I most respectfully take leave to call the attention of the Public generally to the fact, that certain Houses in New

NEWS PER MAIL.

CHICAGO, June 1.—It is understood that Senator Cameron will remain Chairman of the National Republican Committee, and that the unit rule will be ultimately submitted to the decision of the Convention. The New York Delegation after an exhortation from Senator Con-kling, urging them to obey the behests of the State Convention have resolved, by 35 against 23, to vote as a unit. Senator Conkling said that the Dissidents from the resolution might appeal to the Convention. The Pennsylvania delegates have resolved to vote as a unit, although twenty-three of their number have signed a protest against the nomination of General Grant. The supporters of General Grant's candidacy have held a caucus, at which Senator Conkling urged them to stand firm and General Grant would be nominated. He was, said the speaker, the strongest man, and the German support him. They could carry New York by 49,000 majority. Senator Lyman counselled firmness, and said he believed that General Grant would be nominated on the first or second ballot. The partisans of senators Blaine have also held a meeting.

New York, June 2.—The Maine Democrats have notified the nomination of the Greenback party for the post of Governor of that State.

CHICAGO, June 2.—The Convention met at one o'clock to-day. Senator Hoar, the candidate of the anti-Grant delegates, was chosen temporary chairman.
The usual committees were also appointed.

LATER.—Having referred the credentials and protests of the contending delegations from several States to the Credentials Committee, and Convention adjourned until eleven o'clock to-morrow.

PHILADELPHIA, June 2.—The Chicago Convention opened at one o'clock in the evening. Senator Cameron called the Convention to order. The Rev. Mr. M.
Kilbridge having offered prayer. Senator Cameron moved that Senator Hoar be appointed temporary chairman. This was carried unanimously. Mr Hoar took the chair, delivering an appropriate address. The Convention then appointed one delegate from each State and territory on each of three committees, to prepare a "platform," to select officers and to decide on credentials. Contest seats were then announced from California, Illinois, Louisiana, Pennsylvania, and Utah, which were referred to the Credentials committee. Without further action, the Convention adjourned until 11 o'clock on Tuesday morning.

Chicago telegrams say that an opinion prevails that Mr Edmunds will be nominated for president. In approaching Committees at the Chicago Convention, each State and Territory named one member for each. The anti-Grant coalition thus got a large majority in all the committees. Mr Edward Pierpont, formerly Minister to England, was elected chairman of the Committee on "Platform." James A. Garfield was chosen chairman of the Committee on Rules.
In the Credentials Committee the contest between the factions began at the outset.
Mr Conger, Michigan, anti-Grant being elected chairman by 29 to 11 votes. This Committee will decide the Illinois, Louisiana and Utah cases against Grant admitting twenty Illinois, eight Louisiana and two Utah anti-Grant delegates of the Convention. The Committee is now in session expecting a stormy conflict, to extend all night. The Committee on Rules determined to report against the Unit Rule, thus allowing the delegates to vote according to individual preference. The Committee on officers are expected to report Senator Hoar as permanent chairman of the Convention. Their is great excitement and a continued series of intrigues are being directed to naming the candidate for President but Grant and Blaine are expected to fail.

CHICAGO, June 3.—The Convention reassembled at eleven o'clock this morning, and appointed Senator Hoar permanent chairman. The Credentials Committee not being ready with their report, the Convention separated until five o'clock this evening. The votes taken on various motions in the Convention were against the Grant delegates, and the Credentials Committee have also decided several contested cases in favour of the anti-Grant men.

