Wedding Bells

Stacey—Morris.

A quiet wedding took place on Wednesday morning, Sept. 24, at the residence of Mrs. J. Morris, Athens, when her eldest daughter, Rebecca, became the bride of Mr. J. A. Stacey, Seely's Bay. Rev. T. J. Vickery performed the marriage ceremony, only immediate relatives being present. The contracting parties are well and favorably known among a wide circle of friends, and were the recipients of many handsome and valuable presents on this happy occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Stacey will reside in Seely's Bay.

Haffner—Jacob.

The Methodist church, Athens, was the scene of a very pretty wedding at 6.30 o'clock Wednesday, Sept. 24, when Mabel Marion, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jacob, was united in marriage to Frederick A. Haffner, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. P. A.
Haffner, Kingston, Ontario, by the Rev. Thos. Vickery. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion with flowers and autumn leaves. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a gown of ivory satin with drappings of silk georgette, surmounted with a beautiful tulle mob cap effect veil with seed pearl and a wreath of orange blossoms, which was most graceful and becoming to the bride. She carried a bouquet of ophelia roses and wore the bridegroom's gift, a platinum and diamond pendant. The bridesmaid, Miss Enid A. Howard, Elgin, wore a dainty gown of pink silk georgette with pale blue trimmings and picture hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses, and wore the groom's gift, a cameo pendant. The bridegroom was supported by George Holland, of Kingston. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, rendered by Mrs. Mamie Derbyshire, organist of the church. The ushers were George Holmes and Harold Jacob, only brother of the bride.

During the signing of the register, Dr. Allan B. Haffner, only brother of the groom, sang sweetly "You You Alone."

The groom's gift to the best man
was a set of gold Masonic cuff links;
to the ushers, pearl tiepins, and to the organist a pearl and peridot brooch.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, when about fifty-five guests sat down to a sumptuous repast. The bride's table was decorated with roses, carnations, smilax and maidenhair fern. The luncheon was served by the Misses Cora Grey, Georgie Spry,
Mary Alguire and Birdie Derbyshire.

The bride travelled in a navy blue wool jersey cloth suit, apricot georgette blouse, and wore a marabou cape and small feather toque hat.

GUIDE-BOARD CORNERS.

Mr. A. E. Donovan, M.P.P., is again in the field, "without fear, and without reproach." It goes without saying that he will carry an unswerving standard to victory, greater than ever before.

Why do our young men in the country not take an interest in horse-back riding? It calls for a grace of bearing very desirable and worthy of cultivating. The fine riding of Mr. S.
Hollingsworth in the ring at Frankville fair should be an inspiration.

Mrs. E. Taylor made a pleasant
call at "The Lilies" last week.

Our little people are all hurrying with their products to their rural fair
this morning, with visions of red ribbons in every eye.

Mr. Wesley Lawson and bride were entertained on Friday evening at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs.
Lawson.

QUESTIONS FOR THE FAMILY.

If it was brotherly kindness in us to give the best of our country to protect the rights of the weaker nations from the tyranny of Germany, is it not equally right that we should fight for the liberty of the wives and children of Ontario against the blighting power of King Alcohol?

When a boy or girl speaks disrespectful to mother, do they realize that they cause pain to that mother's heart? It any mortal's love more true than mother's?

While men are fighting for personal liberty for themselves, are they as generous to their wives? Do they say, "Wife, vote according to your conviction of right?"

Do we believe that "men have many faults; women have but two: There's nothing right they say, and nothing right they do?"

ECZEMA IN RASH CUTICURA HEALS

Very Itchy and Burned. Troubled Six Weeks.

"Our daughter's face came out in a rash that we were told was eczema. Her cheeks got sore and she rubbed causing loss of sleep. The breaking out was very itchy and burned so that I had to tie gloves on her hands to keep her from scratching. This trouble lasted about six weeks before I used Cuticura. I used one large box of Cuticura Ointment with two cakes of Cuticura Soap when she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. H. Stares, Blenheim Rd., Galt, Ont.

soup, from his first appearance as a fat, rosy little boy, through all the successive stages of rapid emaciation to the last fearful scene, which shows a little grave, surmounted, not by the regulation funeral urn, but by a soup tureen!

Slovenly Peter first appeared in print in 1848, being the work of the physician Dr. Heinrich Hoffman, who wrote it for his own children and then published it for other children. Three years after its first appearance it passed into its twenty-third thousand and up to the present time, for it is still being published, has gone through over one hundred and forty editions. Certainly few books rival Slovenly Peter in popularity and his appearance on tableware testifies that he reigns over more worlds than one.

SMART LOT OF BOYS.

Within the last few years boys of Japan, none of them over 15 years old, have turned out typewriters, telephones, pianos, door locks and some of the most ingenious mechanical toys ever placed on the market. Most Japanese boys have great natural skill with tools, and there is now a shop at Tokyo, run by a boy, in which 60 boys are constantly at work. A young Jay is as sharp as a razor. He works during the day and goes to school at night.

CHILDHOOD CONSTIPATION

Constipated children can find prompt relief through the use of Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are mild but thorough laxative which never fail to regulate the bowels and stomach, thus driving out constipation and indigestion; colds and simple fevers. Concerning them Mrs. Gaspard Deigte, Demain, Que., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets have been of great benefit to my little boy, who was suffering from constipation and indigestion. They quickly relieved him and now he is in the best of health." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

DESERT BEAUTY.

Wonderful Coloring in the Western States.

Every year more and more American painters are going westward, drawn by the strange beauty of the desert regions principally. If this seems strange and perverse to the man uneducated in the language of art it must be remembered that the painter who knows his business uses his material, his natural-historic fact, merely as a symbol. Just because he seems to be dealing less directly with ideas than, for instance, the musician, he often treats his symbols with a certain brusqueness, not to say incivility, to point this fact. Barenness, and even aridity of landscape, which might be repellent to the botanist or farmer, may therefore appeal to him as a desirable hunting ground because this condition result in peculiar atmospheric states which in their turn produce unusual and beautiful colors, and not at all because of any lack of vegetation for its own sake.

Sometimes, too, as in the view from Furnace Creek, the aridity discloses the essential shapes of hill and mountain, as moulded by wind or rain, shapes which often reveal grandeur of outline and solidity of structure that would be lost in a well-wooded country. These bald hills and mesas, too, are often of vivid coloration; orange, rose and intense red being frequent, and in the clear, dry atmosphere these take on unbelievable hues of purple and deep blue as they recede and as the light declines. At other times, as at noon, for instance, the tendency is for the landscape to present a wonderful gamut of iridescent harmonies of the character of mother-of-pearl; pale gray-greens, yellow and innumerable variations of lilac and blue. From this background, neutral in final effect, the occasional flare of the weird cacti or lemon-colored cactus, adds an interest more vivid and intense by contrast with its unpromising surroundings.

Side by side with the River Euphrates and the Spode Tower plates may be seen a rather small plate, cream white in color, decorated with a large central figure and a succession of smaller ones around the rim. But, oh! what a wealth of delightful association is evoked by the mere mention of the name of this little piece of china ware, the "Slovenly Peter plate."

Slovenly Peter, who conquered the childish world some three or four years ago, with his unkempt hair and his lengthy finger nails, and his equally interesting and never-to-be-forgotten companions, Johnny-Look-In-the-Air, Sammy Sweet Tooth, Prying Will and Pauline the rash child, who would play with matches and her consequently untimely end, to touchingly mourned by her faithful pussy cats.

