A STORY OF SHOES....

Something everyone knows about, you say. We're not so sure. There's a degree of style about footwear, and a variety you'd hardly dream of, without viewing this store's stock. Do you know we can show half a hundred different kinds of shoes? Shoes for the dainty ladies. Shoes for the man whose oo cupation means much and heavy tramping. Shoes for school wear, and for the babies. It's needless to say our prices are all right.

POCOCK BROS. FOR SALE-All kinds of Trunks and Valises very cheap. Free delivery to organ of union printers in Canada and the United States, contains a life-like photo of Melvin Hodgins, a former employe of The Advertiser, brother of Mr. A. D. Hodgins, of the firm of Bradford & Hodgins. Accompanying the photo is the following, which will interest many friends around his old

The subject of this sketch was born near London, Ont., Feb. 14, 1860. He lived on a farm until about 18 years of age, when he started his apprenticeship on the Exeter (Ont.) Reflector, on which paper he worked three years, afterward working in Collingwood and Galt, Ont. In 1882 he moved to London, and there got his first insight into unionism, becoming a member of No. 133 in 1883. Mr. Hodgins remained in that city until May, 1856, and in the in that city until May, 1856, and in the meantime worked in the various offices in that city. In 1886 he moved to Bay City, Mich., where he has since resided, with the exception of six months, when he worked in Detroit and Saginaw, Mich. He has been financial secretary and corresponding secretary of No. 81 at various time for the past ten years. At the meeting in July to elect a delegate to the International Typographical Union convention to be held in Syracuse, he was chosen as a representative to that body. Mr. Hodgins also holds membership in the Masons, K. of P., D. O. K. K., I. O. O. F. and M. W. A. He is one of the best-known printers in is one of the best-known printers in the state, and generally makes him-self heard when occasion requires on all questions pertaining to the trade. In 1893 Mr. Hodgins represented No. 81 at the convention of the State Federation of Labor, and brought back a very fine report of the proceedings. He is very exact in everything, and strives to have others be the same. Mr. Hodgins is perhaps more popular among tourist printers than the average member of the craft. He has always a warm place for them in his heart, and the tourist can almost in-

CHINA HER DESTINATION

Miss Maggie E. Johnston Has Devoted Herself to Missionary Work-Left Today on Her Long Journey.

Miss Maggie E. Johnston, of this city, left today on her Way to China as a missionary. Miss Johnston is a young woman about 23 years of age, and her parents live near Brucefield. She is being sent out by the Christian Workers Mission of this city, of which she is a member, but will be under the jurisdiction of the China Inland Mission. At the revival meeting held in the mission church, King street, last evening, Miss Johnston said farewell to her friends, by whom she will be supported in her field of labor. Over $300 has been subscribed toward the initial expenses, and Pastor Mackenzie explained that $100 had been spent for training in the Christian Alliance Missionary Institute, New York, and the further sum of $100 had gone to purchase the necessary missonary outfit, variably secure at least a day's work leaving $100 more to meet the $200 needed to cover the traveling expenses. needed to cover the traveling expenses.
Thirty dollars was immediately promised by the friends present, and the usual farewell hymn was sung, "God be with you till we meet again."

Miss Johnston will spend a month in Toronto, at the China Inland Mission Home in that city before continuing Home in that city, before continuing on her way to the land of the Orient.
She is not likely to return for six Steamer Mohegan Goes Down During a Gale.

A Large Number of Her Passengers and Crew Lost.

One Lady Died After Being Brought to Shore.

The Survivors Suffered Severely-Story of a Rescued Passenger-The Crew Behaved Like Heroes.

London, Oct. 15. - The Atlantic Transport Company's steamer Mohegan, formerly the Cleopatra, of the Wilson & Furness-Leyland Line, which left London for New York on Thursday, with 50 passengers and a crew of 150, went ashore off The Lizard betwen the Manacles and the Lowlands. It appears that when the Mohegan struck, a gale was blowing, and the sea was running high. Lifeboats put off from the Lizard and from Falmouth, one returning filled with passengers, and another saved six.

The coast at that point is extremely dangerous, and has been the scene of numerous wrecks. Some years ago, there was a movement set on foot to get a lightship placed there, but it

It appears the Mohegan foundered, and was blown ashore by the heavy east wind after her machinery was disabled. All the Falmouth tugs went out, but none were able to approach the vessel.

THIRTY-ONE SAVED.

London, Oct. 15, 3:30 a.m.—According to a dispatch just received from Falmouth, out of the 200 persons constituting the passengers and crew of the Mohegan, only 31 have been saved, This intelligence was forwarded from the coast guard by telephone to Falmouth. The coast guards are watching for bodies and wreckage.

Later-A lifeboat has landed thirty of the passengers and returned for more. One lady died after she was brought ashore. THE LOST STEAMER.

The steamer Mohegan (then the Cleopatra) arrived at New York on Aug. 12 last on her maiden trip from London. She had been launched a few months before at the yards of the Earles at Hull, England. She is a single screw, steel vessel of 4,510 tons register, 480 feet, 52 feet beam, and about feet in depth of hold. She has (or had) accommodation for 125 passengers and a capacity for between 7,000 and 8,000 tons of freight and 700 cattle. Her commander is Captain Griffithe, commedere of the Atlantic Transport fleet. She is one of the five vessels recently purchased from the Wilson and Furness-Leeland line by the Atlantic Transport Company to replace the Mohawk, Mobile, Massachusetts, Michigan and Mississippi, which were sold to the United States to be used as transports. The other four are the Manitou, Marquette, Mennonite and Mescaba. These were formerly the Victoria, Boadicea, Alexandria and Winnifreda, respectively. When renaming the vessels recently the Atlantic Transport Company desired to use the names of the five sold to the government, but was requested by the government not to do

Only 31 survivors reached the shore last night, but a number of others were rescued this morning. The Mohegan was formerly the Cleopatra, of the Wilson and Furness-Leeland Line. She left London for New York on Thursday, having on board, so far as can be ascertained at present, 59 and a crew of 15 officers and men. As soon as the steamer was seen

CAUSE OF THE DISASTER. The general opinion at present is that the machinery of the Mohagan became disabled during the heavy easterly gale which was blowing, and that she ran ashore and soon afterwards foundered.

This morning another life boat land-ed 16 more. As life boats put out from a number of places, hopes are expressed that the number of survivors may be increased. One of the 16 passengers saved this morning is a STORY OF A PASSENGER.

One of the survivors of the Mohegan, Mr. George Male, of New York, was interviewed after he had sufficiently recovered to be able to tell the story of the wreck.

He said: I am a shipper of horses, employed by the American Transport Company. We left London on Thursday and all went well until 7 o'clock yesterday evening, when most of the passengers were at dinner. The steamer was going at full speed, and suddenly we heard a loud crash, which seemed to denote that we had collided with some other vessel. But when we rushed on deck, we found that the Mohegan was on the rocks between the Manaeles and the Lowlands, in the vicinity of the Lizard. Orders were given immediately to lower the boats, and the crew of the steamer

BEHAVED LIKE HEROES,

Her captain stood on the bridge, and perfect order prevailed among the officers and crew. The steamer, however, immediately began to settle by the head. Two boats were launched. The women were sent away on the first boat, but whether these boats reached land or not we did not know. I managed to secure a life-belt, and jumped overboard in company with the chief officer of the Mohegan, Mr. Couch. He made me take off my coat and shoes. Soon after that we were parted from

A PITIFUL SCENE.

When I was leaving the vessel a little girl begged piteously that I try to save her, as she did not want to die yet, but I was powerless to help her. Eventually I caught hold of a plank which was floating on the water, and I clung to it for seven and a half hours. At the end of that time I was picked up by a tug. I could not have lasted much longer. I cannot explain how the accident occurred. The whole matter is not very clear to

SANK IN TWENTY MINUTES.

From other sources it was learned that the Mohegan sank about twenty minutes after she ran on the rocks. The local seamen who have been questioned on the subject appear unable to explain how the Mohegan got into such a position.

One of the passengers among the 45 persons rescued by the Porto Houstock lifeboat, says that just previous to the Mohegan going ashore he thought the steamer was nearer land than usual. All the passengers were dining when the catastrophe occurred, though some of the children who were seasick were in their bunks. Suddenly the Mohegan struck with a grating noise. At first the engineer thought it was caused by coal falling down in the bunkers, but a second shock followed and the vessel began to settle.

WHAT THOSE ON SHORE SAW.

A coast guards man who was on duty at Caveract says he noticed the Mohegan was pursuing a dangerous course, but he was unable to do anything, as the choice of a course was In the hands of her commander. Wm. Moore, a seaman of the Mohethe men who succeeded in reaching Port Houstock. He said the vessel struck forward, on the starboard side of her bow, and sank head first, her stern rising right up in the air. Moore sprang overboard, and after swimming for a time, succeeded in reaching an empty lifeboat belonging to the steamer. He got into her, and started to row for the shore. Some time afterwards he saw one of his shipmates, a man named Hilson, on a raft. Hilson was exhausted, and Moore dragged him into the boat, where he was so exhausted that he could not move hand or foot, his shoulder being badly injured. The sea was then running heavily, and the lifeboat was nearly full of water, but she escaped two or three rocks. Eventually, however, she was smashed to pieces. Moore and Hilson were afterwards washed ashore.

THE PASSENGER LIST. The reports received as to the numper of survivors are extremely contradictory, even at this hour. The following passengers, 50 in number, were on the Mohegan: P. A. Still Going Up-Increase in Imports and Customs Duties.

Ottawa, Oct. 15.-The trade returns of the Dominion for the first querter of the current fiscal year, ending Sept. 30 last, show an increase in the aggregate trade of the country of about seven million dollars over the same period last year. It must also be re-membered that last year's figures were the highest on record. The aggregate trade for the quarter is $87,-655,255, compared with $80,797,395 for the same time in 1897. There is an increase in the imports of over $11,000,000, and a decrease in the exports of about $4,-000,000. The imports are $44,190,170, as to be in distress, life boats put off against $32,990,471 for the previous year. The exports are $43,465,085, compared with $47,806,924 in 1897. The duty for the current year is $6,784,-944, as against $5,127,700, and increase of $1,657,244. The decrease in the exports is chiefly in mine and in the exports is chiefly in mine and forest products, and in animals and their products. Agricultural products have increased.

Wire and Iron Company's Big Contract Completed.

The construction of over four thousand feet of overhead railway, with the numerous accompanying appliances necessary for the rapid handling of hoge, at the Canadian Packing Company's factory, Pottersburg, has been completed. The big contract was let to the Dennis Wire and Iron Company, of this city. The ceilings of the factory are laced with rails, and an innumerable number of switches have their part in the working of the plant. When it is considered that the locomotive power for this railway is manual, assisted at some points by the force of gravity, and, that the factory has a capacity of killing and handling hogs at the rate of 6 per minute, the smoothness and accuracy of the intricate mechanism is appreciated. The experience and facilities of the Dennis Company evidently fit them for the installation of this branch of packing rouse equipment, having also recently completed some large plants for other packing

What Scrofula Is.

Scrofula is a disease as old as antiquity. It has been handed down for generations and is the same today as in early times. It is emphatically a disease of the blood, and the only way to cure it is by purifying the blood. That is just what Hood's Sarsaparilla does in every case where it is given a faithful trial. It eradicates all impurities from the blood, and cures the sores, boils, pimples and all forms of skin disease due to scrofula taints in the blood. FOOTBALL.

THE FIGHT ENDED. Toronto, Oct. 15.-The fight between the Ontario Rugby Football Union and the four senior teams thereof is over, and the teams have won. The com-mittee appointed by the union to meet the clubs did its work. The $50 proposition made by the union was not entertained at all, the clubs agreeing to furnish a trust fund of $25 each to insure the union that there would be no deficit, and to provide a surplus sufficient to carry the union on next year. This will be in addition to the The $25 a game, if found necessary. matter was fully discussed and everything went off harmoniously. THE PEACE

Slow Progress Made by the Deliberators.

The Philippine Question Not Yet Reached-Cuban Debt Business Shelved.

London, Oct. 14.-The Paris correspondent of the Times says: "The peace negotiations are necessarily slow, being conducted less by exchange of notes and statements. Senor Montero Rios, president of the Spanish commission does not understand English. Consequently the few words exchanged must be interpreted, and even then they are defective till committed to paper.

The Cuban debt question had thus already been laid on the table, and the American commissioners had already given a peremptory refusal to discuss a principle which had been settled, as they considered, by the peace preliminaries. Faithful to the attitude adopted by them from the outset, they seemed resolved to take their stand on the instructions-or, rather, the precise and concise ordersthey brought with them; but the Spaniards, on their side, do not think themselves bound to bow with docility to the imperative instructions of another government. They returned to the charge yesterday, if I am well informed, urging the generally admitted principle, which imposes on conquerors the burdens belonging to the territory conquered, either in their own behalf or that of their clients. They insisted that it would be an extraordinary course to saddle Spain, already in so lamentable a financial position, with the Cuban debt, while surrendering to

Senor Sagasta and his colleagues are said to be greatly concerned regarding the demands of the United States Government, which they assert not only refuses to assume any of Spain's colonial debts, but wants to take the heavy artillery in Cuba and the float-ing dock recently sent to Havana. Plots That Failed

Kaiser

While on His Trip Through the Holy Land.