A Gazette representative had an interview on Monday afternoon with Mr.
Henry Phillips Vice-President of the recently formed "Colonial Gold Mining Company," in course of conversation that gentleman related the plans and progress made for and in the working of the mines at St. George, Beauce county. He stated that the Company was organized in New York in February last and incorporated with a capital $2, 500,000, the capital stock being raised at $25 per share paid up. It was the intention of the Company to put as many men to work as it was possible to find room for; at least one hundred would be immediately employed. Previously the mines had been worked by inexperienced men, and yet had paid handsomely; but now the latest and best appliances and machinery would be used, and, judging from the opinions expressed by mining experts and others, who had inspected the property, it was expected that dividends would be paid between 60 and 90 days from the date of starting the work, the management of the mines is now in practical hands for the first time since gold has been discovered in the vicinity for both Mr. Phillips himself and Mr. Andrew Stewart, the engineer, engaged, have had probably more experience in the mining business than any other men on this side of the Pacific Coast. Mr. Phillips is a practical miner, he superintended all the mining in Bodie, Mono County, California and in Nevada, and who was a resident of the Pacific Coast for 23 years. Since the Company was organized, about $30,000 has been expended on the property. A dam, 350 feet long and 45 feet at the base, has been built across the river (River de Loup) and this has been so strongly constructed that it has withstood all the freshets, and the only one on the river that has done so. A flume or canal—659 feet long, 22 feet wide, and 12 feet deep—has been constructed for the purpose of turning the river in another direction, and thus allowing mining in the bed of that water course, the presence of gold in the district of Beauce has also been known for the past twenty-five years, but strange to say, only at the present time has it properly fallen into practical hands.

The Glasgow mortality tables for the past year were issued by Dr. J. B. Russel the medical officer of health for the city on Friday week. During the period indicated there were 12,450 deaths, being to the rate of 23 per thousand, which is 6 per thousand below the average for the preceding ten years. The ages at which death occurred were as follows: —5224 under 5 years 1401 5 and under twenty years, 3855 twenty and under twenty five years and 1900 six years and upwards. It is found that the principal causes of death were consumption and ac-cute diseases of the lungs, 4700; nervous diseases of children, &c., 1602; scarlet fever and other diseases which mainly affect children, 1149; diarrhoeal diseases, 223; and fevers 168; while in 4576 cases there is no classification. The comparison with previous years shows an improvement all round but chiefly in the fatal or infectious diseases. Of the total deaths, 891 per cent were certified, and 41 per cent were in friendly societies.
The mortality in different parts of the city varied from 51 per thousand at Candyfoot, to 36 per thousand in the High Street and closes.

MORTALITY STATISTICS.—The Registrar-General reports 6374 births and 4359 deaths in 15 large towns of the United Kingdom during the past week. The average rate of mortality in these towns was 21 annually per 1000. The rate in London was 19; Edinburgh, 23; Glasgow, 23; Dublin, 35; Wolverhampton, 10; Leds and Hull, 17; Portsmouth and Leicester, 18; Birmingham, Plymouth, and Bradford, 19; Sheffield Nottingham, 20; Brighton, 21; Bristol and Sunderland, 22; Oldham and Liverpool, 23; Norwich and Newcastle, 24; Manchester, 26; Salford, 29; Small-pox caused 9 more deaths in Dublin.

In writing of the emigration this year from Ireland, the Irish Times observes that those who select Australia and New Zealand as their future home are generally of a more comfortable class than their brethren who proceed to Canada or the United States. We are of course always glad to welcome to Canada those who bring skill muscle and goodwill, even if they have nothing in their pockets.
Many who have thus arrived on our shores have become successful enterprising and public spirited citizens. But at the same time, we think the notion is prevalent in the old county that Canada offers inferior advantages to those who have money to invest and that such as they are more likely to do well in Australia than here. We feel assured that this notion is simply a prejudice, which has arisen in the minds of those who saw multitudes of poor people crossing the Atlantic for dozens who sailed in the contrary direction. Of course, it requires more money to make the latter voyage than the former and, therefore, those who make it are generally persons who have some cash in hand. But this fact does not prove that, for such well-to-do emigrants, Australia is preferable to Canada. It would be well if a more strenuous effort were made to induce this class, also, to come and settle on Canadian farms. A great deal has, indeed been done of late in this direction, but evidently not enough to clear the obstinate British mind of prejudice.

ROCHEFORT AS A POLITE LETTER WRITER.

The Paris correspondent of the Standard published a letter addressed by M.
Rochefort to M. Koechlin, which appears to have been the immediate cause of the duel which has ended so seriously for M.
Rochefort. It certainly contains enough provocation according to French ideas for a dozen duels. "M. Andreux" it says, "is too much of a coward to make himself answerable to me for the attempt at murder he committed my son. He delegates spadassins to fight in his place." It accuses M. Koechlin of having killed some unknown person in an unfair fight, and hence of lying "under the suspicion of murder in the eyes of all men of honour." On this grounds the letter proceeds, M. Rochefort might refuse to meet his challenger; or he might make M. Koechlin wait until his brother-in-law M. Andreux, had given "the satisfaction due to a father whose child he tried to kill." "But your brother-in-law appears so averse to fighting, and yourself so disinclined to stand your trial, that the matter would never come to an issue;" and so M. Rochefort wrote to his seconds.

