from Weak Lungs to Consumption. from Depleted Blood to Anæmia, from Diseased Blood to Scrofula, from Loss of Flesh to Illness.

Scott's Emulsion

the Cream of Cod-liver Oil. prevents this step from being taken and restores Health. Physicians, the world over, endorse it.

Don't be deceived by Substitutes! Scott & Bowne, Belleville. All Druggists, 50c. & $1.

THOROLD CEMENT.

ONE MILLION BARRELS of the Thor Canadian Government. In 1891, 1892 and

St. Clair Tunnel Co......10,000 Bbls. Kingston Graving Dock ... 2,000 " Edison Gen. Electric Co... 2,000 " Town of Petrolea..... 2,000 Sault Ste. Marie Canal... 13,540 "

ESTATE OF JOHN BATTLE,

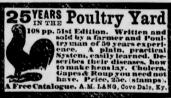

Thorold, Ont.

ORGANIST.

WANTED BY A YOUNG LADY A situation as organist in a Catholic church. Experienced and good references. Apply 80x 186, Owen Sound, Ont.

Merchant Tailoring.

MR. O. LABELLE WILL OPEN A FIRST-Class Merchant Tailoring establishment on Richmond Street, next door to the Rich-mond House, and opposite the Masonic Temple, in a few days. He will carry a full range of the very choicest goods. Prices to suit the times. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Pictorial Lives of the Saints

The Catholic Record for One Year For $3 00.

The Pictorial Lives of the Saints contains Reflections for Every Day in the Year. The book is compiled from "Butler's Lives" and other approved sources, to which are added Lives of the American Saints, recently placed on the Calendar for the United States by special petition of the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore; and also the Lives of the Saints Canonized in 1881 by His Hollness Pope Leo XIII. Edited by John Gilmary Shea, LL.D. With a beautiful frontispleed of the Holy Family and nearly four hundred other il ustrations. Elegantly bound in extra cloth. Greatly admired by our Holy Father, Pope Leo XIII., who sent his special blessing to the publishers; and approved by forty Archbishops and Bishops.

The above work will be sent to any of our subscribers, and will also give them credit for a year's subscription on THE CATHOLIC R. CORD, on receipt of Three Dollars. We will in all cases prepay carriage.

EDUCATIONAL.

ST. JEROME'S COLLEGE. BERLIN, ONT. Complete Classical, Philosophical and

And Shorthand and Typewriting. For further particulars apply to REV. THEO. SPETZ. President.

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE, TORONTO Ont.-In affiliation with Toronto Uni-Ont.—In affiliation with Toronto University. Under the patronage of His Grace the Archishop of Toronto, and directed by the Basilian Fathers. Full classical, scientific and commercial courses, Special courses for students preparing for University matriculation and non-professional certificate. Terms, when paid in advance: Board and tuition, $150 per year; half boarders, $75; day pupils, $25. For further particulars apply to REV. J. R. TEEFY, President.

A SSUMPTION COLLEGE, SANDWICE,

A SIMPLE WAY TO HELP POOR CATHolic Missions. Save all cancelled postage stamps of every kind and country and send them to Rev. P. M. Barral, Hammonton, New Jersey, U. S. Give at once your address, and you will receive with the necessary explanation
a nice Souvenir of Hammonton Missions.

DR. WOODRUFF, No. 185 QUEEN'S AVE. Defective vision, impaired hearing, nasal catarrh and troublesome throats. Eyes tested. glasses adjusted. Hours. 12 to 4.

he Catholic Record.

Christianus mihi nomen est, Catholicus vero Cognomen."—(Christian is my Name, but Catholic my Surname.)—St. Pacian, 4th: Century.

VOLUME XVI.

LONDON, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, MARCH 10, 1894.

NO. 803.

ANGLICAN CLAIMS.

To the Editor of the CATHOLIC RECORD. Instory." Dr. Baum quotesno authority for his statements and says he admits no authority in history except the Acts of the Church of England. Now what does he mean by Church of England? The Anglican Church of the last three hundred years? or the Church that If the former. -Sir-Your issue of the 17th of Febru-If the former, then, how can the Acts of that Church be an authority for the 664, the Theodore-Wilfred case, A. D. 680? If the latter, then Dr. Baum must admit such authority as the writings of the Venerable Bede, and the authentic documents of other contemporaneous writers. The great infidel historian Gibbon says: "To be deep in history is to cease to be a Protes-No doubt this is the reason why modern historians are so fond of shal-lowness in historical knowledge. Now as to Dr. Baum's statements concern-

THE COUNCIL OF WHITBY, A. D. 664. This council was held at the monastery of Strenaeshalch, of which St. Hilda was abbess. There were present the King Oswin and his son, Bishop Coleman and his Scotch clergy, the Abbess Hilda and her party, who all sided with the Scotch, Bishop Cedd, Bishop Agilberctus with his priests Agatho and Wilfrid, also James, Probable the Abbess and their barbarian conventions and their barbarian convented that the statement of the Christian Church serving as a pattern, the discomfitted Romans and their barbarian convented that evil polity which the convented that the convented Roman, etc. Bede, the historian of this council, says: said that all who serve the one God should serve Him in one and the same manner and not differ in the celebration of the heavenly feasts, since all the truer tradition, and this should be adopted by all. He first asked his Bishop Coleman to explain his rite and trace its origin. Coleman said that he received his rite from his predecessors, who had received it from the Apostle St. John, and it should not be despised, for St. John is said to have introduced it into all his churches. After Coleman had said this and similar things, the king asked Bishop Agilberctus to explain his rite. But Agilberctus said that he would prefer to let Wilfrid speak in his stead, who then spoke thus: 'Easter, as we celebrate it, we saw celebrated at Rome where the Apostles Peter and Paul lived, taught, died and are buried; we saw it also celebrated in Italy and France; it is thus celebrated in Africa, Asia, Egypt, the Church of Christ is diffused. Only those Picks and Scots that live near the extremities of these islands have a different celebration. St. John observed the Jewish rite of celebrating Easter on account of many Jewish converts belonging to his churches. St. Paul also conformed to Jewish rites for the same reasons. And in later years we know of many holy men who celebrated Easter according to the Jewish rite. But I am sure had anyone taught those holy man, and your companions if you and consequently of the universal Church, you, no doubt, do wrong. For the practice Prince of the Apostles, St. Peter, to whom the Lord said: 'Thou art Peter and upon this rock I will build My Church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it, and I shall give to keys of the kingdom of Then the king said to Coleheaven.' "Did our Lord really say this?"

"answered Coleman. "Do you 'Yes." answered Coleman. then all acknowledge that this he will open them for me.'

"While the king was yet speaking, those present showed themselves in of his opinion ond speedily adopted the more exact celebration of Easter. 'Hac dicente rege, faverunt adsistentes quique sive adstantes, adsistentes quique sive adstantes, majores una cum modiocribus, et abdicata minus perfecta institutione ea quæ meliora cognoverant, transferre festinabant.' The was then brought to a close and Agilberctus returned home. Coleman, seeing that his opinion was not accepted, returned to Scotland and took with him those who refused to accept the Catholic Easter and tonsure. to further deliberate with him on this subject.-(Beda, Historica Ecclesiastica, lib iii., cap. 25 26.)' said to Peter and that the keys of the kingdom of heaven were given to him to be at variance with such a janitor, but I wish to obey his statutes so that our Lord?' All answered, 'Yes.

The reader can now easily see how much there is in Dr Baum's conclusion concerning the Council of Whitby which was as follows: "Now, Mr. Pope . . . . was the king, or the Bishops and the clergy the Church? And if the latter, did they accept the customs of Rome or repudi-his clergy. Even Coleman, although up without any fear of law, human or discontented with the result of the Divine.

Referring to the strange apathy of tremity of the thumb, whence it could many Protestant clergymen in this council, intended to deliberate more fully on this question with his clergy after his arrival in Scotland. Bede also says that King Oswin was edu-

ULTRAMONTANISM AND MOD-ERN CIVILIZATION.

Ultramontanism, according to many vriters, is an exaggerated Catholicism which they hold originates and is cultivated on the Roman side of the European Alps. To our mind there is no such ultramontanism. We dislike the term. If admitted at all, it can only be received as expressing the Catholic religion pure and simple. This religion is the same on both sides of the European Alps; Non alia Romæ et alia Athenis. It is a powerful civilizer. When the Empire of Rome fell to pieces, it gathered up the fragments, and mingling them with the barbarous nations of Northern Europe, established that civilization which Europe has enjoyed for so many centuries. The admirable organman, etc. Bede, the historiam of scouncil, says:

"The king in his opening address d that all who serve the one God moners. Nor was this all. The persuasive teachings of religion softened and refined manners, elevated, and, with its high sanction, strengthexpect one and the same kingdom in ened morality. War, even, was miti-heaven. All should inquire which is gated and its evil diminished by the all-pervading influence of that new power, the religion of the cross, and there are ages of chivalry. not yet Christian love; but, it was an approach to it. High sentiment was the order of the day-honor the watchword. Only who was noble became a knight of the chivalrous days. Chivalry is not much considered in these utilitarian times. It must be admitted, nevertheless, that it was a powerful element in the civilization of Europe: and that the nations owed to it a degree of glory that was quite unknown to Greece and Rome.

The civilization originating in Religion could not only glory in its chivalry, but could also claim the noble characteristic of humanity. Its enormous humane associations and its institutions for preventing cruelty everywhere meet with acceptance and ncouragement, while no such cruel games as the gladiatorial shows of wild beasts, and the tearing to pieces of human beings by those ferocious animals meet with any countenance.

The relief of human misery is everywhere aimed at, as if it cannot be done away with, it is greatly alleviated. For this purpose hospitals have been established throughout Europe. The loving care bestowed in these hospitals on the sick and sufferthe more correct tradition they ing is beyond all praise. Modern would have followed it. But you, Cole- civilization labors to do away with them; and lest they should retain any religious character, it banishes from them the good kind sisters of charity who minister so successfully to the suffering patients, and replaces them of an insignificant party is surely not by hired nurses, as if money could to be preferred to the practice of the buy that self-denial and kindly care which religion inspires. In vain have the physicians remonstrated against this barbarity. Modern civil-ization demands it. But the learned doctors who appreciate the labors of the devoted sisters may vet be able to cause the ancient system to be restored. The "Hotel Dieu," of Paris, may well be called an international hospital, as it reseives patients of every nationality, and treats them all alike without distinction of creed, polby our Lord?' All answered, 'Then I say to you that I do not wish Then I say to you that I do not wish a janitor, ities or country. It can hardly thought that this wise and iberal management will be continued now that the institution has been secularized ac when I arrive at the gates of heaven cording to the ideas of modern civil

> Under the civilization which arose with religion, education was powerpromoted. Schools were established everywhere; and there was no monastery without its school. Whole orders devoted themselves to the cause of education; and universities were planted in every nation by the direct agency of the church. All this must be done away with says modern civilization. It is not to be tolerated, it pretends, that in this advanced age youth should be taught to mumbl prayers and invoke the Christian's God, now that even the "Supreme Being "has been discarded and reason only held in honour. Accordingly, reason, as understood, demands that no religion be taught in any school, and that schools shall be abolished wherein the name of God is mentioned with respect. There it a greater proneness to evil under the new civilization, if we may Judge by the frequency of great crimes,—treacherous murders, murder astoms of Rome or repudi-Bede, who may be called mite. Nor is this to be wondered at,

ization.

The spread of secret societies, all of which tend to the overthrow of social order—nihilists, socialists, anar-chists—all these are bound by a secret oath, and all claim the right to inflict death on members who offend

Of all the secret societies, the Freemason's is the only one that has won any measure of respect. There are varieties of it. It differs according to the contrary, it acknowledges belief in God and reverences the holy Scriptures. This fact became manifest when the Prince of Wales succeeded Lord Ripon as grand master in England. On that occassion the French Freemasons made advances to the English and invited them to fraternize with those of France. The Prince declined on the ground that the British Freemasons could not associate with infidels. Instances could be referred to in which the former, in conformity with their belief, helped to build up the broken altar. Notwithstanding that they are a secret society, the chief lodge directing the action of the less initiated, and thus exercising power greater than that of the most despotic monarch. Such power, gevernments cannot but consider as an imperium in imperio which it is impossible for them to recognize .-

RETURNS TO ROME.

Rev. Dr. Dawson in the Owl.

Edward Randall Knowles, LL. D., Becomes Reconciled to the Church-He Abandons the "Old Catholic"

Edward Randall Knowles, LL. D., has become reconciled to the Catholic Church. It will be remembered that, ome two or three years ago, Dr. Knowles was ordained a priest of the Old Catholic Church at his home in West Sutton, and that he has been a strong pillar of that movement. recently the Springfield Union made the following predictions concerning his course:

"Catholic friends of Dr. Knowles persistently claim that he is disgusted with the uncertainties and variations of the Greek and Oriental orthodox communions, as well as with the vagaries of the European Old Catholics that he has acquired a deeper convic tion of the essential supremacy of the See of Peter as the corner stone of the visible Church; and that, as a married man, he will renounce all claim to the exercise of the priestly office, and settle down as a Roman Catholic, after he can obtain a settlement of the case by the Roman authorities. He will shrink, they say, from no just penance, however hard, but he will delay any action until his way is clear, and he can be sure of just treatment.

"Dr. Knowles, by education, is the peer of almost any churchman in New England, a graduate of Princeton University; his father, when mayor of Providence, firmly supported the Convent of Mercy against the hostile attempts of a mob; and he himself, as a student, tenaciously held to the faith. under circumstances that caused intense humiliation and suffering tion of the hip joint, permanent con-Although opposition and harassing traction of the muscles of the thigh, circumstances could not change his profession of faith, he deliberately renounced that faith when, rightly or "His newly-published volume of of the Old Catholic cause. Of Dr. Knowles' poems the Pilot has said that Mr. Knowles' verse is imbued with the spirit of true Catholicity. It has the simplicity and directness of the old Latin hymns.' They are poems for calm, meditative study. Neither rhyme, rhythm nor elegance of diction is marred by their intense thoughtfulness and spiritual absorption. The author has faith in the promises of God, and with perfect confidence allows its 'kindly light' to lead on. As a prominent Catholic critic has said, 'His poems are worthy of him, and give promise of great work in the

"Another has said: 'His prose essays are characterized by keen suggestiveness, and show vigorous and original thought, set forth with marexpression. But, Orthodox or Roman, he is clearly the coming Catholic poet of the future America.

This prediction, as to his breaking away from the "Old Catholic" schism, we are able to state, has become entirely verified. Dr. Knowles has not only refused to hold any communication with the schismatic Bishep who ordained him to the successive orders of the ministry, but positively declares his intention of resignedly accepting whatever penitential discipline Rome may hereafter enjoin as a condition of entire absolution and restoration to communion in the Catholic Church. Dr. Knowles is a delightful companion, a warm hearted, generous host, a brilliant conversationalist and a controversialist of no mean order. He is a fluent and forcible writer. He is

Some of his poems are marvels of spir-itual intensity and absorption. They were written in the interval when doubt and uncertainty as to forms and

In his "True Christian Science," which was first published as a leader in the Watchman, Dr. Knowles writes: crowd of exponents and devotees, and each claiming to be solely and exclusively the final philosophy, the ultimate possible development of revealed religion, the summa lux sistency and lawlessness, which logically and practically lead to the most fearful consequences in faith, dispo-sition and practical experience."

A stronger warning against the very schism to which he afterwards beattached could not have been penned.

In consequence of Dr. Knowles' conspicuous literary success and his popularity and friendship among prominent men in the Baptist denomination, West Virginia College (Baptist) created him a doctor of laws at its last commencement.

The result which marks the collapse of the Syro-Latin schism, or, as it may be fittingly called, the "Church of Vilatte," brings vividly to our recollection the concluding verse of Knowles poem on the "Conversion of St. Paul:

Let us, obedient, heaven's light implore, And follow it, however rough our road, With patient faith, for thus alone we gain The way to truth, to life, to peace, to God, -Beston Republic

MIRACLES FROM GOD.

Rev. J. H. McMahon's Lecture on the Lourdes Cures.

Father McMahon, of New York, lectured recently at the Catholic summer school at Plattsburg, N. Y., on "Mir acles at Lourdes and Hypnotism." He said:

There is at Lourdes a fact unequaled in the history of miracles. It is found in the little chalet which is labeled during the pilgrimage as the "Bureau des Consultation," where an inquest on all reported cures is held by a number of reputable physicians who have come from all parts of Europe and even from distant countries to investigate the wonderful occurences at Lourdes. Almost every year from that severe jury be accounted for by any human science. It is only uccessary to cite some of the most remarkable of the recent cures to disprove forever and Considered by Rev. Washington Gladcompletely the claim of infidel science that the occurrences at Lourdes are not an evidence of the supernatural, but simply cures that can be effected at any hypnotic clinic. Let me hurriedly cite some of the most remarkle of these

In 1878, in the month of September, Mlle. Joachime de Hant came te Lourdes. For twelve years she had exhausted almost the whole series of human sufferings. She had dislocawhich rendered her right foot club footed, and an ulcer covering twothirds of the external surface of the wrongly, he came to believe it to be his duty to follow the Orthodox cause. | right thigh. Some days after she arrived, on Sept. 19, the physician who had testified to the above disease poems has caused much speculation declared that he examined Joachime de about the future progress or collapse above mentioned had completely disappeared, a simple redness indicating the place of the ulcer. Certainly no hypnotic suggestion could account for this cure. Leaving aside the question whether hypnotic suggestion could ever restore a muscular contraction, certainly it could never heal an ulcer of so violent a nature, leaving the skin fresh and natural, with all the tissues perfectly healed and no indication save a redness.

Again, Mlle. Faure had a congenital distortion of both hips. After submitting to all the different treatments known to medical science the poor invalid resigned herself to a life of suf fering. Going to Lourdes, she insisted even on helping the sick to bathe and it was only through comtions of friends and herself bathed in the piscina. In a few seconds, with out any expression of emotion or pain, she came forth entirely cured and walked erect and firm.

More than that. In 1879 Mile. Dubois ran a needle into the fatty part of the hand at the root of the thumb. In trying to draw it out the top portion of hand. Surgical operations failed to remove it, although it could be distinctly felt. She suffered intermit-tently intense pain, and by degrees the fingers of that hand were doubled over. After seven years her sufferage to Lourdes, she plunged this hand three times into the waters of the piscina. an eye-witness, says that all were on the king's side and accepted the customs of Rome, except Coleman and contact and youth are brought over, he is a man of ample means, and at the root of the thumb, and at the root of the root of the thumb, and at the root of th tremity of the thumb, whence it could be easily withdrawn. The whole occupied exactly four minutes. Eight physicians made a minute examination instances is explained by the fact that into all the details of this miracle, and members of the Church are members unanimously declared that it could of the order, and the pastor is unwill-

"Now we behold on every side all ing from locomotor ataxia in its most of this order are not found. But a possible forms of philosophies, systems advanced stages, was cured suddenly more influential reason for this silence and even pretended revelations of and permanently during a procession is a feeling which is shared by the and permanently during a procession is a feeling which is shared by the of the Blessed Sacraments at Lourdes great majority of Protestant ministers, the countries in which it prevails. In divine wisdom, each gaining over to france it is atheistic; in England, on its more or less deluded and infatuated without the intervention of the mira that Roman Catholics, as such, are a culous water. He had bent down to very dangerous class of persons, and disease lost. This man had been means to that end are justifiable."
treated by fourteen of the most disIn conclusion Mr. Gladden predicts tinguished physicians of Paris. had been sixteen times in the hos-pitals of Paris. He had under- "That the prevalence gone all the varieties of treat- ity will be brief is certain ; but it may nent used in such cases from spread widely enough and last long potassium to morphine and to deep cauterizations with redhot iron and even the method of suspension. His sight had become obscure. He was afflicted with shooting pains. There was a lack of coordination in his movements. In his lower members he was partially paralyzed and without of wasfase artificity paralyzed and without of suspension. May I not venture to call upon all intelligent Protestants clergymen, to consider well their responsibilities in relation to this epidemic? Can we afford, as Protestants, to approve, by our silence, such he was partially paralyzed end utterly unable to walk without assistance Catholics as this society is employing? Symptoms had disappeared, and Pierre from this class of 'patriots?' In any Delanois was able to officiate as one of large town, if the leading Protestant

> These are facts that have been athesitate at nothing. They cannot be accounted for on the admission of these self-same physicians by any hypnotic suggestion, or in any natural manner. Consequently, standing before them, we have unhesitatingly to pronounce that they are miracles from the direct intervention of God in the natural world. No quibbling can escape from this conclusion: no hair-splitting, no abuse, no lying, can get behind these indisputable facts. There they are for any one to investigate. These persons are still living. The physicians who attended them made out their certificates—and the highest science—represented by Catholic, Protestant and inidel physicians - has attested their complete and permanent cure.

THE ANTI-CATHOLIC CRUSADE.

The Century Magazine, always fore most in giving fair and intelligent discussion to live topics of interest, has a thoughtful article under the above Party as a matter for the decision of neading by Rev. Washington Gladden, the distinguished Congregationalist have scrupulously declined urgent clergyman and author, in its March incongruity of starting such a pro-scriptive movement in the year of the they have already received are most when the Papal throne is filled by confident of the efficacy of their own most progressive Pontiff who has ever occupied the throne," and when that great man "is heartily supported by the whole Curia and by public sentiment at Rome" in his championship of republican principles.

tions to Catholics," distributed in the form of leaflets by the A. P. A. conspirators, Dr. Gladden says :-

"American Protestants, the graduates of our public schools, are expected to believe that Roman Catholic prelates grew very indignant as he discoursed are in the habit of talking in this way to the people of their charge. The forged this precious manifesto, and put the Pope's name at the head of it, and the signatures of nine years, and it's a good deal longer since of their fellow-citizens at the foot of it, seem to have had no misgiving that those to whom it was shown would laugh in their faces. And the melancholy fact is that they were justified in their confidence. The forgery has been taken seriously by tens of thousands of American voters. No man can intimate a doubt of its genuineness without being denounced as a Jesuit in disguise or an ally of the Pope. It is published week after week in scores of journals with large circulation. There are great masses of our people to whom it does not seem improbable that the Roman Catholic Arch bishops would publish such a document the needle broke off, leaving the easy task to convince this multitude greater part of it imbedded in the that these prelates were great knaves, but who could have imagined that credence would be given to a document which represents them as preposterous fools?

alleged "Papal Encyclical "calling on Catholics to rise and exterminate their ceeive.—Winnipeg Review, Feb. 14. Protestant fellow-citizens, and the three times into the waters of the piscina. At the first immersion, the contracted fingers opened almost entirely. At the second the needle appeared at almost its entire length under the skin at the root of the thumb, and at the corollary actions about consignments receive no natural explanation.

Furthermore, on Aug. 20, 1889,

There are few churches, I suppose, in Pierre Delanois, for six years suffer- the Western cities in which members kiss the earth, according to the com-mand of Our Lady of Bernadotte, say-therefore to be welcomed. The extering, "Notre Dame de Lourdes, cure mination or repression of the Roman me if you please and if you think it Catholic Church seems to these pious mundi. Yet they are all imbued with principles of utter fatuity, inconverted with every trace of his awful therefore inclined to argue that any

He the early and shameful demise of the

"That the prevalence of this insanwhen he arrived at Lourdes on August For the honor of Protestantism, is it 19, 1889. On August 20 all these not high time to separate ourselves the most active and zealous of the clergymen will speak out clearly, the branchardiers in taking care of the plague will be stayed or abated

These manly words of an honorable man give but a brief synopsis of his tested by the most rigorous scientific very able and incisive paper. We examination - an examination that commend the whole article to our puts to shame the reckless statements readers. It will be found complete in made by physicians, who, in their desire to get rid of the supernatural, of the present month.

GLADSTONE RESIGNS.

A despatch from London dated 4th instant, said it was officially announced the previous day that the Queen had accepted the resignation of Mr. Glad moned Lord Rosebery and offered him the post of Prime Minister in Mr. Gladstone's stead. It was further officially announced that Lord Rosebery had accepted the position.

The Radicals, who have been mak ing such a bitter opposition to the selec tion of a Peer for the Premiership, are loud in their expressions of delight at the fact that Mr. Gladstone has again refused the Queen's offer of a Peerage.

The newspapers are praising the at-titude in this state of Cabinet upheaval of the Irish Parliamentary Party. In this connection the Party. In this connection the Chronicle says that the attitude of the Irish has been both uncompromising the control of the Irish has been both uncompromising the control of the control and strictly proper, adding that party alone. solicitations to join the Radical cave. As a matter of fact the McCarthyites Mr. Gladden begins by noting the do not take an active part in the agitavoting strength.

The Labouchere section of the Radi als, on the other hand, say that unless the extreme Irish demands are promptly satisfied the Parnellites may o-operate with them and imperil the Peer led "Administration.

A. P. A. Cowboy's Round up.

From St. Joseph's Parish.

A Catholic workman, a few weeks ago, in conversation with his wife, upon the malice shown Catholics by A. P. A. "Well, now," she laughingly replied, "don't let that bother you too you made your Easter duty, so you are hardly Catholic enough for them to find fault with you." boys on the Western plains, with fantastic cracking of whips and considerable noise, round up the stray cattle and drive them back into the bunch, so these dark-lantern cowboys may do good by driving stray, sheep back into the one Catholic fold

An interesting ceremony took place in the private chapel of His Grace, the Archbishop of St. Boniface, at 3 o'clock last Sunday. His Grace administered the holy sacrament of confirmation to recent converts from Protestantism. including among the number a clergyman of the Anglican Church. Grace addressed the recipients of the sacrament in a few well-chosen sent-The equally shameless forgery of an ences, explaining the divine nature

CHURCH WINDOWS

CATHEDRAL WINDOWS.

