ROSEBERY'S STRONG SPEECH A SURPRISE FOR CHAMBERLAIN

Was Hoped He Would Be On the Fair Trade Side.

ANOTHER ATTACK BY ASOUITH

Idea of Rosebery Bidding For the Liberal, Leadership Is Not Generally Entertained.

London, Oct. 14. - The Earl of Rosebery's strong free trade speech last night was a great disappointment to the supporters of Mr. Chamberlain, who had apparently hoped, basing their hope on the ambiguous speech his lordship made at Burnley some time ago, that he might be found on the side of the fair traders. This disappointment is increased by a hint given by Lord Rosebery in his speech that he is willing to actively lead or assist in the fight against protection, though this reference was exceedingly vague. DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE.

The Duke of Devonshire has also notified his intention to actively co-operate with the Unionist Free Food League; the compaign, therefore, promises to become increasingly energetic. Mr. Asquith, the Liberal leader, whose recent speech Lord Rosebery advised should be published in pamphlet form as a "complete and crushing refutation of the policy," speaking at Newport, Fifeshire, has again attacked Mr.Chamberlain's proposals, which, he declares, would bring Great Britain into conflict with the world at large. Mr. Asquith said that it would be a calamity for the empire to become self-contained. The empire was itself, he said, only a constituent part of the great common wealth of nations, and it was in the promotion of peaceful continuation of friendly relations between the parts of that commonwealth that the best hopes for the world's future lay.

LORD BRASSEY. Lord Brassey, speaking at Rye, in defense of the Chamberlain policy, said that he had just returned from Canand he believed that only the adoption of a preferential tariff would save the empire from breakdown, because the influx of American settlers tended to the Americanization of the Northwest Territories, and an American offer of reciprocity might eventually be accepted, in which case a political union of the United States and Canada would be only a question of time. This danger would disappear if Mr. Chamberlain's scheme was adopted. Premier Ross of Ontario informed him that if Mr. Chamberlain's policy had been in force during the last 20 years the population of Canada would have been 20,000,000 better today.

PRESS COMMENT. The idea that Lord Rosebery was bidding for the leadership of the Liberal party in his speech at Sheffield, finds no support in the editorials published by the Liberal papers this morn-These express great satisfaction doubtful, as he did by his Burnley speech last May, when he said that he "did not regard free trade as a part of the Sermon on the Mount," but there is no attempt to hail him as the leader of the party.

The Conservative organs in their comments endeavor to minimize the importance of Lord Rosebery's free trade declarations by representing them show that he will remain in the same recently crossed the Servian frontier French Ambassador, M. Camben. The contending that there is nothing to mind for long.

Contest With Every Civilized Nation."

London, Oct. 14.-Lord Rosebery spoke ast night at Sheffield, whither he went in order to definitely record his opposition to Mr. Chamberlain's fiscal policy. The Earl said he doubted if there had ever been any fiscal inquiry. The ministry had probably investigated, not the nation's commerce, but the constituents. He deprecated a policy of retaliation which would land the empire in a contest with every nation in the civilized world. He held that free trade had been a great success. The new policy, instead of probably

DISSOLVE THE EMPIRE.

Protection once establised could not be uprooted, and would bring in its train trusts, monopolies and probably corruption. He ridiculed the idea that the colonies would consent not to establish new idustries for the benefit of the United Kingdom. A fair and practical imperial tariff could not be devised, and heaven protect them from the bad blood and jealousies that such an attempt would engender. What Mr. Chamberlain's friends ignored was that everything in the empire had been strong and successful because it was free and spontaneous. Lord Rosebery quoted Sir Wilfred Laurier to the effect that not restricted trade, but only the most absolute freedom, political and commercial, would succeed in building up the empire. In conclusion, his lordship said that he better and freer conditions now prevailing. They could not risk this splendid result on a hazard of the political die.