The Situation in Paris More Serious

Than Any Time Since the Commune. Alexandria, Egypt, Oct. 15 .- The Alexandria police have arrested nine Italian anarchists, and have thereby frustrated a plot against Emperor

William, now on his way to the Holy Land, to be present at the consecration of the Church of the Saviour at Jerusalem. The first to be arrested was a cafekeeper, a well-known anarchist, in whose house the police discovered two wire-bound bombs of great strength, full of bullets. This arrest was made in consequence of a notification from the Italian consul-general at Cairo that two anarchists had left Cairo for Port Said. The police investigation showed that the arrested cafe-keeper had bribed the steward of a steamer sailing yes terday from Alexandria to Port Said and Syria to take on board a box of bombs. Apparently the anarchists originally intended to use the bombs at the Palais Abidin, at Cairo, while Emperor William and the khedive were there. When the kaiser decided not to visit Egypt the anarchists changed their plans and decided to attack him in Palestine. The liveliest satisfaction is felt over the smart captures, and the German consulate has expressed its warmest thanks. The Cairo anarchists who left

The French Plot.

LOUIS BONAPARTE IMPLICATED. Paris, Oct. 15.-The government officials here refuse to furnish any information regarding the discovery of the plot against the government. But it is rumored that the conspiracy involved Prince Louis Bonaparte, who is a colonel of the Russian Lancers, and in whose favor his elder brother, Prince Victor Bonaparte, recently resigned the leadership of the imperialist party. It is added that certain political personages have handed the premier important documents, including a cipher dispatch, compromising certain military men. The minister of war has canceled his intended absence from Paris. The Liberte asserts that the military men alleged to have been concerned in the conspiracy are Gens. Bois-deffre and Pellieux. Attempts, it is alleged, were also made to compromise Gen. Zurlinden, the military governor of Paris, who for a short time was minister of war, but it appears the present minister of war, Gen. Chanoine, refused to countenance it.

ITS ORIGIN. According to the rumor, the plot arose from a forged letter, purporting to have been sent by Gen. Boisdeffre to Gen. Zurlinden, containing the words "Let us be ready for Saturday." The semi-official Temps last evening minimized the affair, and says the officials of the ministry of war formally deny that a plot existed. The Temps suggests that misinterpretation was placed on some of the numerous dispatches now being exchanged between the different garrisons, in connection with the present movement of troops, which led to strange reports SERIOUS SITUATION. London, Oct. 15. - The situation in Paris is regarded in well-informed quarters here as being more serious than at any time since the commune. The St. James' Gazette says: A military revolution, however peaceful, which replaces the Brisson cabinet with the nominees of the generals, would imperil the relations between England and France almost to the breaking point. The semi-official and partly inspired Paris papers are still pretending that negotiations are proceeding between the two governments, and France believes it, although everybody in England knows the statement to be ridic ulous. Even suppose Major Marchand is unconditionally withdrawn from Fashoda, the difficulties with France will in no way end. Behind it lies the whole question of the Bahr-El-Ghazel, the richest prize in the Soudan."

The Paris correspondent of the Times says: It is impossible to obtain clear proofs of the existence of a plot. I believe, however, that the idea of some act of force haunts certain military minds. Maddened and stung by violent criticisms of the army arising out of the Dreyfus affair, they are especially irritated at the attitude of civilians in claiming to interfere in the detention of Col. Picquart, for which the en-

Toronto, Dec. 6, 1897.

To whom it may concern:

Being constantly associated with a large number of men, among whom are many addicted to the use of strong drink, my attention has been drawn to one of the several cures for inebriety. For some four months or over I have been interested in watching the results of the "Dyke Cure" on five different men. I have visited their homes, and no stronger testimonies could be given than those of the wives of these men, for they know from bitter experience what a drunken husband means to a home. The men say they have no more desire for drink, and can now pass and repass saloons without any desire to enter.

My last visit was made a few days after Thanksgiving Day. One young married woman said this was the first Thanksgiving Day she and her husband had spent together for five years. Another woman said it was the first Thanksgiving Day she had enjoyed for 20 years, on account of her husband being drunk. He is now a sober and homeloving man.

Such proofs of the changes wrought by the "Dyke Cure" are most gratifying to all except saloon-keepers.

A Paris telegram says: It is impossible to pick out the truth from the mass of rumors regarding the alleged military plot. The general idea is that it was intended by a pretended revisionist demonstration to insult and provoke the army into some act which might have led to the arrest and incarceration of a Dreyfusite and the proclamation of a military government. Apparently the Orleanists were at the bottom of the movement, and an English duke is mentioned. There is little doubt that the plot has been frustrated, but a very uneasy feeling prevails. It appears that quite recently the gen-darmerie were withdrawn from the great towns of Normandy and Picardy to Paris, but it may be assumed this fine body, under orders from the prefect of police, and the minister of the interior, cannot be moved without first proclaiming a state of siege. A long and vague semi-official statement has appeared, suggesting various possible motives - such as Dreyfusite intrigues or an attempt by the Socialists-to frighten the government into dispersing the troops that now prevent the success of the strike, to explain the rumors of a military conspiracy. The mysterious allusions, however, and the absence of any straightforward denial tend to encourage the belief that there must be some ground for the rumors. for Port Said have not yet been ar-

BRUSSELS PEOPLE EXPECT A COUP.

The Duke of Orleans, accompanied by Comte Sabran Pontevas, has arrived at Brussels to watch events. The papers believe the reports of a coup. The Etoile-Belge regards it as "the last desperate effort of the French general staff to save itself from downfall." Other papers say that the conspirators had been meeting clandestinely at Versailles, and that M. Brisson has intercepted cipher correspondence pointing to a design to seize some fifty prominent republicans.

Suggestion That Russia Should Side With France.

France Alleged to Have Concluded Treaty With Abyssinia Against Great Britain-Marchand's Report on Its Way to Cairo.

Paris, Oct. 15.—Del Fosse, the royalist leader, in a letter published in the Gaulois, says that at the conclusion of the Chino-Japanese war, France unhesitatingly assisted Russia, and the time has now come for Russia to repay that service by helping France against England. It is evident, he says, that if it should be necessary for England to go to war, France would be helpless alone. Russia is the only power that can contemplate war with England with serenity, for she is invulnerable. The Novoe Vremya (St. Petersburg), commenting on the British blue book giving the correspondence between Great Britain and France concerning Fashoda, says it is difficult to believe that the negotiations will not end in the manner Great Britain sires. It adds that France, thanks to her present rulers, finds herself on the verge of a serious diplomatic defeat.

Managing Director John Cameron and Editor.

London, Saturday, Oct. 15, 1898.

The Drinking Man and His Job. The twelfth annual report of the United States commissioner of labor deals entirely with the liquor problem, and as so much has recently been said on this subject in Canada, a summary of the important conclusions reached through the investigations made in the adjoining republic may be worthy of careful consideration by our readers. It is the result of an investigation authorized by Congress, and so far as we know, has not yet appeared in any other Canadian newspaper

In the United States at the date of reporting, there were 6,187 distilleries, producing 89,992,555 gallons of liquors The number of breweries was 1,866 the production of fermented liquors being 15,980,000 gallons, and the total production of liquors of all kinds 1,-217,609,305 gallons. The value of the yearly product of the entire liquormaking trade is now considerably over $300,000,000, and the revenue from the traffic collected by the national, state and municipal authorities is over $180,000,000. This money is obtained from the owners of the 161,483 liquor-dealing establishments that are to be found in the United States, who are reported to have $957,162,907 invested in the business, and who give employment to 241,755 persons.

These statistics afford some idea of the hold which the drinking habit has upon the people of the United States who consume a great deal more intoxicants per capita in the course of a year than do the people of this temperate Dominion. But the most important point in the report is the result of the inquiry which the United States Department of Labor set on foot for the purpose of securing information in regard to excess in the use of intoxicating liquors among employes of large establishments in agriculture, manufactures, mining and quarrying, trade and transportation. The labor commissioner sent out a schedule to over 30,000 representatives of labor in all parts of the country, and the replies he received as to their experience and practice relative to the use of intoxicants are embraced in this most interesting report. Employers were asked if in selecting new men, they were accustomed to give consideration to habits in the use of intoxicating liquors, and, if so, what means were taken to ascertain such habits. About one-fifth of the employers reported that liquor habits were not taken into consideration; the other four-fifths reported that means were taken to ascertain the facts. The largest percentage of employers making some investigation in regard to the liquor habits of the men were engaged In transportation. But both in trades and manufactures a very large proportion of the employers say they take the habits of the applicants into consideration when engaging them. It was found that in some establishments no one using intoxicating liquors was employed. In other cases, the prohibition applied to certain occupations only, and in still other cases to employes only when on duty. The two chief single reasons given by employers for the requirement that employes should not use intoxicants are stated to be "to guard against accidents," and "because of responsibility of position." These two make up more than twothirds of the number reporting, and in combination with others, comprehend a great many of the remaining cases. The statement "because of responsibility of position" is somewhat general in its character. It was principally applied to engineers, overseers, foremen and wachmen. For this reason, It is probable that the statement more in detail would divide itself into several heads, namely, to guard against accident, fire or theft; to secure honesty and reliability, and to make a rood example for other employes.

A table relating to the establishments prohibiting the use of intoxicating liquors brings out the fact that more than one-half the employers reporting require in certain occupations, and under certain circumstances, that employes shall not use intoxicating liquors. In many occupations, employes ere required not to use intoxicants either on or off duty. Establishments having employes subject to night work were asked to state whether such employes were not more addicted to the use of intexicating liquors than others. It does not appear, however, that such employes are, to any considerable degree, addicted to the use of intoxleating liquors beyond other employes, nor was it found that employes subject to overwork, exposure to severe weather, or employed irregularly, were more addicted to intoxicants than those who were not. In the majority of establishments reporting, it was stated that their employes were more addicted to the use of intoxicating Hquors immediately after pay day than at other times. In the mining and quarrying industries, indulgence after pay days is strikingly noticeable. Experience differs as to whether Saturday is the best pay day or not. In some cases where the pay day has been changed to Saturday, the statement was volunteered that the change was made in order to allow drinking employes to recover during Sunday from the effect of the indulgence. In all, 200 different expedients are reported to have by the new arrangement been tried by those troubled with drinking workmen, but the conclusions are by no means clear. The chief means tried seem to have been the discharge of the offender, and there is reason to believe that in these days of keen competition this is the most potent expedient, though it often bears harder on the wife and children of the man than on himself.

The concluding inquiry of the schedule was as follows: "What means, in your view, better than now employed, can be taken by employers, communities, organizations, municipalities and states to lessen the consumption of intoxicating liquors among the people?" The replies received, as naturally would be supposed, were in great variety, and the answers probably represent, to some extent, opinions formed from the personal trials of the means specified by their writers. Almost 200 different means are suggested. Less than one-fourth of the total number of employers of labor reporting advocate the prohibition of the liquor traffic as, in their opinion, the means best suited to lessen the consumption of intoxicating liquors. A considerable number suggest that the refusal to employ drinking men is the best method; others that the imposition of high license would accomplish most. A number suggest education, moral and religious, and the improvement of social conditions. Government control and limiting the number of saloons, the removing of all restrictions in the sale, the encouraging of consumption of light wines and beer, and the prohibition of treatingall had their sponsors. These replies were received in response to schedules sent without preference to all parts of the country.

The Commissioner of Labor considers that by far the most interesting feature of these schedules is to be found in the answers as to the best means to employ, to lessen the consumption of intoxicating liquors among the people. It is somewhat remarkable that where any mention is made of prohibition it is to say "Repeal prohibitory laws," "Prohibition of no avail," "It only increases the desire for liquor," etc. Also, in regard to taxation, with one exception, lower license and more liberal excise laws are favored. Better education and severe punishment of drunkenness are also frequent suggestions.

Some of the replies to the inquiry are, however, considered to be worthy of reproduction in full in the report: "From about thirty years' observation, I am convinced that the bad habit of treating is the cause of more drunkenness than any other thing." "Prohibition increases the desire for whisky, wine and beer. The abolition 'treating' habit of our people would decrease consumption, increase sobriety, and solve the liquor prob-

"We believe that the brewers' m ods to establish as many caloons as possible, by favoring low license, etc., and the 'treating' habit are the two worst enemies of moderation and true temperance.'

