a greater effort been made to search for them. This neglect on the part of some person or persons will ever remain fresh in the minds of the people of the West Coast. The greatest praise must be given to our Magistrate Mr. Squarey, who has so interested himself in the cause of the castaways. He was untiring in his efforts to get all the assistance possible sent to the missing men, pleading with the authorities that the Kyle be sent to join the Prospero in the search, but all his pleading availed nothing. Asking space for the insertion of this year valuable paper, I am, Mr. Editor, Yours truly,
H. J. READ.

A Roman Holiday

in Britain

"The recent excavations near Shrewsbury," says the Morning Post, "have uncovered the remains of a considerable Roman city, the city of Uricontium, commanding the reaches of the Severn, and a place where Watling Street was intersected by other great roads."

"Of late years the progress of antiquarian research has brought more vividly to the mind the reflection that Britain was once a Roman colony, in which the Roman law was administered by Roman governors, and which was garrisoned by the Roman legions. The island was what would now be called an outpost of civilisation. During some centuries Britain was an appanage of Italy, her cities were built in the classic mode, the classic tongue was spoken, the classic literature was studied, and many a family dwelling from generation to generation in its central-heated villa upon a great estate titled by Britons, never saw the Imperial city."

"Outside the towns and the areas of cultivated land, Britain was wild forest, pierced by the long, straight roads, desolate moors, and fenland, and so it remained for hundreds of years after the withdrawal of the legions. The Roman occupation and its ending make one of the strangest and perhaps one of the most obscure episodes in history. Until of recent years historians have been contented to pass very lightly over an epoch concerning which documentary information was so meagre. It was generally assumed that the Romans had come, had conquered and departed, and that anarchy and successive barbarian invasions had obliterated nearly all traces of the Roman power. To-day it is coming to be understood that, although the Legions retreated and the island was left defenceless, the Roman never really went away. There must have been intermarriage with the Britons, and the descendants of the colonists must have remained in the island.

"Why is it that the sculptured heads of the Roman Emperors in the British Museum are exactly like Englishmen? Certain it is, at least, that the Roman tradition of law, of literature, of the arts, although submerged by waves of barbarism, did not perish, but survived. English law is founded on Roman law, the Gothic architecture of the Middle Ages was a development of classic forms, and the mediæval songs and tales are all made up of the classic stories intermingled with Welsh, Scandinavian, and German folk-lore."

Medical Services Expenditure

The expenditure incurred by the authorities in 1923-24 in connection with medical services has been characterized as extravagant. We have also said that discrimination was shown in the distribution of the amounts. To-day a statement of the expenditure in the various districts appears in another column, and we leave it to our readers to decide whether or not our previous comments may in any way be considered exaggerations.

How many, we wonder, will regret the passing of a system, whereby the minimum of assistance was given to the sick and afflicted at a maximum of cost—a system which relegated to the background the officials directly responsible for the expenditure, and in fact compelled them to confine their efforts, regardless of their judgment, to the manipulation of a rubber stamp?

Everyone in the community is only too fully aware of the prostitution of the public service and the squandering of public funds, which took place not so long ago under the sacred name of charity, to require his memory to be refreshed by a recapitulation of the facts. Everyone knows that the revelations resulted in a public uprising, in a sweeping out of the old regime and the placing in power of the present Government. They in their turn are continuing the sweeping process begun by the electorate, and in a short time it is hoped that order will be restored out of chaos, and a system introduced in the Public Service which will enable a complete check to be kept on expenditure.

Who is Responsible?

The letter written by Rev. H. J. Read of Channel, which is published in this issue calls for a prompt explanation, if the facts are as stated in the communication, and astounding as they are, we cannot do otherwise than accept them as correct. In our accounts of the South West Coast disaster, reference was made to the search undertaken by the Kyle, and it is inconceivable that with the ship in the immediate vicinity she could not be dispatched without a moment's loss of time.

Congregationalists Hold Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the parishioners of Queen's Road Congregational Church was held last night, the Rev. D. Nichol presiding. The reports of the Secretary and Treasurer were received and adopted. Both were satisfactory and foreshadowed prosperity in the years ahead. The reports of the various societies and organizations were full of encouragement and spoke of the good work already done. The Committee discussed plans for the fitting observance of the 120th anniversary of the Church which falls in the present year. The office bearers were appointed for the ensuing term after which the meeting closed.

Medical Services Expenditure by Districts

Examination of the consolidated statement of payments made to doctors in 1924 by the Department of Charities, for medical services to the so-called helpless poor, shows the following interesting facts:—

(a) St. John's	$12,963
(b) Conception Bay	14,578
(c) Bell Island	4,356
(d) Trinity Bay	2,280
(e) Bonavista Bay	6,293
(f) Bay de Verde	2,138
(g) Fogo	1,265
(h) Twillingate	1,341
(i) St. George's	2,452
(j) Burgeo	35
(k) Fortune	181
(l) Harbin	1,500
(m) Placentia & St. Mary's	8,738
(n) Ferryland	437
(o) St. Barbe	215

Of the expenditure in St. John's, much was for out-patients, but the amount stated includes nothing for the salaries to public hospital staffs, or to private hospitals, and it is true that St. John's people made full use of these, at public expense. An amount of $6,394 paid to Dr. Chisholm out of the total of nearly $70,000 paid to doctors, was largely for parts of Trinity Bay, to which he was often sent at great expense. Twillingate district had the aid of hospitals at Grand Falls and St. Anthony, so its creditable total is partly explained. The places of honor in the list are held by Fortune Bay and Burgeo and LaPoile. Further from hospitals than any others, their doctors' bills at public expense were smallest.

An objectionable feature about this matter was, that whereas in the out-patients the sick poor could only usually obtain the services of a doctor upon the order of a Relieving Officer, it became the custom to authorize the treatment at public cost of all applicants from St. John's or its suburbs who brought letters from Clergymen or other reputable citizens, and even from politicians. No attention seems to have been paid of recent years to the ability of patients to pay for their own care, all the cost of treating those who were willing to accept charity was thrown on the public treasury. Institutions other than the General and Suburban Hospitals have been patronized in this way, often for minor cases, and certain boarding houses have practically sprung into being to entertain persons on the waiting list for treatment. One year ago, over one hundred patients were in these boarding houses, waiting their turn, but now there are only four, so effective have recent regulations proved. The General Hospital is now able to treat all applicants, whereas last year all available space in all local hospitals are full and boarding houses were crammed with those on the waiting list.

In the analysis of expenditure for the care of persons with infectious diseases, certain facts of grave importance have appeared. For instance, upon the occurrence of a case of diphtheria or such like disease, the practice has grown up of quarantining all the members of the family, immediately, including the bread winner; and, as a consequence, of throwing upon the public the cost of feeding all the household, without enquiry into the ability of the head of the family to pay for their necessities. In other words, not alone has the care of the necessitous been paid for, but also of the well-to-do. One case, at least, is on record of paying a storekeeper for food supplied out of his store for the food of himself and his family. Our Magistrate at least has gone on record as saying: "I did not enquire into their means, it was sufficient for me to know that the head of the family could not go to his daily work", while quarantined, because his own family was sick. Of course, where a case of infectious disease is discovered in a family at an early stage, the bread winner should be sent out to board, and should not be quarantined. Help should be given to those who need it, but those able to pay for the keep of their own families should do so, for they have no right to throw upon the public the care of their families.

Magistrate's Court

DRUNKS BLACKLISTED UNDER NEW ACT.
 Two drunks appeared before Judge Morris this morning. When they were called to the bar they had nothing to say to the charge. The police who made the arrests were called, after which Superintendent O'Neill moved that a conviction against both be recorded. He then put in evidence a copy of the Royal Gazette, dated Feb. 3rd, containing the proclamation bringing the new Alcoholic Liquor Act into force. Under this Act no alcoholic liquor shall be sold to any person convicted of drunkenness. The Superintendent asked for a certificate of conviction against both men, which was accorded to by the magistrate. These will be forwarded to the Board of Control so that effect will be given to the Act and no liquor supplied to the convicted parties for at least six months. Besides having the privilege taken from them the men were each fined $1.

Bell Island Trouble Reaches Acute Stage

Government Consider Company's Action Breach of Agreement.

