Two Toronto Teams Tecumsehs and the Torontos

Tecumsehs Found Cornwall Easy, Leading at Three Quartar Time by 9 to 3.

Not more than 3000 people witnessed the N.L.U. contest at the Island on Sat-prday between Cornwall and Tecum-sehs, which was won by the Tecumsehs, which was won by the Tecumsehs.

The game was a fairly good exhibition tho, and for the most part was enjoyed by the spectators. The Cornwall team is showing some improvement, but not enough to win games against teams like the Tecumsehs, who are showing increased speed with every game. Querrie's generalship was missed on the home, and McGregor's and McDougall's play, while very good, was too selfish for Durkin to be effective. They passed the ball too much the one to the other, and thereby missed chances of goal-getting by others on the home. On the showing yesterday, Tecumsehs ought to win in Cornwall on the holiday, which would put them right up with the leaders.

The teams:

Cornwall—Goal, H. Smith; point. White; cover, Cameron; defence field, F. Degan, Fred Cummins, F. Cummins; centre DeGray; home, Hessier, Phelan, R. Degan; outside, McMartin; inside, D. Smith.

Teoumsehs—Goal, Kinsman; point, Green; cover, Yeaman; defence field.

D. Smith.

Tecumsehs—Goal, Kinsman; point, Graydon, McKenzie, Ions; centre Felker; home field, Rountree, Murton, McGregor; outside, Durkin; inside, McDougall.

ker: home field, Rountree, Murton, McGregor; outside, Durkin; inside, McDougall.

Referee E. St. Pere; judge of play, Peter Murphy; time-keepers. W. H. Hall a.d. J. P. Delaney; penalty time-keeper, Punshon; goal umpires, J. K. Forsyth and Percy Quinn.

Felker drew the ball and Murton got the pass. Tecumsehs' home attacked. Felker missed ont on the side, but quickly recovered, and taking a pass in front of the net, scored for the Indians in less than a minute, and before Cornwall had touched the ball. Cornwall went down with the ball. Cornwall went down with the ball on the next face-off, but never got a shot. On the contrary, the good work on the Indians' home resulted in Durkin notching another for the Indians.

This was closely followed by one from McDougall, and the procession was started. Cornwall did not follow their checks, and at this period it was easy for the Indians. Tecumsehs' defence were checking closely, and whenever Cornwall did get a chance it was quickly nipped in the bud.

Tecumsehs 3, Cornwall 0.

The visitors' defence had settled down quite a bit, and altho the fast Indian home got in repeatedly for the next few minutes they did not find it as easy to get goals. Even at that Gornwall had several narrow escapes. Felker received the first penalty, get-

Cornwall had several narrow escapes.
Felker received the first penalty, getting five minutes for upsetting fred Degan. Rountree fell and hurt his knees, and had to retire, and Hessier of Cornwall was laid off to even up.
End of quarter, Tecumsehs 2, Cornsell

Rountree Had to Retire.

Second Quarter.—Cornwall got the face-off and made a determined attack, but the Indians' defence was right on the job from the start, and the ball travelled down the field. Ions was benched for a minor foul. The Tecumsehs' home men were playing rings around the Cornwall defence, but were unable to get the goals, thanks to the grand work of Don Cameron and John White. The tendons of Rountree's leg went back on him, and he had to quit the game, Robinson being permitted to replace him. Cornwall's home came too suddenly, and for a time a goal looked certain. The ball was passed like lightning around the net. but spectacular work by Kinsman and his pefence kept it out. Finally the Indians broke away with the ball, and on some splendid passing Robinson notched the fourth for Tecumsehs. Time 13.40.

Durkin and Frank Cummins were benched for checking too hard. For the next few minutes the play was more even being up and down the field with regularity, but still the Indians showed their superiority and constantly checked meir opponents so that their play was never very effective. Then it came to Felker to get in one of those famous underhand shots, which he passed thru the whole Cornwall defence for Tecumsehs' fifth goal.

Indians 6, Cornwall 0.

Indians 6, Cornwall 0, Alf Smith tried hard to check defeat by changing his men around. Phelan was sent out to the field to replace Hessell, who was put to check lons. McMartin, who was not very effective at outside home, changed places with Fred Degan, Degray was hurt and had a strategies of the produced by Charlie Fred Degan, Degray was hurt and had to retire, and was replaced by Charlie Degan, making three of the famous brothers on the field. On the resumption of play, Murton notched Tecumsehs' sixth goal. So far Cornwall had failed to find the net. Tecumsehs were again attacking with a good opportunity to score when the half-time whistle Bounded. Score: Tecumsehs 6, Cornwall 0.

Third Quarter — Tecumsehs again ook the face-off, but lost to John White, and the ball went down the field White, and the ball went down the field at a fast clip. Frank Cummins drew first blood for Cornwall on a shot that fooled Kinsman entirety. This was followed by a face-off and a score by Hessell, the whole taking just 10 seconds. Then again Felker came with his under-handed one, and the score was: Tecumsens 7, Cornwall 2.

Cornwall were now playing a better game, evidently the shifting about having been beneficial. The game was a game, evidently the shifting about having been beneficial. The game was a better one to look at, altho it was a foregone conclusion that the Tecumsehs would win by a one-sided score. McGregor got the next goal for the Tecumsehs on a good shot from directly in front of the net. Bob Degan scored the next for Cornwall, giving a successful imitation of Felker's shot. Cornwall pressed the Tecumsehs' defence hard for the next few moments but lost several good chances when they had the advantage of two men. The Tecumsehs were always trying.

Fourth Quarter-Cornwall opened the last quarter with an attack on the Te-cumsehs' goal, which fall short when they came to Graydon. The latter was N. L. U. RECORD.

Brampton 4, Tecumsehs 2.

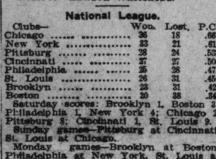

The Brampton Excelsiors and Tecumsehs played an interesting game of lacrosse in the junior class at the island oval Saturday resulting in a victory for Brampton by 4 to 2. Until the third quarter the Tecumsehs played even up with their opponents but Brampton showed the best staying ability, and towards the end of the quarter they worked ahead Both teams showed fast combination, and Brampton, composed of fair-haired men, who are fast on their feet, will take some beating for the Ontario championship. Interest in the game was keen, as over one thousand people got over to the island in time to see the game. Owing to the big game starting at 3.30, the quarters were cut down from 20 to 15 minutes.

The teams:

Brampton (4)—Goal, Campbell; point, Mara; cover, Williams; defence, Warre, Burrel, Blain; centre Stevens; home, G. Shroule, Sarles, Laird; outside, Davis; inside, Chariton; captain, Hollis.

Tecumsehs (2)—Goal, McArthur; point, Patterson; cover, Parkinson; defence, Kent, Bullen, Oakley; centre, Stevenson; home, Wympenny, Richards, B. Irvine; outside, Hewitson; inside, Winters; captain, Unroe.

Referee—Lawson Whitehead.

Second quarter.—Barry was at the fence when the second period commenced, and Torontos had the advantage of an odd man. Fitzgerald brought the ball in from centre and scored the fifth goal for Toronto in 1.10. Stagg was sent off for tripping Munday. Barnett scored again for Toronto in 6.05 on a nice side shot that heat Muir. Dillon saved another a moment later, when Muir passed the ball to Kalls. Warwick tailled Toronto's seventh goal from a scrimmage when a half dozen players were mixed up.

The latter was won by the Montreal owned horse Ballycastle, after a good race thru the field, from Nat B. and Stellaland. Nat B. was messed about a good deal or he might have won, as he came with a rush thru the stretch and was gaining on the National Handicap to-day from a classy field of horses. He was the favorite in the betting at 13 to 5, with Stanley Fay at 3 to 1 and the rest from 4 to 1 to 8 to 1. The field got away to a good break with Plaudmore out in front setting the pace. Seismic was next, with Stanley Fay and Don Antonio a length away. Detective was away back. They kept this order to the head of the stretch, where Musgrave made his run and drew away to win all by himself. He had plenty left at the finish. Stanley Fay ran well and made a game effort to catch the son of Havoc, but had to be content with provement and closed up fast in the lest but tired in the run home. COSTLY WEDDING GIFTS THE BAGE IN ENGLAND MONG NOUVEAU BICH

Half a Million Dollars Spent on Miss Drexel's and Miss Mildred Carter Will Receive Nearly As Many.

From a Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, June 24—Not less than $500,000 is the value put on the wedding presents to Lord Maidstone and Miss Marguerita Drexel on their marriage. A smaller figure will estimate the value of those given to Lord Acheson and Miss Mildred Carter, but in any case it will be uncommonly large. The string of pearls given to Miss Drexel by her mother has been pronounced by experts to be the most perfect specimen as regards color, size and uniformity in the world and is valued at $100,000. Other Americans possess strings of pearls five times the length of this and pearls which are twice the size, but they cannot compare with Miss Drexel's for the qualities mentioned, more especially in regard to color, which is the most desirable of all essentials where pearls are concerned. For months past experts have been searching in all quarters for these stones, Mrs. Anthony Drexel having given the jeweler from whom she ordered the pearls carte blanche, emphasizing only one condition, namely that they were to be precisely what she wished. tion, namely that they were to be pre-cisely what she wished.

Motto of Brides.

The motto among fashionable brides of the day is that a thing may be simple, but it must be perfect of its kind if it is to be acceptable to them. They have no place for anything which is not above reproach and genuine of its kind. At a recent tea which was given to show the bride elect's presents it was noticed that the best things were all placed in a conspicuous position while the others were stowed away into a dark corner and no one's attention drawn to them. Among the givers of wedding gifts there is often the keenest rivalry as to who will present the most costly. To be in a position to give a prominent English residents visited the scene, and the streets were crowded with tens of thousands of spectators. The poor dispersed shouting: "Glory to the British Raj."

A bride of last season, the daughter of a peer, who married into a well-known and fabulously wealthy Jewish family, told me what she suffered from the benevolent intentions of her prospective relations who had the most flamboyant ideas of beauty. Her future father-in-law wanted to give her a great massive "fender" of diamonds, another relative sent a fearful and wonderful candelabra, hideous in design, and costing a small fortune while the bride longed for a fortune while the bride longed for a few old silver candlesticks. When she asked that the ungainly ornament be exchanged for such the relative exclaimed, "Well, I'm flabbergasted,"

Presents By Wholesale.

Fashionable brides have to put up with a good deal from those givers who buy wholsesale and by the dozen certain articles which they pass on to each friend about to marry. Clocks are among the objects which certain people in Mayfair "stock" by the dozen in the cupboards in which are stowed away other items, for future use. Perhaps this was why Miss Drexel received nine clocks and fifteen rose bowls among her gifts. Some of the latter were so beautiful that she no bowls among her gifts. Some of the latter were so beautiful that she no doubt forgives the donors for duplicating. The late King Edward and Queen Alexandra started this notion of purchasing gifts by the dozen. In their case no doubt it was excusable inasmuch as by the giving the same present to each friend they avoided ralousy—the object aimed at.

on Railway Track to Prevent Removal of Trucks.