The Slovenly Peter plate came from Prague a few years ago and well repaid the trifling sum paid for it, for it has been a never-failing source of pleasure. In the centre stands the immortal Peter himself, and though his hair may be a trifle darker in hue than on the printed page of the book, yet it is of the accepted length and stands out in the same uncompromising stiffness, and his finger nails have not been clipped even the fraction of an inch, and altogether he is an excellent china representation of the famous Peter.

Around the rim of the plate is depicted the whole remarkable history of Augustus, who would not drink his

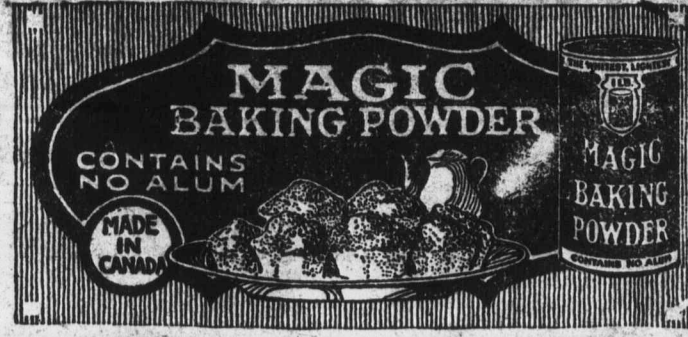

An Author's Luck.

A curious illustration of the "luck" with which some books meet is shown in the history of Henry Seton Merriman's novel, "The Grey Lady." The first edition was brought out among the holiday issues of 1895, and although favorably received by the reviewers and described as "intensely dramatic," "with fresh, vigorous plot," etc., very little attention in general seems to have been paid it, and for eighteen months the first edition was sufficient to meet all demands. Some time later, however, a second edition was published, appearing with a specially designed cover in gray and gold. Far from repeating the experience of the first edition, the second was sold out almost immediately and orders were received for fully half of the third edition. It is but another curious instance of that fickleness of the literary taste of the public.

The Flashing Frog.

There is a hideous reptile, known as the flashing frog, which angles for its game as expertly and with as great success as the most adroit fly fisher. He is a clumsy, awkward swimmer, but nature has compensated him for his unskillfulness by furnishing him with an equivalent for a rod and line, with a bait always ready for use. Two elongated tentacles spring from his nose, which taper away like actual fishing rods. To the end of them is attached, by a slender filament, which serves the purpose of a line, a bait in the form of a shiny bit of membrane. The hooks are set in the mouth of the fisherman below, and in order to induce the fish to venture within reach of them, the angler stirs up the mud at the bottom with his fins and tail. This attracts the fish and conceals him from their observation. He then plies his rod; the glittering bait glows in the water like a living insect. The dazed fish are taken in great numbers, perfectly circumscribed by the trick of the crafty angler.

HER AGE.

It All Depends On the Woman Herself.

Take two women, in equal circumstances, with an equal amount of responsibility to bear, and of an equal age—say, 30 years. Why does the first impress one as "on the shelf," so to speak? She is "settled" in figure, manner and outlook, and her face, though not old, has still lost its flush of youth—its pulsating quality of expectation.

The second, though the same age, that it will fire the heavy 13 1-2 lb. shell used in the ordinary quick-firer a further distance and with greater rapidity than has ever been attained with a field-gun before.

In fact the new gun increases the range of the British normal field weapon, by at least 3,000 yards, and it is expected that further development will extend the vulnerable point by another 1,000 yards.

Experiments have shown that the new gun can discharge as many as 28 rounds a minute.

One of the difficulties at first experienced was that, although the increased distance could be attained with comparative ease, accuracy could not be wholly relied upon at the lengthened range, and although the gun was used on a limited scale during the closing stages of the war, its far-reaching effects were not utilized to their full extent for this reason.

The vibration set up by the extreme rapidity of fire also operated somewhat against accuracy, but it is understood that both these difficulties have now been overcome, and that the gun has been found to answer all requirements.

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, Etc.

Mrs. Newbridge—When you found that you couldn't accept the invitation to our wedding, why didn't you send your regrets? Miss Ryal—Oh, I thought you'd have enough of your own pretty soon, dear.—Kansas City Star.

has the slim boyish lines of a girl in her teens, her manner is so alive—so expectant, and her face aglow with youth.

One unconsciously never considers her age, so strong is the impression of merely the beginning of things—she seems always on the threshold of life. She looks almost in a different different generation from the first woman. Yet the cause of this difference has nothing to do whatever with the brand of her favorite face cream—nor her preference in the matter of face powder! Her mind is the real fountain of her youth and his fair to stay so indefinitely. Her thoughts are young thoughts. They belong to morning, not dusk. She has the glamorous trusting outlook that belongs to youth. She has warm young impulses, young enthusiasms, young interests. She never invites Father Time by thinking of or fearing him. To her he simply doesn't exist.

But how different are the thoughts and the spirit of the first woman. To begin with, she remembers weeks ahead the coming of each new birthday. And each time she says to herself, "I'm a year older—before long I'll be forty!" So looking forward to forty, she already acts it, and more than that! She hates growing older—she fears it, and so it is constantly in her so! Each day she watches fearfully for the first fine wrinkles—and finds thoughts.

With such an outlook youthful dressing seems absurd, so she adopts manly fashions; very young occupations and interests look for her, so she gives up some of her light-hearted pastimes.

In other words, she runs to meet Father Time, before he would otherwise have even started in her direction!

As a fact, though, this type of woman is becoming more and more obsolete. When a well-known moving-picture star of over forty can take the part of a little child, and really look it, what things are not possible in the way of youth retained in this age, where the power of the mind over the body is really beginning to be understood! It is the woman who realizes this truth that can retain her girlish charms, far even onto the shady side of fifty.

So, after all, Ann is just as old as her mind will have her!

Bourgeois and Proletarian.

The word bourgeois is the old French word for a citizen of a bourg, or city; we have the same word in English, as burgher, says the Youth's Companion. Originally it distinguished the town dweller from the noble who dwelt in the hamlet among the fields. Then, since the bourgeois was likely to be a tradesman or a craftsman the word came to have that meaning, too.

As a noun it describes the thrifty, industrious member of the mercantile or manufacturing classes; as an adjective, it describes the qualities, the standards and the characteristics of those classes. In the most modern sense of all—that employed by the Socialist writers who take their cue from Karl Marx—the word is used to mean those who have accumulated some property, those who are in a position to employ other people and to pay them wages.

The word proletarian comes from the Latin word proles (offspring), and 2,000 years ago was used by the Romans to designate the less substantial and useful members of society, those who had nothing except their children to offer to the support of the state. The word also has taken on other shades of meaning until it has come to be applied to a member of the community who has no other capital than the strength of his hands; the laborer, or workman who lives, as it were, from hand to mouth, and who has no reserves to support him in time of need.

Justice in Wrong.

A celebrated barrister undertook a trade-mark case that looked hopeless for his client. The client went abroad, leaving his telegraphic address, with instructions that he was to be notified of the decision.

He won the case and the barrister cried: "Justice has triumphed!"

The client wired back: "Lodge immediate appeal!"

Coal Beneath the North Sea.

"It is often said that Britain owes her commercial supremacy to her coal. For her size she has more and better coal than any other country in the world, and for steam purposes, South Wales practically supplies the world. Where did the coal come from?

