Raised by Conservatives.

THE UNCONTESTED ELECTIONS.

Both parties resolved to waste no money in constituencies that gave no reasonable promise of return in the elections, and that resolution accounts for the fact that seats which were contested by the Liberals in 1886 have been allowed to go to the other sade to-day without a contest, and vice versa. Wherever the Liberals met defeat only by a narrow margin in 1886 they have soundly concluded that they have more than a chance now of recapturing the seat, and in some constituencies where they met with signal reverses in the last campaign circumstances have since arisen to give good ground for expecting a Liberal victory now. But no money has been wasted in the nomination of candidates on a will-o'-the-wisp-peculation. THE UNCONTESTED ELECTIONS.

A BIG ELECTION FUND. The Tories have raised a tremendous clection fund, no less, it is reported than $1,500,000. This money is largely contributed by men who are not in politics, like the Dake of Westminster, Baron Hirsch, Colonel North and others, who are either afraid that their vested interests will be affected unfortunately by Liberal success or who hope for favors from a Tory Government. Baron Hirsch has his eye on a British peerage, and means to get it if a lavish use of money will enable him to get it. The Liberals have not a large election fund, and they will, therefore, be hampered to some extent in those legimate expenditures permitted by law—expenditures comparatively small in each instance, but the continuous in the aggregate of a general election. fund, no less, it is reported than

THE LABOR CANDIDATES.

The Labor candidates will figure more onspicuously in this than in any previous conspicuously in this than in any previous election. Besides the nine Labor members of the late Parliament, all of whom are standing again, there are 29 other Labor candidates in English constituencies. Six of the new men are miners, and of these Mr. Woods, who stands for the Inco division of Lancashire; Mr. Aspinall, who stands for Wigas, and Mr. Johnson, in North Warwickshire, have a clear course before them. Mr. Arch and Mr. Ball, agricultural laborers, have been taken up by the Liberals of Northwest Norfolk and East Sussex. Mr. W. J. Davis and Mr. Bloor have been chosen by the Gladstonians of Birmingham as the men most likely to or have been chosen by the Gladstomans slimmingham as the men most likely to t Messrs. Kollings and Kenrick. THE KEYNOTE OF THE CAMPAIGN. Mr. Gladstone's address in Edinburgh is Mr. Gladstone's address in Edinburgh is the topic everywhere and is eagerly persect by both parties. The Tories accuse Mr. Cladstone of raising a class issue and of pandering to the popular prejudice against the rich and titled in order to gratify his personal ambition for power. The Liberals, on the other hand, argue that Mr. Gladstone has effectually spiked the guns of his adversaries, and that he has answered completely the charge that there was something hidden in his scheme of home rule. They assert that his arraignment of the educated and upper classes is more than justified by the history of the country within the last 50 years, and that Mr. Gladstone has gladly vindicated the right and the ability of the common people of Great Britain to control and direct the aflairs of the nation.

There is no doubt that Mr. Gladstone has truck a most popular keynote, There is a tremendous rush to-day for his speech, and its already being made ready in pamphet form for distribution throughout the United Kingdom. The Liberals regard it as the platform of their campaign, and will be guided by it everywhere in their appeals to the voters. topic everywhere and is eagerly per-Justed Kingdom. The Liberais regard it as the platform of their campaign, and will be guided by it every where in their appeals to the voters.

The enthusiasm of Mr. Gladstone's reception in Edinburgh is also contrasted by the Liberals with the display of popular antagonism that greeted the Conservative leader, Mr. Balfour, in Sheffield, and many of the Tories also admit that the contrast is ominous. On the other hand, the Tories profess to derive consolation from the fact that they have nothing to lose in Edinburgh, and that, outside of the partial representation of Edinburgh University, which returns one member along with St. Andrew's University, the whole Edinburgh representation is Liberal. The Tories point out that the multitude that greeted Mr. Gladstone spoke for a Liberal city, and their enhusiasm did not mean the change of a seat. Notwithstanding these arguments, there is no doubt that the Liberals are greatly inspirited by Mr. Gladstone's reception in Edinburgh.