Special Cable to Sunday World. PARIS, June 25 .- One of the most remarkable actions ever taken in a strike was witlessed at Mery-sur-Oise, near Pontoise, on Friday, the wives of the striking quarrymen going so far as to place their babies on the railway track to prevent the removal of some trucks. The strike of the men employed in the local quarries has been going on for the last two months, and on Friday a gang of about three hundred strikers took the local station by assault, in order to stop a train which was carrying stone from the quarries where the men have not abandoned work. Pelice and gendarmes were summoned, but the rioters lay down on the line, stopping all traffic. It took the officials nearly an hour to clear the track. One of the things alleged by The World against the Canadian Pacific is that it is paying its shareholders over 14 per cent. per annum—a dividend of 7 per cent. and bonuses that exceed an additional 7 per cent. per annum. Let us quote from the fortnightly letter of Playfair, Martens & Co., stock brokers, Toronto, issued vester-

A careful study, however, of C.P.R. will show that the returns in the past amply warrant the present price, and the yield on the money invested has been considerably over 7 per cent., instead of in the neighborhood of 31/2, as would appear at first sight. During the past ten years the C.P.R. has increased its capital five times: on the first four occasions the new shares were issued at par, and the last issue (which is not fully paid yet) was at 125, being at the rate of one new share for every five old ones. These rights have always been readily sold, and have returned on different occasions as follows: 1902. 41/2 per cent.; 1904, 5½ per cent.; 1906, 12 per cent.; 1908, 7½ per cent., and 1910, 10 per cent., or a total of about 40 per cent. over and above the regular dividend. This statement shows that the shareholders got 8 per cent. per year on rights, and this, with 7 per cent, dividends, makes 15 per

Not Even a Morsel for the Dear Public

Will Canada Heed the Sign Post?

This is a time of much political concern, much financial concern in the United States.

Congress is in session, and the president and his cabinet are doing their best to get corrective, remedial legislation thru congress. The people are breathlessly awaiting the result. There never was so much political thinking as there is now in the States; there never was such a struggle between the People and the Interests.

In the Financial Realm the same serious thinking erican securities are more or less discredited in the eyes of outside investors. Money cannot be had either for old or new enterprises. The methods of "high finance" have been found out and they will not any longer be tolerated by outsiders. You can't water stocks over and over again, you can't switch away assets from railway properties into the pockets of shareholders and promoters without destroying credit. And when these things are found out, you cannot succeed in placing the blame for the drop in prices on those who expose the facts—the blame belongs to the men who made the facts.

The World says the like political and financial disorders will come to Canada if we follow American methods.

The Canadian Pacific, our greatest financial corporation, has started in on the Vanderbilt and Harriman slide, and if it gets going, many other of our concerns will take the same methods. Hadn't we better see where we're going?

There is no holiday for the earnest public men, the financial men of the United States, this summer. They are up against it. Ask a man

One of the most spectacular features of the afternoon's events was the way in which Count Jacques de Lesseps, in his aeropiane, yent up, while Cromwell Dixon's dirigible balloon was in the air, and literally flew rings around him, flying over and under the big gas bag and all round it, while the spectators cheered the performance.

First to Fly.

Walter Brookins, in one of the four Wright Bros.' biplanes, was the first to mount from the earth, making a short flight about the field. It was ong the ground and rose ra-rowkins circled the field and des-everal figure eights, demonst-te absolute control he exercises are machine. He landed, after

A little later M. Miljean essayed a flight in a Bleriot machine, owned by William Carruthers, a local man. As the machine ran along the way, it slewed to the right, struck a depres-sion, and one wheel landed in an old well.

Miljean again tried. This time his machine rose a short distance, began to slide and, after traveling 100 yards, struck the ground in front of the moving picture machines, smashing the propeller, damaging the engine and injuring much of the under frameworld. The aviator himself was not hurt.

Evening work? Not much! Every citizen, capable and incapable, migrates to lake shore and park green to loll at ease.

It is under present weather condi-tions that thousands of public school children have been wrestling with exams, class and entrance, wearing down body and mind under the un-

With the parents are ranged the medical men of the city in unsparing condemnation of this evil. They point out that by countenancing its exiseducational authorities are defeating their own ends; that it makes wrecks of the children mentally and physically, rendering them in-capable of doing their best in subsequent school sessions. And surely such a concensus of opinion should either abolishing these examinations altogether or at least of making the necessary arrangements for holding

. PRESOYTERIANS CHEER HOME RULE SENTIMENTS AT GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Hiss Old Leaders Who Declare That Unionism is the Faith of Irish rrotestantism - A Significant Incident.

DUBLIN, June 24.-Uncommonly significant was the scene which oc curred during the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Bel-fast, when it became evident that at least haif the ministers and lay repre sentatives present were avowed Home ulers. Ten years ago a Prespyterian Home Ruler was as rare as the great auk and if one did exist he took good care to keep his sentiments to nimself in a gathering like that which was held at Belfast. The trouble arose over a speech by the Rev. John MacDermott, known all over the north of Ireland as "Long John," and an uncompromising Union ist. He deplored the fact that the manifesto signed by himself and a number of other Presbyterian leaders during the last general election declaring against Home Rule had been used to help the election of candidates who were opposed to temperance re-

The Rev. William Wright, another signatory to the manifesto jumped up at this and said he didn't care how it was used as long as it helped the cause of the Union which he placed tefore every other political question of the day. The scene which followed this declaration was remarkable. Fully half the members of the assemhly rose to their feet cheering and

"No, no" they shouted. "It isn't a question for a religious body at all."
"You are only veiled Home Rulers." Mr. Wright shouted.

Out and Outers.

ed. "We are Home Rulers and are proud of it," and the cheering which greeted this declaration was quite as loud and as general as the nissing.

A number of lay delegates then declared that half the Presbyterians in Uister were Home Rulers and no longer regarded the management of Italy affairs by Irishnan as a borony. Irish affairs by Irishmen as a bogey to scare chidren with and a num-ber of them added that the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church was no place for the discussion politics particularly as the church membership was no longer by any means unanimous on the political questions of the day. Of course, one must not forget that the Ulster Presbyterians in turning to Home Rule are only coming back to their old love. A hundred years Canadian, and he such ago they were the backbone of the unapproachable style. national movement and the rebellion of 1798 was led and organized by Presbyterians, while the Presbyterian rank and file fought at the battle of Antrim side by side with their Roman Catholic countrymen.

Swayed By Dr. Cook.

The identification of Presbyterian-sm with Unionism dates only from the middle of the last century and is due to the extraordinary influence exercised over his co-religionists by the late Rev. Dr. Cook, whose statue now stands in the streets of Belfast. He persuaded them that if Ireland se-cured Home Rule she would be ruled by the priests of the Roman Church and that the terrors of the inquisition would be revived for all who did not accept their religious and political

Events of later years-particularly the success of the land purchase acts obtained by the efforts of the National Party-have convinced the Presbyterian farmers of Ireland that this is all moonshine and while the men of the older generation still cling to their old political faith the young men, and women of Ulster are taking their prop-er place again in the forefront of the national movement. It must be remembered too that the Ulster Presbyterians have a record of sturdy democracy amounting almost to republicanism. In fact the ideal of the unsuccessful rising of 1798 was the foundation of an Irish republic and the leaders were greatly influenced by the same propaganda which led to the Tis very evident that the Scottish supporter seemed called upon to contribute some entertainment to the wan dering Jamie, for he stuffed him beautifully with the following splendid piece of fiction. "He," the Canook," had spent the previous day in town, and looked too long upon the lager, missed the last train to his flundred miles distant home, and, heing in the touching state known as 'stony,' had, like Don Caesar de Bazan, supped on cold air and had the whole expanse of heat—artificial by preference—and nothing to do, and she will be as happy as one of her peevish nature can be. The result of her stewing and inertia is a dead sameness of strawy, sallow, featureless, expressionless, characteriess, leadenessed faces. Actually, Canadian women are, to the stranger, as difficult to identify apart as are Chinamen. One may meet what he thinks is the same woman fifty times, whereas it may be a different woman every time, all fifty cooked and lazed into uniformity of unattractiveness.

Good Conceit of Herself.

"If she has prayed the Hielandman's prayer for a guid consait o' there's imagination for you. But listen further. The "Canook" began to search in his own pockets for a match. "Up to a certain point his search was only productive of a key, a return ticket and some buttons, until his fingers made a dive into a waistcoat pocket and brought forth a greasy paper delagation. Good Conceit of Herself.

"If she has prayed the Hielandman's prayer for a guid consait o' hersel', her prayer has been abundantly granted. Her cenceit is as stupendous as its want of cause. When she belifts herself to go abroad—and that made a dive into a waistcoat pocket and brought forth a greasy paper dollar. To describe that Canook's expression is beyond me." Well, wouldn't it make any man mad to have something like that happen and spoil such a beautiful yarn? And here's how the discomfited "Canook" gave vent to his feelings towards that dollar bill. "He glowered at it spat on it tore it down. lowered at it, spat on it, tore it down little to make sure that was reala little to make sure that was real-then, solemnly placing his hands and his head against the wall, requested me with great earnestness to kick him right there (in the wall evidently) pooty severe." And the careful Scotch soul of James Wallace being doubtless moved mightly within him at the sight of such wanton treatment of good money, he doubtless promptly complied with the pathetic and anatomically precise request.

But other things happened just about that time, after, we hope, Jamie had finished his foot applications "right there." But here's the story in his

"Just then a young lady, evidentl bound for an early train, and sadly overweighted with a heavy bag in one hand and a parcel in the other, struggled along. 'I guess that gurl has more on her wagon than her team can saw in full action or is merely trying to think aloud. And that's James Wallace. He's been in Canada a few weeks, according to the editor of The Scottish Weekly Record of Glasgow, who has commissioned him to keep that interesting journal fully posted on things Canadian. And he's doing it in his own the cop, sure. I guess I'm a white man, and a poety dam nice man, too-but I ain't breakin' into no Toronto

Then James Wallace began to quote Burns. And that "Canook" got "rousted up," and who wouldn't? It must have been a weird experience for him standing there at "an outrageously early hour" "holding up" a Scotchman with one hand and warding off the avalanche of rasping syllables with the other. No wonder that he "then opened the sluice-gates of Canadian candor!"

On Canadian Women. Now let it be noted that James Wallace Gibb riates this "personal experience" of his as a sort of preface to a few things he has to remark himself on Mrs. and Miss Canada, more especially the former. He is kind enough to state that the protection of women

As for James Wallace, it is a pity that he cannot keep to strict and general fact in preparing his "copy."

There are three classes of judges, those who are fair, but ignorant and therefore, incapable of rendering a declared on any subject; those who are cision on any subject; those who are well enough informed but suffer prejudice to blas them against justice and truth, and lastly those who are fair, impartial and well posted. A Juvenile Victory.

Like Phoenix rising from the fire or a mud-turtle emerging from a mud-hole, the Walkerton Juvenile Lacrosse team arose from the ignominy of defeat in which they had been cast by Hanover, and shot into the limelight on Friday by defeating an aggregation from Durham by the decisive score of 10 to 2. The game, which was played on the exhibition grounds here, was witnessed by a liberal sprinkling of spectators, and that at times some good flights of lacrosse were apparent on the surface shows that the lads are learning the way they should go after the ball. BEST CLOTH---ONE PRICE

Made-to-Order Suit

No More--No Less

In the matter of clothes, the question of good quality should be considered before anything else. We say that we honestly believe that Scotland Woolens cannot be approached in this regard by the output of any other country. Either in light fabric or heavy winter cloth, Scotland's weaves stand alone.

We put the question of a good stylish fit beyond argument by giving a legal guarantee that if the clothes are not entirely to your satisfaction we will return to you the money paid. Can you ask more?

Also do we say that our designers and finishers are right up to the last minute in the making of stylish clothes. These men have been trained in New York, and thereby are able to give you a suit made from imported cloth with all the splendid features of an American suit.