The coal seams, lying one below another to an unknown depth, and not infrequently cropping out at the surface, are sure proof that tropical conditions once prevailed in the latitude of these islands. In primeval times, a period whose remoteness is measured by millions of years, the district which is now Britain was connected with the continent, and the coal of England doubtless runs under the Channel and the southern part of the North Sea, and is continued in the coalfields of Northern France, Belgium and Flanders.

All this region was covered thick with great tree ferns, growing to a gigantic height, of exceedingly rapid growth in the damp steaming heat of a tropical climate which exceeded Africa to-day. Growth succeeded growth, and in the course of ages probably seas flowed over it and deposited the sand which is now rock. Then came another period of growth, and the pressure carbonized the fallen vegetation and formed layers of coal, pieces of which still bear imprinted upon their flat surface the beautiful tracery of the original fronds of the tree-ferns.—Tit-Bits.

PEACH RECIPES

Peaches are now in season. There are hundreds of ways of giving piquancy to other dishes by peach admixture.

Rice goes especially well with peaches, also ice cream, and an excellent combination is of a ripe cantaloupe melon, with peaches so cut up and sugared, put into the centre when emptied of seeds; these eaten together with ice cream, if liked, is an unusually nice dessert. Peach sponge is made with rice cooked until soft with milk and sugar and a pinch of salt. Squeeze gradually the juice of a lemon, beat some whites of eggs stiff and fold in; pour into a ring mould, stand in hot water, cover and bake in moderate oven for half an hour. When cool turn out, put sliced peaches round, and fill the centre with cup-up peaches, and top with whipped cream.

PEACH MELBA.

Peach Melba is a great favorite. Pare, stone and cook the peaches in syrup. When cool put half a peach on a small, round cake, of which the centre is cut out. A large spoonful of ice cream is put on the peach and ornamented with a candied cherry. This is made with canned peaches, too. A moussé made of canned peaches, stiffened with gelatine, and peaches cut small, whipped in, and the mould lined with spun fingers, with the centre filled in with the fruit and cream is most refreshing if left on the ice for a hot day.

CANNED PEACHES.

For canned peaches the following seems good: Six pounds peaches, peeled; three pounds sugar; 1-2 cup of water. Drop the fruit into cold water when peeled. Place layers of peaches and sugar in the kettle, pour in water and a few leaves if you have them. Place over a slow fire until tender. Remove leaves and seal in jars. A unique method is to peel the peaches and put them in a slow oven until baked soft, and serve with cream and sugar.

TROTSKY GIVES BOLSHIEV PLANS

Talks of "World Combat Against Capitalism"

In America, England and Far East.

Stockholm Cable — Leon Trotsky, the Bolshevik Minister of War and Marine, speaking at Petrograd recently, gave a detailed programme of Bolshevik military operations, saying that among other things:

"It is not in Finland or Estonia that the immense world combat against capitalism can be fought, but in America and England, and, above all, in the far east."

The Bolshevik armies, Trotsky continued, would continue their previous methods of beating their enemies singly. General Denikine's turn would come after Admiral Kolchak had been beaten, he declared. The turn of the Poles would follow, and after them the Roumanians would be dealt with.

"We have proposed peace to all the Baltic states, which are insignificant," Trotsky said. "At the same time we cannot tolerate the provocation of Finland, which must guarantee the cessation of preparation for intervention in Russia, in which case not one red soldier will cross the frontier. But if Finland wishes war, it will be necessary to begin against her a campaign of extermination such as hitherto has been unknown in history."

SPIRIT OF CARELESSNESS DESTRUCTION AND SUFFERING

THE HORRORS OF FIRE

Occupying Fireside Hours

Each season has its pleasures. Now the sunlit evenings of summer, when we played games, and rowed, and worked in our gardens, or rambled over the countryside, or helped on the farm, are over. The lamp-lit evenings of winter are coming, when the curtains are drawn, and the cozy house shuts out the wind and snow. It is then we have to look about for "something to do." We cannot read all the time, nor can every evening be a musical one; so we must fall back upon other occupations, and the question arises: "What shall they be?" Somehow, we do not care for the sometimes useless "fancy work," which was supposed to be suitable for the children of other days; we rather feel we would like to take our share in making things which mother would find useful in the house, or which would cheer up our own special room, or perhaps provide us with a trifle to give away. And so it may help to have a few words, every now and then, on how to occupy a "fireside hour."

To-day we will begin with a few ways in which we can use up odds and ends of linen, cottons, and bits of casement cloth, many hues. Out of them you will see, tray cloths can be made. When you have made one, you will see how pretty it looks with a dark wooden tray and bright cottage cups and saucers, and the same sort of cloth will give a splash of color in your own room, and perhaps cover a rather shabby old table. To begin with, get a yard and ten inches of, say, jade-green linen, double width, and fold it over, corner to corner, to make a square. Cut this out carefully, turn in the edges and hem right round very neatly. Next take 32 inches of black linen and make a square of it, in the same way, only just turn back the edge once, and tack it. Now place the green square upon a large table, and lay the black square upon it, diamond shape, so that its corners come the reverse way to those of the green square. While the two squares are thus quite flat upon the table, tack the smaller black one to the green one beneath it, so as to be quite sure they are perfectly even. When they are thus fixed, take them off the table and "feather" the black one to the green square, or sew them together with "darning stitch," done in coarse green thread. Now the most important part of our tablecloth is ready to decorate it prettily, suspend balls of linen, hanging on cords, from each of the four corners. These are made by cutting a strip of linen, one and six inches wide, and joining the ends together. Gather the top, insert the cord, about two inches long, by which the ball is to hang from the tablecloth, and sew firmly. Now fill the ball with cotton-wool; and, if you want it to look as if it were made of the two linens, just cut, not hemmed, and insert it into the lower end of the ball, before sewing it up.

This design of the smaller square, placed like a handkerchief upon the larger one, is capable of quite endless variation, an striped or checked cloth, or a pattern of small ground square look most attractive; and, instead of balls, big wool tassels can be used, and table-cloths very pretty cloth was of orange linen, with deep corners of black and orange check material laid on, and four crosses, formed by five checks, were put between the corners, a little toward the centre of the cloth. That cloth was for use on the table on the piazza or in the garden. Perhaps, in the family store-closet, there are some pieces of cretonne or printed linen with queer flowers on wonderful looking birds, and so on. If only they are bright, and not too mixed-up a pattern, these can do good service, cut out a dial upon plain cream cloth or upon a pattern of cretonne, or blue on the squares. A huge bird of blue on each corner of a lemon colored cloth, or a wreath of purple grapes on a blue one, will refresh the eye, you have bestowed on it.—Christian Science Monitor.

The ease with which corns and warts can be removed by Holloway's Corn Cure is its strongest recommendation. It seldom fails.

Dead Civilizations. We think ours a wonderful civilization, and it is, in a way, notwithstanding the shadows that rest upon its soul. But there have been civilizations almost, if not quite, as splendid as our own. And they are gone—indeed, so dead that not a tombstone remains to mark the grave.—Christian

Be It Ever So Humble.—The heart goes out on leaden wings in hopeless longing. The pent-up heat of unspent love fevers the dispirited soul. The mind's eye narrows its concentrated energy on a single spot. Anguish, sweetly bitter, shows the beat of a downcast heart. A veil passes over the world—and again is gone. Such is homesickness.—Milwaukee Journal.