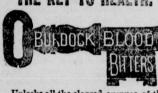

Hobbs Manufacturing Co., London, Can.

We Propose to Watch You with

RE

THE SUPPLY COMPANY NIACARA FALLS, ONT. ______

THE KEY TO HEALTH.

Bowels, Kidneys and Liver, carrying off gradually without weakening the system, all the impurities and foul humors of the secretions; at the same time Correcting Acidity of the Stomach, curing Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Headaches, Dizziness, Heartburn, Constipation, Dryness of the Skin, Dropsy, Dimness of Vision, Jaundice, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scrofula, Fluttering of the Heart, Nervousness, and General Debility; all these and many other similar Complainte yield to the happy influence of BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

For Sale by all Dealers. Bowels, Kidneys and Liver, carrying

Sale by all Dealers. T. MILBURN & CO.. Proprietors. Toronto-

UNLOCKS ALL THE CLOGGED SECRETIONS OF THE BOWELS, KIDNEYS AND LIVER, CARRYING OFFGRADUALLY, WITHOUT WEAKEN-ING THE SYSTEM, ALL IMPURITIES AND FOUL HUMORS. AT THE SAME TIME CORRECT-ING ACIDITY OF THE STOMACH, CURING BILLIOUSNESS, DYSPEPSIA, HEAD-ACHES, DIZZINESS, HEARTBURN, CONSTIPATION. RHEUMATISM DROPSY, SKIN DISEASES, JAUNDICE, SALT RHEUM, ERYSIPELAS, SCRO-FULA, FLUTTERING OF THE HEART, NERVOUSNESS. AND GENERAL LEBILITY. THESE AND ALL SIMILAR COMPLAINTS QUICKLY VIELD TO THE CURA-TIVE INFLUENCE OF BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

ONTARIO STAINED GLASS WORKS

STAINED GLASS FOR CHURCHES.

PUBLIC AND PRIVATE BUILDINGS Furnished in the best style and at prices lovenough to bring it within the reach of all.

WORKS: 484 RICKMOND STREET

R. LEWIS.

PLUMBING WORK Opp. Masonic Temple.

SMITH BROS

anitary Plumbers and Heating Engineers London, Ont. Telephone 538. Sole Agents for Peerless Water Heaters

LINKED LIVES

By Lady Gertrude Douglas

CHAPTER XXXIV.

ACROSS FIFTEEN THOUSAND MILES OF OCEAN.

Hinauf, hinauf, die Erde fliehf zuruck, urz ist der Schmerz, und ewig ist die reude. SCHILLER.

"Feth, Miss Mabel, I wad gang wi ye a deal further nor Australy; ye dinna need to gie me time to consider't.
Gin ye gang, I wull gang alang wi'
ye. I cudna do wantin' ye, Miss Mabel. Och! what wad I do here, an' ye gaun awa'?"

Such was Katie's reply to Mabel's question as to whether she could face fifteen thousand miles of ocean which lay between them and the distant country to which they were going. Brief time was there for reflection or explanation, though Mabel conscienti-ously did her best to put fairly before Katie the length and risk of the voy-

Katie had no fears, no desires, apparently, except to go with Mabel wherever she went, and indeed seemed rather pleased with the prospect of so much novelty and distraction.

The following thirty-six hours were. to Mabel, like a continuous dream. There was so much to be done, so much to be thought of. In London she contrived to see and take farewell of Jessie, who happened to be at the time

"I shall never be surprised at any thing you do, Mabel," said her sister as she wished her good bye. "Tell Hugh with my love, that he would have saved us all a deal of oother if he had thought proper to take this step some years ago, instead of going off in the way he did, without even having the civility to wish us good-bye. Well, well, you are a strange pair, the two of you. Heaven knows you will be well enough matched, anyhow!

On reaching Plymouth, which they did about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, Mabel went on board for a few minutes with Doctor Græme to leave her luggage and inspect the berths, after which they returned to the hotel to dine with the doctor and Mary. When dinner was over, the three sat out or the balcony overlooking the sea.

Such a glorious English Summer vening it was, the sea spreading out like a sheet of crystal in the glowing sunset! Once or twice, however, in the course of that evening, Doctor Græme, who was closely observing Mabel, saw that when her eyes fell upon the waters, calm and placid as they were, an involuntary shiver would for a moment contract he He remembered then that features. he had often heard her express a dread of the sea. Others there were, too, who could have told how, from her very childhood upward, Mabel had subject to this terror. No one loved better to look at the sea than did Mabel; but to trust herself upon it, or the mere thought of so doing, would she was often heard to say, produce a shudder, such as people are wont to explain by the well-known saying, one is walking over my grave.

The evening passed away only too uickly-at least for Doctor Grame and his sister. Mabel was all impa tience to be off, and could scarcely con rol her nervous excitement; but they all three talked, nevertheless - a people will talk on the eve of a long had cast a broad silver pathway across the ocean before the blue lights shot upward from the outward-bound ship, ignalling all passengers to go on board.

It was 11 o'clock when Doctor Græme and Mary, having remained as long as they could upon the deck with Mabel, told each other silently with had come. Mary completely broke down, and sobbed bitterly as she clung to Mabel in her farewell embrace. But Mabel herself remained perfectly tear Grieved as she was to part with her kind friends, there was one solemn overwhelming feeling in her heart which silenced all minor emotions. Love for Hugh, the insatiable craving for his presence, the anguish of terror lest it should be too late, made her almost cold and impassive as she re turned Mary's good bye with a calr composure quite unlike herself. the life of her Mabel could For have shed a single tear or have quenched the fearful joy, disputing its place with the anguish of dread in her breast, of the thought that she was leaving all on earth for Hugh only.

Mary's farewell was spoken. Overcome with the violence of her grief, she had turned away towards the bridge. It was now the doctor's turn, and he got over it hurriedly, as best he might, for it was hard work for him to keep up at all.

"Good bye, Mabel." He bent down his tall figure, and clasped her onceonly once-passionately to his aching heart; after which he released he quietly, and with steady step turned follow his sister.

Fair winds and prosperous seas attended the Leander on her voyage to the far south-eastern world. Mabel, almost from the first moment she went on board, forgot her terror of the ocean. Worn out completely by the amount of fatigue and excitement they had undergone, both she and Katie slept a good deal during the first few BOYS IF YOU ARE INTELLIGENT and energetic enough to sell goods, and honest enough to make prompt returns, address J. H.Azzeltons, Guelph, Ont., and send 15 cents for a sample of the fastest selling worlty in Canada. Big Profits.

siept a good deal during the first few days, thus escaping the troubles of seasickness. Katie, indeed suffered slightly during the somewhat rough passage across the Bay of Biscay; but "Never, Miss Mabel?"

Mabel, after two good days of rest, rose up completely reinvigorated.

Then came a season which was very trying—a season when impatience got the better of her, and when the days and weeks of suspense stretching out before her seemed intolerable to con-template. Deprived for the first time since her admission into the Catholic Church, of the privilege she esteemed above all others on earth—that of daily Mass, and a daily visit to the Blessed Sacrament,—Mabel pined and drooped for want of strength to bear her burden of anxiety.

As she sat, hour after hour, under the covered awning of the deck—some times trying to read or sew, but oftener idly gazing across the broad expanse of ocean, counting the splashing waves as they fell behind the good ship's track, each one, as it passed, lessening the distance betwixt herself and Hugh. - there was often in her heart a feeling almost amounting to despair. Sometimes, when she could not control her rebel nerves, a terrible dread would seize her that she was going out of her mind, or that she should be attacked with brain fever. Indeed, could her friends at home have seen her usually pale face-now continually colored by a deep, feverish flush, — and her blue eyes full of dangerous brilliancy, they would have been alarmed, and not without good

She did not, however, fall ill. Good angels must have guarded and supported her through that trying time. But as Mabel neared her journey's end, the nervous, excitable, suffering state of her mind changed, and there came over her another spirit.

In the solemn stillness of the moonli nights, looking upwards from the glittering expanse of the seemingly boundless ocean, to the deep, yet more boundless heavens above, where stars hung like luminous balls, and where the radiant glory of the Southern Cross was first revealed to her in all its splendor. - then it was that over Mabel's weary, restless spirit there fell a soothing calm. Once again, with the stillness of fresh faith, her yearning, aching heart grew peaceful, re posing itself once more, like a tired child, in the bosom of God's most holy will.

After all, what mattered it whether she found Hugh dead or alive ?-what mattered it if their union, so long deferred, should be put off yet a while longer? What if, before she reached him, he should be gone to the world where separation is unknown? What mattered it all, since for the endless ages of eternity they would be for ever together? And if God should please to take her first, how could she complain? Had she not again and again offered her own life for the grace of faith now given to Hugh? Oh no. no!—a thousand times no!—she would no more rebel. If God should take her first, then indeed their separation would be soon over : and if it were Hugh who must go "home" withou seeing her, God would help her to endure it and be thankful. without

Thus upon Mabel's gloomy forebodings there fell a great calm. As the days wore on, and the long imprisonment drew nearer to its term, there was something more than natural in the serenity of her appearance. She was bravely, quietly resigned to any thing that might come, and God in His mercy accepted her sacrifice. It was the last she would ever have to make on earth.

"It's kinna late, Miss Mabel. Wull parting. And the sun went down in a bed of fire over the sea, and the yer bed?" asks Katie, one very beauti-I night at the end of September. Katie herself had retired some time ago, but finding that Mabel did not follow as usual, she came again on deck, and stands now, somewhat timidly, a little in the rear of her mistress, who is leaning over the side of the ship and saying her Rosary.

"Is it late? Oh! so it is. Yes, I am coming, Katie. Do you know that their eyes that the moment for parting the captain says we shall be in Melbourne before two days are over?" "Eh, I'm gey glad to hear't, Miss Mabel. It's an awfu' wearisome journey. The Lord sen' we be na wreckit afore we win intil Melbin! "Not very likely now. What splendid weather we have had. It does not look much like a storm now, Katie, does it? Just look at that sky, isn't it glorious? "Ow, ay, it's verra fine, nae doot, Miss Mabel, but I winna be sorry to win oot o' this. I'm aye feard canna say that I a'thegither like it. "You are a coward, Katie," laughs Mabel, with something of the old sunshine in her usually grave manner; then she turns round and lays a de will be perhaps surprised to hear. "What wull't be, Miss Mabel?" "I have intended to talk to you about it for some days past Katie, but somehow I have never had a good opportunity, but now we are coming so near our journey's end, I think it is time you should be told."

taining hand on Katie's arm.

"Ay, ay, Miss Mabel; an' what wull't be then?" asks Katie, anxiously.

"Do you ever think of Steenie Logie now, Katie Och! Miss Mabel, what sud gar ye ask siccan a questi'n? "Answer me!" persists Mabel, with gentle determination. "Aweel then, Miss Mabel, I'll no say but whyles I micht think on him."

"Do you know where he is now?" "I havena heerd tell on't, Miss Mabel I cudna say that I do ken it-it's gey lang syne I heerd tell on him."
"Well, Katie, you will see him in a very glad to see you, Katie."

"I dinna ken aboot that, Miss Mabel. "I do, though. Now come down, Katie. We will go to bed. To morrow is St. Michael, our last feast without Mass, I hope."

Unusually tired to-night, Mabe falls asleep almost immediately, her last thoughts being of Elvanlee and old memories of former feasts of St. Sleeping, she dreams a dream. She sees before her Michael. curious dream. the altar in Elvanlee church, dressed with flowers, as in days gone by; but in some confused way she is award that it is also her wedding day, and the Gloria in Excelsis of Mozart's 12th Mass is sounding from Genevieve's In the flower-wreathed sand tuary there rises, in strange contrast to its festal decorations, the vision of a stone altar, all draped with black, upon which burn six tall yellow tapers, such as are used only for Requiem Masses. A priest in white vestments is offering up the Holy Sacrifice, and when he turns to give the last bless ing, it is Mr. Vaughan's face that is looking straight at her, while Mr. Vaughan's voice solemnly pronounces Requiescat in pace.'

There follows a confused sound of bells, voices, much trampling of heavy feet, mingled with loud cries of terror amidst which Mabel, startled and shivering wakes up to find Katie standing over her, weeping and wringing her hands, calling out in accents of despair—
"Miss Mabel! — Miss Mabel! —

maun waken up this minnit; the ship's "Requiescat in pace!" murmurs

Mabel as she springs to her feet. is prophetic? Hugh! - Hugh! - so near you, must I die!"

For a moment she stands bewildered, her hand to her head, wondering if it be part of that strange dream; the reality soon gains upon her as, opening the cabin door, she gazes upon the awful confusion all round

The alarm has been for some minutes spreading through the doomed vessel; everyone is now on the alert Cabin doors are flying open, half dressed figures, faces blanched with terror, are thronging into the saloon; bitter cries and lamentations rend the air, mingled with loud shouting overhead and the noise of the fire pumps getting into play. Women are faint ing, children pitifully wailing, sailor -alas! too often-cursing during the moments which, to many of them, will be their final ones upon earth. Above all, the hissing, crackling sound of flames; and, at measured in tervals, rising above the tumult, may be heard the solemn boom of the signal gun of distress. Katie is on her knees, completely paralysed with terror; she has not thought of clothing herself, but Mabel's presence of mind never for one mo-ment forsakes her. She instantly per ceives that nothing can possibly gained by hurrying into the frenzied rowd now streaming towards the outlet upon deck : so she contrives not only to dress herself, but also to put a few clothes on her terrified servant This is the work of a very few minutes, after which, with some difficulty, her, following the general stream surging upward to the deck. The scene there is one of horrible anguish, awful beyond description, and, seeing it, Mabel's brave spirit in spite of blinding smoke, she drags rather than leads, Katie along with sinks into hopelessness. The fire, which apparently, from its already terrific strength, must have been smouldering for some hours before it was discovered, seems to have broken out in the steerage portion of the vessel. It is raging now resistless force: the flames leaping up madly into the dark sky, laughing de fiance at all efforts to control their de vouring fury, and casting a lurid glare for miles around over the ocean while the despairing countenances of the unfortunate human creatures huddled together in the part of the ship still untcuched by the flames are horribly indistinct in the burning glow

Many indeed, and various are the attitudes of individual character to be seen upon the deck. There are som who are quiet with the calmness of despair; others on their knees, loudly crying to heaven for mercy; a good many — unfortunately, the greater number—are running to and fro, add ing not a little to both the confusion and danger by their frantic and use less efforts to save themselves at the risk of drowning their fellow-pas sengers. They are they who, when the life-boats are launched, deaf to every warning, listening to no com mands but those of their selfish fears I have something to tell you that you throng into the boats, two of which are swamped immediately, thus destroying for many the last hope of safety.

The first glance has been enough for Mabel. It is impossible that all should be saved ; there are six boats, but they could not take in nearly all the pas sengers. Some, then, must be sacri ficed, and it never occurs to Mabel that she can be among the saved.

A dizzy sickness creeps over her she kneels down, with one arm thrown round Katie, shading with the other hand her eyes from the blinding smoke, while she tries to recollect the prayers for the dying. It is the agony of death-Mabel knows it-that cause those great bead-drops to stand out on her forehead; she wipes them away, but they return, and resolutely closing advancing flames; "or rather I know her eyes to earth, Mabel lifts her heart peace; she is crying with passionate anguish, repeating again and again that she cannot, dare not die. Then that she cannot, dare not die. Then that she cannot, dare not die. Then earthly voice can reach her again.

But Mabel no longer heeds him, no earthly voice can reach her again.

But Mabel no longer heeds him, no earthly voice can reach her again.

"Yes, indeed he is, and he will be the guardian spirit, who through life Quietly she has unwound the rosary has befriended her so truly, comes to her rescue in the hour of death, seeking still to comfort where it can no longer save.

'Katie, Katie, hush! — don't cry, poor child, don't be so frightened — it will all be over soon. Say after me, 'Holy Mary, Mother of God, pray for hand gently across the eyes of the frantic girl. "Don't look at the fire, Katie; think of heaven-think of you little baby waiting for you there."

"Eh, Miss Mabel, I daurna dee — I wunna dee!" shrieks Katie, and she us sinners, now and at the hour of our death. Amen," whispers Mabel, with pleading tenderness, as she lays her noans as the flames come nearer. "Oh, don't look, Katie--don't look!" faint, and knows that her strength is giving way ; she cannot make the last esperate effort for life, which consists in pressing forward to take her chance a place in one of the boats. feels, in short, gazing at that hope less crowd so madly pushing onwards that she would rather not risk the last forlorn hope - it is so very forlorn. And somehow it seems easier to stay and die where she is. A few of the wis est among the passengers share her opinion; they, too, are holding back, and hiding their faces, that they may commune in silence with their God.

Suddenly there flashes into Mabel's mind an idea — it may have been an inspiration. Katie had fainted dead away; this is a relief so far, for it leaves Mabel some chance of saving her, should the possibility of getting her conveyed into one of the boats pro sent itself later. Disengaging her right hand from Katie's clasp, she pulls out of her pocket the envelope of letter and a pencil. Making as best she can a desk of her knee, Mabel scribbles off a few hasty words of farewell to Hugh. Tears are falling like rain upon the paper, but she writes on resolutely, till the blank sheet is resolutely, till the blank sheet is entirely filled; then she folds it hurriedly, kisses it several times, and thrusts it into her rosary bag, winding the rosary itself round her arm. She wears some medals attached to a blue ribbon; this ribbon she uses now as a chain for the little bag, which she fastens securely inside Katie's dress. having pinned upon it a slip of paper bearing Hugh's name.

While she is thus employed the first boat had been launched — alas! to no avail! In spite of the Captain's reiterated commands, in spite of the gal lant sailors' energetic resistance, the crowds surge wildly forward, and precipitate themselves in overwhelming numbers into the boat. In a moment the ocean receives her first tribute the boat, which is at once the larges and the best, is completely swamped, it fills with water, and sinks, casting more than fifty people into the pitiless waves. A second boat is lowered, and once more the cruel scene is repeated, by which time the most frenzied portion of the victims have gone to meet their

There will be perhaps a chance for the two remaining boats. Mabel sees it, and is resolved at last to make an effort. She will do so, for Katie's sake, if not for her own, and if one only can be saved, Katie shall be that one. Katie, however, is at present a dead weight upon her. She tries to rise, but cannot. She looks up fearfully. Some one shakes her by the arm. It is a gentleman to whose children she has shown many acts of kindness during the voyage; he has just seen them safely off in the third boat; he has time now to think of others, and he remembers Mabel. "For God's sake, come," he urges. Now or never. It is a poor chance, but it is the last.

Mabel silently points to Katie's insensible form, lying staight across her

"I will see to her - follow me closely," he exclaims, catching up Katie in his arms, and he rushes forward with her to the side of the ship, where the last boat is rapidly filling. He is a strong man; he has set his heart on saving Mabel, whom his children have learned to love, those dear children whom he will probably never see on earth again; so he forces his way onwards through the crowd, never doubting but that Mabel is behind him. He is only just in time, however, to fling his burden down into a sailor's arms, who, standing up in the boat, is already, in obedience to the Captain's orders, pushing off from the ship. "Too late!" ejaculates Katie's pre server, as he turns horror stricken, expecting to meet Mabel's despairing face, but to his surprise she is not there - she has not stirred from the spot wherehe foundher; she kneels still, her face resting on her hands, calm and resigned to the death she has no power to resist, and looking up into the amber sky, with the solemn far away expression, which might have been seen in her eyes long ago, when she lay in the waving grass of Elvanlee, a young child-maiden, dreaming of the future-golden dreams never to be realized

"Why did you not come?" he asks, reproachfully. "It would have been of no use, but you ought to have tried. "I did," she answers, "but I could not stand. Is she safe?"

"Yes, yes. But you—for all of us now there is no hope," he mutters gloomily. "Do you know it?" "I do," she replies, with a shudder, averting her eyes from the steadily-hope is coming."

"Are you not afraid? Do you know But Katie is clinging to her in fierce that we shall be blown up presently?

There is, I am told, gunpowder on board.

from her wrist, and she bends down, placing her lips upon the crucifix—the crucifix given to her by the Cure of St. Anne, on the morning of her first Com munion "My God!" she murmurs, "the sacrifice is complete.'

"O Jesu quem velatum nunc aspicio, Oro flat illud quad tam sitio ! Ut te revelata cernens facie Visu sim beatus tuæ Gloriæ."

Then Mabel sinks her head yet ower; she will never lift it again in this world of sin and sorrow. It is all over for her. She has known what sorrow meant, but she will never know it any more. Short, too, has been the agony of that lonely death far away in the South Pacific Ocean! Shortpleads Mabel. She is herself growing all so short compared with the endless ages of eternity

A solemn hush falls upon the deck The Captain has left his post and is praying aloud, surrounded by many of the passengers and crew. All violent wailing has completely ceased. Those who still remain, helpless vic tims in the burning ship, have re-signed themselves to their inevitable fate, and except by a few gasping moans and sobs they forbear to sh any manifestation of terror. The last launched two boats and got clearly away-safely out of reach of the now quivering mass of fire to which the unfortunate vessel is reduced. About twenty minutes later, at a quarter to four o'clock, just as dawn is breaking in the Eastern sky there comes a fearful crash, like the bursting of a thunder-bolt. A dazzl ing tongue of blue fire shoots upwards to the heavens, curling hither and thither like liquid lightning; the sky and sea for many miles round are illuminated as by a thousand bonfires There rises upon the still morning air a long, piercing wail, after which there is death-like silence. Columns of smoke wreathe upwards, and when they disperse again nought remains of the good ship Leander but a charred and broken wreck, floating in shivered fragments, upon the placid bosom of the great deep sea.

Once more the waters teem with a harvest of human life; struggling, drowning faces may be for a while distinguished, but it is all soon over Life in this world has passed for ever, and more than two hundred souls have gone forth into life or death in the world to come. Mabel was not one of those doomed to struggle in the waves. Suffocated with many others in the dense smoke, she died with comparatively little suffering. Sharp, indeed, had been the agony of the preceding hourterrible the conflict ere she could resign herself to die, so near to Hugh, so cruel a death; but from th noment when Katie was taken safely from her, it seemed as though the last link of the chain of Mabel's life, binding her to the cares of earth, was snapped asunder. Intense, unruffled peace, the heir oom of God's faithful children, settled down upon her soul. In one short instant it was given to her to realise that which hitherto she had so often been forced to believe by faith only namely, that God's holy will at all times, in every season, and under every circumstance, has been, is, and must ever be, always for the best Best of all in the hour of death and in the day of judgment. Peacefully, like a weary child going to sleep on its mother's lap, Mabel had laid herself down in the Everlasting Arms, with her lips tightly fastened to the crucified image of her Saviour so dear to her in life. She had met death quietly and without a struggle. It was no death for her. It was only the entrance into life eternal. was spared the terrors of the last terrifi explosion. home full ten minutes before it took place. Happy, happy Mabel, what a blessed end for her? How gladly How gladly must her guardian angel have sung his Deo Gratias on that feast of S Michael the Archangel.

The Voice of Manning.

When Cardinal Manning lay upon his death-bed, a phonograph was in-troduced into the room, and he was asked to speak into it a message for posterity. The phonograph has been carefully preserved by his successor, Cardinal Vaughan; and one day last week, as we learn from the Sunday Sun, the voice of the lamented Arch-bishop of Westminster was heard again upon the earth. The message ran as follows:

"To all who may come after me: I hope that no word of mine, written or spoken in my life, will be found to have done harm to any one after I am

These touching, tender, humble words derive additional pathos from the fact that since the death of Cardinal Manning the poor and the op pressed the world over have longed to near such helpful, comforting words as the voice now stilled forever was wont to utter. It was characteristic of the saintly Cardinal to think meanly of himself and his own work; but no one else could ever fancy that any word of his was likely to harm, instead of help -Ave Maria.

The Sring Medicine

"All rundown" from the weakening effects of warm weather, you need a good tonic and blood purifier like Hood's Sarssparilla. Do not put off taking it. Numerous little ailments, if neglected, will soon break up the system. Take Hood's Sarssparilla now, to expel disease and give you strength and appetite.

Hood's PILLS are the best family cathar tic and liver medicine. Harmless, reliable

AN APPEAL TO OUR DOX" FRIEN

MARCH 10, 1894.

In spite of the general testantism in the direct thought and liberal, ratio we believe there is a very tion of the so-called Orthod tions who still cling to the teaching of the Church fundamental doctrines of They firmly believe in the character of the religion the great central doctrin carnation, the divinity His atonement, the neces in Him as a divine Savio ance for sin, of a true heart and life in order salvation of our souls, great end of our creation supreme and all-importa life while we remain in t The Westminster Cate Presbyterian friends very it in the answer to the i

What is the chief end of

swer-" Man's chief end

God and enjoy Him fores

a brief, comprehensive a tinent statement. To be tian is to seek first the ki and His justice and not pleasures and unsubstanthis life. It is to lay up heaven and not on ear Christian is in the world He is diligent in busine people and he may be paccumulate property by right dealing, but his he He does not love the own sake, he is only and his gifts and blessings t God and the good of hi tures. We have been the in describing what we b the views of our Orthod accentuate the importan education. It is clear, nature as we find it, th of true Christians acc pattern we have endeav nor the result of an inte and half, milk-and-wate struction. Religion mu supreme part of the ch mind must be thoroughl from infancy with the spirit of the religion of We cannot conceive of ous, suicidal policy than ing the child during th of his education to a sys secular instruction a The idea that the defi made up by an hour's instruction during the lusion and a snare. haps, a few families in ligious influence is so p constant, consistent and and where the intelli informed parents make matter of conscientiou that their children instructed in their reli deleterious influences o may be in a measur always at more or less:

And what a strange tians should be unde of contending agains finences of a system of tion when duty, and e common sense, and ciples would dictate necessity of having instead of requiring p their guard against influences, should we with their views and only supplement but efforts and complete

The best religiousough Christian—schoo to form the character tian model. If the training is not alwa counteracting the evi human nature and fe acter on the divine me in Holy Scripture, wh of the system that sh teaching and religio There is an in the declaration th be trained in a religi surrounded by all th can be brought to be develop their moral nature, to train their form in them perman ing from high moral e love of God and to duty.