Education, which is the precursor of refine-The offender's punishment ment. should be on an increasing scale for continued offenses. It is he only who offends, and he should be dealt withnot the dealer, but the offender. In other words, offenders should be dealt with for this offense as for others, with increasing punishment for each offense.

We give these extracts, as printed in the report of the Commissioner of Labor, as he no doubt also gave them, to show the variety of propositions which are made by employers of labor when they are asked to state what they consider to be the best means to decrease the consumption of intoxicants among the workers. These, after all, are the least conclusive of the facts adduced by the Commissioner. The result of his inquiry, in brief, is that everywhere employers and employes are co-operating to reduce the use of intoxicating liquors, though there are many divergencies in the belief as to how this can best be done. One thing is certain: the unsteady drinking man is no longer wanted by any employer of labor in any portion of this American continent. It may be difficult for some of the older members of the community to adapt themselves to the newer conditions, and it is so much the worse for them: but young men should note the fact, and take good care that they are able by the cultivation of correct personal habits, in every sense to fulfill the requirements on all sides demanded of those seeking employment.

The Government having decided that St. John, N. B., should be the terminus or our winter transatlantic steamship service, instead of Portland, Me., It is interesting to know that the Canadian port is of far greater commercial importance than its rival in Maine. The St. John Telegraph points out that the imports of Portland in 1897 were only $577,295, while St. John's were $3,440,338. The exports of Portland the same year were $4,106,200, and of St. John, $6,280, 611. Much of the Canadian trade that formerly went through Portland will be diverted to St. John and Halifax

The Labor Battle in Illinois.

The recent serious and aloody encounter in the Illinois mining district, details of which have filled the newspapers, has caused a good deal of

The facts, baldly put, are these: The miners had asked 40 cents a ton for mining the coal, were offered 28 cents, and had gone out on strike. The mine-owners decided to import a considerable number of negro and other workers from Alabamae who were willing to work at the lower. figure. Trouble was anticipated by the Sheriff, who notified Governor Tanner that State troops would be needed to preserve the peace. The Governor took upon himself to decline to provide the usual means of keeping the peace. He took the ground that the best class of miners got employment at home, and only the criminal class would come-men who would soon quit work and get into the poorhouses, jalls and penitentiaries, and become a burden on the taxpayers of the State; that while there was no law to keep them out of Illinois, he did not propose to use the arms of the State to give protection to the mine-owners in operating their mines with this class of men.

The train-load of outside workers from Alabama arrived. They were met by an immense crowd of workers opposed to their coming, and presently there was a pitched battle, a general exchange of bullets, in the course of which thirteen men were killed and a large number wounded.

The fighting is now over; the Governor having done, at the last, what most will think he should have done at the first, namely, disarm all concerned, as far as possible-resident miners, outside miners, and the employers' garrison at the works.

The point of discussion turns on the course of the Governor. To what extent was he right? To what extent wrong? He was probably in the main right as to his sympathies. If, as has been asserted, 28 cents per ton was below a living wage, his sympathies were on the right side; for there is no final gain to a community, a country, or to civilization, from denial of the principle of the living wage-i. e., a wage rate compatible with being civilizably fed, housed, dressed, and furnished with a little leisure. But the Governor had at length to use means to suppress disorder, and to disarm those on both sides who were disposed to take the law into their own hands; and the question arises whether it would not have been better to have asserted the supremacy of law and order at the beginning, and thus have prevented the loss of life altogether. Was not his first duty as official head of the State to preserve order?

Whatever one's sympathies-and we must confess that the resident miners in this case, on the whole, have our sympathy-one must be careful to remember the inestimable benefits, the absolute necessity, of law and order, if there is to be any security for life and property, any true civilization. One can see what a state of affairs would soon ensue in, say Hamilton or Toronto, if one set of workers on a drain, in course of construction, were to open fire with rifles and revolvers on another set of workers from Ottawa or Stratford, who were willing to work on the drain at a lower rate of wages.

The evils of taking the law into people's own hands are, usually, greater than the evils sought to be avenged or remedied. And the trouble is, that the evils connected with taking the law into people's own hands are apt to breed a host of collateral evils, as one venomous snake can breed a hundred others. Once begin to remedy real evils by promiscuous shooting on the streets, and all sorts of fancied evils would be dealt with in the same way. Chaos would be the result. It is this principle of the supremacy of an orderly settlement of all forms of dispute, as compared with the ways of "lesser breeds without the law," that constitutes at once the glory and the strength of Great Britain and her world-wide rule.

Would not this whole unfortunate Illinois incident have been one in which the principle of arbitration, either voluntary or enforced, might well have got in its work?

THE THIRD QUARTER OF 1898

Gratifying Decrease in Numbers and Amounts of Failures.

We are indebted to Mr. Edwin Paul, of this city, the capable manager of Dun's Agency, for some interesting figures relating to Canadian failures for the third quarter of 1898. The improvement is shown in the following table: Third quarter, 1896.....$3,924,257 Third quarter, 1897.....$3,340,971 Third quarter, 1898.....$1,848,947

The following general remarks are also very interesting: "There is first a smaller number in the aggregate than in the same quarter of previous years, and a smaller number in many of the classes. Next, there are two large failures of edged tool works in Quebec for $118,000 and of iron works in Vancouver for $190,000, which cover well-nigh half the total liabilities in manufacture, making it larger than a year ago, though but for these it would be only two-thirds as large. In trading, the amount is but 42 per cent of last year, and 39 per cent of the amount in the same quarter of 1896. While an unusual number of considerable failures in lumber manufacturing swells the aggregate in that branch, it was smaller than in previous years, for most other manufacturing classes, and in the two of largest importance was not half last year's in leather, and not a third in the miscellaneous manufacturing class. The failures in general stores were less than half last year's, in hotels and restaurants not a quarter, in clothing small, and in the important drygoods class not a quarter of last year's, in shoes little over a third, in furniture insignificant, and in the miscellaneous trading class not a fifth of last year's."

A SUBURB THAT'S GROWING

Pottersburg To Be Known Hereafter as London Junction.

Remarkable Progress Being Made-All THE OVERDRAFT the Comforts of a City.

The petition, so largely signed by residents of Pottersburg, to have the name of the postoffice changed to "London Junction," has been granted by the postmaster-general. Notification of the approval has been given the petitioners through Inspector Hopkirk, the new name to be used after Jan. 1. 1899, which affords the people of the place much gratification.

The district adjoining the city known as Pottersburg has been undergoing many changes during the past few years, that are fast making it a depirable place of residence, as well as a place that must soon be of considerable importance.

The features that go to make it a desirable location for the planting of industries are very apparent. It situated at the junction of the G. T. R. and C. P. R., the stations of which are in close proximity. This, of itself, will be of great importance in the industrial future of the district. The street railway runs past the Asylum avenue, on which the C. P. R. station is situated, to the G. T. R. station, opposite the postoffice. Land is procurable in lots adjoining the railways, some of which have been gone over and reported favorably of by companies seeking new spheres of operations, but who found greater inducements, by way of bonuses, in richer districts. The fact that the Canadian Packing Company has enlarged and improved their extensive factory during the past summer, and that they find it the right point to bring their animals to from all parts of the west, speaks on its behalf. As a place for the planting of industries, it will soon be well known. The demand for residences far exceeds the supply. Some business men have already noted this, and are preparing to erect suitable houses those seeking homes. Mr. Jabez Metcalfe has commenced the erection of six handsome homes, some of which will soon be ready for occupation. His energy in this respect is to be com-mended. This year six houses is the record for the place, but indications are that this number will be more than doubled next season. More than a dozen houses could be rented within able. Lots are advancing in price in the preferred locations, so that early investment will be more profitable.

The locality is higher than the greater part of the city. The soil is of a dry, sandy nature, while the aspect is quite picturesque. On the north are the beautiful grounds of the Asylum, that will always afford a restful and pleasant view. To the south is the rural district skirting the Hamilton road, around which the south branch winds, and which is dotted with beautiful groves bordered by well-cultivated This part has become the fashionable drive and bicycle run from the city. The locality is a healthy one. Many persons state that they receive a new lease of life by coming to the locality, as they did not enjoy good health before. The privileges to be enjoyed are greater than in many suburban districts. A 12-minute service is given on the electric railway, thus making it equal to outlying parts of the city. There is a good two-roomed school, of which Mr. Kennedy is principal, who received so many votes, recently, for assistant in Talbot street school. A third room will soon be needed, as the children now fill the present rooms. The school is central. There is a handsom . neat, comfortable and commodious orick church, which the six denominations in the place attend, dwelling together in the union of charity. The congregation is called St. George's and has the regular gospel ordinances under Rev. Geo. Gilmore. It is an independent charge, and has been used to the improvement of the place socially. intellectually and religiously. In connection with the church is a good library of nearly 500 volumes, which to open to all the people of the district. The weekly output of books exceeds 55 volumes. The posteffice facilities are good, as mail is taken off and put on the Toronto trains, as well as received from the city Mr. D. T. Buchanan, postmaster, has a telegraph office in connection. Mr. R. Tremain, the princi-pal storekeeper in the place, is an energetic man. Three months ago the place was favored by the incoming of a medical practitioner. Dr. Laurie came there with a good reputation as a gentleman and a doctor. He had a large and remunerative practice in Coboconk, but wished to be near the metropolis of the west. In gynaecological cases and Dyspepsia and Stomach Troubles the Cause.

Paine's Celery Compound Does a Marvelous Work.

Mr. Rainaud Says: "I Am Now Completely Cured."

Are you a miserable dyspeptic disappointed in the past with medicines you had hoped would have wrought a cure? If you are still suffering, it is but right to assume that you have not yet given Paine's Celery Compound a trial. Thousands physically broken down by dyspepsia, indigestion and general stomach troubles have been made strong and vigorous after using the great com-

PRESBYTERIAN MISSIONS. Toronto, Oct. 14. — Statistics just compiled by Rev. Dr. Warden show the Presbyterian home mission expenditure for the past six months exceeds $39,000. This is considerably in excess of last year, owing principally to the big outlay in connection with the Klondike. The estimate for this year is $$2,000. The receipts show a falling off, contributions from Britain having decreased noticeably. The work in the mining districts of British Columbia will necessitate an addition of at least $5,000 to the revenue. The expected immigration to the west of Lake Superior will necessitate the opening of many new mission fields. The building of the Crow's Nest Pass Railway and the Rossland-Penticton line will mean greatly increased expenditure, and the church will be asked to subscribe more liberally.

Hamilton, Oct. 15.-The provincial Y. P. S. C. E. convention decided to hold the inter-provincial convention at Montreal next year. It was announced that Miss Lottie Wiggins, who had been re-elected to the position of junfor superintendent, had resigned, and Mies Whitworth, of St. Marys, had been elected to fill the vacancy. Before final adjournment banners were awarded to Huron, Ontario and Wellington. Rev. Frances E. Clark, the founder of the C. E. movement, was presented with a picture of the 1898 convention committee, as a token of appreciation. The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. Dr. Clark, his subject being "The Birthright of Christian Endeavor." The consecration service was a fitting close to this grand convention. The attendance was the largest that has ever been held in Canada. 850 delegates registering, senting 192 societies and 100,000 Christian Endeavorers.

Summary of the State of Trade in Canada-The Outlook Across the Border.

New York, Oct. 15.-R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review says: Canadian reports are generally satisfactory, although no special activity is noticed, and at some points the weather has interfered with sales.

At Montreal there is a good move ment to fill country stocks before the close of navigation, while groceries and drygoods enjoy good trade, although leather and dairy products are quiet. Wholesale trade is active at To-ronto, especially hardware, meats, groceries, leather and builders' supplies. Drygoods trading is unfavorably affected by the mild weather. On the other hand, cooler weather stimulates business in drygoods and clothing at St. John, but there are complaints of slow collections. Prices are well maintained at Halifax, but country buyers are only purchasing for immediate needs.

Satisfactory trade and payments are reported at Quebec. At Victoria wholesale trade compares favorably with last year's, but retail trade is quiet, because of un-favorable weather. Retail merchants are doing well at Winnipeg, especially in boots and shoes, clothing and hard-

Bradstreet's says: Less favorable weather conditions interfered with trade distribution in Canada early in the week, but cooler weather has induced a larger distribution of fall and winter goods. Toronto reports the wheat movement still small, farmers in the Northwest holding wheat in elevators, a rather better export trade on lower prices and Canada holders of wool and barley hoping for favorable results from the present treaty conference. Considerable stocks of Canadian wool are reported held in the United States by Canadian dealers. Montreal notes retail trade helped by cooler weather, and drygoods jobbers say trade is up to the average. Butter exports are heavy, but exports of cheese are light. A healthy trade is doing at British Columbia points, and collections have improved. In the Maritime Provinces trade is rather disappointing and collections are dull. Business failures in the Dominion of Canada number this week 22, against 23 last week, and only one-half what they were one year ago.