In the Common Place Division the case of Nicholas v. the Fanciers Chronicle Publishing Company was heard. The object of the action was to recover compensation for alleged libels which had been published in the Field and the Fanciers' Chronicle. The plaintiff was a breeder and seller of dogs, who lived at Kensington, and he owned a bloodhound named Napper, which, when it was a month old he sold to a Mr. Parker for 21 guineas.
This gentleman went to Australia, and during his absence the dog underwent an operation for removing an increscence on the jaw. On Mr. Parker's return the plaintiff bought the animal back for £57 10s., and on 11 July last he won by it the second prize at the dog show at the Alexandra Palace. The libels complained of were in the Field, to the effect that one of the dog's eyes appeared to have been cut, and that the dog had been found suffering intolerable agony from the wound, and in the Fanciers' Chronicle, that the dog had been tampered with, that there was quite enough to disqualify it at a glance, and that the "jaw" had degenerated to a degree. The plaintiff took the dog to Professor Pritchard, at the Veterinary college, and he removed the remaining part of the excrescence, and the dog had since then been perfectly well. The plaintiff now claimed damages upon the ground that what had been stated in the alleged libels was untrue, and that it had been very injurious to him in his business. After the opening statement the dog was brought into court muzzled, and examined as to the jaw.
The case was adjourned.

A special telegram from Berlin, dated yesterday, to the St. James's Gazette says:—It is announced that England has formally declared her readiness to join in the supplementary conference, to be held here any time after the 15th June.
It is uncertain whether Russia has definitely withdrawn her proposal for executing points of the Treaty of Berlin, or whether she will renew it at the sitting of the conference. According to the programme arranged, the conference consisting of the Plenipotentiaries of the six Great Powers, with experts, will nominate an international commission for the delimitation of the Turko-Greek frontier on the spot, and at the same time take efficient precautions for the safety of the commissioners.

Governor J. Pope Hennessy has been more fortunate in his administration of Hong Kong than in that of the Windward Isles where, whether through circumstances over which he had no control or by faults or temper and method he managed to raise a storm which took some time to subside. He has just been made a knight Commander of the most distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George. Sir John is the son of Mr.
John Hennessy, of Ballyhennessy, in the County Kerry his mother having been before her marriage, a Miss Casey, of Cork. He was born in 1834, educated at the Queen's College, Cork, and called to the English bar in 1861. He sat in Parliament for King's County from 1857 to 1865. Since 1867 he has been successively Governor of Labuan, Consul-General of Borneo, and Governor of West Africa, the Bahamas, the Windward Isles and Hong Kong.

A TERRIBLE DISASTER.

The steamer Stonington collided with the steamer Narragansett last night off Cornfield Light. The Narragansett was sunk the passengers were mostly saved by boats and landed on the beach in their night clothes to the number of some 3 or four hundred. It is reported that the Narragansett caught fire after the collision, but no details have been received.

A private despatch about the collision between the steamers Narragansett and Stonington says quite a number of lives were lost. The collision occurred near Connecticut river.

The steamer Narragansett, which left New York last evening for Stonington, and her companion, the Stonington, which left Stonington for New York, collided off Connecticut river in a dense fog about 11.15. The former took fire and sunk in eight fathoms of water. The passengers of both steamers were transferred to the City of New York, which arrived here at 10.15 this morning. It is impossible to ascertain the losses of life; thus far only two bodies have been recovered.

The Stonington arrived at 6.30 this morning with about 50 survivors from the Narragansett. The bow of the former is stove in three feet aft of stem, nearly to the water line. She struck the Narragansett at 11.30 on the starboard side forward of the wheel house. This shock burst gas tank and in 15 minutes the Narragansett was on fire. She sunk in 4 fathoms of water. The New York and Providence came to her assistance, and all the boats and life rafts of the four steamers were lowered and put into service. It was two hours before the last passenger was picked up. Most of them were transferred to the City of New York. Passengers say that the officers and crew of the Narragansett behaved with great coolness and nerve.

