DANGEROUS PRACTICE

Osteopathy Condemned by a Coroner's Jury in Toronto.

Toronto, Nov. 3.—The jury in the inquest on the death of Margaret Keenan, at 1 a.m. today returned the following verdict: "We find that the deceased came to her death in the rooms of H. C. Jaquette and Flora A. Frederick, in the Confederation Life building, on Oct. 20, by suffocation from bleeding in the windpipe and lungs, caused by goitre. In view of the evidence and medical testimony submitted, we attach no responsibility to any person or persons. We believe that the course of treatment pursued by the prisoners in this case, H. C. Jaquette and Flora A. Frederick, under the name of osteopathic, is unskillful and dangerous. We are of the opinion that strict laws should be enacted, which would put an end to this dangerous practice and others of a kindred nature, which we have reason to believe are far too numerous in this city."

SUCCESSION DUTIES.

Toronto, Nov. 4.—The attorney-general has issued a writ against R. N. Slater, J. E. W. Currier, A. P. Sherwood, Florence Augusta Currier and Esther A. Sherwood, all of Ottawa, for $22,000 succession duties from the estate of the late Esther Slater, less $10,276 already paid. It is claimed in the writ that Esther Slater, prior to and in contemplation of her death, made over certain properties to the persons named in the writ in order to evade the operation of the tax.

TIME FOR A SETTLEMENT.

Montreal, Nov. 7.—Mrs. Wm. Caldwell, of Winnipeg, daughter of the late Roderick McKenzie, of Quebec, has taken an action against thirty other heirs of the estate to bring about a division of the property. Mr. McKenzie's will was made in 1829, and the estate has been in the hands of executors for over sixty years. The amount involved is $30,000. Roderick McKenzie was a noted figure in northwestern affairs in the country's early history.

CANADIAN SCOUTS

Praised for the Good Work They Have Done in Recent Operations in South Africa.

Pretoria, Nov. 2—(Special to New York Sun).—The chief part in the recent operations to the northeast of the Pretoria district has been taken by the Canadian scouts, who have been ably assisted by the Australians.

About a week ago an advance guard with a 15-pounder and a Colt gun came upon a hidden Boer force in a perilous position for the British. The day was saved by the coolness of Sergt. Sellwood, of the Canadians, who, with a Colt gun, at close quarters, swept the firing line of the Boers. The Boers retreated, when the gun continued to shell them, and lost heavily.

On a subsequent occasion, when 17 Boers were killed or wounded and 54 captured, the same column had made an extended night march. With the Canadians in the vanguard, they rushed the Boers at Dawn. The burghers had a pom-pom, which Commandant Muller saved by clearing from his laager at the first surprise, leaving part of his force still sleeping. The British found that the Boers were taking advantage of the season for growing some crops.

Among the prisoners taken at Muller's laager were a number of trainwreckers, one of whom was captured with a Martini exploding mechanism and dynamite in his possession. The leader of this party was Jack Hinton. The prisoners taken state that Hinton regularly employed them in the work of attacking train convoys, and that they were remunerated according to the results. In the attack referred to Hinton himself escaped, but Ryan, his chief assistant, was caught. According to the military authorities his gang numbered about 50. Some of these are what are called renegade English, Irish and Scotch. The remainder are Americans, foreigners and Boers. The day before he was captured Major Wolmarans came into the British lines under a flag of truce to obtain lint for his wounded.

Col. Kekewich's capture of the laager of Commandant Van Albert was 75 unwounded and 4 wounded prisoners, including Commandant Klopper, occurred northeast of Rustenburg and was the result of clever night marches by the British columns, which lasted over two nights.

BEWILDERED BY GEN. BOTHA

British Military Men Are Astounded by the Boer General's Recent Exploit.

The Fighting Was Desperate on Both Sides---The Attack on Col. Benson's Column Declared To Be the Forerunner of a Vigorous Campaign by the Enemy.

London, Nov. 4.—In commenting on the recent severe loss by the British in South Africa, Mr. I. N. Ford, in a dispatch date London, says: Reflecting men who follow the course of military operations in South Africa are bewildered by General Botha's latest exploit. They had been convinced by Lord Kitchener's dispatches that Botha had narrowly escaped capture and was somewhere east of Ermelo with only three hundred burghers, and that a series of British columns had come into line and were in communication with one another for the purpose of surrounding and running him to earth. Suddenly they are confronted with a terrible casualty list of over 200 killed and wounded, including many officers, and with practical evidence that Botha, with 1,000 men, succeeded in surprising the rear guard of a British force, rushing the guns and making so determined an attack that a relieving column was necessary.

The fighting was desperate on both sides, and the Boers, after inflicting heavy losses, retired either with or without the captured guns. Details of this engagement tend to discredit the conclusion of a military journal that General Botha had ceased to be of much account for the present.

BOERS FIGHTING WITHOUT ARTILLERY.

This remarkable episode of the war in the Eastern Transvaal directs attention to the question of guns as an impediment for mobile columns. The Boers are apparently fighting without artillery, whereas every one of the 67 British columns is supplied with guns, and these invariably keep them back and restrict their operations. Military critics are beginning to blurt out the truth that guns are useless when the Boers spring out of the darkness or mist or veldt smoke, and that it is not worth while to trek about the country with them.

Keen sportsmen are asking why the guns are not as useless in operations against bands of guerillas as motor cars would be for a fox hunt across country. The last battle was the severest engagement of the present year and resembled Vlakfontein, where a rear guard was attacked under cover of a grass fire.

AN ANGRY FEELING.

The cheers that greeted the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York on Saturday, as they passed on their return from their world tour, through the crowded streets of London, were intermingled with the shrill cries of the newsboys shouting: "Terrible disaster in South Africa." Beneath the jubilation on the safe arrival of the heir-apparent, there existed a keen under-current of grief and anger over the reverse to Col. Benson's column. Of the thousands who lined the route from Victoria station to Marlborough House, many were personally concerned in the 236 British casualties incurred in this latest reverse.

A BOER PREDICTION.

A Brussels dispatch says: Boers here in close touch with South Africa declare that the recent disaster to Col. Benson's column was the forerunner of a vigorous campaign, the season being favorable for swift concentration of commandos and severe blows against isolated British columns.

Commandant Grobler, who, it is believed, participated in the Bethel fight, is considered a second Delarey.

BOTHA WAS THERE.

Pretoria, Nov. 3.—Further details have been received regarding the attack by the Boers, under Commandant-General Louis Botha, last week upon Col. Benson's column, near Brakenlaagte, Eastern Transvaal.

It appears that Gen. Botha, who had been joined by another big commando, aggregating 1,000 men, attacked Col. Benson's rear guard Oct. 31, on the march, an captured two guns, but was unable to retain them. Col. Benson fell mortally wounded early in the fight.

A DESPERATE STRUGGLE.

Major Wools Sampson took command, collected the convoy and took up a position for defense about 500 yards from the entrenchments prepared by the Boers. The captured guns were so situated that neither side could touch them. The Boers made desperate efforts to overwhelm the whole British force, charging repeatedly right up to the British lines, and being driven back each time with heavy loss.

BOER LOSS 300 TO 400.

The defense was stubbornly and successfully sustained throughout the whole of the following day and the succeeding night, until Col. Barter who had marched all night from Bushman's Kop, brought relief on the morning of Nov. 1. The Boers then retired. Their losses are estimated at between 300 and 400. Col. Benson did not long survive.

Not only did Gen. Botha direct the attack, as already cabled, but he personally shared in the fighting.

IN A RAINSTORM.

London, Nov. 4.—The special dispatches from South Africa reveal practically nothing further about the disaster to Col. Benson's column. It appears that the first attack was made in a blinding rainstorm. The heaviest casualties occurred while Major Wools Sampson, who is a Johannesburg reformer and an officer in one of the colonial levies, was gathering the convoy under the brow of a hill, a most difficult task. It is assumed in London that the two 15-pounders remained in the possession of the British, but the telegrams are not clear on this point.

PRO-BOERS IN LONDON.

A riotous scene occurred yesterday (Sunday) afternoon in Peckham, a suburb of London. A small gathering of the local branch of the Democratic League undertook to hold a meeting to protest against the war in South Africa. The crowd started in procession for the place of meeting, but before they arrived there they were hooted, buffeted and dispersed. A crowd estimated at 20,000 gathered to oppose them. There were many ugly rushes and the police were barely able to protect the struggling pro-Boers from the fury of the populace. After considerable fighting, during which a man was stabbed, the pro-Boers were removed under police protection. The victorious crowd then held a jingo meeting and sang "Rule Britannia."

CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR SOLDIERS

He was a town councilor. He leaves a widow and two sons and four daughters.

FRIGHTFULLY SCALDED.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 2.—Michael Donovan, a Canadian, aged 42 years, a fireman on the lake-ocean freighter Northeastern, which lay at Smith's coal dock, was probably fatally scalded last night. He was taken to the Marine Hospital this morning and the doctors there turned away at the sight of Donovan's fearful burns. Donovan was cleaning out the boiler flue, when it suddenly gave way under the steam pressure. His head, body, arms and legs are frightfully scalded, and little hopes are entertained of his recovery.

THE SMALLPOX

Vaccination Keep Quebec Physicians Busy—A Case of Smallpox in Russell County, Ont.

Quebec, Nov. 3.—Vaccine is in great demand, and the local druggists are kept busy selling it, while the physicians have a very difficult task to vaccinate the many who wish to render themselves as immune as possible from contracting the much-dreaded smallpox. Dr. Catellier was engaged throughout the day yesterday vaccinating the pupils of the Patronage school, while hundreds of children from other different schools underwent the operation at their respective homes. The disease, however, is not assuming any dangerous proportions, and it is fully believed will disappear in the course of a few weeks. The victims who are at present suffering are not by any means considered to be in danger, and many of them are not even confined to bed. Only two cases have been discovered within the past 48 hours, and as these are believed to be original ones, there is every reason to believe that the malady is practically on the decline.

Toronto, Nov. 4.—A case of smallpox has been discovered at Pendleton, in Russell county, according to a report received by the provincial medical health officer. A number of persons have been exposed to contagion in connection with it.

MR. MONK THE LEADER.

Montreal, Nov. 3.—The French Conservatives, feeling the necessity for reorganization, met on Saturday in the offices of their organ, Le Journal, and resurrected the old Club Cartier. Mr. F. D. Monk, M.P., referring to the number (some 200) present, said it was a sign that the Conservative party was not dead, and that the province would regain the influence it had lost since Sir Wilfrid Laurier was made premier. Mr. Monk was made honorary president, and a resolution was passed indorsing him as chief of the Conservative party in this province.

Some one was known to be burglarizing the store, the neighbors were aroused and a posse surrounded the place. Freer attempted to dash through the crowd and was shot in the head.

BIG BLAZE IN BUFFALO

Dold Packing House Burned—Fireman Fatally Hurt—Money Loss $500,000.

Buffalo, Nov. 4.—Buffalo's largest packing house, the Jacob Dold plant, bounded by William street, Howard street, Fillmore avenue and Detroit street, was almost completely destroyed by fire Saturday night. The blaze broke out at 10:40 o'clock, and spread with such rapidity that by the time the first detachment of engines arrived the flames were nearly beyond all control.

Capt. Martin Mahoney, of engine company No. 6, the same company to which Lieut. Henry Devitt, who was killed on Friday night at the Henry & Harvey mill fire, belonged, was perhaps fatally injured, and five men of his company hurt at Seneca street and Fillmore avenue. A trolley car struck the cart hose, on which the firemen were seated, overturning it with a tremendous crash.

The loss to buildings and stock is estimated at $500,000. Quick work by the police saved 125 horse and mules, which were frantically neighing and braying in the rear of the plant.

FROM THE MIDWAY

A Buffalo Musician Elopes With and Marries "Chiquita, the Doll Lady."

Buffalo, Nov. 4.—Anthony C. Woekner, 21 years old, a musician of this city, was married at 1 o'clock Saturday morning to Alice C. Espicidion, 23 years old, and a Mexican. The latter escaped from some vigilant watchers who were trying to prevent her marriage, and the entire exposition celebrated the event.

Miss Espicidion became known to the world this summer as "Chiquita, the Doll Lady." She was connected with one of the Midway shows, and for advertising purposes she was announced as much older than she said she was when she was married by Justice Rochford at the latter's home in Welker street.

Chiquita's manager suspected something was wrong Friday night, and slept in an adjoining room to that occupied by the midget. He was aroused shortly after midnight by a noise, and rushing into Chiquita's room discovered that she was gone. The local police were notified, and the exposition guard was turned out to prevent the elopement, but the lovers effected their escape and were married. Woekner is about 5 feet tall and is normally developed. His wife is a little over 2 feet in height.

FRANCE IS DECIDEDLY IN EARNEST!

Her Claims Against Turkey Must Be Fully Settled.

Talk of the Prince of Wales' Installation—King Edward Must Not Smoke—Attempt to Kill the Dowager Empress of China.

Paris, Nov. 4.—According to dispatches from Toulon all the officers and men of the garrison now on leave of absence have been ordered to rejoin their respective commands immediately. Three transports are preparing to receive troops. The cruisers Du Chayla and Cassard are ready to sail at a moment's notice, and the battleships Bouvet and Jaureguiberry will be ready Tuesday. The work of repairing the docks was continued throughout yesterday.

M. Delcasse, minister of foreign affairs, telegraphed M. Bapst, councilor of the French embassy in Constantinople, directing him to present today to Tewfik Pasha, Ottoman minister of foreign affairs, a note asking how the Turkish government proposes to pay the Lorando claim, and demanding the execution of the sultan's irade dealing with that matter. The note will also request satisfaction regarding the rights of France, which are confined in the various capitulations and treaties, and which in some cases have not been respected, and in others have been encroached upon by Turkey. Admiral Caillard is expected to reach his destination tomorrow.

ITALY'S FLEET.

Dispatches from Rome assert that the second divisions of the Italian Mediterranean squadron, which, as announced yesterday, left for Turkish waters with the supposed object of counterbalancing the French naval demonstration, will join the first division which has been cruising in the eastern Mediterranean for some time. It appears also that the Greek warships Osara, Hydra, Spetsaia and Eurotas are now at Symrna, where is also the Russian Mediterranean squadron. It is believed that the British squadron now at Piraeus, Greece, will be ordered to proceed to Beirout, Syria.

PRINCE OF WALES' INSTALLATION.

In view of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall's return from their colonial tour the discussion has been revived about the creation of the duke as Prince of Wales. Welshmen particularly are excited over it. It has been determined that it will be done at the time of the coronation, but now that it has been decided that the duke shall be present at the National Eisteddfod at Bangor in March it is the desire of the most enthusiastic in the principality that the proclamation and subsequent installation of the duke as Prince of Wales should take place at Carnarvon Castle.

Another suggestion is that the duke should during his Welsh tour, journey to St. David's, and be there installed on behalf of the King in the Royal Cathedral Hall, over which are placed the arms of King Edward VI.

It was in Carnarvon Castle that Edward I. made his baby son the first Prince of Wales, as a diplomatic answer to the Welsh demand for a prince that could not speak English.

WILL RAISE INCOME TAX.

A London special to a New York financial bureau asserts, on the authority of a high treasury official, that the British Government will ask for a grant of £40,000,000 in January. Of this amount £25,000,000 will be raised by the sale of new consols, and £15,000,000 by extra taxation.

It is stated that the income tax will probably be increased to 18 pence in the pound.

GLADSTONE'S SON MARRIED.

The marriage of the Right Hon. Herbert Gladstone, the youngest son of the famous prime minister, and Miss Paget, daughter of the Right Hon. Richard Horner Paget, was solemnized on Saturday.

EMPRESS OF CHINA ATTACKED.

Pekin, Nov. 4.—While the dowager empress was embarking to cross the river Saturday before entering Ho Nan, an assassin attempted to murder her and killed an attendant with a spear before he was cut down.

The court has left Ho Nan en route for Pekin

The recall of Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minister at Washington, was decided upon yesterday. He will be offered, it is announced, a subordinate post in the foreign office beneath his abilities, which it is believed he will decline.

Li Hung Chang's interpreter, Tseng, adopted son of the Marquis Tseng, is a prominent candidate for the Washington mission. He is 30 years of age and was educated in England.

Chang Te Yi has been appointed minister in London. He is 55 years of age and was formerly interpreter at the Chinese legations in London and Berlin. He is very progressive.

THE KING'S HEALTH.

The quotation from Le Soer's Berlin correspondent, which appeared in the European edition of the Herald on Thursday, referring to the king having for years past been suffering from an affection which is something like the disease that killed his sister, the Empress Frederick, though but a revival of an old story which has been denied often, has not tended to relieve uneasiness, but rather the reverse. People are rather too much inclined to dread the worst.

There is reason to believe the King was suffering within the last few weeks from an ulcerated throat, which those closely attached to him, and especially the women of his own family, feared much to be the forerunner of cancer. According to the pronouncements of the doctors, their fears are unfounded. But King Edward is prohibited from smoking and is forbidden the use of any alcoholics.

To look at the King, his healthy countenance would seem to give the lie to any report that he is suffering from ill-health, while The Lancet reports that rumors concerning the health of the King are without truth or foundation. He is in good health and has undergone no operation whatever.