ON THE OTHER SIDE. R. G. Dun & Co.'s review says: It has never been possible to make a more satisfactory quarterly report of failures during the five years which are covered by the returns made exclusively by this paper than can be made for the past quarter. While a very few heavy failures swell the aggregate for the last quarter-those in real estate brokerage or speculation alone counting for more than 11 per cent of the aggregate, with as much more in operations not at all reflecting the general state of business-the aggregate was nevertheless smaller than in any other month covered by our returns for many branches of business. In some branches the failures in September or in August were the smallest in any month, and also in many others failures for the quarter were the smallest in any quarter.

With actual payments through clearing houses 19.7 per cent larger than in the same week of 1892, it cannot be said that business is in any sense falling off, and yet many are complaining because the amount realized as profit is smaller than was formerly realized

The wheat business is more active, with prices about 2 cents higher for spot, and nearly 3 cents for the December option. Very heavy purchases have been made within the past few days. It is especially interesting that, in spite of the general disposition of farmers to hold back their wheat, the western receipts have been for the week much larger than last year.

The price of spot cotton is a sixteenth lower than a week ago, and the January option has also lost a few points, while there is a weaker tone in the market for goods. This is partly due to the official admission that the prices for print cloths, now a six-teenth below 2 cents, cannot be sustained without a selling agency, which is now proposed.

The iron manufacture again reports a small increase in weekly output. Failures for the past week were 205 in the United States, against 223 last years, and 25 in Canada against 36 last

provement in the retail and jobbing trade in seasonable drygoods, clothing and shoes is reported, and more seasonable weather at the south is responsible for some relaxation of the absurd quarantines, which have done so much to cripple trade in that section. Good export demand on general European account, smaller ship-ments from Russian and Danubian points, less favorable reports regarding Russian and Australian crops, and an undoubtedly active home demand for wheat for filling, superinduced by the active foreign call for flour, have all worked to strengthen the price wheat this week, and sympathetic deflection is found in the improved call for other cereals at slightly better prices. This improvement in demand for breadstuffs is especially encouraging in view of the rather unfavorable showing made in September, when exports of breadstuffs, provisions, cotton and mineral oils combined aggregated a total of $18,000,000 less than September a year ago, lower prices and smaller quantities shipped alike working to reduce the volume of export trade. Another favorable feature in the foreign trade situation, too, has been the apparently satisfactory progress in developing trade with our new possessions in the Atlantic and Pacific.Large orders on Cuban account are said to have been placed recently in New York, and heavy shipments to Manila and other Pacific Ocean points, with the reported starting of new lines of steamships to Honolulu and Australia, all bear testimony to the energetic efforts of American business men to build up our trade abroad. Railroad earnings and bank clearings continue to furnish favorable measures of current business, showing as they do healthy increases over corresponding periods one year ago, when activity was especially marked. The general tone of prices is firm, all the prominent cereals figuring in the list of advances, while cotton, the south's great product, is conspicuous because of the decrease in prices shown for the week, due primarily to the heavy crop movement, foreshadowing another very large yield. Business failures for the week number 233, against 163 last week, 196 in this week a year ago, 279 in 1896, 289 in 1895, and 253 in his colleagues, of the imperial defense board, are busily engaged in Montreal and vicinity. They have been examining the mountain and both banks of the river, and it is understood that they will recommend the construction of extreme range batteries on Mount Royal and to erect powerful works at St. Lambert and Caughnawaga, as an interior defense to a long line of powerful detached forts covering the strategical points of the frontier.

Formidable Works To Be Constructed on the St. Lawrence-United States Offset to Esquimalt. Montreal, Oct. 15. - Col. Dalton and

A SET-OFF FOR ESQUIMALT. Victoria, B. C., Oct. 15 .- The United States will shortly begin to fortify Port Angeles with the object of setting off the fortifications now being erected by the British Government at Esquimalt, which is only 18 miles away, directly across the straits. The place has been recommended by various United States naval authorities as the best location on the Pacific coast for the use of the navy. The citizens recently sent a letter to Senator J. S. Wilson, opposing the scheme, and sayng: "Should trouble arise with England, an English war vessel could sail from Esquimalt, and in ninety minutes be in undisputed possession here. Supplemented by her fortifications and warships at Esquimalt, England would be in absolute posession of the Straits of Fuca, and the entire commerce of the straits and sound would be at her mercy, and every city and interest on the straits and sound imperiled.

Medicines, more than anything else in the world, stand solely upon their merits. Nobody uses a worthless medicine but once, and there is no subject more generally discussed than diseases and their remedies. Only the best survive the crucial test of popular experience. One of the few remedies with half a century of successful practice to its credit is Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure. It is sold on a positive and business-like guarantee. The following is printed on the outside wrapper of every bottle: "You must acknowledge that it would be the height of folly to guarantee this medicine, unless we have positive evidence that it will relieve and cure these complaints. While there are many other good remedies, the proprietors have not the faith to guarantee them. All we ask of you is to use two-thirds of the contents of this bottle faithfully, then if you can say that you are not benefited, return the bottle to your druggist, and he may refund the price paid, only requiring you to write your name and address in this blankas evidence of good faith, and as a record which we desire to preserve. the germs of consumption by destroying them and enabling the ffected parts to heal. The tonic properties of Shiloh strengthen the weakened mucous membranes and enable them to throw off the deadly bacilli. Taken in connection with special nourishment, hygienic living, and clothing in pure wool, the sufferer from incipient consumption is sure of a complete recovery. WORLD TALKS

Peculiarities of Distinguished Lorrain, the gifted young French poet, People in Europe.

Henrik Ibsen's Aversion to the Attention of Strangers

The Red Virgin-A Cobbler Poet-Sarah Bernhardt's First Success,

LOUISE MICHEL, THE RED VIRGIN. No woman in modern history has been a greater object of terror to the governments of Europe than this famous French communard. She has been driven from country to country, bounded by military spies, and kept under police surveillance for more than half her life. Yet, personally, this woman, now nearing her 70th year, is one of the gentlest and most highly educated of her sex, one who has worked incessantly for the poor and suffering, and who would cheerfully sacrifice her life for them. She is the best known and probably the most respected Anarchist in the world, because she is sincere in her convictions. "I am an Anarchist, but I do not associate with any class of Socialists. I am in favor of right and harmony instead of force," is her declaration. "She would have been a great saint if her mind had turned that way," says the Sister Superior of St.

Lazare. of her. She is of very respectable parentage, taught in the schools of Paris for many years, and is deeply versed in the classics. During the reign of the Commune in Paris she served with the men at the barricades. She has been deported and pardoned, arrested and rearrested. Yet she continues her literary work, and her self-imposed mission to the poor and suffering. Her history of the Commune, recently pub-lished, throws much light on the events

HOOLEY'S FRIEND DE LA WARR. Lord de la Warr, whose name has become well known through the Hooley scandals, is not yet 30 years old, yet he has had a varied and in some respects remarkable career. At first he tried the inviting but difficult game of diplo-macy, and failed. Then he went out as a commissioner on pearl-fishing for a well-known jeweler. Then he tried telegraphy. But he has been signally successful in nothing.

In person, Lord de la Warr is tall, hin, with a small, light mustache and slightly bent shoulders. When a boy he used to play with the Dukes of Clarence and York. Hide-and-seek was their favorite amusement. The Wales boys always wanted to win, and being bigger and older they occasionally found it convenient to use a little healthy coercion. And once the Duke of York soundly thrashed Lord de la Warr because he would not let him win. From present appearances it looks as though Hooley were also thrashing Lord de la Warr for not letting him win.

DUKE AS A SHIP'S FIDDLER. Americans know comparatively little about the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, Queen Victoria's second son. He has never done anything to specially attract public attention, and is of a reserved nature. He possesses none of the popular characteristics of his courtier-like brother, the Prince of Wales. But he is in reality, a sturdy, warm-hearted Englishman. He has just celebrated his 56th birthday.

He is by no means aristocratic in his bearing. It is said that when, as captain of the Galatea, he went on a voyage round the world, he was at his own request addressed simply as "Sir," and "Captain" instead of the more formal title. The duke is a fine violin player, and frequently during that voyage would he bring forth the instrument of many moods, and, during the dogwatch, the sailors' playtime, turn out reels and jigs, while his mates of the fo'c's'le jumped it solemnly in a hornpipe round the deck.

THE SULTAN OF MOROCCO.

The Sultan of Morocco, now so much talked about, is only 17 years old, yet he rules with absolute power over 5,-000,000 subjects. So well is he beloved by them that any of them would lay down his life for his ruler. The young despot of the Empire of Morocco is known among his subjects as the "Prince of True Believers." He succeeded to the throne on the death of his father, and was proclaimed sultan in the sheikian camp only four years

The government of Morocco is vested in the sultan, and he is hampered by absolutely no rules or restricting laws, either civil or religious. The sultan has six ministers - the grand vizier, ministers of foreign affairs, home affairs and war, chief chamberlain, chief has just passed her 55th birthday. treasurer and chief administrator of Strange to say, in the year 1843, ancustoms. The revenue of the sultan amounts to about a quarter of a million dollars annually, enough to make some show of oriental splendor.

SARA BERNHARDT'S FIRST SUC-

In her art she is unex-She is a great favorite with Queen Victoria, and it is now nearly twenty years since she played for the first time in London.

vanished completely."
Sarah Bernhardt had good cause to be anxious on this occasion, for an earlier appearance on the stage of the Theater Francaise resulted in an absolute failure. Since that night at the Odeon, however, her career has been one long-continued triumph. Nor have her successes been confined to the stage. She is a painter and sculptor, as well as an actress. is never more happy," wrote a friend of the great actress, who was with her in Brittany, "than when she is leaping from rock to rock, barefooted, with her net in hand, or paddling knee-deep in the waves in quest of crabs."

THE COBBLER-POET.

It is now announced that Jacques le who threw up literature in disgust about two years ago and turned cob-bler, has determined to take to the pursuit of letters again. Commissions were few and far between, and the poet has come to the conclusion that he might as well starve at writing, which he likes, as at shoe-making, which he detests. One would have thought that the general interest excited in his abandonment of literature would have brought him customers. But it was not so. Neither the young literary lions of the Latin Quarter, nor his wellto-do friends, nor the prosperous literary men who formerly encouraged him, troubled their heads about the cobbler. A journal devoted to the leather and tanning trades gave him some orders for verses, to be paid for at $5 a contribution. Le Lorrain accepted the offer, but the editor discovered after paying for the first poem that $5 was a great deal of money for a few lines of poetry. "Just imagine," said poor Le Lorrain bitterly, when discussing the question with a friend of mine, "for that money he gould have bought a that money he could have bought a pair of patent-leather, hand-sewed boots!" He has had enough of cobbling now, and he is going to take up his pen again. It is evidently not given to every one to successfully imitate Tolstoi.

THE PECULIARITIES OF HENRIK IBSEN.

Henrik Ibsen lived for several years in Munich, and during that time he was a familiar figure at one of the cafes on the principal streets. He came there regularly every day, sat always at the same table, and read the foreign newspapers. He attracted then a moderate amount of attention from visitors to the cafe. Apparently he never noticed them, and he took his place at the table without speaking to anybody, always sat alone, and left when he had finished reading his paper.

Often he was approached by strangers and his conduct was then polite and reserved. One of the women who had seen him almost daily for many months said that she had never seen him refuse his autograph to any one who asked for it, or repel the considerate advance of any person who desired to speak to him. But it was also true that at that time he was never approached in any but a respectful Posen's fame has grown greatly.however, during the past few years, and many persons who had never heard of him several years ago now know, at least, that he is one of the most famous men in literature. That knowledge may account for a story that comes from Christiania concerning the worry and inconvenience which the English visitors to Norway now cause him. They go to Norway how cause him. They go to Norway in shoals during the summer months, and it is said that they have come to look upon Ibsen as the great curiosity of the capital.

The novelist continues his habit of going daily to a cafe, and there is said to be a line of staring Britishers always awaiting his arrival. He is evidently as indifferent to the interest he awakens as he used to ich days, and never notices it. the action of a party of English touists a few weeks ago is said to have finally called out a strong protest from the famous writer.

He was on his way to the Grand Cafe in Christiania when he encountered six travelers. Three were men and three were women. They stretched in a line across the sidewalk. In vain the dramatist tried to continue on his way. The line of six effectively barricaded the way. But the flying wedge was too much for him. Suddenly he espied a seventh Englishman. This one carried a camera and was struggling to get Ibsen in at attitude that would make a good picture. That was too much. Remembering probably that George Bernard Shaw is an Irishman and Elizabeth Robbins an American, he made this unexpected outbreak:

"Those miserable English!" A still stronger protest against their conduct followed. He turned back, went home, and missed his hour in the cafe for the first time since his return to Christiania.