ARRIVAL OF HON. EDWARD BLAKE.
LONDON, July 4.—Hon. Edward Blake arrived by the Allan steamship Parisian this morning at Moville. He appeared in excellent health and spirits, but is very precisent. It is generally understood that he will say nothing till he has viewed the position of affairs. He was received very cordially by a number of Roman Catholic priests and prominent Home Rulers, and then escorted to an hotel. Mr. Blake will proceed without delay to Seuth Longford, which it is expected he will contest. Many Home Rulers think he will be elected by acclamation, but even if there is a contest his friends say there is no fear of the result, as at the last election in 1885 L. Connolly was elected by acclamation, and on the retirement of Mr. Connolly in June, 1888, J. G. Fitzgerald was returned unopposed. Both were staunch Home Rulers.

HOME RULERS' DEATH STRUGGLE.

LONDON, July 4.—The financial assistance from friends of the Federation in America came very conveniently for the Nationalist cause, and will invigorate the party in the struggle of next week, but it is considered almost too late now for money to have any decisive effect in the Irish elections. The contest has opened both in Great Britain and Ireland. Tuesday may tell the fate of home rule so far as the next Parliament is concerned, and before the close of the week the world will know whether Saliybury or Gladstone is to govern the British Empire. the British Empire.

Significant Liberal Gains in British Elections.

Several Splendid Victories in London and Elsewhere.

Interesting Analysis of the Voting So Far.

LONDON, July 5 .- The first day's engagement in the great election contest did not go off quite so well as the more sanguine expected. Out of 48 boroughs reported the Liberals show a net gain of 8. This proportion would give a gain of some 0 borough seats in the whole kingdom, but the boroughs are not the true field for the test of the Liberal strength. Their elections throughout as in 1885 has been in agricultural constituencies, not the pro-vincial towns and even more London. The Liberal gains and losses in yesterday's fight give little indication as to the feeling in fight givelittle indication as to the feeling in the nation. They won elections in the four provincial boroughe of Durham, Hereford Lincoln and Reading. They lost heavily in the Episcopal town of Rochester. On the other hand they won in the manufacturing towns of Bradford and Stockport, but lost in an unexpected fashion in York and Nottingham. This last place is the only one where the eight-hour agitation, which at one time threatened such dire mischief to the Liberals, has done any harm. Here Broadhurst, who was one of the erstwhile Labor members, has been erstwhile Labor members, has been eated by the candidature of a more ranced workingman candidate standing dvanced workingman candidate standing an eight-hour platform. A much more istinguished eight-hour chempion, Ben illet, failed, however, to unseat Alfred llingworth in Bradford. Of other Pro-nicial contests the most interesting was aat at Greenock, where Sir Thomas Illingworth in Bradford. Of other Provincial contests the most interesting was that at Greenock, where Sir Thomas Satherland, president of the Peninsular and Griental steamer line, and a leading Liberal Unionist of Scotland, has been soundly beaten. But of yesterday's polling the chief interest attaches to the two districts of Westham, which are substantially part of Loudon. These two went Tory is years ago by majorities of $\pi^2 7$ and $306$. The Liberals carry them in $\pi^2$ by $27$ and $1,232$. These victories are halfied with exceptional lervor because they are taken as a guide of what Loudon will do in the next three days. If their promise is infiflled and the country districts rise to be the measure of experiment, it is still on the gards that Gladstone will have 100 majority. This is rendered all the more probable by the fact that the Tory local imagnates as a habitual trick chose for the first day's polling the seats most likely to show gains for their party. To-day's list vill give better results from the Liberal point of view.