On the arrival of the Stonington the village was aroused and men and women hastened with clothing and assistance. Twenty-five women were on board in their night clothing, one of whom died before reaching here from the shock. She has not yet been identified. One man also died—Rev. R. B. Lockwood of Sixty Eight St. Methodist Church, New York. Most of the eastern bound passengers left on a special train. Everything was done for their comfort.

G. O. Sanborn, of Boston, a passenger said: "About eleven o'clock last night I was knocked out of my berth by some terrible force. Without stopping to dress I secured a life preserver, and with others jumped into the sea, and after floating around for some time, was picked up. About fifteen minutes after the collision the boat was a sheet of flame, and was lured to the waters edge. Before leaving the boat I saw one man shoot himself in despair, and also heard reports of another pistol. There were, I believe 350 passengers, and with the officers and crew, over 400 souls on board, and I think I am estimating it low when I say that 100 lives were lost. One great mistake was made, I think by the officers in not letting the people know the true condition of affairs, as many women were induced by them to return to their staterooms, thereby losing time, and very likely their lives."

A marriage was solemnized on the 10th of last month at Pollockville, New Connecticut, in circumstances of a peculiarly romantic nature. The bride was Miss Leonora Lloyd, the daughter of Colonel Lloyd, of Pollockville. Two gentlemen, Mr. Moses John Miller and Mr. Alexander Bibb, were deeply in love with her, but for the life of her she was unable to decide which she liked best. On Sunday morning, the 9th instant, Mr. Bibb walked home from church with her, and left her under the impression that she said she would marry him the next day. Mr. Miller walked home with her after the evening service, and understood her clearly to say that he was her intended husband. Early the next morning both gentlemen went to the Court-House and obtained each of them, license to marry—Miss Lloyd. They met at the Court-House door, and after some talk agreed that the first man who reached the lady's house should marry her. The residence of Colonel Lloyd was one mile distant, and both divesting themselves of their upper garments, started on the race for the bride. The struggle was one of the most exciting on record. Bibb, quitting the main road, took a short cut through a wood, but Miller, keeping the road, got in "on the homestretch," eight seconds before his rival. At the finish Bibb's efforts to overtake Miller to the lane leading to the house were "almost superhuman." When they reached the porch Bibb fell at the feet of Miss Lloyd in a fainting condition. On the situation being explained to her she said she had come to the conclusion that she liked Bibb best, and would therefore marry him. Her sympathies were won over by seeing him faint. Miller was too cool and unconcerned. She was accordingly married to Bibb in the afternoon by the Rev. Aaron Jasper, the well-known Baptist minister. Miller was present at the ceremony, and wept copiously. He looked jaded and careworn.

The Times is informed that the Chinese Minister, in consequence of the delay in the receipt of final instructions, has postponed for a short time his departure from St. Petersburg.

Berlin, June 15. Another burglary has been committed in the old palace at Stuttgart. A large sum was stolen from the cabinet of the Minister of Domains. The burglars have not been discovered.

A Sertari correspondent says: "Turks hold this fortress and town. There are about 6,000 Catholics and 1,500 Mussulmans in Tasia under the joint command of Hodge Bey and Miradet Princes Hodge Osman Pasha emphatically denies having encouraged the insurrection."

TORONTO, June 15. The Globe, this morning contains the following special cable dated London Monday, June 14:—"Sir Alexander Gault announces, through the Allans, that the Department of Agriculture is authorized to make advances to a number of navies to pay their fares to Quebec and Manitoba on condition of their signing an agreement to repay the advances from wages earned while employed by contractors on the Canada Pacific Railway. Employment will be provided for three thousand laborers for three years."

CINCINNATI, June 15. The heavy rain storm known for a long time visited the city between eight and eleven o'clock last night. Rain fell to the depth of more than three inches. All the telegraph wires to the north and east went down except one, showing that the heavy storm past north of the city.

It is reported that the depot of Hamilton Butler & Co. Ohio was struck by lightning and burned. A special from Kokomo, Indiana, says the cyclone visited a point near Frankfort, Cicero, in that country, destroying buildings. Several are reported killed and many wounded.