Ibsen's pictures were not always as much appreciated in England as they are today. During the German exhibition held several years ago at Earl's Court, a portrait of the dramist by a Munich painter hung in the main gallery. One night two typical English girls entered the room.

"Oh, I say," said one to the other as she pointed to Isben's portrait, "that old gentleman's had a bad fright,

Several years ago I had an attack of La Grippe, which left me in a very weak condition, my health being much impaired. Ever since then I have suf fered from nervous prostration, heart trouble, and pain in the left side, so that at times I was unable to move about.

The least exertion distressed me, and oftentimes I could scarcely breathe, having to sit down after walking up stairs and rest for some minutes. also had a fluttering sensation around my heart, so much so that I was sometimes unable to attend to my household

Despite the use of many remedies, and of the best medical skill, I obtained no relief until I finally tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I had only taken a few doses when a marked improvement took place in my condition. I began to relish my food, and gained in strength every day.

My restoration to health and vigor followed as naturally as night follows heart or nerve trouble will only give these wonderful pills a trial they will have a rich reward for so doing in the restored health and vigor which I believe will always result from their use. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have Cured her of Heart Palpitation-Invigorated her Nerves-Enriched her Blood and Brought Color to her Pale

For five years I was very miserable with heart trouble and nervousness. My entire system was run down, and I suffered from impoverishment of the blood, which made me thin, pale and weak. My heart would beat so that I could not walk; and I would smother and have difficulty in catching my breath. I was in a very bad state indeed, and thought that my remaining time on earth would not be very long. Both doctors and medicines failed to give me relief.

Hearing of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, my husband got some for me. From the first I got better and better, and am now like another person. Palpitation of the heart is gone; the color has returned to my cheeks; my system is invigorated and my blood day. I do not suffer now from any of has been enriched. I no longer suffer the troubles which formerly made life from the fretful nervousness and smothering feeling, and am in fact better than I have been for years. Needless to say, I heartily recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as the only medicine in the world which I believe could have acted so promptly and well in my case.

the rampant reformer. The orthoox fashion in making up the beds so as to gently slope towards the feet, and having a good-sized pillow or two under the head is all wrong. A promenent French doctor, M. Vilhelm Fischer, is responsible for this statement. He asserts that after a long series of experiments he has proved conclusively that to sleep in a bed prepared in the old-fashioned way is simply to induce ailments of all kinds. He advo-cates a complete reversal of things. You must have your head on a level with or lower than your feet. If pillows are to be used they must be under your feet instead of under your The result, he claims, will be amazing, being a sure cure for insomnia, as well as a preventive for the nightmare. Dr. Fischer says further that sleep in this new position "will always be intellectual, because more profound, the entire nervous system ameliorated, while people inclined to lung and kidney trouble will be vastly benefited by sleeping in this position. To prevent any inconvenience by too Budden a change, the pillows should be gradually reduced and finally placed under the feet. The fact remains, however, that the elevation of the legs after a long walk is the surest relief for fatigue, and the higher the better.

About Training Children.

All children differ in temperament; some are amenable to kind words, while nothing but the rod will have any effect upon others. Children who must, be ruled by the rod are the exception. The majority of children will yield to kindness. To begin with, children must not always be punished for everything they do wrong. The world is new to them, and they have everything to learn. Never punish a child for a first offense. Watch carefully for an opportunity to correct You must make up your mind to shut your eyes to half the mischlevous things he does, but be on the alert to catch him in the act of actual wrongdoing.

For a first offense you mind to shut your eyes to half the mischlevous things he does, but be on the alert to catch him in the act of actual wrongdoing.

gentleness and very patient. Try to impress upon him that what he has done is very wrong and has displeased you. Talk kindly and firmly, and in as simple words as possible go over it two or three times and make the child thoroughly understand how much you feel hurt that he should have done wrong. Be sure you explain why it is

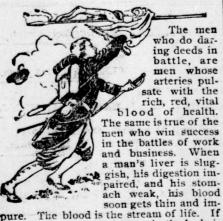

For Five O'Clock Tea.

Tea punch continues to be the favorite beverage at 5 o'clock tea. To compound it allow one tablespoonful of any strong tea to a quart of boiling water. Pour the water on the tea and allow it to stand until cold. Strain. Meantime add to a pint of sugar the juice of three oranges, the pulp and juice of one shredded pineapple, and allow all to stand until the sugar is dissolved. When ready to serve, add the tea to the fruit juice and pulp, with a quart of Apollinaris water, and a box of fresh berries or thinly sliced peaches. Pour over a block of ice in the punch bowl.

The genuine "Russian" tea is not tea made and allowed to cool, but tea just brewed. One teaspoonful of tea is allowed to each cup of boiling water, which is then allowed to steep on the hearth or table for 15 minutes. The glasses are then filled three-quarters full of cracked ice, chipped so fine that it cools the tea immediately, and then boiling tea poured on. One teaspoonful of lemon juice and one slice lemon completes the cup which "cheers."

Arrangement of the Hair

The soft puff around the face has proved to be too becoming to be willingly relinquished, and will, doubtless, be worn the woman with a slender face until some equally becoming style is in-Nevertheless, the hairtroduced. dressers are talking of hair parted in the center, with loose, old-time loops at the sides. pure. The blood is the stream of life. If it is impure every vital organ in the body is improperly nourished and becomes weak and diseased and fails to perform its proper functions in the economy of life. tim suffers from loss of appetite and sleep, wind, pain, fulness and swelling of the stomach after meals, bad taste in the mouth, foul breath, imaginary lump of food in the throat, headaches, giddiness, drowsiness, heavy head and costiveness.

All of these conditions and their causes are promptly cured by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It brings back the keen edge of appetite, makes the digestion perfect and the liver It makes rich, red, pure blood, filled with the life-giving elements of the food that build healthy tissues, firm flesh, strong muscles and vibrant nerve fibers. It invigorates and vitalizes the whole body, and imparts mental power and elasticity. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption, strengthers weak lungs, stops bleeding from lungs, spitting of blood, obstinate lingering coughs and kindred Costiveness, constination and torpidity of the liver are surely, speedily and per-manently cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. They never They stimulate and strengthen the gripe. They stimulate and strengther jaded organs until a regular habit is formed and may then be discontinued without a return of the trouble. They stimulate, invigorate and regulate the stomach, liver and bowels. Medicine stores sell them, and have no other pills that "are just speed."

If the singular relic of early Victorian fashions is adopted, many of the pretty women who today, with their soft point idours, recall miniatures, will look ake daguerreotypes. Many smart wongen who herald the modes are wearing the hair low at the neck, even with evening dress, and the near fupromises us jeweled nets like those worn when our grandmothers were young. Upstanding loops and with aigrettes, jewels and stiffened loops of ribbon, are what most women affect at present for evening coiffures. For the day-time the three puffs imported from England by the Gayety Girls, a figure eight or a low twist of braids with a velvet bow at the top are popular, and promises to be worn all winter. The two little curls tucked into the knot or bow have grown during the summer, and now the ultra-up-to-date young wo-man sports a curl which reaches to her shoulder. Frizzy fringes, broad and deep and thick, or light and defining a point between the brows, are shown on some of the waxen beauties that adorn the coiffures' windows, but neither the fashionable hat nor the woman of good taste sanctions these frizzled "fronts."

about Gloves and Shoes.

Women ought to know the economy in plenty of gloves and shoes. One pair of gloves, worn steadily, will last me about three weeks. Two pairs, alternated, last more than twice as long, and the time gained on every additional pair is proportionate. The same rule applies to footwear, and not only is money saved, but comfort increased. It is no secret that stockings and underwear can be economized by judicious wearing, yet how many women take the trouble to lay their clothing away in such a manner that each article will receive its share | converted become objects of curiosity.

of wear. Six pairs of stockings will stand hard wear for two seasons, if used impartially, and the same number of sets of underwear, or even less, will need but few additions from time to time, if they see their share of service. It is the continuous strain on clothing that breaks through the material, when easing up at times would save it. It is surprising sometimes to note how obstinate women are, how they cling to old-time methods despite the proof that new ways are better. I would like to know how many girls who depend upon their own labor for all they have cling to the exploded idea that anything is good enough for every day wear, while the best clothes must be as fine as their means will allow. That was their grandmother's way, and it is good enough for them, so the shabby, ill-dressed girls of the six working days blossom out on Sundays and holidays in finery which almost conceals their identity. How much better it would be if their clothing was uniform, plain if need be, but neat and careful at all times. Four sets of plain underwear are infinitely to be preferred to three shabby sets and one elaborately trimmed, yet these girls will not be convinced. They are the girls who would turn into careless wives, those who would consider dress and coiffure good enough for the breakfast table and the husband for whom they put on their prettiest in the courting days.

There has been a great improvement in women in the last year, especially in the matter of footwear. Neatness is now a distinguishing feature, and shape has taken a prominence. Boots should always be made longer than is absolutely necessary to make the foot appear slender. Walking boots should be thick enough to keep the feet dry, and thin soles ought to be reserved for indoor wear. Sensible women have even gone so far as to have their evening shoes and slippers built upon the last which they found so comfortable in walking. Dainty materials and thin soles give them the required prettiness, and the foot does not have to be twisted and distorted to suit a new shape. It will take ages probably to convert the entire sex, but the good work will go on until the un-always felt it-that is, for ever so long. I'm not one bit superstitious, and, of course, I don't believe in 'electric circles,' and all that sort of thing; still, I've a strange feeling that you were just made for one another, and that I will only be helping Providence in introducing you. I'm a born match-maker; it's my particular talent, and I'll never be in my proper sphere till l'm a chaperon." Saying this, the speaker, a brown-eyed, golden-haired petit maiden of not more than 20, rose reluctantly from the hammock where she had been comfortably reclining, gazing anxiously, meanwhile, at the non-com-

Then, I've got, yellow hair and brown eyes, and you should have heard how enthusiastically he spoke of the 'charming Irish girls, with their blue eyes and raven hair.' You are just that type. Then, I'm not one-half clever enough. I'm afraid of him, anyhow. Of course, we are the best of friends, and have been for years, but it's purely, delightfully platonic-nothing sentimental or foolish."

"If you don't object, I shouldn't mind knowing the name of this 'rara avis.' "There, you are making fun of me; but I'm in too Miltonic a mood at present to be upset by your satire. As the chosen instrument of carrying out the decrees of fate, I can afford to ignore your home-thrusts. His name is Harmon Llewellyn Moran-euphonious, as Polly, used to say, isn't it? Just listen -Harmon Llewellyn Moran and Penelope Lawrence. Observe the predominance of the liquids and vowels. Could anything be more attractive?"

Be sure and wear that lovely blue organdy, and be just your dear clever self. I might have been in the hammock for the last half-hour. I'm tired standing now. Well, I'm really going this time. Good-bye-till Thursday.'

Thursday dawned clear, cool and bright, an ideal day for wheeling. It was just three o'clock in the afternoon when Harmon Llewellyn Moran rang the doorbell at Phyllis Brown's home, and just ten minutes later that he stood gazing with a most unplatonical gaze at the fair Phyllis, more attractive than usual in her exquisitely-fitting blue bicycle suit, as she mounted her wheel. "You say, Miss Phyllis, you are go-ing to take me to call on a friend?" "Xes. I have long wished that you

"Then I'm half-inclined to turn back. I don't believe I can summon courage on such short notice to meet the ideal of perfection you have described. You should have warned me earlier, Miss Phyllis. I'm only human, and still worse, I'm only a man. I'm afraid I shall disgrace myself and you also by immediately falling at her feet or doing something equally rational."

Had Phyllis not been upheld by a firm resolve to do her duty in carrying out the decrees of fate, she would have been inclined to lose her temper, and leave to chance the meeting of the two individuals who, apparently, going to waste all my energy, inventive | little appreciated her laudable efforts in their behalf. What spirit of evil could have taken possession of Harvey Moran this afternoon? When had he ever been so unappreciative as at this present time? And yet, how handsome he looked, how well he rode, and how becoming that style or cap was?