OUT-OF-TOWN MEN: Ordering with us by mail is as easy for you as if the measure were taken by our own cutter. The chart and the instructions positively insure that your measurement will be properly recorded. Write us for book of samples and for sample plates.

prove a strenuous and bitter one. The gov ernment still fears the Conserva-tive wave which has swept over Ontario, and the entire strength of the Besides having to defend its administrative record, the Laurier govern-ment will be face to face with another The Ontario Gazette of Saturday announces the incorporation of the Algoma Iron Works, Limited, with a capital of $500,000. The company is to or twenty more representatives in the house of commons. To accomplish this there will have to be another redistribution — "gerrymander it is often called. The western members want this done before the next general election, the government wants to defer it, and before the matter is set-tled there is likely to be an application of the party whip. If the redistribution does not take place the west will be against the government, if it does many of the new constituencies will go Conservative.

Then the attitude of the federal government over the provincial boundary between Ontario and Manitoba is not likely to help matters in the latter province, and Premier Roblin will no loubt make the most of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's disinclination to grant evenhanded justice to the prairie province. Cost of G. T. P.

The principle of the National Trans-continental Railway has already been accepted by the electorate, but there is little doubt that the government speakers will have difficulty in satisfying the public in regard to the enormous increase over the original figures submitted to parliament. "The total cost will not be more than $13,000.000." declared Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Mr. Borden says the eastern section from Winniper to Moncton will cost not less than $178,000.000, and interest on the sum will bring the amount up to $218.000, 000. Add to this the financial assistance given to the Grand Trunk Pacific in respect of the mountain section. some $14,000,000, and the emergate will be brought up to $232,000,000, or over $1,000,000 for every constituency repreented in the Dominion Parliament. Perhaps the west will not take this subject up seriously, because it wants the railway development. "Cannot we have railway development without that cost." is asked.

The "high ideal" campaign, as the recent tour was called, had its inevi-table sequel at Trenton on Tuesday last when J. W. Johnson, M.L.A. for West Hastings, practically read Hon. Geo. E. Foster out of the party, Mr. Johnson's remarks were not spontaneous, but he had long thought over the matter, and what he did say was applauded. He had a strong supporter in Sir Mackenzie Bowell, but the feela rest, and the leaders of the party are his design that they should be so and that the thoughts of the government's maladministration should sink into the minds of the electorate. While adhering to the Halifax platform of 1907, he did not disclose his hand at this time and thus allow his political opponents to come forward and say. "O, we have been thinking of this for a long while." The day of grace is past for Laurier government now, and henceforth it will be a fight to the finish.

Speaking of redistribution, it is cur-

Speaking of redistribution, it is currently reported that the government will try an experiment in Toronto, and have the representatives elected by the vote of the city at large instead of by ridings, as at present, and in this way they hope to secure one or two members out of the six or eight it will be entitled to send.

Crop Reports.

Minneapolis-The Market Record Information of a reliable sort has received by us from many parts of three Northwestern and Canadian three Northwestern and Canadian Northwest states, one saying that some fields have already died and that cattle have been turned into them to get what they can of the plant. That the crop is in a most critical condition is very true. If rains come at once much of the damage can probably be repaired.

Finley Barrell says—Following from one of the nest informed men in the northwest:
I do not think North Dakota can raice over half a crop, even if they get all the tain they want. Gone too far and getting worst every day.

Inter-Ocean of Chicago says a condition of 70 for the wheat crop of the three morthwestern states suggests a wheat crop figured on the Chicago basis of 200.00,000 bushels, or 60,000,000 bushels short of the government promise, June 1. Minneapolis people figure that it means 181.000,600 against a promise June 1, of 258.001,000. Enthusiastic bulls at Minneapolis are talking about the three states not raising over 150,000,000 bushels.

COBALT --- Only Fractional Changes in --- COBALT

Intermittent Price Changes

Mining Markets Unusually Dall and No Conspicaous Feature is Noticeable During the Week.

World Office, Saturday Evening, June 25. Beyond narrow and intermittent price changes, there is little in the local min. changes, there is little in the local mining markets at the moment which it is possible to chronicle. Midsummer dulness has gripped the stock exchanges earlier than usual this year, and in the case of the Cobalt issues this bids fair to more than outrival the apathetic movements which have prevailed in general almost since the first of the year.

Trading during the past week has been singularly free from any marked activity, and in no instance has any particular demand for one special security been apparent. The public has been to a large extent out of the market, and, with outside participation maintained at so low a level, it has been only natural to look for restricted movements and confined price alterations.

dividend of 5 per cent. quarterly and 2 1-2 per cent. extra by the Nipissing an outside following is in evidence no company, the total of this concerns distribution to its shareholders since

In relation to Nipissing it is also said that there is from $6,000,000 to $8,000,000 in the proved ore reserves. This Butte states that the Anaconda Co. estimate demonstrates the strong position in which the company is situated, and, since the directors have adopted the highly commendable policy of distributing portions of the enormous

Toronto Stock Exchange Unlisted treasury reserve which has been built up, the shares are likely to prove more attractive to the investing public in

The New York curb is taking very little interest in the Canadian mining shares at the present time, but there is every indication that these will take on a new attraction in the American metropolis owing to the depressed condition of the copper stocks. Copper me-tal shows a decidedly reactionary tone, made by large producers to keep its value on a sound basis, there is every indication that prices will be still further lowered. Over-production has been threatened in the United States for some little time, and is now being more than realized. The copper producers' statement from month to month is proving unsatisfactory, in that the visible supply of the metal is increasing and at a rapid rate. The announcement from New York that J. P. Morgan is bringing home a plan for the restriction of copper production by a joint agreement with European producers, was not credited on the curb, but until some arrangement along the price of the red metal is depressed to a point where production is lessened owing to decreased profits, or indeed to lack of any profit whatever, copper securities are likely to staron the toboggan. At the present time the speculative public in New York is looking askance at the various copper issues, and as there seems little possi-bility of any upturn at the moment it is only natural to look for increased attention to be paid to the Cobalts and

Considerable interest is being taken in the Porcupine gold field and the Gowganda and Elk Lake mining divisions. Reports from the north country dur-ing the past few weeks indicate that operations on many of the mines are showing up the properties in a very satisfactory manner. The statement of Prof. H. E. T. Haultain, who has just been appointed minister of mines at Toronto University, and whose opinion carries considerable weight, to the effect that the Porcupine camp affords well-based hopes that it may be a valuable gold-producing area, with greatacterized Ontario gold fileds, will do considerable to offset the feeling that this district will not materialize into anything beyond a wild-catting pro-position. The new gold camp will of course lend itself admirably to the promotion of companies by unscrupulous financiers, but that the camp gives great promise cannot be doubted. It is altogether probable that a big majority of the 6000 claims which have been recorded will produce disappointment rather than gold, and that much quartz of no commercial value will be discovered. However, the camp is at tracting a large amount of capital, and its value to the province as a whole is almost incalculable. Exceilent showings have been uncovered on at 51%, 500 at 51%, 500 at 51%, 500 at 53%, 500 at 53%, 500 at 53%, 500 at 53%, 100 at 63%, 10 covered. However, the camp is at veral hitherto unknown properties of late and new finds are being reported from time to time. The Cobalts close the week with no definite tendency observable. There is plenty of stock on the market to satisfy any demand which may arise, and for this reason it is hard to see how for this reason it is hard to see how any material adjustment can be consummated unless a considerably broader speculative movement is experienced. Inside interests are looking orward confidently to an adjustment of values which will place stocks on a material way and with call more warranted basis, and, with con ditions in the mining camps in such ween only natural to look for restricted novements and confined price alteritions.

With the declaration of the regular lividend of 5 per cent, quarterly and the state of the period of the period of the regular lividend of 5 per cent, quarterly and the state of the distribution to its shareholders since the inception of the company is brought up to $5,040,000. As it is the intention to pay another interim dividend of 5 per cent, possibly in September or October next, and as there will be two more quarterly declarations this year, it is clear that the Nipissing by the end of 1910 will have redeemed its nominal capital of $6.000,000. This will do much to offset the deterrent and slanderous statements which have been circulated of recent year concerning the Cobalt camp, for surely when a capital of this amount is redeemed at par it must be allowed that conditions in the mining camp and on the Nipissing property in particular are on a sound basis.

In relation to Nipissing it is also

Several Mines Have Shafts Down to 300 Foot Level-Development Shows Up Well.

ELK LAKE, June 28. Some idea may e obtained as to the tremendous ontreal River mining division when a few examples of well known mines are taken.

The Elk Lake Cobalt are now down a distance of 300 feet. The company have spent up to date over $100,000 and are now just beginning to get returns in the way of ore. Altho a great many in the way of ore. Altho a great many veins were encountered in the shaft, it was not until the 275 foot level was reached that shipping ore was encountered. From this depth until the 300 foot level it rapidly increased in value, and now from this property some of the nicest looking ore ever seen in the district is being taken out.

On the Prudential Mine also work is being pushed at a rapid rate. Already being pushed at a rapid rate. Already this company have a shaft down 100 feet and have recently made a further contract for another 50 feet. In the shaft as the work proceeded some 20 veins have been encountered, all of a most promising nature but they gradwolfs have been encountered, all of a most promising nature but they gradually dipped and left the shaft. At the present time there are some four veins in the shaft, all of them carrying high values in silver and as soon as the shaft is completed to a depth of 150 feet, which work is being carried on at the rate of one foot per day, a drift will be driven, in order to catch the yeins already encountered, and it ingis expected that 25 or 30 feet of drifting will reach the whole 20 veins. If present indications hold the Prudential should be able to make a small shipment of ore before the summer dential should be able to make a small shipment of ore before the summer season closes. One of the directors who recently visited the property expressed himself as being highly pleased at the progress being made, and it looks as if the Prudential will follow hin the wake of the Lucky Godfrey and Hitchcock properties which are at pres-Hitchcock properties which are at present sacking from 10 to 25 bags of high grade ore daily.

On the Syracuse property a recent contract was let to sink a further 150 feet, which will put the company's shaft down to a depth of 300 feet. As eilver has been encountered on the way down the shaft, the outlook is particularly promising for this property and the directors who are principally Syra-cuse N. Y. men are greatly elated at the prospect.

The Silver Alliance Mine continues to bag high grade ore and it looks as if after many vicissitudes this mine will continue to get silver from the several veins in their shaft which is down 225 feet, averaging 8000 oz. to the says The New Fork Mining Age will June create something of a sensation. The production will show 3.150,000 ounces for the year ended May 31. As the La Rose is paying out at the rate of $50,000 a month in dividends it will be seen that last year's earnings as well as this year's earnings are actually twice the amount of dividend now bening distributed, as a result of which over $600,000 cash in its treasury, including payments due for ore shipped.

On the Lawson it is stated that two weeks ago 25 tons of ore were taken out which averaged 2370 ounces of sliver and which netted the company $27,000. From the Princess during the month of May. 24 tons of ore were mined, averaging 950 ounces, which netted the company $10,350. On the Fisher-Eplett a four-inch vein of smaltite has been cuf at the 200 foot level.