Now we are perfec really good, devout to the views here exp hearts they know secular education is vise, anti-Christian Individuals and reli occasionally given strongest terms to t importance of a thore Christian education Yet they take no such a system and glorify the secular, tem which in their and believe to be fact inconsistent wit

Why do they purs inconsistent and Partly from the lin of an old, heredita principally from fee yield to the clamor of unreasoning, hareb profess to be afraid going to over-run take possession of and rule them all w

Now aside from t ing there is any dar millions of Catholics of the Governmen fifty or sixty millio why cannot our fri

Quietly she has unwound the rosary from her wrist, and she bends down, placing her lips upon the crucifix—the crucifix given to her by the Cure of St. Anne, on the morning of her first Com

"My God!" she murmurs, "the sacrifice is complete.'

"O Jesu quem velatum nunc aspicio, Oro flat illud quad tam sitio! Ut te revelata cernens facie Visu sim beatus tuæ Gloriæ."

Then Mabel sinks her head yet ower; she will never lift it again it this world of sin and sorrow. It is all over for her. She has known what sorrow meant, but she will never know it any more. Short, too, has been the agony of that lonely death far away in the South Pacific Ocean! Shortall so short compared with the endless ages of eternity !

A solemn hush falls upon the deck. The Captain has left his post and is praying aloud, surrounded by many of the passengers and crew. All violent wailing has completely ceased. Those who still remain, helpless vic tims in the burning ship, have resigned themselves to their inevitable moans and sobs they forbear to sh any manifestation of terror. The last launched two boats and got clearly away-safely out of reach of the now quivering mass of fire to which the unfortunate vessel is re-About twenty minutes later, at a quarter to four o'clock, just as dawn is breaking in the Eastern sky. there comes a fearful crash, like the bursting of a thunder-bolt. A dazzl ing tongue of blue fire shoots upwards the heavens, curling hither and thither like liquid lightning; the sky and sea for many miles round ar illuminated as by a thousand bonfires. There rises upon the still morning air a long, piercing wail, after which there is death-like silence. Columns of smoke wreathe upwards, and when they disperse again nought remains of the good ship Leander but a charred and broken wreck, floating in shivered fragments, upon the placid bosom of the great deep sea.

Once more the waters teem with a harvest of human life; struggling, drowning faces may be for a while distinguished, but it is all soon over. Life in this world has passed for ever, and more than two hundred souls have gone forth into life or death in the world to come. Mabel was not one of those doomed to struggle in the waves. Suffocated with many others in the dense smoke, she died with comparatively little suffering. Sharp, indeed, had been the agony of the preceding hourterrible the conflict ere she could resign herself to die, so near to Hugh. by so cruel a death; but from th moment when Katie was taken safely from her, it seemed as though the last link of the chain of Mabel's life, bind snapped asunder.

Intense, unruffled peace, the heir loom of God's faithful children, settled down upon her soul. In one short that which hitherto she had so often been forced to believe by faith only namely, that God's holy will at all times, in every season, and under every circumstance, has been, is, and must ever be, always for the best Best of all in the hour of death and in the day of judgment.

ing her to the cares of earth, was Peacefully, like a weary child going to sleep on its mother's lap, Mabel had aid herself down in the Everlasting lips tightly fastened to the crucified image of her Saviour. so dear to her in life. She had met death quietly and without a struggle. It was no death for her. It was only the entrance into life eternal. was spared the terrors of the last explosion. God had taken her home full ten minutes before it took place. Happy, happy Mabel, what a blessed end for her? How gladly How gladly must her guardian angel have sung his Deo Gratias on that feast of St

Michael the Archangel.

The Voice of Manning.

When Cardinal Manning lay upon his death-bed, a phonograph was introduced into the room, and he was asked to speak into it a message for posterity. The phonograph has been carefully preserved by his successor, Cardinal Vaughan: and one day last veek, as we learn from the Sunday Sun, the voice of the lamented Arch bishop of Westminster was heard again upon the earth. The message ran as follows:

"To all who may come after me: I hope that no word of mine, written or spoken in my life, will be found to have done harm to any one after I am

These touching, tender, humble words derive additional pathos from the fact that since the death of Cardinal Manning the poor and the op-pressed the world over have longed to hear such helpful, comforting words as the voice now stilled forever was wont to utter. It was characteristic of the saintly Cardinal to think meanly of himself and his own work ; but no one else could ever fancy that any word of his was likely to harm, instead of help. -Ave Maria.

The Sring Medicine

"All rundown" from the weakening effects of warm weather, you need a good tonic and blood purifier like Hood's Sarsaparilla. Do not put off taking it. Numerous little ailments, if neglected, will soon break up the system. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla now, to expel disease and give you strength and appetite.

HOOD'S PILLS are the best family cathar tic and liver medicine. Harmiess, reliable

BURDOCK PILLS give satisfaction where-ever tried. They cure Constipation, Sick Headache and Biliousness.

AN APPEAL TO OUR "ORTH DOX" FRIENDS.

In spite of the general trend of Protestantism in the direction of free thought and liberal, rationalistic ideas we believe there is a very fair propor tion of the so-called Orthodox denomina tions who still cling to the traditional teaching of the Church on the great fundamental doctrines of Christianity They firmly believe in the supernatural character of the religion of the Biblethe great central doctrines of the Incarnation, the divinity of Christ, and His atonement, the necessity of faith in Him as a divine Saviour, of repentance for sin, of a true conversion of heart and life in order to attain the salvation of our souls, which is the great end of our creation and the only supreme and all-important business of life while we remain in this world. The Westminster Catechism of our

Presbyterian friends very well expresses it in the answer to the first question : 'What is the chief end of man?" An what is the chief end of man? An ion you would not make them reng-ious Protestants but sceptics and ing a brief, comprehensive and very per-tinent statement. To be a true Christian that is it manily, is it a wise proceeding? Above all, is it tinent statement. To be a true Christian is to seek first the kingdom of God Christian? We think not, and told of an Archbishop going to Rome and His justice and not the fleeting we acknowledge that we are pleasures and unsubstantial goods of not only surprised but exceedingly pleasures and unsubstantial goods of not only surprised but exceedingly this life. It is to lay up treasures in pained and saddened at the thought heaven and not on earth. The true Christian is in the world but not of it. He is diligent in business like other people and he may be prosperous and accumulate property by honest, up right dealing, but his heart is not in He does not love the world for its own sake, he is only anxious to use all his gifts and blessings to the glory of God and the good of his fellow-crea tures. We have been thus particular in describing what we believe are still the views of our Orthodox friends to accentuate the importance of religious education. It is clear, taking human nature as we find it, that the making of true Christians according to the pattern we have endeavored briefly to sketch is not to be the work of a day, nor the result of an intermittent, half struction. Religion must be made the supreme part of the child's life. mind must be thoroughly imbued even from infancy with the principles and spirit of the religion of Jesus Christ. We cannot conceive of a more danger ous, suicidal policy than that of confid ing the child during the whole course of his education to a system of purely secular instruction and influence. The idea that the deficiency can be made up by an hour's Sunday-school instruction during the week is a delusion and a snare. There are, perhaps, a few families in which the religious influence is so predominant, constant, consistent and all prevading and where the intelligent and well informed parents make it so much a matter of conscientious duty to see that their children are thoroughly instructed in their religion, that the deleterious influences of secular schools may be in a measure lessened, but always at more or less risk. And what a strange idea that Christians should be under the necessity of contending against the evil in fluences of a system of secular education when duty, and expediency, and common sense, and Christian principles would dictate the imperative necessity of having a system which instead of requiring parents to be on their guard against its damaging influences, should work in harmony with their views and efforts and not only supplement but anticipate those efforts and complete the important

The best religious-the most thortian model. If the best Christian training is not always successful in counteracting the evil propensities of human nature and forming the char acter on the divine model furnished us in Holy Scripture, what shall we think of the system that shuts out religious teaching and religious influence en-There is an important truth in the declaration that children must be trained in a religious atmosphere surrounded by all the influences that can be brought to bear upon them to develop their moral and religious nature, to train their consciences and authority." So all the Bishops in Eng form in them permanent habits of acting from high moral principle, from subject to St. Augustine, and this by the love of God and supreme devotion to duty. Now we are perfectly aware that all really good, devout Protestants assent to the views here expressed. In their hearts they know that a system of secular education is unreasonable, unanti-Christian and dangerous. Individuals and religious bodies have occasionally given utterance in the strongest terms to these views of the importance of a thorough religious and Christian education for their children. Yet they take no pains to establish such a system and in fact continue to power; we know also that British glorify the secular, Public school system which in their hearts they know and believe to be injurious, and in fact inconsistent with their own principles.

Why do they pursue such an unwise, inconsistent and suicidal course? not prove anything as regards the Partly from the lingering influence Church of England; for the Brit-Partly from the lingering lintees, but of an old, hereditary prejudice, hereditary prejudice, hereditary prejudice, hereditary prejudice, hereditary prejudice, unreasoning, harebrained bigots who profess to be afraid that Catholics are going to over-run the country and possession of the Government and rule them all with a rod of iron.

unseemly and unfounded fears are simply a manifest and childish confession of weakness. Why can they not see that the very best way to stem the advancing tide of Catholicity at which they profess to be so alarmed would be for all to go to work and get up religious schools, each according to their own views, and make the people all good Protestants? Why can they not ee that they are playing into the hands of Infidels, sceptics and agnos-

Why should they object to Catholics giving their children the very best religious education in their power? Protestants themselves acknowledge that the Catholic religion has a power fully restraining influence upon the masses. It has a tendency to make them good, moral citizens, whereas the teaching of the secular system of the Public schools has a direct and in-evitable tendency to destroy in their minds all reverence for religion of any kind. If you could wean all the any kind. Catholic children from their own religion you would not make them relig-Why should you wish to do are The true that our friends and neighbors with whom we have the most pleasant and friendly buisness and social relations should feel it necessary to do us an in justice at the same time that they sacri fice their own best interests and the interests of the rising generation to the demands of an old traditional pre judice which is as false and unfounded as it is absurd and ridiculous. Dear friends, you who believe in and love the religion of Jesus Christ and still exercise a controling influence, for God's sake and for the sake of the best interests of our children and the prosperity of our beloved country, let us come to some understanding which we can all give to the rising generation that thorough religious training which is so essential to good citizenship as well as to the salvation of their souls .- N. Y. Catholic Review.

> THE ENGLISH CHURCH ALWAYS ROMAN CATHOLIC.

Tract of the Catholic Truth Society.

It is a favorite plan of some who care little for the truth of history, to state boldly, but without proof, that the Church of England never was Roman Catholic and never acknowledged the Pope to be the head of the Church. I hope to show you, dear reader, in this paper that the Church of England before the Reformation always did acknowledge the Pope to be the Head of the Church. and therefore always was, up to that time, Roman Catholic.

The great historian of the early English Church is the Venerable Bede, who died in the year 735. Speaking of Pope Gregory he says, that "we may and ought rightly to call him our Apostle, because, whereas he bore the Pontifical power all over the world, and was placed over the Churches already reduced to the faith of truth, he mad our nation, till then given up to idols, the Church of Christ." For it was this Pope Gregory who sent St. Augustine into England to convert the English. When St. Augustine was succeeding in his work of conversion, he was, by the Pope's command, consecrated "Bishop of the English" by the Bishop of Arles, in France. Then Pope Greg ory sent him several letters instruc ing him what he was to do in England. In one letter he tells him to ordain a gh Christian—school is little enough form the character on the true Christian between the character of the cha ough Christian—school is little enough | number of Bishops who should be subplaces around should receive the faith, he was to ordain one to be Archbishop "But to you, my brother," th there. Pope writes, "shall, by the authority of our God and Lord Jesus Christ, be subject not only those Bishops you shall ordain, and those that shall be ordained by the Bishop of York, but also all the priests in Britain." In another letter he says: "With respect to the Bishops of Britain, we commit them all to your brotherhood, that the unlearned may be taught and the obstinate be corrected by your land, whether English or British, were the authority of the Pope.

But Anglicans say, the British Church never admitted the Pope to be the Head of the Church, nor did the British Bishops submit to St. Augustine's authority. To this I answer: First, that it is not true to say that the British Church did not acknowledge the Pope to be the Head of the Church Gildas, a British historian, says that the British held St. Peter to be first of the apostles," and key-bearer of the Kingdom of Heaven, through power; we know also that British Bishops were present at the Council of Sardica, A. D. 347, which declared, in ondly, even if this were true, it would ish Church would have nothing what Church. Thirdly, though the British ture Bishops would not have St. Augustine sepan anything he proposed.

Those letters of Pope Gregory tell us also how England came to have Archbishops of Canterbury and York—they now hold a very different faith from that of St. Augustine and St. Paulinus, the first Archbishops-it was by the appointment of the Bishop of Rome. St. Augustine, too, was made by Pope Gregory Primate of England; and each successor of St. Augustine to the time of the Reformation, including Cranmer, who was afterwards the first Protestant Archbishop, received afresh from the Pope of his time the authority which had been given to the firs Archbishop of Canterbury. The sign of this authority was the pall, a kind of stole worn only by Archbishops, and every Archbishops, of Canterbury and of York had to go to Rome, after he was ordained, to receive his pall (unless unable to do so, when he could send for it), and till he had received it. In Bede's History, and in the Anglo . Saxon Chronicle, a work of which even Dr. Giles, the Protestant critic, acknowlto receive his pall, or sending to Rome for it. Later on, at the personal re quest of King Canute when on a pil grimage to Rome, leave was given that the English Archbishops might receive the pall without actually going to Rome for it. This receiving of the the authority of the Pope. For the first one hundred years after he coming of St. Augustine, the Bishops were Romans sent direct by the Pope. In 665 King Oswy, who, as Bede says (bk. iii. c. 29), "perfectly understood that the Roman was the Catholic and Apostolic Church," sent Wighardt to Rome to be ordained Wighardt died in Rome, and Bishop. Wighardt died in Rome, and Pope Vitalian "made diligent inquiry for some one to send to be Archbishor of the English Churches" (Bede, bk. iv. c. i.) Theodore, whom he at last was well received in England, and soon assembled a Council at Hert ford (in which he called himself "the Bishop of the See of Canterbury ap pointed by the Apostolic See," that is Rome); then he went about the country, visiting the churches and reform ing what he thought to be wrong. He even deposed some of the Bishops; but even deposed some of the Blanch of one of them, Wilfrid, Archbishop of that authority acquitted of every thing" and restored to his See, and Archbishop Theodore admitted thi sentence. In 785 Pope Gregory III. placed all the Bishops north of the Humber under the author ity of the Archbishop of York. In 787 the See of Lichfield was raised by Pope Adrian I. to an Archbishopric, but in under the Archbishop of Canterbury

All this is sufficient proof that the English Church, to the time of the Norman Conquest, acknowledged Pope to be the Head of the Christian Church. Further proof is found in the constant pilgrimages to Rome, where a hospital was founded and sup ported by English money for the she ter of English pilgrims; in the charters and privileges asked for by Kings and granted by Popes; and in the Rome-scot or Peter pence, a tax paid to the Pope. The Venerable Bede says that "all those who in any way sepparate themselves from the unity of his faith and communion (that is, of St. Peter and of his successor, the Pope), can neither be absolved from the bond of their sins, nor enter the gate of the Heavenly Kingdom."
From the time of the Norman Con-of the Church is so clear as scarcely to require proof for any one who has read even but a little of history.

That the Pope was Head of the Church was the teaching of St. Anselm; of St. Thomas of Canterbury; of Cardinal Pullen, who taught at Oxford; of Bishop John of Salisbury; of St. Aelred, Abbot of Rievaulx; of Grosseteste, Bishop of Lincoln; of Roger Bacon; of Duns Scotus; of the great English theologian, Thomas Waldensis; and of a host of others. We will give the words of one later writer, King Henry VIII. In his book on the Seven Sacraments which he wrote agains Luther, in defence of the Roman Cath olic Church, he says: "It cannot be denied that the whole Church of the faithful recognizes the Holy Roman See as its mother and chief." In return for having written this book, Henry received from Pope Julius II. the title "Defender of the Faith, which is still part of the title of the Sovereign of England, and is inscribed

(F. D.) on every piece of money.

But a few years later, as the Pope would not allow him a divorce from his wife, Henry determined to throw off the authority of the Pope; and he resisted by the clergy; and Bishop Fisher in his speech to Convocation reminded them that by obeying the King they would render themselves "contemptible to the whole Christian world, and hissed out from the society convert them; therefore the Church of England cannot lay claim to any him, in place of the Pope, head rights or privileges, not even to the Of the Church of England, would Christian faith, through the British be, he said, contrary to Scripture and the Councils, would fact that most Catholics believed that separate them from the unity of all the priest did not need any Masses or that Bishops should no longer be presented to the Pope for approval, and that all licences, etc., usually obtained from Rome, were now to cease, show clearly what the authority of the Pope had been up to that time (see Lingard, vol. vi. e. iii). Once more. On January 24, 1559, the clergy of the Province of Canter-bury presented to Queen Elizabeth a a series of articles in defence of the Roman Catholic religion, of which the fourth states that to the successors of St. Peter (the Popes) "is given the supreme power of feeding and ruling the Church of Christ." And on the 27th of February, when it was proposed by the Queen's Ministers to de clare the Queen to be head of the Church of England all the Bishops opposed it; and all, except Kitchen (called by Strype "the scourge of his diocese,") were soon after deposed, and then came Elizabeth's. Protestant

Many more proofs could be given. but those already given are more than sufficient to show that the Church o England was from the time of S Augustine, her Apostle, to that of the Reformation, always Roman Catholic, and that she always acknowledged the Pope as her Head.

Against all this Anglicans say that that England protested against it But there is no proof whatever that the Pope usurped his authority. I have shown how that authority came into this forgetfulness of our deceased England, and how the English, both priests. It comes from the belief that clergy and people, submitted to it. Moreover, when did England ever Moreover, when did England ever submit without resistance to usurped authority? Anglicans say that the English protested against the Pope; they did nothing of the kind. quite true that a few kings tried to prevent appeals to Rome, in order that they might bring the clergy and the wealth of the Church under their own power, but such acts of injustice were a'ways resisted by fresh appeals to the Pope, nor can they be called protests. There was one, and one only, protest against the spiritual authority of the Pope. This was made by Wiclif; and Wiclif's article that "the Roman Church was not supreme amongst the Churches" was condemned in London A. D. 1411, by fourteen Bishops and thirty doctors of theology.

Reader, take the advice of Alcuin, one of the greatest lights of the old Church of England, and, that you "be not found to be a schismatic or non-Catholic, follow the most trustworthy authority of the Roman Church.

ARE THEY FORGOTTEN WHEN THEY'RE GONE?

Why Are Deceased Priests Not Oftener Prayed for by Their Congrega-

The present Bishop of Cleveland, Right Rev. Dr. Horstmann, in a funeral sermon lately delivered in this city, asked the question, why are priests so soon forgotten after death He did not mean that the priests names or works were forgotten. Indeed, the contrary was the case; so much that the churches they labored to build and the parishes they helped to organize are known even yet by the family names of their founders. What he referred to was the deplorable fact that so few people continued to pray for or had Masses offered for the ouls of their deceased pastors.

The truth of this general and grave charge against the gratitude of the Catholic laity is not seriously questioned. There are, doubtless, many quicker than our priests, and that even the most popular amongst them s very soon forgotten after death. The priests themselves know it and ad-

We knew a clergyman who died some years ago in a parish where he had lived for over twenty years; he was a model priest in every he was beloved by all, both old and young; his name was a household one with the rich and poor alike; yet we were assured by his successor that. during the year immediately following his death, only one person in the congregation had a Mass offered for the repose of his soul. Not a great while ago another very devoted priest died in the diocese. His death was justly nourned by his flock, for he had spent his life and his talent and his means in building and adorning their church. and in every zealous way helping them in their spiritual and temporal necessities. The day of his burial was a day of general wailing and heart rending sorrow. On the occasion of his Month's Mind, however, we heard from one of the priests of the Church that, during the month since his death, only one person asked him to say Mass Sardica, A. D. 347, which declared, in the letter sent to Pope Julius, that the See of Peter, that is, the Bishopric of Rome, is the Head of all Bishops. Secondly, even if this ways two itself. as unaccountable as it appears to be unjust; for certainly of all persons we know, the priest who is our spiritual father and guide, has the most lasting claims on our gratitude and charity

The Bishop's explanation or excuse for this neglect of the laity to remem-ber their deceased priests was, if not quite satisfactory, at least very good. He thought the neglect arose from the Now aside from the folly of supposing there is any danger of eight or ten millions of Catholics getting possession of the Government in opposition to fifty or sixty millions of non-Catholics why cannot our friends see that their

the first place, as men and not angels are the ministers of the Gospel, priests are human and therefore liable to human imperfections. Their works may be imperfect; they may have built on the foundation, as St Paul says, of gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble, which in burning shall suffer loss; but they themselves shall be saved yet so as by fire. In the second place, this excuse takes no account of the responsibilities of the priest, the many graces he received both in his vocation and sacred office, the duties he has to discharge, the charge of souls committed to his care, the account he shall give to the Great Judge for duties neglected as well as for the manner in which others were performed. All these and many more are included in the responsibility of a priestly vocation, and consequently it would be cruel to their memory t deprive them of the prayers and sur frages of the Church, under the perhaps false supposition that because the usurped his authority, and they were selected for the sanctuary

they owed no debt to the justice of Another reason might be given for the priest belongs to no particular person on earth, but belongs to God alone! When yet a youth he feels the voice of our Lord calling on him to leave all things and follow Him. Obeying that voice, he leaves home and friends, even his father and mother. He enters the Seminary, hi education tends to cool, to lessen, to spiritualize all his human and family affections, he is selected, like Saul, fo a special work, he is ordained, he goes on the mission, and while all the flock claim him and consult him and trouble him as they please, yet he is ever that peculiar, unique character -the Cath olic priest — claimed by all and still belonging to no one. Consequently, when he dies, he runs the risk of being forgotten or neglected on the principle that what is everybody's business is n one's concern, and the poor priest, after perhaps years of labor for a parish, may suffer in purgatory vainly expecting that at least his friends will have pity on him. Add to this the old saying, "out of sight out of mind, and you have another factor in the forgetfulness for priests. When we no longer see them, and they cease to be useful to us, they soon drop from our memory. "Three months dead, and not forgotten yet!" is the poet's way of telling a truth confirmed by time and experience.

And what we have said regarding our priests can be said of Catholics in general to a great extent. The living too readily forget the dead and show little gratitude and charity to them. Children even forget their parents, and in a few months after their decease, in many cases, remember them no longer. Their names may be recorded on a monument in the grave-yard, but there is little done for the welfare of their souls.

Under such circumstances, and in this state of things, what seems to be the duty of priests and Catholics in general? Plainly to trust to no one, and to have provision made for them-selves. This can be done in two ways first, by helping every good work, when possible; helping religious and urged his people to have Masses offered for themselves while living, teaching what is a pious tradition among the good Irish people, that one Mass before

Here's a Pointer

When you ask for a

5 cent plug

10 cent plug

20cent plug

CALL DO

TRADE MARK

Smoking Tobacco

be sure that the retailer does not induce you to buy any other in order that he may make a

POPULAR

judged that he was not meek and lowly of heart, and so would not agree to the law of Christ will allow." But the times, and as in order to do this his Second, by providing in their wills laws then passed by the King ordering soul was expected to be always in the that after their death the wants and that Bishops should no longer be presented to be always in the charitable institutions of the Church lieved that his punishment in purgatory would be little or nothing, and shall be remembered, and that Masses shall be offered for the benefit of their as a consequence very soon omitted to souls. It shocks our faith to read of a pray for him. This plausible explarich man's will in which all his wealth nation may be very complimentary to the life of the priest, but it is very to charity or offerings for Masses. On cruel in its practical consequences. In the other hand, when we see a Catholic-whether priest or layman -either by an insurance on his life or by a legitimate accumulation of money make provision in his will that the Sacrifice shall be repeatedly Holy offered for him, we commend his faith soul in laying up treasures for himself gratitude of either relatives or friend or other people. - Catholic Standard.

Pains in the Joints

Caused by Inflammatory Swelling

A Perfect Cure by Hood's Sarsar parilla.

"It affords me much pleasure to recon

Hood's Sarsaparilla. My son was afflicted with great pain in the joints, accompanied with swelling so bad that he could not get up stairs to bed without crawling on hands and knees. I was very anxious about him, and having read Hood's Sarsaparilla. I determined to try it, and get a half-dozen bottles, four of which entirely cured him." Mrs. G. A. LAKE, Oshawa, Ontario.

N. B. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla. Hood's Pills act easily, yet promptly and

BOOKS For the Season of Lent and Holy Week.

Meditations for Holy Season of Lent...$0 85 Lenten Conferences. 2 vols............ 2 60 Lenten Conferences. 2 vols.
Love of Our Lord
The Delorous Passion
The Sufferings of Our Lord.
The Soul on Calvary
The Way of salvation
The Clock of the Passion Considerations on the Passion
How to Live Plously Preparation for Death

Holy Week Books.

Roan French Morecco, black edges..... " (ull gilt, gilt edges..... Month of March Books.

Real Palms for Palm Sunday.

Paschal Candles In the following sizes: 2 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, 10, 12 and 15 lbs. Lither plain or decorated.