BURGLARS USE AUTOMOBILES.

Paris, Nov. 4.—Poachers and burglars are both adopting the automobile as a highly useful implement of trade. It has been learned that acetylene lamps, suddenly lighted in a dark field, are very attractive to pheasants and other small game.

The ruse is effected by laying out nets and then turning on the light. After an hour's time the marauders collect their quarry and escape.

Robbers with an automobile drew up in front of a Neuilly residence last week during the proprietor's absence, and, after loading the vehicle with a hundredweight of loot, sped swiftly away.

MISS STONE.

Constantinople, Nov. 3.—Nothing is publicly known here beyond what has already been cabled to the press regarding the whereabouts and fate of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the abducted American missionary, or the progress of the negotiations for her ransom. In the absence of news there is considerable disquietude. The missionaries who are working for Miss Stone's release believe that she is still alive.

New York, Nov. 4.—The positive conviction that Miss Ellen M. Stone is dead is contained in a letter which has just been received in Boston from Ivan Radulog, a student who was with the American missionary when she was captured by brigands in Turkey, together with Mme. Tsilka, says the Boston correspondent of the press. According to this letter, the snow in the mountains into which Miss Stone and her companions were taken by their captors was three feet deep three weeks ago, at the time the letter was written, and by the middle of October the mountain passes are absolutely closed to travel.

It was the conviction among Miss Stone's friends in Samokov, Bulgaria, three weeks ago, that she would not possibly have survived the rigors of her captivity until that date.

EXPECT 125 MILES AN HOUR.

Berlin, Nov. 4.—The trials on the military electric railway from Berlin to Zossen are reported to be perfectly successful. The speed of the trains has been increased, until now 85 miles are comfortably covered in the hour. The cars run smoothly and the engineers express confidence that they will attain a speed of 125 miles an hour.

The wires have been tested to a capacity of 14,000 volts, but hitherto only 8,000 volts have been necessary. It is expected that a current of 10,000 volts will suffice to give a speed of 125 miles per hour.

LONDON HANDICAPPED BY FOG.

London, Nov. 4.—Fog has enveloped London and other parts of England for 36 hours with a pall so dense that most pursuits have been more or less dislocated and navigation at several ports is practically at a standstill. Trains and street traffic are in a state of hopeless confusion. There have been a number of collisions and minor accidents.

CORONATION MEDALS.

London, Nov. 4.—It is stated that German manufacturers are doing a thriving business by selling coronation medals in the English market. These medals are to be worn in every part of the British dominion next June. It is estimated that over 10,000,000 will be made in Birmingham during the next six months. India has her special design now being prepared. Canada from a die made in Birmingham, is to strike most of her own medals, but Australia, New Zealand, and other parts of the empire will depend chiefly upon the English—or German manufacturers. Something like 2,700,000 German-made medals were disposed of in Australia and New Zealand during the recent visit of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York. The Germans have been in the field for some months with specimens which are being offered at a price below what the Birmingham maker can afford to quote. Small watch-pendant medallions, bearing on the obverse the head of the King and Queen, and on the reverse the arms of England, can be purchased wholesale for about 4s. a gross, or 3s. 6d. below what the British dealer would ask.

ATTEMPT TO MURDER BY PHONE

Paris, Nov. 3.—The French criminal authorities are investigating an extraordinary attempt to murder the director of a factory at Mascara. He went to a telephone and picked up the receiver, when he was knocked senseless to the floor.

Some one had cut the wire and switched on a 10,000-volt current from an electric lighting plant. Fortunately for the director, the current partly destroyed the telephone apparatus, so that only a portion of the force was received, otherwise he would have been instantly killed.

The influence of Cleo de Merode's beauty extends even to darkest Africa. The beautiful danseuse has just received a visit from W. H. Parkes, an English explorer, who called to thank her for her very indirect means of saving his life.

He was captured by a band of savages who were about to kill him, when in his pocket was found a portrait of Cleo. One of the chiefs had been to the Paris exposition, where the grace and beauty of the danseuse so impressed him that he released the prisoner because he thought he was her friend.

NEW REMBRANDT FOUND.

A masterpiece of Rembrandt, "The Disciples at Emmaus," has been discovered at Compiegne under curious circumstances. M. de Groot, curator of the museum at Amsterdam, visited the chateau and noticed an old black canvas. Examination proved it to be the work in question. The picture is to be restored and will be placed in the Louvre.

CABLE NOTES.

Princess Elvira, of Bourbon, who was utterly cut off by her father, Don Carlos, when she married the painter, Folchi, is in Barcelona, very ill, and in great financial distress. Her husband is with her.

It is reported from Salonika, says the Vienna correspondent of the Daily Express, that brigands have carried off the mother of the chief of police of Seres (in Macedonia), about 50 miles northeast of Salonica, to the same spot where Miss Stone is detained.

No further cases of the bubonic plague in Liverpool were officially reported today. Mr. Boyle, United States consul here, assures intending passengers for the United States that they need not fear at present that they will be quarantined on reaching American ports.

The condition of Li Hung Chank, who has been seriously ill, shows improvement. His physicians diagnose the malady as ulceration of the stomach.

Princess Elizabeth, who was married Oct. 29th, to Prince Albert, heir presumptive to the throne of Belgium, on Sunday gave birth to a son, who will be christened Leopold. In the course of the afternoon the King visited Prince Albert to congratulate him upon the event, expressed his joy and promised to act as god-father.

FATAL RUNAWAY!

A Bruce Farmer the Victim—He Died From the Effects on Sunday.

Underwood, Ont., Nov. 4.—Robert Foster, a farmer who lived on the 7th concession of Bruce, was driving down a small hill on his way home from Paisley on Saturday night when his team became unmanageable and ran away. By some means the tongue dropped out of the neckyoke, and, catching in the road, tilted the wagon up, throwing Mr. Foster out. Mr. Foster was found on the road some time afterward unconscious, and on examination it was found that his spine was broken. He died on Sunday morning. Mr. Foster was unmarried.

Mr. J. S. Cartwright, referee, has given judgment in the nine years' pending dispute of the city of Toronto and the C. P. R. in the matter of the alternative site on the Esplanade. His decision favors the city, and represents a sum which, if capitalized, would mean about $600,000.

He slipped, and the roller caught his hand, and his arm was drawn in and horribly mangled. The machine was reversed and the man removed from his unfortunate position. The Comber doctors were summoned, and the arm was amputated near the shoulder.

RULES FOR STEERAGE

Steward an Autocrat "'Tween Decks," and Thrifty is Well.

There are probably few who realize the power of the steerage steward on an ocean liner. It is almost impossible for one who has not made an ocean trip as a third-class passenger to know the full scope of this officer's duties, and what opportunities he has of exercising almost absolute dominion over the crowds in the steerage. A college graduate who recently went to Europe in the steerage because of a slender purse, and also to study the class of people who travel "between the decks," told a reporter of his experiences with the steerage steward, as follows:

"More than an hour before the ship started from her pier in North River the steerage passengers were ordered down to their compartments. There was a grand rush for bunks. Each tried to secure one near a porthole, and as there were 24 bunks in a sleeping-room, ventilated by only one porthole, it was a lively fight. The bunks were stretched on four shelves, six bunks to a shelf, and four shelves to a room. I was behind time in fighting for a bed, and consequently found myself with a bunk on the under row, more than ten feet from the porthole. The steerage steward saw my disappointment, and said:

"'You're too slow, but if you want a better bunk I might get you one.'

"The word 'might' was hint enough, and accordingly I slipped a quarter into his hand. The steward then promptly evicted a huge Finlander who had preempted a porthole bunk, with the words, 'Get out; this is taken.' He then motioned me to take possession, which I did.

"On the voyage my appetite frequently revolted against the diurnal supply of oatmeal and black coffee which was called breakfast. One day I noticed that on coming into the mess room an hour after the 'meal' there were several of the passengers eating steak and eggs. I noticed that the steward had taken from each a coin in return. After that I had steak every morning, for which I paid 25 cents or more each time. The steward said he paid half of it to the cook. When ready to land at the European port the steward came to me and said:

"'Are you going back on this boat?'

"'Don't know,' I said; 'but why do you ask?'

"'Because if you are,' was the answer, 'it won't cost you more than $5. I'll see that you get aboard for that money, and it'll be all right.'

"He then told me that if I would come aboard the ship the night before she sailed, he would stow me away and keep me out of sight until after the ship was well out to sea. He would put me under cover when the ship was near port, and let me out the day after the ship landed, as one of his friends who had come aboard to see him. He said that he looked out for half a dozen men like than on each voyage, and that most of the passengers with whom I had steak for breakfast were 'smugglers,' as he called them. It is said that by such means many a sharp-witted steerage steward has retired from his place on a competency after ten years of service.—New York Tribune.

Discharged Prisoners and The Press.

[Toronto Globe.]

Hon. David Mills, Minister of Justice, was in Kingston last week for the purpose of lecturing on constitutional law before the students of Queen's University. In conversation with a correspondent he discussed some phases of journalism in a friendly but critical strain.

Not long ago a prisoner sentenced to a life imprisonment was released from the Kingston Penitentiary owing to long years of good behavior and the intercession and petitions of influential friends. The newspapers published the fact, together with a "write-up" of the liberated man and a full history of his crime. To this Mr. Mills is strongly opposed, and he willingly gave his reasons.

"I am satisfied with the 'ticket-of-leave' system," he replied in answer to a question, "but I am not satisfied with the press. I noticed that the papers published the fact of a certain man's release. This gives him no chance at all to start life afresh. It would be perfectly justifiable to have legislation against such journalism. Let me give you an instance of the great harm it does:

"After his discharge, one convict some years ago obtained employment under another name. He worked faithfully for one and a half years. He was attentive to his duties and exemplary in his conduct. Then one day a policeman, who knew the man, went to his employer and asked him if he knew who his employe was. The name was given. The policeman laughed, and assured the employer that he had a 'jail bird' working for him. The man was at once dismissed. He was watched by the police, who haunted him wherever he went. For weeks he tried his best to obtain honest employment, but could not get it. Then he grew discouraged, and went back to the old gang. It was not long before he was in the toils again. He had no opportunity to begin life over again. The Americans did right when they adopted the rule regarding the assassin of President McKinley, that he was to be given as little notoriety as possible."

Thus, as Mr. Mills pointed out, a newspaper may thoughtlessly do a great deal to prevent a liberated prisoner from making a fresh and better start in life. The publication of the news of his release is a warning to people to watch out for him and discourage him on every occasion. We think the press will be found quite willing to accept Mr. Mills' criticism good-naturedly, with this modification: that the matter to which he refers is usually printed as a piece of interesting news and without any desire to injure the discharged prisoner. Most of them, too, would, we think, cheerfully forgoe the advantage of printing a good item for the sake of helping a fellow-mortal who has fallen by the way to get on his feet again.

The anniversary services of the Ilderton Presbyterian Church were held yesterday. Rev. Dr. McCrae, of Westminster Church, conducted the services. Ventilation.

The Resilia insole expands from outsole when foot is lifted.

It thus draws in fresh air, through a tiny valve in the heel, which locks it in.

When insole is borne upon, the air contained in the cross channels is then forced up around the stocking, through a row of perforations, under the hollow of the foot.

The valve works one way only.

It thus locks the air in, when foot is lifted, compelling it to circulate up around the stocking, and out at the boot top.

LIGHTS GONE OUT FOREVER!

Buglers Sound "Taps" From Heights of the Rainbow City's Electric Tower,

And the Beautiful Pan-American Exposition Becomes a Thing of the Past---Sham Battle Between Geronimo's Braves and Uncle Sam's Bluecoats---A Noisy Night on the Midway---Features of Closing Hours.

Buffalo, Nov. 4.—The Pan-American Exposition ended at 12 o'clock Saturday night. At midnight President John G. Milburn pressed an electric button and the lights in the famous electric tower grew dim for the last time. Slowly, one by one, the light on post and pinnacle and tower faded away. A corps of buglers standing in the tower sounded "taps," and one of the greatest glories of the exposition, the electrical illumination, passed away, and the exposition was ended.

PETTY THIEVING.

A large crowd attended the exposition Saturday. The exhibit buildings were jammed during the afternoon, and there was considerable petty thieving of exhibits by souvenir fiends. The fruit and wine exhibits in the horticultural building suffered the greatest loss from the depredations of the crowd, and it finally became necessary to turn the people out of the building and lock the doors.

THE SHAM BATTLE.

One of the greatest spectacles of the fair was a sham battle between several hundred Indians, representing about all of the famous tribes of this country, and a detachment of United States soldiers, in the world-renowned Pan-American Stadium. On both sides of the firing line were men who have helped to make American history. On the Indian side were no end of celebrated chiefs, who have for more than forty years participated in some of the greatest real attacks that the red men have made in that time upon United States troops, or that the troops have made upon them. On the other side were a couple of hundred soldiers, members of the 14th Regiment, United States regulars, so conspicuous for its bravery in the Philippines and in the later invasion of China.

There was old Geronimo, the Apache chief, who has headed many a hostile Indian band and who is today a United States prisoner of war; a man whose ferocity is best described by that utterance of Lieut.-Gen. Nelson A. Miles: "He is the tiger of the human race." Then there was Chief Crazy Snake of the Creeks, who as late as February of the present year was on the warpath, terrorizing the white population of the Indian Territory, and causing trouble and toil. And there was Crazy Snake playing at war with government troopers, to the amazement of 20,000 palefaces. And old Chief Flat Iron, and Chief Last Horse, who was in at the massacre of Gen. Custer; and Chiefs Red Cloud, Lone Bear, Little Wound, American Horse, Hollow Horn, Spotted Wheel and Shot-in-the-Eye, the Sioux Chief, who was in the Custer fight, and who says that Custer shot himself. All of these big chiefs were in the sham battle Saturday, and they shot their blank cartridges at the boys in blue with well-directed aim.

NO GUN FOR GERONIMO.

But Chief Geronimo was without a gun in Saturday's sham battle. The bad old Sioux couldn't be trusted even with blank cartridges, for it was feared that were they supplied to him, along with a gun, that he would discharge them in the faces of the soldiers and thus do injury that he would gleat over, but which would be unappreciated by Uncle Sam's boys. Astride an Indian pony, the old chief had to content himself with a stick as a weapon, and with this he could do no damage.

It was about 3 o'clock when the Indians marched into the Stadium after making a parade of the grounds. They were in their finest feathers, buckskins and beads, and never before were their red faces so bespattered with paint—every color of the rainbow had been requisitioned to do duty on this august occasion. White ponies were streaked and polka dotted with blue; black ponies were daubed all over with white; bay ponies were decorated with black, and such a dazzling, fantastic scene as these bucks and squaws and little papooses presented was a sight worthy of Farewell Day.

SPECTACULAR PROCESSION.

Frederic T. Cummins, general manager of the Indian Congress, astride a beautiful bay horse, headed the procession. Right behind him, on a fiery steed, rode Wenona, the beautiful Sioux Indian girl, daughter of Chief Crazy Horse. She is the celebrated rifle shot whose performances at the Indian Congress have astounded thousands. Then followed all the Indians from the Midway Congress, the babies, Lillian Russell, Mark Hanna and Grover Cleveland, bringing up the rear; Little Lillian astride an Indian pony waving her tiny little hand to the throng, rode beside another pony, with Grover being dragged along behind on an Indian pole. It was a splendid procession and was mightily applauded.

When the Indians had formed at rest at the farthest end of the Stadium, the United States troops marched in to the strains of the 74th Regiment Band, and were given an ovation. A few minutes later and the sham battle was on.

THE SHAM BATTLE.

The Indians on foot advanced upon the United States troops and surprised them. The soldiers charged on the Indians and were rapidly driving them back when a horde of braves on Indian ponies swooped down upon them and they were routed. As in actual warfare men fell on both sides and a battle was depicted in all its mightiness and terror.

But troops came to the relief of the men on the firing line and their advent was the signal for the Indians to take to their heels or put heels to their ponies and get back as hurriedly as possible to the shelter of tall timbers. And what a mighty cheer went up as the Indians were routed. Men and women forgot that they were looking at a sham battle. They fancied themselves beholding a scene of actual carnage, and were thrilled through and through when the reinforcements arrived that saved the day for the boys in blue and turned a victory out of what seemed imminent defeat.

INDIAN'S DEATH SONG.

Now the field was cleared of all save the soldier and the Indian "dead," and then the Red Men and the squaws marched to the very center, where they held ceremonies for the dead in which there was much wailing by the squaws and much grunting by the bucks and the battle and its attendant ceremonies were at an end.

AN ACTUAL DEATH.

Just as the sham battle came to a close, considerable excitement was created, when an aged man, ashen pale, and gasping, fell from his seat. The ambulance from the emergency hospital was quickly sent for and the stricken man hurried to the hospital, where he expired just as the doctors were lifting him from the litter. Heart disease was the cause of death. It was learned that his name was Jas. Brown, 60 years old, of Syracuse, and a retired saddlery and coach hardware dealer.

A HANDSOME GIFT.

J. N. Adam presented the city of Buffalo with the handsome organ in the Temple of Music at the Pan-American Exposition. The fine instrument will be placed in Convention Hall, and remain there until a more suitable place can be found for it.