Good-Money Conditions Influence Local Market. World Office,
Saturday Evening, June 25.
The recovery in prices in the New York market inferred in these columns a week ago came in the early part of the week and extended from one to three points in the active speculative issues. The rally from the low prices of two weeks ago has now extended to upwards of ten points in such issues as Union and Southern Pacific. This might be considered a natural recovery, presuming that the market is still discounting a future less beneficial to securities than has hitherto been the case. New York securities have a tentative representative investment basis, but there are other factors which go to make up the quoted prices. At current quotations stocks are attractive from the standpoint of their dividend return, but the detracting features are being considered by speculators.

vantage that the big holder has is that he is in touch with the inside condition of the company in which he is taking his interest, and therefore acquainted with matters which ultimately frame the price of the shares. Late in the week crop damage news was supposed to be the influence which broke prices three or four points. Drought in the spring wheat territory, if the reports are to be relied upon, is working considerable injury to the crop, and this might justly be considered a reason for a break in the price of securities. The technical position of the whole list is weak, and it will require some almost miraculous development to cause a reversal of sentiment. In view of the threatening utterances of the attorney general. for new flotations, but rather that a check is being administered to long money for temporary purposes into abundance. Altho conditions are less strained in European financial centres, the Bank of England has not conutterances of the attorney-general yes-terday, whatever encouragement was expected from the adjournment of considered it wise to lower its rate to the normal figure at this period of the expected from the adjournment of congress must now be put out of consideration, as it is probable that Washington developments may be more threatening than is now even indicated. Gas until there is a decidedly better tone to the general market. While we regard B. R. T. very favorcably we cannot advise its purchase in Perhaps the strongest item in stock market sentiment is a species of distrust. The public are beginning to regard the New York market as nothing but a legalized means of duping them out of their money, and the outside following is gradually being whittled down because of this feeling. It is this that the big holders are up While we regard B. R. I. very law ably we cannot advise its purchase in the present unsatisfactory state of Wall Street affairs. Cotton Gossip. Erickson Perkins & Co. had the following: Liverpool quotations were no doubt influenced by reports of rain in the southwest, and prices opened lower here in sympathy, but little new feature developed and a holiday market prevailed thruout the session. Detailed reports from Texas showed only a trace of rain at important points, but speculation was restricted by the possibility of further rains over Sunday. Near positions showed little sign of activity altho the first nctice day on the July option falls on next Tuesday. We do not look for any sensational developments, but there is little doubt but that all tenders will be taken care of by the bull

UGGESTIONS TO LIMIT

Commission Appointed by Governor Hughes Offers Recommendations to Restrict Trading.

To limit th havoc wrought by Wallstreet gambling, Maurice L. Muhleman, secretary of Governor Hughes' commission on stock exchange methods, suggests:

1. Supervision of the issue of new securities as in England; this New York should provide whether other states do or not.

2. Requiring full reports from all corporations whose securities are dealt in, subject to official audit if necessary.

3. Prohibiting officers and directors from profiting by inside information to gamble in the shares of their own companies.

4. Restrict short selling.

5. Require at least a 25 per cent. margin on speculative orders.

6. Wash sales and matched orders should be definitely outlawed.

Many would go much further than this. Mr. Muhleman's recommendations will be indorsed by any conservative man who has not the fever of Wall-street in his blood. Publicity of the condition of publicity chartered properties is an obvious public right. Wash sales and matched orders are in theory already forbidden on 'Change. Directors who profit by inside information are unworthy of their trust. As to margined purchases, Mr. Muhleman's suggestion is moderate; the fluctuations of 1909 alone exceeded 25 per cent. in the price of all but the more sedate securities.

SOVEREIGNTY OF STATE IS THE ISSUE AT STAKE FOR SALE

Spanish Premier Says If Negotiations Are Broken Off It is the Vatican's Own Fault.

MADRID. June 25.—Premier Canalejas declared to-day that if the negotiations between the Spanish Government and the Vatican over the revision of the concordat were broken off, Rome would be responsible. He said:

"The full text of the Vatican's reply has not been received yet, but we know from the telegraphic summary that it does not constitute a response to our note, but is confined exclusively to a protest against the imperial decree of June II, and is, therefore, an invasion of the state's sovereignty, which is not tolerable. The church falsely accuses us of an attack upon the Catholic religion. We are simply defending the sovereignty of the state."

Premier Canalejas added that if the Catholics persisted in their threats of a civil war, he would have recourse to the courts. A dubjous element in the situation is the attitude of King Alfonso, upon whom great influence is being exercised to cause him to overthrow the Canalejas ministry. At the same time the premier is holding the monarch to a strict fulfilment of the promises which he says Alfonso made when the present cabinet took office.

Glittering generalities will not prove any statement to be true. Printed arguments will not suffice to establish a fact. Our confidence in the "Hoosier" Kitchen Cabinet cannot be felt by you unless you see them-have one in your home and thus learn of the merits of these wonderful kitchen labor-saving devices.

We candidly believe there is no kitchen cabinet in the world that in any way approaches the "Hoosier." It is this confidence in the "Hoosier" Cabinet that has led the makers and ourselves to join hands in forming the "Hoosier Special Club," with its easy purchase plan, the object being to quickly place these cabinets into hundreds of homes so that their praises might be sung by enthusiastic users everywhere.

The "Hoosier Special"—which we have specially low priced for the sale at $35.00—is equipped in every way for making the work of getting ready the meals and all other baking operations both easy and pleasureable.

Some of the features in the cabinet are a sanitary self-cleaning metal flour bin, with sifter attached; a self-feeding metal sugar bin, six crystal glass spice jars, with aluminum air-tight lids; large glass tea and coffee air-tight jars; daily reminder and want list; an aluminum covered work table, size 40 x 39 inches; a metal bread and cake box, plate racks, cupboards, sliding shelves for pots, pans, etc., made of solid oak and finished steam and waterproof. A most complete kitchen cabinet in every way.

One Dollar Down

is all that is required to bring one of these Cabinets to your Home Now. Balance of purchase price can be paid for $1 per week afterwards.

As we have previously announced, the Club membership has been limited in Toronto to 500 persons, and already the half way mark is close by. The opportunity is one that calls for an early response, as we will not again make an offer so liberal as the present one.

There is no formality or restricting features about joining the Club. Simply paying us one dollar and agreeing to pay us $1 per week until Cabinet is paid for covers every requirement. The Cabinet will be delivered to your home at once, and you can begin to enjoy its comfort and help right away.

NOBLEMEN CIGARS

HOW OLD ARE YOU?

The late Mr. Gladstone started to learn the Welsh language when he was over 80 years of age. He recognized the truth of the saying: "We're never too old to learn." The cigar smoker who says: "I am satisfied; this is good enough for me," is, to say the least,

UNPROGRESSIVE.

He might save 50 per cent, by smoking the Davis "NOBLEMEN" CIGAR.

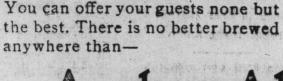

The "NOBLEMEN" demonstrates to the smoker of expensive Cigars that he is never too old to learn how to get an exquisite, full flavored, full weight, all Havana, Cuban made Cigar at HALF THE PRICE HE IS PAYING AT PRESENT.

THE DAVIS "NOBLEMEN" CIGAR has done more than any cigar in Canada to bring home this lesson to the smoker of imported cigars.

When it came to the horsemen they discarded all superfluous garb, "Red" Walker in particular taking the lead along unconventional lines. When the writer saw the well-known Toronto turfman before it was in a fur coat, early in April at the Woodbine, where Mr. Walker was giving his string their final work before shipping to Pimlico. It was the same portly horseman, but oh, what a difference at Hamilton! Leaning against the gateway by Secretary Loudon's office, Mr. Walker wiped away the perspiration, and then fanned himself with a gigantic Panama hat. Coat and vest were scorned, and he wore a neglige shirt with replendent suspenders which glittered in the sunlight.

We will have plenty of fresh, sound, young country horses for our auctions next week, and all classes will be plentifully represented. One of our consigners writes that he has one of the best loads of heavy draughts he ever shipped. He has four weighing over 1600 lbs., and has an extra good lot of heavy mares. These, along with many other shipments, are coming for Tuesday. We will also have a large numof city horses warranted serviceably sound in wind and work which will be sold for the high dollar.

FOR YOUR SPECIAL CONSIDERATION 'MONGREIFE DUCHESS'

No. 24214 a Clydesdale mare, to be sold at 12 o'clock sharp on Tuesday. This mare is 6 years old, by Moncreiffe Marquis, out of Ardlethen Barry. She has won prizes, and among them are: First at Banff, Scotland; First at Echt, First at Deeside, First at Torphins, and many, many others. This mare is easily one of the best that were ever shipped to Canada, and is being sonsigned to us for sale by one of the largest exporters in Scotland, and simply for the purpose of trying the Canadian market. "Moncrieffe Duchess" was served by "Blackon Sensa sation," whose sire was Baron's Pride. The sale of this mare should be a matter of importance to breeders and importers, and in order to make no unnecessary delay, she will be brought out and sold promptly at 12 o'clock noon on Tuesday.

We will sell also a large number of vehicles on Tuesday, and among them 4 Victorias, consigned by a gentleman in a neighboring city: 1 Spider Phaeton, 1 two-wheeled Dog Cart, in good shape, and must be sold; 1 Tilbury Cart, and several Runabouts; and many wagons. There will also be a number of sets of harness, some new, others nearly new, and a few sets just a little worn. Many of these to be sold absolutely without reserve.

Thursday, June 30th 225 HORSES

The best selections of all classes. On account of Friday, the 1st, being a Holiday, we will hold our econd sale of the week on Thursday, and will have a splendid lot of fresh, sound, young horses. Recent Aviation Achievements

Public interest in what can now be rightly described as the science of aviation is daily increasing, albiet not accompanied by the original wonderment. Records are being so frequently broken that a week without this happening is the exception rather than the rule. What is just as remarkable, too, is the small proportion of accidents with serious consequences. Nothing could better testify to the increasing perfection of the machines and the skill required to handle them.

Nor is it an uncommon thing these days to carry passengers, of whom there are more applicants than can be accommodated. In England, ten guineas is being charged for a spin in an aeroplane, and women are as venturesome and anxious as men to enjoy this latest sensation. Just now a project is on foot, promoted by Baron A. Roenne, to establish a British airship line between London and Berlin, each vessel to carry 200 first-class and 200 second-class passengers, the double journey of 11181/2 miles to be accomplished in 36 hours. Other services proposed include Paris, Vienna, Rome, St. Petersburg and even New York, which last city is expected to be reached in 72 hours.

This scheme is, perhaps, rather visionary as yet, since it is now pretty clear that the future of aerial navigation will be with the aeroplane, not the airship or dirigible balloon. The series of disasters to Count Zeppelin's machines has created distrust not likely to be diminished by the success attending the evolution of the heavier-than-air machines. Such flights as those of the Hon, C. S. Rolls, from Dover to Calais and back without alighting, of Glenn Curtiss, from Albany to New York, and of Charles K. Hamilton, from Governor's Island, New York, to Philadelphia and back to within sight of his starting place, all mark how completely independence of air currents is being gained. In the day of the old balloon, its occupants simply floated with the wind and alighted wherever they were carried and whenever they decided or were compelled to descend.

To-day the aviator knows his destination, and steers his course with the precision of an ocean navigator. It is amazing how rapidly these developments have come, once the elementary difficulties had been overcome. Pluck and persistence have triumphed in the end as they always do, and Tennyson's vision in his first "Locksley Hall" will soon be a re-

According to historians, Caligula, second emperor of Rome, was the greatest spendthrift the world has ever known. He also, so the historians say, served costly pearls in his sauces. The excited historians relate that mounted couriers brought oysters from Great Britain for Caligula's table, that ships sailed to distant lands and brought tropical birds, so that Caligula might eat the birds' tongues. They say the waters of the Black Sea were to sit with others better circumstanced dragged that he might eat strange fish and in surroundings that seem but to never before seen in Rome.