The trouble at Bell Island which resulted from the introduction of the clock system in the mines and brought about a cessation of work, has reached an acute stage. Apart from work at the forge, machine shop and pier, operations are at a standstill since yesterday, and although the Government is leaving nothing undone to adjust the grievance, no satisfactory solution appears yet in sight. The following messages exchanged yesterday and to-day show the seriousness of the situation:—

From Prime Minister to Mines Manager, February 5th, 1925.

A. MacDonald, Manager Besco, Bell Island.
 Consider making any drastic change such as reported without consultation with either men or Government is an entire breach of agreement and appears the last straw to break the camel's back. Before telegraphing Wolvin would like particulars of men's objection and explanation of reason for departure from practice which has prevailed for years.

W. S. MONROE, East Wabana, Feb. 5th.
 Hon. W. S. Monroe, Prime Minister, St. John's, Nfld.
 Repeating your wire. Men's objection to punching time clocks going and returning from mines which have been lately installed is that new system requires them work full time whilst under old system loaders could return to surface after loading twenty cars per pair. Also drillers after drilling from 72 to 120 feet of ground this being accomplished in from seven to eight hours and consider day's work. Chief reason for this change is to get better hoisting days as mine outputs fell away after 4.30 p.m. Loaders are paid bonus on all cars filled over 20 and drillers on all ground drilled over 72 feet. This new system was installed on instructions from Sydney.

A. McDONALD, Sydney, N.S., Feb. 6th.
 W. Monroe, Prime Minister, St. John's, Nfld.
 Your message McDonald repeated here in reply advice regulations to which some of workmen object have been in effect at number three mine for years. Company is requiring all employees to pass through clock house when going or coming off shift. This is a regulation enforced by law in practically all mines in America. Our mines are becoming deeper and it is essential to safety and order that the officials know at any time what men are in mines. A small number of our workmen employed underground were in habit of leaving work before finish of shift and objection to clock system apparently coming from these. No change has been made in rates of pay and none is contemplated.

H. B. GILLIS, Bell Island, Feb. 6th.
 Hon. W. J. Higgins, K.C., Minister of Justice.
 Company introduced clock system for miners. Miners want clock system abolished and work on old system of clock system and eight hour shift, same pay for eight as now getting for ten. Old system has been working for past sixteen years. Company wants men to load ore and drill ground for ten hours. If men load twenty cars and come up before ten hours they will be cut. Would suggest that men go to work under old system while negotiations are being taken up between Government, Company and men. Men determined to stand by this arrangement. Following is Company's reply to men:—"If men do not return to work under clock system on or before 9th arrange pay off whole force."

EDWARD C. HIGHMORE, February 6th, 1925.
 Roy Wolvin, Besco, Montreal.
 You gave us understand men's conditions certainly would be no worse than before. Putting these new regulations into force without even consulting us or men appears to be a breach of agreement and is the last straw with the already dissatisfied miners. Seems to us just as well to be without this industry if better cannot be done. Unless conditions made satisfactory to miners Government do not feel bound to confirm agreement.

W. S. MONROE, Up to 2 p.m. the Prime Minister had not received a reply to the above message.

An Appeal

ROSE BLANCHE DISASTER—ESTIMATED DAMAGE $30,000.
 The terrible gale that swept off this coast on Friday, Jan. 23rd, has left sorrow and disaster in its wake. Fifteen men are still missing and we fear that they are lost. About a dozen skiffs were sunk and nearly two dozen dories were cut loose when the boats made for land—these are a total loss. Every skiff that was out in the gale had all its sails torn to ribbons and the damage to the gear was considerable. We estimate that damage was done to the extent of $30,000. As the men on this western shore rely mainly on the winter fishery for their livelihood the outlook for this winter is black.

We make this appeal in the confident hope that it will meet with a hearty response, and so gladden the hearts of these fishermen who have been through incredible hardships, and have done real acts of heroism in rescuing their fellow fishermen when their skiffs were sinking under them.
 T. GREAVETT, Rector.

 P. WHEATMAN, Nurse.

Rumsey, Peggy Logan, Agnes Stutz, M. Phillips, Mrs. Phillips, Susie McDonald, Myrtle Scott, Arlie Marks, L. Ferris, J. Daley, P. Brady, R. Wassman, A. P. Mottah, M. Kane, J. Ingraham.

Government Boats
 Argyle arrived at Argenta 8 p.m. yesterday. She sails for West at noon today.

Survivor of Storm Arrives for Hospital

John Ingram, one of the survivors of the catastrophe on the West Coast, arrived by S.S. Sable I, at 4 p.m. yesterday, to enter the General Hospital for treatment. Ingram was one of the crew of the Gertrude M., which met her fate at Pointe Platte, Little Miquelon, on the night of Jan. 26th, and being exposed to the weather for several hours, had both hands and feet badly frozen. Ingram, an unmarried man, belonging to Burgeo, and shipped with Walter Blazon, of Rose Blanche, for the winter fishing. It was while they were on the grounds on Friday, Jan. 23rd, that the violent storm came on and in a few minutes the little craft was left helpless at the mercy of the seas. An attempt was made to reach land, but the mainsail and jumbo were torn away and carried with them the raft and booms. Nothing was left to do but run before the wind, and to make matters worse a heavy sea came over, flooding the forecastle, smashed the compass, and doing damage about the decks. Ingram was swept overboard by the sea, but fortunately was swept back on the board again. The crew struck to their posts and did everything possible to clear the forecastle of water. They suffered greatly from exposure and it was utterly impossible to light a fire. For two days and two nights the water-logged skiff drifted on, until it grounded on Pointe Platte, and the crew succeeded in making a landing. The men, frozen stiff from the cold, hungry and exhausted, then walked to the station. They had only ten hours. When Ingram collapsed, and he was unconscious when rescued later. After their arrival at the station the operator and her assistant did everything possible for their comfort. Ingram received treatment under instructions given by wireless from the doctor at St. Pierre. Later they were taken to St. Pierre and received every kindness from the French people. The balance of the crew, including a youth of fourteen, were later sent to their homes, while Ingram awaited the arrival of S.S. Sable I to bring him to St. John's. After the arrival of the ship yesterday, Mr. W. McK. Chambers, M.H.A., went on board and made arrangements for Ingram's removal to the Hospital.

Llewellyn Club

HOLDS INTERESTING MEETING.
 The weekly meeting of Llewellyn Club was held in Canon Wood Hall last night, and was well attended. The President, Rev. J. B. Elliott, continued his Bible Conference address, speaking on the subject—"John Wesley, 'The Power of Christ to quicken'." and gave an interesting discourse. Following this an informal debate was held on inter-denominational education, and the following spoke on the occasion, viz.—Messrs. H. Y. Mott, L. Colley, Geo. Tucker, R. R. Wood, J. G. Hodder, H. J. Burnell, E. Wood, K. Payne. None of the speakers had prepared anything for the occasion and the subject was debated merely from an informal standpoint, but some interesting facts were brought out, for and against the matter and the hope was expressed that should the occasion arise when the subject would be seriously taken in hand, that all would be prepared to express their views as freely as they did last night. Next week the club will be addressed by Dr. Wm. Roberts, on an interesting subject and an enjoyable night is being looked forward to.

To-Night's Dance

"GAIETY" HALL.
 In Aid of Reduction of Debt on C.C.C. "Gaiety" Hall.
 To-night's Dance at the "Gaiety" Hall promises to eclipse last Thursday's Dance, which proved such a splendid success.
 The dates have been somewhat conflicting, as first it was advertised to take place on the 11th, then it was changed to the 9th, then put back to the 11th, now it takes place to-night. This was due to the fact that the "Silvia" on which the Coloured Artists had booked passage, sails on the afternoon of the 11th, and to-night, Friday, will be the last chance to dance to this wonderful Dance Orchestra. Therefore get your tickets at Huton's or G. Byrne's Bookstore to-day as they are limited to 200. Prices: Gent's, $1.00; Ladies, 75c. The Dance starts at 9 p.m. to the music of a special Orchestra from the Mount Cashel Band, and they will play extras until the arrival of the Coloured Orchestra at 10 p.m., when there will be a full programme of Dances and Extras. Don't miss this one. The Arlie Marks Troupe, now playing at the "Casino," will be the guests at the dance to-night.

TO-DAYS MESSAGES.