Just Issued. The Catholic Directory and Ordo for 1894

D. & J. SADLIER & CO. Catholic Publishers, Church Ornaments and Religious Articles. 669 Notre Dane St. 123 Church St. TORONTO

180 KING STREET. JOHN FERGUSON & SONS, The leading Undertakers and Embaltaers. Open night and day.
Telephone—House, 373; Factory, 543.

WEBSTER'S DICTIONARY The Catholic Record for One Year

FOR $4.00.

By special arrangement with the publishers, we are able to obtain a number of the above books, and propose to furnish a copy to each of our subscribers.

The dictionary is a necessity in every mone, school and business house. It fills a vacancy, and furnishes knowledge which no one hundred other volumes of the choicest books could supply. Young and Old, Educated and Ignorant, Rich and Poor, should have it within reach, and refer to its contents every day in the year.

As some have asked if this is really the Original Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, we are able to state that we have learned direct from the publishers the fact that this is the very work complete, on which about 4f of the best years of the author's life were so well employed in writing. It contains the entire vocabulary of about 100,000 words, including the correct spelling, derivation and definition of same, and is the regular standard size, containing about 300,000 square inches of printed surface, and is bound in cloth.

A whole library in itself. The regular self-cloth.

A whole library in itself. The regular selling price of Webster's Dictionary has herstofre been $12.00.

N. B.—Dictionarles will be delivered fref of all charge for carriage. All orders must be accompanied with the cash If the book is not entirely satisfactory to the purchaser it may be returned at our expense. pense.
"I am well pleased with Webster's Unabridged Dictionary. I find it a most valuable work.

JOHN A. PAYNE,
"I am highly pleased with the Dictionary," writes Mr. W. Scott, of Lancaster, Ont.

Address, THE CATHOLIC RECORD

larger profit. D. Ritchier Co MONTREAL.

have done so likewise, but though these writers have shown so much hatred of Catholicism, and indeed of all religion, in their novels, their pictures of the history of the Church are so grossly exaggerated beyond the most extreme limits of probability and even possibility, that they cannot de-

The Catholic Record. Published Weekly at 484 and 486 Rice street, London, Ontario.

REV. GEORGE R. NORTHGRAVES, Author of "Mistakes of Modern Infidels."

Author of "Mistakes of Modern Infideis."
THOMAS COFFEY.
Pablisher and Proprietor, THOMAS COFFEY, MESSUS, LUKE KING, JOHN MIGH, and P. J. NEVEN, are fully authorized to receive subscriptions and transact all other business for the CATHOLIC RECORD.
Rates of Advertising—Ten cents per line each "assertion, agate measurement.
Approved and recommended by the ArchDishops of Toronto, Kingston, Ottawa, and St.
Boniface, and the Bishops of London, Hamilton and Peterboro, and the clergy throughout the Dominion.

Correspondence intended for publication, as vell as that having reference to business, should be directed to the proprietor, and must reach condon not later than Tuesday morning.

Arrears must be paid in full before the paper as he stonged. of Quebec.

London, Saturday, March 10, 1894.

THE HON. H. G. JOLY.

One of the most remarkable events which have for many years stirred the political atmosphere of the Dominion of Canada was the visit of Mr. H. G. Joly, ex-Premier of Quebee, to Toronto last week, to lay before the people of Ontario the actual condition of the Pretestant minority of Quebec, under the rule of an overwhelming Catholic majority, strong in their religious convictions, his purpose being, as he expressed at the beginning of his address, 'to dispel the prejudices existing in the minds of many Ontarians against the people of Quebec, and to show that they (the Catholic majority) are not the bigoted, narrow-minded people they are represented to be." There have been periods, undoubtedly, when the friendly relations between Catholics and Protestants throughout the Dominion have been severely strained. It was foreseen when the Confederation Act was agreed to by the delegates of all the Provinces of Canada that such shocks would occur. and they were to some extent provided for by the Act itself, which was specially framed to protect the rights of the minorities, at least in Ontario and Quebec, where it was most to be feared lest those rights should be interfered with.

To whom was it to be attributed that these strained relations existed? The Mail and some other journals have been constantly dinning it into our ears that it arose entirely from the fanaticism of Catholics, and especially of French-Canadians, whom they represent as being engaged in a neverceasing plot to drive the Protestants of Quebec out of that Province, and even to take possession of a portion of Ontario, and to establish a French na tionality in the North-West.

On these and similar grounds the Protestants of Ontario have beer goaded to enmity against the French Canadians and the Catholics of the whole Dominion. Mr. Joly's object was to restore confidence and friendship between the people of Ontario and Quebec.

The purpose of Mr. Joly is mos praiseworthy and patriotic. It is not easy to allay religious dissensions when once they have been excited, but it is an heroic act for a man like Mr. Joly, who is justly regarded as a representative Protestant of his Proace, to devote himself, at a great personal sacrifice, to the work of making peace, and we sincerely hope his noble purpose may be attained.

He tells us that it was at a banquet given in Montreal by the journalists of Quebec that the idea was formed that he should undertake this mission of peace. Mr. W. T. Preston, President of the Ontario Press Association, while replying to a toast expressed his pleasure that between the English and French races in Quebec there is not that friction or ill-feeling which might be expected if we were only to regard what is frequently said in the West on this subject. It was then suggested, and the idea was generally approved, that Mr. Joly should undertake the task of enlightening the people of Ontario on a matter which has been so grossly misrepresented to them by those who either have been misinformed on the subject, or who have purposely misrepresented the matter from interested motives.

Mr. Joly is a Frenchman, yet a firm Protestant, but this has not been an obstacle to his obtaining the confidence of French-Canadian Catholics ; and he has been for many years the representative of a constituency almost exclusively Catholic. He stated that for this constituency he had been elected for a quarter of a century against all comers, though his opponents were frequently Catholics, and in some instances the endeavor was made, without success, to raise a relig ious prejudice against him. The people of the constituency had answered to these cries that a Catholic trust a Protestant than a bad Catholic. The county of Lotbiniere, which has thus constantly elected Mr. Jely to represent it, has a population of 20,688, of whom 20,330 are Catholics. This single fact is enough to show that French-Canadians are liberally disposed towards Protestants. The Mail has endeavored, however, to make it appear that Mr. Joly has been badly treated, and through him the Protest ants of Quebee, because he is no longer the representative of that county, and he is not now, as he was once, Premier

It is so well known that such positions as these often depend upon other causes than religious animosity, that it is not necessary to refute the Mail's contention. High as Mr. Joly has always stood in public estimation as an honest and honorable politician, the fact that he is a Protestant did not give him any special claim to hold these positions for ever. He was sub ject, like all other politicians, to the vicissitudes and exigencies of the times. But we are pleased to find that he himself recognizes that he was no left in the shade on account of his re ligion. He declared at the Toronto meeting that he was not asked to re sign. He found, however, that he differed from his constituents on a mat ter of public policy and he retired of his own accord. He added that "he was not driven from public life, but he had stepped down because of the reasons given. He maintained that there is no set purpose on the part of

The question on which Mr. Joly differed from his constituents was the treatment of the half-breeds of the North-West, which brought about the Reil rebellion. It was a question on which the people of the country had a right to disagree, and it was practically admitted even in the despatches sent from the Colonial office to the Canadian Government that there was good reason for the half-breeds to suspect that their rights would be interfered with. The French-Canadians had, therefore, a perfect right to have their own opinion on the matter, and Mr. Joly, apparently, is satisfied that they had such a right.

minority in Quebec.'

The Jesuit estates question was an other of the issues which caused much ill-feeling between the two Provinces On this question Mr. Joly states that the French-Canadians had not the renotest idea to set aside the authority of the Queen and to substitute for it that of the Pope. The name of the Pope was mentioned in the bill merely because it was necessary to mention the name of the authority who alone could sanction the agreement made, so that there would be no possibility to make a second claim.

The whole address was an appeal to the Protestants of Ontarie against the anti-Catholic agitators which have so many times been excited in the Province. Mr. Joly's purpose was the more generous coming from a Protes- Lords is now greatly changed, the reno one knows better than he the true state of affairs as they exist in the Province of Quebec.

THE LORDS AND THE PROS-PECT FOR IRELAND.

The quarrel between the British House of Commons and the Lords, which has been raging ever since the rejection of the Home Rule Bill, has become greatly intensified by the most recent action of the hereditary branch of Parliament in rejecting the Employers' Liability Bill, or rather in mutilat ing it to such an extent as to amount practically to its rejection.

In the interest of the working classes the clause that no employe can sell or transfer by contract his right to recover damages in the case of accident.

Many of the Lords gave it as their opinion that the passage of this clause would too much restrict the liberty of workingmen, and so it was erased by a large majority.

It is remarkable that the liberty which the Lords desire to give the that protection which the law at present grants them. The passage of the act in such a form as this would make of the people's representatives. Thus he asked :

"What is the use of the repres tives of the people passing measures of reform, wasting whole sessions of labor in elaborating bills which are in the end summarily rejected or fatally mutilated by the hereditary chamber? Yes, gentlemen, that is a very great question. It is one which, in my opinion, will more than any other occupy your attention in the years that are to come."

It is significant that whenever mention was made of the Lords the speaker was interrupted with cries of "Down with them;" and Sir William was in complete accord with his audience, though owing to the responsible posi tion he occupies as Chancellor of the Exchequer, he could not at present indicate what steps will be taken by the Government to change the relations between the Lords and the Commons. He indicated clearly, however, that a change must take place. He said :

"Some shallow-pated people think it is all over when a measure has been rejected in the House of Lords. It is only just beginning. (Cheers.) That That is the way all great reforms have always begun. No great reform, or hardly any great reform, has ever een willingly accepted by the House of Lords. I have not time to say to you to-night all I think, or all I have to say on the House of Lords, but something I will say."

After some witty remarks on the changed position of the Liberal-Unionists in regard to the Lords, he quoted with evident approbation, some words spoken by Mr. Joseph Chamberthe majority to tyrannize over the lain in 1884 at Denbigh, just after the Franchise Bill had been rejected by the Lords. These were called "Plain Words to the House of Lords," and they indicate what remedy a resolute reforming Government can and must apply when the hereditary legislators set themselves as an obstacle to the passage of desirable measures of re-

Mr. Chamberlain then said: "Are the Lords to dictate to us, the people of England? Are the Lords to dictate to us the laws which we shall make and the way in which we shall bring them in? Are you going to be governed by yourselves, or will you submit to an oligarchy which is the mere accident of birth? Your ancestors resisted kings and abated the pride of monarchs, and it is inconceiv able that you should be so careless of your great heritage as to submit your iberties to this miserable minority of individuals who rest their claims upon privilege and accident. They are ancient monuments, and I for one should be very sorry to deface them; but I do not admit that we can build upon these interesting ruins the foundations of our government. I cannot allow that these antiquities should control the destinies of a free empire; and when they press their claims without discretion and without moderation, when they press them to an extreme which their predecessors never contemplated, then I say, they provoke inquiry and controversy which cannot but end in their humilia

Mr. Chamberlain was himself a member of the Cabinet when he spoke thus, and though his attitude towards the Cabinet at the present time shows the tendency of the times to abridge the power of the hereditary legislators who have so many times come into collision with the popular house, by preventing useful legislation. The Employers' Liability Bill is a necessary measure, taking away from niggardly employers the power to coerce their men by oppressive regulations, and the country demands that it should beceme law in order to protect workers. By rendering it inoperative the Lords have justly incurred popular indignation. They are sensitive enough to feel that the storm is gathering against them, and they have already shown signs that they intend the popular house passed this bill with to bend before it. But they have of late so frequently brought upon themselves the odium of the people by opposing their will, that the general sentiment is now that their power must be positively limited so that they may not in the future raise the same obstacles to useful legislation which they have done hitherto.

Sir William Harcourt reminds the Lords of their constitutional functions. workingmen is the liberty to give up He tells them that it is a mistake to suppose that they constitute a sort of supreme court of appeal to rejudge the acts of the representatives of the it entirely useless, and the result is a people and to revise the conduct of the conflict between the Lords and Com- responsible government. If they cenmons which has brought prominently sured a ministry, no regard would be forward once more the question of the paid to such censure. Their right of continued existence of the Lords as a veto is of a very limited character; legislative body. The strain between and though they may in the beginning the two houses has become so great delay the passage of a bill which they bad Catholic, and they would sooner of the necessity of restricting the come too frequently into collision with of Germany.

power of the Lords to nullify the action | the people, they may raise such a storm as will cause them to regret their temerity, and make them more accomodating in future.

> The Irish Home Rule Bill, which the Lords so disdainfully rejected by a majority of more than 400, is not to be considered as disposed of yet. Whereever and whenever the leading Liberals refer to it, they declare that it must be passed, and the modifications which will be applied to a new bill will make it more favorable to Ireland, and less favorable to the Lords than was the one which was so disdainfully rejected.

The issue of abridging the power of the Lords is now fairly before the people, and though the struggle is likely to be a fierce one and perhaps long also, there can be no doubt of the final result. The people will triumph-the people of Ireland as well as those of Great Britain.

The ministry are not prepared at present to propose the complete overthrow of the House of Lords, but they are determined to force the Lerds to give way on the two Bills which they have, for the present, burked-the Employers' Liability and the Parochial Councils Bill. They will also extend the franchise, and after these measures become law there will probably be a general election, by which Mr. Glad-stone will likely be strengthened, and the Home Rule Bill will be passed once more, whereupon the Lords will in all probability be more complaisant than they have yet shown themselves to be. If they refuse to yield, the next step will be to clip them of some of their prerogatives, if not of all: to 'end or mend them," as the favorite phrase has been since the first session of the present Parliament. At one time it was thought that the House of Commons would reject the amendments made by the Lords to the Parish Councils, and the Employers Liability Bills, but after mature ideration the Government has de cided to accept them under protest, with the intention of insisting hereafter on their passage in the form in which they have been passed by the

In announcing this determination Mr. Gladstone stated that it would be a loss of dignity to both houses to pass he bills back and forth from one house to the other. The Government had the choice between rejecting the Lords' amendments entirely, thus abandoning the Bills, and accepting them under protest. They had rethem under protest. They had re-solved to adopt the latter course, as these bills had occupied the attention of the house for a long period, involving a vast amount of labor. The Lords had wrecked the legislation of the Commons with but little considera tion; but the Government desired to save at least something from Further, he stated that the Government has no anxiety to precipitate a crisis, but that the time had come when the decision of the people must be in vited to be made, whether the judgment of a non-elective chamber is to allowed, not merely to modify, but to annihilate the work of the Commons.

THE MISSION.

The mission being held in St. Peter's cathedral in this city, conducted by Rev. Fathers Doherty and O'Brien, of the Society of Jesus, has resulted, as tant, and it should have all the calling of his words by a member of the was expected, in the production of result of the investigation arising out abundant fruit. There is perhaps nothing more consoling to spiritual guides than to witness a transformation from indifference to warmth and fervor on the part of the people in the practice of their religious duties. That such has been the case in the present mission no one can doubt who has witnessed, from early morn until late at might, the great throngs of people attending the cathedral at all the exercises. The retreat has indeed been blessed; for many who have for years permitted the world and its vanities to engross all their time and attention, no longer postpene thought of the world beyond, but have made their peace with God and took firm resolutions against ever again straying into the path where spiritual life decays and dies. His Lordship the Bishop of London, the missionary fathers and the reverend clergy resident in the city have spent two weeks of earnest solicitude and hard work, but we feel sure they count these as but little when the consoling reflection comes to them that they are laboring in the midst of a happy, united and devout people.

A PAMPHLET issued by Mr. Schwalle, the pastor of the so-called Reformed Church of Bremen (Germany), openly attacks the doctrine of Redemption and indeed the whole body of Christian doctrine. The pamphlet is entitled, "Is Jesus the Saviour?" and in it the endeavor is made to prove that Christ did not die for the human race. This that Sir William Vernon Harcourt, regard as mischievous, they must pass is but one of many specimens of the speaking recently to his constituents it in the end. They have only the unbelief in Christianity which has so

MR. FRASER'S RETIREMENT. In the Legislative Chamber at Toronto, on the 28th, the announcement was made by Sir Oliver Mowat that the Hen. Mr. Fraser, Commissioner of Public Works, had been compelled by ill-health to resign his commission in the Cabinet and to retire from public life. He also stated that, by the consent of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, Mr. Fraser would hold office until his successor was appointed and his responsibility is for such government action and such government measures only, as he sees his way to concur in, other governmental matters being as to him open questions.

It would be but the simple truth to state that Mr. Fraser's resignation is regretted not alone by the followers of the Government, but by those also who are opposed to it in the political arena. For twenty years he has held a place in the Cabinet of Ontario, and during all that time his administration has been above reproach. Seldom has a public man laid down his charge and received from political friend and political alike such a large measure of the warmest praise. The breath of scan. dal has never hovered about the Department of Public Works-the political boodler, the man who is a loudtoned patriot for revenue, first, last and always - had no chair in the office of Christopher Fraser. administration from the day he entered the Cabinet until the present hour has been clean and brilliant. We desire not to minimize the merits of the other colleagues of the Attorney-General. What has been said of Mr. Fraser may indeed be said of them also, but they are still in the thick of the fight; and they will be weighed in the balance when the hour for retirement arrives. But now that the Commissioner of Public Works has yielded up his trust, we may in all candor declare with perfect truth that he has set an example in the political life of our country which it would be well for all to follow. He has placed before the coming generation of public men a model which leads to honor, to glory, to distinction, and, if followed, will give them a place in the roll of honor side by side with those who are remembered in Canadian history for the fame they had justly earned and the good they had done for their fellow-men and for the land that gave them freedom and happiness.

SADDLING THE WRONG HORSE.

After the Montreal election for the Mayoralty, the Toronto Mail found great satisfaction in the fact that a large number of the votes were lost through an improper marking of the ballots, the number of illegal ballots amounting to nearly 1,500. The fact was stated as proving the ignorance of French-Canadians, and consequently the inefficiency of the system under which they were educated.

Unfortunately for this theory the Haggard and Jules Verne, that the of the protest of Mr. McShane against the election of Mayor Villeneuve is that it was proved that nearly all the ballots spoiled were those of English Protestants who had written on their ballots it will ever probably succeed in, has the letters P. P., supposed to signify 'Purist's Protest," because they were against both candidates alike. This method of signifying their discontent with both candidates was adopted at the suggestion of the Protestant organ, the Montreal Daily Witness.

There can be no doubt that many of the ballots spoiled otherwise than by the use of the tell tale letters were so treated for similar reasons with those

The Star and the Gazette, which favored the election of Mr. Villeneuve, ridicule the "electoral suicide" committed by the Purists, of whom the Gazette says: "The number of people in Montreal who are too self-righteous to work with their tellow-beings for the general good are creditably few and far between." Those who acted in this way, however, seem to glory in their supposed courage. One of them, signing his letter "A P. P. voter" defends the course thus pursued in the following curious manner:

Now, sir, why should we be thus scoffed at? Had we remained away from the poll, and thus manifested no nterest whatever in who was to be our chief magistrate, the fact would never have been recorded, but when we had not the opportunity to vote for a man whom we considered as werthy of the position, we did the only thing we could conscientiously do, and that was o protest against both."

who attacked his opponent thus was a at Derby, spoke more plainly than ever power of obstruction. If, then, they widely spread among the Protestants his ballot to be that Mr. McShane is which have come from his pen.

men," while Mr. Villeneuve, on the other hand, is "connected with the liquor traffic : and

"No man who amasses wealth out of the heart's-blood of his fellow-men shall ever receive a vote of mine, and so long as such men are put forward for public office, so long I for one shall continue to follow the Witness' advice and mark my ballot with a 'P.'"

It is scarcely necessary to argue such a matter seriously, as the laws give to all the liberty to exercise the franchise as they see fit, or, if they prefer, not to exercise it at all. But it is, at all events, a growing conviction in the minds of the public that it is the duty of every citizen to use the franchise in the best way possible to secure good government, as the circumstances of the occasion demand : and it is difficult to imagine a concurrence of circumstances in which a practical decision may not be arrived at regarding how a vote should be cast which will be in accordance with one's conscientious convictions. If this be a real obligation, it is difficult to see how the deliberate ballot-spoilers can be excused from gross neglect for not fulfilling a sacred duty. At all events the Mail saddled the wrong horse; for it is clear that they were not French-Canadians who were influenced by the advice of the Witness

ROMANCERS ON THE CHURCH.

We gave in our last issue an account of the blunder, or worse than blunder, perpetrated by Mr. Rider Haggard in his romance of "Montezuma's Daughter," wherein he relates the story of an "immured nun" in Seville, confirming it with the statement that he had seen in the museum of Mexico a skeleton of a nun who had been taken out from the walls of a religious house. The discussion arising out of these statements has elicited the fact that the skeleton seen in Mexico by Mr. Haggard was merely that of a body taken out of the common cemetery and placed in the museum to illustrate how strangely the human body is preserved in the climate of Mexico. The body, therefore, was not that of a num, nor was it taken from the walls of a convent.

The Liverpool Catholic Times takes occasion from the exposures of Mr. Haggard's mistake on this subject, to mention another ridiculous blunder made by him in King Solomon's Mines, one of his best known novels. Therein he represents an eclipse of the sun as having taken place when the moon was nearly full, an event which could not occur, as the merest tyro in science knows that an eclipse of the sun can take place only at new moon, when the moon passes between the earth and the sun.

Mr. Haggard's novels have been very widely read, owing to the boldness with which he depicts impossible events as realities; but it is evident that as a scientist, or as an antiquarian he is far from being an authority of any weight.

There is this difference between Mr.

into hypothesis that science, has made more progress in some particular respect than it has yet succeeded in doing and in some instances more than nevertheless kept within the bounds of actual knowledge in every other respect. Thus, much is to be learned from his writings regarding the geography of the countries he describes, their natural products, the people inhabiting them, and other matters pertaining to them. The discoveries of science, and the uses to which these discoveries may possibly be applied are also graphically described by him. of the Purists who thus marked their There is, therefore, much truth in his novels, and a great amount of information is conveyed to the mind through them, the machinery only, or the plot by means of which the knowledge is conveyed, being fictitious; but the fiction is such that it is easily distinguishable from the truth which constitutes the lesson proposed to be imparted to the mind of the reader. But there is nothing of all this in Mr.

Haggard's writings, the success of which has arisen merely from the love of the marvellous which is inherent in those who delight in his style of writing. This being the case, he should abstain from pretending to portray the history and practices of the Catholic Church, which it appears he knows only how to caricature and not to describe. He should confine himself to tales of a Munchausen character.

Mr. Haggard is not the only writer who has endeavored to misrepresent "unworthy of the support of honest Eugene Sue and Alexander Dumas ceive any except the most ignorant. Vet we do not remember that ever these writers have attempted, as Mr. Haggard has done, to give credibility to their vile stories by means of footnotes making statements to the effect that the events they describe ever had their counterpart in real life. Euzene Sue, on the contrary, expressly states in his preface to the Wandering Jew, a villainous romance, that his description of Jesuitism is purely imaginary, and that it was his intention merely to represent what Jesuitism would be if its principles were strictly carried It is needless to say that the principles on which the novelist rests his fabric are as imaginary as the fabric itself. He lays it down that the Jesuit must obey his superiors in all things, even to the perpetration of the most horrible crimes. The Jesuit of fact has for his motte, "Ad majorem Dei gloriam "-" For the greater glory of God," and to the attainment of this end all his actions are directed. His life must therefore be quite different from that depicted by either of the novelists we have named. His vow of obedience is limited to obedience in things law ful, and this must have been known to these novelists, who wrote solely with the object in view to raise the worst prejudices of an irreligious public against an illustrious order which has done so much for religion. Judging from their works these writers might be esteemed as ignorant of the order they described, if they related what they believed to be truthful. But they were not so ignorant. Their venom is therefore to be attributed to a diabolical malice which seems to have entirely possessed their souls. Yet it is upon such misrepresentations that much of the prejudice rests which exists so widely-spread among those Protestants

who regard these writings almost as an inspiration. We mentioned already in our previous article on immured nuns that Mr. Haggard had borrowed his ideas on this subject from Sir Walter Scott's Marmion." The pleasure afforded to a certain class of readers by such tales as this was made evident when, some years ago, all Ontario was in a ferment to force Marmion as a subject for literary study on the children at the Provincial High schools, for no other reason than because it contained this slander against the Catholic Church.

Marmion is, of course, conceded to be a work of great literary merit, if beautiful language, and vivid description constitutes such merit. But it is undeniable that the story is one which is not any more suitable for the reading of youth than would be one of Zola's novels, or the New York Police Gazette. Nothing would have induced the Ontario public to desire Marmion to be studied in its grossest details, except the fact that there is semething in it to insult Catholics.

In his other works Sir Walter Scott does not thus grossly do violence to public morality, nor does he go to such extremes in hatred to Cathelicism as the writers we have already mentioned. Yet there is plenty in all his works to show that he was indoctrinated in all the hatred against the Catholic religion with which Presbyterians of his age were filled from infancy. The Catholic priesthood, especially, are always represented by him in the worst possible light. Priests as represented by him are always either villains or madmen. We need only add that the very ultra character of such descriptions should convince the readers of his books, that they are not truthful; yet we know it is no exaggeration to say that many Protestants accept these fables as if they were historical truths. It is no wonder that a generation which has learned history from such sources is intensely prejudiced against Catholics and the Catholic Church.

We must here add that the history of the Marmion agitation in Ontario should be sufficient to convince fairminded Protestants that Catholics are reasonable when they assert that it is next to impossible to have a strictly non-sectarian system of education. In an anti-Catholic atmosphere the educa tion given to children will always be more or less anti-Catholic in character yet this is only one out of many rea sons why Catholics insist upon educat ing their children in Catholic schools Our chief reason for this is that we wish positive religious teaching to be even possibility, that they cannot deceive any except the most ignorant.

Yet we do not remember that even these writers have attempted, as Mr.