The majority of men have varicocele in the first, second or third stage. In the early stages it may cause many symptoms which the patient may not recognize as arising from this disease. In fact, we have have found on examination, varicocele, present in hundreds of cases where the patient did not know he had it at all. In time it will produce such symptoms as the following: Nervousness, weakness in the back, unsteady limbs, tired and exhausted feeling, pains in the loins, irritation of the bladder and kidneys, sediment and loss in urine, emissions at night with lewd dreams, sexual weakness and decline of manly power—these symptoms gradually develop into NERVOUS DEBILITY and IMPOTENCY. Our NEW METHOD TREATMENT WILL POSITIVELY CURE YOU AND IT IS GUARANTEED TO CURE YOU WITHOUT OPERATION. Through its vitalizing influence the wormy veins return to their normal caliber, the circulation of blood improves so the organs are properly nourished, and are restored to strength and vigor; the nerves become zirong, ambition and energy replace lassitude and despondency, all drains cease, the eyes become bright, the brain active, and you feel as a man onght to feel in perfect sexual and mental condition.

Secondary Industries-Mr. Chamberlain's Proposition.

There is one passage in Mr. Chamberlain's Glasgow speech which Sir Charles Tupper and Mr. Foster will try, it would be a good stroke of busifind it convenient to overlook in their stumping tour abroad, but which gave Lord Rosebery a handle last night at Sheffield. We refer to Mr. Chamberlain's proposal that the colonies should have artificial restrictions placed upon undertake not to establish new sec- their all-round development? It is as certain as anything can be that the economic future of Great Britain depends upon secondary industries. It is not possible to rigidly ther country. It would be an intolerable classify primary and secondary industries, but the latter may be roughly defined as those in which the crude material used is a relatively unimportant factor in the cost of the finished products; in other words, where the completed articles receive their chief value from the expenditure of labor upon them, and the mechanical processes employed in their production.

The mining of coal and of iron are, of course, primary industries of the most elementary stage. Manufactures of pig iron, or rolling mill products, or the coarser grades of cottons, woolens and other textiles are primary industhey are still primary because the raw Britain than make them at home, esmaterial is the determining item in the cost. Great Britain obtained her manufacturing supremacy through her lift at a moderate level. But to abstain primary industries and particularly from establishing new industries beher iron and steel industry. Abundant cause we can buy goods more cheaply and contiguous deposits of coal and in Great Britain, is a different thing iron and the most skillful industrial from being forbidden to establish them population in the world enabled her to if we desired to do so. Mr. Chamberproduce iron and steel more cheaply lain ought to be more familiar with than other countries. She has lost her the spirit and temper of this country Birrell told about being called to the estimated at $5,000. For this sum primacy in iron and steel production because other countries, especially the proposition seriously. Apparently he Hurst not denying that he had kicked United States, have greater stores of shares the delusion of most of his the woman with him. iron and coal and are developing them with equal skill. The mines of Great Britain have been worked for generations and necessarily the expense of taking out the product increases all the time. The economic law of diminishing returns has begun to operate; that is, the increased application of labor to the mines does not yield an increase of production greater in value countries which have the greatest supply of raw material are naturally in a better position to work up that material than a country which has to import the bulk of it. The tendency of primary industries to toward the source of supply is irresistible. Cotton factories are growing like mushrooms in the Southern States, because the cotton factory seeks the cetton field. Great Britain has maintained her ascendancy in some primary industries -cotton manufacture and shipbuilding for instance-partly because of her system of free imports which enable her to assemble materials from all parts of the world at the cheapest market price, and partly because of the inherited skill of her workers, who have been factory operatives or shipwrights from generation to generation. It is not possible that she can always keep the lead in primary industries, in competition with countries more abundantly favored with the materials taken from the earth, but there is no need to despair of her industrial future on that account. In the range of secondary industries she has a field which is not limited by her natural resources, now in the early stages of exhaustion. Whether she can hold her own in that field depends entirely upon the efficiency of her labor and the progress of chemical and mechanical discovery that £1 worth of bar iron could be manufactured into £446 worth of scissors, £657 worth of penknife blades, In this case the price of the the price of the finished products. The many, are examples of secondary inindustry of its shortcomings, and un-miture factories, carriage factories, implement works, blast furnaces, rolling mills and other industries, which in the aggregate employ more labor than all others combined, are primary industries in different degrees. We have begun to develop secondary industries, chiefly in iron and steel, but as yet we here produce few articles of luxury, and few that require the costliest and most refined processes. "The Angel's Serenade" she rendered later in the evening, with violin obligato by Mr. Pococke, well merited the encore she was accorded, and to which she responded sweetly with "Bonnie Doon." Mr. Cyri! Dwight-Edwards sang. That in itself is almost sufficient to show the pleasure of the eudience, for it goes without saying that the singing of this well-known baritone was appreciated. His first number, the "Song of the Bow," drew forth an enthusiastic encore, and the same was true of his second number, consisting of two selections, "Still Wie Die Nacht" and "There is a Land." A Sheffield iron master once estimated and £972 worth of polished steel sword raw material has little or no effect on chemical manufactures which are such a source of wealth to Gerdustries where the value of the crude product plays no part as compared with the value of scientific discovery. Articles of luxury, representing invenrefined workmanship, are the products of secondary industries, the list of which could be extended indefinitely. If Great Britain allows herself to be crowded out in these lines, it is beequipment. Her manufacturers are accused of being too inflexible in their methods and too slow to avail themselves of the scientific aids which have given Germany the lead in many of the great secondary manufactures British scientists have warned British