MRS. SNOWDEN'S LECTURE TOUR.
 ST. JOHN, N.B., Feb. 6.
 Mrs. Philip Snowden, the wife of a former chancellor of the exchequer, gave the last address of her Canadian tour here to-night on Bolsheviki Russia. She is to sail to-morrow on the Montaurier for England. She commented on the fact that she had been asked to speak chiefly about Russia throughout her tour of the Dominion. The choice of a subject had been a surprise to her, as she had come to Canada with the idea of promoting closer relationship between this country and the Motherland. She had thought her Canadian audiences would have wished to know of the new Labor Government in England. That she believed was something of more moment than the episode in Russian history of which she had personal knowledge.

QUEBEC FARMERS TO HAVE PROGRESSIVE CANDIDATES.

Montreal, Feb. 6.
 Progressive candidates in the next Federal and Provincial elections nominated by the farmers of the Province of Quebec will probably be seen as the result of a decision made at a secret caucus held to-day of the United Farmers of Quebec, says the Montreal Gazette in its news columns this morning.

MINE WORKERS OFFER SUGGESTION.

SYDNEY, N.S., Feb. 5.
 A suggestion that the District Executive of U. M. W. District 25 be empowered to enter into a new contract with the British Empire Steel Corporation under which the Cape Breton miners shall receive the same wages that prevailed in 1924 for a period of four months, pending the result of a full and unprejudiced investigation of the wage controversy, was the result of to-day's deliberations of the United Mine Workers here. This was the outcome of a resolution adopted at this afternoon's session of the Conference and was thrown out as offering the best opportunity of reaching a permanent agreement without breaking the present truce or interrupting operations. Should this suggestion not find favor with the operators it was stated that the Executive has another, which was contained in a second resolution adopted this afternoon, but the nature of which has not been divulged. The resolution mentioned above also stipulates that during the four months the men will be guaranteed a fixed minimum of work. To-morrow the convention will deal with the report brought back from International Headquarters by board member William Hayes.

The weekly meeting of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon at 7 o'clock in the Council Chamber. Mayor Cook presided and Councilmen Martin, Outerbridge, Collier, and Dowden were present. The usual preliminaries were disposed of, after which the following items received attention:—
The Deputy Colonial Secretary's report regarding the Council's application for compensation for the erected around the Parade ground, which was taken over by the Government some two years ago, and of which is at present part of the Consolidated City Debt on which heavy interest is being paid. The Mayor stated that this matter had been given consideration by the Council and that the Government at its next meeting Brothers, Limited, commander of the condition of Public Buildings, and of the condition of the building, and that after every rainstorm the building became choked, thereby causing considerable damage to their premises. The City Engineer will have the building inspected. Mr. J. E. Rendell, Warden, C. of E. stated that a light had been placed in this vicinity, and pointed out that immediate action on the part of the Council. The Lighting Committee will take this up with Mr. Rendell.
Mr. J. Hickey claimed compensation for damage to his sleigh by truck in the Sanitary Department. The Sanitary Department is to be asked to submit particulars.
The complaint made by the Medical Officer of Health regarding the unoccupied house, Victoria Street, was taken up. The Medical Officer of Health had investigated the house and had found that it was in a state of disrepair, but could not see any action was possible. A copy of the communication is to be forwarded to the complainant.
Mr. J. Leamon on behalf of the Board of Education, St. John's East, wrote re taxes imposed on vacant land. Flavin Street, which is situated under the Act should be taken up. The City Solicitor is to be asked for an interpretation of the Act.
Mr. George Berg, Brazil's Square, explained what she considered over-taxation on her property. The amount of facts as to assessment, and to be forwarded her.
An application was received from Mr. J. H. Blythe for position as Sanitary Inspector. There being no vacancy, the application was ordered placed on file for reference.
Mr. E. H. Coyle, Ltd., applied for permission to erect a garage on the property. West End. As the application was not sufficient, the matter was deferred until particulars are obtained.
The City Engineer reported on road works. He informed the Board of the men and horses were employed in placing Water Street and the thoroughfares in good condition. He had served notice on Newfoundland Light & Power Company to carry out their part of contract, and that they were now working with his request.
The Medical Officer of Health Brehm reported a new case of Typhoid in the district. He brought to the notice of the Council that owners and occupiers of Water Street, who were not taking the necessary precautions as regards removal of refuse, and in many cases it was not taken from the roofs of buildings. It is allowed to accumulate and it may result in serious infection to pedestrians. It was, therefore, decided that the assistance of the Inspector General be solicited to bring to making guilty parties out of the law.
The Council agreed to hold a special meeting during the coming week at which proposed legislation will be considered. It has been found necessary to seek amendment of certain sections of the Act, as well as new legislation.
The City Engineer, Sanitary Inspector, etc. on routine work of the department were tabled. General resolutions were granted after the passing of accounts of the year adjourned.
Young Skaters
The HOSPITALITY OF PLAYGROUND ASSOCIATION.
A large number of children enjoyed evening skating at the rink yesterday as a result of the efforts of the Playground and Recreation Association. These gentlemen have taken over the rink for Tuesday and Thursday afternoons for the benefit of the young skaters, and yesterday was the first of the new arrangement. The Camel Band was present during the evening and rendered a suitable programme of music, adding to the pleasure of the children. The appeal for skates has met with a responsive and some of the pairs at the rink were much in demand yesterday. More, however, are needed and anyone possessing a pair of skates may be asked to do good deeds by passing them along.

REGULATIONS.

TREATMENT AT PUBLIC EXPENSE, OF THE SICK CASUAL POOR.

Emergency and other cases requiring Hospital treatment were the subject of REGULATIONS recently published.

The health of those on Permanent Poor Lists is the care of the Relieving Officers, under established practice.

Contagious and infectious diseases are the subject of statutes and regulations thereunder, and are within the authority of Boards of Health.

The following instructions therefore, refer solely to the medical or surgical care at Public Expense, of the sick casual poor, by which term is meant, those sick persons who are unable to pay for their own care, and whose natural protectors are unable or unwilling to pay on their behalf.

Application should be made when possible without much inconvenience or suffering, to the Relieving Officer of the locality in which the sick person resides. If the Relieving Officer resides inconveniently distant, the application should be made to the Charities Commissioner at St. John's. Application may be made by word of mouth, letter or prepaid telegram, and should give as full particulars as possible.

Application should in no case be made to members of the Government, Ministers in charge of Public Departments, or members of the Legislature, for it is the duty primarily of the Charities Commissioner and those responsible to him to deal with all matters of this kind, and it is desirable to separate the care of the sick as completely as possible from politics.

Relieving Officers, upon the receipt of an application, if shown that the case is one which calls for aid at the public expense, should send the nearest doctor to attend upon the sick person, if such expense is not thereby incurred, by reason of distance or otherwise, and should forthwith inform the Charities Commissioner of what has been done. If the expense involved may be considerable, the Relieving Officer, before sending a doctor, should apprise the Charities Commissioner of the circumstances, and obtain his instructions, unless grave danger to the sick person would result from delay, and this may be done by telegram whenever the circumstances seem to justify the expense.

In every case in which the despatch of a doctor from St. John's to an outport is required to treat a sick person in such outport, the Charities Commissioner alone has power to send one, and any application for such aid should be forwarded to him and to him only, by letter, if the condition of the sick person will permit, or by prepaid telegram, if delay would be dangerous.

The object of these instructions is to provide that only the helpless sick poor shall be treated at Public Expense, and that all others shall pay for their own treatment, or be paid for, and that the expenditure of Public Money for this charitable purpose shall be more carefully made than heretofore, for a very great injustice is done to industrious people if they are taxed for the care of others able to pay for their own treatment, or with natural protectors able to pay for them; and people able to pay for themselves, and the natural protectors of those unable to pay, cannot consistently with self-respect throw upon the public the cost of treatment.

The Charities Commissioner is the Officer in charge of this branch of the Public Service, the Relieving Officers of the Colony are his agents in this particular, and the interference of others can only be justified by special circumstances.

The cost to the Public under existing practices is becoming very great, and all good citizens, are therefore requested to give their aid in carrying out these instructions in their true spirit and meaning.

JOHN R. BENNETT,
Colonial Secretary.

Colonial Secretary's Department,
February 5th, 1925.

At the Casino

ARLIE MARKS PLAYERS SCORE GREAT SUCCESS IN OPENING BILL AND SPECIALTIES.