Mayor Diehl was interrupted by calls for Mr. Adam, and someone seeing the latter in the audience, motioned to him to come forward. With evident modesty he complied, and after reaching the platform, said:

"Buffalo has done a great deal for me, and I consider this gift but a slight token of my gratitude. I hope this little gift will be placed where it can give the greatest happiness to the largest number of my fellow-citizens."

As Mr. Adam took his seat the organ pealed forth the familiar strains of "Auld Lang Syne." This was followed by "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

LAST HOURS IN MIDWAY.

There was a grand finish of the season in the Indian Congress. Manager Cummins gave the Indians a beef to roast, and the white employes and board of directors a banquet.

In the south end of the inclosure were the weird cries of the dancing Indians and the red light of the fire roasting the bullock, while under roof in the north end sat 60 guests eating a bill of fare that might grace many a more pretentious caterer than the Indian Congress restaurateur. One party enjoyed itself as much as the other.

Eagle Eye made a speech in which he related the enjoyment all connected with the congress had had in being associated with Mr. Cummins and presented him with a $350 stud.

RIOT ON THE MIDWAY.

There was a veritable riot at a restaurant on the Midway in the evening. The disorder started from a quarrel between an intoxicated man and a waiter. The crowd took the part of the stranger, and wrecked the place, smashing chairs, tables and windows. A stream of water from a fire hose finally put the mob to route.

THE ATTENDANCE.

The total number of admissions for the six months was close to 8,000,000. An average of 2,000,000 a month had been figured on by the exposition officials. The great snowstorm of last April was a severe blow to the exposition. An immense amount of work was undone and work on the grounds was delayed for a week. The shooting of President McKinley was another blow to the Pan-American. The attendance had been increasing steadily up to the date of the assassination. The gates were closed for two days, and when they reopened there was a drop of 12 per cent in the attendance and no improvement followed.

FINANCIAL LOSSES.

The exposition has not been a financial success, but it is believed the benefits derived from it will be of great value to the commercial interests of the country. The primary object of the exposition was to advance the friendly relations and commercial intercourse between the United States and the other countries of the two Americas. In this respect it has been a decided success.

The financial loss will be in the neighborhood of $3,000,000. The statement to be issued by the officers of the exposition setting forth the expenditures and receipts will be made public some time this month. The loss will fall upon the holders of the common stock, and holders of the second mortgage bonds and the contractors who erected the buildings. Two hundred and ten thousand shares of common stock were sold at $10 a share. The stock was subscribed for by the citizens of Buffalo and the Niagara frontier in small lots of from one share to one hundred, so that the loss will not be severely felt by anyone. The first mortgage bonds amounting to $2,500,000, will be paid in full.

WONDERFUL TYPEWRITER SPEED TEST.

A feature of farewell day of especial interest to the stenographers, was an exhibition of speed typewriting given in the New York State building, under the auspices of the Buffalo Typewriter Exchange, by C. H. McGurrin, of Kalamazoo, Mich. Mr. McGurrin holds the world's record for rapid typewriting, and his exhibitions are wonderful illustrations of the possibilities of the typewriter, in the hands of an expert operator.

On test work Mr. McGurrin has written, in a minute, 212 words and, on a time test of three consecutive hours, has written from dictation on unfamiliar matter, an average of 112 words per minute. While none of these records were equaled last evening, Mr. McGurrin wrote on test sentences at the rate of 159 words per minute, and on unfamiliar dictated matter he wrote at the rate of 123 words per minute Under the circumstances this was certainly very fast writing, as the machine was a perfectly new one on which Mr. McGurrin had not previously written, and he was not thoroughly familiar with its action.

BUSINESS AT THE FALLS ABOUT ENDED.

Saturday was the day many residents of Niagara Falls looked forward to with regret, for they knew it marked the closing of the Exposition, which has served to draw unusual crowds to Niagara at an unusual time of year. This week the city will retire into winter quarters. Already the International Hotel has closed and the Cataract House will soon follow. The plum season with the trolley roads, as well as of the souvenir stands, has ended, and the management will renew pleasant relations with the aldermen and residents.

THE SHOW PEOPLE.

While there are very few that take any stock in the announcement that Carlisle D. Graham will go over the American falls in his barrel, the feat of Mrs. Taylor has taught the lesson that it is hard to tell what people will attempt. As to Martha Wagenfluhrer, those who know her rapids' trip, realize that if she is in proper condition she would just as leave go over the American fall as through the rapids. It is surprising how dead Mrs. Taylor has rendered all previous Niagara heroes and heroines. She killed off a big batch at her very first shot, and it was great game for her. Graham, Nissen, Percy, Kendall, Sadie Allen and Martha Wagenfluhrer will never forget when they were Taylorized.

One of the conditions of the proposed trip of Carlisle D. Graham over the American falls is that somebody shall put up $2,500 before Graham gets into the barrel and makes the trip. In the clothes of people who have gone over the American falls far less than this amount has usually been found, and in many cases the prevailing opinion has been that they went because they didn't have it. In this respect Graham intends to be different, for if he doesn't see the money in sight he won't go. Everybody here praises Graham, feeling confident that he will continue one of the landmarks of Niagara.

The total admissions to the Pan-American on Saturday were 124,399, and for six months 8,295,073.

PLACED ON TRIAL FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Christian Scientist Held Responsible for the Death of His Son.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—At the assize court this morning James H. Lewis, a Christian Scientist, was put on trial on a charge of manslaughter. The 6-year-old son of Lewis died last August of diphtheria, no doctor having been called, and the child being treated by Christian Science methods for mumps. The court room was filled with Christian Scientists. The line of defense indicated by the counsel for the defense, Mr. W. W. Vickers, is that Lewis believed that he was not neglecting the patient, and that if he further believed that it would be wrong to call in a doctor no culpability would attach to him. The mother of the child gave evidence as to the facts of death, and Dr. J. H. Corveth swore as to the issue by him of the death certificate in which diphtheria was named as the cause.

The cross-examination turned to some extent upon the certainty of the doctor's diagnosis and to a considerable degree upon the extent upon which modern medical science can be regarded as possessing a final knowledge upon facts of disease. Dr. Sheard, medical health officer of Toronto, swore that the child's chance of recovery would have been increased had medical attendance been summoned, and its life possibly would have been saved. The case was unfinished when court adjourned.

UNITED STATES CROP REPORTS.

Washington, Nov. 2. — The weather bureau has issued a crop bulletin as follows. The month has been very mild and for the most part dryer than usual, the weather conditions being generally favorable for farming operations. Rain is very generally needed, however, drought being very severe in Western Texas and in the Upper Ohio Valley. Very little damage by frost has occurred. The conditions have been very favorable for gathering corn and husking has made favorable progress. In Nebraska, Kansas and Iowa fall grain has made vigorous growth, but needs rain over limited areas in the two last named states. In Missouri, Illinois, Ohio and Kentucky germination and growth of fall-sown grains have been checked by the absence of moisture. In Indiana and Michigan the condition of the crop is very promising. Practically the whole month has been favorable for cotton picking and except over limited areas the crop is now gathered.

RADWAY'S PILLS

Always Reliable Purely Vegetable.

Perfectly tasteless, elegantly coated, purge, regulate, purify, cleanse and strengthen. RADWAY'S PILLS for the cure of disorders of the Stomach, Bowels, Kidneys, Bladder, Nervous Diseases, Dizziness, Vertigo, Costiveness, Piles.

Sick Headache, Female Complaints, Biliousness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Constipation and All Disorders of the Liver.

Dr. Radway & Co.—As an introduction I must make the following remarks: Had each one of the lawmakers of our country the virtues and powers of your pills, America would soon become a paradise. That your pills would conquer the obstinacy of my complaint is more than wonderful. The movement of my bowels is as regular as the works of a good watch. I began with four pills and decreased to two, and for a time took one two hours before dinner, and have a free movement of the bowels every morning. It is seven weeks since I have taken any of your pills, but still have regular movement every morning.

Kind gentlemen, I wish further to tell you: A poor washerwoman that suffered from a tumor and would have paid $150 for an operation. I disquaded her from doing so. Owing to her tumor she was obliged to stay in bed, but now she has gone to Pennsylvania, cured through taking your Pills and Resolvent, as you direct in your treatise on tumor. Respectfully, A. WITMER, 542 East 134th street, New York.

Messrs. Dr. Radway & Co., New York: Gentlemen,—Please send me by return mail one box of your pills, for which you will find 25 cents inclosed. Having had a box before, I would not be without them. They are something every family should have. Yours truly, T. A. PETERS,

Lancaster, Pa.

ONE TO THREE OF RADWAY'S PILLS, once in twenty-four hours, will secure regular evacuations from the bowels. Persons who for twenty years have not enjoyed a natural stool, and have been compelled to use injections, have been cured by a few doses of Radway's Pills.

True comfort for the aged and others afflicted with Costiveness and Paralysis of the Bowels.

Persons advanced in life often suffer from indigestion and from paralysis or inability to evacuate from the bowels, likewise from urinary difficulties. We have the evidence of a large number of aged persons from 60 to 80 years of age who had daily been compelled to resort to injections to empty the bowels, have been cured by the use of Radway's Pills. Two or three pills every night in all cases insure a natural evacuation from the bowels and the regular flow of urine. In cases where there is irritation of the bladder, Radway's Resolvent should be used with the Pills. If these organs are kept regular, life may be extended to a much longer period. By keeping the Liver, Stomach, Bowels and Kidneys in a healthy condition the blood will continue pure and dissolution checked. If Radway's Pills and Resolvent are used by the aged, life will be prolonged to the full measure of time. Another great end is secured by nourishing the body with these remedies —the faculties will remain in a healthy condition. A weak, feeble and decaying body enfeebles the intellect and clouds the brain.

Price 25c Per Box. Sold By Druggists or Sent By Mail.

"SCRAP IRON" VALUATION UPHELD.

Judges McDougall, McCrimmon and Gibbon this morning, in county court, at Toronto, gave judgment that the "scrap iron assessment" of street railways, telephone and electric light companies still holds good, despite the amendment of the assessment act passed at last session of the Ontario Legislature, permitting the whole of the assessment to be made in one ward of a town or city. This amendment, the judges held, does not affect the basis of valuation. They also held that rolling stock is realty, not personalty, and is therefore assessable of course as "scrap iron."

MANY ILLITERATES

The United States Has 2,326,295 Who Are of Voting Age.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The census report on school, militia and voting ages for all states and territories shows the following summary for the country as a whole: Persons of school age, 5 to 20 years, 26,110,788, of whom 24,897,130 are native born, 22,490,211 are white, and 13,086,160 are males; males of militia age, 16,360,363, of whom 13,132,289 are native born and 14,495,296 are white; and males of voting age, 21,329,819, of whom 16,227,285 are native born and 19,036,143 are white.

Of the total number of males 21 years of age and over, 2,326,295 are illiterate. Of the 16,227,285 native males 21 years old and over 1,706,293 are illiterate, and of the 5,102,534 foreign born 620,002 are illiterate.

JOTTINGS FROM NEAR-BY PLACES

Cowal, Nov. 4.—The Presbyterians of Chalmers Church, Dunwich, are building a new church, which, when completed, will be one of the handsomest edifices of the kind in the suburban districts of Ontario. It is being built of brick and stone in the latest style. The auditorium and Sunday school room are on the same floor, separated by a roller partition. The seating capacity of the structure is about 400. Mr. N. R. Darrah, of St. Thomas, is the architect, and the building committee are highly pleased with his services. The church, when completed, will cost about $4,000. It will be dedicated about the middle of January, 1902. The congregation was separated from Duff's Church, Largie, a little over a year ago, was united with McBride's Church, Southwold, and the united congregations make one of the best charges within bounds of the London Presbytery. The Rev. S. Lawrence, formerly of Vanneck, London township, is the pastor, and one is not long among his people until he finds that he is immensely popular in both congregations. They pay him a stipend of $1,000, with four weeks' vacation. They have recently, by a very large majority, decided to introduce the "kist o' whistles" to supplement the service of praise.

Neal McFayden, who sustained a concussion from a fall recently, is hovering between life and death.

Charles Shaw, of Largie, is erecting a beautiful residence. Dowswell & Smith, of Dutton, have the contract.

R. J. Hine, of Campbellton, breeder of Oxford Down sheep, and director of West Elgin Agricultural Association, has an exceptionally fine orchard, comprising seventeen acres, the products of which sold for $500. Mr Hine, whose estate consists of an acreage of 110 acres, carries on farming on scientific principles.

THE GREAT LUNG HEALER is found in that excellent medicine sold as Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It soothes and diminishes the sensibility of the membranes of the throat and air passages, and is a sovereign remedy for all coughs, colds, hoarseness, pain or soreness in the chest, bronchitis, etc. It has cured many when supposed to be far advanced in consumption.

Canadian Archives.

The supplement to the Canadian Archivist's report, which has just been issued, relates to the work of Mr. Edward Richard, in Paris, France. The contents of the volume, containing about 550 pages, cover a little over one and a half year's work, cataloguing and otherwise arranging documents. The importance of preserving such documentary material is apt to be underestimated. Mr. Richard states that these papers are now located in the attic story of the Louvre, and are anything but safe from the danger of fire. The archives under consideration relate to the early history of Canada, particularly those years which witnessed her birth and infancy and progress under the French regime. These records present in the minutest detail the vicissitudes Canada has undergone, from the early struggles with the Indians to her final passing into the hands of the British. Taking a large view of the whole situation, the utmost care should be exercised in the preservation of such evidence, that it may be easily available to the future historian. It is felt by all true Canadians that Canada our foundations deep, and, we hope, has a glorious future. We have laid securely. Our political institutions are the heritage of a race that has attained its present position free from the stain of bloody revolution. Hope should be our guiding star, and such hope should emphasize to us the importance of our early history. "Because we are still in our infancy," writes Mr. Richard, "because these events are so near us, we do not perhaps fully realize all the interest they are calculated to awaken hereafter." The primitive history of the Greeks and Romans is very remote from us, yet the ever-increasing lapse in time does not diminish the interest taken in the story of these illustrious peoples. Distance rather lends enchantment to our view, making their history a subject of increasing moment. The cloud, that too often envelops the early history of a nation, replacing it by a mere legend, is the result of war, pillage and fire. The Archives now in the possession of the French Government possess an interest not only to Canada, but to the whole North American continent. The author of the report has gone carefully over a large number of these early records, and so catalogued them as to render them accessible to the historical or other writer who may be interested.

How to End the War.

"Not by threats against the enemy, or by humiliation of ourselves, but only by capturing the commandos, can this war be ended." This is the statement made by the Daily Chronicle, a leading English journal, and it is interesting to note what called it forth, viz., the controversy about a day of humiliation. "More earnestly than ever," writes the Archbishop of York, "I hold fast to the belief that the most urgent need of the nation at the present time is a national humiliation." "It may be that our Heavenly Father is only waiting to be gracious." Against this, Canon Hensley Henson boldly protests, saying that it implies notions about the moral government of the universe which are properly obsolete. The journal sides with the Canon against the Bishop, and while disclaiming any carelessness as to morality and worship, says: "Not only in hours of national crisis but at all times and seasons, do national faults stand in need of correction. It is the function of the churches to act as constant witnesses to these things, to serve as perpetual ministers to the spiritual side of life. This is the sphere of public prayer and public worship. But the Archbishop's specific goes far beyond this. It suggests, first, the repentance for acknowledged faults may be shown and proved by religious exercises; whereas the only worthy token thereof is reformation. It suggests, secondly, the doctrine of special Providence, and the desirability of prayers addressed to a particular end." The Archbishop thinks we might have fared better if we had followed the Boers' example in the matter of days of thanksgiving and humiliation; whereupon the journalist says: "This may lead some to ask if it is a praying and self-humiliating contest with the Boers in which we are to indulge."

This opens out a large question. It is open to anyone to say, if the war is wicked, then drop it, but if you are only humiliated at your slow success, then make yourselves more efficient in that terrible business. A day of humiliation before a righteous God might often be appropriate, if we were serious, sober-minded, and pretty much of one mind; but a religious service simply for the sake of beating the Boers may turn out to be a shallow, helpless thing. We may need prayer very much at this crisis, because we need to conquer ourselves, and not merely the Boer. The inefficiency displayed reveals the presence of selfish interests and of social shams that will not bear the strain of reality.

Physician, Heal Thyself.

Lord Rosebery recently gave a stimulating and suggestive speech at Birmingham. The Daily Chronicle, after criticising an archbishop, turns to put Lord Rosebery straight. It says "he was in a corrective mood like the archbishop, when he penned the pastoral referred to above; but his specific was different. He thinks that something ails the nation, but he does not believe in trusting too much in Providence. Providence, he says, helps those who help themselves. We are too self-complacent. We want not so much humiliation as energy. Can we not manage, asks Lord Rosebery, to catch in a mitigated form the American complaint of restless activity." Speaking of the people, Lord Rosebery says: "When they wanted a thing they should want it with all their might." On this the journalistic critic remarks: "Excellent precept, but practice is better." If a strange apathy has stolen over the British electorate, "may not the reason be because one party is heavy with the sleep of unchecked power, and another needs the stimulus of a leader who shall show himself to be passionately determined to make what he knows to be the right prevail, and who, when he wants a thing, shall want it with all his might." There is much justice in this. The people have been as good as their leaders, and, indeed, better. The past two years have not proved that the British people are feeble and useless, but they have shown lack of foresight, energy and skill on the part of those that hold responsible positions. When the leaders themselves feel the burden of responsibility more keenly, and set themselves to work with greater energy, they will find support in the people, and when education is freer and more effective, and the positions filled according to merit, there will again be an advance all along the line.

