LATEST FROM INDIA.

The following telegraph despatch was received at the Foreign-office from Acting Consul-General Green, December the 14, 1858, at 4 p.m.:-

ALEXANDRIA, Dec. 10

The steamer Ganges arrived at Sues from Bombay yesterday, with dates to the 25th of November.

The Queen's Proclamation has given general satisfaction throughout India.

In Oude the talookdars are tendering their submission, and surrendering their forts and arms.

Rajah Loll Mahdoo Singh surrendered himself and his forces of Amethy on the 10th of November.

The fort of Simree, in Oude, was taken by Brigadier Eveleigh on the 9th, with the loss of only two Europeans killed and three or four wounded.

Tantia Topee is in the Satpoorah hills, the outlets of which are closely guarded.

The following are official telegraphic despatches:-

From Indore, Nov. 28 .- The Nawab of Banda has separated from the rebels, and is gone to General Michel's camp 'en route' to Indore. He states he comes under the Queen's proclamation.'

From Swuntwarree, Nov. 23.-The remaining rebel leaders have given themselves up to government.'

This telegram arrived at Malta from Alexandria by the contract steam-packet Malta at 9 a.m. on the 14th December.

All thoughts, all passions, all delights, Whatever stirs this mortal frame, Are all but ministers of LOVE And feed his sacred flame.

Oft in my waking dreams do I Live o'er again that happy hour, When midway on the mount I lay Beside the ruined tower.

The mooushine stealing o'er the scene, Had blended with the lights of eve; And she was there, my hope, my joy. My own dear Genevieve!

She leaned against the armed man, The statue of the armed knight; She stood and listened to my lay Amid the lingering light.

Few sorrows hath she of her own, My hope, my joy, my Generieve ! She loves me best whene'er I sing The songs that make her grieve.

I played a soft and doleful sir, I sang an old and moving story-An old rude song that suited well That ruip wild and hoary.

She listened with a flitting blash, With downcast eyes and modest grace; For well she knew I could not choose But geze upon her face.

I told her of the knight that wore Upon his shield a burning brand; And that for ten long years he wooed The lady of the lanua

I told her how he pined; and ah! The deep, the low, the pleading tone With which I sang another's love, Interpreted my own.

She listened with a flitting blush, With downcast eyes and modest grace; And she forgave me that I gazed Too fendly on her face.

But when I told the cruel scorn Which crazed this bold and lovely knight, And that he crossed the mountain-woods, Nor rested day nor night;

But sometimes from the savage den, And sometimes from the darksome shade, And sometimes starting up at once, In green and sunny glade,

There came and looked him in the face An angel beautiful and oright; And that he knew it was a fiend, This miserable knight!

And that, unknowing what he did, He leaped amid a murderous pand, And saved from outrage worse than death The lady of the land;

And how she wept and clasped his knees, And how she tended him in vain-And ever strove to expiate The scorn that crazed his brain.

And that she nursed him in a cave; And how his madness went away. When on the yellow forest leaves A dying man he lay;

His dying words—but when I reached That tenderest strain or all the ditty, My faltering voice and pausing harp Disturbed her soul with pity!

All impulses of soul and sense Had thrilled my guileless Genevieve-The music and the doleful tale, The rich the balmy eve;

And hopes, and fears that kindle hope, An undistinguishable throng; And gentle wishes long au dued, Subdued and cherished long:

She wept with pity and delight, She blushed with love and virgin shame And like the murmur of a dream I heard her breathe my name.

Her hose m heaved, she stept saide : As conscious of my look she stept-Then suddenly with, timorous eve. She fled to me and wept.

She half enclosed me with her arms. She pressed me with a meek embrace. And bending back her head looked up And gazed upon my face.

'Iwas partly love, and partly fear, And nartly 'twas a bashful art, That I might rather feel than see The swelling of her heart.

I calmed her fears; and she was calm. And told her love with virgin pride; And so I won my Genevieve, My bright and beauteous bride!