The Arlie Marks Players, appearing last night for the first time before the St. John's footlights, won their way to the hearts of an audience which filled the Casino to the doors. The bill was "My Irish Cinderella," starring Miss Arlie Marks, and from the opening score of the orchestra to the final drop of the curtains, there was not a dull moment. The specialties between the acts were exceptionally good and merited the continuous applause with which every turn was greeted. The Scotch Lads and Lassies was a feature in which Miss Peggy Logan displayed marvelous attack-handling as a bass drummer. She also appeared in song and sweetly rendered "Annie Laurie." Jimmy Daley, the Johnny Scot, with his pipes, W. L. Phillips, in musical monologue; Clarence Kane, in dance and comic song, were also star performers. Miss Myrtle Scott received an ovation for her violin solo, and was bound to be a favorite. Miss Sule McDonald, who recently joined the Company, appeared in Scotch dance, and won a host of admirers. Arriving at 4 p.m. yesterday, by Sable I, after a none too pleasant trip, the Company played at a great disadvantage, yet there was not a hitch in the performance. "My Irish Cinderella" is the sought for orphan granddaughter of an English peer, Lord Lonsdale, whose only son received a posthumous decoration of the V.C. during the War.

At the home of Mrs. Magee, in Canada, under the name of Peggy McNeil, the Irish Cinderella lives a life of hardship until the arrival of Lieut. Wingate Earle, who had been sent from England in search of her. Peggy, who was born in a poor house, was unaware of her parentage. Lieut. Wingate Earle, for pecuniary reasons, was not anxious that his uncle's grandchild should be found, and plotted to make a substitute. He succeeded in his plans but they turned greatly to his disadvantage before the end.

Miss Arlie Marks, as Peggy, played a great role. Her outbursts of Irish wit and humor and display of poignant mannerisms in the presence of Lord Lonsdale and his niece, Margaret Earle (Myrtle Scott), frequently shocked their sense of refinement and brought forth frequent applause. As Lord Lonsdale, Paul Brady played to perfection. Lindsay E. Perrin, as Clifford Morgan, who had a deep affection for Peggy, even when she was turned out as an impostor by her grandfather, acted a difficult part with much dignity. The other characters, Mike Moran, Bill Mansfield, Burton, and Annie, appeared thoroughly at home in their roles and merited the applause which they received. The play will be repeated to-night and tomorrow night, with a matinee Saturday afternoon, and no doubt each performance will draw a full house.

The local management is to be congratulated on securing a company possessing such general excellence and we predict for them a most successful engagement.

"My Irish Cinderella"

The greatest attraction this season Mr. Perrin presents to your view in the Arlie Marks Players so please will give their best to your view, So visit to-night the Casino And you will declare, we are sure, That such a show never was seen 'o In our dear native city before.

Requiescat in Pace

It is hard to estimate the real worth of a good man and most men, whether they deserve it or not, are lauded to the skies when they die. Fortunately for himself and as a consolation to his friends, the subject of this short obituary did not have to die to get a good name. On Tuesday night, at 5:30, February 3rd, the Angel of Death gently called to John Joseph Gough, J.P., of St. Joseph's Salmonier, to his reward. Only 62 years old, it would seem that many years would be given him, but two years ago a fatal malady made inroads on his constitution, and the best medical skill in the city was baffled. Early in life, when a mere boy, he chose the sea as his calling, and many will remember him as the young "Captain courageous" of the staunch schooner "Hero" which rescued the captain, crew and passengers of the steamship "Capulet," when the ill-fated steamer was dashed against the cliffs of St. Shott's in the summer of 1895. Beyond a passing notice in the press at the time, perhaps this has never been made known, but those whom he rescued, in whatever land they may live now, will feel sorrow to know that their friend has crossed the bar. To-day at Salmonier, his mortal remains will be laid to rest, and we say with Holy Mother Church in her soul-stirring liturgy, to those left to mourn "Thy brother is not dead."

CHRYSLER

Driving a Chrysler Six touring car—strictly stock in every detail except that a gear ratio of 3.75 to 1 had been substituted for the standard 4.8 to 1—Ralph de Palma, the famous racing driver, made 1000 miles in 78 minutes 6 1-4 seconds elapsed time on the Culver City track near Los Angeles, Jan. 5—an average of 76.82 miles an hour.

This is the fastest speed average ever made by a passenger automobile in distance run, according to J. E. Vice-President in charge of sales of Maxwell and Chrysler Motor Corporations.

Not a single stop was made for mechanical adjustment, tyre changes or even to add water.

Beating its own previous record for 1000 miles by 3 hours and 41 minutes, Chrysler, in this latest run, is faster by 1 hour 2 minutes and 25 3-5 seconds than the fastest time ever made in a similar event.

The run was clocked and the time certified to by representatives of the American Automobile Association. The car was not certified by them as to stock specifications, this being done by Harry Miller, the famous engine builder, and several of his engineers. Their finding showed that the car was stock in every respect except gear ratio.

This latest record is in addition to the one De Palma made last September when he drove an absolutely stock Chrysler 1000 miles in 1007 minutes elapsed time. For that record the Greer-Robbins Co. of Los Angeles, Chrysler distributors, was awarded the Los Angeles Times competitive trophy for long distant speed and endurance, which it has since continuously held.

"Endurance in high speed work was the real test put up to the car," says Mr. Fields. The combination of 1000 miles at an average speed, including stops for gasoline and oil, of 73.22 miles an hour is a speed that tells a story of amazing endurance.

"If you have ever driven the ordinary car at 60 miles an hour you know it is a terrific strain on the car—even on very high priced cars. You can feel that the engine is working far beyond its normal limit. Not so the Chrysler. With the identical engine, pistons, connecting rods, oiling and cooling systems built into every Chrysler, averaged 76.32 miles an hour for 1000 miles. Did it easily, without straining effort, without destructive vibration.

"It is one thing to show a burst of speed for a mile or so. It is quite another to hold that speed for 1000 miles. The first takes power alone—the second, power plus unprecedented endurance.

"A car with destructive vibration could not stand 1000 miles at 76 miles or even 56 miles an hour. An engine with anything but a perfect oiling system would be wrecked long before it traveled 1000 miles with the throttle wide open. A car with anything but a perfect cooling system could not possibly keep an engine cool at its topmost effort for more than 13 hours. What is even more impressive is the fact that not a drop of water was added to the radiator, proving not only that there was no boiling, but that the engine did not once get hot enough to have the water even approach the boiling point.

"It is logical to assume that a car that can stand 76 miles an hour for 1000 miles has the endurance, reserve ability and perfection of design to permit it to stand up for an abnormally long time under normal usage."

The Sources of Fog

LONDON SMOKE CHART AIDED GERMANS.

In the offices of the Coal Smoke Abatement Society in Buckingham Palace-gardens hangs a map which is the smoke chart of London. It reveals by means of black dots the sources of pollution which yearly cause thousands of pounds' worth of damage to property and send up the death rate whenever fog settles over the metropolitan area.

It is a curious fact that if London had not been smoke-ridden before the war, German aircraft would have experienced greater difficulty in finding their objectives when sent out to bomb the factory areas. This map gave them valuable assistance.

It was exhibited at the Dresden Exhibition in 1911 and photographed by the German Government. Every aeroplane and airship that crossed the North Sea during the war carried a copy by means of which all the industrial plants from the lower Thames to West London were plainly indicated.

"The greater part of the factory smoke from which London now suffers," said Mr. Lawrence W. Chubb, Secretary of the Coal Smoke Abatement Society, "comes from outside. It drifts up the Thames from cement works, but is accentuated to an extraordinary extent by the mass of factories in East Ham, West Ham, and Barking. The Royal Arsenal and Dockyard at Woolwich do their bit as well. We have made thousands of complaints regarding this sort of smoke nuisance in East London and the adjoining region, and not one prosecution has resulted."

One firm stated that they were able to save £25,000 annually on their coal bill through adopting measures which secured perfect combustion without the emission of black smoke. The chairman of another company in the London area informed the society that £3,500 a year was being saved through the adoption of a simple mechanical device.

In discussing this aspect of the problem, Mr. Chubb said:

Manufacturers have written thanking us for being prosecuted because the fines inflicted led them to adopt new methods in their boiler houses which resulted in greater efficiency and reduced expenditure. I asked 800 companies in the London area which had cleansed their works of smoke what they thought of the new conditions. Seventy-five per cent. replied that their action meant a substantial saving in expenses.