Advices from the head waters of the Ohio River indicate a considerable rise coming.

GRAND RAPIDS, June 15. The Wisconsin River is rising rapidly. The whole business portion of the city is under water, and a portion is swept away. What remains is in danger of being carried off. The damage cannot be estimated.

GREEN BAY, Wis, June 15. Reports from the west and north of this place of a continual damages by high water continues to come in. All small streams at the mouth have overflowed. The water at Oconto is from two to four feet deep over two thirds of the city. All the dams on the Oconto and Little Rivers are gone. Spier & Oolman's booms are broken, and a million feet of logs have gone into the bay. The water is falling slowly. The damage to Oconto and the lumber interest an units to $250,000. Business is suspended. An immense jam of logs is reported just above the city.

LONDON, June 15. Over eighty Conservatives voted with the minority on Parnell's motion for the adjournment of the debate in the Commons.

A Bombay correspondent telegraphs: "As the Government refused official permission to Colonel Gordon, he tendered his resignation of his military commission before leaving India. Up to a late hour information regarding the Presidential election in Buenos Ayres had been received by responsible agencies in this city."

CADIZ, June 14. It is doubtful whether Abdul Rahman Khan, with his suspected strong Russian preference and unflinching appeals, will suit the Government. Yakoob Khan has a large hold on the sympathies of the people. This and a strong family antagonism to Abdul Rahman will recommend him for the Amership.

St. PETER-BURG, June 14. Latest reports from Shanghai say the public feeling at Peking is quiet on the Russo-Chinese question.

There is reason to believe that the following is an accurate summary of the principal arguments which will be used by Mr. Benjamin Q. C., the counsel for the Lichtenor claimants, in regard to the writ of error which is to be argued next week—that whereas the offence of perjury with which the said Thomas Castro &c., is charged in the indictment in the record under the two counts, and in respect of which he was convicted and sentenced to two several terms of seven years, penal servitude as for two distinct and separate offences, is one offence only, and in respect thereof one sentence only can by the law of this realm be imposed, therefore in that there is manifest error. That where by the law of this realm perjury can be committed only where an alleged false statement in material to an issue depending in a judicial proceeding before a competent court, and whereas the alleged false statement in the second count of the indictment in the record aforesaid upon which the said Thomas Castro, &c., was convicted and sentenced, as aforesaid, was made in an affidavit upon a motion by the said Thomas Castro, &c., before the said Hon. Vice-Chancellor Stewart, in the High Court of Chancery, for injunction to restrain certain persons from certain acts to wit, the causing and the setting up of certain defences in her Majesty's Court of Common Pleas and whereas, upon the hearing the said action, his honour the said Vice-Chancellor made an order to stay all proceedings thereon until the questions put in issue by the alleged false statements aforesaid were tried and determined by her Majesty's Court of Common Pleas in the said action of ejectment; and whereas there was no issue to the said proceedings before the said Vice-Chancellor upon which perjury could be assigned, but the only issue was that tried and determined, therefore in that there is manifest error, Earl Cowper, the new Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, has received such a welcome in Dublin as only Irishmen know how to give. This fact speaks well for his popularity, and it is to be hoped he will make as perfect a success as his predecessor, the Duke of Marlborough. The countess is said to be the most beautiful woman, and as a pretty face goes a long way toward winning an Irish heart, she will doubtless be as well beloved as was the Duchess.

It is said that Sir Charles Gavan Duffy who is just now in Ireland, has undertaken the superintendence of a work on "the troubles of Ireland," which will comprise a history of the Irish patriotic movement in which he played so prominent a part. The Nation newspaper was started in the fall of 1842. Besides Gavan Duffy, Davis, Dunlop, McGee, D. F. McCarthy, Mangin, Mitchell, O'Gorman, and several others who have, in one way or another, made names for themselves, were contributors to it. The story of the disease that followed 48, told by so conspicuous an actor, cannot fail to be interesting.

Some weeks ago, after a long interval mass begin to be said again within the precincts of the Tower of London. Such a thing had not happened since the days of Henry the Eighth. The reason for reviving a custom which had been so long in quietude is that a number of the guardsmen, who are Roman Catholics, have asked and obtained permission to have the privilege of attending a religious service in accordance with their own faith. In recording the change, the London Telegraph says that "we defend the faith now-a-days in a different manner from that employed by 'Blad King'—that is, by exhibiting it as a model of toleration and intelligent conviction."