Haggard has done, to give credibility to their vile stories by means of footnotes making statements to the effect that the events they describe ever had their counterpart in real life. Euzene

Sue, on the contrary, expressly states in his preface to the Wandering Jew, a villainous romance, that his description of Jesuitism is purely imaginary, and that it was his intention merely to represent what Jesuitism would be if its principles were strictly carried

It is needless to say that the principles on which the novelist rests his fabric are as imaginary as the fabric itself. He lays it down that the Jesuit must obey his superiors in all things, even to the perpetration of the most has for his motte, "Ad majorem De we have named. His vow of obedience is limited to obedience in things law-

done so much for religion. Judging

from their works these writers might be

esteemed as ignorant of the order they

described, if they related what they believed to be truthful. But they were not so ignorant. Their venom is

therefore to be attributed to a diaboli-

cal malice which seems to have entirely possessed their souls. Yet it is upon

such misrepresentations that much of

the prejudice rests which exists so

widely-spread among those Protestants

who regard these writings almost as an

We mentioned already in our pre vious article on immured nuns that

Mr. Haggard had borrowed his ideas on this subject from Sir Walter Scott's to a certain class of readers by such tales as this was made evident when, some years ago, all Ontario was in a ferment to force Marmion as a subject for literary study on the children at the Provincial High schools, for no other reason than because it contained this slander against the Catholic

Marmion is, of course, conceded to be a work of great literary merit, if beautiful language, and vivid description constitutes such merit. But it is is not any more suitable for the read-

Zola's novels, or the New York Police

the Ontario public to desire Marmion to be studied in its grossest details, except the fact that there is semething

In his other works Sir Walter Scott does not thus grossly do violence to public morality, nor does he go to such the writers we have already men-works to show that he was indoctrin-ated in all the hatred against the Catholic religion with which Presbyterians of his age were filled from infancy.

The Catholic priesthood, especially, are always represented by him in the worst possible light. Priests as represented by him are always either villains or madmen. We need only add that the very ultra character of such descriptions should convince the readers of his books, that they are not truthful; yet we know it is no exaggeration to say that many Protestants accept these fables as if they were historical truths.

It is no wonder that a generation which has learned history from such sources is intensely prejudiced against

We must here add that the history of the Marmion agitation in Ontario minded Protestants that Catholics are reasonable when they assert that it is next to impossible to have a strictly an anti-Catholic atmosphere the educamore or less anti-Catholic in character

yet this is only one out of many rea-ing their children in Catholic schools.

should be sufficient to convince fair-

Catholics and the Catholic Church.

in it to insult Catholics.

"Marmion." The pleasure afforded inspiration.

Church.

Mr. Villeneuve, on the "connected with the and ho amasses wealth out of od of his fellow-men shall vote of mine, and so nen are put forward for so long I for one shall llow the Witness' advice ballot with a 'P. ly necessary to argue r seriously, as the laws

e liberty to exercise the they see fit, or, if they exercise it at all. But ents, a growing convicninds of the public that of every citizen to use n the best way possible od government, as the of the occasion demand : icult to imagine a conreumstances in which a ion may not be arrived how a vote should be be in accordance with ntious convictions. If obligation, it is difficult deliberate ballot-spoilers d from gross neglect for a sacred duty. At all ail saddled the wrong is clear that they were anadians who were ine advice of the Witness.

S ON THE CHURCH our last issue an account or worse than blunder. Mr. Rider Haggard in " Montezuma's Daughne relates the story of an in "in Seville, confirmstatement that he had seum of Mexico a skeleho had been taken out of a religious house arising out of these elicited the fact that the in Mexico by Mr. Hagly that of a body taken non cemetery and placed im to illustrate how numan body is preserved of Mexico. The body, not that of a num, nor com the walls of a conol Catholic Times takes the exposures of Mr. take on this subject, to her ridiculous blunder n King Solomon's Mines, known novels. Therein an eclipse of the sun as place when the moon was event which could not merest tyro in science eclipse of the sun can at new moon, when the tween the earth and the

d's novels have been ead, owing to the boldh he depicts impossible ities; but it is evident tist, or as an antiquarrom being an authority difference between Mr. Jules Verne, that the his sometimes putting s that science, has made in some particular rehas yet succeeded in ome instances more than robably succeed in, has ept within the bounds of dge in every other remuch is to be learned ings regarding the geocountries he describes. products, the people inand other matters perem. The discoveries of he uses to which these y possibly be applied ically described by him. efore, much truth in his great amount of inforonveyed to the mind the machinery only, or ans of which the knowled, being fictitious : but uch that it is easily disom the truth which consson proposed to be im-nothing of all this in Mr. itings, the success of isen merely from the arvellous which is inwho delight in his style his being the case, he from pretending to pory and practices of the h, which it appears he w to caricature and not Ie should confine himf a Munchausen charaind of the reader.

l is not the only writer avored to misrepresent nurch in the romances come from his pen. and Alexander Dumas have done so likewise, but though given to them, and on this matter and from God, and it is utterly futile who sought by every means to rob him clique which has been in power in the ordinary these writers have shown so much parents have the first right to decide, to talk to them of a higher life until of the prestige he had won by long and municipal matters for the last four sense, but rather a mystery of five hatred of Catholicism, and indeed of and it is not either the duty or the all religion, in their novels, their pic- right of the State, or of a hostile majortures of the history of the Church are ity, to override that decision.

so grossly exaggerated beyond the most extreme limits of probability and TROUBLE IN STORE FOR THE A. P. A.

> It is stated that a special session of the Federal Grand Jury of Ohio is to be called immediately for the purpose > of taking under consideration a charge made by citizens of Toledo against members of the A. P. A. of that city, for organizing armed bands for the purpose of waging war on citizens of the United States. The case has been reported to the Federal Attorney-General at Washington, and will be pushed at once to an issue, as the United States law provides that men organizing in the manner indicated are guilty of treason and conspiracy, and as there is proof that the A. P. A. branches purchased arms last August under pretence of suppressing the expected uprising of Catholics to seize the Government of the country, it is believed that the charge of conspiracy will be sustained borrible crimes. The Jesuit of fact The movement to prosecute is not confined to Catholics, but extends to gloriam "-" For the greater glory of Protestants who are opposed to the God," and to the attainment of this end workings of the A. P. A., they being all his actions are directed. His life indignant that any armed body of men must therefore be quite different from should organize themselves without that depicted by either of the novelists authority to take the law into their own hands, so that a determined effort will be made to crush the society in ful, and this must have been known to Toledo, where for two years it has these novelists, who wrote solely with dominated the polls by exercising the the object in view to raise the worst balance of power between the two prejudices of an irreligious public great political parties. against an illustrious order which has

The suit is brought directly against the treasurer of the association, Mr. G. W. Ostrander, who has admitted in an interview that the various councils in the city ordered 3,000 guns last August. It is believed that abundance of evidence will be brought forward to prove the facts, and that the society will be crushed out, and the leaders severely punished for their audacious infraction of the law. The leaders only are aimed at in the prosecution, but among these there are several prominent men, including the mayor of the city.

It is now said that the pretended terror of the A. P. Aists throughout the United States originated in the invention of a bogus circular letter from Pope Leo XIII. by a Detroit wag, and the alarm of the Toledo society has made them a laughing-stock of the whole city; but as the rumor resulted in so dangerous an act as the actual arming of thousands of the citizens against the Catholies of the city, it cannot be passed over as a mere laughing matter. It will therefore be made a subject for judicial investigation.

THE CLERGY AND THE P. P. A.

Some of our separated brethren are undeniable that the story is one which | loud in their denunciations of certain Catholic clergyman who have taken an ing of youth than would be one of active part in repelling the onslaughts Gazette. Nothing would have induced ity to see the justice of their accur sations. A priest would be a poltroon to standidly by while enemies endeavor to blacken the fair fame of the Church to which he has given his heart's best love. We do not believe that a priest should meddle in party politics, for that would be beneath his sacred extremes in hatred to Cathelicism as dignity; but if he should, we might censure his imprudence, but we could tioned. Yet there is plenty in all his not convict him of wrong-doing.

Some people are accustomed to regard the Church as the guardian of faith, the gentle consoler of human affliction, keeping within spiritual lines and making no impress on this great pulsing world. But this is surely an erroneous idea. The church must take an active interest in social matters. The business of the church is to save souls—the first and before all else. Therefore must she take most active interest in social matters. The body is too intimately united with the soul to permit us to care for the one without caring for the other. The Christian who is to be saved lives in the world and cannot escape the influence of his surroundings; if we would gain him over to grace these surroundings must be made favorable to the conquest. Something more is needed than to preach truth from the pulpit and proffer sacramental favors to those who willingly throng around our altars. We must follow them out over the dusty non-sectarian system of education. In highways of life, and over the foes that are waiting to pluck out from hearts tion given to children will always be the seeds we are planting in them. We must remember thousands who do not come near us; and, so far as our ability goes, strike down the fetters that bind sons why Catholics insist upon educatthem to sin and to hell. The social Our chief reason for this is that we conditions of legions of souls con- ter is an irreparable loss to labor wish positive religious teaching to be these conditions are altered.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

Our readers will doubtless remember the blasphemous Life of Jesus written by the noted Ernest Renan. It lished and earned for the author the distinction of being the most reckless Freethinker in all France. It became fashionable to quote and defend his opinions, and the gilded youth of Paris liked no better pastime than the refutation of the claims of our Saviour to a divine origin. Now the scene is changed - all Paris is laughing over the mistakes of Renan. M. Challemel Lacour, the successor of Renan in the French Academy, has departed from the usual method of praising his predecessor, and has given us instead a dissertation exposing the methods of Renan and branding his assertions with the stigma of inaccuracy and falsehood. Monsabre had indeed shown how unworthy M. Renan is to the title of a reputable historian; but the remarks of M. Lacour, who is a noted Freethinker, may perchance produce more effect.

WE HAVE received a communication asking for information regarding a certain McNamara, who is causing some trouble across the border. He is, we believe, a man who proved recreant to his priestly vows, and is now vilifying the creed in which he was born and bred and which he promised to cherish and to defend.

WE HAD the pleasure recently of hearing Archbishop Ireland lecture on the Labor question. What struck us was the attention of the auditors. Not a sound was heard save the ringing voice of the speaker denouncing oppression and defending the rights of the workingman. The language was simple and understood by all, and each one went home with a new idea. There was no attempt at word-painting and building of elegant phrases. The prelate was there to instruct and not to tickle the ears of his auditors with ornate rheteric. One glance at the flushed, earnest face in the pulpit assured us that his soul was in his subject, and we went away no longer wondering at the influence of this man over the minds and hearts of his countrymen. He is not what you would call an orator. But the days of oratory are over. What men want now is an idea. Strip it of useless verbal garments and let it stand out in bold relief. Speak to the people in simple, homely tongue, and your words will find a hiding place in the hearts of your auditors

What becomes of our college graduates? This is a question that is ofttimes asked and never answered satisfactorily. True, there are some who are leading the van of the army of our professional men, but there are many who have, through sheer idleness or of the A. P. A. We confess our inabil- negligence, neglected to use their edureason of their failure in life they reply that they had no opportunities. This has been from time immemorial the an swer of the sluggard. Wise men create their opportunities. They look not to others for help, but rely on persistent, unflagging labor to bring them to the much-coveted goal. They are daunted by no difficulties and obstacles, but strengthen their deep seated resolve to empley the gift of life in a manner deserving the source from whence it emanates. Hence, no matter how clouded the dawn may be, the evening is resplendent with the glory of work well done, of duty performed.

And earth holds no more precious re ward for a human soul.

Some of our young men throw away their books as soon as the portals of the Alma Mater close behind them, and in a few months the instructions of their professors are but vague and confused memories. Thus they enter their life's work embarrassed and handicapped. We have seen them in various employments, and in many instances they were the inferiors of the veriest office-boy. They forget that a college, no matter how well equipped, can but give them a method for after study, and when neglected they defraud themselves of the fruits of years. The seed has been planted but never garnered, because for sooth the malignant vapora of idleness prevented its growth.

When shall they realize that work is the essential condition of success?

THE Knights of Labor in the United States are fast realizing that the resignation of Mr. Powderly as Grand Mas-unselfish service, and, strange to say, years, except during a short interval. days, and possibly it will be divided they had the unenviable happiness of having their efforts crowned with success. His most bitter opponents, however, confess that he was no noisy demagogue, inciting the workingman caused quite a sensation when pubwas guided by principles of right and justice. His policy was moderate and conducive to the best interests of all who toil. He believed "that in all agreements between masters and workpeople there is always the condition expressed as understood, that there be allowed proper rest for soul and body. To agree in any other sense would be against what is right and just."

"CYNICISM is the sign of a wise

man," says an old Greek. Some in our country affect to believe it. They trust nobody, and virtue and vice alike bring a sneer to their lips. They believe in nothing save fate. And yet when they cross the threshold of the world they were enthusiastic in their plans for the betterment of humanity All things seemed fair and beautiful to their eager, expectant eyes. They had their ideals. But they wished for too much from human nature, and when deception in all its reality came before them they swept out all that was holy from their souls, rolled up against the door the stone of dis trust and went their way. It is the old story of man looking to the world for consolation. The kingdom of God is within, and he who en deavers to cultivate it knows no disappointment. "Youth," says an author ' soon fades and strength decays : and as shock after shock in your struggle through life demolishes one after another the air castles which you so long and so laboriously constructed, you will more and more feel the necessity of ceasing to lean upon broken reeds and of looking within your soul's interior for an abiding comfort. And if you find there but emptiness, even as you have found hollowness and deceit without, you will grow hardened and cynical. But if, on the other hand, you have learned to commune with yourself and make your soul's interior the guest-chamber in which to entertain the Divine Word -the Emmanual dwelling within youin Him you will find renewed strength to fight your battles with the world, to help you in trouble, to soothe you in pain and to console you in sorrow and affliction." When shall we learn that the human soul can find no lasting enjoyment in the changing things of the world? This knowledge alone can make us patient and forbearing.

All this is perfectly correct, but it is quite a novelty in Protestant services to have these Catholic devetions. It may be hoped that the congregation which has advanced so far may before long become entirely Catholic.

WE ARE pleased to see it announced that Mr. E. J. McRobert, of this city, has resigned the treasurership of the Grand Council of the P. P. A. We trust, for his own credit, that this means he has severed his connection with the society altogether. One by one persons who are endowed with manly qualities will drop from the ranks of the conspiracy, and, no doubt, it will for many years be a source of wonderment to them why they ever allowed their names to be connected with it. Such was the outcome of the Know-Nothing movement.

WHY DO not Catholics buy Catholic books? A great many are sorely in need of them. They cannot give an intelligible answer to a question concerning the dectrines of the Church. If they could give a reason for the faith within them they might be instrumental in effecting much good. We do not believe in controversy, for it bears within it no germ of life, but we do believe in a person being able to give a plain statement of his doctrinal views. A knowledge of the tenets of their Church would make them admire their beauty and truth and cause them to manifest by their actions that they have God's truth in their minds interest our people. and God's love in their hearts.

purification of city politics, and the principal merchants of the city have become members of it for the purpose of selecting the best men for municipal offices independently of religious considerations which have prevailed heretofore, with the result that the expenses of city government have been increased to an alarming extent. The membership of the new league has been limited to two hundred, and on the 22nd of February it was organized at a harmonious meeting at which officers were elected.

ation to the effect that the eleven be started in Chicago in a few days, French-Canadians, ten men and one woman in Maskinonge, who formally attached themselves to the Baptist Church about twelve months ago, in consequence of a difference with the Bishop regarding the erection of a parish church, have repented of their rebellious conduct, and have returned to the Church. Their reconciliation took place some months ago. These are the converts whose case is periodically harped upon by the Mail as evidence of the tyranny of the Church, and of the French-Canadian movement towards the liberty of Protestantism, in order to escape from ecclesiastical oppression. The Mail will now be compelled to find some other event as an illustration of its theories.

inake us patient and forbearing.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A RITUALISTIC Church in New York has introduced the service of the Way of the Cross as one of its devotions, and has purchased the pictures of the Stations of the Cross from the same dealer who supplied St. Patrick's Church, the pattern being also the same. This church is even dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary. ledicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary. pupil. The order of Notre Dame has its mother house at Milwaukee, and from the records it has been found that that there never was a nun of her name belonging to that order.

> THE question of religious teaching in the schools is now attracting great attention in England. The secularists demand that there be no religious teaching whatsoever, and that prayer and the reading of the Bible be torbidden. The non-Conformists generally demand the retention of Bible-reading, with no definite dogmatic teaching, but the clergy of the Church of England, and especially those of the High section of the Church, contend for the teaching of Christian dogmas. The school law at present leaves the decision of the character of the religious teaching to each local committee, but the convictions of the minority are respected under the law that specific denomina tional teaching shall not be given in the Public schools, though it is allowed in the voluntary schools, which receive State aid.

> THE Canadian Magazine for February proves that its editors are determined to make it a production of which Canadians need not be ashamed. The articles are written in a style so little adopted in this age of fast living. We sincerely hope that it may meet with the success it merits and devote itself to the description of Canadian scenes and to questions that

It is stated that Zola's novel on THE leading citizens of Boston have Lourdes will shortly be ready. To a become tired of seeing the affairs of representative of one of the Paris strain them to live away from Church organizations. He had his enemies, the city managed by the fanatical papers the author recently said that it

A league has now been formed for the into five parts under the titles "First Day, Second Day, etc.," instead of chapers. It is promised that the book will not have the disgusting character of Zola's former works, but it is very doubtful that anything good can come from such a quarter.

Some months ago a circular was issued by several Universalist, Unitarian, and Jewish clergymen, inviting the recipients to a conference for the purpose of organizing a new and Universal Church, which would be open to people of all religions. It is now stated that as a consequence of WE HAVE received authentic inform- the Conference a creedless Church will the purpose of which will be to include in its membership Buddhists and Agnostics as well as Christians. As there will be no doctrines, there will be noheresy trials under this organization. The Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, a wellknown Unitarian minister, takes great interest in this new movement, which he defines as "a temple of universal religion dedicated to the inquiring spirit of progress and the helpful serv ices of love," and built upon the "broad plain of humanity." We have thus reached the period when it is proposed to save mankind otherwise than through the work of Redemption done by Christ.

LAKE ST. LOUIS.

According to the report of the Divorce Reform League of the United States recently published, many of the States Legislatures have become convinced of the necessity of so amending the marriage and divorce laws in such a way that the evil of granting divorces for the trivial reasons which have hitherto been allowed to prevail may be ended. During the last year eleven State Legislatures have amended the laws or passed new ones for the more strict observance of marital obligations, or to make the granting of divorces more difficult of attainment.

Another pretended ex-nun has been exposed in the West, where she has been delivering lectures on the iniquities of convent life. Her name is Marguerite St. Omer, and her lectures, like those of Mrs. Margaret L. Shepherd, were delivered under the aux pices of the A. P. A. At Milwaukee her advertisement stated that she was an ex-nun who would speak from personal knowledge of the evil deeds perpetrated in convents. Enquiries were instituted, the result of which was that it was ascertained that she was en-

On the 26th ult., at the Sacred Heart Convent, in this city, Madam Scott, a native of this country, breathed her last. Her illness was protracted, and when the end came it was not unexpected. She had been a Religious for many years, and the former pupils of the convent will in a particular manner regret to know that one who was very dear to them in the summer of their lives has been laid to rest in the touchingly modest yet neat plot in St. Peter's cemetery, along with her co-laborers who are gone before and who, like her, had given up all for Jesus. To the good Religious the world's praise is naught, and were Madam Scott still pursuing her holy vocation in this life we know commendation for work well done would be to her, as to all her Sisters in religion, both out of place and distasteful; but now that she has left us may we not say that her life was most holy and her death most edifying—may we not say, too, that, as her last moments approached, as the things of this life were fading, and the portals of eternity opening to her gaze, the One whose trusted servant she had been surely sent His angels to accompany her pure spirit to His beautiful and eternal home. That it may be so we pray.

MERRITTON'S MERITS.

THE ENTERPRISING VILLAGE HAS MANY THINGS TO BOAST OF, BUT ITS EDU-CATIONAL STRENGTH IS ITS GREAT-EST PRIDE.

On every count this is a strong school, said the Separate School Inspector at his recent visit. The attendance is fully sustained, the requisites are amply supplied, the classes are conducted in a thoroughly satisfactory manner, decided progress has been made within the year, and the general tone of the school is all that can be desired to insure continued success. This must be very gratifying to the ratepayers in general and to Father Lynett in particular, who takes an active interest in the work of the school.

Sadlier's Catholic Directory.

We have been favored with a copy of Sadlier's Catholic Directory, Almanae and Ordofor 1891. It contains full official reports of all dioceses, vicariates, prefectures, etc., in Canada, the United States, British West Indies, Ireland, England and Scotland; the hierarchy in Germany, Austria-Hungary and Australia. It is the most useful directory of the kind published, as the information contained therein is on a larger scale than any other, and it has been compiled with the very greatest care. Price 81.25 per copy. To be had from D. and J. Sadlier & Co., Montreal and Toronto.

CARD OF THANKS.—The Sisters of St. Joseph return thanks for a bbl. of flour and fifty-six bread tickets kindly donated to their orphanage by the Forest City Curling Club.

Progress of the Q'Appelle Industrial

Manitoba Free Press, Feb. 22.
Indian Head, Assa., Feb. 19.—The gratifying success which has crowned ne indefatigable efforts of Rev. Father Hugounard as principal of the India Industrial school near Fort Qu'Appelle deserves more than a mere passing reference, therefore a brief review of the history of the school from the date of its organization to this period may be somewhat interesting to the numer ous Free Press readers. During the session of 1883-1884, the late Sir John
A. Macdonald, then Premier of Canada and Superintendent of Indian Affairs without the solicitation of any relig ious denomination, induced Parliamer to vote sufficient funds for the erection of three Industrial schools for, the edu cation of Indian children in the North West. It was then decided that one of the three should be located at, or near to Fort Qu'Appelle, and as he consid ered that religious teaching would be an important factor in the civilization of the Indian element, he requested His Grace Archbishop Tache, of St. Boniface, to recommend some person duly qualified for the position of principal who would be acceptable to the Indians, and who would strive earnest ly to make the institution a success e Rev. Father Hugounard receiving the appointment.

building, which was finished in in the early part of 1885, was only intended for the accommodation of thirty boys. Very few people at that time had any faith in the success of the experiment, as they considered it would be a most difficult matter to induce parents to part with their chil-dren, and even if pupils could be obtained it was considered useless to expend money in the endeavor to civilize and educate them.

However, under the most unfavor able circumstances the school was opened under the management of Father Hugounard with an assistant, three Sisters of Charity and a farm instructor. Great difficulties were experienced in getting children to come school, but by strenuous exertions and self-denial the school was filled in less than one year, so that in 1886 an addition to the building was required to accommodate the rapidly increasing number of pupils. The then Indian Commissioner, Mr. E. Dewdney, having visited the school several times, was in a position to report favorably to the Government and to recommend an addition to the school to accommodate onehundred children, which was carried out soon afterwards. At this stage the number of visitors increased with astonishing rapidity, all of whom were favorably impressed with the location of the institution, its management, as well as the rapid progress made by the pupils in the various branches taught. Indeed, it was a great surprise to many distinguished visitors to see Indian children from ten to twelve years of age, read, write, spell and speak English correctly. At the fall show at Regina in 1887, a prize was offered to boys and girls under fifteen years of age for the best penmanship, the competition being open to all children, white or Indian, in the Territorthe best writers in the Regina ies, the best writers in the Regina Public school being among the competitors, but to the astonishment of all people present the prize was awarded an Indian pupil of the Qu'-Appelle

Industrial school In 1889 a further addition was made to the school for the education of Indian girls. Sir John A. Macdonald being impressed with the idea that it would boys if the girls were uneducated, as uncivilized mothers would bring up uncivilized children, while civilized mothers would almost assure the civilization of the next generation. At this period there was accommodation in the institution for one hundred and fifty children, seventy five boys and seventy-five girls. Carpenter, blacksmith and shoemaker shops were pro vided with competent instructors to in these various branches, the girls being taught the different branches of housework under the vigilant supervision of the Sisters In 1891, at the instance of Mr. Hayter Reed, the Indian Commissioner, some of the pupils were taken to the Win nipeg exhibition who surprised the visitors by Exhibiting their own skill in carpentering, blacksmithing and penmanship, as also did three Indian girls in their exhibit of needlework, crochet, sewing, etc. But the most interesting part of all was the intelligence displayed by those Indian girls in carding, spinning, knitting by hand and machine, which was a striking proof of the rapid progress made, as well as the gratifying success which has crowned the efforts of Father Hugounard as principal of that benefi cial institution. Apart from their own work those children also exhibited products of the school farm and garden. grown by the boys under the direction of the farm instructor. Four first prizes and two second prizes were awarded in competition with the products of Mani-The Winnipeg gardeners were surprised to see cabbages weighing sixty-two pounds each grown at the Qu'Appelle Industrial school farm.

Agriculture and horticulture are two important industries in the North-West, therefore they are the principal industries taught to Indian children at the school. The flower and vegetable gardens are well known far and near, and have been the means through the numerous visitors from different parts of the American continent and other lands of showing the wonderful possibilies of our fertile heritage. Besides what vegetables are required for the school, a surplus is raised and sold, the proceeds being applied to the purchase of toys, candies and other luxuries which will have a tendency to make the boys view the school as their home. By cultivating the farm and garden they learn how to raise for themselves in after years, grain and vegetables, and how to make themselves self-sup-porting, as well as how to make their own homes look orderly, neat and com fortable. Several creditable exhibits of carpenter and blacksmith work by the boys had been sent in due time to the Chicago Exposition.