"Rivalry between the oracle of Zeus at Dodona and that of Opollo at Delphi became keen. Priestesses of the former invented new ways of receiving messages, including interpretations of the murmurs of a brook and the sounds of a metal-tipped whip as the wind drove it against a bronze tripod.

"Croesus was supposed to have consulted the Dodona oracle about his proposed campaign against Cyrus, king of the Ephrains. He acted upon the more flattering prophecy at Delphi which promised he would destroy a great kingdom. The prediction was verified; the kingdom destroyed was his own.

"Few biographies of women are more fascinating than that of Olympias. She was the daughter of a king of Epirus who traced his ancestry to a son of Macedonia. Her character betrays an amazing compound of the devoted mother, the barbaric passion of a Cleopatra, and the astute statesmanship of Maria Theresa. Ptolemy gives a vivid description of her fantastic snake dances. Estranged from Phillip because of his infidelity, she was suspected to have a part in his murder.

"Pyrrhus, descended from Alexander's arm, waged a war with Rome and made Epirus a power in world politics for a brief period. A century after a half-century his death the Romans annihilated the forces of Perseus at Pydna and the punishment meted out to Epirus for its part in the war was the destruction of 70 of her principal cities and enslavement of 150,000 of her citizens. The kingdom never recovered from that blow.

"Epirus is extremely mountainous. From ancient times to the present day its cattle and horses have been noted and it was famous for a peculiar breed of dog, the Molossian."

The Thrift of Years. Every man should strive to live at least 100 years and die all hitched up in working harness. Many a man feels that he would like to retire at about sixty and spend the rest of his years with nothing to do but lead a gold-headed cane around by the hand. It is thrifty to stay on the job just as long as possible. Every man should make the century plan his favorite flower and the undertaker his worst enemy.—Thrift Magazine.

Plants That Grow in Craters. In the crater of the extinct volcano, Haliakalau, in the Hawaiian Islands, there flourishes a curious plant, locally known as "Silver Swords." They are evidently some kind of cacti. Efforts to propagate them elsewhere have, it is said, always failed. The crater where they are found is a huge cinder-strewn bowl, absolutely dry and devoid of any other form of vegetation.

English Thrush. The English thrush brings its snails to a certain convenient stone on which it will crack their shells by beating them upon it. Some sea birds carry shellfish to a height and drop them on the rock to break their shells, but this brings only the anvil into use, not the hammer. The case of the wasp is the only one which records the seemingly intelligent use of a tool to accomplish a given purpose.

Peculiar Form of Cruelty. Telling ghost stories was the charge brought against her husband by a woman seeking a divorce in Tichnock, County Waterford, Ireland. The woman asked for a divorce on the grounds of cruelty. Questioned as to what her husband had done, the wife explained that her husband was always telling her stories to the effect that the ghost of his former wife haunted the house.

A Mild Pill for Delicate Women.—The most delicate woman can undergo a course of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills without fear of unpleasant consequences. Their action is wholly effective, is mild and agreeable. No violent purges or purgatives follow their use, as thousands of women who have used them can testify. They are, therefore, strongly recommended to women, who are more prone to disorders of the digestive organs than men.

BUYS FROM GERMANY. France is Doing So, to Force Down Exchange.

Paris Cable says—Not only is the French Government actively encouraging its citizens to buy in Germany on account of exchange situation, but is placing orders in that country. The French Ministry of Reconstruction has just ordered a quantity of knitting machinery from Germany for use in the devastated regions.

The price lists circulated some months ago by the Germans brought many orders from French buyers. The encouragement which the French Government is giving its citizens to buy in Germany is plainly designed as a club to compel the United States to act speedily in a readjustment of the exchange situation. In this it is held that France is eminently justified, as the purchasing power of the franc in Germany is almost the same as the purchasing power of the American dollar in France. Another argument advanced is that France, by taking advantage of this situation, is only taking another way of making Germany pay for the war.

Be Specific. For business purposes, for social purposes, for any purpose in life, a rule that should admit of no exception is: "Be specific in everything you say. Don't take it for granted that vague, general statements will properly convey your meaning." General statements, please remember, leave wide room for inference, and there is always the liability that a wrong inference will be drawn.

Do not allow worms to sap the vitality of your children. If not attended to, worms may work irreparable harm to the constitution of the infant. The little sufferers cannot voice their ailment, but there are many signs by which mothers are made aware that a dose of Miller's Worm Powder is necessary. These powders act quickly and will expel worms from the system without any inconvenience to the child.

EPIRUS

The eastern shore line of the Adriatic Sea which continues southward to the eastern shore of the Ionian Sea, the exit of the Adriatic has been a seething cauldron of racial strife from the time of the Persian and Roman Empires to the Peace Conference of 1919," says a bulletin of the United States National Geographical Society.

The bulletin calls attention to the fact that the subsidence of the controversy between Italy and the new kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes over Fiume, seems merely to transfer the centre of interest southward to the historic Epirus, now a part of Albania, which Greece wishes restored to her domain.

"Five centuries before Christ Epirus was set off like a little island, apart from Macedonia and Hellas and the Ionian Sea as its boundaries," the bulletin continues. "The name, meaning 'mainland,' was given to it to distinguish it from the Grecian Islands which fringe its coast line.

"Corinthians, Athenians and Spartans looked upon the Epirotes as barbarians, and Aristotle called them 'uncivilized,' the major portion of the ancient area is comprised in Albania, among the states of least and least known of all the states in Europe.

"An oracle and a woman won for Epirus wide renown in the ancient world. From prehistoric times messages of the gods were received at Dodona through the rustling of the leaves on an oak tree where Zeus was supposed to dwell. The mother of Alexander the Great, whose son's renown does not fade, was her own majesty in the eyes of the Greeks.

GEN. GARIBALDI SAYS ITALY CONSIDERS FIUME CASE SETTLED

Four Italian Warships There Have Gone Over to D'Annunzio.

Paris Cable — "As a nation we consider the Fiume matter settled, because we have actual possession."

said General Giuseppe (Peppino) Garibaldi, to an Associated Press representative here this morning. Garibaldi had just reached Paris from Rome, coming on what was said to be an important mission, from which he would go to meet Gabriele D'Annunzio, the insurgent Italian leader in possession of Fiume.

"Had D'Annunzio not gone in," continued Garibaldi, "we would have done it within fifteen days. If president Wilson were moved by the right spirit," he added, "he would permit the whole question to be decided by Great Britain, France and Italy. In that case, we are satisfied that our rights would be recognized, as they already are recognized by the majority of Americans."

CAGNI TO MEET D'ANNUNZIO. Rome Cable — It is announced by the idea Nazionale that Admiral Umberto Cagni, who was appointed Governor of Fiume shortly after armistice was signed last fall, has agreed to proceed to that city to set the Government's propositions with regard to Fiume before Gabriele D'Annunzio.

A despatch to the Messaggero from Fiume quotes D'Annunzio as declaring he rejected in advance the project of assigning Fiume to Italy and turning over Abbazia and Udine, across the bay from Fiume, to a small buffer state.

HAS A NAVY NOW. Pola Special Cable says: Four Italian warships, the Battleship Dante Alighieri and the destroyers Mirabello, Nullo and Abba, are named as units of the "Fiuman navy," in a proclamation written by Captain Gabriele D'Annunzio and distributed in this city.

The proclamation praises the men of these ships for "their loyalty to the Fiuman cause," and extols them for their "valorous acts." It is stated here it was because of the desertions of these four vessels from the regular Italian navy that Allied commanders were forced to withdraw from the harbor of Fiume, which was considered unsafe while the Dante Alighieri was anchored there and was loyal to the D'Annunzio cause.