"Yes, sir, there have been many many changes in Toronto since I first came to the city," said Dr. Milligan to Sunday World, "Why, when I landed here from Detroit, I came up Yonge-street on one of the old horse cars. There's a contrast with to-day for you. Then during the last thirtyfive years the growth of the city residentially has been most remarkable. Less than the time mentioned there was no Rosdale: Sherbourne-street had quite a number of vacant lots north of Carlton-street. North of Carlton and east of Sherbourne was very sparsely settled. "What does it portend to you, Dr. you would take this as my message to the people of this city and of Canada before I leave for abroad. On that occasion there assembled every variety of denominational diversity in Protestantism, exhibiting to every observer at all thoughtful, a fundamental unity needing only to be properly developed and organized to increase beyond all present anticipations. In the presence of that meeting one could not help asking why do these men existing in vital oneness live apart so widely is the matter of Christian fellowship and co-operation? Surely union they would find to be strength. Only with organic arangement can the church sehow one spirit with the diversity of manifestation and realize in any adequate way her divine mission;

"As a matter of fact none of the churches are marshalled round a centre that can properly be termed or ganific. No one is so far to blame for this state of matters. It was determined largely by historic and other conditions. In its day it did great good. Is it not wise, however, to con whether in changed condition and with new problems Christians may not find their duty to lie in new directions—directions which in this land with a large foreign population offers a new home mission field such as in older lands does not exist, and directions which can be pursued in a soloists is described by the editor of new land with a facility unknown to the "New Music Review" as of an these complicated antecedents, diffic to alter from a variety of reasons. "The centre of organization with some is the appointment of men to the office of the ministry; with others the administration of some sacrament; with others emphasis upon one doctrine of belief rather than another and so on. Why not organize round Jesus Christ and Him crucified? Here is where unity is to be found. Gath-ered around Him as her redeemer, the church fulfills her mission in the most unambiguous way. So she should Redeemer of men the supreme sideration, allowing the interests now occupying a central place to be relegated to their proper and secondary positions. Lending a Helping Hand to the Needy---Activities of a Big Toronto Mission

How Fred Victor Mission Workers Bring Comfort and Help to Poverty-Stricken Families, Brighten Our Slumdom and Train the Rising Generation.

Summer weather in the city—hot, dusty, depressing, enervating. To the well-to-do it means a pilgrimage to a pleasant summer cottage situated by the pure country air, are assured of a constant supply of fresh, wholesome food to enable them to rebeneath the canopying trees and ventilated by the cool lake breezes. But to the multitude of dwellers in cities it is no such pleasant harbinger; to a great number it means a season of utmost discomfort in stifling cottage or sun-smitten alley. The heat smites the children and they sicken and even die; it encourages the growth of the myriad pathogenic microoganisms that lurk in water and milk and food, and thereby spreads broadcast the seeds of disease.

Fresh Air For City Dwellers.

And not the least important of the manifold charitable undertakings di-rected from the Fred Victor Mission of ensuring tired mothers and drooping, listless children at least one chance every summer to get away from the smoke and dust and heat of the city to the green, broad country, to breathe life-giving draughts of God's good air. Sometimes these trips take a party only as far as Centre Island, but even that means much to those who go. The pale little children of the slums are provided with an abundance of good, wholesome food—rare privilege, indeed, to many of them—are allowed to enjoy them selves to their hearts' content, and get back again to their homes, tired, but happy, indeed, for the unwonted pleasure. One such party from Fred Victor Mission last summer included over five hundred mothers and little children. Children are also taken down to Whitby every summer in parties of seventy-five. Three such parties were taken out last summer ing allowed to spend ten days in this delightful country town. Here they do little but eat, sleep, play, bathe, march and have a good time gener-

Delighted Little Folk. It is touching to note the pleasure and gratitude of the little folk. In their cleanly, pleasant, healthy surroundings one can almost see them grow every day. One delighted little chap wrote home: "We get all we can eat down here!" Another: "We get three meals a day here." Said one prematurely old child: "I don't want tence with the untoward conditions that exist in the city. And this merciful provision of Christian philan-thropy has saved many a delicate babe from premature death.

Relief for Destitute.

The Fred Victor Mission figured largely in the relief of the destitution which accompanied the industrial depression of a couple of years ago, and even last winter the superintendent reports that the number of men seeking temporary employment was very little less. "All thru the winter," says Rev. S. W. Dean, "these men came by scores knocking on our door as early as 7 a. m., seeking permission to cut wood for a meal or bed." For the directors of the mission do not consider it any charity to make paupers of any, and hence all who are physically fit are required to make returns of some kind for such help as they receive. Last winter the yard turned out about 5000 sacks of kind-ling wood, which were disposed of for the benefit of the mission.

"Bun and Coffee" Service. Something unique in the way of religious gatherings is the Thursday evening "Buns and Coffee" service, over 500 men sometimes. And what a motley multitude they generally are! Men who have never known what it is to be free of poverty here rub elbows with others raised in the best of homes. A doctor, once established in a lucrative practice in the Old Country, but now a moral and physical wreck thru the use of "dope," fraternizes with the well-educated but incorrigible son of a well-known Canadian inancier, and these two are but units in the mass of miserable, poverty-stricken men, all placed on the same level by unspairing want. Here's a sewing class with some little girls learning to thread needles, others to fashion and sew garments. In an adjoining laboratory an instructress from the Lillian Massey School of Domestic Science upstairs is teaching a dozen or so youngsters how to cook. German Writer Discusses Meeting of European Monarchs in its Relation to War

World's Peace Fallacy "General Impression" May Be Long Way Off

Some Impressions About the Meeting of Monarchs at a German Writer Who Thinks War Inevitable.

(By Julius Gabe.)

BERLIN, June 25 .- There would seem to be a general impression just now that something has happened within the last few weeks that in some unexpected and unexplained way makes for the world's peace.

The bottom fact of it would seem to be that a large number of European monarchs have met together in London at the funeral of a revered and illustrious member of their order, and that among them was our great War Lord. The German Emperor, it is said-tho no one knows on what authority-talked in a friendly and even in a flattering way to the representative of France, and showed himself to be in an optimistic mood in regard to the present political sit-

Iron Hand Gloved.

The late Lord Salisbury allowed the world a glimpse of his interviews with the representative of France during the unfortunate and highly critical Fashoda episode, and nothing could form, as we say, than the manners of the two statesmen to each other. The iron hand was perfectly covered by the velvet glove, altho the arsenals and the dockvards were ringing with preparations for war.

With the very best disposition and inclination to take a roseate view of the immediate future we shall find it difficult, I fancy, to discover any spec ially favorable auguries of peace today that were not as easily discoverable three months ago.

I am told, by the way-the perhaps this is not very germane to the matter-that even at the King's funeral things international did not run quite so smoothly as could have been wishhimself and his country sloighted by the position which he was given in the procession, and by his being put in a carriage with the Chinese Am-That both the representatives of the great French and Amerihind the King of Norway and King Manuel caused, I am told, much comment and considerable heart-burning. However, there the general impression is, and under it the Peace Society met in the Guildhall in high fettle and full of hopefulness.

All Belligerent. Well now, as a student of history, I venture to query the generalization underlying that episcopal dictum. A little later on at that meeting of the Peace Society the facts came out Here they are: In the year 1900, France, Germany, Russia, England and the United States were spending $1,340,000,000 upon men and materials of war. Ten years later, in this year, they are spending $1,730,000,000 towards the same beligerent ends! Not much dove-and-olive-branch there, is there?

Unity of the Universe.

According to the Spencerian view, the universe is a complex unity, which when reduced to its ultimate analysis is seen to be one fact-the redistribution of matter and motion-all phenomena being complex aspects of that one fact. Under the name of evolution Spencerism undertook to show that the universe, from star to soul, has passed, by a process of development, from the simple to the complex thru successive integrations and differentiations. About two hours before midnight Columbus, standing on the forecastle, observed a light at a distance, and privately pointed it out to Pedro Guttierez, a page of the queen's wardrobe. Mrs. Ward has never grasped the wider historic meaning of the England of the Victorian era. The proud significance of the great achievement of a privileged caste of governing amateurs has proved to be beyond her vision; she has never been able to rise above her adulation of the social side of this aristocracy. Out of her own love of culture she has drawn a Victorian society at play, not at its work, a society that talks, not of influence, alliance, appointment and preferment, of great tasks to be done and accomplished and rewarded, but of Dants and the Renaissance, of Horace and excavated Roman villas. The Englishman whom she chooses to contrast with the Canadian in "Lady Merton, Colonist," is not a typical representative of his race, but a dawdling, indolent dilettante, with his heart in Italy and his handkerchief to his fastidious nose amid the sweat of the giant energy of empire building by rough, uncouth colonials. The book may serve to dispel a certain condescension toward colonials which still rules strong in England, but one would like to have some representative Canadian's opinion of it—Miss Agnes Laut's, for instance, or that of the author of "The Imperialist," the best picture of Canadian life and conditions yet written—the opinion of Mrs. Everard Cotes.

Municipal Music Venture Launched

New York City to Foster Project Intended to Give Free. High-Class Music to the People.

It is now practically determined that New York City will adopt a plan for giving free concerts of good music for the people thruout the year. The chief problem now confronting the city is what kind of a plan to make and under whose auspices it should be carried out.

Several city departments, societies and individuals are interested in the matter, and have ideas as to what should be done. A committee was recently appointed to consider the matter, and before this committee a public

The interests represented were the Central Federated Union, the People's Symphony Concerts, Nahan Franko and the Board of Education. Morris Brown, representing the Federated orchestral concerts of the city are too high priced, they did not serve in pro-viding the people at large with good music, and that therefore some other means should be provided by which high-class orchestral music should be made available to them. He pointed out that the poorer class, in going to hear music, goes for the love of music itself, and not for any secondary reasons. Round the World For Sousa's Band America, Europe and Australia Included in Itinerary of Famous Organization.

Final arrangements for the roundthe-world tour of Sousa and his band are being made in London by A. F. Adams, managing director of the Quinlan International Musical Agency. Mr. Sousa's plans for the coming season include a farewell tour in the eastern and middle states, beginning August 12 and continuing until December 18. His London engagement will open on January 2, after which he will travel thru Germany, France, Italy, and from there to Australia and New Zealand, reaching Vancouver, B. While abroad Mr. Adams will visit Josef Hofmann at his home in Switzerland and endeavor to persuade the famous planist to prolong his contract for the coming season, all of his time on the original contract now being arranged for. He will also arrange with the London office of the Quinlan agency for the Australian tour of Mischa Elman which will follow immediately. Elman, which will follow immediately after his coming tour of this country, which begins in Boston, January 7 and closes on the Pacific Coast late in April, 1911.

A contemplated tour of the world for Mme. Schumann-Heink is also under advisement. Applications from far and wide have been made for the ser-vices of this popular artist, and far-off Egypt, which is among the appli-cants, may have its wish gratified within the next eighteen months. * THE MUSIC OF THE FUTURE *

The great John Stuart Mill was always oppressed by the thought that at some time or another every possible phrase in musical composition would have been used, after which it would be possible only to repeat previous expressions, and this only as long as such practice could be tolerated.

To concur with this view would be ab, such practice could be tolerated.

To concur with this view would be tantamount to admitting a well-defined limit to the inventive resources of mankind, and a repudiation of the old saw—which says that "Necessity is the mother of invention." In glancing back over the history of music, we see that even the last few years have wrought important changes. Intervals now found in every line of music were then regarded with disdain, and indeed, as intolerable. With the progress of time, changes and improvements come, and it is out of the question, if not a manifest absurdity, to presage a time when this would not be the case.

It is now declared by several leading scientists, that we are on the verge of a new and beautiful music of striking possibilities. This new music differs from the present type in that it uses light and colors, instead of sound music." The incentive to research and invention of this field is great, and the results of transcendent importance. The idea is a sublime one Fancy a combined music, affecting all the senses, sight, touch, hearing, smell and taste, operated from a key-board hardly more complicated that that of a large church organ.