> At midnight Phyllis stood by the window of her room, watching the moon as it sailed across the calm, blue, starry, sky. She was not feeling quite so elated as might have been expected, considering the success of her enterprise. Everything had turned out infinitely better than she could have hoped. Penelope had looked her very best; Harmon, of course, looked well. At meeting, the faces of the kindred spirits had expressed mutual admiration. In spite of Harmon Llewellyn's avowed dislike to clever women, he had listened to Penelope's philosophic remarks, brilliant repartees and quaint humors, as one who is becoming momentarily more enchanted. Harmon and Penelope conversed while Phyllis devoted herself to Penelope's stupid cousin, who appeared stupider than usual. They stayed for tea, Penelope becoming every minute more fascinating. They rode home in the moon-

o'clock. "He wanted to go home and think about her," mused Phyllis. "She asked him to come again and he held her hand for fully half a minute and said he would be delighted to. Of course he couldn't say anything else—he is too polite and Frency—but no, he is too honest to say it unless he meant. I knew I was a born match-maker-but-I-I didn't think it would be so sudden. I'm out of it altogether now and I don't suppose they will have the grace even to feel grateful to me. It was horrid of Penelope to ask that cousin of hers to meet me-it kept me out of the road anyway. Dr. Moran was positively disagreeable to me, and after all the trouble I went to, just for him. How well he and Penny look together! It was rude of him to treat me as he did—and—I—I—hate him," uttering which extremely unsisterly and unplatonic sentiment, she turned from the window, with a determination which over-matched her ability to

It was Saturday evening. Dr. Harmon Llewellyn Moran and Phyllis Brown had been in consultation on the moon-lit veranda for over two hours. Phyllis was allowing the doctor to sit a great deal closer to her than could have been expected from her recorded opinion of him. "Harmon, dear," she was saying, "how can I ever tell Penelope? She will make such fun of me. You know I was trying to make a match between you and her. I'm not sorry I tried, though. Miss Flora Shaw Says It Is Agreeable All Year.

Thermometer Twenty Degrees Below Zero-Vegetation in Summer.

Miss Flora Shaw, colonial editor of the London Times, in her most recent the needs of the population. A few letter from Dawson City, says of the climate there:

As regards the effect of climate upon health, there seems to be fairly uni- a dollar a dozen. It is probably a mere versal agreement that it is less trying than the climate of many other thick- bins will be surrounded by little garly-populated centers of industry. Englishmen find it very tolerable, and men from Manitoba, Washington, Wisconsin, Montana, Minnesota and New York have assured me, after experience of one or two winters here, that they prefer the winter of the Yukon to the winters of their own states. The thermometer falls far below zero, but there is no wind. The hard-frozen snow makes locomotion easy, and the atmosphere is dry and bright. Accounts of the daylight vary, but I am told that on the Dawson fields it lasts for practical purposes for about six hours-from ten in the morning till four in the afternoon, and that the Northern Lights, which are to be seen almost every evening, relieve the long darkness. I have been able to talk with about eight or ten women who have spent winters here, and their opinion has been unanimous that the winter is the pleasantest season. The air they tell me, is so still that, with the temperature at 20 or 30 below zero, little children can play safely and happily out of doors. No special protection beyond ordinary warm winter clothing is necessary except for the feet hands and ears, which should be covered with fur. One lady, of whom I inquired whether the long darkness was not depressing to the spirits, replied with evident amusement: "Why, we get a great more daylight than you ever see in London in the winter." Scurvy, typhoid. and acute forms of pneumonia appear to be the illnesses by which the population so far has been affected. The first two are without difficulty traceable to temporary conditions attendant upon the rush of a relatively large population into a country which produces no fresh food, and in which no sanitary arrangements have been organized. The last may also very probably be modified when the conditions of the climate are better understood and the violent exertion in extremes of heat and cold to which men have exposed themselves is avoided. Dry cold is not generally thought to be injurious to the lungs. The summers, though short, agreeable, and during the months of June, July and August bear, on the whole, a good comparison with the summers of the British Isles. If the testimony of old-timers is to be accepted, the climate so far as health is concerned has nothing to be dreaded. Its effect upon agriculture and the cultivation of fruits, vegetables and flowers has yet to be proved. There is no indication that agriculture in any general sense would be likely to flourish, but the wild graeses, vegetables and smaller fruits which appear to be na-Children Can Play Outdoors With the tive to the soil and the initial experiments in gardening which have been already attempted, inspire a reasonable expectation that fodder for cattle and vegetable and fruits for human consumption may without any great difficulty be profitably produced to meet summer vegetables have already grown, and the appreciation with which they have been received may be judged from the fact that radishes sell at question of time when all the log cadens of their own.

as astonished as she was when she Oh, when I was a tiny lad I wandered caught a glimpse of her face in the in a wood, To look for fairles or for flowers, as looking-glass! "Oh-h!" squealed Tilly. She gave one more look and then ran to find every laddie should.

I only got my fingers stung by things that creep and buzz;
 I learned to look for them instead, as every laddle does.

I sought the pretty fairy-folk in all the yellow flowers, found a little caterpillar hanging by a thread; (put him in a buttercup and took him home instead.
Where nothing but the busy bees improved the shining hours.

& caught some minnows in a pool, and thought myself a man, Because I found that I could fish, as every laddle can.

I got my father's pocket-knife—its blade was red with rust— And cut my name on many a tree, as every laddie must.

I made a sturdy walking-stick to climb the highest hill. And whittled till the knife was blunt, as every laddie will.

I owned a treasury of things that I had found or caught, and changed them oft for better ones, as every laddle ought.

I had a little puppy-dog and pets of many kinds; But some they died, and some got lost, as every laddie finds

I coveted a pony, and a gun to shoot the crows—
A pony is a beauteous beast, as every laddie knows.

What most I loved were fireworks, and all that lights and burns; But these sometimes are treacherous, as every laddle learns.

My coats grew shorter in the sleeve; my slippers crushed my toes; But such things always smaller seem as every laddie grows.

How Tilly Grew Fat in a Single Night.

"She must go to the country and fatten with the little calves and lambs," the doctor said, nodding his head decisively.

He slid his eye-glasses up from the tip to the top of his nose and looked Tilly's poor little thin cheeks through them.

"And drink cream right off from the tops of granny's milk-pans," he Tilly listened hard. She was wondering what mamma was going to answer. And then she heard. "Right away, doctor?" "Tomorrow morning, I should say-

Well!" mamma said. Two little valleys were beginning to grow between her eyes. That almost always meant "I'll see."

And so it happened that the very next morning, on the early train, she and Tilly were whizzing and panting towards grandma's. The pair of lean, pale little cheeks were all aglow with excitement. Every single minute they were getting nearer and nearer. There! lots more telegraph poles had hurried

There had been no time to send word they were coming, and so they must take the old stage and go jouncing down the dusty road. The very last jounce landed them right into grandma's arms.

"The dear land!" grandma cried out, and then she got Tilly into her arms and cried over her-as grandmothers do. And after every word she put a kiss like so many periods, this way: "The . little . dear. Bless . her . little . heart."

"She's come down to fatten with the bossies, mother," laughed mamma. "Can she drink all the cream off the tiptop of your milk-pan?"

'Two pans-three-four pans!" cried grandpa's big voice behind them. And then there were more love-words with periods after them. The fattening began right away. It was dinner-time and at Tilly's place was the cunningest little tumbler, full to the brim of rich, yellow cream. It was there at supper, too, and that time grandma slyly filled it up after each sip.

"We'll have those cheeks as round as oranges in a jiffy!" grandpa said.
"By tomorrow morning?" asked

SOME MODERN RELIGIOUS IDEAS &

The word which has been in most common use this summer, "immune," is marked "rare" in our dictionaries. It will never again be rare, for it fills à place where is was much needed. We all understand that not only do individuals become immune by actual experience of disease, or through processes of inoculation, but whole communities become immune, possibly by the loss of power in the disease attacking. The most deadly plague exhausts itself before it axhausts the race. Scarlet fever is nothing like the scourge it was two generations since, and diphtheria promises to lose the terrors which it has inspired in the past. But not only is it true that certain diseases become less morbific, certain remedies become less efficient. Doctors know that upon chronic patients the remedy which was once helpful "wears itself out" and becomes absolutely worthless. Similar facts are to be noted in the spiritual realm. It is nothing against the value of the "old-fashioned revival" that it will not work now. It is objected that we have no new "crusades" by the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and that the Salvation Army shifts its plans and devises new methods for getting at the people. All this is consistent with what we know of living organisms and their laws. We cannot lazily fall back upon the remedies which our fathers tried; but we must remember that the divine resources are not exhausted, and that they will be opened up to the faithful and prayerful seeker after good .- The Interior, Chicago.

We know of no more ominous sign of approaching old age than a habit of discouragement because of evidences of social decay. The Christian who would keep the spirit of youth in him must look underneath the changing methods of Christian thought and service, and discern the same divine spirit still guiding men. He must be slow to criticise, quick to join with effort which his conscience approves. Is the present generation giving up beliefs which their fathers cherished? It may be, but note to what other beliefs men give new emphasis, and rejoice in them. Are they less reverent in their regard for the Lord's Day, less loyal to the forms of worship in which you have been trained? See in what new ways of serving men their hearts kindle, and join with them there. If old ways of honoring God are passing away, look at new forms in which men's higher nature expresses itself. Look resolutely, for though prophecies fail, tongues cease and knowledge vanish away, faith, hope and love abide. Those who have lost these have destroyed themselves, whatever may be their judgment of others. Those who keep these keep in touch with God's words.-Congregationalist, Boston.

We see occasionally a reference to the mystery of the origin of sin. Paul makes the origin of sin to be in a knowledge of the law-thus anticipating the moral philosophy of the present time. The cruel wolf or cat is not a sinner. The man who knows better and is better, but who voluntarily goes back and makes a wolf or a cat of himself, he is a sinner. Sin consists in descending from the morally higher to the lower. However this knowledge of the law came into the heart of man, it lifted him unto the high pane of moral responsibility, so that when he sinned he was fully aware that he was sinning, and preferred it to right-doing, as he was, as a free agent, legally entitled to do. There is no mystery in it, behind which we can hide ourselves from God or our consciences.-The

It must be remembered that the most important work of life is not the discovery of truth, but the absorption of truth into one's nature and its permament expression in character. One often learns more in one hour of vision than he can make his own in a year of living. The mountain summits are not our homes; they are too much exposed, and the air about them is too rare; they are for our occasional ascent; they show us the distant point to which we are traveling, but the path we are to take runs through the valleys or along the lower slopes. The summits give us outlooks, but the valleys shelter and feed us. The possession of great truths is not a matter of searching, but of living; and the long, dull days which often intervene between our visions are rich in the quiet assimilation of what we have seen and in quiet preparation for what we are to see. The greater part of the growth of some plants is accomplished before the blades see the light .- The

There are few realms of human experience in which there is a greater necessity for freshness, individuality and originality than in Christian living. It is absurd to allow the world to prescribe the Christian standards of conduct, and for churches or cliques of Christians to do so is to come perilously near usurping the rights of individuals. We are not to be imitators, even of Christ himself: we are to be his disciples, and the mere juxtaposition of the two terms suggests the broad difference between them. other words, the individual Christian is not called to follow a programme set by any master or church, but to yield to a spirit to cultivate a disposition. When the apostle is defining the example of Christ, he does not say do the things that Christ did, but "Let this mind be in you also which was in Christ Jesus." Conventional ways of Christian living have largely lost their power. The "testimony bearing" of the average prayer-meeting, for example, except in the rarest instances, is no longer efficient. But let one do a simple act in daily life that he could hardly have done without being prompted by a Christian spirit, and how instantly it arrests attention, how impressive it is! It is not necessary always to be talking religion to bear acceptable witness to the Master.-The Watchman (Baptist), Boston.

Dear Sirs,-I was for seven years it up. You will each be bound over in sufferer from Bronchial trouble, and court—Very good, Sir John. May you live long and die happy. (Laughter.) Easing the Load.

The camel, at the close of day, Kneels down upon the sandy plain To have his burden lifted off And rest again.

My soul, thou, too, shouldst to thy knee When daylight draweth to a close, And let the Master lift the load And grant repose.

Else how couldst thou tomorrow meet With all tomorrow's work to do, If thou the burden all the night Dost carry through?

The camel kneels at break of day To have his guide replace the load; Then rises up anew to take The desert road.

So shouldst thou kneel at morning dawn That God may give thee daily care, Assured that He no load too great Will make thee bear.

BULLET PROOF

Corporal Laurie, of the Seaforth High landers, Had His Clothing Shot Off.

Corporal Laurie, of the Seaforth Highlanders, seems to have one of those "charmed lives" of which we read in old romances. The Scotsman prints part of a letter written by him to his sister after the battle of the

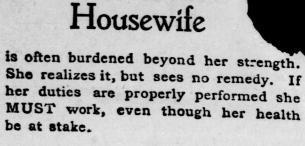

I suppose you have seen me reported as slightly wounded, and pictured me as an interesting invalid. Well, I was struck, but the effect was so small that I have often been worse hurt in a football match. But during the rest of the day, and for some days afterwards. I was an object of interest. I have been questioned by almost every man and officer in the battalreferred to as the "bullet-proof man," and asked if I would mind letting a section fire a few rounds at me to see if they could do me any harm. The fact is that I got most of the corners of my clothing shot off, while personally I was uninjured. Before I entered the zareba I was not struck, but soon afterward a bullet took off the toe of my left shoe without hitting my foot, the shoe being a size too big for easy marching and sleeping at night. Then my bayonet was struck and bent over at a right angle. Then a shot went through my sleeve, near my left wrist, tearing two holes, but not hurting me.