THE BOY SCOUTS.

The junior boys of Athens are trying to revive the Boy Scout movement by organizing a troop this fall, provided they can find a scoutmaster, and obtain support of the citizens. The Boy Scout movement has spread to all civilized countries, supported by prominent men and women, as a step in the right direction for the training of boys. They are taught to be respectful, manly, obedient, and resourceful. Useful ideas are practised, the routine consisting of camp life in the woods, nature study—all a benefit during their life as well as an enjoyment while being a good scout. Boy Scout pledge of Honor: Respectful obedience; to do a kind act each day; no smoking; no bad language; abstain from intoxicants and all bad habits.

The age for Boy Scouts is from 12 to 18 years. A few years past a Boy Scout troop was organized by Mr. Morton, then of the public school staff. The troop met with great success and hearty support of the people. One of those boys was fortunate to be selected and sent over to England to represent Canadian Scouts at a large Scout camp assembled from all parts of the British Empire.

Mr. Morton having made a change, there was no successor to take up the work, much to the regret of the boys. The boys should be encouraged in this and receive the kind and hearty support of the people. Naturally, there will be expenses incurred, outside that of each Scout personally—Scout assembly rooms and equipment of same.

The boys who are anxious to join and be Scouts will meet Saturday afternoon next at 2 p.m. By that time the position of Scoutmaster may be filled by a local man temporarily.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Jennie Hawkins, born 2nd of October, 1918, died 15th of June, aged 8 months and 13 days.

The little flower has faded;
Our darling one has flown
Where flowers are brightly blooming,
And we are left alone.

We're lonely, oh, so lonely,
As days pass swiftly on;
A few short months cheered us,
Then faded and was gone.

In yonder quiet graveyard
A little mound we see;
Where babe rests so calmly,
From pain and sorrow free.

And yet our darling Jennie
Sleeps not in that low bed;
She ever lives with Jesus
Above the quiet dead.

Sweet babe, thou wast a blessing
To loving hearts below,
And blessing only lent us,
And soon 'twas called to go.

Another flower blooming
In heavenly gardens fair,
To gently lead us heavenward,
Another loved one there.

From Auntie, Mrs. A. Watson.

THE J. C. ROCKWELL "SUNNY SOUTH" COMPANY.

That uncommonly strong combination of colored talent, known as the J. C. Rockwell "Sunny South" company, the show that never disappoints, the one that never misrepresents, is announced to appear in the Town Hall, Athens, Thursday evening, October 9th. This company has been seen here several times and it has always made good every promise, delivering the goods just as advertised. As on its former visits, it will be found to be clean to a fault and during the entire performance there is not a line, an action nor an insinuation to which exception can be taken. There is every ingredient of gaiety and melody and it is illuminated with an Olio of top-notch and refined vaudeville stunts, of the better class, the kind that are not seen outside the larger cities. From curtain to curtain it is snappy, gingery and well calculated to drive away the blues. Mr. Rockwell does not believe in putting the greater part of his salary allotment into one or two acts and allowing the balance of the performance to suffer through the employment of cheaper ones, which always disgust the experienced patron, but he has found that the expenditure of money for the purpose of making each and every act and detail complete pays twice over in the box office receipts. This explains why the performances given by this company are always up to the minute and sends the audience home whistling, happy and contented, at the same time feeling satisfied they have received full value for their money. There is plenty of fun in the performance, in fact it was built for laughing purposes only and it is generally conceded to be one of the funniest shows since time began. The organization is accompanied by an excellent solo concert band and a superb orchestra. The "Kooontown" parade takes place at 3.30 p.m. Prices of admission are 35c., 50c., and 75c. Secure reserved seats now and avoid standing. They are on sale at Lamb's Drug Store.

How to say "No!"

Mark Your Ballot with an X after Each Question under the word "No"

1	Are you in favour of the repeal of the Ontario Temperance Act?	YES	NO X
2	Are you in favour of the sale of light beer containing not more than two and fifty-one one-hundredths per cent. alcohol weight measure through Government agencies and amendments to The Ontario Temperance Act to permit such sale?	YES	NO X
3	Are you in favour of the sale of light beer containing not more than two and fifty-one one-hundredths per cent. alcohol weight measure in standard hotels in local municipalities that by a majority vote favour such sale and amendments to The Ontario Temperance Act to permit such sale?	YES	NO X
4	Are you in favour of the sale of spirituous and malt liquors through Government agencies and amendments to The Ontario Temperance Act to permit such sale?	YES	NO X

Above is an exact reproduction of the Referendum ballot, showing the correct way to Vote in order to sustain the Ontario Temperance Act as it stands.

Everybody should study the four questions and realize exactly what they mean. Do not be misled by the insidious demand for "light" beer.

The beer of the ballot is 118% stronger than the Ontario Temperance Act now allows, and over five times as strong as the limit allowed for beer defined as non-intoxicating in Great Britain and the United States.

Answer Each Question

1. Unless you vote on every question your ballot is spoiled.
2. You must mark your answer to each question with an "X" only. Anything else would spoil your ballot.
3. Unless a majority vote "No" on question 1 the bars will be restored and the sale of all kinds of intoxicants permitted.
4. Unless a majority vote "No" on questions 2, 3 and 4 the Ontario Temperance Act will become almost worthless.
5. The only SAFE course is to mark your ballot as shown above.

"No!"—Four Times—"No!"

No repeal; No government beer shops; No beer saloons; No government whiskey shops.—Four X's, each under the word "No."

Comradeship

Admiral Sir David Beatty

ADMIRAL Sir David Beatty, when speaking at Leicester a few days ago, said:—

"We have been through four and a half years of a great struggle. We have all learned something—the true value of comradeship. Comradeship has enabled us to win the war."

Realizing the significance and truth of this statement the Citizens' Liberty League appeals to the people of this Province to develop the spirit of comradeship, mutual forbearance, toleration and sympathy. Let us be fair-minded, less rigid, more reasonable, and more willing to give and take.

Samuel Gompers

The workmen of Ontario appeal for better beer—non-intoxicating beer—beer containing 2.51% alcohol by weight — THE BEER OF THE BALLOT.

Samuel Gompers, the world's greatest labor leader, stated the workman's position clearly when he said:

"The normal men, the men of Labor who work eight hours a day and no more, the workmen who earn decent pay, the workmen who have comparatively comfortable homes, they do not want the artificial spirit. The man of normal spirit finds comfort in pleasant surroundings; he does not need, and, as a rule, does not partake of intoxicating drinks; he shuns the effects of intoxicants. What we now ask is that the men of Labor, the masses of our people, shall have the opportunity to drink a glass of beer of not more than 2 1/2% by weight of alcohol in that beer, and I am told you cannot drink enough of that character of beer to get drunk even if you tried."

Scientific tests, practical experiments and thorough research prove that beer of even greater strength than 2.51% alcohol by weight, is absolutely non-intoxicating. (The results of these tests have been filed with the United States Circuit Court of Appeals).

As no harmful results can possibly come from drinking beer of this quality—is there any fair or logical reason why the working men should not have the more palatable beer for which they are asking — THE BEER OF THE BALLOT?

Support the working men and the Citizens' Liberty League in the endeavor to obtain a fair, just and reasonable compromise on the present too drastic prohibitory legislation.

REFERENDUM MEETING WAS BIG SUCCESS.