The War Spirit.

The Nation (New York), while rejoicing that the present year sees a considerable reduction in the army estimates, especially when these are contrasted with the demands of the navy, yet feels constrained to say: "When one considers the enormous sum required for pensions, the total tribute which the United States will probably pay to the spirit of war during the next year must seem appalling, even to those familiar with the burdens of European militarism." Militarism anywhere is bad enough, but if it comes to invade this northern half of the continent it will be an awkward thing for us. There is one thing very certain, if any nation is going to cherish the military spirit, it must be prepared to pay, and the paying process is heavier than before. It is "pay, pay, pay," with a vengeance. The nations of Europe are all groaning under this burden, but there does not seem to be any immediate prospect of a sensible plan for bringing this to an end. Ships are built for speed at great expense, at the expense even of seaworthiness, and they break their backs in a storm. This means loss of life and money, and it is everywhere the same. Even where there is no corruption, the constant experiments are a source of extravagance. In fact, it is one of the most discouraging things, and a reproach to our Christian civilization that at the beginning of the twentieth century so much strength should be spent in this fashion. Another lesson is that people may misuse military power; they may be carried away by the fever of jingoism, therefore, while we have confidence in the good sense of the people of the United States as a whole, we think that an immense increase of their regular military power may become a danger and a temptation to themselves and their neighbors. The republic is so situated that it is not compelled to pile up immense armaments, and to follow the example of European nations in this particular.

Serious State of Toronto Society.

[Sensational Editorial in The Westminster, Toronto.]

The social season in our cities and towns will soon be in full swing. As the evenings begin to lengthen the impulse grows stronger in the direction of social entertainment and pleasure. In itself that impulse is good, and, if rightly guided, may lead to real happiness, both for those who give and those who take. As every opportunity is set about with danger, and as every impulse to do good may be so misdirected that evil shall result, it is not untimely to call a halt for a little, that a second thought may be given to the opportunities and the perils which meet us as we stand at the edge of another social season.

Let it be granted that the cultivation of the social side of our nature is a important and necessary in its way as the cultivation of the intellectual or spiritual. Let it be granted, too, that relaxation is increasingly necessary as the strain on life becomes increasingly heavy, but what needs to be said to a very large number of people is that relaxation is in order only as a renewal of strength; that reaction must create the waste of life, not waste life still more; that pleasure is not an end in life, but only a means to an end; that they alone use pleasure wisely who "drink for health and not for drunkenness."

As the conditions of life in Canada improve, yielding a little more than the bare necessities, the temptation to over-indulge in the mere luxuries is stronger than the resisting power of many people will sustain. Those whose experience gives a right to speak, and whose thoughtfulness gives weight to their words, say quite frankly that city life in Canada is becoming more and more frivolous, and that of late there has been a tendency to the positively dangerous. Dancing and card parties bulk enormously in the thought of thousands of young men and women, and the society columns of the newspapers are filled with gossip about the most frivolous functions. And in Toronto, for instance, dancing and cards are becoming associated with wine-drinking and gambling. It is no secret that wines and liquors are more largely used, both at public functions and at private parties, than they were ten years ago, and that zest is given to afternoon and evening card parties by the stakes which are risked in the playing. The gambling habit has taken strong hold upon not a few women in high society. They had become jaded by the empty round of social vanity and to play first for prizes, then for wine, then for money provided an escape from life's ennui. And now their tell-tale eyes betray the gambling fever in their blood. Some Toronto women are said to be inveterate gamblers.

We do not hope to recall by any word now spoken those who have gone to such extremes, but appeal may be made, and not in vain, to the much larger class whose chief desire is to be hospitable, but whose great temptation is to thoughtless excess. Surely we are not so hopelessly superficial that literature and music and intellectual conversation can find no place in our social life. It is quite true that cards and dancing make the least tax upon the ingenuity of a hostess; but are our society women incapable of the art of real social entertainment or unwilling to exercise it? Surely it is worth some one's while to set the example, which many would gladly follow. Many good women have begun to see the drift of social life, and would follow any leader into a better order of things. A leader is needed, a real society leader, with sane ideas, strong convictions, and a high purpose.

There is needed, too, every possible influence of the pulpit, the school, and the home, in order that the minds of our young people may be lifted a little above merely sensuous pleasures. Cannot a new interest be awakened in books and authors, in music and art, in invention and travel, and will not our university and college people, and our musical and art specialists, hold themselves ready for any call which well-meaning society leaders may make in their attempts to relieve the present distress? Mere denunciation is utterly worthless. A wholesome substitute must be provided; and that can be done if the right spirit prevails. The appalling atrophy of all the higher faculties is the fell result of social life as thousands live it in our cities nowadays. A few touches of the intellectual and esthetic and spiritual would do something to save some who otherwise will be starved to spiritual death before the social season is over. Is it not worth your while doing your share?

Editorial Book Table.

The November number of Scribner's Magazine contains the opening chapters of Mr. F. Hopkinson Smith's longest and most important story, "The Fortunes of Oliver Horn." In dealing with the career of a young artist who comes to New York from the south to seek fame the author has chosen a sympathetic hero and drawn upon his own long and intimate association with the artistic and literary development of the city. He gives a most attractive impression of the artistic atmosphere in which the chief characters move. The whole story is characterized by a sense of refined humor, and there are many of the author's well-known passages of pathos and wholesome human sentiment that have contributed so much to the wide popularity of his previous works. Each installment will contain an illustration by Walter Appleton Clark.

In the concluding paper on "Russia of Today," Mr. Henry Norman, who is acknowledged to be one of the most astute observers of contemporary politics, deals with those large questions of national policy and diplomacy that bear so intimately on the future peace of the world. His comments upon the supposed friendship that has existed so long between Russia and the United States, and his inferences regarding the outcome of the contest over the Indian border between Russia and Great Britain will no doubt excite a good deal of discussion. The whole question of Russia's present place in relation to other world powers is reviewed.

A very seasonable article is the leader in Ainslee's for November, "Training a Football Team," by Allen Sangree, which is illustrated by photographs of dramatic interest. More important and equally readable is "Our Farming Industry," by F. M. Todd, a graphic account of the American farmer and his gigantic enterprises. "The Sailor and the Land Shark," by Carl Hovey, tells of the helplessness of Jack ashore, of the cunning and rapacity of the boarding masters. It is a story of feudal domination that would seem impossible today, and yet prevails most in the greatest city of the country. In "Marriage Nowadays" Cyrus C. Adams points the moral of France, the most non-marrying of countries, and calls attention to the fact that Americans have always been disposed to early marriage, but less so in the past two decades. He finds that most of our self-made men ventured matrimony on $1,000 a year or less. "The Cyclone," by Earl W. Mayo, is well written and valuable, with some curious pictures of the effects of cyclones and tornadoes. A new series of romantic stories, "The Fortunes of Lal Faversham," by Rafael Sabatini, begins in the November Ainslee's. The stories are woven round the adventures of an adherent of Charles II., and the first, "The Loaded Dice," is full of the fire and dash of the period. "Nigger Jeff," by Theodore Dreiser, author of that strong novel, "Sister Carrie," is a powerful story of a Missouri lynching. Other good stories are: "A Marriage on the Main," by S. Elgar Benet; "The Chamber of Fear," by Marion Dana; "The Inaccessible Valleys," by Mortimer O. Wilcox, and "How Filomeny Went to the Circus," by C. M. Holloway. (Street & Smith, publishers, New York.)

NICARAGUAN WATERWAY!

Great Britain Wants to See All Nations Benefited.

Andrew Carnegie Takes No Stock in an Isthmian Canal—Doesn't Believe In It at All.

FEELING IN ENGLAND.

London, Nov. 4.—One of the most responsible officials connected with the canal treaty negotiations, speaking of the matter last week, said:

"We never really objected to the construction of a canal, but we did and do object to a cavalier abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. It was in that spirit that Lord Lansdowne couched the reply to the United States Senate's rejection of the last Hay-Pauncefote treaty. It was not what you wanted to do, but the nasty way you said it, that was the chief reason for our opposition. Since then we have been approached in a rational, polite manner, and we have again endeavored to substitute for the Clayton-Bulwer treaty a treaty that will enabel America to carry out a design which, in a broad sense, will doubtless benefit the whole world."

The inner circles of the cabinet are not nearly so sure of the acceptance of the convention as are some of the leading papers on both sides of the water. When the full terms are announced, it is feared that some members of the senate may still find objections, and that the forecasts so far published, alleging two sweeping concessions on the part of Great Britain, may have a deleterious reaction.

There exists a species of indifference and a feeling that, after all, the new treaty may be pigeon-holed on account of some unexpected senatorial objection.

Washington, Nov. 4. — In view of the return to the United States of Lord Pauncefote, who arrived in New York on the St. Louis, and the immediate resumption of negotiations, which in this case are to put into the concrete form of a treaty the propositions agreed upon by the governments of the United States and Great Britain as a basis of a convention to replace the Hay-Pauncefote treaty of last year, it may be proper to state upon the highest official authority that there is absolutely than that of the Isthmian Canal involved in the negotiations. Further, it is stated that no demand has been made by the British Government for any compensation whatever for the relinquishment of its joint rights in the control of such a canal.

NO OTHER QUESTION

The construction of the canal was considered by both nations a desirable things for the world at large, and that thought was at the bottom of negotiations.

The government of Nicaragua has terminated the treaty under which the United States was empowered to construct an inter-oceanic canal across the territory of Nicaragua. This action has been notified to the state department by the Nicaraguan minister for foreign affairs. That officer declares that the termination of the treaty in no wise affects the friendly relation between the two countries, and the Nicaraguan government desires the conclusion of new treaties. Besides the treaty of friendship, commerce and navigation of 1867 thus denounced, the same note conveys the denunciation of the extradition treaty of 1870 between the United States and Nicaragua.

MOTIVES NOT STATED.

Under the terms of the denunciation the first named treaty, covering the right to construct and guarantee a canal, the convention will expire Oct. 24, 1902, which is one year from the date the notice was received at the state department. The extradition treaty terminates May 24 next, as provided in the convention.

The Nicaraguan minister's note conveys absolutely no information as to the motives which inspired the Nicaraguan Government to denounce these two treaties, nor has Mr. Merry, the United States minister to Nicaragua, thrown any light upon the subject. It may be recalled as affecting the treaty of 1867, that before submitting the Hay-Pauncefote treaty to congress last year, Secretary Hay drew up a set of protocols with the minister for Nicaragua and the minister for Colombia whereby these officers bound their governments to negotiate treaties with the United States for the necessary concessions under which to construct and control canals in the event that congress should authorize the beginning of such work.

CARNEGIE WANTS NO CANAL.

New York, Nov. 2.—Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie were passengers on the St. Louis, the vessel reaching her dock this afternoon. Mr. Carnegie refused to discuss New York politics, saying he was no partisan. He was questioned with regard to the proposed technical school at Pittsburg, and said he had received a report on the subject, and when asked if it was true that the committee had asked $5,000,000 his reply was:

"The committee is incapable of asking for money. The report was truly American and worthy of Pittsburg."

"Have you any views on the subject of the Isthmian Canal?" was asked.

"I do not believe in a canal at all. I do not believe a canal will render the service for the transportation of goods that a first-class two-track railroad would do. Freight could be unloaded into 50-ton cars and loaded on the other side at far less cost than running even 10,000 ships; even if you had to pay no tolls. I do not believe the Nicaragua Canal can be built. I do not believe that that canal can be worked even if it is built. The Panama Canal can be made workable. There is more sentiment behind the canal than good sense."

The subject of reciprocity was mentioned and Mr. Carnegie said:

"Reciprocity is a very fine word to speak, but when you come to arrange the details it is a most difficult policy. I have spent many pleasant hours talking on the subject with my dear friend, the late Mr. Blaine."

"Mr. Blaine believed in reciprocity," was suggested.

"Mr. Blaine believed in many things at first, as do many geniuses," answered Mr. Carnegie. "You can arrange reciprocity with one country, but that country favors you at the expense of all others. The best policy is to reduce protection duties. Washington's policy was the best: 'Friends of all, allies of none.'"

CRUSADE AGAINST MOSQUITOES.

Washington, Nov. 4.—The crusade against mosquitoes in Havana is bearing splendid results. Since March 1, 100 men have been constantly engaged in killing the germ-bearing pests in every way known to science. Hundreds of barrels of kerosene have been used upon the ponds and stagnant pools in and about the city, and the authorities believe have thus materially reduced the insect population. Since April 1, this year, only two persons have died in Havana from yellow fever and eleven from malarial fever. During the same period last year, before the destruction of the mosquitoes was begun, fifty-two deaths resulted from the yellow scourge and twenty-two from malarial fever.

Chafing and Itching Skin,

Annoying Rashes, Inflammations and Irritations Are Soothed, Healed and Cured by the Great Skin Food.

Dr. Chase's Ointment.

There is always mystery and doubt about the action of internal remedies. Time is required for the medicine to take effect. It is different with Dr. Chase's Ointment, for it is applied externally, and you are sure to be surprised by the remarkable change it brings about in a few hours. Its cleansing, soothing, healing action allays inflammation and irritation, removes redness and roughness of the skin, and leaves the skin delightfully smooth, soft and velvety.

Notwithstanding its powerful action in the severest cases of skin diseases, Dr. Chase's Ointment can be used with perfect safety on the most tender skin, and is especially suitable for the chafings, itchings and irritations which are so troublesome. Ladies keep it constantly in their toilet, and mothers who have used it in place of powders for their babies would not think of changing. It does not clog the pores of the skin, as do powders, does not stain the linen, and is pleasant to use.

Mrs. E. Clark, 74 Inchbury street, Hamilton, Ont, states: "The results experienced from using Dr. Chase's Ointment on my children for various sores have been satisfactory in the extreme, especially so with baby, now two months old. All the soreness, scalding and chafes were removed from the little fellow immediately after using Dr. Chase's Ointment on him, which freed him from pain. It came as a blessing. The cuts and bruises my children meet with always disappear before it, and I consider Dr. Chase's Ointment the very best of its kind. I advise mothers to have it in the house always."

Mrs. A. McKnight, Kirkwall, Wellington county, Ont., writes: "I feel it my duty to let you know what Dr. Chase's Ointment has done in a very bad case of eczema on our baby. We had tried any number of cures without any permanent relief, but from the hour we commenced using Dr. Chase's Ointment there was great relief, and the improvement continued until there was a complete cure. We think it the greatest of family ointments."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is the standard ointment the world over. It promptly and thoroughly relieves and cures eczema, salt rheum and the most torturing forms of itching skin diseases. Sixty cents a box, of all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

MR. HICKS' HOROSCOPE.

The Kind of Weather We Are to Have in November.

If the St. Louis Weather Prophet's Calculations Are Correct.

In studying the storm diagrams for November, given with these forecasts, the first thing to observe is that a Venus period of disturbance is central on the 20th, and that its perturbing influence extends from near the 1st of the month into December. But for this fact, there are few astronomical reasons why November should not be comparatively a placid month. But at this season, especially in a Jupiter period, a Venus disturbance will tend to excite all the regular storm periods out of their normal conditions, making the fluctuations of temperature more sudden and extreme, and causing a greater severity and prolongation of storm periods, especially over the north Atlantic and Lake regions.

The stars in connection with Friday and Saturday, the 1st and 2nd, indicate that a reactionary disturbance will be central on those dates, causing a rise in temperature, falling barometer and scattering storms and squalls of rain and snow from about the 1st to the 3rd.

A sharp, sudden rise of the barometer and change to colder will follow close after these disturbances, but as sudden change back to storm conditions will come about the 5th in western extremes.

The regular Vulcan storm period begins on the 5th, is central on the 7th and extends to the 10th. The moon is on the celestial equator on the 5th, passing to its south declination. Hence a marked rise of temperature, with a corresponding fall of the barometer, followed by possible thunderstorms southward, will set in early in this Vulcan period. About Wednesday, the 6th, to Sunday, the 10th, storms of wind, rain and snow will make their transit from west to east across the country. Remember, storm centers, like railroad trains, do not cover the whole country at once, but make their passages across it; hence storms will begin in western parts days before they reach extreme eastern sections, being in middle parts of the country on intermediate days. A decided cold wave will be well advanced from the northwest before the low barometer and storms of this period reach the Atlantic.