PARTICULARS OF MONDAY'S VOTING

LONDON, July 5.—If the contested elec-tions of yesterday are an indication of the bondon, July 5.—If the contested elecdecis of yesterday are an indication of the slimate result, the next Parliament will be overwhelmingly Liberal, and Ireland twill have home rule. Of course to-day's elections are not decisive. It will take until Tuceday to tell the story with any assurance, but the figures point to a tidal wive sweeping Mr. Gladstone into the Framiership and establishing an Irish Parlament again in College Green. The battle has not been won, but it has been well lagun, and Liberals everywhere are rejoicing over the results so far achieved. The total results are: Elected, 95; Conservatives, 49; Liberals, 39; Liberal Unionists, The Liberals have yound eleven seats,
the Tories two, and their allies, the Liberal Unionists, have gained one seat. The net gain for the Liberal party and Irish home rule is therefore eight seats.

BRILLIANT PROSPECTS.

The Star says if the average of yesterday's gains is only maintained it will give the Liberals a majority of 150 in the next Parliament, while there is a practical certainty that it will be exceeded. The defeat yesterday of Sir T. LONDON, July 4.—Free traders are elated in regard to the proceedings of the conference of the Chambers of Commerce. The Pall Mall Gazette is of the opinion that the United States has become such an expensive country to live in that the Canadians, by making their country a cheap one, could divert a stream of emigration from the States to Manitoba. Canada has need to take heroic measures in this direction, for the predicted emigration beom has not come to pass despite the help given to the agents by the Board of Trade and Postoffice Department. —The number of factories reported in operation in Ontario in 1891 was $38. The 45,066 patrons supplied 865,453,574 pounds of milk from 296,196 cows. The factories made 81,929,042 pounds of cheese, which was sold for 87,656,484. The total output was 13,000,000 pounds higher than the average for nine years. The number of patrons per cheese factory was 544.

—Glass in the dairy is seldom used in large quantity, but even when fitted in cans for gauges they are liable to get broken and make endless trouble. The thermometer is the only glass implement aside from parts of testing machinery—as churns, paddles, butter-prints, etc.—it is a necessary evil to be tolerated, not encouraged. We have known dairies, excellent in other appiontments, that used wooden covers for pans that alone and unknown to the owner caused nine-tenths of all the trouble that came to the butter. If you do not telleve this, take any of the wooden implements in use in the dairy a long time, carry it out into the open air far enough from the dairy for your lungs to get full of fresh, pure air, and then carefully smell the old wood and see if you cannot detect the oder of old butter in it. From constant use cream gets spilt upon the wood and the oil sinks into it, and to such an extent that no amount of scrubbing can remove it, and heat with time renders butter-oil extremely rank. If this old oder comes in soure to absorb the odor to its great injury. Such wooden covers should be entirely abandoned and sheets of tin or galvanized iron substituted, if covers must be used. With the churn and butter-worker the only remedy is constant scrubbing and watchfulness.—[The New Dairy.

Oats have much narrower leaves than barley when the blade first appears above the surface. This is mainly because there is less substance in the seed, that being what furnishes material for the leaf at first. But oats sown after the soil has been warmed, come up with broader leaf than that sown early while air and soil are cold. Sometimes rolling those early sown pieces will induce new and more vigorous growth, the second leaves starting up from the rost being broader and stronger than the first.

ARE THE ABSENT ONES "CHAFF?" Col. Denison, in a recent address, sneered at the Canadians who have been driven from Canada to the United States in search of work as "the chaff," those remaining behind being "the winnowed grain." As there is scarcely a family in Canada which does not have a member making a living in the adjoining country, including that of Col. Denison himself, the sneer was hardly seemly. It was certainly undeserved. Judging by our own experience in Western Ontario, it can safely be asserted that the young men who have gone out from among us to seek a home and a living denied them here by the policy of trade restriction were the flower of our population.