He knows that Great Britain must rely on secondary industries, and he knows that for these the colonies will offer an expanding market. If he can bind the colonies to leave the field free to the mother counness-for the mother country. But would the colonies, in exchange for a preference on their natural products in the British markets, consent to renounce their industrial ambitions-to can be only one answer. Mr. Chamberlain is guilty of an amazing blunder in proposing such an arrangement. It savors of the eighteenth-century conception of the colonies-that they existed only for the advantage of the mocondition of things if Canadians were prohibited from establishing a legitimate industry on their own soil because it would compete with Great Britain. It would be a sacrifice of liberty, dear at any price. This is not saying that Canada should erect a tariff against Great Britain to exclude British competition in order to develop our secondary COLORED TRIO TELL TALES industries. In 1850 Catherine Brophy, then 19 years of age, accompanied by two other younger women, left her home in Kilkenny, Ireland, for America. No tidings of the absent one came to the Brophy home, but this was not an unusual experience in those days to those left on the old homestead in Ireland.

A year went by-two, three, and then Michael Brophy, four years younger than his sister, decided to join the army. He went to the Crimea, and fought through several engagements there. He received eat, but gain no strength. Morning tiredness makes you wish it were night. When night comes refreshing sleep is hard to obtain. You're run down, your blood is thin and watery, your nerves have grown weak, the thought of effort wearies you. You need Ferrozone; it makes blood—red, strong blood. An appetite? H. C. Becher, broker, Bank of Comperce building, received the following by private wire from Bartlett, Frazier & Dominion Savings and Invest 119 Investors to the control of th Carrington today:

New York, Oct. 14—Noon.—Better prices from London, owing to the less warlike outlook in Chinese waters, a sharp recovery in the Pittsburg market, and the conviction that the short interest was largely increased yesterday, all contribute towards a higher level and an improvement in sentiment. The railroads, such as Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific, Atchison and Erie, were conspicuously strong, while in Steel, common and preferred there was a decided falling off in the pressure to sell. That the market is still nervous and apprehensive was subsequently shown, when the weakness in Amalgamated Copper, preferred, caused selling off the rest of the list. There was no cossible accompanying the decline in Copper. Tradifig has been to some extent curfailed by fears that the discontinuance of the shipbuilding companies' case will result in further disclosures of a depressing character.