The brass band which is an important factor and composed of Indian boys, has played with marked success at Indian Head, Qu'Appelle Station and Fort Qu'Appelle. Many visitors have been much surprised to see the children of the wild Indian play with such clear precision and keep good time to several Canadian, English and American

The question naturally arises as to what will become of those Indian children after they will leave the school. It is safe to infer that a large majority of them will do at home what they learned to do at school, to be studious, industrious and economical, to depend upon their own labor for their subsistence. Many of the children have been hired out, the boys doing farm work, the girls as domestics. More than seventy-five have been hired out, earning from $4 to $10 per month. At present only seventeen are at service. The Hon. T. M. Daly, Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs, dur ing his last visit was much pleased to ee one of the Indian girls of the schoo in the capacity of waiter at Government House, Regina. If these girls after two years of careful training in the school speak English intelligently. be clean and know enough of house-work to be worth from $4 to $10 per month to white people, it may be in ferred that when they complete their ducation, they will take with them the habits contracted at school, follow them to a great extent, and bring forth a new generation, much improved and materially civilized.

At present there are about two hundred pupils in attendance, but they require more accommodation, the dor matories, play-room and school-room are only large enough for one hundred and fifty pupils : and it is much to be regretted that the institution is deficient as to hospital accommodation.

No money can be better spent by the Indian Department than in the education of the young and rising genera tion of Indians, and nowhere within the scope of the writer's knowledge and observation can they receive more sound and moral educationa training than at the Qu'Appelle Indus trial school. The services of the Sisters are invaluable in educating the Indian girls, in teaching them cleanli ness and Christian habits, and well known that taught by them are in great demand by white people who highly appre ciate the education imparted to these girls by the Sisters. It will be seen by the blue book and also by the figures given by Hon. E. Dewdney on he floor of the House of Commons in 1891, that the cost per capita at the Qu' Appelle Industrial school has been every year much lower than at any other industrial school in the Terri-

The school being the only govern ment institution of its kind in this extensive district is deservedly ap preciated by all irrespective of nation ality or creed, and its further develop ment would be a great benefit not only to Indian children, but also to the community at large, therefore it is justly entitled to the generous and be of very little use to civilize Indian liberal support of the Canadian govern-

That the late Sir John A. Macdonaqui cemetery, near Kingston, Ont., has during his day and generation done much for the amelioration of the condition and education of Indian children in the North-West is amply evidenced by the unparalelled success which has hitherto crowned the un ceasing efforts of Rev. Father Hugoun ard, principal of the Industrial schoo at Qu'Appelle, who is looked upon as a public benefactor, whose memory will be fondly cherished and whose name will be held in sacred remembrance and frequently mentioned with pro found reverence by a discerning and truly liberal minded people long after his mortal form will have mingled with the clods of the valley.

Malaria is one of the most insidious of nealth destroyers. Hood's Sarsaparilla counteracts its deadly poison and builds up he system.

the system.

Why will you allow a cough to lacerate your throat or lungs and run the risk of filling a consumptive's grave, when, by the timely use of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, the pain can be allayed and the danger avoided. This Syrup is pleasant to the taste, and unsurpassed for relieving, healing and curing all affections of the throat and lungs, coughs, colds, bronchitis, etc., etc.

An Excellent Remedy. GENTLEMEN,—We have used Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam in our house for over three years, and find it an excellent remedy for all forms of coughs and colds. In throat and lung troubles it affords instant relief,

JOHN BRIODIE, Columbus, Ont.

Many Sangl and pain relieved by the

JOHN BRIODIE, Columbus, Ont.

Money Saved and pain relieved by the leading household remedy, Dr. THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL—a small quantity of which usually suffices to cure a cough, heal a sore, cut, bruise or sprain, relieves lumbago, rheumatism, neuralgia, excoriated nippies, or inflamed breast.

For Boils and Skin Diseases. Dear Stres.—I have been using B. B. B. for boils and skin diseases, and I find it very good as a cure. As a dyspepsia cure I have also found it unequalled.

Mrs. Sarah Hamilton, Montreal, Que.

Pale, sickly children should use Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator. Worms are one of the principal causes of suffering in children and should be expelled from the system

Minarl's Liniment is the Hair Re-

"OUR CONVERTS."

Faithful Results of the Conversion Gen. Allen's Daughter.

Some weeks ago we published an extract from the work of a Protestant Judge Chittenden, on 'Personal Reminiscences," in which he told the story of "The Beautiful American Nun," and the deep impression it had made upon many minds in Vermont, where Gen. Allen and his family lived. In the current number of The American Catholic Quarterly, Richard L. Clarke, L.L. D., the Catholic historian, contributes an excellent article on "Our Converts," in which he briefly narrates the wonderful incident, and tells more of the striking conversions which followed the entrance of Fanny Allen into the bosom of the Church. Mr. Clarke

Fanny Allen was one of Vermont's fairest daughters - still fairer and more beautiful in intellect and in soul. She was the youngest daughter of Ver mont's Revolutionary hero, Gen Ethan Allen. Educated in such manner as to meet the natural gifts of her mind, religion was excluded from her training, but it welled up in her soul by a grace that came only from above. Her questions were parried by her family. but never answered. She was born on February 16, 1784. While still receiving her education at the hands a devoted step father, she was led by an unknown impulse to the temple of a religion of which she knew almost nothing. From that moment, in her heart, she became a Catholic in faith. It was her own secret. She received baptism, at the age of twenty-two, at the hands of Rev. Daniel Barber, whose name has already been men tioned, and will be mentioned more fully, as an eminent convert; but at hat time he was a Protestant minister She soon afterwards, with her parents consent, went to Montreal, to study French, and become a pupil in the Convent school of the Sisters of the Congregation.

Her conversion was sudden; it tool place at the gate of the sanctuary railing in the convent chapel, whither a sister had sent her to place a vase of flowers before the Blessed Sacrament; ner steps were mysteriously arrested a the gate; three times she attempted t fulfil her mission, and three times sh was stopped by an inscrutable impulse

"Ter limen tetigi, ter sum revocatus Was she, without an open professio of faith, unworthy to approach the Holy of Holies? She fell upon her knees and adored Jesus Christ in the Holy Eucharist. Retiring to an obscure corner of the temple, she wept, and when her voice returned to her, she exclaimed:

"After this miraculous occurence must give myself to my Saviour. The tidings of her conversion pro duced intense sensation in her family and in all Vermont She was brough by her parents to their home in Sheldon, Vermont, where the allurements of gay and fashienable society and all the means to which her parents could resort were used to change her purpose; but in the end her mother accompanied her again on a second visit to the convent at Montreal. But she took time even then, and had recourse to prayer before making a selection among the many admirable religious orders in Montreal. Finally she entered the Hotel Dieu. She was professed in 1810, her parents attend. ing amid the concourse of people attracted to the chapel. Her parents frequently visited her. Her convent life was a model of the true religious. ife was a model of the true religious. Her physician, an American Protestant, was so impressed by her heroic death that he became converted on the spot. She died on December 10, 1819. We shall soon see cause for wonder at the many remarkable conversions in Washington while I was a child; the was a great invalid, but in the midst of his severe paroxysms of pain at the food and strong drink is confirmed to the conversions. which followed hers in Vermont.

CONVERSION OF FATHER BARBER. Remarkable indeed was the conversion of the Barber family. Daniel Barber had served two terms as a soldier in the Revolutionary war. He belonged to a large, intellectual and influential family, and his father, whose name was Daniel, had become impoverished by the war of our independence and the depreciation of paper money. He was born in Connecticut on October 2, 1756. Reared in the strictest school of Congregation alism, his earnest mind, in search of the Apostolic succession, led him to join the Episcopal Church, and at the age of thirty he was a minister there in, which was about the year 1786 During two years of Episcopal minis try, his mind was in spirit Catholic little was known in Vermont o the Catholic Church. He would make the sign of the cross, and he deemed nothing unworthy of a Christian which honored Christ.

He was present at the religious pro-ession of Fanny Allen at Montreal in 1810, and was deeply impressed by her heroic faith. In 1812 he visited Bishop Cheverus at Boston. Many difficultie presented themselves to his mind, and e communicated to his son, Rev. Virgil Horace Barber, then an Epis-copal minister in Northern New York, his doubts, and lent him the books on Catholic doctrine which he was read ing. In 1816 Virgil Horace Barber met Rev. Benedict Joseph Fenwick at New York, and feeling greatly dis turbed in his faith, he communicated to him his own doubts and difficulties. He was already married and had a large family. He was a man of fine education and culture. He and his wife, under the instruction and kind He was a man of fine advice of Dr. Fenwick, but under cir cumstances of apalling sacrifice, be-came Catholics, and all their children followed.

Daniel Barber, his father, though yet not wholly converted or over his scruples, was at all times honest in his to go and send "Father Samuel "to convictions, and he earnestly desired him. to know the truth and to embrace it. Such was his scrupulosity in changing family led also directly, or at least in his religion a second time, and such his directly, to the conversion of Mrs. desire for study and light, that not Tyler, sister of Rev. Virgil Horace only did his son, Virgil Horace, and Barber, also of his nephew, William all his femily precede him in entering Tyler, who afterward became a priest the Church, but so also did his own wife and other relatives in Vermont to the conversions of Rev. Mr. Kew-Finally, he, who had led so many ley, Rev. Mr. Ironside, Rev. Colvin others to investigate and embrace the White and several others. In its widetruth, saw its full effulgence himself, spread consequences and fruits, in and on Nov ber 15, 1818, he resigned leading to other conversions, the conhis Episcopalian parish, and delivered version of the Barber family had more a farewell address to the congregation. features of a movement in it than any He then went to visit his friends in the phase of the convert question up to this South, and while there he was received time except the Mercersburg move-into the Church at Georgetown, where his son, Virgil Horace, who had joined ality in all these conversions than is to the Society of Jesus, was making his be found among most of the English novitiate.

HUSBAND AND WIFE BECOME PRIEST AND NUN.
I must now go back a little in my narrative. Such were the sentiments of gratitude to God of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Horace Barber, for the grace of conversion, that each desired to make an entire sacrifice of their lives to reigion; but how could husband and wife be separated, and be received into the ecclesiastical and religious state? They consulted their friend, Rev. Benedict Joseph Fenwick, of the Society of Jesus, and he informed them their mutual consent and the permission of the Sovereign Pontiff, this could be done; and he cited the case of Lerd and Lady Warner, in England, who became converts, and, after making provision for their chil-dren, Lord Warner was received in the Society of Jesus, while she took the veil in a convent on the continent. It would be extremely interesting to relate the details of this remarkable history, but time and space are not sufficient. The requisite permission and arrangements having been made, the Rev. Virgil Horace Barber was received into the Society of Jesus, nade his novitiate at Georgetown Col lege, and after completing his studies partly at Rome, was ordained a priest in the Society of Jesus in 1822. With he permission of his Superiors in the society, he was sent to Claremont, the home of the Barbers, to serve as a missionary priest, where he built a church and announced with fervor and effect he truths he had himself embraced. His wife, Mrs. Jerusha Barber, be came a Visitation nun, under the re igious name of Sister Mary St. Augus in, at Georgetown Convent. children of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Horac Barber became members of religious orders. Their oldest child Mary Barber, became an Ursuline nun at Queoec, under the religious name of Sis er Mary Benedicta. Mary Abigail Barber also became an Ursuline nun in the same canvent at Quebec. Susan Barber became an Ursuline nun n the convent of that order at Three Rivers, Canada, Josephine Barber be came a Visitation nun in the convent of that order at Mobile, Alabama.

A WHOLE FAMILY OF RELIGIOUS. The only son of Mr. and Mrs Barber became a Jesuit priest, and few students of Georgetown College have not heard of the saintly life of the good and learned Rev. Samuel Barber, S. J. The mother and four daughters remained faithful and devout nuns to the last, and edified their respective sisterhoods by their sanctity, their religious obedience and their angelic virtues.

It was the singular fortune of the present writer to have known and seen personally and frequently these three elebrated convert priests, Daniel Whenever he arrived at my father's house, the whole family venerated him as a saint, and the utmost kindness was shown to him.

As a boy, I rejoiced to hear him relate his services in the Revolutary War, in which my own grandfather War, in which my own grandfather was an officer under Washington, and his experience in the long struggie he made to reach and embrace the truth of revelation. The Rev. Virgil Horace and Rev. Samuel Barber were preceptors of mine at Georgetown College from 1844 to 1848, the former as Catechist and teacher of Christian Keeps the interval of the control of the contr made to reach and embrace the truth doctrine, and the latter as profssor of Classics. Both were learned men, but both were even more devout than learned. I shall never forget the edification. I shall never forget the edification.

The conversion of the Barber converts of the Oxford movement.

HOW TO OBSERVE LENT.

Vicar-General Byrne Tells How Cath-olles Keep the Holy Season.

The Boston Journal recently had ymposium on "How We Should bserve Lent," contributed by promi nent clergymen of the city. The Catholic idea was supplied by Very Rev. William Byrne, D. D., V. G Father Byrne wrote:

Lent is the penitential prelude to the oys of Easter. It is essentially a time of preparation for the great Christian festival, the commemoration of the resurrection of Our Lord. This preparation consists in prayer, repentance and fasting. The forty days of Lent recall the forty days of solitude, prayer and fasting which Christ prefixed to Fasting tends to subdue the anima passion and to leave the soul more free to meditate on the truths of religion. It is an act of self-denial, and, like all uch acts, helps to brace up the mora tone of a man's spirit and make him stronger to resist temptation.

Christians, in the early ages of the Church, were able to practise a more rigid fast than we now do. Climate as well as religious fervor may have mething to do with this. In this country physicians, while argently advocating moderation in eating and drinking, just as strongly advocate the regular three meals that experience has found to be best for the health. As the law of fasting does not bind laborers, or those engaged in any work that exhausts the strength of the body, and as nearly all Catholics come under these classes, very little fasting in its rigid form is now practised.

Climate and custom have made the breakfast with us a practical necessity for all who are of active occupations In France and Italy, where the morn ing meal is little more than a cup of offee and a slice of bread, fasting till noon must be comparatively a very easy matter.

The faithful make up in religious exercises, more frequent attendance at church services, hearing sermons, etc. what they omit in fasting. Fasting is only a means to an end, and if that end is attained in another way there is nothing lost by the necessary relaxation of the rigid discipline of early and really come under the rule and are not legitimately dispensed therefrom, I think observe the fast of Lent with a fair degree of fidelity. Some of the religious orders have hardly modified the rigor of the ancient fast.

Many ardent souls have to be re strained in their scrupulous efforts to keep the fast of Lent. It is not the intention of the Church that any pen-I could hear him devoutly reciting the from rich food and strong drink is con ducive to health, and that is all that Lent demands of most of us in this climate and under moderate conditions.

HOOD'S GUARANTEES a cure. What it has done for others it will do for you. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Keeps it in the House.

learned. I shall never forget the edification I experienced at seeing the Rev. Father Virgil Horace Barber going to confession to his own son, the Rev. Samuel. He called his cwn son "Father Samuel," and I remember this venerable priest often asking me Minard's Liniment for Rheumatism.

Minard's Liniment for Rheumatism.

Baby's Skin Scalp and Hair use CUTICURA SOAP the purest

For

sweetest and most effective skin purifying and beautifying soap in the world

Sold everywhere. Por TER DRUG AND CHRMI CAL CORP., Props, Boston.

THE COMEDY OF ENGLISH PROTES TANFISM: in Three Acts. By A. F. Mar shall, B. A. Oxon. 12mo, cloth. pat 81 ATHOLIC HOME ANNUAL FOR 189 beautifully illustrated.

ENPLANATION OF THE GOSPELS of the Sundays and Holy days. Together with AN EXPLANATION OF CATHOLIC WORSHIP, its Ceremonies, and the Sacraments and Festivals of the Church. 15mc, cloth, flexible. 50 cents flexible. So cent CATHOLIC DICTIONARY. Containin Some Account of the Doctrine, Discipling Rites, Ceremonies, Councils, and Religion Orders of the Catholic Church. Svo, cicl.

CLAUDE LIGHTFOOT: or, How the Prob-blem was solved. By F. J. Finn. S. J. $1.09 CONNOR D'ARCV'S STRUGGLES. By Mra. W. M. Berthoids. CATHOLIC BELIEF. PAPER, 20 cents 40 cents A LADY. By L. H. Bugg. . .

Sold by all Catholic Booksellers & Agents.

BENZIGER BROTHERS,

New York, Cincinnati,

PRAYER BOOKS . . .

We have now in stock a very large and beautiful assortment of Prayer Pooks, ranging in price from 25c, to $\frac{3}{4}00. There are amongst the lot some specially imported for Presentation purposes. Orders from a distance promptly attended to. We will make a nice selection for any given sum that may be sent us, and if book is not entirely satisfactory, it may be re-mailed to us, and money will be refunded. Addires.

THOS. COFFEY,

Catholic Record Office,
London, Out.

BEES WAX CANDLES. We have in stock a large consignment of Pure Bees Wax Candles, for altar use. Orders from the rev. ciergy will be promptly attended to.

THOS. COFFEY,

Catholic Record Office,
London, Ont.

Farms for Sale Cheap And on Easy Terms.

North half of west half Lot 20, Con. 10, Tp. Dawn, County Lambton; fifty acres; house, barn, etc.
Part of Lots 27 and 28, Talbot Road east, Tp. Sou hwold, County Elgin; 200 acres; 5 miles from 8t. Thomas; first-chass soil; good buildings; will be sold on easy terms of payment.
Parts north half and south half Lot 29, Con. 3, Tp. McGillivray; 50 acres more o. less; good orehard; excellent brick house and other buildings; cacap East half Lot 6, Con. 4, Tp. Saureen. East half Lot 6, Con. 4, Tp. Saugeen, Co of Bruce; 50 acres more or less and buildings; $600. Apply by letter to Drawer 541, London

BENNET FURNISHING CO'Y. LONDON, ONTARIO, Manufacturers of Church, School and Hall FURNITURE.

Write for Illustrated Catalogue and Prices.

Bennet Furnishing Co. London, Ontario, Can.

THE RITUAL OF THE P. P. A.

We have published in pamphlet form the entire Ritual of the conspiracy known as the P. P. A. The book was obtained from one of the organizers of the association. It ought to be widely distributed, as it will be the means of preventing many of our well-meaning Protestant friends from falling into the trap set for them by designing knaves. The book will be sent to any address on receipt of 6 cents in stamps; by the dozen, 4 cents per copy; and by the hundred, 3 cents. Address, Thomas Coffer, Catholic Record Office, London, Ontario.

COMMERCIAL HOTEL, 54 and 56 Jarvis street, Toronto. This hotel has been entited and furnished throughout. Home omforts. Terms $1.50 per day.

M. DORRELLY, Proprietor

MARCH 10, 1894 FIVE-MINUTE SE Passion Sunda; DANGEROUS COMPANI Walk circumspectly; not a wise. (Ephes., v. 15-16.) To day, my dear brethr to make a few remarks gerous occasions of impu mon in these times. The danger of which I v to speak is that which co-familiar acquaintance w ists to such a great ex taken so much as a matt between young persons sexes. This undue fam common everywhere in t and more than anywhere like that in which we I women here with us, ever be Catholics, and good e lics in some respects, se or rather never to begin law of decorum and m well-instructed persons, not professing to be specihave hitherto rightly To take a flagrant priest being a man educa to the rules of respectab unspeakably surprised w apparently of a careful co him if it is a sin to flirt. this which is called fli simply deliberately and ing in a way to attract of particular persons of sex, to make signals wi understood as marks of p or of desire of acquaintai young man or woman we chance to see on the stre flirt? How can you ask tion? Why, outwardly appearance, the act is n ent from that of an abar seeking to attract tho thinks will notice her. of course, in your often comparatively is true; but by ou ards, the act is simply Furthermore, it shows a any lady, really worthy would hesitate to show whose character she we good, and who had for given to her respectfu attentions. A woman or seems to be, if she is lost to all sense of decen are almost as much so w walk at night up and dov

in the hope of attract This seeking to form quaintances of the opp attract special attention is, then, a thing which girl should think of, i sense of shame. But quaintances are formed tion in itself proper, t very carefully consid young woman to make ex her friend or famil as she well may one of thing which should be She should have but on and he should be one honorably to her by p to take the honorable p band, and whom she and in her conscience fe and accepted by a bi ment. Before that, a men, politeness with pro reserve should be the affection and familiar question. And yet we ing company, as it is c without any sort of ser of the purposes of the o with more than one at For the reasons, pla which these directions ous assemblies of both those to be found at cert now unfortunately so p cases be avoided. A f ners prevails in themof direct temptations and an ease of making which opens a free do not wish to be too so rule, I do say, leave su Young women, respected and the respect of is the moral in a nutsh

We have the word of Al it that in the spring the y lightly turn to thoughts of lar that the great lawest tion the fact that it is it considerable portion of it to taking Hood's Sarsan nothing but the difficulty rhyme for that invaluable him. Certain it is that the remedies are generally of the standard blood purparilla, which has attaine ularity all over the count Spring Medicine. It purgives nerve, mental, bo strength. Tennyson on

How to Get a "Sunl How to Get a "Sunil Send 35 "Sunilght" Soap bearing the words "Why I Old Sooner Than a Man Ltd., 43 Scott street, Toro ceive by post a pretty pict tising, and well worth fra easy way to decorate your the best in the market, an postage to send in the wi the ends open. Write your A Serious Con

People make light of c grippe, and often neglect not be done. Dr. Woo Syrup is a sure cure for a soothes and heals the thro No REMEDY cures Con Hoarseness, Asthma, Throat, etc., so well as Pine Syrup.

Burdock Blood Bitter Burdock Blood Bitter Constipation, bad blood, ness, scrofula, and all discliver and bowels.

THOROUGH DIGESTIB value are two strong, po value are two strong poburn's Cod Liver Oil F Cherry and Hypophosph

Minard's Liniment i

Skin Scalp and Hair use CUTICURA SOAP

the purest sweetest and most effective skin purifying and beautifying soap in the world

THE COMEDY OF ENGLISH PROTES TANFISM: in Three Acts. By A. F. Mar shall, B. A. Oxon. 12mo, cloth, net. 81 ATHOLIC HOME ANNUAL FOR 1886 beautifully flustrated. . . . 25 beautifully filustrated.

EXPLANATION OF THE GOSPELS of the Sundays and Holy days. Together with ANEXPLANATION OF CATHOLIC WORSESHIP, its Geremonies, and the Sacramenta and Festivals of the Church. 15mc. cloth, fiexble.

50 cents

dexible. 29 cents CATHOLIC DICTIONARY. Containing Some Account of the Doctrine, Discipline, Rites, Ceremonies, Councils, and Religious Orders of the Catholic Church. 8vo. cicth, CLAUDE LIGHTFOOT: or, How the Prob-blem was Solved. By F. J. Finn, S. J. $1.09 CONNOR D'ARCY'S STRUGGLES. By Mrs. W. M. Berthoids. CATHOLIC BELIEF. PAPER, 20 cents A LADY. By L. H. Bugg. . . .

Sold by all Catholic Booksellers & Agents. BENZIGER BROTHERS,

Cincinnati,

DUNN'S BAKING THE COOK'S BEST FRIEND

PRAYER BOOKS . . .

We have now in stock a very large and beautiful assortment of Prayer Pooks, ranging in price from 25c. to $\frac{3}{2}$ to. There are amongst the lot some specially imported for Presentation purposes. Orders from a distance promptly attended to. We will make a nice selection for any given sum that may be sent us, and if book is not entirely satisfactory, it may be re-mailed to us, and money will be refunded. Address.

THOS. COFFEY.

Catholic Record Office,
London, Ont.

BEES WAX CANDLES.

We have in stock a large consignment of Pure Bees Wax Candles, for altar use. Orders from the rev. clergy will be promotly attended to.

THOS. COFFEY,
Catholic Record Office,
London, Ont.

Farms for Sale Cheap And on Easy Terms.

North half of west half Lot 29, Con 10, Tp. Dawn, County Lambton; fitty acres; house, barn, etc. acres; house, barn, etc.

Part of Lots 27 and 28, Talbot Road east, Tp. Sou hwold, County Elgin; 200 neres; 5 miles from St. Thomas; firstclass soil; good buildings; will be soid on easy terms of payment.

Parts north half and south half Lot 29, Con. 3, Tp. McGillivray; 50 acres more oo less; good orchard; excellent brick house and other buildings; cacap East half Lot 6, Con. 4, Tp. Saugeen, Co of Bruce; 50 acres more or less and buildings; $600. Apply by letter to Drawer 541, London

BENNET FURNISHING CO'Y. LONDON, ONTARIO,

Manufacturers of Church, School and Hall

FURNITURE Write for Illustrated Cataloque and Prices

Bennet Furnishing Co. London, Ontario, Can.

THE RITUAL OF THE P. P. A.

We have published in pamphlet form the entire Ritual of the conspiracy known as the P. P. A. The book was obtained from one of the organizers of the association. It ought to be widely distributed, as it will be the means of preventing many of our well-meaning Protestant friends from falling into the trap set for them by designing knaves. The book will be sent to any address on receipt of 6 cents in stamps; by the dozen, 4 cents per copy; and by the hundred, 3 cents. Address, Thomas Coffer, Catholic Record Office, London, Ontario.

COMMERCIAL HOTEL, 54 and 56 Jarvis street, Toronto. This hotel has been entited and furnished throughout. Home omforts. Terms $1.00 per day.

M. DONNELLY. Proprietor

FIVE-MINUTE SERMONS.

MARCH 10, 1894

Passion Sunday.

DANGEROUS COMPANIONSHIP. Walk circumspectly; not as unwise but a wise. (Ephes., v. 15-16.)