Work toward this goal is already under way. Professor Michelson of Chicago university has predicted that music, will be given in Chicago, and researchers in other lines give splendid promises of results in their fields. The condition that must be occasioned by such music could be little short of ecstasy, tho it would be some time before it could be properly appreciated by the masses. The mechanical difficulties that lie in the way are great, but invention shows no fear of failure to meet this, or any other requirement.

ways which may be done by the opera-tor at his key-board, different qualities of tone may be produced. Evidently if the operator deliberately seeks to make a tone like that of a violin, he is simply producing an imitation. We have already, to be sure, organ pipes purporting to imitate trumpets, horns, viols, etc., but their use deceives no one, whereas the imitation by means of the telharmonium might be made

Improved Electric Music.

Improvements have recently been made in the "telharmonium" which make it possible for that instrument to reproduce the tones of all the principal orchestral instruments instead of being limited, as before, to organ-tones. The beauty of this instrument, however, is that it is capable of producing all sorts of entirely new tones of its own, and it is to be hoped that it will not be used simply as an imitator. This device does not transmit music; it produces musical notes directly by means of alternating electric currents, and by combining these currents in different ways which may be done by the cover.

American Composer Whose Music is Being Played in Europe

Mr. Barrett, of the executive committee of the Normal College, said that if the city proposed to embark on this enterprise it should put it under the auspices of the educational institutions, which already had halls thruout the city which would cost the city nothing as well as having the executive force within the educational system which would give its service free for the considering the institution of the Athens of America on this score. "Miles Per Hour" Regulations

The Callan bill, which Governor Hughes of New York signed recently, is the most advanced piece of automobile legislation ever put in force on this continent. In many ways it is far ahead of the regulations for the control of motor traffic which exist in Ontario.

The important feature of this bill is that it practically eliminates all "miles per hour" regulations. It is the miles per hour business that has caused the greater part of the friction between the motor drivers and the police authorities. The policeman is ordered to arrest any motorists who travel more than a certain number of miles per hour. As a rule, he has no adequate means of determining just how fast a car is going. In a police court case, he can only swear that, to the best of his belief, it was exceeding the legal limit. The auto driver, on the other hand, may sincerely believe that he was traveling at a moderate rate of speed at the time the officer saw him, and he very properly claims that his judgment of pace is as good as, or better than, the policeman's.

Thus we have two conflicting statements, the cause of all the wrangling. And it follows from these conflicting statements that no man is able, under ordinary circumstances, without the aid of some timing apparatus, to estimate the speed of a car. From this apparatus, to estimate the speed of a car. From this it is a reasonable inference that the "miles per hour" regulation cannot be fairly enforced.

There is no reason why it should be enforced. There is no reason even for its existence. France, the most progressive automobile country in the world, never had any "miles per hour" regulation. New York State has just abandoned it. Governing bodies have recognized that it is absurd to limit a man to 15 miles an hour on a clear road, on which his machine is under the most perfect control of any vehicle that under the most perfect control of any vehicle that runs on wheels. The speed at which the car is travel-ing has very little to do with its potence as a public menace. Under certain traffic and road conditions, an auto traveling at 10 miles per hour might be far more dangerous than one going at much greater speed on the open highway. The speed limit is not an adequate protection to the public against careless drivers. It has therefore been discarded in favor of a more effective law. Briefly it is this: "No man shall operate an automobile to the common danger." Now. here is something definite. There can be no doubt about what is meant. A witness who might be incapable to give accurate evidence as to the speed of a car could testify as to whether the way in which it was being operated was or was not a danger to the public. A well-trained police-officer, when not hampered by too many regulations, has fairly good judgment, and his knowledge of traffic would enable him to decide whether a car was being driven too fast under the existing conditions.

In case of an accident, it would be easy to decide whether the motor had been driven to the common danger; much easier to find out whether or not it had been driven in a careless or negligent way than to determine the number of miles per hour at which it had been traveling.

In countries where the "driving to the common danger" clause is in force if the motorist is proved guilty severe punishment follows. This is fair enough, and it tends to make careless motorists much more careful than the ordinary speed limit that prevails here.

The great thing is that, in case of possible accident, the speed at which the motor car was traveling is not the most important feature to be considered. Many more vital things must be noted before the blame for the trouble can be fairly apportioned. The "miles per hour" regulation is useless, and the Ontario legislature should follow New York's example of substituting the common danger clause, with heavy penalties for its violation. Thus, hundreds of petty police court cases would be eliminated, and the public would have a far more adequate protection against the careless driver.

touring car at the local Packard head-quarters was an event of interest to ilists during the week. Hundreds of persons have already inspec-ted the car, which reveals new and exclusive features. The new fore door body, with the speed changing levers inside the door; the demountable rims included in the standard equipment, the French grey wheels and running gear, as compared with the cream yel-low of other years; the black enamel horn, steering column, radiator, frame, fenders, hood and lamps give the car an air of individuality all its own. Among the details, the new spring design commands particular attention. A light spring assumes the load up to weight of two or three passengers, beyond which a lower, supplementary spring comes into use. Easiest pos-sible riding qualities under all loads is the result. Mechanical improve-ments on the 1911 Packards are in the nature of detail refinement. The four cylinder motor of the "30" has a five inch bore, a five and a half inch stroke

Massachusetts Specifies Reed Horns. For the benefit of those who have been unable to distinguish one variety of motor horn from another, Representative Isaac E. Willetts, of Massachusetts legislature, has thoughtfully provided a triple classification. Horns may be, he says, either plain "honk-honks," of the German band variety or regular "hellraisers." Representative Willets was moved to this segregation of singular sounds by reason of his efforts in sup port of an amendment to the pending automobile bill in connection with the clause requiring the use of horns of the reed variety exclusively. The added clause carries the stipulation: sounded so as to produce an unreas-

HON. C. S. ROLLS AND HIS BIPLANE

When Mr. Rolls flew from Dover to Calais and back recently, he created three records. He is the only airman has made the double journey across Channel on a flying-machine; he is the only British airman who has flown the Channel; he is the only airman who has flown the Channel on a biplane. It may be recalled that the Channel had been flown twice before—by MM. Bleriot and Jacques de Lesseps—and that in each case a Bleriot monoplane was used. Mr. Rolls favored a Wright biplane. He did the double journey in 90 minutes. The successful airman, who is the third son of Lord Llangattock, is in his thirty-third year. While at Cambridge, he won a Half-Blue for cycling; he has driven in numerous great motor races; has made over one hundred and sixty balloon ascents, and has interested himself in the flying machine since its infancy as a practical invention.

Wolverine country.

With a machine which necessiates nothing more than a 9-h.p. engine by which to fly, it will be agreed that aviation is rapidly falling to the level of motor-cycling, and by the time the whole thing becomes a commercial proposition, if ever it does so, a practical aeroplane for one will not be much more expensive than a first-class motor-bicycle, like the Humber is today. Mr. Neale, an habitue of Brooklands, would appear to be pointing the way with his Neale aeroplane. This machine is practically a monoplane, with a biplane tail of curious design, and depends for its motive-power upon a 9-h.p. I.A.P. engine. The flights performed by Mr. Neale with this delicate confection only ran to some 200 to 400 yards; but the fact that a man with an aeroplane of such small dimensions could be raised off the ground is triumph enough for the moment. LUBRICATION.

Lubrication has more to do with success in the maintenance of an au-tomobile than the average man is likely to realize, and in view of its dual angle, there is an excellent chance for confusion of mind in dealing with this problem, says The Automobile. One not accustomed to the situation might readily be led to the conclusion that quality of the lubricant is about all that has to be taken into account. All the lubricating oil on this mundane sphere would be as pearls to swine in the face of an ill contrived mechanism placed for the purpose of feeding the lubricating oil to the zones which work under pressure, offer a hiding place for the silt of the road. and squeak for want of a slippery surface when the oil fails to arrive on

In addition to the requisite quantity of a suitable grade of lubricating oil there must be an efficient conduit which will lead the oil from its storage tank to the surfaces which work under pressure and which have to be not only lubricated, but sealed so that dirt may not get in. Profuse lubrithe probabilities are that pressure is necessary if the work is to be well done. Just now this question of feeding lubricating oil under pressure is being agitated in the haunts of the strongly engineer. cation accomplishes these ends, and

Wasted Power Might be Used

Over Again to Preduce

Writing in La France Automobile, M. H. de Dimetall discusses the pos-sibility of reclaiming and using the energy lost in the heat of the exhaust gases from an internal combus-tion motor. To obtain or extract and make use of this energy has, says our

French writer, been the haunting dream of many inventors, who for the most part have sought to employ it in the actuation of accessory ap-paratus such as dynamos, pumps, etc.

But this purely mechanical user has always suffered from the dramback of choking, restricting, or damming up the free flow of the gases, and so detracting more or less from the efficiency of the motor from which they

Every Motorist Should Be Able to Steer Well While Backing Up-Steering With Hands Off Only For Experts.

No motorist should call himself an expert until he can run his car backward as well as forward, without painstaking caution or poor steering. It is not often that this accomplishexercise is likely to be of considerable advantage, since it may be the means one's self from a traffic crush, while there may even arise circumstances in which it will avoid positive danger. Most motorists are not capable of running their ears backward for more than a few feet at a time. The genuine expert should be able to run his car backward for a quarter of a mile,

With reversible steering the steering means should always be kept hold of by the operator, whether or not the car shows a tendency to keep to its straight course. There is al-ways the danger of something acting suddenly to turn the wheel, with the result of more or less serious accident. With irreversible steering, such as is used on the Maxwell, Columbia, Brush and nearly all other cars, steering "with hands off" is possible because the car will usually stay on a substantially straight course if the wheels are once set. Chances should not be taken, however, and it is only at low speeds and on a perfectly straight road that the expert will permit himself to devote less than his full attention to the direction of the car or remove both his hands from the parts of the controlling mechanism.

to realize generally that the solution of the so-called tire problem lies in proper care and reasonable use. It has been determined by experiment that tires fully inflated, so that a man's weight applied to the wheel hub will not produce a noticeable depression of the pneumatic, will have double the life of a half inflated tire.

It is significant of the importance of this that a company, which buys tires by the carload, has issued an order to all its road testers and demonstrators to keep tires pumped up hard. To enforce the order a fine of $2 has been fixed which will be charged against the employe for each tire found soft at any time. In case of slow leaks, punctures and blow-outs the employes are required to repair the damage immediately, or, if this is impossible, to remove the case and drive the car in on the rim. The rule has been in force for some time, as well as another of equal importance relative to braking, which of a car who wishes to lengthen his tire life. It provides that the brakes shall never be applied so as to lock the wheels except to prevent an ac-cident. In going down steep hills the brakes are scarcely ever used, the practice being to slow down at the top of the hill, engage second speed gears, let in the clutch and start down. If the hill is a long one the

Something About One of the Motorist's Best Friends

The manufacture of causium carbine on a commercial basis was made pos-sible thru the development of the elec-tric furnace about sixteen years ago. Calcium carbide is a strong compound Calcium carbide is a strong compo of calcium and carbon, which is de-composed into lime and acetylene gas by the action of water. It is made from coke and burnt lime generally in electric furnaces where large currents and low voltage are used and extremely heavy bus-bars are necessary. Currents as high as 40,000 amperes at 30 volts have been used. The current comes almost invariably from transformers, and, as the resistance of the charge varies rapidly with the temperature, some means of regulation is necessary. This is usually accomplished either by means of an induction regulator or by varying the transformer ratio by means of a dial switch or contactors.

charge varies rapidly with the temperature, some means of regulation is necessary. This is usually accomplished either by means of an induction regulator or by varying the transformer ratio by means of a dial switch or contactors.

At the temperature of formation calcium carbide is liquid. As the actual formation of carbide occurs in the neighborhood of 3000 degrees centigrade, all the ordinary refractory linings are unsuitable for its manufacture, and a frozen layer of the carbide itself is used for the furnace lining, the exterior of the furnace being aircooled, altho in Europe there are some water jacketted furnaces used.