Dr. J. S. Owens, honorary secretary of the committee on atmospheric pollution of the Meteorological Office, told me that in his opinion the basis of reform must be the fixing of standards. Alteration of the law will not bring relief unless the authorities are able to say definitely when a factory is emitting smoke in sufficient quantities to be a nuisance.

How We Get Our Living

It is more than three years since the first census of inhabitants was taken in England and Wales, yet the results are still being tabulated. The latest volume contains new tables of the occupations of the people.

The largest single group is that called Personal Service (including institutes, clubs, hotels, and so on). Over two million people come under that head, of whom more than a mil-

Are Men Losing Grip?

Women are now making big strides in almost every department of human activity—one of their latest triumphs being the appointment of Dr. Mary Lucas Keene as Professor of Anatomy by the University of London.

The appointment is epoch-making, though about 1750 Anna Moranda Manzolini was given the Chair of Anatomy at Bologna University, on the death of her husband, who had previously held the appointment. Anna, however, had no knowledge of medicine, and does not seem to have passed any examinations.

Medicine is, of course, only one of many spheres where women are making good. So much are they tending to replace men, even in the most sacred of male citadels, that a recent book seriously forecasts a time when women will reign supreme and man will exist only on sufferance. The number of males, according to this author, may be kept down by periodical massacres.

Side Talks.

By Ruth Cameron.

THE LOVE OF TALK.

How people do love to talk! I sat in a restaurant the other day and watched two women. One of them was sitting at a table. The other had risen from another table and had been just about to pass by when she was recognized and hailed. Immediately a most animated conversation ensued. One could not hear what they were saying but one could watch their faces. And one did. And what a change had come over them!

Immediately both women became full of life and animation. They were having a most delightful time. Why? Just because they were talking.

They Just Liked To Talk.

I don't suppose either said anything remarkable or conveyed any particularly good news to the other. Their pleasure came simply from a chance to talk.

I wonder if we realize how much pleasure in life we get out of conversation and social contact? It's hard to say just why we should. It's the part of the big thing known as the heart instinct. The first of human instincts is the instinct of self-preservation, and the second, according to many psychologists, is the herd instinct, the wish for the companionship and approval of one's kind.

Why the Blind Seem More Cheerful.

If you had to choose between being blind and deaf you would undoubtedly choose to be deaf. And yet I have heard it said again and again that the blind are much more cheerful than the deaf. It has been very hard for me to explain this until I also heard an explanation. The point is that the blind man's hardest time is when he is alone, and the deaf man's when he is with people, so that we see the blind in their happiest moments, and the deaf in their least happy. There is a familiar expression, in which this truth is crystallized; we speak of the time between dark and daylight when reading is laid aside and people sit and talk in the twilight (or did in the days before an electric light was snapped on the minute the sunlight begins to wane) as "blind man's holiday." Which it surely is and at the same time deaf man's tantalous cup. Of course the deaf man can talk. But talking is naturally a reciprocal affair. Everyone (except a few rare souls, spirit kin of the wise old owl of oak tree fame) would rather talk than listen, and therefore almost no one is really anxious to listen unless in return he is given his quid pro quo of being listened to.

Child's White Rubbers; sizes 8, 9 and 10; only 50c. pair at F. SMALLWOOD'S.—Feb 5, 11

You'd Think We'd Want To Listen.

Funny isn't it how we do like to talk, for when we listen we get something, and when we talk we simply are saying out loud something we know already. One would think we would bore ourselves, and that we would be eager to give the other fellow the floor and get something from him. But, somehow, we seldom are!

ARMY REJECTS 82 PER CENT. OF WOULD-BE RECRUITS.

Of every 100 men who have applied to join the Army during the past year, 82 have been turned away. Every man who has been accepted has had to be certified by an Army Medical Corps officer as physically Class A I. He has to pass an entrance examination in reading, writing, and simple arithmetic, and he has had to produce certificates of his character during the previous six months at least.

The Army authorities are now exercising almost as much discretion in recruiting for the ranks as hitherto they have shown in selecting candidates. The recruitment of officers is going on just as before the war. The age limit, however, has been reduced to twenty-two instead of twenty-five. There are always far more candidates than vacancies.

HATE.
 If Europe would improve her state she'll have to drop the ancient hate. The people of the Old World lands all carry shotguns in their hands, and glare across the border-lines in search of riot or its signs, and then, for any cheap excuse, they turn a warlike circus loose. They ought to send some delegates to see how these United States and Canada, fair dame of snows, dwell side by side nor come to blows. No frowning armies guard the line, no forts are there, no bullets whine; no battleships watch either shore with threats of violence and gore. Old Uncle Sam, he waves his title, and views our neighbour with a smile, and Canada, she looks at him, and would not rend him limb from limb; "You are a good old scout," she sighs, with warm affection in her eyes; "And you're a peach," says Uncle Sam; "you suit me better far than jam." To Canada our voters go, to wade around amid the snow; they're welcomed there like Santa Claus, so long as they obey the laws. Canadians cross over the line, and always find the "Welcome" sign; we bid them all remove their wraps, and stay eight months, or twelve, perhaps. When Europe's countries cease to glare across their borderlines and swear, and swap the lion for a lamb, like Canada and Uncle Sam, the griffs that rack their souls to-day will shrivel up and blow away.

OPPOSITION TO STONE'S APPOINTMENT.

The question of confirmation of the nomination of Attorney General Stone to the Supreme Court bench was the signal for an outburst of opposition by Democrats, Insurgent Republicans and "third party men" in the Senate on Saturday. They made futile attempts to have the matter discussed on the floor before a motion for executive session was carried by a vote of thirty-seven to thirty-six. Senators Heflin and Overman opposed the Stone appointment on the ground that Stone had appeared before the Supreme Court recently in a case which involved a litigation affecting the J. Pierpont Morgan estate.

It will be remembered that Senator Wheeler was indicted last year in Montana on a charge that he had appeared for an oil operator before the Interior Department after he had been elected Senator, which is contrary to the law. The charge against him was investigated by a special Senate Committee, headed by Senator Borah of Idaho, and he was exonerated. The proposal now is to bring an indictment against Senator Wheeler in the National Capital and to try him here, the plan being to submit the charge to a grand jury at an early date. When Senators learned of this plan of the Department of Justice, they made enquiries at the Department and discovered that Attorney General Stone had full cognizance of it. Great indignation was expressed by Republicans and Democrats alike that an attempt should be in contemplation to try a man 2,600 miles away from his home and in a jurisdiction where, on account of the influence of the administration, it might be found easy to get a conviction against him.

U. S. NO SHYLOCK SAYS BORAH.

Any tentative plans that France might be considering with the object of evading the "straight and narrow" path with regard to her war debts were given a rude jolt when Senator Borah, head of the Foreign Relations Committee, served formal notice in the Senate on Thursday afternoon that France must pay her debt to the last cent, and that she will not be permitted to indulge in any juggling which would result in a compromise wherein the advantage would be all hers. Borah's plain speaking on this occasion was induced by the speech of Louis Marin, member of the French Chamber of Deputies, which contained the statement that France would demand consideration for her losses in life and property in any settlement of her war debts and which Borah thought, judging by the enthusiastic manner of its reception, reflected the sentiments of the French nation at large.

In the District of Columbia Court on Friday argument of counsel was heard on pleas of abatement filed by Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, Edward L. Doheny and Edward L. Doheny, Jr., oil magnates, to the indictment charging them with conspiracy to defraud the United States in connection with the leasing of Teapot Dome and other naval oil reserves. The chief points in the pleas of the accused were the alleged illegal presence in the Grand Jury room of United States Attorney Gordon and Assistant Attorney General Pagan during the taking of testimony.

On the terms of her contract with us—the same terms that now exist on the French debt—we would have collected the sum of $14,905,940,000 from Great Britain," Borah declared, "and under the terms which we gave her we will receive only $11,105,905,000. This was a voluntary surrender of the stupendous sum of $3,800,035,000 to the taxpayers of Great Britain. The United States waived that contract with Great Britain and she is ready to do the same thing for France." Senator Borah quoted statistics showing that during the sixty-two-year term of the British settlement, American taxpayers will pay out $8,172,665,000 in interest on liberty bond issues, the principal of which was loaned to Great Britain. In the same time, he added, Great Britain will pay only $6,505,965,000 in interest on the British loan.