There have done wall and they are less Striction were the flower of our population. They have done well, and they are less worthy of being called the chaff of the race than is the Canadian office holder who, rejoicing in a good stipend, secured at the expense of his fellows, can see no evils to remedy, no inequalities to remove so long as he is enabled to enjoy his fat berth. It is all very well for men of the official class or the pampered few to belittle the angle. pampered few to belittle the exodus which has been stimulated by the trade restriction policy. But it is a serious matter for the average father and mother. They see their sons departing one by one to the country that provides wider opportuities for making a living than does Canada under its present management, while their daughters are left hebited. To place agency of of ters are left behind. In nine cases out of ten, the young men settle down and marry in their new homes. They are influenced, as a matter of course, by their

as a matter of course, by surroundings to choose helpmeets from their immediate associates, while the matrimonial market in Canada is clogged through the fact that while the ranks of marriagable young men is deci-mated by emigration, a surplus of marriag-able women is left behind. This is an aspect of the case that is being forced upon parents in every rank in the older Prov-inces, and it is one worthy of more than a paging nate by the public journalist. Colpassing note by the public journalist. Col. passing note by the public journalist. Col. Denison may continue to hold that the stalwart young Canadians who have left the Dominion, through no lack of love for their native land, are but the chaff, the refuse, of the population. If he will come down off his pedestal of superior virtue and superior lovalty long enough to make and superior loyalty long enough to make inquiry among the common people, he will find that far from regarding the hundreds of thousands of their expatriated fellow-countrymen as chaff they look upon their absence as a serious disadvantage to themsolves and to their families as well as to the whole Dominion. The social side of this question is not the least important, as parents will have no hesitation in testi-

When they want anything on the Pacific coast they make an earnest effort to get it. these names in order to have Mr. Carling usurp the seat to which Mr. Hyman was elected, Judge Elliot resolved that they should be counted. He was enabled to do so by the provision of the infamous Franchise Act which enacts that the county judge shall be the final authority on the question of who shall or shall not be placed on the lists as a voter. And now that the bogus names are on the lists, they are to be kept there, no matter what the contingency may be, for at least another year. It is a shameful decision, and one that shows how thoroughly the thin veneer of pretension to organizations are in the field, each claiming others. President Harrison will have the painter Daubingy, by Robert Wickensuport of the mass of the Republicans, and Ex. President Cleveland will be the choice of the overwhelming proportion of the possible moment, so as to prevent another miscarriage of justice if an election should be decreed within the next eighteen months. But Sir John Thompson, following out the line marked for himself when he decreed that the grave charges against Judge Elliet should not be inquired into, ordered his followers to vote down the proposition and to add twelve months' life to the bogus lists.

What a travesty on justice! From this experience we can see how completely exposed is the claim put forward for the Franchise Act—that It is an improvement on the annually revised municipal voters' lists, which were used without complaint for nearly twenty years in the life of the Gonfederation. The sooner we abandon the costly, unsatisfactory, grossly unfair aystem, or lack of system, prevailing, the better for the honest, independent elector. support because of the shortcomings of the others. President Harrison will have the either of these minor parties, or both combined, were to carry enough States to throw the election of President into the House of Representatives, where it will go it neither candidate obtains a majority of the electoral votes, Cleveland would be elected. But that contingency is scarcely among the probabilities.
Speculation will mainly be confined to how far the additional tickets will cut into the fended his misdeeds; but there is this to be big parties. Their presence in the field

Emin Pasha, the great African explorer and civilizer is a Jew. Both of his parents were Jews. His real name was Edward Schnitzer, and he is a native of Silesia, born in 1840. "Thou art no more Schnitzer, thou art Emin!" an Arabic word meaning faithful; and subsequently he became a Pasha, Among the experiences of his life there is a very romantic love story.

The new British sovereign, designed by Mr. Brock, is to be issued in a few weeks' time. Mr. Brock has retained St. George time. Mr. Brock has retained St. George and the Dragon on the reverse, but he has introduced a little realism into his design by dismounting the saint, removing the horse, and arming him with a more business-like weapon than he has hitherto been allowed. If the new design has not the advantage of the old in point of artistic merit, it has in the matter of common sense.