The principal use of calcium carbide at present is for the manufacture of acetylene gas, which is used for lighting and is beginning to be used for heating purposes on account of the very high temperature obtained when burning it with oxygen.

Pure acetylene gas is credited with having a faint, sweet smell, but the smell given off in the reaction.

One pound of carbide, when brought into contact with water, gives off in its decomposition, 753 British thermal units which in the absence of an excess of water is sufficient to raise the temperature of the surrounding materials to a bright red heat.

The unpleasant odor arising from the raw carbide upon opening the receptacle is the primary source of objections. Various methods have been applied to overcome this serious drawback in Going against the wind, the wind wagon gained rapidly on the aeroplane but, coming down the stretch with the wind, the latter easily outstripped the earth-bound flier, and crossed the line a hundred yards ahead of the wind wagon.

The wind wagon didn't really have a fair show. It's easy enough to the track a wind wagon in an aeroplane. You can take the inside of the track and keep it, and, furthermore, you can cut corners if you feel like it—which no auto wind wagon can do with impunity when the fence is strong. The owners of the propeller-driven auto say that the machine can make 60 miles an hour, but that in the race with the plane it was handicapped practice, in the opinion of the writer referred to. by a small propeller, their big propeller having been broken.

Have You Ever Purchased Three Pairs of Shoes?

Most people have. But did you ever invest in three pairs that differed in wearing qualities about as follows: One pair was a good pair in every respectexcept that the seams appeared to have been sewed with No. 60 Spool Cotton, or therabouts. Another pair had strong enough seams, and were all right in other respects except that the soles might as well have been made of cork so far as durableness was concerned. The third pair had plenty of seam-strength and plenty of sole-quality, and were all right in other respects except that the leather cracked like cheap paint in a July sun. Each pair looked good and was good-except.

differ from other tires principally in that they eliminate the "excepts". They have no weak points which destroy or make ineffective the really good qualities of the tire. A good tread makes doubly effective a good fabric construction, and a good method of amalgamtion gives both the tread and the fabric an opportunity to give you the best service. HERE IS A TIRE THAT IS NOT ASHAMED TO BE JUDGED BY ITS WEAKEST POINT. It not only looks like a good tire, but (what is considerably more important to you) it wears like one. And what is true of one of them, is true of all of them. You can depend upon it that the tire you buy will be a GOOD tire.

I dropped the aero until she almost touched the branches and crept nearer. I dropped the aero until she almost touched the branches and crept nearer. Our hearts, I am sure, were all in our throats, and we did not speak above a whisper. Passing round the huge pyramid formed by the clustering tops of a clump of towering hemlocks, we were astonished to see the light again, now very close, bright and undulating. "It's reflected from the surface of water," whispered Mr. Grantham.

It was true. We had come in sight of the little lake in front of Payton's lodge and as we drew hearer, we saw way across, and had dropped nearer.

CHAPTER XV.

A Night Attack and an Exciting Chase.

The Eagle had resumed her position on the opposite side of the little lake from the lodge, and directly facing the entrance of the latter. I could see the dim forms of the other aeros silently waiting in their places and no light showing about them. The Eagle, from her position, was the only one that might be seen from the lodge, but, covered by the shadows of the tall trees, the tops of many of which rose above us, I was confident that we would not be noticed as long as we did not move, especially since it was evident that Payton felt so secure that he was keeping no watch—at least, for enemies in the air.

Now we held a consultation in whispers. Occasionally we caught without effect; and the Chameleon, suddenly changing her ascent to a horizontal course, rushed away with amazing speed, while the Skylark continued to chase her. The other three moved confusedly about, and I shouted to the Osprey to drop down by us.

"Here," I said to Lieutenant Osborn. her commander, "take charge of the Eagle and beach her. I'll take the Osprey with my crew, and you can transfer yours to the Eagle. Quick

The transfer was effected in less than five minutes, and immediately I rose out of the shadow of the trees, commanding the Crow and the Bobolink to follow me at full speed. Mr. Grayman, and the secretary, of course, accompanied me aboard the Osprey. It was a desperate move, but the only thing to be done, as the Eagle had become utterly unmanageable.

When we had attained a considerable elevation we except sight of the

The revenue filers were all built on the same general plan, so that I ran no risk of confusion or uncertainty for my men in transferring them. I wanted my own crew, because I knew every man of them like a book, and particularly I wanted Ethan and the engineer. I should have liked to give Ethan his own gun, but, of course, when every second was precious, no transfer of armament could be thought of. As soon as the chase was located I ordered top speed, and then took Mr. Grayman and the secretary into the cabin for a consultation. They were greatly cast down by the unfortunate turn that the affair had taken, particularly the billionaire, who fairly groaned.

Ethan touched me again.

"For God's sake," cried the secretary and the secretary proposed in the secretary and of the secretary in the cabin. Mr. Grantham, you have done me the honor to put me in commander. I wanted to ask you, Mr. Secretary, if wanted to ask you, Mr. Secretary if wanted to ask you, Mr. Secretary if wanted to ask you, Mr. Secretary if wanted the future. Our only chance is in having a single responsible commander and no divided counsels."

I went immediately on deck, the others following. I was delighted to perceive that the Chameleon was still visible, tho dim in the distance, with the Skylark doggedly churning after her and yet firing from time to time. Close behind us rushed the Crow and the Bobolink. I visited the engineer. "Jim. do you know the Osprey's mois Waller, after all, is not to pay his expected visit to New York in the fall of the year. As I stated in a previous letter all arrangements had been condluded to this effect. In a letter addressed to them he enumerated the plays he proposed to present, adding, by way of postscript, "If you don't like these you are free to cry off." Promptly came back a cabeegram, "We accept the alternative." And so matters are at an end between the two contracting parties. There remained for Waller nothing to do but to book an autumn tour in the English provinces and this he has now English provinces and this he has now effected. He will take with him a couple of new plays with the view of trying them "on the log" and ultimately of bringing them, should they prove successful, to the Lyric where

Eventually Trench had to accede to these conditions. Fancy a girl not yet out of her teens, who has, indeed, only left school, and who possesses very little stage experience, earning $400 a week! This is the sort of thing that tempts so many in-competent youths and maidens, who have no earthly chance of earning even a bare livelihood at the game, to fly to the theatre. Yesterday Charles Frohman unbur-dened himself to me of all his hopes and ambitions touching his Repertory Theatre. He vowed by all his gods that he has no intention of dropping it and that next February will see a new start. Well, we must wait hope fully for February to discover what happens. There cannot, however, be the slightest doubt that the venture has hardly come up to expectation. Frohman himself admitted that the public found an obvious difficulty in following the constant change of program. The fact in no way surprises me. For, the ordinary playgoer detests trouble of any kind and can hardly be induced to consult the advertise ment columns in order to learn what is going on. If the Repertory Theatre does come to life again, and I have Frohman's assurance that it will. ertainly will be on a different basis. It is obvious, also, that an institution of the kind only fulfills its raison d'etre if it succeeds in building up a solid repertoire of plays. Now look-ing back at Frohman's season I can't selp asking myself, how many pieces has he produced that will bear re-vival in the future? Personally if I were invited to say, I could only name Barrie's one-act trifle, "The Twelve-Pound Look." Not a very rich har-vest, is it, considering the quantity of seed sown and the enormous amount of labor bestowed on its cultivation. Nevertheless, Frohman is as cheery nd as hopeful as ever. One little fact he told me worth mentioning, perhaps. The death of King Edward, ie said, cost him no less a sum than $30,000. The admission does not astonish me. What does, is that so tonish me. What does, is that so prudent and far-seeing a manager had not insured himself against loss. The ordinary business man might surely be expected to do so much.

As I expected, H. B. Irving's latest program has not proved to the satisfaction of the public. I still cling to my opinion that if Irving only showed greater discretion in the choice of his plays he would soon be in the front row of successful west end managers. But he has a morbid taste for what is gloomy and horrible and seems wilfully to blind himself to the truth that playgoers prefer a bright and stimulating entertainment. Some day, possibly, he will learn wisdom and then his banking account will tell a different tale. Meanwhile, portunities of putting out the "full ard" in front of the house.

When I reflect on the vastness of your area, on the fertility of your soil, on the unlimited wealth of your natural resources which I rejoice you are determined scientifically to conserve as well as vigorously to develop; when I reflect upon the vigorating nature of your climate, and on the strennous character of your people; when I reflect on all these great advantages which you possess in such abundant and exceptional degree; then, gentlemen, I feel as convinced as I am that to-morrow's sun will rise that if you keep true to the highest ideals of duty and distinguished service, nothing can prevent you from becoming, and perhaps before the close of the present century, not only the granary, but the heart, soul and rudder of the empire.—Earl Grey, in farewell speech in Ottawa, May 4, 1910.

In Montreal everyone drives about in cabs, which are quite cheap and remind one of the "flacre" in Paris, the "cochers" have the same happy-go-lucky reckless way of driving, and Aunt Kitty insists they take a real pleasure in grazing wheels and only just missing the trains. They have no pretensions to being coachmen or to looking like them, but are simply "friendly souls" ready to drive you where you want to go. In Toronto there are no cab-stands to be seen on the streets, and a cab is a much more formal affair, with the result that those people who are not fortunate enough to have their own carriages or motors, generally go in the trams, except in the evening. To judge by the numbers of people who ride it would seem that no ne ever walked. The trams are everywhere, and as the Canadian seldom has time to accomplish all he wants to do, he saves it by "taking a car." It is considered rather like 'Arry and 'Arriet to go for a walk just for walking's sake. You must go for exercise or to "get there."

ranch life of the Western States. The march of civilization, the spreading of the mighty arms of the great railroad lines, the springing up of little towns, with their shops and tiny houses, have slowly but surely driven the way of the great herds of buf-faloes the picturesque figure of the American cowboy, and now has commenced the passing of the rollicking cowgirl, the type of American womanhood that sprang into existence when the great tide of settlement from the east began its roll across the wide western prairies.

The magnet of home life may be one reason for this change in western liv-ing conditions. The influence of good literature may be another, or visits east to come in contact with the re-finement and culture of others of their sex may have much to do with the alternative. The fact remains, the cow-girl is rapidly disappearing, and more of the type that have time and again been made the heroines of novel after novel are to be found among the vari-ous wild west shows exhibiting in all sections of the country than actually exist in real life.

The woman in camp has changed this diet to light biscuit, steaks with corn fritters and other delicacies to break the monotony. In the exhibi-tion of fancy riding and lariat throwing that invariably takes place from time to time during a round-up, the women sometimes take part with enthusiasm. Many of the most skilful performances in past exhibitions have been given by the riders in skirts. This practice, too, among western women is becoming less popular. The old-time bachelor cowboy dwelling was usual a dugout or a tent, containing but two rooms, one a bedroom, the other a kitchen. Now it's a comfortable house, with a wife to keep it clean. The average ranchman's home to-day has paper on the walls, well kept beds, chairs, instead of soap boxes, often a piano, and nearly always lots of books and other forts.

The passing of the cowgirl is, indeed at hand. The gradually retreating "frontier life" is driving out of existence this romantic figure. Before long we will have to be content with traveling exhibitions that depict early western life and customs. Like the owboy and the Indian, she is fading into the past.