Then my rifle was struck while I was loading, the bullet splintering the butt and being stopped by an iron bolt which it met. This bullet would certainly have gone right into my body but for my rifle being there. Then a nigger in a trench let drive at me with a spear, missed my ribs by an inch, and slit up my haversack. A bullet then grazed the back of my hand, just enough to make it bleed. When I reached the river bank, which was nearly perpendicular, a shot came from the bottom, about 20 feet below and a little to the left, which caused the wound I am supposed to have got, and was so curious that I was paraded before the general. The bullet entered through the lid of my right ammunition pouch, which was open, went into my right coatpocket, tore four boles in my shirt. The Faithfur

A Canadian Medicine

Which Has Made a Wonderful Reputation Throughout the World.

by a Responsible Newspaper-The Advertiser Has Looked Into and Gives Below the Particulars of One of These Cures.

[From the Advertiser, Hartland, N. B.]

The Advertiser has come across still another instance of the remarkable curative powers of the famous Canadian remedy, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Mr. William Tedlie, of Lower Brighton, a prominent lumberman and farmer, came very near being a cripple from rheumatism, the dread disease so prevalent along the St. John River. Mr. Tedlie is now 65 years of age. Five years ago he was taken with the first symptoms of rheumatism—over-exposure, the stream drives, and the general hard life of the lumberman, paved the way for the lodgment of the excruciating disease. The symptoms first manifest were pains through the legs, arms and hands. Gradually conditions grew worse. At intervals there would be an abatement of the malady, but for months each year he was very nearly helplese. The pain was so agonizing that sleep was out of the question and to work was impossible. The afflicted man had so often read of the wonderful efficacy of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases similar to his own, that he resolved to try them. He says, however, that he was not hopeful of receiving much benefit, as he had tried many medicines without any good result following. He began the use of the pills, and by the time a couple of boxes were used he found they were helping him. Thus encouraged, he continued the use of the medicine and gradually the pains and soreness left him, he was able to sleep soundly, and enjoyed an excel-lent appetite. In fact after using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for less than two months. Mr. Tedlie says he found himself in the best of health. He is now a warm friend of this great medicine and urges similar sufferers not to experimen twith other medicines, but at once begin with the ase of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia,partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, nervous headache, nervous prostration and disease depending upon humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc., all disappear before a fair treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They give a healthy glow to pale and sallow complexions. Sold by all and sallow complexions. dealers and postpaid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2 50 by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont. Created by Recent Utterances of the Archbishop of Canterbury.

England Stirred by the Ritualistic Discussion.

Progress of the Anglo-American Unity Idea-Soudan Soldiers Enjoy a Good Time-"Society" at the Races-The Theaters.

[Special Cable Letter to The Advertiser.]

London, Oct. 15 .- Since John Kensit's anti-ritualistic crusade, churchmen have been awaiting anxiously for the utterance of the Archbishop of Canterbury on the grave questions raised, which have agitated the whole body of churchmen. In a series of charges to the clergy, delivered this week, the primate spoke in no uncertain voice. He caused a profound impression in church circles, and deeply aggrieved the low church party. The primate de-clared plainly that the doctrine of the Real Presence, as embodied practically in the doctrine of consubstantiation, is permitted, though not expressly taught, by the Church of England, that, although compulsory confession is absolutely illegal, voluntary confes-sion is legal, and no clergyman is justified in refusing to hear it, and he commended prayers for the dead, but forbade invocation of the saints or the Virgin. He declared the elevation and reservation of the sacrament and the use of incense are non-permissible, but he approved of a certain revival of the ritual, in conformity with the prescription of the Prayer Book. Practically, he sanctions all the doctrines, and praises what the low churchmen have so vehemently condemned, and the high churchmen are proportionately elated. Though they disagree with some points, most of the clergy will fall into line with the primate's charges or injunctions.

Kensit, whose followers have been somewhat shaken by Truth's exposure of him, promises a demonstration in a thousand churches during the first Sunday in November.

ANGLO-AMERICAN UNITY. Sir Leopold Henry Griffin, formerly chief political officer of Great Britain, in Afghanistan, and a well-known writer on Indian subjects, addressing a meeting this week at Luton, on the subject of the suggested Anglo-American union, said Col. John Hay, the former U. S. ambassador at London, and the present secretary of state, wrote to him on leaving England, saying: "I somethimes think that the only advantage we Yankees possess over you is that we have two native countries, while you have only one." opinion of the suggested Washington memorial in England, expressing apgarded as being in the highest degree ing that the subscription must come exclusively from Englishmen, as, naturally, citizens of the United States could not participate in any way.

The returned Soudan soldiers continue to have a glorious time in Lon-don. Many of the theaters are entertaining them in batches of several hundred, and scenes of great enthu-siasm are witnessed inside and out-side the places of amusement. The colonel of the returned Grenadiers and 500 of his men were the guests of the Shaftesbury Theater last night, where they greatly enjoyed a performance of The Belle of New York."

A regular heavy London fog enveloped this city and its suburbs for the first time this season, on Thursday.

SOCIETY AT THE RACES. Most of the lights of society attended the Newmarket race meeting, which was very crowded and gay. The Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, who are now the acknowledged leaders of society, had the most distinguished house party. Among the conspicuous figures at Newmarket was Lady William Beres-ford, the American lady, who was formerly Lillian, Duchess of Marlborough. She has nearly recovered from her recent accident. Lady Beresford wore a long fur-trimmed coat, with a bright red hat. Then there was the Countess of Essex, fresh from Paris, and wearing a brown costume, with pale-blue covers over a cream lace vest.

TONY WEDDINGS.

A big gathering of aristocrats came to London for the purpose of attending the marriage of Lady Margaret Child Villers, eldest daughter of the Earl of Jersey, to the Hon. Walter Fitz-Uryan Rice, son of Baron Dynes-vor, while civic Lendon mustered in great force at the wedding of Miss a fall. GOSSIP.

The death of the Marquis of Anglesey, on Thursday, is another blow to social gaiety this season, as it sends half the peerage into mourning.

The new Marquis of Anglesey, son of the deceased marquis, was born in 1875, is of boyish appearance, unmarried, and inherits $30,000 a year.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Norman J. Norman, who is Manager Loder's representative here, has a re-volution on his hands which threatens to disrupt the "Belle of New York" company. It seems that, in accordance with the law, the box office of the Shaftesbury Theater made a return of all the salaries paid to the income tax authorities, and the latter, this week, demanded that all the members of the company receiving over £160 yearly, pay the income tax. Edna May, Rankin, Davenport, Sullivan and other leaders rebelled. They say they are American citizens, and will not pay a British tax, adding that they will return to the United States in preference to paying it. They then appealed to the consul-general of the United States here, Mr. W. Osborne, but the latter replied that he was unable help them. The result will probable be that the management will pay the tax sooner than interrupt the successful run of the piece. Most of the theaters in London have been playing to prosperous business during the week. Sir Henry Irving is ill and unable to art, and Mme. Calve has postponed her departure for America on account of sickness.

HIS NARROW ESCAPE.

Mr. John N. Babcock's Experience With Dodd's Kidney Pills,

Sharbot Lake, Ont., Oct. 10 .- No resident of this place is better known to the thousands of tourists and sportsmen who visit us annually, than is Mr. John N. Babcock.

Mr. Babcock has had many thrilling experiences, but the narrowest escape he ever had, he tells of in these words: "After 20 years of pain, caused by Gravel and other Kidney Complaints, am pleased to be able to state that I have been completely cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills. During these years I have spent hundreds of dollars for doctors and remedies, but only Dodd's Kidney Pills helped me."

LIFE SAVED .- Mr. James Bryson Cameron writes: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice, I procured the medicine, and less than half a bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me good.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

It is quite the order now in London to ask your neighbor, "What Happened to Jones?" A great many of our people are doubtless anxious to find out, and will avail themselves of the opportunity which will be offered matinee and night today at the Grand. The play is heralded as the funniest ever written and it is said to provoke the most spontaneous laughter. While less than a year old, it is being played in a dozen different countries and languages. The company to be seen in it here consists of twelve comedians who come direct from New York.

Joe Ott and his remarkably talented company of comedians will present "Looking for Trouble" at the Grand next Tuesday. The play comes loaded down with compliments, and from all accounts it is just the quality of light entertainment which those who enjoy a hearty laugh are bound to appreciate.

TURNED IN A BLANKET

Pain Too Severe from Rheumatism to Have Even the Nurse's Trained Hand Touch Him-South American Rheumatic Cure Got Him Out of Bed in 24 Hours.

"Some time ago I was attacked with very severe rheumatic pains. My joints swelled and stiffened. I had to be turned in bed on a blanket. I had best doctors and best nurses, but could not get relief. Death would have been welcome. A friend called and recommended South American Rheumatic Cure. I procured it, and in twentyfour hours after taking it there was a wonderful change. I was able to get out of my bed into a chair without assistance. I have continued using it and although 88 years of age, I do not feel within 20 years of it. I am my natural self again, free from pain. I trust you will use the testimony as you think best for suffering humanity's sake." Samuel Haight, Sparta, Ont. Sold by W. S. B. Barkwell.

ward, West Kent, West Durham, Welland, West Hastings, Center Bruce, Lincoln, Frontenac, South Waterloo, Addington and East Algoma.

The respondent in the East Middlesex case alone asked for costs, which were given. He was represented by Barrister Elliot, of London.

Barrister McPhillips arranged today to apply on Monday for the substitution of J. B. Simpson for Wm. Wheeler as petitioner in the protest against Col. Leys. The application will be heard by Judge Osler. Wheeler refuses to swear that the particulars furnished by the Conservatives are true.

The original petitioner in the case against Col. Leys and his lawyer disagreed, and the latter ejected him forcibly from the office. Hence the request to substitute Joseph Burt Simpson in place of Wheeler.

Messrs. Grant, Aylesworth and Denton represented the Liberals in all the cases before the court.

BANDITS BETRAYED. Rome, Oct. 15.-News has reached here from Palermo of the arrest of a bold bandit named Antonio Ferrara, who had planned to kidnap in broad daylight Signora Maria Cupani, the beautiful 18-year-old daughter Baron Cupani, a Sicilian millionaire. Seven men were implicated in the plot. The girl was to be intercepted in her daily promenade in the public park of Palermo and forced into a landau. She was to be kept imprisoned in the house of Ferrara until a ransom of half a million dollars should be secured from the baron. The plot was betrayed and detectives stationed in and around the park. They succeeded in arresting only Ferrara, the leader of the kidnapping band.

countess, excitedly. "Can you recollect nothing before this? Try-oh! do Maria looked half amazed, half surprised at Lucille's eagerness. The lat-ter perceiving it, said: "I repeat I have a reason for making those inquiries. You shall know why presently, only do not stop. Try to think what you can recall before

The lady's-maid's expression became almost painfully thoughtful, as, in compliance, she tried to penetrate the weil of the past. The countess was too impatient to wait, and continued

'Can you not remember a different life from that of strolling with the gipsies? Can you not recall a little playfellow named Pepita?"

"Pepita!" ejeculated Maria. "Pe-pita!" she added more slowly Ohl pita!" she added more slowly. Oh! stay, please, stay; do not speak, or it will go, your ladyship. That name seems to unlock—to make clear one of the vague visions of the past. Yesyes, surely, I knew a little dark, wilful thing called Pepita, who used to bite and scratch, I remember, when she was in a passion. But she was one of the gipsy children. She must have been, though-though I fancy she was with us when I danced with my mother, Maria Saproni, in the market-

"No, no; she was never there," laughed Lucille, merrily, heedless of the lady's-maid's astonished, questioning eyes. "But see if you can remember anything else? Do you recollect a womar called Fantina, your

"My nurse," broke in Maria, smil-ing incredulously. "My mother was my only nurse, and a gentle one, too,

"I am glad she was, but yet Fantina nursed you, too, I am sure. Can you not recall standing at her knee when a mere little tot, as she was cutting some stuff, and, putting out your arm unexpectedly, Fantina snipped it so deep with her scissors that it left a peculiar mark?"