Only a brief intermission will intervene between this Vulcan period and the reactionary change due from the 11th to the 14th. Conjunction of the moon with sun and earth, or new moon on the 11th, will check the tendency to high barometer and cold, and a sudden return to warmer, low barometer and rain and snow will be natural about Monday, the 11th, to Thursday, the 14th. These reactionary storms will be followed by a more persistent and general change to wintry conditions, and sharp cold will be general over central and northern sections for several days leading up to the Vulcan storm period central on the 18th. This Vulcan storm period extends from the 16th to the 20th, the 20th being the central day of the Venus period, with the moon again on the celestial equator in her passage from south to north declination. Some of the most decided storms of the month may be expected from about Sunday, the 17th, to Tuesday, the 21st. These storms will reach a crisis on and touching the 20th, rain, wind and thunder being followed in many sections within a few hours by northwesterly gales, driving snow and change to freezing. Note this prediction and heed it, or suffer discomfort and loss in all regions to the northward. Danger may be apprehended at this time all over the northern lakes and on the north Atlantic seas. The north Pacific Ocean will not wholly escape severe boreal storms at this time.

The freezing weather following the last storms will react to warmer from the 23rd to 26th. On the 25th the moon is full and in perigee, or nearest to the earth. It is also in direct opposition with earth and sun on the 25th, causing an eclipse of the moon in other parts of the earth. Look for many other storms, largely of a blizzardous character, not more than 48 hours before or after sundown on the 25th, followed rapidly by great rise of the barometer and a rushing cold wave that will be felt far to the south. Let shippers and navigators of the north Atlantic and lakes beware of dangerous gales and change to hurtful cold during and behind these storms.

A regular Vulcan storm period, reinforced by Mercury, Venus and Jupiter periods, is central on the last day of November. This means that marked autumnal storms will be brewing, if not already in progress, as the month goes out. The climax of this period will most likely fall in the opening days of December, but the first stages will be attended by very low barometer and change to much warmer, followed at first by general and heavy rains. Later the rain will turn to a general and destructive sleet, and this in turn to a real snow storm and blizzard over northern parts of the country.

Accidental.—Cholly—I shot a fine deer while in Maine. I'll tell you just how it happened. Ethel—Oh, I can guess. You didn't know the gun was loaded.—Judge.

Salt Rheum

It may become chronic.

It may cover the body with large, inflamed, burning, itching, scaling patches and cause intense suffering. It has been known to do so.

Do not delay treatment.

Thoroughly cleanse the system of the humors on which this ailment depends and prevent their return.

The medicine taken by Mrs. Ida E. Ward, Cove Point, Md., was Hood's Sarsaparilla. She writes: "I had a disagreeable itching on my arms which I concluded was salt rheum. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and in two days felt better. It was not long before I was cured and I have never had any skin disease since."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Promises to cure and keeps the promise. It is positively unequaled for all cutaneous eruptions. Take it.

"BEANS TO BURN."

Burns Says So and Is Bearish on the Market—Damage to California Crop Cuts Little Figure.

C. E. Burns: "The October squeeze on change was closed up without any bloodshed, although the shorts seemed to think that the longs wanted all the blood that could be gotten, anyway. The shorts had the satisfaction of knowing that the other fellow got a lot of beans at about 20c more than their market price. Peace will now reign until about Thanksgiving. As outlined in our last letter, markets have turned very dull the last few days, offerings in excess of demand. This is partly the result of the October sales all being filled. All that saves the market from going to $1 25 is the poor quality and necessity of handpicking nearly all the crop. This, we believe, will sustain the market somewhat and prevent radical declines. We believe, however, that we may see prices 40c or 50c lower on the crop. We have beans in the United States 'to burn.' Some reports are going the rounds in regard to damage from rains in California. We have telegrams from a number of different points in the bean district, and while they have had general rains, the damage is not excessive. About 60 per cent of the crop is secured and out of reach of rain. The remainder is reported damaged 10 to 20 per cent. Taking our reports as a whole, we do not consider the damage will cut much figure in the final result, although prices have been advanced on the coast somewhat on this account. We look for very serious competition from there after their first demand is supplied. Eastern markets are holding up fairly well, but none of the buyers there have confidence enough in the market to buy any amount at quotations. We think Michigan will be a factor east soon. So far very few have gone that way. Still, there will be beans eaten right along, and sooner or later the trade will get on the buying fever, though we hardly look for it before the holidays."

Detroit, Nov. 4.—Beans were active on Saturday and a little lower; November was the most active deal, and closed with a loss of 2c; cash beans were off 5c. Quotations: Cash, 1 car at $1 75; Nov., 2 cars at $1 72, 15 at $1 70; Dec., $1 65; Jan., 1 car at $1 60.

PRINCE RANJITI

The Mysterious Scion of Royalty From Beluchistan Reaches Montreal.

Montreal, Nov. 3.—Prince Ranjiti of Baluchistan, as his name is given on the passenger list, arrived here on the steamship Lake Simcoe this afternoon. On board with this prince was a dusky suite, numbering 32 persons. This peculiar man, who spent a fortnight in all the splendor of Oriental opulence at a fashionable hotel in London, where he had dropped in unannounced, and unconcernedly engaged 25 rooms, will do a similar thing here. In spite of the publicity which such an arrival is bound to create in Montreal today, he will come in a cloud as much as when he left England. The India office has issued an official announcement that there is not such a prince. This neither condemns the man nor clears up his identity, as "Ranjiti" is obviously an assumed name. In London, as well as here, he declined to be interviewed. He said: "I am a king." All the London press went wild as to whether he is or is not a king. Certainly they will agree that he lived like one, spending enormous sums on every hand. The king has with him a dancing girl, who in London took a prominent part in the entertainment of the king, although he lived most of his time in bed. All his food was prepared on the Lake Simcoe by orders from the local office, with the strictest Oriental usages, by his own servants, who were nightly marshaled by a major-domo for exercise. He spent nearly all his time in his private quarters, and on arrival here proceeded to the Windsor Hotel. It is the prince's intention to make a tour of America.

STRIKE ON THE C. P. R.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 1.—The C.P.R. workmen, who threatened last night to strike unless paid $1 50 a day for their labor at the railway improvement work in the West End carried out their threat and about 70 refused to go to work this morning. This caused a portion of the work to be suspended today. The company will not meet the demand of the strikers. The men of another section of the work did not strike and they have been given the benefit of increase of $1 50 a day.

BAYLEY'S

Kyrle Bellew and Eleanor Robson in "A Gentleman of France."

London was indeed fortunate in being one of the three Ontario cities favored with a sight of "A Gentleman of France," before its departure for long runs in Chicago and New York. The production is one that can hardly fail to be well received by lovers of good plays, for it possesses all the essentials which go to the making of the successful drama. The play itself, is a well-told story of adventure, full of action and excitement. The cast touches a uniformity of merit which is all too rare, while the accessories of scenery and costuming were on a par with the excellence of the company.

It cannot be denied that the play itself suffers from the twin defects inherent to all dramatizations from successful books. It is a difficult matter to take a story so abounding in incident as Mr. Stanley Weyman's charming romance, and encompass it within the limits of a play which must not exceed two and a half hours or, at the most, three hours in presentation. To those who have read the book, the play is, to an extent, disappointing, because of the innumerable changes and omissions which the transposition into dramatic form demands. For the same reason, those who have not read the story are left unacquainted with many details which cannot be brought out in the drama, and so much of its action and motive must be largely taken by them as granted. Miss Harriett Ford, the dramatist, has done surprisingly well with what is a far from easy task.

The play was programmed as consisting of eight scenes, but it was found expedient to eliminate the last scene and introduce the closing action in the seventh. Even with this the play consumes three hours in presentation, and some further cutting will probably de done before the piece assumes its permanent form.

For the histrionic portion of the production there can be nothing but praise. There was little to indicate that Saturday night's performance was but the fourth that has been given, and that the company is still rehearsing faithfully. The play is essentially a two-part one, but so well were those two parts interpreted that no one could resent their dominance of the drama.

The greatest interest, of course, centers in the title role, which was filled by Kyrle Bellew. The public had been informed in advance that Liebler & Co. had delayed for several years their production of "A Gentleman of France," with the object of securing Mr. Bellew for the leading part. If this be so, they made no mistake, for a more suitable exponent of the character of the impoverished but courageous De Marsac would be indeed hard to secure. From the time he appears in his ragged cloak and doublet, flouted and jeered by the exquisites and fine dames of the court of Henry of Navarre, through his perilous and thankless adventures for the woman he learns to love, to the final scene, when he finds love, happiness and prosperity before him, Mr. Bellew lives the part, and realizes almost perfectly the chivalrous hero of Weyman's romance. There was none of the "strutting and bellowing" of which Hamlet warned his players, only the easy, natural depicting of a lovable, gentle and heroic personality. Mr. Bellew's art alone should suffice to make a success of the play, even without its other claims on public favor.

Miss Eleanor Robson, who so winningly portrayed the heroine, was already remembered here for her work in "Arizona." Her delineation of Mlle. de la Vire, the fair damsel who has a temper and a will of her own, is one that will undoubtedly be added to this young artist's already creditable list of successful appearances. With a role resembling in many respects that of Miss Julia Marlowe in "When Knighthood Was in Flower," a play unfortunately not yet seen here, Miss Robson called up vivid remembrances of that gifted actress.

Next to the work of the two principals, that of the players who assumed the roles of their personal attendants, was the most noteworthy. Edgar Selwyn, as Simon Fliex, De Marsac's serving man, gave a fine presentation of the doglike fidelity of the old servant, who, in spite of his fainthearted-ness, follows his master in all his daring adventures, and who at the critical moment, gives proof that after all he is not the utter craven that he appeared. To the demands of his dramatic role, Mr. Selwyn added the arduous and well-executed duties of stage manager. Miss Ada Dwyer invested the part of Fanchette, Mademoiselle's maid, with the motherly devotion and fussy but always well-meaning solicitude that it required.

Reference has already been made to the high level of the support. John Blair and Howard Hansel well interpreted the contrasted aspects of villainy, the first as the suave and crafty De Bruhl, the latter as the brutal and reckless tool Fresnoy. Mr. John Flood was acceptable as the King of Navarre, and his right-hand man, Baron de Rosny, was well played by Mr. Clarence Handyside. Others deserving of recognition were Mr. Frank E. Aiken as Henry III. of France; Charles Barron as Vicomte de Turenne; Miss Winnifred Bonnewitz as Mathurine, the girl jester, and Miss Charlotte Walker as Mme. de Bruhl.

One feature of the play which has probably never been excelled on a local stage was the realistic nature of the swordplay in the fifth act. It was no harmless, rehearsed bit of fencing; but deadly cut, thrust and parry, and the participants in it will be lucky if the play runs a season without acceident to eye, cheek or body.

The scenery, costumes and properties were all marked by richness, beauty and a careful attention to details. The closing scene, with its massive trees and spreading foliage, gorgeous with autumn hues, with the ground carpeted with dead leaves, while others fluttered from the trees overhead, was a strikingly pleasing one.

The size of the audience and its reception of the play were neither commensurate with the merits of the production. While the curtain calls were frequent and enthusiastic, they were not so to the degree indicated by the press dispatches as having been the case in both Ottawa and Hamilton. Not a single call for the authoress was raised; so the audience was not given a sight of Miss Ford, who was with the company. It would have been a graceful tribute to the one who individually had most to do with the pleasure of the evening. Should this be continued London audiences are in a fair way to be described as cold, unsympathetic, and grudging of appreciation.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"THE FAST MAIL" TONIGHT.

In speaking of "The Fast Mail," the Detroit Free Press of Aug. 6th says, "The new season at Whitney's Opera House was begun yesterday with a successful and memorable revival of 'The Fast Mail.' This was one of the first popular hits that Lincoln J. Carter arrived at as an artificer in the field of the mechanical drama, and from season to season it has yielded that indefatigable worker and enterprising manager a large measure of prosperity. It is still in excellent condition, better in fact than in some other years, and the present representation of it is such as to command the emphatic approval of a numerous contingent of playgoers. The scenes are in good taste, and admirably fitting the story, and the sensational effects are produced with a truth to life that moves the spectator to turbulent admiration. Among the most assertive of these are the engine room of the steamer St. Louis, the mid-river wreck, a whizzing train in the act of grabbing the United States mail, and the moonlight view of the Niagara cataract." Popular prices, 50, 35 and 25 cents, will prevail at the company's engagement at the New Grand tonight.

"CAUGHT IN THE WEB."

Handsomely mounted, with a superb scenic environment, and with an exceedingly clever company, "Caught in the Web" will be presented tomorrow night at the Grand Opera House. Mr. Le Brandt, the author, has graphically portrayed detective life, giving it a natural touch. The climaxes are startling in the extreme, situations all novel and original, and a rich comedy vein is interwoven. The scenery carried by the company is said to be magnificent, notably the first and second act, an exterior of a Queen Anne villa, with a wealth of beautiful foliage, and the other the gorgeous ball-room scene. The company, which numbers eighteen people is particularly strong, the work of Gertrude Norris as Edna Stanley being highly commended.

"THE VOLUNTEER ORGANIST."

"The Volunteer Organist" will have its first production in this city at the New Grand next Friday, Nov. 8. The piece in a way is a temperance lesson. It is also a lucid exposition of some of the higher traits in humankind as contrasted to the sinister tendencies common in every community. The chief scene discloses the interior of a church, with the volunteer organist seated at his instrument, while the sweet, ringing voice of a boy singer is heard in the powerful melody of "The Holy City." The regular organist of the church has declined to act because the daughter of a tavernkeeper sings with the choir. The fact that the minister of the place loves the same daughter, and thus arouses the uncompromising dislike of members of his flock, appears prominently in the development of the plot.

"MISTRESS NELL."

The attraction at the New Grand on the King's birthday, Saturday, Nov. 9, will be the Henrietta Crosman version of "Mistress Nell." Matinee and night performances are announced.

MOUNTED MEN FOR AFRICA!

Five Thousand More Cavalry To Be Sent Out.

First New Stamps Bearing the King's Portrait in Victoria—The Queen's in Newfoundland.

London, Nov. 4.—It is understood to be the intention of the war office to sent 5,000 more mounted men out to South Africa during the next six weeks. There are only about 7,000 mounted men at home, so that the military authorities are faced with the problem of training soldiers minus the necessary accompaniments of the cavalry arm. To meet this obvious failing it is probable that several composite regiments of yeomanry will be voluntarily embodied for home service. A move will soon be made to bring home from South Africa men who have served over two years in the war, and there places may be taken by a cavalry division of seven regiments now in India. After the conclusion of hostilities it is expected that the permanent garrison at the Cape will consist of 50,000 men.

LORD ROBERTS' EARLY RETIREMENT.

At the service clubs it is rumored that Lord Roberts is anxious to retire. He had never intended to remain the full period at the war office, and he is credited with a desire to pass the winter of his days in quiet retirement in India. While the war lasts, however, it is almost certain that the commander-in-chief will not desert his post, notwithstanding the stories that are being told of the stagnation of business at Pall Mall and Mr. Brodrick's complaint that almost the whole responsibility is thrown upon his shoulders.

THE BULLER AFFAIR SUBSIDING

The has been a marked subsidence of feeling in the country, if not in the army, respecting General Buller's dismissal. One of the military journals still champions him with indiscreet zeal, and contends that the condemnation of the luncheon speech on the grounds set forth in the official memorandum cannot be justified. General Buller himself has gone into retirement in Devonshire, and may well ask to be delivered from his friends, even more indiscreet that himself. There has been some loose and reckless talk about a hostile demonstration towards Lord Roberts by the men who fought under General Buller. Mr. Brodrick in reality is responsible for the final action of the war office, and Lord Roberts, like the King, acquiesced reluctantly.

Two female nurses at the insane asylum at Dunning, Ill., are to be formally charged by Secretary Follett W. Bull, of the Civil Service Reform Asso- of two patients in the asylum, Kate Neddo and Kate Kurkowski, by starvation. The motive assigned is that the patients were especially obnoxious to the nurses, and that their course was prompted by a desire to so weaken the patients that they would become ill and be sent to a ward for the sick, thus relieving the nurses of the care of them.

A TERRIBLE MISTAKE.

A New Brunswick Man About To Be Operated On for Appendicitis—A Narrow Escape.

St. Marys, N. B., Nov. 4.—What came nearly being a fearful blunder happened here a short time ago.

Thomas Harrison thought from his painful symptoms he had Appendicitis. He was being treated for it, indeed the surgical operation, which is supposed to be the only successful treatment for Appendicitis, had been suggested. He really had Stone in the Bladder.

Mr. Harrison says:

"About this time an anxious friend advised me to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and by the time I had finished the first box I passed a stone of unusual size, which is now in the doctor's possession.

"I began at once to feel better, and you may judge of my gratitude for my escape thus promptly and safely. Having taken only three boxes I am happy to state I am absolutely cured, with no sign of the return of my old trouble."

Dr. McKay, M.P.P., was again nominated for the Legislative assembly by the Liberals of South Oxford.

ASSIZES COURT OPENED TODAY.

Mr. Justice Lount Presides at Non-Jury Sittings.

He Is Greeted With Congratulatory Addresses by Members of Bar Association.

The non-jury sittings of the Middlesex fall assizes in the high court of justice opened at 1 o'clock today before Mr. Justice Lount. There was a good representation of the local bar present, most of them interested in one or more of the thirteen cases entered for trial.