COOLIDGE IS WORLD COURT ADVOCATE.

The stand of the U. S. administration in favor of American participation in the World Court was reaffirmed on Saturday by President Coolidge in an address delivered at the White House to delegates attending the National Conference on the Causes and Cure of War. The President declared that establishing a means for formulating and promulgating the honest judgments and matured public opinion of the world, such as is contemplated in the World Court would be a decided step toward the actual outlawing of war. If civilization is worthy of its name, he said, then physical force is not the only authority which may enforce an anti-war policy. It is for the generation which saw and survived the last and greatest war, he said, to devise means of prevention. "If this fails, we shall deserve all the disaster which will surely be visited upon us because of our failure. In our generation which has seen the supreme demonstration of the futility and the horrors of war, we ought to be able to construct upon an overwhelming sentiment for measures which give reasonable promise of preventing or limiting wars. But, if we may judge by the past, determined antagonism to armed conflict for settling international differences will grow weaker as we recede from the period of the recent struggle. As our vision of its frightfulness is dimmed, as the edge of its horror is dulled with the passing of time, we may expect a corresponding diminution of zeal for institutions to prevent war." The President felt that in sponsoring the Washington conference for the limitation of armaments and in considering the affairs of the Far East, the United States made a genuine and significant contribution toward peace in two of the most troubled areas of the world. He believed that just as the armament conference was a timely and convincing co-operation on the political side, so the Dawes plan was a similarly timely and effective effort on the economic side, and that the next step will be taken by way of participation in a World Court of International Justice.

WASHINGTON SEES ECLIPSE.

Washington, in common with other eastern cities, witnessed on Saturday morning its first eclipse in 119 years. Unlike New York, the eclipse here was not a total one, being reckoned about 95 per cent. but for a few minutes the darkness was such as to make necessary the use of artificial lights while during the period of the sun's partial obscuration business of every kind was suspended while men, women and children, black and white, gazed heaven-ward through pieces of smoked glass. Scientists had gauged the time of the unusual astronomical happening pretty correctly. They figured that the extreme eastern tip of the moon would make its first contact with the extreme western tip of the sun, as viewed from Washington, at 7:55 a.m. It was exactly six seconds after that time that the contact was recorded at the Naval Observatory here.

FALL CASE HEARING.

In the District of Columbia Court on Friday argument of counsel was heard on pleas of abatement filed by Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, Edward L. Doheny and Edward L. Doheny, Jr., oil magnates, to the indictment charging them with conspiracy to defraud the United States in connection with the leasing of Teapot Dome and other naval oil reserves. The chief points in the pleas of the accused were the alleged illegal presence in the Grand Jury room of United States Attorney Gordon and Assistant Attorney General Pagan during the taking of testimony.

FRANCE'S NEW ENVOY.

Emile Daeschner, new French Ambassador to the United States, succeeding Jules J. Jusserand, arrived in Washington on Saturday night, accompanied by his wife and two daughters. The new French envoy presented his credentials at the State Department this morning and formally took up the duties of his important office. Speculation was rife as to whether M. Daeschner had been entrusted by his government with any sort of communication regarding the debt problem, but by most authorities this is regarded as unlikely. The new French Ambassador comes to Washington at a time when, because of the complicated question at issue between the two countries, wisdom and unusual diplomacy on the part of the representative of the European republic are not only desirable but essential, for in the ensuing months, and until such time as an amicable understanding has been arrived at, he must be somewhat more than the mouthpiece of his masters. It is regarded here as unlikely, however, that France's new representative will do much more than familiarize himself with conditions generally before the new administration comes into office on March 4. M. Daeschner has had opportunity on previous occasions of making the acquaintance of Secretary of State-elect Kellogg who, in addition to the major office, also assumes the duties of member of the Debt Funding Commission in succession to Secretary Hughes.

Lion Tamer Mauled

ALARMING INCIDENT AT EDINBURGH CARNIVAL.

Just before the close of an evening performance in the Waverley Market Carnival, Edinburgh, last week, an alarming incident took place, Captain Darius, who is appearing with a troop of performing lions, being knocked down and mauled by a young animal. The lion was one of a pair which were only making their third appearance in the ring. Captain Darius entered the ring armed only with a pair of stout poles. One of the lions rushed at him and knocked the pole out of his left hand, broke it, and as he bent to pick it up sprang on his shoulder and rolled him on the floor. Fortunately he retained his grip of the other pole, and managing to wriggle free, slashed the animal across the head. Captain Darius, with his left arm gashed from wrist to elbow, and suffering from shock, pluckily drove the attack home and forced the two lions into a corner before he himself made his escape. The incident almost created a panic, women and children in the enclosed arena scrambling and rushing for the exit.—Glasgow Weekly Herald, Jan. 17.

Newfoundlander Gallantly Saves Family

FOUR RESCUED AT FIRE IN NEEDHAM.

Turning rescuer and then one man of the department when he awoke and discovered his home in flames early to-day, William Edward Payn of Greendale Avenue, Needham, saved from death his wife, her one-day-old infant and the two other Payn children, three and five years old.

Then making a whirlwind tour of neighbors' homes, the husband and father collected six fire extinguishers with which he kept the flames in check until the Needham fire department could make the three-mile run over the snow-piled roads.

When Fire Chief Howard arrived he ordered another alarm, as the nearest hydrant was many hundred feet from the burning house.

Payn awoke early and heard flames crackling. Smoke was filtering into his bedroom and he investigated. A burst of flame greeted him and he raced back in his night-clothes to the sleeping chambers to begin his heroic task.

Mrs. Payn became a mother only a day ago and the husband picked her up, wrapped in a blanket, and raced to safety. Returning, he repeated the rescue with the helpless infant, and then went back to carry his other two children out, one under each arm.

All four rescued were taken to the home of Dr. Elliott in Greendale Avenue, where they are now being cared for.

The blaze started from a defective chimney and "cored" the interior centre section of the house, doing only slight injury to the exterior. The damage is set at $1,500, but except for Payn's heroic efforts the entire structure would have been destroyed, according to Fire Chief Upham.—Boston Paper, Jan. 22nd.

THE ELECTIONS IN CONCEPTION BAY.

(H. F. SHORTIS, Article XXIV.

HR. GRACE, Sept. 27, 1832.

Proclamations are out dividing the Island of Newfoundland into 9 districts for election of Members in the House of Assembly.

Members	Count
St. John's	3
Conception Bay	4
Fogo	1
Bonaville	1
Trinity Bay	1
Ferryland	1
Piacenta and St. Mary's	1
Burin	1
Fortune Bay	1

Conception Bay extended from Broad Cove, near Portugal Cove, to Bay de Verde Head.

There are already people who state that if these elections are held too soon that many respectable electors, who are now at Labrador, belonging to Mr. Grace, Carbonear and Brigus, will not be home in time to record their votes.

The first to offer their services to the electors of Conception Bay were John Starke and R. Anderson—the addresses are altogether too long for me to repeat. Mr. John Starke was the Registrar of the Court, and starts with: "Circumstances over which I had no control have caused me to alter not obstructing myself upon the public attention."

In another address, I notice that he is taken severely to task for this statement that the electors "do not want any person to represent them that is under the control of anybody." The qualifications laid down by my informant are as true to-day as they were then.

WHAT THE DISTRICT WANTS.

1st.—Members of high respectability of station.

2nd.—Members who have an important stake in the property and interests of the country.

3rd.—Members who have a character distinguished from disinterested patriotism to be expected.

Let the "Freeholders of Conception Bay" reply to this.

In the midst of these Elections a newspaper is started called "The Carbonear Star."

They state: "We hope our Principles and Plans will prove satisfactory to all classes, and that when properly launched on the Tide of Public Opinion we will float triumphantly amidst the gales of Party Prejudice and Political Rancour." They had very troublesome times in those days.

ON THE SUBJECT OF TAXES.

Mr. John Starke states: "I promise not to vote for a direct tax on the Fisheries."

Another party replies to this: "No Government, however corrupt, would vote a direct tax on the Fisheries unless it meant to render the country uninhabitable—therefore that promise is not worth much."

"Again I say trust not in vain promises. Demand pledges, and, if they are refused—refuse the candidate."