Maurel has published a book on singing, Maurel has published a book on singing, which he says is passing through a crisis, due to the changed condition of modern life. In old days the profession of a singer offered few attractions comparatively, and those went into it only who felt a real vocation for it, and they prepared themselves by a long and rigorous course of study. Nowadays business is the leading motive. Singing is looked on less as an art than as a way too make money, and people push into the profession in every state of crude preparation.

"ACCIDENTALLY KILLED."

Verdict of the Coroner's Jury on the Haywood Fatality-Plenty of Warning Givon by the Driver.

The coroner's inquest in connection with the death of Thomas Haywood, who was killed at the Egerton street crossing of the G. T. R. on Saturday, was held last night at the police station before Coroner Flock.

A. Dunham, the first witness, said he lived on Egerton street north of the G. T. R. track. Heard the train coming in and also heard it whistle for the semaphore and then for a distance of about 200 yards. Saw Haywood's horse stop on the track. Deceased was driving south at that the meand tried to urge the horse on. When decased saw the horse would not move he made an attempt to get out of the wagon, but it was too late. He had plenty of time to get across; the train was coming at the rate of about twenty miles an hour.

Miss Dunham, sister of the previous witness, saw Haywood driving along very leisurely; she also heard the warning; had heard that deceased was hard of hearing and also short-sighted.

Mrs. Mary Griffith's and Mrs. Mary O'Hanley's evidence was similar to the previous witness. Mrs. Camille Lee did not see the accident, but heard the whistle; did not hear the bell. Mrs. Martha Nicholls, Brydges street, was also at-

W. J. Stone was going south on Egerton street, and passed deceased about 75 feet noth of the G. T. R. track. He was in company with John Rankin. They heard the train coming and warned Haywood. They turned around and saw him struck by the train and knocked against the fence. John Rankin gave evidence corroborating Stone's.

YARMOUTH, N. S., July 4 .- A shipwreck YARMOUTH, N. S., July 4.—A shipwreck involving a loss of fourteen lives, occurred off Yarmouth harbor last night. At 9 o'clock this morning a great quantity of deals drifted ashore near the north of Chebogue Point, and then a damaged lifeboat with thirteen exhausted sailors was washed ashore in the surf, and the men were helped up to the houses and cared for. They proved to be Captain Henry Hughes, his first mate and eleven of the crew of the Liverpool ship Peter Stuart, bound from St. John to Liverpool with deals.

THE VICTIMS.

The second mate and thirteen others, in cluding the captain's wife and child, were

The Stuart was towed as far as Briar Island Saturday, and the captain, after getting within ten miles of the Lurcher buoy, ran 50 miles to west, and then headed down the bay. At 8 o'clock Sun-day evening, during a fog, the vessel struck on a rock off Chebogue Point and broke up. All the boats but the lifeboat were smashed.

All the boats but the lifeboat were smashed.

THE LIFEBOAT CAPSIZED.

In cutting away the lifeboat she capsized, and the captain's wife and child were never seen again. Some of the crew who were thrown on the floating deals from the broken up vessel managed to right the boat and found the captain still alive. All who could be seen were picked up and the boat stood by until daylight, when the first mate and some others were picked up.

STILL ANOTHER DISASTER.

With 18 out of 27 the boat started from the scene of the wreck, not a vestige of the boat remaining. The boat had been damaged, and, filling, was again capsized; but they got her righted and steered toward land. The body of Alex. Troop drifted ashore, and so far has been the only one recovered. The captain, mate and several of the crew were badly bruised, and the sail-maker had his leg broken. The vessel was uninsured. She was owned by Thos. Stevens & Son, London.

confer with you and have the second or third clauses of the agreement amended to cover the points as personally discussed and as required by our council, the princis pal one being a clause relating to a partial breach of the coverants. I received from Mr. Meredith the two drafts of agreement (Mr. Meredith 's and Mr. Bell's), with Mr. Bell's letter of May 10 quoting your decision to only adopt the agreement as drawn by Mr. Bell. I extremely regret this, as all we require is a protecting clause for the fulfillment of the coverant, for even if the council were willing to accept the word of the Grand Trunk Raiway we could not carry the bylaw with the people, and it would be useless to king before them a bylaw to be defeated.