To-day, my dear brethren, I propos to make a few remarks on the dangerous occasions of impurity, so common in these times The danger of which I wish specially to speak is that which comes from the familiar acquaintance which now exists to such a great extent, and is taken so much as a matter of course, between young persons of different sexes. This undue familiarity is too common everywhere in this country and more than anywhere else in a city like that in which we live. women here with us, even though they be Catholics, and good enough Catholics in some respects, seem to forget, or rather never to begin to realize, the law of decorum and modesty which well-instructed persons, even though not professing to be specially religious, have hitherto rightly taken for priest being a man educated according to the rules of respectable society, is unspeakably surprised when he for the rst time hears some young woman, apparently of a careful conscience, ask him if it is a sin to flirt. For what is this which is called flirting? simply deliberately and wantonly acting in a way to attract the attention of particular persons of the opposite sex, to make signals which are to be understood as marks of preference for, or of desire of acquaintance with, some young man or woman whom she may chance to see on the street. A sin to How can you ask such a question? Why, outwardly and at the first appearance, the act is not very different from that of an abandoned woman seeking to attract those whom she thinks will notice her. The intention, of course, in your minds is often comparatively harmless, it is true; but by outward standards, the act is simply disreputable. Furthermore, it shows a feeling which any lady, really worthy of the rame, would hesitate to show even to one whose character she well knew to be good, and who had for a long time given to her respectful and proper attentions. A woman or girl who flirts seems to be, if she is not in reality, lost to all sense of decency; and those are almost as much so who shamefully walk at night up and down the avenues in the hope of attracting attention. This seeking to form unknown ac quaintances of the opposite sex or to attract special attention among them is, then, a thing which no Catholic girl should think of, if she has any sense of shame. But when such acquaintances are formed by an introduc tion in itself proper, they should be carefully considered. young woman to make one of the other ex her friend or familiar companion as she well may one of her own, is a thing which should be unheard of She should have but one such friend. and he should be one who has acted honorably to her by proposing to her to take the honorable part of her husband, and whom she has before God and in her conscience felt to be worthy, and accepted by a binding engage ment. Before that, and to all other men, politeness with proper and modest reserve should be the constant rule. affection and familiarity out of the question. And yet we find girls keeping company, as it is called, and that without any sort of serious guarantee of the purposes of the other party, not only with one after another, but even with more than one at once.

To take a flagrant instance.

For the reasons, plain enough, on which these directions rest, promiscu-ous assemblies of both sexes, such as those to be found at certain gatherings. now unfortunately so popular, are full of danger, and had far better in all cases be avoided. A freedom of manners prevails in them-to say nothing of direct temptations to the sensesand an ease of making acquaintance, which opens a free door to sin. I do not wish to be too severe, but, as a rule, I do say, leave such places alone Young women, respect yourselves; demand the respect of others. There is the moral in a nutshell.

Tennyson on Spring.

We have the word of Alfred Tennyson for it that in the spring the young man's fancies lightly turn to thoughts of love. It is singular that the great laureate omitted to mention the fact that it is in the spring that a considerable portion of the human race turn to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Probably nothing but the difficulty of finding a good rhyme for that invaluable remedy deterred him. Certain it is that the old-time domestic remedies are generally discarded in favor of the standard blood purifier, Hood's Sarsaparilla, which has attained the greatest popularity all over the country as the favorite Spring Medicine. It purifies the blood and gives nerve, mental, bodily and digestive strength. Tennyson on Spring.

How to Get a "Sunlight" Picture. How to Get a "Sunlight" Picture.

Send 25 "Sunlight" Soap wrappers (wrappers bearing the words "Why Does a Woman Look Old Sooner Than a Man") to LEVER BROS., Ltd., 43 Scott street, Toronto, and you will receive by post a pretty picture, free from adversing, and well worth framing. This is an easy way to decorate your home. The soap is the best in the market, and it will only cost to postage to send in the wrappers, if you leave the ends open. Write your address carefully.

A Serious Complaint. People make light of coughs, colds and la grippe, and often neglect them. This should not be done. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is a sure cure for all these diseases. It soothes and heals the throat and lungs.

No Remedy cures Courbs, Colds, Croup, Hoarseness, Asthma, Brouchitis, Sore Throat, etc., so well as Dr. Woods Norway Pine Syrup. Burdock Blood Bitters.

Burdock Blood Bitters cures dyspepsia, onstipation, bad blood, headache, biliousess, scrofula, and all diseases of the stomach, yer and hawals.

ness, scrofula, and all diseases of the stomach iver and bowels.

THOROUGH DIGESTIBILITY and Nutritive value are two strong points in favor of Mi-burn's Cod Liver Oil Emulsion with Wild Cherry and Hypophosphites. Minard's Liniment is the Best.

A LITTLE WHITE DRESS.

BY MARY CATHERINE CROWLEY. This information was received without comment, but it aroused in some foolish little hearts a feeling of envy, and in others a desire of emulation. Eugenia Dillon was the richest girl in the school. Her father, a plain, sensible man, who had lacked early advantages, had within a few years amassed a considerable fortune, which he would gladly have enjoyed in an unostentatious, unpretending manner. This, however, did not suit his wife at all. Mrs. Dillon, though a kindhearted, charitable woman, was excessively fond of style, lavishly extravagant, and inclined to parade her wealth upon all occasions. She did not realize that the very efforts she made to attain the position in society which would have come to her naturally if she had but the patience to wait, caused her to be sneered at as a parvenu by those whose acquaintance she most desired. Unconscious of all this, she pursued her way in serene selfsatisfaction—a complacency shared by Eugenia, who delighted in the good fortune and bad taste which permitted her to wear dresses of silk or velvet to school every day in the week, and caused her to be as much admired as a little figure in a fashion-plate by those of her companions who were too unsophisticated to know that vain display is a mark of vulgarity.

"Oh children, children!" exclaimed Sister Agnes, who caught the drift of the conversation as she came into the room. "Do not be troubling your precious little heads about the fashions. We must all trust something to the good sense of your mammas that you will be suitably gowned. Certainly it is eminently fitting that one should be beautifully attired to honor the visit of the King of kings. Considered in this light, no robe could be too rich, no ornament too splendid. But, lest a small thought of vanity should creep in to spoil the exalted motive, the cus tom is to adopt a lovely simplicity. you notice, we never think of the angels as weighed down with jewels. Bestow some of this anxiety upon the preparation of your hearts; see that you are clothed in the royal robes of for hope, pearls for contrition, diamonds for faith and purity. It was with gems like these that the holy maidens, Saints Agnes, Philomena, and Lucy, chose to adorn themselves, rather than with the contents of their

Thus the nun continued to speak to the band of little girls, who had eagerly gathered around her; thus hearted way, as if generosity, unsel-fishness and self-denial were the most natural traits imaginable, and the whole world fair because it is God's world, and we are all His children. Was it this spirit of joyousness which attracted young people especially to her, and gave her such an influence with them?

"Somehow, when Sister Agnes talks to me," even so flighty a little personage as Lillie Davis said one day, "I feel as if I could make any sacrifice quite as a matter of course, and with-out a speck of fuss about it. "Yes," agreed Connie. "She seems to take your hand in her strong one and to lead you up a stony, hilly path; and then, when you come to the roughest, steepest places, she almost carries you onward: and you are ashamed to complain that you are tired, because, though she is so gentle with you, she does not mind such trifles at all her-

"She makes me think," interrupted Lillie, "of the pleasant, sunshing breeze that comes up sometimes on a cloudy morning, and chases away the mists through which everything looks so queerly, and lets us see things as they really are."

Lillie's quaint comparison was an apt one, as was proved in the present instance. When Sister Agnes had gone the subject which the girls had been dis cussing presented a different aspect and the keynote of her character which always impressed them-"Do noble deeds, not dream them all day long,"caused them now to feel dissatisfied with themselves and to cast about for something to do. This reminded Constance again of Annie Brogan and the white dress that Lillie had regarded with so much scorn.

"Girls," said she, "wouldn't it be nice if we could give a dress and veil, and whatever is necessary, to some poor child who is to make her First Communion on the same day as our selves? Perhaps, too, we could arrange to have her make it with us. Don't you think this would make us happy, and be a good way to prepare?"

"It's a grand idea, Connie!" proclaimed Lillie, with ready enthusiasm. "How could we do it?" asked the quiet girl, coming to the practical question at once. "By giving up some of our ribbons and candies and knicknacks during the next few weeks, maybe," continued Constance earnestly, thinking it out as she went along. "Suppose we all agree to get the pretty dresses the nuns wish us to wear on that day, instead of the showy ones we want? They would not cost as much, and our mothers would, I am sure, let us use the oxtra money in this way. "What! give up the white silk! Oh, I couldn't!" objected Eugenia, dis-concerted. "Anyhow, I don't believe mamma would like to have me do it. "Tulle is so lovdly!" sighed Lillie.

And I never did like plain mull." On the whole, the proposal was not received with favor. It was discussed with much animation, but the bell rang before any decision had been arrived at. Later, however, after a consulta-tion with Sister Agnes, who promised her cordial co-operation, the children concluded to adopt Connie's suggestion, if their mothers would consent.

"I must acknowledge that I am dis appointed," remarked Mrs. Davis to her husband that evening. "To-day I ordered the material for Lillie's First ommunion dress-an exquisite tulle But she came home from school with a story about furnishing an outfit for a poor child, and she assures me that her companions are to wear plain dresses for the occasion." Thereupon the lady proceeded to give the details of the plan as she had understood it.

"A very creditable determination, said Lillie's papa, approvingly. "I endorse it heartily. If attired simply, the children will not be distracted by the thought of their gowns, while a the same time some deserving little girl will be provided with an appropriate costume. I advise you to send back the tulle by all means, my dear, and apply the difference in price be tween it and the fabric agreed upon to the fund the children are trying to

"Well, I suppose it will be best to do so," decided his wife. "Anyhow, tulle is so delicate a tissue, and Lillie is such a heedless little creature, that it would probably be badly torn before the end of the ceremonies.

"I am sorry," soliloquized Connie's mother when she heard of the project. "Connie's First Communion will be so mportant an event for her that I feel as if I could not do enough in prepar-ation for it. I should like to dress her nore beautifully than on any day in her life. If she were grown and about to enter society, or if I were buying her wedding dress, I would select the handsomest material procurable-why not now, for an occasion so great that I ought hardly mention it in compari son? But, after all," mused she, later, "the children's arrangement is the best. I am happy that Constance is so free from frivolity, and has shown so edifying a spirit.

For Eugenia Dillon, the giving up of the white silk was, as the girls gen-erously agreed, "the biggest act of graces; deck yourself with the jewels all." At first Mrs. Dillon would not of virtue — rubies for love, emeralds hear of it; "though," said she, "I am quite willing to buy the dress for the poor child myself, if you wish, Eugenia." But Eugenia explained that this would not do, unless she car-ried out the plan like the others. In fact, she found that one of the hardes things in the world is to argue against what we want very much ourselves. At last, however, her mother good-naturedly yielded the point, saying, was she wont to teach them lessons of with a laugh, "Oh, very well, child! wisdom in a sprightly, gay, happy- But I never before knew you to object to having a pretty dress." And Eugenia was very sure she never had.

The great day finally arrived. To picture it, or to describe the joy which filled the soul of each of our first communicants, is not the purpose of this story. But as the white-robed band entered the convent chapel, to the incongruous throng of fashionable people there assembled their appearance was the strongest possible sermon against vanity. Their soft white gowns were as simple as the most refined taste could make them, and as beautiful; their fleecy veils enfolded them as with holy thoughts; their wreaths of spotless blossoms signified a fairer crown. They numbered seven originally, but among them walked another. Which little girl was the stranger, however, only one mother knew-a humble woman, who, as she knelt amid the congregation, silently invoked a blessing upon the children who by their thoughtfulness had made possible her pious desire that her child might be appropriately and respect-fully attired to welcome the coming of Our Lord.

The first communicants remained at the convent till dusk. During the afternoon somebody noticed, indeed, that Eugenia's dress, though of mull like the rest, was more fanciful, and her satin sash twice as wide as that of any one else. But the discovery only caused a smile of good-humored amusement; for it was hardly to be expected that Eugenia would conform absolutely to the rule they had laid down for themselves.

After Benediction, as they prepared o go home, they said to one another "What a truly happy day this has been! How often we shall think of it during our lives!"

THE END.

Mr. Emile Zola has been defeated for the fourth time in his candidacy for nembership for the French Academy Mons. Severaino de Heredis who wa Minister of Public Works in 1887 was elected to the vacancy by 19 votes, Mons. Tola receiving 7. that even in France Mons. Zola's immoral novels have not made him a Hoop's CURES when all other preparations ail. It possesses curative power peculiar to tself. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla

Not that Kind. Scott's Emulsion does not debilitate the stomach as other cough medicines do; but on the contrary, it improves digestion and strengthens the stomach. Its effects are immediate and pronounced.

Holloway's Corn Cure is a specific for the removal of corns and warts. We have never heard of its failing to remove even the worst kind.

The Best of all.

MILBURN'S Cod Liver Oil Emulsion is superior to all other preparations of Cod Liver Oil in digestibility, curative power, and strengthening properties. 50c. and $1.00 per bottle.

per bottle.
Minard's Linlment cures La Grippe. KILL THE WORMS or they will kill your child. Dr. Low's Worm Syrup is the best worm killer. Charity.

When you meet with one suspected, Condemned unheard for some sin, By fair weather friends rejected. The world's approval to win. Guard thine every word and action, Speak no word of heartless blame. For the slanderer's vile detraction Yet may soil thy goodly name.

When you meet with one pursuing Ways the lost have entered in. Working out his own undoing, With his recklessness and sin; Think, if placed in his condition Would a kind word be in vain? Or a look of cold suspicion. Win thee back to God again.

There are spots that bear no flowers, Not because the soil is bad, But the summer's genial showers Aver make their bosoms glad. Better have an act that's kindly Treated sometimes with disdain Then, by judging others blindly—Doon the innocent to pain.—A CONFESSING SINS TO A PRIEST. The Stock Protestant Argument Hum-orously Refuted.

An acquaintance of ours, who fre quently went to and from Philadelphia, was often teased by some of his associ ates about being a Catholic. He was a German comparatively uneducated, but well instructed in the doctrines of the Catholic religion. Withal, too, he was naturally gifted, witty and sar-castic. One evening one of his associates asked him, 'Lewy, you confess your sins to a priest, don't you 'Yes,' was the reply, 'I do.' 'Why do you confess to a priest? He is only a man. How can he forgive you your sins?' 'Yes,' retorted L., 'he is only a man, but Almighty God conferred on him the power to forgive sins. 'Oh, but why don't you go directly to God to confess your sins? I always go to headquarters when I have to do anything, said the objector. 'I deny it, you don't,' was the rough and read 'How do you know I don't asked L.'s questioner. 'Prove that I " 'Well, I'll soon do it, ' said Lewy

'You ride in this car, and so, too sometimes, does Mr.——, the president of the railroad. Some day, when the president and you are in the car, the conductor asks you for your ticket. You won't give it to him and tell him, I always do my business at head-quarters.' The conductor says 'just try it.' You then go to Mr. ___, pres-ident of the railroad, and say, 'Mr. __ I won't give my ticket to the conduc tor, I give it to you; I always do business at headquarters.' The president says-well, just exactly what he says had better be left to the imagination. In vigorous, if not elegant language, however, he tells him to give the ticket to the conductor or get off the train." There was a universa shout of applause from the listeners and it was acknowledged that Lewy had the best of the argument .- Catho lic Standard.

The Catholic faith is the religion hat is faithful to the Cross. It insists on self-denial. It teaches that nature nust give way to grace. It idealize suffering endured for love of God. opposes the maxims of the world. tets up to the warning of the Lord:
'Unless a man denies himself and akes up his cross daily and follows me, he cannot be my disciple! ther claimant to the title of Christian Church so loves poverty, chastity, obedience and mortification. Christ and Him crucified is its model and master. - Catholic Review.

NEW BOOK.

"Edward's Catechism of Hygiene," for use a schools, has been issued by the Catholic School Book, Co., New York: edited by Joseph F. Edwards, A. M., M. D., editor of "The Annals of Hygiene," etc.

made . Physicians endorse it An OLD STORY. that uncomfortable feeling of "too much richness" from food cooked in lard.

healthful, comforting. Do YOU use CottoLENES Made only by

N. K. FAIRBANK & CO., Weilington and Ann Streets, MONTREAL.

When you see this on the Box You know they are good.

IMSIST

Upon having Featherbone Corsets. Refuse all substitutes.

See they are stamped thus:

Common Error.

Chocolate & Cocoa same, only that one is a powder, (hence more easily cooked,) and the other is not.

This is wrong-TAKE the Yolk from the Egg, TAKE the Oil from the Olive, What is left?

A Residue. So with COCOA. In comparison,

CHOCOLATE, Pure Cream.

MENIER
ANNUAL SALES EXCESS
BS MILLION POUNDS.

Menier,
Canadian Branch,
12 & 14 St. John Street, Montreal.

-OBJECTS OF THE-New York Catholic Agency

The object of this Agency is to supply, at the regular dealers' prices, any kind of goods imported or manufactured in the United States. The advantages and conveniences of this Agency are many, a few of which are:

1st. It is situated in the heart of the whole adelgrade of the metropolis, and has complete such arrangements with the leading manufacturers and innectors a enable it to nurchase. such arrangements with the leading manufacturers and importers as enable it to purchase it any quantity at the lowest wholesale rates, thur getting its profits or commissions from the importers or manufacturers, and hence—2nd. No extra commissions are charged its patrons on purchases made for them, and glvin, them besides the benefit of my experience and facilities in the actual prices charged.

3rd. Should a patron want several different articles, embracing as many separate trades or lines of goods, the writing of only one lette to this Agency will insure the prompt and correct filling of such orders. Besides, there will be only one express or freight charge.

4th. Persons outside of New York, who may not know the address of houses selling a particular line of goods, can get such goods all the same by sending to this Agency.

5th. Clergymen and Religious Institutions and the trade buying from this Agency and lowed the regular or usual discount.

Any business matters, outside of buying and selling goods, entrusted to the attention or management of this Agency, will be strictly and conscientiously attended to by your giving me authority to act as your agent. Wheneve you want to buy anything send your orders to TTHOMAS D. ECAAN

THOMAS D. EGAN

An authentic copy of the Ritual of the P. P. A. will be sent to any address on recelp of 6c. in stamps. By dozen 4c. By hundred, 3c. Addres THOS. COFFEY, The Catholic Record, London, Ont. TRYTHAT

MOST DELICIOUS

James Wilson & Co. 398 Richmond Street, London.

New Spring Suitings New Spring Trouserings New Spring Overcoatings New Spring Scarfs & Ties See the New Oxford Ties

PETHICK & McDONALD. 393 Richmond Street.

EDUCATIONAL.

ST. JEROME'S COLLEGE,

BERLIN, ONT.

Complete Classical, Philosophical and Commercial Courses,

And Shorthand and Typewriting.

Pictorial Lives of the Saints

The Catholic Record for One Year

For $3.00.

REV. THEO. SPETZ, President.

STATES WORKS PATENTED SEPT. 3rd, 1884. No. 20110.

A SSUMPTION COLLEGE, SANDWICH, Ont.—The studies embrace the Classical and Commercial courses. Terms, including all ordinary expenses, $150 per annum. For full particulars apply to Rev. D. Cushing, U.S. B. are by many supposed to be one and the

COCOA is Skimmed Milk,

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR Sale, send his name and your address to Menier.

The Pictorial Lives of the Saints contains Reflections for Every Day in the Year. The book is compiled from "Butler's Lives" and other approved sources, to which are added Lives of the American Saints, recently placed on the Calendar for the United States by special petition of the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore; and also the Lives of the Saints Canonized in 1881 by His Holiness Pope Lee XIII. Edited by John Glimary Shea, LLD. With a beautiful frontispiece of the Holy Family and nearly four hundred other il ustrations. Elegantly bound in extra cloth. Greatly admired by our Holy Father, Pope Lee XIII., who sent his special blessing to the publishers; and approved by forty Archbishops and Bishops.

The above work will be seen to any of our subscribers, and will also give them credit for a year's subscription on The CATHOLIC Il Control of the CATHOLIC Il Control of the CATHOLIC III and the CATHOLIC THOROLD CEMENT. old Cement have been used in the important public works constructed by the Canadian Government. In 1891, 1892 and 1893, among other sales, were the follow-St. Clair Tunnel Co...... 10,000 Bbls. Kingston Graving Dock ... 2,000 " Edison Gen. Electric Co... 2,000 " Town of Petrolea..... 2,000 " Sault Ste. Marie Canal ... 13,540 "

> ESTATE OF JOHN BATTLE. Thorold, Ont.

Margaret L. Shepherd A COMPLETE ACCOUNT OF HER LIFE. Address, THOS, COFFEY, Catholic Record Office, London, Ont.

REID'S HARDWARE TABLE AND POCKET CUTLERY, CARPET SWEEPERS, WARINGERS, BRASS FIRE IRONS.

118 DUNDAS STREET, North Side CONCORDIA VINEYARDS SANDWICH, ONT.

ERNEST GIRADOT & CC Altar Wine a Specialty.

Our Altar Wine is extensively used and recommended by the Clergy, and our Claret will compare favorably with the best imported Bordeaux.

For prices and information address,

POST & HOLMES, ARCHITECTS.

Offices - Rooms 28 and 29, Manning House King st. west, Teronto. Also in the Gerrie Block, Whitby.

A. A. Post, R. A. A. W. Holmer

A SIMPLE WAY TO HELP POOR CATHolic Missions. Save all cancelled postage stamps of every kind and country and send them to Rev. P. M. Barral, Hammonton, New Jersey, U. S. Give at once your address, and you will receive with the necessary explanation
a nice Souvenir of Hammonton Missions.

DR. WOODRUFF, No. 185 QUEEN'S AVE.
Defective vision, impaired hearing, nasal catarrh and troublesome throats. Eyes tested, glasses adjusted. Hours, 12 to 4.

Branch No. 4. London Meets on the 2nd and 4th Thursday of every onth, at 8 o'clock, at their hall, Albion Block, ichmond Street. P. Cook, Pres., P. F. OYLE, Recording Secretary.

C. M. B. A.

Assessments Nos. 4 and 5 were issued by the Grand Secretary on 5th March. They call for the payment of nine Beneficiaries, amounting to $13,000.

In the next issue of the CATHOLIC RECORD we will give a full report of a very eloquent lecture delivered at St. John, N. B., by Brother John L. Carleton, his subject being "The Poet of Humanity—John Boyle O'Reilly." The lecture will, we are sure, be read with interest by our members, as Brother Carleton possesses those qualities which will in the near future, no doubt, enable him to take rank amongst the leading men of the country.

Let there be Life.

ous routine prevails year in and year out. There appears to be in the minds of many members only two things for which they live as C. M. B. A. men—the payment of dues and assessments and a desire to at-tend the meetings for this purpose and just rule, quiet, unassuming members, fulfilling all their duties as best they know how, and have a good conscience. But what a pity they have not more lite, more ambition what a pity they do not realise what the whole scope of C. M. B. A. werk is—what a thousand pities they do not buckle on the missionary armour, and take upon them-selves the task of forwarding the interests of the branch in some way or another, no matter how little the matter may appear. This could be done in various ways. There is a world of work spread before us in the there is likewise a world of work to be done in the way of helping and counselling those who are already in the ranks. We have often heard the question asked: "Does anyone know a sick brother or a brother in distress?" Why not enlarge this department of the duties, and ask: "Does any one know a brother whose feet are tending on the "Does anyone know a brother who is not as good a father, a brother or a son as he ought to be?" "Does anyone know a brother who spends much of his earnings in the purchase of intoxicating drinks, and in this not only deprives these depen-dent upon him of their just rights, but likewise laying a broad and solid foundation for a future of misery and degradation?" We are happy to say that but few such men are to be found in our ranks, but, few as they are, we should fulfil our whole duty and take upon ourselves a share in the work of correcting faults in one another whenever and wherever discevered. We should, as it were, watch each other, and take an interest in each other - an active. wholehearted interest in each other's temporal and spiritual welfare. In this way only will we prove worthy of being called "Brothers." Oftimes it has a hollow, cold, meaningless sound. Let us give it life and warmth.

Some Thoughts that are Pertinent.

Some Thoughts that are Pertinent.

Dear Sir and Brether—Another very large class of our membership do not attend the meetings as regularly as they should, but are usually profuse in accusing a certain ring or combination of running the machine and who do an immense amount of mischief by their uncharitable remarks.

Some one must run the machine, and only those who attend meetings have the right of so doing, and for the most part pay no attention to suck vaporings.

One great means of compelling the attendance in future at our meetings of such delinquents would be to adopt the sigms and passwords as we unanimously agreed to do at our Hamilton convention; and then they would be compelled to attend, at least at certain times, if for no other purpose than to receive the above.

I trust also some branch will propose some new clause to be added dealing with the members and officers who may give public scandal by over-indulgence in the use of liquors.

It is the most difficult question with some new clause to be added dealing with the members and officers who may give public scandal by over-indulgence in the use of liquors.

It is the most difficult question with some branches they have to solve. Happily the number is not large, but our laws should be very clear on this matter, as the Code of Procedure is a very long and arduous method to reach such cases. Some clause should be adopted giving the majority of members in any branch meeting the full right to depose such officer or member and suspend or administer any other kind of punishment which in their opinion such offenders deserved, without the long trial provided in such Code.

These parties should understand that they owe some respect to the other brothers in the branch, and be made an example of, if decent members of the community are to continue with them.

BRANCH CONSTITUTION.

Sec. 146: 8th line, strike out "from an applicant with respect to his age," and insert in lien "to be made by some person capable of stating positively the applicant's age,"

Sec. 151: 2rd line, insert after "proposition fee," "and local medical Examiner's fee." "sec. 151: 2rd line, insert after "from an applicant with respect to his age," and insert in lien "to be made by some person capable of stating positively the applicant's age,"

Sec. 152: 3rd line, insert after "from an applicant with respect to his age," and insert in lien "to be made by some person capable of stating positively the applicant with respect to his age," and insert in lien "to be made by some person capable of stating positively the applicant with respect to his age," and insert in lien "to be made by some person capable of stating positively the applicant with respect to his age," and insert in lien "to be made by some person capable of stating positively the applicant with respect to

of age till his twentieth birthday, and so on for each year of the schedule."