THE CARBONEAR HERALD

Honest Labor—our noblest heritage.

CARBONEAR, JUNE 24TH.

Owing to some reason unknown to us at present, we did not receive our editorial, on Tuesday last, from the editor at St. John's.

Fire Engine.—Your communication to hand, we consider your remarks unnecessary and your language rather coarse, as we are informed that the Hon. John Rorke, is doing his best in the matter, we are also informed that he has plans and specifications in his possession,

To the Editor of the Carbonear Herald.

The question of "Decency" in your last issue can hardly ever be answered to his satisfaction. And as hard as one comes next. From the commencement to the completion of the Pig's Pound was eight hours, how long will it take to build the Railway? And how long will it take the Railway to pay itself? the pound (which wasn't put in use till Saturday, 19th), having paid well, even to the heart felt satisfaction of the Sergeant. Now let the Dr. and your correspondent exert themselves at Rule of Three.

VERITAS IN FORCUS. To the Editor of the Carbonear Herald. Carbonear, June 17.

Dear Sir,—By your permission you would allow me room in your paper to ask a few questions with regard to duty of police, and in preservation of cruelty to animals, if I mistake not that is the question asked in section 40; the answer of which is, "To summon any person guilty of cruelty, beating, ill treating, over driving, abusing or torturing any animal." Now, Mr. Editor, I would like to know what our police call cruelty to animals, I would like to know if shooting at a dog and crippling him and then leaving him two or three days to perish or call a gang of boys to stone him to death. I would like to know what our police call that Section 41. What is the law regarding dogs being at large? If I mistake not, Mr. Editor, it says, 'Every dog found at large without its owner or other person in charge thereof is required to have fastened to its neck a clog on a piece of wood of not less than eighteen inches in length and so forth.' Now, sir, I want to know is a dog at large when he is in my yard and the gate shut, I want to know if a police man can come in my yard and tell me that he will have me or the dog, which have been done, or firing towards a window and the shot to lodge in clothing therein. I think, Mr. Editor, that is beyond the bounds and I think also that it is very bad shooting. I have often heard it for a saying that a random shot would kill the dog, which is impossible, but if bad shooting would do it, our police would give him a fright. Now, Mr. Editor, a dog is not allowed to run at large no more than a dog, but there is not one pounded yet of all that is running, I would like to see our police fast to a good large dog, for it is a game that they would soon get tired of. My attention was called to three goats yesterday on the front street with no yoke is it not the Police's duty to see to them, as to shoot my dog while he is in my possession, it is my belief, Mr. Editor, that our police have not learned their duty, if they did we would not have to get out of the way for four in breast when only two is allowed to walk, for in day or night duty, Section 6. 'When any more than two they are to go in single rank on the side-walk and to be shure and get out of every body's way by moving to the left. I hope Mr. Editor, I have not intruded that you will oblige me by dropping this in your paper that I may receive an answer from the next.

I remain yours truly, a well wisher, up right and down-straight, LIKE THE FORE LEG OF A DOG.

EDUCATION, APART FROM STUDY.

I.—Definition.—Webster says:—Education comprehends all that series of instruction and discipline which is intended to enlighten the understanding, correct the temper, and form the manners and habits of youths, and fit them for usefulness in their future stations. To give children a good education in manners, arts and science, is important; to give them a religious education is indispensable.

II.—Influence that tend to educate.—Daily pursuits of life. House language and manners. Friendships. These should be most carefully selected.

III.—Thoughts that Educate.—Striving to keep the mind pure, Wasting no time in unprofitable speculations or vain imaginations, Seeking always the aid of God by prayer upon the events and pursuits of life. Pondering upon works of valuable information, scientific research or other instruction.

IV.—Sources of Education besides Books. Conversations with those who are wiser than ourselves, or whose age or experience has given them greater scope for observation. Observation. Even the most trivial objects around us, or the most important events of life, will convey education in some form if thought fully considered.