Immediately on the opening of court, Mr. J. H. Flock, K. C., arose and on behalf of the Bar Association of Middlesex County congratulated Mr. Justice Lount on his elevation to the bench. In doing so Mr. Flock said that it gave him great pleasure, as the oldest member of the bar, to welcome his lordship on his first visit to London to perform the duties of judge of an assize court. The announcement of his lordship's elevation had been received with general satisfaction from one end of the province to another, and nowhere more so than in Middlesex county. His lordship's ability and courtesy were so well known as to guarantee his fitness for the position to which he had been elevated. On behalf of the association Mr. Flock promised that his lordship should always receive here the co-operation, sympathy and respect due from the bar to the bench, and he felt assured that in turn the legal profession would be accorded the courtesy due from the bench to the bar. Mr. Flock closed with the hope that his lordship would long be spared to adorn the bench, and that at the end of his career the wisdom of the government's choice would be amply verified.

Mr. Edmund Meredith, K. C., indorsed Mr. Flock's utterances, and said that the bar of the county felt assured that his lordship would fulfill his duties in all fairness and impartiality, and follow in the steps of his illustrious predecessor.

In reply, Mr. Lount said that it was with difficulty he could fittingly reply to the more than cordial expression of good feeling and kindness tendered him. Among the most pleasant memories of his legal experience were his associations with the members of the bar of Middlesex, his lordship spoke of the esprit de corps which animated the legal profession, and referred to the spirit of accord and mutual helpfulness which characterized the relations between the bench and the bar, and which he designated as in the best interests of both. His lordship dwelt on the great assistance which the bench can derive from the bar. He himself, he said, knew no more now than when he stepped a few months ago to the dignity of the bench, and he had always realized that he knew all too little of requirements of his position. He hoped the time would never come when he would make pretense to know more of the cases brought before him than the legal gentlemen engaged in them, and if such a time should come, he hoped some member of the bar would tell him that he knew no more than the bar did. As he himself advanced in knowledge and understanding, his former fellow-members of the bar would keep pace with him, and he would always feel that he was in no sense in advance of them so far as knowledge went. His lordship said he felt himself to be among friends when he came to this county, and if he lost those friends it could only be his own fault. He hoped that as often as he came to London he should have deserved the more than kindly expressions offered him on the present occasion.

The first case on the list, Harris vs. Stevens, was the first one taken up.

The following members of the bar were present: J. H. Flock, K. C., Ed Meredith, I. F. Hellmuth (Toronto), T. W. Scandrett, Hume Cronyn, Talbot Macbeth, K. C., J. C. Judd, T. G. Meredith, Hume Elliott, F. P. Betts, Ed Weld, John Dromgole, M. D. Fraser, George C. Gibbons, K. C., P. McPhillips, John Folinsbee (Strathroy), E. H. Johnston, P. H. Bartlett, C. E. Jarvis, W. C. Fitzgerald, T. H. Luscombe, F. E. Perrin, J. M. McEvoy and T. Coleridge.

CAPITAL NOTES

Arrival of Long-Service Medals for Canadian Militiamen.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, November 4.—The militia department has received from England the long-service medals to be awarded to members of the Canadian militia who have served for 20 years or more. The long-service decorations for officers are expected in a week or thereabouts.

WILL SPEAK FOR CANADA.

Hon. Sydney Fisher, minister of agriculture, leaves tomorrow for New York. On Thursday evening he will be a guest at the annual dinner of the Canadian Society of New York and will respond to the toast to "Canada."

Death Record.

Toronto, Nov. 3.—Robert Swane, one of the best-known Scotch residents in Canada, died here yesterday, in his 70th year. He had been president of the Caledonian Society and a leader in Scottish charitable work. Mr. Swane was born at Longformascus, Berwickshire, and came to Canada in 1853. He was partner in the grocery house of Swane Bros.

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 4.—Rev. Monsignor Murphy, D.D., died at 6 o'clock this morning. He had been hovering between life and death for the past week. He was in his 58th year.

A GOOD NAME IS TO BE PRIZED.—There have been imitations of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil which may have been injurious to its good name, but if so, the injury has only been temporary. Goodness must always come to the front and throw into the shadow that which is worthless. So it has been with Eclectric Oil, no imitation can maintain itself against the genuine article.

THEY ARE NOT VIOLENT IN ACTION.—Some persons when they wish to cleanse the stomach, resort to Epsom and other purgative salts. These are speedy in their action, but serve no permanent good. Their use produces incipient chills, and if persisted in they injure the stomach. Nor do they act upon the intestines in a beneficial way. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills answer all purposes in this respect, and have no superior.

BY ACCLAMATION!

Ridgetown, Nov. 4.—John Lee, of Highgate (Liberal), was today elected by acclamation to succeed the late Robert Ferguson as member of the Legislative Assembly for East Kent.

The nomination was made by R. P. Wright, of Dresden, seconded by Jas. Rutherford, of Blenheim. Sheriff Gemmell was returning officer.

TUESDAY'S ELECTIONS IN THE UNITED STATES

Battle-Royal in Prospect in New York—Both Sides Confident of Victory.

New York, Nov. 4.—Save for the final preparations for marshaling forces at the polls tomorrow the municipal campaign is at an end. Seth Low and Edward M. Shephard, the rival candidates for mayor, Justice William Travers, fusionist nominee for district attorney, and the other leaders on the two tickets have made their last speeches.

Both sides are determined to bring out the heaviest vote possible, and to that end the organizers will devote all of the time until the polls close tomorrow night. The eve of the election finds both sides apparently confident. The Democrats claim victory for the entire city ticket by from 30,000 to 40,000 majority, while the fusionists advance practically the same claim.

The fusionists assert that they are certain of the defeat of Robert A. Van Wyck, the present mayor, who is a candidate for justice of the supreme court. They also express great confidence in their ability to elect Edward M. Grout as comptroller. Grout was elected president of the borough of Brooklyn four years ago as a Democrat.

The sharpest contest in all the bitterly contested campaign is between Justice William Travers Jerome (Fusionist), and Henry W. Unger (Democrat), for the important office of district attorney of New York county. Each side claims success for its man with equal positiveness.

The weather indications are favorable and there probably will be a heavy vote.

IN IOWA.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 4.—With cold weather predicted for tomorrow it is the general opinion that the vote for the selection of state and legislative officials will be small as compared with one year ago, and even less than three years ago. There are five tickets in the field, Republican, Democrat, Populist, Prohibition and Socialist.

There will be chosen, a governor, lieutenant-governor, superintendent of public instruction, railway commissioner, judge of the supreme court and members of the legislature.

LATE SPORTING.

TURF.

A NOTED LONDON HORSEMAN.

Perhaps the most widely known and successful horseman that London or Canada ever turned out is in this city, in the person of Mr. Chris. Fitzgerald, son of Dr. Fitzgerald, of London. This is the only opportune time which Mr. Fitzgerald can obtain for vacation, it being the intermission between the fall races in the east and the winter races in the south and west. Mr. Fitzgerald arrived Saturday night, and today left for Wallaceburg for a week's shooting.

Speaking to a reporter, who asked him of Otto Wonderley. Mr. Fitzgerald said that he had recommended Wonderley to Mr. Carr as a likely, bright and honest boy. Wonderley's great ability as a rider was not apparent till this spring, when he first began to distinguish himself. He is a thoroughly reliable boy and, taking care of himself as he does, should, in Mr. Fitzgerald's opinion, make at least $40,000 during the year riding for J. B. Hagen, together with any side mounts which he will obtain. Wonderley rides in the Tod Sloan fashion and has good hands and a quick wit.

London has its share of worthy representatives on the turf, as well as Mr. Fitzgerald and Otto Wonderley. A new starting gate, invented by Mr. McInnis, who lives on the corner of Piccadilly and Maitland streets, has been adopted by the race track authorities, and will be used in the future on all the big tracks. It is one of the no-recall system, and is worked by electricity. Mr. Fitzgerald was instrumental in having it placed on the tracks.

Mr. Fitzgerald says he does not believe he has an enemy on the turf. Punishments he has meted out, but with a consideration and forethought for the boys always in view. There is now a new generation of jockeys growing up, and examples have to be shown them.

Mr. Fitzgerald has started nearly all the stake races on the noted tracks, ranging from $50,000 to $1,000. He (Fitzgerald) has now in his possession the stallion, Governor Gregs, a horse that won 47 steeplechase races on large tracks. He holds two records, having done 1¾ miles steeplechase, carrying 167 pounds, in 3:15⅕, and 1½ miles, carrying 168 pounds, in 2:52.

CHANGE IN SEASON FOR FISHING.

Toronto, Nov. 4.—The open season for salmon trout and white fish has been extended from Nov. 1 to Nov. 11 by the Ontario Government, on the representation of fishermen that the rough weather in October hindered their operations and that the spawning season begins later in the Georgian Bay than elsewhere in the province.

HIGH-PRICED SEATS.

Montreal, Que., Nov. 4.—Five of the ten newly-created seats on the Montreal Stock Exchange were sold at auction this morning, only brokers being allowed to bid. The seats brought $64,330, and $12,000 was the minimum price at which bids were received. The first seat sold to Charles Meredith & Co., for $13,100, and the other four were knocked to Rudolph Forget, one at $12,800, one at $12,850, and the other two at $12,750 each.

CANADIAN DROWNED!

Trooper Charles Howell Loses His Life in Tugela River.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 4.—The following cable has been received at the militia department:

"Please inform Emily Howell, of 111 Irvine avenue, Westmount, Montreal, that trooper Charles Howell, Imperial Light Horse, was accidentally drowned in the Tugela River on Oct. 17. (Signed) Casualty Department, Cape Town. MacKenzie."

BETHEL BATTLE WAS BRAVELY FOUGHT.

Botha Led in Person, But the Boers Failed to Secure Guns They Had Rushed.

Pretoria, Nov. 3.—The battle in the neighborhood of Bethel, in which Col. G. Benson was killed, was one of the stiffest of the smaller fights of the war. Commandant-General Botha suddenly concentrated a thousand Boers to catch Col. Benson, who had been doing magnificent work. Under Botha's personal command the Boers charged the British rear guard. Col. Benson went back in order to direct the defense, when he was mortally wounded. When he was carried in he gave the comamnd to Col. Sampson, who continued the defense skillfuly and heroically. Under a heavy fire the convoy was taken behind the cover of a hill, while the British were deployed in a firing line around the hill. The Boers galloped up under cover of a terrific rainstorm, which drove in the face of the British. Col. Sampson refused to surrender, and the Boers then attacked bravely, but were always repulsed.

They then dug trenches with the intention of sapping up to the British lines, the distance between the combatants being only 500 yards. Two guns which the Boers had captured at the beginning of the fight lay between them and the British in the zone of fire, and the burghers could not take them away.

The Boers made desperate efforts to overwhelm the whole British force, charging repeatedly right up to the British lines and being driven back each time with heavy loss. The defense was stubbornly and successfully maintained through the whole of the following day and the succeeding night, until Col. Barter, who had marched all night from Bushman's Kop, brought relief on the morning of Nov. 1. The Boers then retired.

Col. Benson did not long survive.

Not only did Gen. Botha direct the attack, as already cabled, but he personally shared in the fighting.

The heavy casualties of the British were compensated for by the heavier losses of the Boers, which are estimated to have numbered between three and four hundred.

BREEDING FARMS IN ORANGE COLONY.

Government is Establishing Them Near Bloemfontein—An Immense Crop of Fruit.

Bloemfontein, Nov. 4.—The Government of the Orange River Colony has acquired 180,000 morgen of land (108,000 acres) east and west of the railway, for the purpose of establishing breeding farms. Fifty morgen out of every 2,000 will be reserved for forests. Small breeding farms have already been established. Notwithstanding the low condition of the animals on account of their inoculation for rinderpest and lung sickness the calves produced are healthy.

The farms in the Bloemfontein, Moroka, and Thaba N'Chu districts are laden with fruit, the crop being the best since 1885.

The natives in the Thaba N'Chu district have now plowed over 10,000 acres.

The proclamation prohibiting the brewing of beer and spirituous liquors has been rescinded.

The Gazette contains the names of burghers who have taken the oath of allegiance during the past week. In the Bloemfontein district there were 100, in Kroonstad 42, and in Vredfort Road 4.

MAN-HUNT IN ROANOKE, W. VA.

William Hale, Who Killed Two Persons at a Political Meeting, Still at Large.

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 4.—The man hunt in Franklyn county for William Hale, who fired a shotgun into a political meeting at the little town of Ferrum, Saturday night, killing two men, was still going on at 11 o'clock today.

Hale was located in the mountains, six miles from Ferrum, before daylight today, in company with Larkin Saunders, a brother of Hale's wife. Both men were heavily armed, and when the posse came within shooting distance the outlaws fired on them. The posse returned the fire, shooting in the direction from which the gunflash came. Saunders was wounded and captured, but Hale got away in the darkness. None of the posse was wounded. It is raining in this section, and this prevents bloodhouds following the trail.

Saunders says Hale has a double-barreled, breech-loading shotgun, and plenty of shells, and will not be taken alive.

DUE TO THE DEADLY FROG.

Rome, N. Y., Nov. 4.—C. L. Hines, of Albany, a brakeman on a fast freight, was killed in the Central yards in East Rome at 5 o'clock this morning. Hines was trying to cut two cars from the train. His foot caught in a frog, and, unable to release himself, was pushed under the wheels as the train began moving.

AN END TO BILIOUS HEADACHE.—Biliousness, which is caused by excessive bile in the stomach, has a marked effect upon the nerves, and often manifests itself by severe headache. This is the most distressing headache one can have. There are headaches from cold, from fever, and from other causes, but the most excruciating of all is the bilious headache. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will cure it—cure it almost immediately. It will disappear as soon as the Pills operate. There is nothing surer in the treatment of bilious headache.

ODE OF WELCOME

Poet Laureate Austin Celebrates Home-Coming of Royal Pair.

London, Nov. 3.—The return home of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York from their long, eventful and successful tour through the British colonies, has inspired the poet laureate with a theme for the following song of rejoicing:

A ROYAL HOME-COMING.

Welcome, right welcome home to these blest isles,
Where, unforgotten, loved Victoria sleeps;
But now with happy pride your father smiles,
Your mother weeps!

You went and came as swallows homeward draw,
Now it hath winged its way to winter's green,
But never swallow or wandering sea bird saw
What you have seen.

For you have circled earth with pinions fleet,
The seasons through; and everywhere a throng
Of glowing hearts your coming trooped to greet
With flowers and song.

Over the unchanging sea eight changeful moons
Have moved from shield to sickle, seed to sheaves;
And twice a hundred dawns, a hundred noons,
A hundred eves

Waned to their slumber in the starlit night,
And ever from land or lake, from wave or crag,
From fixed or floating fort you had in sight
The British flag.

And wider, further onward round the world,
Scouring the field, or furrowing the sea,
You found that emblem, which, where'er unfurled,
Floats o'er the free.

So that on man and man's laborious hand,
Nor manacle nor hindrance shall be laid,
But mind with mind, and strand with generous strand,
Contend with trade.

And though the share of treasonable strife
Falls on our homes and theirs, you, wandering, saw,
Young commonwealths you found, surging with life,
Yet ruled by law.

Whose blood infused in ours in war's emprise,
To vindicate one scepter, sword and tongue,
As ours perchance may help to keep them wise,
Hath made us young.

Fountain of youth, England in mellower years
Hath found and drained, so that she ne'er need know
What Nature feels when Autumn stacks and seres,
Or Yule gusts blow.

You sailed from us to them, from them to us,
Love at the prow, and Wisdom at the helm,
August ambassadors, who strengthen thus
Her rule and realm!

Round you today a people stand arrayed
That fain with peace two wedded worlds would dower;
Therefore, rejoicing mightier hath been made
Imperial power!

—Alfred Austin.

A WRINKLE IN APPLE PACKING.

[From the Morning Oregonian.]

"There is a knack in doing everything," is an old saying, and the truthfulness of it was brought to mind yesterday by a gang of men engaged in wrapping and packing apples. Each man had a full box of apples, a pile of thin paper cut into wrappers and an empty box. An apple was taken from the full box, a wrapper put around it, and it was put in the other box. It is not an easy thing to pick up a wrapper from a pile of thin paper without missing one occasionally, and in doing this the men adopt different schemes. A new hand wet his thumb on his tongue for every wrapper. One who had been longer in the business and found that it was unwholesome to be wetting his thumb on his tongue, had a slice of lemon beside his pile of wrappers and moistened his thumb in the lemon before picking up a wrapper. The scheme worked well, but he did not know whether the acid of the lemon would make his thumb sore or not. A third man had a thin rubber thumb stall on his thumb, and could pick up wrappers all day long, and never make a miss. He was an old hand at the business.

ELSIE.

How reconcile the two? Never—never! They could never be reconciled in the sense of her laying her hand again in Owen's hand, her head upon his shoulder. All through her life, through the long years that lead up from these spring days of her fresh and graceful youth to those other days when the strength fails, and the back is bent, and the hair is snowy, and the eyes are dim; all through those long years her heart will be faithful to the memory of the Owen Hammond whom she had parted from in the shrubbery just now. The young man, erect and of gallant bearing, to whom she had plighted her troth—for whose sake she would have starved and suffered, but never sinned—to save whose life she would have laid down her own; but that love must be a memory and an eternal pang, if he has done this thing. If the red life-blood of handsome, reckless Arthur Hammond flows between them it is as a wide gulf which nothing can ever bridge over; it must roll for ever as a turgid ocean dividing these two souls.