Maria had been negatively shaking her head, but at the last words she started, and, becoming more grave, exclaimed: "I recollect nothing of this, your ladyship, but, certainly, on my arm I have a peculiar, tiny scar, like a letter V, which has often aroused my speculation as to how it could have been caused. But how do you know this? I cannot understand." "You shall speedily," cried the countess, rising, and grasping the Italian, or rather, Lady Esmer's hand, for the reader has already divined the truth. You shall understand that you are no Bohemian born, but that your birth is more noble in rank than my own. Leave us a while, Gerard. It is better, perhaps, that I should relate what has transpired alone." The earl instantly withdrew, and the countess, sitting by Esmer's side, com-menced her recital. At the end of about an hour, leading her new-found cousin, for so she persisted in calling her, Lucille went in search of her husband. They found him in the drawing-room, standing within the lace and amber curtains of a deep window embrasure. On perceiving their entrance he came a step or two out to meet them. Well, my love?" he inquired, "I bring you a cousin, Gerard," answered Lucille, with a radiant coun-tenance; "for I am most certain this is indeed the veritable Lady Esmer. I have told her everything, even to your oath which binds you to her." "And you, my fair cousin?" exclaimed the earl, extending his hand. "Am overwhelmed, my lord, by my probable good fortune," she replied. "Still, I am not so sanguine as the countess, and will not credit it until

I obtain more certain proof." "How is that possible? "Easily, I fancy, my lord. The Bo-hemians to whom I belonged, consisted of many, and I do not doubt the chief part of them yet are living. Though nomade, even as the currents of air and water, they move after a certain system, and are pretty regular in the places they annually frequent. I am sure they might be easily found. As to your oath, my lord," she con tinued, smiling and blushing: "if I indeed, be your cousin, and had not you yourself riaced an insurmountable obstacle to its fulfillment, no coun-

"I could not marry the earl," answered the other, gracefully inclining her head and lowering her long lashes; "I have no longer a heart to bestow."
"Is it, then, already the happy property of another?' 'inquired Gerard,

With a startled ejeculation of sur-prise, Lady Esmer raised, and beheld Lord Cecil, who had emerged from the window recess, standing with an anxious countenance by her side.

"My lord!" she exclaimed.
"Pardon me," said the young nobleman, with emotion; "but I know all all respecting your noble conduct, your brave self-sacrifices. Lord Lethrington, out of pity to me, has broken the trust his wife placed in him. Oh, signora—or Lady Esmer, whichever you be, signifies little to my love, now the cause which made you drive me from you is removed—may I hope?"
Clasping her hands, he gazed imploringly into her downcast, blushing

"My lord, another time," she began, nervously, as she glanced round; then, perceiving the earl and the countess had very kindly withdrawn, feeling de trop, she proceeded: "My lord, believe me, which name I am destined to bear makes a vast difference in my opinion. If really I prove to be Lady Esmer Mortmain-"
"Then-" he eagerly interrupted.

"Then will I confess I love you, and have loved you, and will love you to my dying day."

Lord Cecil uttered a cry of rapture.

"My own, my love!" he exclaimed, as his arms for a second enfolded her, and for as small a space his lips touched her cheek. But skilfully Lady Esmer glided away and hastened to the door, say-

"My lord, even as I, you must be patient until it is proved who really

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

That same evening, in the firelight of the otherwise dark drawing-room, the countess and Lady Esmer sat conversing

The latter had been her favorite position on the hearthrug; but now her arm rested familiarly over Lu-, cille's knee, as the countess reclined in a low chair.

Already had the earl started for Italy, and Lady Lethrington had sent her compliments, accompanied by a request to Mrs. Mannering that she would kindly spare her "Maria" for a few days, during which period she begged her accepance of her own maid's services, so that Mrs. Mannering might not suffer any inconveni-ence—a kindness and condenscension not to be ever forgotten by Honoria, and very gratefully and nervously refused by her mother.

The two friends, in the dreamy, red light, had been talking over many things, when Lady Esmer, raising her eyes from the glowing coals, said:
"You told me, dear countess, of your first marriage, but never how it came about." "No. Aware, however, that it will be as secret with you as me, I have no objection. You know my father was objection. You know my father was a gentleman and a scholar," proceeds ed Lucille, "and his living was situated in the north of England. "Thus, during her lifetime. I felt no need of society; but at her death, and as I grew older, I felt desolate, indeed. There was a craving at my heart for I knew not what. Yet so heart for I knew not what. imbued had my mind been with reverence to my father, and letting all things yield to his love of quietude and study, that I never complained of a state of life which he himself never divined. "Thus at the age, when youth feels most the desire for friendship, for human association, I was leading the existence of a recluse, without even, for an acquaintance, one of my own sex with any congeniality of temperament. Still I was ignorant of the nature of this void in my existence, until, one evening, having walked rather farther than usual, I was quickly traversing a thick copse, on the border of which flashed and murmured a pretty burn, spanned by a rustic bridge, when, raising my eyes, by chance, I perceived the latter occupied.

Canadian Pacific and Michigan Central Said To Be Combining for a Through Line From Buffalo to Port Huron.

Montreal, Oct. 15 .- Messrs. W. E. Davies (general passenger agent of the G. T. R.) and Mr. D. McNicol (passenger traffic manager of the C. P. R.) have returned from New York, where they were attending a meeting of passenger managers of the American and Canadian railways, when a committee was appointed to look into the present troubles between the different lines, looking to a settlement of the same. Mr. McNicol said the committee was not likely to touch on the matter at stake between the C. P. R. and G. T. R. over the Manitoba rates, which are at present a source of trouble between the two roads. The committee was primarly appointed to deal with the immigration business. RUMORS OF AN IMPORTANT DEAL.

Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 15 .- There are rumors of important changes in the working force of the F. and P. M. At headquarters the only denial is that the order has not yet been issued. Among the officials who are reported to be slated for transfer is Chief Train Dispatcher E. H. Follett, who, by the same rumor, is sent to Bay City as ticket agent, in place of Agent Broughton, while a Wabash railroad man will take his place. General Manager Crapo and General Superintendent Frump have been in Boston several days, it is said, attending a meeting of the directors. In connection with these reports it is being talked that Thomas D. Ryan, the eastern railroad magnate, has at last secured control of the F. and P. M., It is known that Ryan has coveted possession of this Michigan road as a northern outlet, and this fact has frequently given rise to reports of consolidation between the Hocking Valley and F. and P. M. It is claimed that the rapidly developing coal fields of the Saginaw Valley afford a substantial reason why the Hocking Valley should desire to acquire the road which taps that territory, as well as a fine country in Central and Northwestern Michigan. It is also considered probable that if the transfer of stock has been made an entire change in management would be likely.

The New York Commercial says the

Flint and Pere Marquette, the Canadian Pacific and the Michigan Central railroads are combining for through line from Buffalo to Port Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 15 .- The exact details of the alleged combine af-fecting the F. and P. M. cannot be learned, but as a straw it may be stated that the car boat formerly used by the Grand Trunk between Port Huron and Point Edward will be put in com-mission, connecting the Canadian Pacific yards at Sarnia with the F. and P. M. at this point. The Lake Erie and Detroit River Railroad has purchased the Erie and Huron road from Sarnia, and will connect with the Canadian Pacific at Chatham. The car ferry to be used was purchased by the Lake Erie and Detroit River Company Oct. 15.-The Financial News, referring to a speech of Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson at the halfyearly meeting of the Grand Trunk Railway Company yesterday, says it is a great pity that Sir William Van Horne does not realize the great change that has taken place. The Grand Trunk will no longer submit to the dictation of the Canadian Pacific.

"THE APPLAUSE BUTTON OF 1901"

"Go it, Browne!" I said to myself as I settled down for a snooze. I don't care for our minister. I remember Browne on tiptoe about to strike the pulpit. I dreamed I entered an ideal church. Everything was exquisite. Revolving aisles, music from invisible instruments. It was a warm day, but the building was kept cool by artificial breezes, charged with the perfume of many flowers. I stepped from the revolving aiele into the seat offered me. A beautiful girl, with a saintly-looking mother sat next. Looking down I noticed a small wooden button beside my foot. It was labeled "Ap-

The service began. There was no choir. The congregation did not require assistance. All possessed trained voices. Now, the sermon. I noticed the pretty girl touched the applause button quite frequently. I wished to be honest in the display of my appreciation, and waited until I thought the best point of the sermon was being closed triumphantly. I touched the button. The preacher threw up his arms, and fell headlong to the foot of the carpeted steps. Ead I done this?

Surely not. A rush ensued. Women cried and men jostled each other to get a look at the prostrate form. "Oh, those horrid applause buttons!"

someone wailed.
"Why?" I asked, almost afraid to speak. 'Don't you know?" said the pretty girl.

"No," I faltered. "I am a stranger here. I came from Brownesville.' She seemed interested, and called her mother. "Don't you have applause buttons in your town, sir? How nice!" the old lady said. "We have been fighting for years and years against them here. Some of our best men have been maimed and even killed by them. They are connected with a metal plate beneath the speaker's feet, and if you porticularly enjoy some part of the discourse you press the button, and an electrical current thrills the minister, but it frequently happens that a number of people do this at the same time. when the current, of course, becomes very strong. The minister is supposed to anticipate anything like too heavy a current and step from the steel plate. Our clergyman will not consent to their abolishment, although the question has been hotly debated. They claim the good, by way of inspiration gained from this means, far outweighs the occasional mishap." Browne was thumping away at the pulpit cushion when I became aware it was only a common church dream. Nothing, not even an electrical current, could affect his harangue.

CUTICURA CURED HER

When my little girl was six months old, she had Eczema. We had used cold creams and all kinds of remedies, but nothing did her any good; in fact she kept getting worse.

I used to wrap her hands up, and when I would dress her, I had to put her on the table, for I could not hold her. She would kick and scream, and, when she could, she would tear her face and arms almost to pieces.

I used four boxes of CUTICURA (ointment). two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, and gave her the CUTICURA RESOLVENT and she was cured, and I see no traces of the humor left. I can truthfully say that they have saved her life, and any one suffering as she did, I should advise them to give CUTICURA a fair trial. Feb.7,'98. Mrs.G.A.CONRAD, Lisbon, N.H.

Surely

The largest drygoods store in Western Ontario can surely buy and sell drygoods cheaper than any of its "esteemed contemporaries."

The buyer that visits the European markets in September has surely got newer and more correct autumn styles than the buyers that bought their stocks in June.

The store that has stood longer than any other London store—and that has received without a single intermission the best patronage of the city for the past thirty years, is surely conducted on principles of honesty, courtesy, reliability and progress.

Surely you can read the moral.

ELECTIONS

Case Against the Liberal M. P. P. for North Perth Dismissed With Costs.

ondon's Trial Slated for Nov. 28-Other Fixtures-Plebiscit Figures.

Stratford, Oct. 15 .- The North and South Perth election cases came up for trial yesterday before Chancellor Boyd and Mr. Justice Meredith. The North Perth case was, on application of petitioner, at first adjourned until Wednesday next, but the petitioner declining to pay the costs of the day, as desired, their lordships dismissed the case with costs. The South Perth case was adjourned until Nov. 11. Toronto, Oct. 15 .- The following Ontario election petitions will be tried by Judges Rose and MacMahon: Dufferin-At Osgoode Hall, Toronto, Nov. 5. North Essex-At Sandwich, Nov. 2

Particulars of the charges against two Liberal respondents were filed in the court of appeal. The first dealt with East Northumberland, where Mr. John H. Douglas defeated Dr. W. A. Willoughby, the Conservative whip the house. The charges in North Essex are very numerous.

It is stated that 25 subpoenas have been issued in the North Hastings election case. The 21 election cases, set for trial today, will be heard by Mr. Justice Osler and Mr. Justice McLennan, and dismissed. PLEBISCIT FIGURES.

Ottawa, Oct. 15. - The plebiscit returns are slow in coming in, and, according to the clerk of the crown in chancery, the official figures will not be available for some time to come. From returns in the hands of the government, Quebec, with 17 places to hear from, gives a majority of 50,000 odd against prohibition. Ontario, with four places to hear from, gives a majority of 35,000 odd in favor of prohibition. Only one return is in from Prince Edward Island, six are still out

Are a Positive and Unfailing Symptom of Heart Failure.

Dodd's Kidney Pills Remove the Cause of Cold Feet and the Danger of Heart Failure, at One and the Same Time.

Have you cold feet! If you have, do you realize what that means? Do you know that cold feet, and cold extremities are one of the first, the most reliable indications of Heart Fail-

That is what cold feet mean-that there is something wrong with your heart—that it is not doing its work properly-that it will suddenly stop, without a second's warning, some fine day, and that then you will be of no more use nor importance to yourselfnor to anyone else. You will be dead. It may, at first, seem strange that there can be such a vital connection between Heart Disease and cold feet. But consider—the heart's duty is to force the blood to every part of the body. When it becomes weak, it cannot do this. It fails to send the blood to the most distant parts. Then these parts grow cold.

Now the connection does not seem so strange. What makes the heart grow weak, and so fail to do its work?

Diseased Kidneys. The heart grows weak because it is ill-nourished, because the blood from which it forms new tissues to replace those it wears out, is not pure, but contains poisons that the Kidneys should have strained out of it.

Restore the Kidneys to health, and they will cleanse the blood of all poisonous particles. Supply the heart with pure blood, by making the Kidneys work properly, and there will be no fear of Heart Failure, nor of any of its symptoms cold feet nor any other. The only way to bring these results about is to use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

They put the Kidneys in perfect health, and make it impossible for them to neglect their duty. They banish all danger of Heart Disease. Try them and be convinced.