Sec. 19: 12th line, insert after Grand President. "and the said Trust Company or Savings Bank shall immediately notify the Grand Treasurer and each member of the Board of Trustees giving each the full particulars of such deposit."

Sec. 21: Strike out and insert in lieu "Whenever the said Deposits in Banks or Loan Companies shall exceed a sum equal to one assessment for each and every member, then such excess shall be invested in such securities as are provided by the Act of Incorporation of the Grand Council."

GRAND CCUNCIL CONSTITUTION.

Sec. 29: Add, "The two last named shall however not be entitled to vote."

Sec. 34: Strike out and insert in lieu "such special session shall be held at a place to be designated by the Grand President and Board of Trustees."

Sec. 35: Strike out after must, on 3rd line, and insert "either have held or be holding an elective office in the Association, or have been a member of the Branch for at least two years."

Sec. 42: 4th line, insert after Acting Grand President "and Board of Trustees," and strike out "of the Council" on the 5th line.

Sec. 46: 3rd line after "shall," insert "after thirty days notice from the Grand Secretary to the Branch President."

Sec. 50: Strike out and insert in lieu "Provided they are in good standing, the Spiritual Advisor, each officer holding an elective position in the Council, and each Representative or Elective Officer of the Grand Council is hereby declared to be duly qualified to act as Representative to the Supreme Council."

Sec. 56: 2nd line insert after the — "Branch."

Sec. 60: 7th line, add after "membership" "Sec. 60: 7th line, add after "membership" "Branch mediately after reinstatement:" #lso add to end of section, "upon ten days' notice add to end of section, "upon ten days' notice

Sec. 56: 2nd line insert after the—"Branch."
Sec. 60: 7th line, add after "membership"
—"immediately after reinstatement:" sloo add to end of section, "upon ten days' hotice being given by the Grand Secretary to the Branch President."
Sec. 65: 4th line, add after association "which the Grand Council By-laws provide shall be procured from the Grand Council."
Sec. 68: 1st line, insert "or dissolved" between "suspended" and "Branch."
Sec. 75: 2nd line, change 10th to 15th.
Sec. 80: Lines 12 and 13, strike out "who is a legal Chancellor."
Sec. 89: 1st line, strike out "and additions."
Also strike out "are" after "ten branches" on 8th line.

GRAND COUNCIL BY LAWS.
Sec. 92: Change to read, "Any member of the association who has held, or is holding, an an elective office therein, or who has been a member for two years, shall be eligible for any elective office in the gift of said Council."

Sec. 91: 3rd line, change to read, "instal member for two years, shall be eligible for any elective office in the gift of said Council."

Sec. 94: 3rd line, change to read, "instal them by proxy."

Sec. 100: Strike out and insert "any member of the association, who has held, or is holding an elective office therein, or who has been a member of one Branch for at least two years, shall be eligible for appointment as a District Deputy."

Sec. 102: 3rd line, change "Supreme" to "Grand" and in 4th line strike out "well" and change "Chancellor" to "member."

Sec. 103: Strike out on 1st line "member." and insert "officer"—in second line strike out "such special."

Sec. 107: 3rd line from end, strike out "and preside."

Sec. 114: 3rd line insert in both places after branch "or branches."

Sec. 115: 5th line, make it read "and shall deposit, etc."

Sec. 118: Lines 17 and 18, strike out "in all cases where it is practicable."

Sec. 120: 8th line, make it read "and shall deposit, etc."

Sec. 120: 8th line, insert after "bonds" the word "mortgages."

Sec. 120: 8th line, insert after "bonds" the word "mortgages."

Sec. 130: Add to the 3rd paragraph, "for such attendance he shall be allowed the same expenses as are paid Grand Council representatives."

Sec. 134: Add to it, "and shall be of such amount as the Board of Trustees prescribe."

sentatives."
Sec. 134: Add to it, "and shall be of such amount as the Board of Trustees prescribe."
Sec. 135: 2nd amount, make it read, "The Board of Trustees shall approve of all bonds both as to amount and sufficiency with the exception of their own. The bonds given by the Board of Trustees must be approved by the President, and 1st and 2nd Vice Presidents. Any or all other bonds may be increased by the Board of Trustees during recess."

BRANCH CONSTITUTION.

ment; it would make it simpler and much easier to collect. Yours fraternally
J. P. NOONAN, Rec. Sec.

Dear Sir and Brother — We received a circular a short time ago from Branch 145. Toronto, submitting two proposed amendments to the C. M. B. A. constitution. As I suppose that to elicit an expression of the views of the different branches on the proposed amendments was one of the objects in sending out those circulars, therefore I hope it will not be considered out of place for me to give hnmble expression to my opinion.

As regards the proposition to have the membership divided into two classes, I think, and agree with Brother Conway, of Hamilton, that it would be detrimental to the best interests of the association.

Our membership is largely made up of persons who would be classed hazardous, and the future of the association largely depends on the acquisition of such members. To discriminate against those, then, would be suicidal, particularly as there are other good Catholic societies which made no such distinction.

There is another feature of this proposition to be looked at. Those who constitute the hazardous class, with probably the exception of those employed in two or three occupations, receive less remuneration for their labor than the preferred class. To discriminate against those, and make them, who are least able pay a higher rate of assessment than the ordinary, would do much to destroy that broad. Catholic, brotherly spirit which exists among all classes of our association, and of which we are wont to boast. There is no doubt but that the deathrate of those engaged in the occupations termed hazardous is somewhat greater than the ordinary, nevertheless I—as one whose occupation is not classed hazardous—would prefer to pay a little higher rate of assessment than the deathrate in my particular class might call for, rather than see any distinction made in the risks.

As to the second proposed amendment, I fail to see that its adoption is so very essential to the welfare of the association. If the pro

Hoping I have not trespassed too much on your valuable space,
I am yours fraternally,
A MEMBER OF BRANCH 154, EGANVILLE

A MEMBER OF BRANCH 154, EGANVILLE.

Toronto, 3rd March, 1894.

The Editor Catholic Record:

Dear Sir—I must apologize for asking you to insert another letter from me on the subject of hazardous risks, but the writer of the C. M. B. A. notes in your issue of 3rd inst. has fallen into the error of supposing that the proposed amendment would if approved of "break faith with the present membership, for on their entrance into the society no suspicion ever crossed their minds that such an increase would be made. This statement, if true, or if allowed to pass uncorrected, would certainly kill the proposed amendment and justly so. But no such ccurse is intended. If the writer of the notes had but referred to Section 1 of the constitution he might have read:

"Every member upon initiation shall pay to the Financial Secretary of his Branch one beneficiary assessment, at the rate established in the following tables of rates, according to his age at the date of initiation, and the same amount on each assessment thereafter while remaining a member in good standing, unless he shall have changed his grade as hereinafter provided."

This section is part of the contract every member makes with the association in joining and it cannot be altered afterwards without his consent.

It is not possible therefore for the association in increase the assessment of any con-ont his consent.

It is not possible therefore for the association to increase the assessment of any one now a member, nor was any such step contemplated by the proposed amendment, which refers only to new members.

Youry truly,

J. D. WARDE.

Editor Catholic Books

very long and animator, as the Code of form of the processing and a very long and arthur as the construction of the constructi

it would be fair or right on the part of the C.
M. B. A to discriminate against a most worthy class of its members who not only work hard for a living (hence their hazard or the property) of the good of the society, and that without any enumeration in the way of fees and salford the words of Brother Conway, which were yell cover the ground, I say: No. brothers, let us go on helping one another, as the very class for whom the change is proposed is the class I would rather see he moouraged in our good society.

But there is one class of extra hazardous risks, as is shown by the statistics, I would not only include bar tenders, but all evolution to the basis of the committee of the contract of the see graged in the liquor traffic. I would not only include bar tenders, but all evolution to the basis of the class of extra hazardous risks, as is shown by the statistics, I would not only include bar tenders, but all evolution to the basis of the constitution, and against the same part of the same part Fraternally yours, F. P. KAVANAGH.

Maidstone, March 5, 1894.

Maidstone, March 5, 1894.

Editor Catholic Record:

Dear Sir and Brother—At a regular meeting of Branch 29, C. M. B. A., Maidstone, held March 3, the circular of Branch 145, reproposed amendments, was read and thoroughly discussed. It was unanimously decided that, in the opinion of this Branch, it would be dangerous to change, as it would be the means of keeping a very desirable class of members from our ranks. We heartily endorse Brother Conway's views on the question; also the resolution of Branch 19. Ingersoll, feeling quite confident if every precaution is taken to secure only healthy risks the high death-rate of the so-called hazardous class will have but little effect to weaken our association.

class will have but little effect to weaken our association.

Reviewing the history of the C. M. B. A. for the past sixteen years, we find that it has had to deal with a small-pox scourge in Montreal, fire and floods in Pennsylvania and a general attack of la grippe, and has succeeded in keeping up a comparatively cheap insurance, at the same time laying aside a handsome reserve fund for an emergency. It would, therefore, seem like a false alarm to predict the downfall of our grand association simply because we have a few hundred railway-men, sailors, etc., paying the same rate of assessment as the more favored class.

JAS, F. KANE, Rec. Sec. Branch 20.

Dillon.

On Tuesday morning last the the town was alive with the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Dillon from the country and by trains east and west to pay their respects to the bereaved family and take a last look upon the placid countenance of departed worth.

Precisely at 10 a. m. the body was removed from: his late residence to St. Ignatius' church, followed by grief-stricken parents and sorrowing friends, where High Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Cuamins. Miss Mary Berhorst (soprano) presided at the organ, assisted by her sister, Miss Francis Berhorst (alto), and Mr. Lemay (tenor) of Chatham, and Mr. Cole, of London, (basso).

The choral service was grand, indeed the whole religious service was deeply impressive and highly appreciated.

Father Cummin's oration was remarkably cogent, in which he eulogized with his native eloquence the amiable qualities of mind which characterized the life of the deceased, many of the audience being visibly affected.

The pal-bearers were all young men comprising Frank Avery and M. Coleman, of Bothwell, F. and W. Coles, of London, Orendori and Kierns, who led one of the largest funerals which we have ever seen moving out of town.

Out of respect to our old townsman and exlargest funerals which we have ever seen moving out of town.

Out of respect to our old townsman and exMayor, many of the stores were closed during the funeral service.—Bothwell Times.

Benziger's Catholic Home Annual - 1894.

We have just received a supply of this very popular annual. It contains the usual good things in the shape of stories, poems, historical and biogra-phical sketches, and plenty of pretty, interesting pictures. Price by mail 25cts., in stamp or script. Address, THOMAS COFFEY, Catholic Record Office, London Ont.

MARRIED.

MARRIED.

MINOGUE-GIBBONS.

St. Peter's cathedral, on Feb. 6, was the scene of a gay gathering, it being the occasion of the marriage of Miss Mamie Gibbons, eldest daughter of Mrs. Patrick Quigley, to Mr. Thomas Mimogue, of the Gillespie cothing house. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. J. Tiernan. The bride was supported by her cousin, Miss Minnie was supported by her cousin, Miss Minnie was supported by her cousin, Miss Minnie man of the groom by Mr. Terry King. The bride looked charming in a dress of brown hos sacking, and carried cream roses; and the bridesmald was similarly attired in a dress of the same material. After the ceremony had been performed the happy couple regarded to the residence of the bride's mother, accompanied by about forty guests, where a sumptions repast was partaken of, and the usual congrammations extended to the twain. The presents were many and of an elaborate kind, amongst them being a handsome marble top oak bedroom set. A number of guests were present from Toronto, Stratford, Ingersoil and Niagara Falls. Mr. and Mrs. Minogue will in future reside at 529 Quebec street.

MAHON-JACOB.

MAHON-JACOB.

We take from the Mobile papers the following announcement of a marriage which took place some time since in that city, which will be read with interest by the people of London, as the bridegroom is the son of Mr. John F. Mabon, a former resident of this city: "Yesterday Mr. John A. Mahon and Miss Ethel Pauline, daughter of Mr. J. P. Jaeob, of this city, were united in the holy bonds of wedlock. The bride is the beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Jacob, of this city. She is a decided brunette and was one of Mobilie's belies, and never did one look more beautiful in bewitching then she did in her travelling costume of navy blue satin trimmed in pearls. The groom is a young man who is well known in Mobile. He has had the honor of carrying off the medial of being the handsomest soldier in the state of Alabana's volunteer troops. He is a successful real estate agent and is the only son of Mr. John F. Mahon, of London, Canada. After the ceremony the mewly married couple and their guests partook of a delightful supper given by the groom's mother in their honor. They went to Cuba for their bridal tour. Good look and happiness to Mr. and Mrs. M shon is the wish of the many friends of the handsome young couple.

MRS. MICHAEL RAWLEY, HIBBERT.

We regret to chronicle the death of Mrs. Michael Rawley, who departed this lite, at her late residence in Hibbert, on Tuesday, 20th ult. For some time past deceased had been suffering from a slow but fatal malad y, which she bore with great patience and resignation to the will of God. She received all the consolations which the Church of God offers to the dying. Her maiden name was Mary Moylan, and she was born in county Galway, Ireland, in 1827. When quite young she emigrated to Canada with her father, four brothers, and one sister, all of whom have preceded her to the world beyond the grave. In 1854 she married Mr. Michael Rawley, one of the pioneers of the township of McKillop. She leaves a husband, three sons and three daughters to mourn the loss of a fond wife and mother. On Friday morning the funeral (which was largely attended) proceeded to St. Columban Church, Irishtown, the Rev. Dean Murphy chanting the requiem service. She was buried in the cemetery near the church, While extending to Mr. Rawley and family the sincere expression of our sympathy, we join in the holy aspiration of the Church, and pray that her soul may rest in peace. MRS. MICHAEL RAWLEY, HIBBERT.

A NEW BRUNSWICK SENSATION.

The Terrible Experience of a Well-known Gentleman.—So Badly Crippled with Rheumatism that he was Helpless as an Infant — How he was Cured — A lady Relative also Restored to Health.

From the Richibucto, N. B., Review.

The attention of the Review having been called to two cases in Kingston in which it was alleged remarkable cures have been effected by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, a reporter was sent to interview the parties named, and find out whether the cures were really the result of the use of Pink Pills. Mr Samuel Barnes, who formerly resided in Dorchester, N. B., and who removed to Kingston, Kent Co., some time ago, was first interviewed, and asked whether the reports concerning his illness and his recovery from the use of these pills were true. He expressed himself willing to add his testimony to the many he saw in the papers concerning the wonderful cures effected by Pink Pills, and hoped his story might be the means of bringing relief to others. We give his story as nearly as possible in his own words. From the Richibucto, N. B., Review. words
"I was first attacked with acute muscular simply because we have a few hundred railway-men, sailors, etc., paying the same rate of assessment as the more favored class.

JAS, F. KANE, Rec. Sec. Branch 20.

Resolutions of Condolence.

At the last regular meeting of Branch 57, Orillia, held in their hall on Feb. 21st, the following resolution of condolence was unanimously passed:

Whereas Almighty God in His infinite wisdom has deemed it mete to call to Himself the beloved wife of our esteemed Brother, James Patton, Recording Secretary of Branch No. 57, Orillia, be it

Resolved that while we bow in humble submission to the will of Divine Providence we tender to Brother Patton and his safflicted family our individual and united sympathies, in their sad bereavement, and we pray God in His infinite mercy and goodness to grant our Brother and his orphans grace to bear with fortitude their sad affliction.

Resolved that this resolution be spread on the minutes of our branch and published in our official organ, the CATHOLIC RECORD, J. CASHMAN, Asst. Recorder.

Funeral Services of the Late James E. Dillon.

On Tuesday morning last the the town was alive with the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Dillon from the country and by trains east and west to pay their respects to the bereaved family and take a last look upon the placid counter-ance of departed worth.

Precieved to a more family as the history as nearly as possible in his sourds words.

I was then living in Dorchester. For three months I lay in bed unable to move hand or foot, more helpless than an infant. The joints of my arms and legs were much swollen, and mission who attended me bandaged my limbs and in every way attempted to give me relief, but without effect. Two other doctors were called in consultation, but could do nothing for me. I was then living in Dorchester. For three months with sailers were almost out of safety to give the pills a trial. When I had about half finished the second box I began to feel effected by the use of Pink Pills, and I resolved to cast aside doctors medicine, and give the pills using only a cane, and apparently without any difficulty. His hands and fingers, however, still bear traces of the sovere suffering he has undergone.

His sister, Mrs. John Taylor, was also a sufferer from muscular rheumatism. She was first attracked by the disease eight years ago, and at that time it was only with great difficulty she was able to move around. Doctors' medicine did not help her, and she tried all kinds of so-called cures for rheumatism, but they appeared to do her no good whatever. Through the advice of Mr. Barnes and with the consent of her physician, she began taking Pink Pills last fall. By the time she had finished the second box she felt decidedly improved. She has now finished her fourth box, and is apparently as well as she ever was. She said she was perfectly willing that the public should know that she was a firm believer in the efficacy of Pink Pills. The improvement wrought by these pills in the case of Mr. Barnes had first induced her to give them a trial, and she was now satisfied that the pills possessed wonderful curative powers.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a specific for all diseases arising from an impoverished condition of the blood or a shattered condition of the nervous forces, such as St. Vitus dance, locomoter ataxia, rheumatism, paralysis, sciatica, the after effects of la grippe, loss of appetite, headache, dizziness, chronic erysipelas, scrofula, etc. In the case of men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, over work or excesses of any nature.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont. or Schenectady, N. Y., at 50 cents a box, or six boxes far $2.50. The price at which these pills are sold makes a course of treatment compartively inexpensive as compared with other remedies or medical treatment.

MARKET REPORTS.

London, Mar. 8.—Grain deliveries were small, and wheat was steady, at 92e to $1 per cental. Oats 98c to $1 per cental. Peas $5 to 90e per cental. Beef was of good quality in most cases, and sold at $4.50 to $6,50 per cent. Lamb7½ to 8c a pound while sale. Veals sold at 6 to 7c a pound by the carcass. Dressed horse $5 to $5 per cent. Turkeys sold at $ to 9c a pound. Fowls, 50 to 75c a pair. Chickens sold at $2 to 8c a pound. Fowls, 50 to 75c a pair. Chickens sold at $2 to 8c a pound. Powls, 50 to 75c a pair. Potatoes 65 to 75 a bag. Apples were scarce, at $1 to $1.75 a bag. Hay. $7.50 to $8.50 a ton.

Toronto 88.50 a ton.

Toronto Mar. 8.—Flour—Straight roller, 82.65 to 82.70 extra, 82.40 to 82.53. Wheat—white, 57c; spring No. 2, 80; red winter, 57; 2008e, 55c; No. 1 Man, hard, 73c; No. 2, 71½c; peas. No. 2, 35; barley. No. 1, 42½ to 43; feed, 35 to 37c; oats, No. 2, 32½c.

Montreal, March 8 .- The wheat market was quiet. Oats, car lots were sold at 39½ to 40c. Peas have sold at 59 to 51c. Wheat—No. 1 hard Manitoba, 72 to 73c; No. 2, do. 70 to 71c; near 66 lbs. 68 to 68c; oats, per 34 lbs. 39½ to 40½c; oer, 66 lbs. 68 to 68c; oats, per 34 lbs. 39½ to 40½c; oer, 64 ty paid. 62 to 64c; barley, feed. 42 to 43c; oer, ley, malting, 50 to 55c. Flour—Winter wheat, 85.60 to 88.70; Manitoba patents, best brand, 88.90 to 88.70; straight rollers, 83.10 to 85.20; extra, 82.75 to 82.90; superfine, 82.50 to 85.20; strong bakers, 89.35 to 83.9½ Manitoba strong bakers, best brand, 88.90. Oatmeal—Standard, bags, 81.95 to 82.15; standard, bbls., 84 to 84.0; granulated bags, 82.60 to 82.10; granulated bbls. 81.20 to 81.9½ rolled oats, bags, 82 to 82.5; do bbls, 84.20 to 84.25. Bran, 817; shorts, 818; moullie, 823 to 825. Dressed hogs are quiet and unchanged at 89.10 to 80.25 for nice clean car lots, others quoted down as low as $5.00 to 85.70. Canadian, in pails, 94 to 10c; becon, per lb. 195 to 81.95; to 81.95; for single large, large, compound, refined, per lb. 11 to 12c; lard, compound, refined, per lb. 15 to 80.25 (cheese, 11) to 11½c. and the cable unchanged. Butter—Finest fall creamery, 21 to 26c; earlier makes, 22 to 26c; einest townships dairy, 21 to 20c; vorrieburg and Brockville, 19 to 20c; roll stock, by to be, earlied of the fresh 8 to 10c, and bolding stock at 18 to 19c, per doz. Turkeys, 8 to 10c; geese, 3c; and chickens, 9 to 19c per lb.

Latest Live Stock Markets.

Latest Live Stock Markets.

TORONTO.

March 8.— Butchers' Cattle — Inferior to medium loads sold at $\frac{1}{2}$ to $3c$, medium to good at $3c$ $3c$; good to choice at $\frac{1}{2}$ to $3c$, and extrachoice loads at $3c$ $5c$; post. Picked lots of twos and threes brought $3.90$ to $4.

House—Long, lean "bacon" hops sold, weighed off car, at $5c$ to $5.10; stores and light pigs at $4.00 to $4.50; rough heavy sows at $4 to $4.25 and stags at $3 to $5.00.

Sheep and Lamb-Grain-fed lambs are about $1c$ per lb cff, and poor to medium stuff about $1c$ at $0 off. There were a few sales made above $4c$ on previous contracts, one at $4.12\frac{1}{2}c$ a hundred, but the new business was done at $4c$ for choice grain fed lambs, and down as low as $3c$ for mediums.

A few sheep sold at $4 to $4.50 a head.

Calves — About a dozen were in and sold at from $2 to $8, at cording to quality. A bunch of 7, averaging 130 lbs, sold at $6 each.

Milk Cows and Springers—The range is from $30 to $50 for medium to extra choice milkers and springers.

EAST BUFFALO.

East Buffalo, N. Y. March 8.—Cattle.—Good ten-bundred weight steers sold at $5.00.

Ro

rep ign sen wh

Pop exa

crii epi

he Ald

den

toli was

of G had cha tem

dee all Brit con

eve

Lor

alth

sam Kin The Met

reta

atte priv

priv

East Buffalo, N. Y., March 8.—Cattle.—Good ten-hundred weight steers sold at $3.25.

Sheep and Lambs—Good native lambs of 30 to 30 hs. sold at $1 to $4.25, and heavier choice at $4.25. Good sheep, fair trade at $3.25 for very good quality, and $4 to $4.25 for fancy export wethers.

ethers. Hogs. — Yorkers generally sold at $5.10 to $5.15, with the bulk of the sales at the latter rices, good to choice lots bringing $5.20, lixed packers ranged at $5.05 to $5.15, and good ochoice medium and heavy, $5.05 to $5.10 up; 5.15 torgood light medium weights. Pigs in aderate demand at $5.15 to $5.27 roughs, $4.25 o $4.60, and stags common to good smooth, $3.to $5.25.

C. C. RICHARDS & CO.

Gentlemen—In driving over the mountains
I took a severe cold which settled in my back and kidneys, causing me many sleepless nights of pain. The first application of MINARD'S LINIMENT so relieved me that I fell into a deep sleep and complete recovery shortly followed.

Annapolis.

Watch your Weight

If you are losing flesh your system is drawing on your latent strength. Something is wrong. Take to give your system its needed strength and restore your healthy weight. Physicians, the world over, endorse it.

Scott's Emulsion

Don't be deceived by Substitutes! Scott & Bowne, Belleville. All Druggists. 50c. & $1.

ORGANIST.

WANTED BY A YOUNG LADY situation as organist in a Catholic chur 66. Owen Sound, Ont. Apply Bo

Merchant Tailoring.

MR. O. LABELLE WILL OPEN A FIRST-M Class Merchant Tailoring establishment on Richmond Street, next door to the Richmond House, and opposite the Masonic Temple, in a few days. He will carry a fall range of the very choicest goods. Prices to suit the times. Satisfaction guaranteed.

The Annual Favorite.

WE HAVE RECEIVED A SUPPLY of BENZIGER'S HOME ANNUAL, a delightful book for the Catholic fireside. Price 25c, free by mail. By the dozen $2.00, Address, THOS, COFFEY, Catholic Record Office, London, Onl.

THE HURON AND MRIE

Loan & Savings Company ESTABLISHED 1864. Subscribed Capital, - $2,500,000 Paid up Capital, - - - 1,300,000 Beserve Fund. - - 626,000 J. W. LITTLE. President JOHN BEATTIE. Vice-President DEPOSITS of $1 and upwards received at highest current rates.

DEBENTURES issued, payable in Canada or in England. Executors and trustees are authorized by law to invest in the debentures of this company.

MONEY LOANED on mortgages of resignate.

MORTGAGES purchased. G. A. SOMERVILLE.

Father Damen, S.J.

One of the most instructive and useful pamphets extant is the lectures of Father Damen. They comprise four of the most celebrated ones delivered by that remowned Jesuit Father namely: "The Private Interpretation of the Hible." "The Catholic Church the only true Church of God," "Confession," and "The Real Presence." The book will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in stamps. Orders may be sent to Thos. Coffey. CATHOLIC RECORD Office, London.

LOVE & DIGNAN, BARRISTERS, ETC., 418 Talbot street, London. Private funds

the prin The eve Bro tine Aug of th

> Chu the dur thor all l To who of o and orda