The first public meeting under the auspices of the Referendum Committee was held in the town hall on the evening of Monday, Sept. 27th.

The hall was well filled, attesting the great interest the village is taking in this question. Mrs. W. J. Anderson, of Vancouver, B.C., was the speaker of the evening.

Mr. Walter Taber occupied the chair.

A short programme was given and then the speaker of the evening was introduced.

Mrs. Anderson, after asserting that the recent heavy importations of liquor into the province of Ontario represented an attempt on the part of the licensed liquor traffic to show that prohibition here does not prohibit and in this manner influence public opinion in the coming referendum, made a strong appeal for voting "no" four times on the October 20 ballot.

Mrs. Anderson predicted that the referendum workers would have "a good stiff fight" before they "went over the top" on October 20. Besides the very great confusion which would result from the complex ballot, over-optimism and indifference might be enemies to their success and the speaker undertook to explain the relation of the different questions on the ballot to the temperance cause.

License Inspectors Busy.

Regarding question No. 1, relating to the repeal of the Ontario Temperance Act, Mrs. Anderson stated that within the last few weeks the law has been broken more frequently than previously and Chief License Inspector Ayeart and his assistants have been kept very busy making captures. "I am told in a great many places I enter," she declares, "that more liquor is being brought in and used than formerly was the case. There has been a determined effort on the part of the liquor traffic to show that the O.T.A. did not prohibit." The same condition, she said, had prevailed prior to the referendum in British Columbia.

Mrs. Anderson said that every business, except that of the pawnbroker, had prospered in Ontario since the passage of the O.T.A. It was now an unusual thing to see a drunken man on the streets of the cities.

Passing to questions 2 and 3 on the ballot, regarding the strength of the beer to be permitted, Mrs. Anderson expressed the opinion that the present temperance beer was quite as strong a stimulant as any man requires. The beer proposed to be sold should questions 2 and 3 carry was "a beer intensely harmful to the human system," and she believed that the consensus of opinion among medical men was that, used regularly, it would be a more dangerous beverage than whiskey.

Beer of Ballot Harmful.

She had been told that pneumonia is almost sure to be fatal to beer-drinkers, and declared that from three bottles of the beer of the ballot as much alcohol could be secured as from one glass of whiskey. The beer, the speaker declared, was what was being used to-day in Quebec, but not only the men but the women as well were drinking it in the cafes. She declared that the people of Quebec were not satisfied with the beer and that there were many cases of intoxication in the city of Montreal.

"Jack Canuck," a publication which Mrs. Anderson said temperance people should not admit to their homes, and which, she believed, had been banned in some military hospitals overseas, had argued that it would be better to have liquor than that people should drink hair restorer. She believed this was a strong argument for the prohibition side, since if it was necessary for men to drink hair tonic to get a little bit of "kick," it would be folly to place anything before the young people which would lead to the acquisition of the appetite.

Camouflage Being Used.

The speaker said the liquor traffic was making use of camouflage in their campaign and declared that what they were thinking of was not personal liberty but the money to be made by the sale of intoxicants. If it was necessary to have prohibition during the war, it was just as necessary to have it during the period of reconstruction when the problem to be grappled with required the utmost efficiency on the part of the people. Should Ontario become "wet," the province, she believed, would become another Mexico for people of the United States. She had not much sympathy with the personal liberty cry because she did not believe there was any truthfulness in it. She said it made her blood boil to read some of the statements that the veterans were going against prohibition in the fight and thought that while there might be veterans voting thus, there would be many more who would consider that what they had seen in England, France and Germany would make them more than ever determined to carry prohibition here.

Want Enforcement of Law.

Mrs. Anderson said that the prohibition people must have protection and that they were determined to have a government in power that would enforce the act. She appealed

The Why? of Another Victory Loan

WHEN, on the morning of November 11th, 1918, the guns were hushed and glad tidings flashed across the world, there followed with the Nation's Prayer of Thanksgiving, one yearning query, which found echo in the faster beating hearts of wives, mothers, fathers, brothers, sisters and sweethearts. That query was, "How soon will our boy be home?" And, from France and Flanders, from Italy and Egypt, from Palestine and from far-off Siberia, there came an answering echo, "How soon, how soon, may we go home?"

CANADA caught the spirit of these longings, and at once resolved to satisfy them. It was an appalling task. Shipping was tragically scarce. The composition of the Army of Occupation had not then been settled. And other parts of the Empire as well as Canada were looking for the speedy return of their men.

THE problem was this. The half-million men that Canada had overseas had taken more than four years to transport to the field of battle. To bring them home in a few months was a gigantic undertaking—one to tax all Canada's ingenuity and resources. Canada solved the problem, but it meant crowding into a few short months, an expense for demobilization which it was impossible to foresee.

THEN, too, besides the sentimental aspect of the necessity for bringing the men home quickly the economic side could not be overlooked. That was, to transform efficiently and speedily the nation's army of fighters into a national army of workers.

Need Divides Itself in Two Parts

Obligations to Soldiers

The answer to the question "Why does Canada need another Victory Loan?" divides itself into two parts. (a) To finish paying the expenses of demobilization, and the obligations we still owe to our soldiers. (b) To provide national working capital. The obligations to soldiers include: That already incurred cost of bringing home troops from overseas. The payment of all soldiers still undemobilized. This includes more than 20,000 sick and wounded who are still in hospital, and who of course remain on the Army payroll till discharged. The upkeep of hospitals, and their medical and nursing staffs, until the need for them is ended. These three items alone will use up at least $200,000,000 of the Victory Loan 1919.

Gratuities

There is also the gratuity which has been authorized, and has been and is being paid to assist soldiers to tide over the period between discharge and their re-adjustment to civil life. For this purpose alone, $61,000,000 must be provided out of the Victory Loan 1919, in addition to the $59,000,000 already paid out of the proceeds of the Victory Loan 1913.

Land Settlement

Furthermore, soldiers who desire to become farmers may, under the Soldiers' Land Settlement Act, be loaned money by Canada with which to purchase land, stock and implements. The money so advanced will be paid back; meantime each loan is secured by a first mortgage. Up to August 15th, 29,495 soldiers had applied for land under the terms of this Act; and 22,281 applications had been investigated, and the qualifications of the applicant approved. For this purpose Canada this year requires $24,000,000.

Vocational Training

For this work which, with the Vocational Training and Soldiers' Service Departments, embraces the major activities of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, an appropriation of $57,000,000 is necessary.

Those who give thought to our outstanding obligations to soldiers, and to our need for national working capital, cannot fail to be impressed with the absolute necessity for the

to the women not to line up in party politics but to place in power a government standing for prohibition, justice and right. Concluding, she said that people who voted on this question would be "either on the Lord's side or on the other side."

ELOIDA.

The camp meeting closed Sunday evening. The committee reports a satisfactory meeting. Rev. Graham, a returned missionary from China, delivered a very interesting lecture, which included some of his experiences in the foreign field. Following this, a free-will offering of $1,650 was received for foreign missions.

SIR WILLIAM'S WILL

But presently, with a sigh of resignation, he left the accounts and made up a fire, over which a kettle was hanging, that was smouldering outside, while Lord Stanton arranged the cups on a huge slab of stone. Then he went up to the girls.

"Douglas has got some tea for us," he said.

"Hurrah!" said Mollie, descending from her perch with alacrity; but Clytie looked before her thoughtfully, and remained seated.

"I don't think I'll come down," she said.