If by some chance it escapes detection, or at least falls short of proof—if Owen steps at last into the great fortune and the coronet clasps his brow—if he lays this coronet at her feet and kneels in the dust before her and sues for her hand—she will refuse it; his is stained with the eternal stain, and she will refuse it.

She loves him—she cannot take this great love and pluck it out of her heart by the roots; it is part of herself; but she will never give her hand to Owen Hammond again, not even in civil greeting, if this is true.

She makes no resolves of this sort; she does not struggle to arrive at this decision. She feels and knows what she will do—that it would be impossible for her to do. Life will be a dreary fact for her henceforth. How will she support it? How will she go through it? It will have to be done.

If Owen has done this, and is found out and tried, and found guilty and condemned, then she must die. She knows that the Angel of Death will come and take her away gently if ever that should happen. And he—would he be cast into the outer darkness for ever? Terrible thought! Might not their spirits meet beyond the Valley of the Shadow, nis purged by the fires of repentance?

And then she started and shuddered, for she thought of Lord Hammond lying dead in the primrose wood face downwards in the grass, the last year's leaves blowing and rustling in the night wind, the moon shining upon the still form, the blood soaking into the ground, the breeze lifting the loose flap of his shooting-jacket, making him look as if he stirred, the wild, timid creatures of the wood getting accustomed to the inanimate form before the dawn and scampering over the clay-cold corpse without fear. Was it true? Was he really dead? If only she could wake and find it all a dream! If she could wake at Coome Hill House and find that Miss Stanly had never come for her, that she had never seen Bracebridge Hall, that Owen had never come late in the night with that wild question on his lips—was Lord Hammond there—there at Bracebridge? and he had known all the while where he was in that primrose wood, stark, stiff, with glazed eyes and ice-cold lips, and hands drawn and convulsed. Death was awful, but murder was fiendish. This was not a word in a young lady's vocabulary, but there was no other word by which to define the deed that had made Lady Chase desolate, that had wrecked and shattered her life and broken her noble heart.

When Elsie thought of the countess her tears rained fast and thick. She had not wept for herself or for Owen, but she shed bitter tears for that devoted mother whose nature was only too tender, too gentle, too generous.

"It will kill her!" she sobbed. "Whoever has killed Lord Hammond has killed his mother also."

How the rest of the morning passed Elsie could scarcely tell. She could not look at food though the servants came to seek her and to tell her that the breakfast was laid in the library. She heard that Mr. Stanly had refused to grant the warrants until he had more grounds to go upon.

Nobody had heard that Lord Hammond had actually quarreled with either of his cousins the day before. Ah, what Elsie could have told them! It was known that he had had an interview with his uncle the Hon. Richard Hammond, then he had gone out with his gun. All three sons were at home and Owen had been heard to say to his second brother that the fellow was a scamp. His brother had answered in a violent passion. He had said that he wished Owen had let him alone in the hunting-field and let his horse drag him over the fence with his foot twisted in the stirrup, and then there would have been an end of the beggar. Owen had gone out soon after and had not returned to dinner. He had come in much later, and had professed himself unable to eat. He had taken a little coffee with his father, and the two gentlemen had been going through deeds and papers till half-past nine, when Mr. Owen had started up and stated his intention of going straight to Bracebridge Hall to ask Miss Stanly a question. He had walked the whole five miles. He had seemed a little wild and put out, and had told his servants that he should sleep in some of the outbuildings at Bracebridge if he found the family had retired when he arrived there. In any case he should not return to Raby till the morning.

That all the gentlemen, father and sons, had seemed much agitated by the interview with Lord Hammond, was the opinion of the servants, male and female.

As Mr. Owen Hammond was leaving his own grounds, he was met by the two gamekeepers from Charteris, who told him they were in search of Lord Hammond. He told them that he believed Lord Hammond was at Bracebridge; and the men had seemed quite satisfied with that statement.

What had happened afterwards, was not that the body of poor Arthur had been discovered in the primrose wood, as Elsie Carew had pictured to herself.

On their homeward way the same two gamekeepers had struck against something in the lane—a narrow lane—the same in which we found Elsie in the first chapter of this story. The moon was not shining at the moment, and the Raby Woods, among which were many pines and firs, made the lane dark. The men fancied that it was a human being ill, or asleep, or drunk; they did not think of death, still less of murder. They struck a match and lighted a piece of candle which one of them carried; and then they saw the dead face of their young master; not shot through the heart, as Elsie had heard at first, but with the top of his head blown off, and part of the brain exposed.

We will not dwell on the terrible details of the medical evidence.

CHAPTER XXX.

Dead and gone—gone for ever from the gay, glad world, which might have been a paradise to him—the young lord lay in the family vault beneath St. Martha's Church, and his place knew him no more.

Mystery, the blackest and the deepest, shrouded the horrible circumstances of his death.

Owen Hammond stood now as the direct heir to the wealth, the lands, and title of the reckless lord with the beautiful face, the loud voice, the pleasure-seeking nature. He had not been exactly loved by his dependants, but he had not been disliked; and, now that he has gone, everybody had a kind word to say for him.

There had not been anything like sufficient evidence to allow of any magistrate granting a warrant for the apprehension of either of the young Hammonds.

At the inquest all the three brothers had been examined as witnesses.

Owen had returned in hot haste to his home, instead of going away and hiding his head, and changing his name, as he had told Elsie that he meant to do. In leaving Bracebridge Hall, and while proceeding on foot towards Allanbury, he had met the doctor's assistant, a Mr. Parkinson; from him he heard the terrible news also, that something like suspicion seemed to point at him, or at his brothers. At once he returned home, and then sent a telegram to the coroner for the county, stating where he might be found if he should be wanted as a witness.

This certainly looked honest, upright and fearless enough; but Owen Hammond appeared at the inquest with blanched cheeks and wild eyes—eyes, so it was whispered, that looked as if they saw spectres; sleepless, unquiet eyes.

There was no ground sufficient to grant a warrant for his arrest, it was said; but other things were also said. Whispers went about, all the young men were avoided; the neighborhood cut them. Mrs. Grundy had a great deal to say, and she said it with her usual delight in uttering severe things, and insinuating those "half-truths," which an eminent preacher tells us are "more poisonous than whole lies."

"It would never do," Mrs. Grundy would observe, addressing her most intimate friends—"it would never do, you see, to have the heir-apparent to the ealdom tried for the murder of his cousin—it would cause such a terrible scandal! These things are much better hushed up!" And in furtherance of this idea of "hushing up" the scandal, Mrs. Grundy proceeded to throw as much odium as she possibly could on the Raby Hall Hammonds, and on Owen more especially.

SATURDAY GAMES

Results of Many Battles on the Gridiron--News From the Race Tracks.

FOOTBALL.

ST. THOMAS OUTCLASSED.

The London intermediate champions defeated a Rugby club from St. Thomas on Saturday afternoon by the score of 33 to 4. The first score was made by London about two minutes after play was called, and before fifteen minutes had elapsed from the commencement of the game a change in the clubs was deemed advisable, and the wings of the respective teams were exchanged. This made the game much more interesting, and enabled both the London wings and defense to have a lively work-out.

London is to meet the Peterboros at Tecumseh Park on Saturday afternoon next at 3:30 o'clock, and the game is expected to be the best of the season. The Peterboros were one of the strongest of the rivals of the Londons last year, when the latter won the championship of Canada.

The teams lined up on Saturday as follows: St. Thomas—Wings, Munro, Rossiter, McLaws, McBain, Fallis, Crawford, Fox; scrimmage, Sutton, Williams, Fowler; half-backs, Tate, Branton, Ingram; quarter-back, Crocker; goal, Fulton. London — Wings, Black, Fisher, Kerrigan, Mattinson, Regan, Dowell, Carrothers, Stevens; scrimmage, Lucas, Bice, S. Taylor; half-backs, Peel, McNee, Taylor; quarter-back, McMahen; goal, Fields. Mr. Beecroft, referee; A. Sippi, timekeeper; E. McNee, G. Black, linemen.

TIGERS WON.

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 4.—At Lake Ontario Park Saturday afternoon the Kingston Granites and Hamilton Tigers met in a contest before a large crowd. The score was: Tigers 2, Granites 1.

MONTREAL BEATEN.

Ottawa, Nov. 4.—Ottawa University football team defeated Montreal Saturday by a score of 28 to 0.

SCORE 10 to 2.

St. Catharines, Ont., Nov. 4.—Upper Canada College football team defeated Ridley College Saturday by a score of 10 to 2.

ROUGH RIDERS DEFEATED.

Toronto, Nov. 4.—The Ottawa Rough Riders were banged, battered and beaten by the Argonauts at Rosedale Saturday afternoon. The final score was 13 to 10.

A DOUBLE VICTORY.

Toronto, Nov.4.—The 'Varsity Rugby men practically won a double-crown for themselves Saturday by defeating Queen's in both senior and intermediate games. The result of the morning game settles the intermediate championship, and the result of the afternoon game practically gives 'Varsity the senior trophy, as they have only one more match to play. The senior game was one of the best exhibitions of Rugby played in Toronto this season. It was clean, fast, and an open game. The play was even up and neither team had very much advantage, as there was no wind. The match was witnessed by over 1,200 spectators. The score at half-time was 11 to 6 and at the finish, 'Varsity 15, Queen's 11.

BRITANNIAS WON.

Montreal, Nov. 4.—Brockville's crack football fifteen went down before the Britannias Saturday afternoon. Score, 10 to 5. McGill II. beat Britannia II. on Saturday by a score of 14 to 4.

TURF.

THE AQUEDUCT RACES.

New York, Nov. 4.—Three favorites were successful at Aqueduct on Saturday; they were Dr. Riddle in the first, at 7 to 5; Otis in the third, at 7 to 5, and The Rhymer in the last, at 4 to 5. There was an improvement in the starting, the only real bad send-off being in the last race, when Hops was left at the post and a number of others getting a bad start. Otis won the Nassau handicap in a hard drive from Flora Pomona. Lombre, a heavily played second choice, was off in front, but could not handle the weight and was badly beaten. Ben MacDhui, at 6 to 1, made a runaway race of the Roslyn handicap. He was heavily played by many who had the tip. Potente and Redpath were equal favorites, and the first-named may have been best, but he was interefered with on the first turn and had a stormy journey all the way. Burns, Shaw and Cochran took the jockey honors, each riding two winners. Summary:

First race, 7 furlongs, selling—Dr. Riddle (Burns) 1, Royal Sterling (Booker) 2, The Rogue (Redfern) 3. Time, 1:29.

Second race, selling, 1 mile and 70 yards—Althea (Cochran) 1, Merior (Redfern) 2, Raffaello (Doggett) 3. Time, 1:46⅘.

Sixth race, 1 mile and 70 yards—The Rhymer (Shaw) 1, Ethics (Burns) 2, Beggar Lady (Cochran) 3. Time, 1:46.

DANNY MAHER'S MOUNTS.

New York, Nov. 4.—According to the Newmarket (England) correspondent of the World, Danny Maher, the little American jockey, is now the premier rider of the world. He has been engaged to ride the horses in charge of Trainers T. Blackwell and Richard Marsh, at the combined salary of $35,000 for next season —the highest amount ever paid any jockey in the world for a year's work in the saddle. Richard Marsh trains for King Edward VII. The engagement of Maher as jockey is regarded as a tactful way of expressing the King's opinion that he is not prejudiced against American riders. Maher spoke to the World's representative on the subject of his engagement to ride King Edward's horses. "My first engagement next season," he said, "is for T. Blackwell's stable, and Richard Marsh is to have second call on my services. Marsh trains for King Edward, and my retainer, of course, includes riding the King's horses. This has been the most successful season I have ever had. I have ridden 85 winners this year. I rode three today. I think the English tracks are better than the American courses; the former are much easier to ride on. I have been treated very well. I will go to my home in Hartford, Conn., in December but will return here in March. It is possible the King's horses may be again leased next year to the Duke of Devonshire, in which event I shall not ride in the King's colors."

NEW TRACK RECORDS AT LAKESIDE.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Steve L'Hommedieu backed his big sprinter heavily in the third race at Lakeside yesterday, forcing the odds at one time to 3 to 5, only to see the gelding easily defeated by Andes, at 10 to 1. Two new track records were hung out. In the second race Nellie Waddell ran 4½ furlongs in :54⅘c, lowering the record by one-fifth of a second. In the mile and a furlong handicap Hermencia went the distance in 1:52⅘, lowering the mark from 1:53¼. Summaries:

First race, 1 mile, selling—Helen Paxton 1, Cora Havill II. 2, Moroni 3. Time, 1:42⅗.

Second race, 4½ furlongs—Nellie Waddell 1, Duke of Connaught 2, Golden Glitter 3. Time, :54⅘.

Third race, 6 furlongs—Andes 1, St. Cuthbert 2, Bummer 3. Time, 1:14.

The Best Medicine for Mothers

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

"Words cannot express how grateful I am for your kind advice and your 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Mrs. D. B. Barricks, of Perrows, Campbell Co., Va. "I feel that it has cured me. I had been in poor health for four years. Suffered greatly with my right side, also with bearing down pains, and my nerves were in a dreadful state. After using four bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' I am now well. I am the mother of two children. With the first child I suffered twenty-eight hours, and with the second I used your medicine and was sick only three hours. I believe Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to be the best medicine in the world for suffering females. I wish you great success, and hope that God will bless you in your noble work."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser in paper covers is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

PRIEST DECLARED NEGRO INNOCENT,

But the North Carolina Assaulter Was Executed.

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 4.—At Fayetteville, N. C., at 10:15 Saturday morning, Louis Council, a negro, convicted of committing assault on a young white woman, Mrs. James West, in Cumberland county, was hanged.

On the scaffold Council was asked if he was guilty. He replied: "Before God and man I am innocent," and the priest taking the cross from Council's hand declared him innocent. When the trap was sprung, the rope broke and the negro's body fell to the floor. Another rope was secured, and the prisoner coolly walked on the scaffold. In a few moments he was dead.

At Salta, in Argentina, a list of boys and girls who have failed to attend school is published in the newspapers.

ENTHUSIASM EVERYWHERE!

The Duke and Duchess at Home Again.

They Get the Heartiest Sort of Welcome—Profoundly Impressed With the Kindness Shown Them Everywhere.

London, Nov. 4.—Before the duke and duchess disembarked at Portsmouth on Saturday the mayor and corporation were received by their royal highnesses, to whom an address of welcome was presented, to which the duke, in reply, after expressing his thanks, said:

"Our journey has extended over 33,000 miles by sea and 12,000 miles by land. Everywhere we have been profoundly impressed with the kindness and affectionate enthusiasm extended to us, by the universal declarations of loyalty to the throne and by the conscious pride in the partnership of our great empire which so unmistakably declared itself. We have gained great, pleasant and profitable experience, have made many friends, and we hope some good results may be secured by the drawing more closely together of the various parts of the empire through the sympathy and personal regard which we feel have been developed during the fulfillment of the proud mission intrusted to me by my father, the King.

The royal train arrived at Victoria railroad station at 12:56 p.m. Immense crowds of people gathered there to welcome the royal party.

THE STARS AND STRIPES.

All the way to Marlborough House the route was well lined, and several parts were profusely decorated, while the Stars and Stripes and the Danish flag were also frequently seen.

There were 4,000 troops on duty at Victoria Station. The colonial agents presented an address to the Duke of Cornwall and York, who replied in much the same terms as he used earlier in the day at Portsmouth, when he dilated on the enjoyment he had derived from his trip, and his gladness at seeing his native land again after his deeply interesting journey, at every point of which he had been profoundly impressed by the universal declaration of loyalty to the throne. The agents-general of the colonies also presented an address to the King, who handed them a written reply, as follows:

REPLY TO THE COLONIALS.

"I thank you for your loyal and dutiful address on the return of my beloved son and daughter-in-law from their visit to the portions of my realm of which you are the representatives. It was not without natural anxiety and hesitation that I sanctioned the departure of the heir apparent to my throne on a voyage which involved many months of separation. But it was my earnest desire to give effect to the plans of my late revered mother, and to the aspirations of my loyal subjects in the colonies, of whose devotion and patriotism I have received such signal proof in the signal service they have rendered to the empire in South Africa, and I am fully repaid by the complete success which attended the visit, and by the manifestations of devotion and loyalty which the presence of the duke and duchess everywhere evoked."

The members of the royal family and their suites rode in open carriages. The King wore a field marshal's uniform, the Duke of Cornwall and York wore the uniform of a rear admiral, and Prince Edward of York was dressed in sailor clothes.

ONE DISCORDANT NOTE.

The one discordant note in the general rejoicing over the safe return of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York was the mixed greeting accorded Lord Roberts, after the official reception of the duke and duchess. Lord Roberts had been cheered in the company of other officers earlier in the day, but while he was returning from St. James' Palace alone in his carriage considerable hooting was heard from the sidewalk, indicating that Buller's ghost is by no means completely laid.

Another report says: In all the vast dominions which the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York have visited during their great seven months' tour, nowhere have they been received with greater enthusiasm than when they drove through the streets of London today. The warmth of their reception from the crowded populace seemed to sum up and concentrate all that love and admiration which they have gathered to themselves in the fifty thousand miles they have traversed by land and sea. When one just thinks of it, how fitly chosen, how fitly named was the Ophir, the Argo of golden opinions and golden hopes, but the feeling that there is nothing so pure and unalloyed as the truly British sentiment of home found full expression in London today.