The council are ready to close the matter at any time, and I trust when you reconsider the matter you canaccept the clauses as amended by Mr. Mereith.

I had made other declarations of love, all of them unsuccessful, I was glad to think, and yet here I was at forty—well, let us say between thirty and forty—shivering on the brink of another proposal. I had just come home to my rooms in King's Bench Waik atter dining at the Barndores. Of course I had met little Mrs. Winterton there; of course, I had taken her in to dinner—the world we both lived in was always bringing as together in that sort of way—and equally of course, I was soon dreaming over the fire of her slim, taut little figure in its dainty black silk setting. I had always liked the hame of Kate, I thought; it was homely, comfortable, and yet not commonplace. Yes, it would do very well. Nother had I any narrow-minded aversion to widows. I felt that if Mrs Winterton, who had tired the whole state of matrimony once, cared to try it again, it was scarcely for me, who had no experience, to raise objections. I had always regarded Wheller the cider, as adult deserved his fate. The exigencies of his profession, too, were not calculated to promote connubial bliss. In legal siang, his case was not on "all fours" with mine, and it knew that Mrs. Winterton and I could assily refute what one may call the Wellerian fallacy, if we wished to do so. But did we wish to? and why should we wish to? These were the questions troubling my mind at this moment.

I was too old to pretend to a mad, despairing passion, Kate was too sensible. But we were both almost alone in the world, and this I think, had brought us closer togather new acquaintances, and made us rather like old friends than new acquaintances.

She was bright, witty, Osche had a pice.

She was bright, witty, cheerful, and—yes, I think she was pretty. She had a nice little fortune, too, people said, but I had charged myself a hundred times with caring for that, and always acquitted myself honably with cheers in court. I did not lack money; my wants were few, and I could amply them without painful or anxious labor. No; I was in love with Kate Winterton, that was the fact, let me face it bravely.

Lighting a candle, for the shaded lamp was insufficient for my purpose, I rose and looked in the mirror over the mattelpiece. The candle made the worst of things, thought; it seemed to bring out all the place. In my face, and there exist here was no dust here is the harm in a few lines in a mands face? They give it character. And when I looked at my features, there was no dust about it, they were clean-cut, shapely—well I might almest any—handsome. My mother had asid it—I was her only child—over and over again, and there are things that one learns from one's parent the was passing my examination creditably, if not with ionors; and when I lifted the candle above my head it shone upon a wider parting than was either necessary or ornamental. yet she was only an earl's granddaughter. I don't think I ever had a pedigree, and I know I cut a poor figure on the oceasion in consequence. She married a wealthy American soon afterwards. I wonder what sort of a pedigree he had! As for ms, I kept a lock of her hair and wrapped it up in a newspaper cutting two years after her marriage, when she was the heroine of some sad legal proceedings that many will remember. But it was a cruel, ugly way of keeping the foolish relic, and I burnt it long ago, I am glad to say. I saw her at Brinton quite recently. Her eyes were still brown and beautiful, still honest, perhaps, to those who did not know her story. Why should I recall it? I escaped.

Lively Tilt Between Mr. Edgar and Sir Adolphe Caron-"Who is the Shirker?"

The House then went into committee on the railway subsidies.

Mr. Edgar made a vigorous protest against the resolution granting $21,600 to the Temiscouata Railway Company. Not one of these men did any work during the time the strike lasted, and their families, numbering probably 650,000 souls, had to suffer until the fight could be kept up no longer. It was about Sept. 19 before the various sections of the association met and decided to abandon their demand and