Lord Stanton was about to urge her, but Mollie caught him by the arm.

"Oh, leave her alone," she said. "Haven't you discovered yet that when Clytie is in one of her dreaming-fits it is not safe to disturb her? She is like one of those pretty, sleek-looking cats at the Zoo, the kind you feel that you must go up to and stroke. Luckily for you, there is always a kind, good keeper to warn you off. See? I'm the keeper."

"I wish you were mine," murmured the lad.

"What did you say? Never mind. But you shouldn't get into the bad habit of muttering to yourself. That's one of the lessons I'm always trying to teach you. How do you do, Mr. Douglas? It's very kind of you to offer us tea; this is the second time we are indebted to your hospitality," she added suavely.

Jack reddened; he never thought of the scene with Hesketh Carton without growing warm, inside and out.

"I think Lord Stanton deserves all the credit on this occasion, Miss Mollie," he said.

"Oh! then be sure he'll take it!" she retorted.

Jack went into the shed, leaving his lordship to play host, and Mollie, as she poured out the tea, noticed that there were only three cups.

"I wonder if Clytie would have some if we sent it up," she said.

"Yes, I was going to take it," said Lord Stanton.

you know; and—and, of course, you'll come to the Towers. She's a good sort, and you'll like her."

"You're not going back to Oxford, then?" said Mollie.

"No," he said. "You see, with a touch of color, things were altered when I came into Stanton. There's a good deal to be done."

"Oh, is there?" asked Mollie innocently.

"Why, of course there is," he retorted aggressively. "No end of things to look after, all over the estate, you know."

"Really? It seemed to me that you spent most of your time between Pethwick and Withycombe."

He colored still more redly. "Well, you see, I've got this job on hand."

"Oh, don't apologize," she exhorted him indignantly. "It's no business of mine how you waste—employ your time. But if I were your aunt—which, thank goodness, I am not—I should pack you back to school—Oxford, I mean."

"Oh, if you want me to go—" He sighed despairfully.

"I!" retorted Mollie opening her eyes on him like saucers. "It's a matter of perfect indifference to me whether you go or stay."

"Then I shall stay," he retorted, in his turn.

"And while you are here you might get some more water," she said.

Jack, walking deliberately like a dog, carried the cup of tea to the quay wall, and Clytie looked up with a smile.

"Oh, thank you! It is very good of you. I was just wondering whether I would go down or not; it was the sight of the cups and saucers."

thing within his heart suddenly grew warm, his pulse quickened, the air grew brighter. He tried to avoid her, scarcely acknowledging the wish to do so; but he seemed drawn by some unconscious influence to her side; and when he would have resisted, chance came to the aid of that mysterious influence; it had come this afternoon; and while he was at her side he lingered as if he was loath to go. In his solitary hours he caught himself thinking of her face—it was wonderful and amazing, how well he knew its every expression; the slight, wistful curve of the lips, the trick of the straightening brows, the steady, direct gaze of the beautiful eyes, the smile which lit up the rather sad face as the sunlight shimmers on a summer sea. And her voice—surely it was the most musical, the sweetest ever owned by woman; the music, the sweetness echoed for him in the hours of his solitude, up in the woods, on the beach, at night, as he lay awake and thinking of her, as he was thinking of her now, in a deep reverie.

He woke suddenly.

"I'm keeping you from your book, Miss Bramley. Shall I bring you your other cup of tea?"

"No, thanks," she answered. He glanced at his watch.

"I have to take the boat to the Head," he said, nodding at the promontory. "Would you—do you care to come?"

She looked seaward.

"Yes, I think I should," she said. "I am tired of reading."

"I'm going into the boat. Will you come, Mollie?"

Mollie shook her head; she was sitting on a log with the big stone for a back, with her arms round her knees.

"No, indeed. Lord Stanton is telling me of all the wonderful things he did at Oxford, and I haven't the heart to stop him. You go, Clytie."

Clytie hesitated a moment or two, then followed Jack to the beach.

swelling on the ever absorbing marvel of the change which had been wrought in her, the change from the gawky girlhood—and yet, no, he told himself; even as a girl she had been lithe, graceful, notwithstanding the length of the black-stockinged legs, and the long arms—to wonder of womanhood.

"I am going to see if we can manage to slide some of the timber down the slope there; it will save us hauling the trees we are cutting in the wood behind the Head. You know it?"

"Yes," she replied. "We used, my sister and I, to picnic there. You seem to have made acquaintance with the land very quickly."

"Oh, yes," he responded, easily. "I have been riding about a great deal lately, looking out for suitable timber-land stone. It is a beautiful place, and I'm not surprised that Lord Stanton is so proud of it."

"And yet I think in some ways Bramley is more beautiful," she said, musingly.

"Oh, no doubt," he assented. "The land is better, the farms, too but the Towers is the bigger house."

"You know Bramley?" she asked, with some surprise.

He turned to the sail and tightened the sheet.

"Give her just a point to starboard," he said. "Thank you. Oh, every one knows Bramley, by the guide-books and the photographs," he added, as easily as before, but with a mental resolve to keep a more cautious watch on his tongue, which was so ready to answer when she spoke.

"I dare say you are as proud of it, Miss Bramley, as his lordship is of the Towers."

"Yes," she admitted, with a sigh. "I love it."

"You have been there so long—I mean your family."

"Since 1416," she said. "There are still some portions of the original building standing, the west wing. Sir William Carton had it very carefully restored."

Jack nodded. He did some good for the old place," he remarked, cheerfully.

"Yes, oh, yes. If it had remained in my father's possession—He was poor; the Bramleys have been poor for a long time." She hesitated again.

"It was well that the place should pass into more capable hands."

MOCK FISH CAKES.
Boil about one pound of potatoes, mash well with a little milk, add two teaspoonfuls of finely chopped parsley and enough anchovy essence to well flavor. Season with pepper and salt, form into fish cakes, brush over with milk, sprinkle with oatmeal and fry in fat or bake in the oven. These cakes are very good, and the absence of fish is often unnoticed unless attention is drawn to the fact.

CHOCOLATE BUTTER FOR SANDWICHES.
This is something sweet which is enjoyed both by children and grown-up people. It is easy to make and does not use much of rational articles. Take half a teaspoonful of milk, and when boiling mix with it two dessertspoonfuls of good cocoa. While still boiling, thicken with a teaspoonful of cornflour, just dissolved in a little cold milk. Cook altogether for a minute or two, and then take off the fire and stand aside to cool. Weigh one ounce of butter and beat it to a cream with two dessertspoonfuls of white sugar. Then gradually stir in the cocoa mixture, whisking with a fork all the time. When it is a well-blended cream, stand aside to get quite cold. These quantities make quite a lot of chocolate butter. It goes a long way, and is delicious for spreading on bread and little cakes.

STUFFED COD.
Mix three tablespoonfuls bread-crumbs with two tablespoonfuls chopped parsley and one ounce butter (when it can be spared). Bind with an egg (a prepared dry one) and season with pepper and salt. Have ready a thick cod steak, but on a greased baking tin, spread the stuffing on top, cover with a piece of buttered paper and bake in a moderate oven for three-quarters of an hour. Serve garnished with cut lemon.

COD PROVENCALE.
Put a thick slice of cod on a well-greased baking tin, cover with greased paper and bake for fifteen or twenty minutes. Make one-half pint of white sauce, add a tablespoonful chopped capers and one or two chopped gherkins. Season well. Dish up the cod, and any liquor from the cod to the sauce and pour over the fish. Garnish with parsley.