A FAMILY INCIDENT.

In connection with the change in the programme of yesterday's reception a pretty incident transpired. The original plans provided for the sailing of the Victoria and Albert from Portsmouth at 11 o'clock, but one of the children of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York was so insistent upon being taken at once "to my mummy," that the King laughingly yielded, and the yacht started an hour ahead of time with the royal children in a great state of gleeful excitement, laughing and dragging their grandmother about the deck in order to get a better view of the saluting ships. Arrived at the vicinity of Yarmouth, Isle of Wight, the King and his grandsons boarded a steam pinnace and put to sea, but the weather was so stormy that it was found too dangerous to attempt to board the Ophir, and so the party was obliged to return to the Victoria and Albert.

THE DUKE'S MISSION.

London, Nov. 4.—At the dinner on board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, King Edward, toasting the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, gave a sketch of their tour. Referring to their arrival at Cape Town, his majesty said:

"There, unfortunately, the war is still prolonged; but we firmly pray for the re-establishment of peace and prosperity." In conclusion the King said: "In all the colonies visited they fulfilled their mission, expressing the gratitude of the mother country for aid generously accorded her in the hour of need, and they were everywhere received with a cordiality of joyous enthusiasm which could not have been surpassed."

The Duke of Cornwall, in a felicitous response, testified to the "intense and enthusiastic loyalty shown by the people everywhere to the King and the throne," and also to "the deep love of the mother country, which was everywhere spoken of as 'home.'"

THE TALLEST CHIMNEY.

Its Outline Is More Than 656 Feet Above the Surrounding Country.

[From Power.]

Experience has shown that the height of factory chimneys is not alone dependent on how much smoke or other "special poisonous gases" have to be removed by it. On the contrary, it is essential that a chimney, especially when it has to remove poisonous and other detritus products of combustion containing dangerous and unhealthy poison, not alone for human beings, but for plants as well, it is to be constructed to such a height that the escaping gasses produce no harm, especially at chemical factories and gas works, where, in most cases, the poisonous and dangerous products of combustion escape before they enter the flue, thus demanding frequently the costly construction, which is often found impossible to carry out.

After the experience of today, an outlet height of about 300 feet above the level is considered sufficient to prevent harmful action to plant life, as well as the interference with the health of people living in the vicinity of the chimney. Should this territory be surrounded with wooded heights, it is well to increase in the same ratio the height of the chimney. In rolling or hilly country, the outlet of the chimney must be placed at least 300 feet above the highest point of the surrounding hills; a chimney in the valley would, in consequence of this great height, cost so much that it is cheaper to build the flue of the chimney on this highest point, and erect the chimney proper on the already existing higher plane supplied by nature.

On account of this aforesaid condition, the Royal Saxon Smelting Works at Halsbruckle, in Freiberg, were compelled to build a high chimney, which can safely be considered to be the highest and most prominent chimney of this century. This chimney has a height above the surrounding plane of 459 feet. The height of the chimney itself is 429 feet 6 inches, and the square base is 29 feet 6 inches, and, therefore, at the time of its completion, in 1889, was the highest chimney in the world. The top internal diameter is over 8 feet. This enormous height did not suffice to supply sufficient security for the surrounding neighborhood against the outgoing gases, and, therefore, this chimney was erected upon one of the adjoining highest hills, which is 197 feet higher than the smelting works, situated in the valley. In consequence of this position, the chimney obtains an additional height, and increased efficiency equivalent to a height of over 656 feet.

As this chimney could not be placed next to the factory, but was built, as before mentioned, upon the highest hill, a flue of over 1,640 feet was constructed, which runs part of the distance over a bridge, specially built to hold the construction over the River Mulde, which separates the factory from the hill upon which the chimney is built, thereby reducing to a rational amount the cost of the construction, the outlet of the said chimney being about 300 feet above the adjoining plane.

Notwithstanding this great saving by the construction of the flue, and utilizing nature for the additional height, the chimney alone cost over $31,000; the construction of the 1,640 feet or flue $25,000, hence the total cost is about $56,000, including excavations, foundations, and the necessary iron rings; the two latter items cost $2,620. But even this tremendous cost has been a good investment so far, as the company has not been compelled to pay any damages to the surrounding property holders since the erection of this big chimney; whereas before divers claims had to be satisfied to the extent of 40 per cent, according to governmental decisions.

The chimney was erected according to the design of master mechanic O. Huppner, in Freiberg, in Saxony, by the largest and most prominent of chimney builders, H. R. Heinecke, and was begun upon Sept. 25, 1888, and completed on Oct. 28, 1889. The system employed was the perforated radial brick, in the same method as was pursued in the erection of the two chimneys at the works of Adam Weber Sons, at Weber, N. J., on the Raritan River, which system this firm is now introducing in America. Juding by results, and the general demands in this line, it will not be long before America will surpass this big construction with a still taller chimney.

The following data will be of interest, showing the immensity of the construction: The base of the chimney lies 30 feet under the level, and is 19 feet 3 inches square, covering an area of 1,550 square feet. The following quantity of material was used, viz.: 13,883 cubic feet of foundation work; 17,736 cubic feet for pedestal, 63,666 cubic feet for the column, giving a total of 95,285 cubic feet of mason work. The mason work had a special weight of 124.8 pound per cubic foot; the entire lot then to be carried was 5,308¾ gross tons, and the weight to be sustained by the foundation, at a dead calm, was 3.45 tons per square foot. In consideration of the normal wind pressure of 25.62 pounds per square foot, which is officially accepted in Germany as a statical calm for chimneys, the weight to be sustained by the foundations is increased to 4¾ tons per square foot.

There is no doubt that this chimney with all its details and peculiarities, is one of the greatest works ever erected in this particular line, and is accepted today by the official organs of Germany as a standard of chimney construction.

McGILL STUDENTS DEMOLISH AN ARCH.

Montreal, Nov. 2.—The McGill students got out on a Hallowe'en time last night, and demolished the arch erected at the entrance to the college grounds in honor of the Duke of York's visit. Ropes were thrown around the structure and several hundred students pulled until it was leveled. It is proposed to erect a permanent arch in its place. The arch was a copy of the Branderburg Gate in Berlin, and was built of wood and stucco.

About Small People.

Not long before his death, Canon Kingsley drew attention to the surprising number of small young men to be seen in a London crowd. According to him it was a sign of the deterioration of the race. But there are two ways of looking at everything, and, for the comfort and satisfaction of small people, we would point out that it might also be taken as an indication of intellectual progress. Many—we might also say most—of the great men of history have been of small stature, from the days of that ancient philosopher, who, as the story goes, was so diminutive that he had to carry lead in his pocket to prevent his being blown away. Canute the Great, for example, was an exceedingly small man; Napoleon, too, was little; Nelson had no height to boast of; and the great Conde was short enough. Hildebrand — Gregory the Seventh — the mightiest of all the popes, was also quite a diminutive person. Then amongst men of letters, poets and philosophers, Montaigne, the essayist, was little; so was Pope—"a little crooked thing that asks questions;" so was Dryden; so was Dr. Watts, who insisted, as we all know, on the mind being the stature of the man; and so was Scarron, who, alluding at once to his ill-health and his little size, called himself an "abridgment of human miseries." Will anyone, after such names as these—and the list might be indefinitely extended—look down on little men with disdain?

CARRIE TARRIED BETWEEN TRAINS.

Pittsburg, Nov. 4.—Carrie Nation, the "smasher," arrived in Pittsburg Saturday morning. She came from Buffalo and is en route to Wheeling.

Having some time between trains at her disposal, Mrs. Nation proceeded to put in an early appearance at the restaurant and saloon of George Dimling on Diamond street.

Mrs. Nation created considerable excitement, made threats, etc., but before the well-worn blade of her hatchet got in its work, Mrs. Nation was in the hands of the detective and en route to the Central police station, where she was held by the officer until the time of departure of her train for Wheeling.

The jewelry store of Charles Kerr, of Silver Springs, near Warsaw, N. Y., was burglarized and property to the amount of $2,000 was carried off.

A Maryland Professor Commends the Ontario Agricultural College.

Toronto, Nov. 4.—In a letter to Mr. G. C. Creelman, superintendent of Farmers' Institutes, Mr. W. L. Amoss, of the Maryland Agricultural College, who visited this province several weeks ago, says: "The Ontario Agricultural College is without doubt the best of the twelve institutions of its kind that I have visited in the Northern States and Canada for educating farmers' sons for the farm. Each member of the faculty seems to thoroughly understand his work, and is doing all in his power for the young men under his charge. The neatness of the entire institution is particularly noticeable, and Dr. Mills is quite right in keeping before his students and visitors a high ideal of farm practice." While in Ontario Mr. Amoss made a study of the Farmers' Institute system with a view to introducing it in his own state.

WAS NOT A CANADIAN.

A number of Canadian papers on Saturday published the statement that Col. Benson, who was mortally wounded in the engagement in the Eastern Transvaal on Thursday, was a son of the late Col. Benson, of St. Catharines. Seeing this report, the family of Sir John Carling, who are intimately acquainted with the Bensons, of St. Catharines, wired Mr. Wilkie, of Toronto, brother-in-law of the Canadian colonel, for information, and in reply received the welcome news that the latter is at present in the service of the war office in London, and in the best of health. The Col. Benson, who fell in the battle above referred to, is an Englishman, and not a relative of the St. Catharines family. A St. Catharines dispatch says: Col. Benson had been chief staff officer to Gen. Kelly-Kenny and returned to England with that officer. He has since that time held a commission in the war office. Mr. Chas. I. Benson, his brother, of this city, had a letter from him, dated London, last week.

TAKE THEM OUT

Or Feed Them on Food They Can Study On.

When a student begins to break down from lack of the right kind of food, there are only two things to do; either take him out of school or feed him properly on food that will rebuild the brain and nerve cells. That food is Grape-Nuts.

A boy writes from Jamestown, N. Y., saying: "A short time ago I got into a bad condition from overstudy, but Mother having heard about Grape-Nuts Food began to feed me on it. It satisfied my hunger better than any other food, and the results were marvelous. I got fleshy like a good fellow. My usual morning headaches disappeared, and I found I could study for ao long period without feeling the effects of it.

"After I had been using Grape-Nuts Food for about two months I felt like a new boy altogether. My face had been pale and thin, but is now round and has considerable color. I have gained greatly in strength as study now that I am not bothered with my head. I passed all of my examinations with a reasonably good percentage, extra good in some of them, and it was Grape-Nuts that saved me from a year's delay in entering college.

"Father and Mother have both been improved by the use of Grape-Nuts Food. Mother was troubled with sleepless nights, and got very thin, and looked careworn. She has gained her normal strength and looks, and sleeps well nights." Don E. Cooner

REV. DR. SOWERBY ON ECONOMY.

Rev. Dr. Sowerby, pastor of the Talbot Street Baptist Church, spoke to a large gathering of men in the Auditorium yesterday, his subject being "Economy." His address, which was very forcible, was listened to with marked attention. Dr. Sowerby was very outspoken in his denunciation of modern extravagant customs, particularly such customs as the wearing of mourning, which he termed a piece of barbarism. "The boys," said the speaker, "start where their fathers left off, and they leave off where their fathers start."

FAVORED BY THE LAW!

Illinois Judge Rules That Married Men May Spank Their Wives.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Judge Chetlain has rendered a legal decision that a man may spank his wife without being guilty of extreme and repeated cruelty. Mrs. Anna V. Harris feelingly related her tale of woe to the court. She spoke thus:

"I approached my husband one evening to caress him. He pushed me away. He said he did not love me any more. I burst into tears. He pushed me through the door and spanked me with his hand. I had my might dress on at the time. I felt very much hurt."

Judge Chetlain said that he did not consider one spanking sufficient cause for divorce and the case was dismissed.

FUNGUS VS. GRAPES

Sandwich East Fruit Grower Lost Most of His Crop—He Thinks the Outlook for the Industry Is Bad.

Windsor, Nov. 4.—G. H. Bennett, a large fruit grower of the township of Sandwich East, is authority for the statement that the grape industry of Essex county is threatened with extermination by a fungus growth, which has attacked the vines and fruit this years. He says that the ravages of this pest caused him the loss of two-thirds of his crop, and he believes that in time it will extend all over his vineyard.

"I first noticed the pest appearing on the vines in the month of June," said Mr. Bennett, "but did not pay much attention to it at the time. However, when the fruit commenced to ripen I noticed a majority of the bunches drying up and, upon investigation, I found that the destruction was caused by a species of dry rot. It appeared to spread all over a bunch and the fruit would dry up on the vines and become worthless.

"I discovered during my investigations that the fruit on the young vines was practically immune from the pest, but on the old vines a great many of the bunches of grapes were ruined. I am of the opinion that if the pest attacks the old vines again next year, there will not be sufficient crop to pay for the picking of the fruit.

"To give you an idea of how hard I was hit by the plague, I have only to tell you that my grape crop amounted to about 25 tons when I should have had 60 or 70 tons. Other fruit growers have told me that their vines were attacked in the same manner, and it is not a very cheerful outlook for what you may call our staple fruit product in North Essex.

"It is claimed that there is a preparation which, if sprayed on the vines will prevent the growth of this fungus on the fruit, but I am rather skeptical about the cure. The fruit growers have been told from time to time that a certain preparation will prevent a similar disease among the plum trees, but I have not yet heard where one of these preventives was used successfully."

ELEVEN DEATHS CHARGED NURSE.

Developments in Supposed Murder Come to Light.

Rejected Lover, Recently Released From Prison, Causes Triple Tragedy.

Barnstable, Mass., Nov. 4.—The developments in the alleged Gibbs murder case, for which Miss Jennie Toppan is under arrest, come thick and fast. Officers have discovered that in Watertown there died a person some time ago, known and attended by Miss Toppan. This death is being investigated today. Assistant District Attorney Holmes says that every one of the eleven deaths which have occurred and apparently have some suspicious circumstances connected with Miss Toppan's career, will be investigated. Miss Toppan's counsel and the state have agreed to another postponement of the hearing, and it does not seem likely that the case will come up for two weeks at least.

Stomachs That Won't Work,

That Retain the Food and Refuse to Digest It, Make the Head Heavy and the Nerves Weak, Need Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

There is a cure for dyspepsia. Sufferers who have tried noxious nostrums will probably be skeptical but skepticism vanishes when Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are tried. Whether the trouble is dyspepsia of long standing, or merely a simple case of indigestion, relief is prompt and pronounced. The less the trouble the fewer tablets need be taken.

Heaviness after eating, sour stomach, as indicated by belching, fatigue with slight exertion or with no exertion at all, disturbed sleep, nervousness, constipation, depression, "blues," these things can commonly be set down as symptoms of dyspepsia. And dyspepsia is merely indigestion in an aggravated form.

By promoting perfect digestion, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets produce strong nerves, restful, refreshing sleep, pure blood and good, sound, healthy flesh. They make the skin clear, the eyes bright, the mind cheerful.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a medicine and more than a medicine. They digest the food and make it easy of assimilation, and they relieve the inflamed, diseased condition of the membraneous linings and the glands of the stomach and bowels. They help the digestive organs over the hard places, and put them into a healthy, active condition. They effect a quick and permanent cure. You don't have to continue taking them forever, still it is well to have a box handy and take one at the first return of the trouble.

Perfectly well people are made sick by eating too much, or unwholesome food, but not if they take a tablet after eating. Treatment with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets does not necessitate dieting or any change of habits. They digest the proper food and act upon the other kind in such a way as to make it pass off quickly and harmlessly. You may eat and drink what you like, when you like, and as much as you like, if you take a tablet afterwards.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at 50 cents for full size package.

Send to F. A. Stuart Company, Marshall, Mich., for little book on stomach diseases, mailed free.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY.

Amsterdam, N. Y., Nov. 2.—At 2 o'clock this morning Frederick Bankert gained admittance to the apartments of Wm. Green, who lived in the second story of a house on Elizabeth street. He killed Green by shooting him in the neck with a revolver and splitting his head open with a hatchet. Bankert also shot Mrs. Green and cut her head open with the hatchet, inflicting fatal wounds. Bankert then shot himself through the heart, dying instantly.

Bankert gained entrance to Green's apartments by climbing up a rope ladder on the outside of the building and entering a window.

Mrs. Green was formerly Miss Cora B. Harrison. She was an accomplished amateur actress and a handsome and attractive woman. Bankert fell in love with her, but she did not reciprocate his affection. Maddened by jealousy he made a murderous assault upon her in November, 1895. He called at her home early one morning, and, after getting her out of the house, shot her twice through the head and then slashed her throat. Her recovery was remarkable.

Bankert afterwards pleaded guilty to assault in the first degree and was sentenced to eight years in prison, being released with the customary allowance for good behavior.

While Bankert was confined in state prison Miss Harrison married William Green. Bankert's insane jealousy remained after his release from prison and caused him to fatally wound Mrs. Green and kill her husband. Bankert was 30 years old, Mrs. Green 26 and Mr. Green 22. Green was a prominent young man and belonged to Company H., New York State National Guard.