"If your candidate lacks either means or the will to perform what he promises—it is your business to discover it, and not give him your support."

The third candidate to come forward is Mr. Robert Pack, of Carbonear. He has been waited upon by many respected and independent electors, and it was the lack of this that caused the desertion of his subjects and the consequent collapse of his "kingdom."

A man named Antoine de Fontaine established a monarchy in Araucania, was luckier than de Thierry in that a country just south of Chile. Antoine he succeeded in escaping to France when his people rebelled against him. He died in 1880 in comparative poverty bequeathing his crown to his secretary, who, however, wisely elected to govern his kingdom from the safe vantage-ground of his rooms in Paris!

A self-elected potentate who wielded considerably more power than any of those already mentioned was William Webster "King of Waion." Webster, an American citizen, was formerly a ship's carpenter on a whaler, but had deserted and joined a little band of settlers scattered here and there in Auckland. The great Coromander chief, known as Hooknose, took a fancy to this deserter, who married his daughter.

He then established trading stations all over the Gulf and Firth of Thames, through which he reaped a large profit when immigration to New South Wales began on a large scale, buying maize and potatoes from the natives and shipping them to Australia. He also kept a boarding house at the native village of Herskine for the benefit of the numerous adventurers who kept coming and going.

The Forger's Chief Enemy

(By R. G. NICHOLLS.)
 The detection of forgery is generally given to the chemist, but actually the skill of the expert is applicable in a few cases only, and even in these his evidence is unreliable outside certain narrow limits.
 The skill of the chemist, on the other hand, is capable of far wider application, and his evidence is generally reliable, being the result of scientific methods based on scientific facts.
 When a suspected document is alleged to be a forgery, the chemist is called upon to determine the composition of the ink used, and sometimes offers very complete evidence of forgery. For instance, in the case of a document in which the ink is written on paper made from wood pulp and yet bears a date before wood pulp was used for paper.
 The ink that is used for writing a document provides much more evidence than the paper it is written on. To some extent the composition of the ink is a manuscript. Carbon ink—made of lampblack or soot suspended in gum—was used in ancient Egypt, and is still used to-day as Indian ink. It was discarded, for ordinary use, by the middle of the fourteenth century in favor of ink made from iron sulphate and extract of galls.

About sixty years ago various color dyes began to be used for making inks, and now the plain iron-gall ink is in small demand.

In the Menzies case documents bearing dates from 1710 to 1770, brought forward in support of a peerage claim, were alleged to have been altered.

The chemist consulted proved that the ink used for making the alleged alterations was different in composition from that used for the remainder of the document. And this was not all, for the chemist was also able to show that the alterations had been made with a steel pen. And as steel pens were not invented until 1808, 90 years after the date of the document, forgery was evident.

In the Picher case the validity of a will dated 1898 was disputed. When tested the ink was found to react immediately with the chemicals used; but the ink on the testator's cheques dated 1904 to 1906 gave only a very slow and slight reaction, while the ink on cheques dated 1902 gave no reaction at all.

The evidence supplied by these and other tests were sufficient to prove that the will was not written in 1898 but at least six years after that date.

Queen Maud leads a nation—but Queen Maud Sardines lead the world.—Jan 23, 24

One morning when Little Jack Rabbit woke up in his little white house in the dear Old Bramble Patch, he saw that Jack Frost had painted a pretty picture on the window pane—a picture of trees and mountains rising above a valley in which stood a tiny house.

"Can that be Jack Frost's little bungalow?" the bunny boy asked himself, and hopping over to the window he looked more closely at the frosty picture.

Just then Little Jack Rabbit heard the low, deep voice of Mr. North Wind in the chimney:

"I blow from the country 'round the Pole. 'Way up North where ice and snow chill my breath as I fiercely blow 'Down through your little chimney hole."

"Please be careful not to scatter the ashes over the floor," answered the little rabbit, hopping back to the bed to pull on his khaki trousers. "Mother has enough to do without cleaning up after you."

"Ha, ha, ho, ho!" roared the old North Wind shaking the little house with his merriment, "don't ask me to be a bunny little breeze. That I would never be, not for a minute; no siree." Just then Lady Love, the bunny boy's pretty mother, called up from the kitchen:

"Are you up, you sleepy head? Please don't linger long in bed. The Clover Cereal's steaming hot. And the Turnip Tea in the old teapot."

"I'll be down in a jiffy," answered the little rabbit, and appearing his hair with a little chip down the middle of his back, he went skip-toeing down the stairs to the neat little kitchen. On the table Lady Love had placed the breakfast of steaming hot Clover Cereal, Pumpkin Pancakes and Carrot Coffee.

Tucking his napkin under his chin, and pushing his whiskers aside, with the bunny boy commenced to eat. First a Lollipop, yellow and sweet.

"Dear, dear," sighed Lady Love, "why don't you eat your Clover Cereal? You know that makes bunny boys grow into strong rabbit men."

"Don't worry, Mother dear," answered the little rabbit. "I'll start right away quick to eat my Clover Cereal," and picking up the silver spoon, big and round like Mrs. Moon, he commenced, and before long the Clover Cereal was tucked away under his furry waistcoat gray.

Just then a tapping came at the kitchen door, gently at first, then louder and louder. "Who can it be?" thought Lady Love, looking up over her coffee cup. "Could it be some disagreeable person?" And in the next story you shall hear who was knocking on the door with a great big hairy paw.

China's Quaint Customs

A LAND WHERE EVERYTHING'S "TOPSY-TURVY."
 In China the individual is next to nobody and the Family everything. And Family does not mean simply the Chinaman's immediate household, his wife and children, but also his parents, his grand-parents, his grand-uncles, his brothers and their wives and children, his young unmarried sisters, and the many servants necessary to attend to their wants.

Quite probably, all these people will "live under the same roof." Every son when he marries brings his wife to his father's house, and their children are born and brought up there. The greatest sin a man can commit is to harm his family or disgrace his ancestors.

Waste to a Chinaman is considered stupid. Both high and low are economical and careful with clothing. It would never occur to them to throw away or destroy any piece of cloth or silk woven with so much patience by somebody, while one good thread remains.

The Chinese are a logical race, says Lady Hosié in "Two Gentlemen of China." When they see no reason to risk their lives, they decline to do so, if they can possibly keep in safety. Once, however, show them a good and sufficient reason, and they are as fearless of death as any other nation.

Men are sacred, superior beings in China. Lady Hosié tells of an English mother who had twins, a boy and a girl. Once both were crying as mealtime approached and, in haste, the mother picked up the nearest child, which happened to be the girl. Her Chinese servant plucked the child forcibly from her arms, and gave her the other. "Feed the man-child first," she cried, shocked at the mother's ignorance of the relative importance of the two.

Surnames are limited in number, there being but one hundred all told, so everyone you meet must bear one of them. Christian names are different, for each child has a special one composed for it.

There is no week as we know it, in China, only the day of the month, or the moon. Shops and businesses are open every day, there being no break the whole year round, except for a few festivals. The workmen, apprentices and servants have no half-holidays and no Sundays.

Parental authority is very strong. No son would ever dream of opposing the wishes of his father.

When writing letters to each other a son uses most ceremonious phrases—written neatly and on proper paper; whereas a father may scribble how he likes and on any odd bits of paper.

The elder members of a family exact implicit obedience from the younger. If a sister is unmarried, and her elder brother finds what he considers a suitable husband for her, she is compelled to marry him. Were the ages reversed, however, the brother would have no authority to command obedience.

Empire Films of Adventure
 THRILL IN EVERY INCH.
 Two films taken by British photographers and showing the achievements of Britons in far parts of the Empire are now being shown in London. Technically they are described as perfect, artistically they have nothing to be desired, while for interest and adventure there is a thrill in every inch.

"The Epic of Everest" at the Scala Theatre shows the gallant attempt to scale the mountain, with Irvine and Mallory, the missing explorers, who may have won to the top, making their last climb. The other film, "To Killmanjaro," at the Palladium Hall, Great Portland Street, W., takes the audience to Tanganyika territory, the country, formerly German East Africa, which Britain is administering under mandate. Both are pictures which appeal to

A. HARVEY & COMPANY . . . 10
JAMES BAIRD, LTD. . . . 3

By a score of 10-3 the team of A. Harvey & Company, defeated James Baird, Limited, in last night's game of the Mercantile League, in a game that was more interesting than the score would indicate. The ice was in good condition, and a number of supporters of both teams witnessed the contest. The game was a fairly clean brand of play throughout and only a couple of players were sent to the "cooler."