RHUBARB JAM.
To each pound of rhubarb allow one pound sugar and two ounces preserved ginger (cut into small pieces) or one-half teaspoonful ground ginger. Remove the outer, stringy part of the rhubarb, cut the sticks into short lengths and put into a preserving pan with the sugar. Allow to stand overnight, then add the sugar and bring slowly to boiling point. Stir occasionally and boil for about one hour. If the flavor is liked, a few thin slices of lemon, without the pips, can be added.

The people who jump at conclusions seldom get to the front.

WOMAN WORKS
15 HOURS A DAY

Marvelous Story of Woman's Change from Weakness to Strength by Taking Druggist's Advice.

Peru, Ind.—"I suffered from a displacement with backache and dragging down pains so badly that at times I could not be on my feet and it did not seem as though I could stand it. I tried different medicines without any benefit and several doctors told me nothing but an operation would do me any good. My druggist told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it with the result that I am now well and strong. I get up in the morning at four o'clock, do my household work, then go to a factory and work all day, come home and get supper and feel good. I don't know how many of my friends I have told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. ANNA METTERIANO, 36 West 10th St., Peru, Ind.

Women who suffer from any such ailments should not fail to try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

NORTH SEA TRAWLERS.

Their Great Work in Peace and War.

"The northeast coast of Scotland is pacific in climate, as compared with the Atlantic storminess that rules the sea-girt land on the west," writes William Elliot Griffith in "Bonnie Scotland and What We Owe Her," and he goes on later in the same chapter to speak of the trawlers of the North Sea.

At Aberdeen "twenty-five millions of dollars' worth of food is extracted annually through the fisheries in the deeper waters, which have been improved, first by the method of beam trawling, begun in 1832, and then by the steam line fishing in 1839."

"How full the North Sea is of these trawlers those who have seen them and kept pace with the efforts of philanthropists to minister to the needs of the men on board the ships. In recent years we have learned, moreover, how soon, in time of war, these toilers of the deep are called upon to show their courage as well as their industry, and have thus realized the danger ever surrounding these modest heroes. In the world war of 1914-18, the trawlers have not only caught fish, but in their new capacity as minesweepers, have kept the North Sea measurably free."

Keep Electric Lamps Clean.
Dirty electric lamps are inefficient and wasteful. A recent investigation in a large establishment disclosed interesting figures in the extent of this waste. A group of lamps with a week's accumulation of dirt showed an average absorption of light of 16 per cent., some of them running as high as nearly 20 per cent. Another group which had been used for three weeks had an average absorption of 23 per cent., with a maximum of over 26 per cent. Figuring on this basis, 16 per cent. more lamps at the end of one week, or 22 per cent. at the end of three weeks, would be required to obtain the same illumination that would have been obtained if the lamps were kept clean. This, of course, meant a corresponding increase in the electric light bill.—L. G. D.

First Museum.
The first museum was part of the Palace of Alexandria where learned men were maintained at the public cost. Just as eminent public servants were in the Prytaneum at Athens. Its foundation is attributed to Ptolemy, Philadelphus about 280 B.C.

Stuffy Head Cleared
Of Catarrh Germs
By "Catarrhzone"

To catarrh victims we have just one word of advice—cure it now. The remedy is "Catarrhzone." That it will cure permanently you cannot doubt. Catarrhzone has cured thousands; it will cure you, too.

It acts in two ways: First, it destroys the germ—that checks the progress of the disease. Its second action is to heal the sore places the germs caused. Nice to think of breathing little drops of healing to every part of the lungs, bronchial tubes and nasal passages. It is such absolute thoroughness that makes Catarrhzone so effective in grip, catarrh, and colds. Then by its sedative influence upon the mucous surface it clears away the cough and threat tenderness very quickly. We owe something to a science that has given us Catarrhzone—that wonderful remedy which so surely enables us to permanently cure disease of the breathing apparatus. We all know that stomach dosing is useless, and this departure in the mode of treatment is an advance in medical science that everybody can appreciate and value. Complete outfit of Catarrhzone, which is guaranteed to cure any case of catarrh, asthma, bronchial or throat troubles, lasts three months, price $1.00; smaller size, 50c; trial size, 25c; sold everywhere.

Lloyd George a Good Singer.

Unknown to many people is the fact that Premier Lloyd George is the possessor of quite a charming baritone voice, and any spare moments he can snatch are devoted to little home music. He always sings in Welsh, and his voice has that peculiar quality found only in the Celt. Before leaving for Paris some of his scanty leisure was devoted also to French conversation. The Premier reads in French quite fluently, but, like so many other people, his French conversation lacks fluency. He has made quite remarkable progress, however, in a very short time. But, of course, as a Welshman and bilingualist, he has the gift.

Layman's Services Indispensable.

The reverend doctor on his way to his summer place with a deacon of his church, came panting into the ferryhouse only to find the boat pulling out of the slip. There was a flashily-dressed individual present who shared their disappointment—but in a different way. He let out a string of epithets almost as long as the string of blooded race horses he wanted to put aboard the fast receding boat. The minister turned to his comrade and remarked: "Deacon, there are times when the services of a layman are absolutely indispensable."

Diamond Not Most Valuable.

It is a popular error to suppose that the diamond is the most valuable of the precious stones. The relative value of the finer gems places the ruby at the head of the list; the diamond second, and following this, the sapphire. It is a very common occurrence to find a perfect diamond, but a perfect ruby is rare.

TO PREVENT UNEMPLOYMENT.

Next year will be well advanced before Canada's main expenditures for war, can be completed. Every dollar that can be raised for the Victory loan 1919 will be required.
 Although hostilities ceased in 1918 the war expenses went on.
 This is just as much a war year as last year was, as far as the money is concerned. Pressing liabilities incurred by the war and involving vast sums of money have to be cared for. The simplest and most profitable manner in which this can be done is for the people to provide the money themselves.
 The Victory loan 1919 is entitled to just as much consideration as was given to its predecessors. It is up to every loyal Canadian to do his utmost to make the new loan an overwhelming success. The continuance of the prosperity of the nation is wholly dependent upon it.
 It was naturally to be expected that trade depression in the Dominion would have followed the armistice but this was averted by the application of a large proportion of the last Victory loan as credits to Great Britain and our allies for grain, dairy produce, fish, lumber, and ships. These credits were absolutely necessary, and strictly good business. They must be continued. They are national re-investments. The debts will be paid eventually and in the meantime industrial and agricultural workers will be kept in busy and lucrative employment.

FRANKVILLE.

A large number attended the fair here last week.
 Mr. W. Percival, of Athens, was here on Monday.

 A. E. Donovan, M.P.P., was in the village this week.
 Road making on an extensive scale will be in order next year. Large quantities of stone are being piled in different parts of the township.
 Writing to a relative here, Dr. Omar L. Kilborn, who has been in China for some time, states that he will be here soon to visit relatives as well as renew scenes of his boyhood days.
 About 50 friends assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Hart on Friday evening of last week to welcome home Pte. Lawrence Hart and his bride, nee Miss Hazel McConkey, of Deseronto. They were married on August 27. Many useful and valuable presents were received by the young couple. After a sumptuous repast, music, games, etc., were in order and a general welcome was extended to the young couple.
 A. E. Crummy, accompanied by Frank Johnston, of Athens, left last week for the Northwest. The former will be absent about a month and will visit his mother and sisters who have been in the west for some years.