Five young women, now filling professional engagements with exhibitors that describe the life of the cowgirl of the past are Eileen Anderson; Pearl King, Alice Lee, Hazel Moran and Lulu Parr. All of these girls are crack shots, and have given evidence received from disgruntled unpleasant facts in regard to the way some of the magazines are conducted, provided we can accept the testimony. The latest of these writers, Robert D'Henri, says: "Some time ago I sub-mitted a manuscript to one of the best magazines. I called after a lapse had marked on my manuscript: This man writes well, tho the article is not broad enough in its scope for our large man is but many men are like the philosopher satirized by Professor James, who declaimed eloquently on magazine. The article is of particular interest to the population residing known to perceive beauty in any conin and about New York, and contains statistics which were made public for the first time. The editor, whom I had never met before, spent some time with me, and advised me to place my manuscript with certain magazines that he believed would take kindly to Since then I have submitted it to half a score of publications, and it is generally returned with regrets. It is placed in the hands of 'readers'whose rule is to reject everything un-less the name of the author is known

The wrath of writers with rejected manuscripts in not unlike that of Achilles, altho they are seldom found, like the Homeric hero, sulking in their tents. From one magazine to another, from one publisher to another, the manuscripts wend weary way. Everyone knows that the greatest books have often gone beg-ging for a publisher. Carlyle's "Sartor Resartus" was rejected by every ublisher in London before seeing the light of day in the columns of Fraser's Magazine. Even a popular novel, like Mrs. Henry Wood's "East Lynne." is often turned down. Those who remember the tremendous popularity which Hugh Conway's "Called Back" enjoyed a score of years and more ago, were doubtless surprised to learn that its author had great difficulty in placing his manuscript, but he did have, and it was finally sold for a song. The truth seems to be that publishers, editors and readers are seldom endowed with literary omniscience. A well known man counts for more than the ablest craftsmanship or genius. Mr. Roosevelt is receiving a dollar a word for his book on African game trails, not because the work possesses an intrinsic value to such a degree, but because Mr. Roosevelt is a popular hero at the present time. "What's in a name?" Shakspere inquires. Well, in some matters it is nearly everything.

The New York Times Saturday Review of Books has lately been printing letters received from disgruntled ing letters received from disgruntled ent. No doubt that statement is quite magazine writers, and from these lettrue. The trouble is that publishers ters one is able to gather some rather do not always know genius or talen of one week and was received most graciously by the editor. The 'reader' genius. And, in the abstract, every crete object.

Observations of a Toronto Church-Goer

The Captious Critic Visits the Baptist Cathedral.

The Baptist Cathedral.

The Captious Critic wandered into Jarvis-street Baptist Church on Sunday morning. Jarvis-street is the cathedral church of the Baptist community of this city, and well does it maintain its dignified position. The building itself is one of the most attractive adorning this city; its appointments make for the interest and pleasure of the large congregations that usually assemble there summer and winter, for Jarvis-street is perhaps one of the best attended of the down-town churches.

A Famous Choir.

Folk who have never worshipped in the Baptist Cathedral have at least heard or read of its choir, which is justly famed as a well-trained organization of capable singers. The cop-minimal capable singers and annexing the very best pupit material. In Dr. Perry, formerly pastor, they had a minister and preacher of exceptional ability and preacher of exceptional ability. Rev. T. T. Shields was chosen to succeed this. He's a worthy successor of Dr. Perry. Indications are that he'll also pull big congregations when the church-going season is again in full big congregations when the church-going season is again in full big congregations when the church-going season is again in full big congregations when the church-going season is again in full big congregations. When the summer is also much misconception about the Bible. "It does not each, nor profess to teach science in any of its branches. Science, "It does not each, nor profess to teach science in any of its branches. Science, "It does not each, The Baptist Cathedral.

Why do so many city people regard a summer church service as a synonym for all that is uncomfortable? In practically every case because church managers do not use common horse sense in providing for the comfort of those who attend. Instead of paying special attention to ventilation and seeing to it that the services are short, bright and interesting, officials allow buildings to become close, stuffy and overheated and the time of service to drag out to an unconscionable length.

Dispels a Grouch.

The subject dealt with was "A Repair of Light," the purpose of its delivery the encouragement of increased patronage of the educational funds of the choral effort. The sough of the preacher's manner, the originality of the bright, crisp language in which they were clothed was, too, engaging to permit of any long-sustained grouch. And clearness and simplicity of speech make plain windows on the summer breezes as nature's own accompaniment to the grand words of Heber's noble hymn to the Trinity—"All Thy Work Shall Praise Thy Name, in Earth and Sky and Sea." Some churches have fallen patronage of the educational funds of Verb. sap.

Dispels a Grouch.

Yes, the Captious Critic fared forth to divine service last Sabbath, and remembers the expedience without any feelings of martyrdom. Fact of the matter is, the man who retired to rest on Saturday evening with a well-developed grouch could take no more effective steps to restore his mental equilibrium than by joining in the exercises of some Sunday morning church assembly. There's something particularly restful and soothing to frayed nerves about such an occasion, if the attendant circumstances be properly regulated by the responsible parties.

The Baptist Cathedral.

Praise Thy Name, in Earth and Sky and Say and Sea." Some churches have fallen into the regrettable habit of reserving the best and brightest events for the Sunday evening service and of allow-ing the morning service to be dull, function at the day's events afforded by the morning service makes the church as a kind of spiritual ticket vendor, the minister as a server of religious quick-lunches and the church as a waiting-room on the way to a better land and none at the evening. Any music lover hearing "Jesus, Priceless Treasure," rendered as anthem by the Jarvis-street choir would take the very responsible parties.

The Mystery of Death

By Charles H. Heydemann.

Our birth is but a sleep and a forpathy. They neither can minister to getting; The soul that rises with us, our the mind diseased. And the fear of death is the greatest disease of all. So the busy man does not think of it, life's star, Hath had elsewhere its setting,

The soul that rises with us, our life's star,
Hath had elsewhere its setting.
And cometh from afar.

LONDON, June 25.—I have not had the heart, recently, to write my usual tale of the turmoils in the world's market places. Death has been my visitor. One, whom I knew, who was near to me, who moved in my little circle, has been stricken down suddenly, without warming, prematurely. And my mind circles ceaselessly around the labyrinths of life, that all lead in one direction, into the shadow of death's grim cave, whither he whom I knew, he whose hand I touched but yesterday, has gone, never to return. Is it morbid, the symptoms of a diseased mind, to think, to speak of these things? We of to-day, with our modern, easy-going, pagan way of living turn our faces and our thoughts away from that last grim moment, shudder, and pass by without looking.

And yet all our happiness depends on the labyring turn our life is overshadowed by it. All our happiness depends on the labyre happiness of a living turn our faces and our thoughts away from that last grim moment, shudder, and pass by without looking.

And yet all our happiness depends on the labyre happiness of a living turn our faces and our thoughts away from that last grim moment, shudder, and pass by without looking.

And yet all our happiness depends on the labyre happiness depends on the labyre happiness of a labyre happiness in an equable condition of the wish of the labyre happiness in an equable condition of the mind, has a salutary hygiene of its own. But it is only a state full. Let the dead past bury its dead.

So the busy man does not think of it, as a thing distasteful. Let the dead past bury its dead.

The daily task, an engrossing cocurpation of the mind, has a salutary hygiene of its own. But it is only a least to sonly a laby and the labyre is a gentle and there is living turn our faces and our thoughts away from that last grim moment, shudder, and pass by without looking. And yet all our life is overshadowed by it. All our happiness depends on making up our minds, now, when we are well, as to how we shall bear ourselves in that last quarter of an hour when we are dying. That is the sum of the philosophy of life. The discipline of the brave man, of a virile race, is to look death in the face without finching, as only the eagle, it is said, can look into the sun. All the great actions of this world, of the English race, we owe to people who have counted death as nothing. Why should we fear death? It is only our wishould we fear death? It is only our wishould we fear death? It is only our be washing and the stranger of the sources. Not one of them had ever opened a book; not one of them had a hobby; hot one of them cared for music or any form of recreation, with the great tioned by Dr. Johnson, who, after the sheets and play with flowers and smile upon his fingers' ends, knew that there sheets and play with flowers and smile upon his fingers' ends, knew that there was but one way; for his nose was as sharp as his pen, and a' babbled of green fields."

Bichat, in his work on life cases before organic; how the senses severally fail, and the functions of the organs of relation gradually decline; and he passes his days concentrated upon himself; a stranger to all that surrounds him, deprived of desires, passions and sensation, isolated in the midst of nature. So, he says, animal life comes to cease gradually; so each of the ties which enchain us to the pleasure so living are broken little by little, the pleasure secapes us nuawares, and when at length a man has become abliques of the cost then belief that he was miserably poor. Epicurus, the great rival of the Stoic philosophers, says: "Why should we fear death? For where death is entered his sumptuous carriage and told the coachman to drive to the there we are not; and where we are, there we are not; and where we are, there death is not." And yet we do fear it? Death is, according to the Biblical expression, the "king of terrors." The terror it inspires is perhaps, owing to the obscurity which surrounds it. Men fear it, like childeren do the dark, the not knowing which, owing to the herding together which which, owing to the herding together which which will be not all but inseparable from it, and are expressed and emphasized in the terms "mortal agony" and "death struggle." Physicians, the clergy, and intelligent nurses—all, indeed, who are practically conversant with the dying, the true of the together which workhouse, saying that it was the only place he thought himself fit for. It is probable that both fear of death and fear of pain are signs of degeneracy, of the physical decline which will be a sumptious carriage and told the coachman to drive to the workhouse, saying that it was the only place he thought himself fit for. It is probable that both fear of death struggle." Physicians, the clergy, and intelligent nurses—all, indeed, who are practically conversant with the dying. what it is. The nocturnus horror, the fear of the night, can be dissipated man. Degeneracy is the soil on which morbid fears spring up and multiply. by a little light. Death would give us Cases of strange and insur-mountable fear or antipathy have been less apprehension if we knew it better. And nobody is there to tell us. The noticed in some celebrated men. Scali-ger was seized with nervous trembling sermons we have from the clergy, archaic in thought and redundantly sermons we have from the calls, archaic in thought and redundantly inflated in language, deal in vague and unsatisfactory generalities. "The wages of sin is death." The clergy is hopelessly out of touch with modern man, in whose life the struggle to live is the main outstanding fact, and the doles of the church are but poor pallatives to the downtrodden, who want work, not charity. Hence, the churches stand empty. The care of souls has passed into the physician's hands with the cure of the body. For it is now universally admitted that a healthy body and a healthy mind are interdependent. Make a melancholy man fat and you cure his sadness.

People with sour-faced attitudes towards life need purging more than preaching to. They think they are plous, when they are only billious. But neither does the medical man discharge his trust satisfactorily. Of course, one must admit that the averpeople died either before two or after age general practitioner has but 70, if death were in all cases the swift and painless thing that it is with many, and if the old man left behind him creature of routine, too hard driven the inevitability of death is more powerful than in any other time of your life. After middle age the idea becomes tolerable, because the mind is familiar with it and partially reconciled to it; and when old age deepens about a man he busies himseif with thoughts of death—by one of the most kindiy of nature's paradoxes—hardly more than a little child. A very old man may be dreadfully perturbed if his dinner is late, if an expected letter does not arrive or if a trusted his dinner is late, if an expected letter does not arrive or if a trusted clock stops, but he is by no means perturbed by the perceptible approach of death. There is a gentle aim merciful slackening of the senses. He is little more sensible of the removal of those lew of his contemporaries when

Compare the external beauty of the Amberola with that of the highest grade piano, and you will find it even more charmingly designed and just as beautifully finished. Consider the lifetime of study required to become a proficient piano player. You need no musical training whatever to enjoy the Amberola.

Now compare the Amberola with a player-piano. Anyone can operate a player-piano, but when all is said and done, it gives you nothing but piano music. The Amberola gives you all the best music of all kinds—Grand Opera, Orchestra, Band, Sacred Music, Songs and Ballads, Rag Time and Dances.