H. C. Becher, broker, Bank of Commerce building, received the following by private wire from Bartlett, Frazier & Carington, yesterday: Chicago, Oct. 13.-The firmness in Liverpool cables this morning came as a sur prise. The strength was based on small stocks, a good demand for the best qual ity, and nervousness over the political situation. Our opening only fractionally stuation. Our opening only fractionary sympathized with cables, and prices soon showed a distinct tendency to work lower. The report of 14 loads taken for export via the Gulf, and 12 at Duluth, and 15 at Duluth had no effect. About midday the trend of the market changed and became very strong on liberal cash sales. One hundred and thirty thousand bushels of No. 2 red winter were sold to country millers at 2c over the December option, and a cargo of No. 2 hard was worked to Buffalo, and the closing strength was based on cash situation and the advance in the many distribution and distribution and distribution and distribution and distribution and distribution and dis ceipts were moderate, and our advices indicate they will continue so for some time. Flour sales for export by one miller were 25,000 sacks at top price of the season. Bradstreet's world's available increased 4,000,000 bushels, compared with 12,900,000 bushels last week. The December shorts are in a very uncomfortable position, with the No. 2 red at 2c premium over the December, the No. 2 hard, which is deliverable at 5c discount, in the neighshrinkage in values.

championship, to the delight of 7,000 enthusiasts. The world's champions were borne to their dressing rooms on the shoulders of the crowd, and the cheering lasted many minutes. Fhillipi, who was such an enigma to the Bostons in the first few games, essayed to pitch for the visitors for the fifth time. He was not only batted nard, but he saw his rival, Dineen, carry off the honors by holding the Nationals down to four scattered hits, which, backed by perfect fielding, prevented a single

"But will it not appear very strange?" objected Lady Eaine, regarding Arey wonderingly.

You will not think so when you know who is coming; and never mind if it does just for once, and it will please me so much. Do you remember the ball at Hazeimere, and have you the dress that you wore then?"

"Oh, Arley! what strange spirit possesses you tonight? Are you so happy in the prospect of Philip's arrival that you forget how bruised, and sore and desolate my poor heart is?" Lady Elaine eried, with something of passion in her voice.

"It is not like you," she went on, reproachfully. "I know that they never found his body," and an icy chill seemed to seize her here as she remembered how they had explained that; "but, do you suppose, if he had been living, he would have remained away from me so long, without one word to relieve my suspense?

Arley, gently. 'What would have hindered him?" "I can imagine several things."

'Such as what?" "He might have been ill." "He would have written then; illness might have kept him from me,

The products are not only delicious, but bons and others prominent in the party took charge of the guests, showed them over the building, and had lunch served them, after which a pleasant smoke or a game of cards was indulged in. There was an abundance of cigars, good things and light refreshments, and the evening passed off most successfully from every standpoint.

No speeches were attempted, although many were anxious to hear a spleasant hour.

Last night there was an air of homeliness about the building which was fully appreciated by all. In the main reception room a cheery fire burned in the grate, the handsome mantel being surmounted by a portrait of Premier. Thus, the financial position of the new club stands unexcelled, and all it requires to make it the success it should be is the hearty support and goodwill of all Liberals, both of which it will undoubtedly and unstintingly enjoy.

THE VICTORIA CROSS

Holders Warned That Coveted Medal Must Not Be Sold.

London, Oct. 13. — The war office has decided to exercise a more jealous care regarding the sale of Victoria In future any holder who sells the cross or loses it and cannot give a satisfactory explanation of his loss, will be liable to be deprived of the annuity - which is not less than £10 -which accompanies it. The intrinsic value of the cross is about 1%d, while the market value is anything between 40 and 100 guineas. In consequence of war office's action, however, wearers of the decoration will be decidedly chary of placing the bit of bronze on the mart.

Presbyterian Missions. Toronto, Ont., Oct. 14.--The semi-annual meeting of the home mission board of the Presbyterian Church, in session here, passed claims for $50,000. This amount is largely in excess of that voted last year, due to the development of the western fields. -Misses Nora Healey and Laura Ryan left this morning for Battle Creek with Mrs. A. M. Healey, who has been visiting in this city for some time.