Owing to the mild weather, the ice at the Curling Rink last night was not suitable for playing the points game for the G. W. V. A. trophy.

This will now take place on the first available date. On Monday night there will begin, the historical inter-division game for the Victoria Trophy. The Reds and Greens will play from 7 to 9, and the Whites and Blues from 9 to 11. The winning teams will play off Tuesday.

TWO MORE FOR NURMI.

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Jan. 25.—Paavo Nurmi, holder of ten world's running records, made in 13 days, added two to his list last night.

Nurmi, who started 100 yards ahead of the Finnish star, reached the tape a bare yard ahead of Nurmi, who forgot his famous stop watch in his attempt to overtake his countryman.

Nurmi, however, established a record from scratch when he reached the mile and one-eighth mark in 4:58. He set another by finishing the 2,000 yards in 5:00 4-5 seconds.

CHILDREN ENJOY FREE SKATE.

A large number of children were present at the rink yesterday afternoon, and spent an enjoyable few hours skating, as the guests of the Playground and Recreation Association. The Mount Cashel Band through the kindness of Rev. Bro. Ennis was present and rendered a splendid programme of musical selections, much to the pleasure of the kiddies.

INTER-CLUB CARD TOURNEY.

B.I.S. Victorious Last Night.

The second game of the inter-club card tournament between the members of the B. I. S. and K. of C. was played at the former's rooms last night, and proved a very enjoyable contest. The full number of players participated and when the scores were tallied it was found that the B. I. S. had been victorious by 400 points. The prizes for the highest score were won by Inspector Mackay, Messrs. J. Byrne and J. Farrell of the B.I.S. team. Mr. W. E. Brophy won the "hooby" prize and was presented with a pack of cards. After the game refreshments were served and a musical programme taken up. Songs were rendered by Messrs. George Jackman and H. J. Brophy, whilst songs were rendered from the song sheets provided. Mr. W. J. Wallace was at the piano, and an evening of much jollification resulted. Next week the tournament will be held at the K. of C. rooms.

AUSTRALIA WINS BEST TEST MATCH KNOWN IN HISTORY.

Defeats English Team by 11 Runs in Two Innings of Great Play—Bowlers Crippled—English Batsmen, However, Put Up Wonderfully Plucky Game.

ADELAIDE, Australia, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press via Reuters)—Once again England has failed against the invincible Australian cricketers, this time in the third test of the present tour, the great struggle ending shortly after play was resumed to-day, the Antipodeans winning by the scant margin of eleven runs. Australia thus wins the rubber and brings its total number of test match victories over England to 46. Since the inauguration of the contests in 1877, England has won 40 games while 21 have been drawn.

In Australia the home players have always shown superiority, 35 victories being credited to them while England has won 23, two being drawn. Test matches in England have resulted as follows: England won 17; Australia won 11, drawn games 17.

The match concluded to-day was one of the toughest uphill battles ever fought on the island continent by an English test team. During the course of the game four of England's best bowlers suffered from injuries, fortunately they were all on the field during the last innings of their opponents, but A. E. R. Gilligan, the Captain, and Woolley, the Kent professional, were badly handicapped and were unable to do much with the ball. But if the bowlers were to some extent incapacitated, the batsmen of the team played a magnificent defensive game and by stonewalling in both innings gave their fellow players every chance to recover from their injuries.

At the conclusion to-day, Collins, the Antipodean captain, declared that the fixture was probably the finest game seen in Australia for many years. "England made a magnificent fight, and it was anybody's game to the last wicket," he said.

Australia scored 489 and 250, England replying with 265 and 363.

The city was intensely excited over the match, and the public to the number of 10,000 were admitted free. The weather was fine and the wicket good. Cheers greeted the batsmen as they appeared. The first ball from Gregory flashed to the boundary for four byes amid howls of disappointment. Freeman almost played on, but he cut the sixth ball for two. Gilligan's downfall when the score stood at 357 was hailed uproariously by the crowd. He had batted for an hour and 50 minutes and hit four fours. His innings was the more worthy because of his being hampered by his thigh, strained a few days ago. Women screamed and men gasped when Freeman skied a ball over Ryder's head, but the ball dropped safely.

There was a remarkable demonstration at the close of the game. The players had to force a passage through the seething mob of admirers, many of whom remained on the ground discussing the game long after it ended.

The teams lunched with Lord Forster, Governor-General of Australia, who congratulated both teams on the magnificent fight made and the true cricket spirit throughout the match.

Gilligan, the English captain, who was first to congratulate Collins on winning the rubber, when interviewed afterwards, said he would not complain of his luck. He was glad they had made a decent fight. The Australians' batting, coupled with the splendid bowling of Malley and Gregory, contributed to the Englishmen's defeat. He looked forward to a renewal of the sporting games in England next year.

The Scores:

Australia, first innings	489
England, first innings	365
Australia, second innings	250
England, second innings	363

Notes on Votes

Let us consider the statement that "if women vote, they ought to fight." If no men were allowed to vote except those who were able and willing to do military and police duty, women might consistently be debarred for that reason. But so long as the old, the infirm, the lame and the blind are freely admitted to the ballot box, some better reason must be found for excluding women than the fact that they do not fight. In America, all men over forty-five are exempt from military service, yet they vote.

Col. T. W. Higginson has stated:—"It appears by the record of United States Military Statistics that out of the men examined for military duty during the Civil War, of journalists 740 in every 1,000 were found unfit; of preachers, 974; of physicians, 680; of lawyers, 548." He also adds: "Grave divisions are horrified at the thought of admitting women to vote when they cannot fight, although not one in twenty of their own number is fit for military duty, if he volunteered. Of the editors who denounce woman suffrage, only about one in four could carry a musket; while, of the lawyers who fill Congress, the majority could not be defenders of their country, but could only be defended."

Lucy Stone said: "Some woman risks her life whenever a soldier is born into the world. Later she does picket duty over his cradle, and for years she is his quarter-master, and gathers his rations. And when that boy grows to a man, shall he say to his mother: 'If you want to vote, you must first go and kill somebody?' It is a coward's argument."

Mrs. Z. G. Wallace, of Indiana, from whom Gen. Lew. Wallace drew the portrait of the mother in "Ben-Hur" said: "If women do not fight, they give to the State all its soldiers." This ought in all fairness be taken as an offset for the military service that women do not render. As Lady Henry Somerset says, "She who bears soldiers does not need to bear arms."

Burglar Alarms to Safeguard Valuables.

One of the best burglar alarms on show at a recent exhibition is a sort of combined watchdog and photographer. It is worked by electricity, and can be attached to any safe, jewel box or valuable picture.

The slightest pressure sets the alarm going. All the bells in the house are rung, and in addition, a flashlight is ignited, and a photograph taken of the intruder.

It is impossible for a burglar to disconnect the apparatus without setting off the alarm bells ringing.

Jewellers frequently suffer from thieves who break the shop window and make off with a handful of valuables. A recent invention dooms such attempts to failure.

Parallel lines of wire are stretched behind the glass. If two wires touch each other, or one is broken, a spring shutter below the window flies up with terrific force, and presents an impassable barrier between the crook and his quarry.

Alarm bells are rung at the same time to give warning if the attempt is made at night. This apparatus, also, cannot be disconnected without raising the alarm.

Tugs Pull in Vain on Stranded Steamer

ATTEMPT TO FLOAT YANKTON FROM NIX'S MATE FAILS.

An effort to float steamer Yankton from Nix's mate, in the lower harbor proved unsuccessful when tugs pulled on the stranded craft for more than an hour. The steamer lies on the edge of the channel with deep water several feet from her starboard side and is not leaking. The Merritt, Chapman & Scott Wrecking Company has contracted to float the Yankton and lighter Salvor was dispatched to the scene with divers and powerful pumps.

A wait for an unusually high tide, may be decided on before undertaking to float the vessel from her rocky bed. Should the operation then prove futile some of the cargo, destined to Halifax, N.S., and St. John's, Newfoundland, will be lightered. The Yankton went ashore during Tuesday's blizzard while returning to this port—Halifax Herald, Jan. 23.