Society. The education of manners depends greatly upon the society in which we mingle. Almost unconsciously we will gain refinement from intercourse with cultivated and educated classes; while the contact with low, vulgar minds, must, even if insensibly, affect our own manners. "Evil communications corrupt good manners." Incidents.—The daily occurrences of our own experience will teach us important lessons; if properly considered, serving either as guides or warnings for our future life. Travel. Here the largest scope is given for our improvement. The observant traveller is constantly educating his tastes, his eye, his ear, his mind in every phase. V. Conclusion. Education never ceases. Death alone, or the entire prostration of the faculties, terminates it. Even sickness educates the mind, teaching patience, resignation and often giving us a valuable experience for future guidance. The real education of man depends greatly upon himself. Learning is not always education, but both combined will make a wise man. Com.

FOR THE HERALD Lines on the death of a lady friend, who departed this life at Brizus, C. B. On Wednesday, June 16th, 1880. At the early age of 19 year.—R. I. P.

TO KATIE, Ere yet the early trees did bloom; Or summer's sweets were near, There passed from us a gentle girl, So loving kind and dear; When all in peace, and home content, And joys and pleasures rife, Oh! then it is hard to lose a friend, And cloud our sun of life.

So young and thou'rt gone, So sweet yet passed away, The form of loveliness and pride, Lies 'neath a tomb to-day, And who can stay the tears, Or fill the vacant chair, Or who can soothe the parent's grief, So sorrow'd now with care?

Oh! what must be that home, Wherein all hopes, all gladness sprung from thee, No more to meet thee in the favorite path, No more to see thee full of mirth and glee, But in a Church yard drear, Where oft in charity thou didst kneel to prayer, Thy young form laid in silent peace, Green grass grows o'er thy tomb to-day.

Thy father's grief and pain, Shall reign through all his future years, Thy anguished mother's loss, Shall cause her life to be a life of tears. They only now can ask, That your pure soul for, them may pray, Before the Judgment Seat of God, When they like you are called away, JOHN KILFOY, St. John's, June 22.

The Annual Conference of the Methodist Church commenced its Annual Session in the Methodist Church here, at ten a.m. yesterday morning. After singing and prayer, the Rev. James Dove, President, spoke of the goodness of God, in permitting so many to meet together again, their being about forty ministers present.

The Conference proceeded to elect its officers by ballot, resulting as follows:—Rev. Tos. Harris, President, Rev. Charles Ladner, Secretary, Rev. F. G. Willey, Journal Secretary.

The Conference Prayer Meeting took place at noon when owing to the inclement weather few of the congregation were present.

The Hon. James J. Rogerson, arrived by the Lady Glover on Tuesday last, and attended the opening of the Methodist Conference yesterday, a full report of which will appear in our next issue.

The Rev. J. Brown, P. P., Tilton Harbor, arrived from St. John's on Tuesday last, per Lady Glover.

The bankers Henry West, Oleander and Snowbird, having secured a supply of caplin bait left again on their second trip to Grand Bank, the former two on Friday last and the latter on Monday night.

The Mary S. Hontvet, of Plymouth, arrived here yesterday, from Grand Bank, she reports having 1000 quills, green as her catch on two baitings.

The schooner Duck, 19 tons, owned and supplied by Messrs Ross & Co, Harbour Grace John McCarthy master, on the passage to Labrador from this port, was lost at Cat Harbor about a week ago, having been driven ashore in a gale from the Eastward. All hands were saved and brought on to St. John's. We are not as yet in possession of the full particulars of the case but we understand all the supplies were lost.

On the 19th inst the Laodamia; Mc Isaac Master, cleared by Messrs Penney Bros, for Sydney, and on the 23rd inst. the Frances Wolfe master, for Baddeck by Messrs Duff & Balmer, both vessels in ballast. The Laodamia sailed Monday morning.

We are glad to note that our Police have been exerting themselves during the last few days in clearing our streets of pigs and goats. And as a proper pound has been built for pigs running at large, we hope to see no more of the nuisance along our highways. Well done Sergeant keep them at it, and we shall not fail to notice the praiseworthy movements of you and your invincibles.

(From Tuesday's Newfoundlander)

An arrival from the Northward on Saturday reported heavy ice in that quarter. There were some 400 vessels near Twillingate bound to Labrador, and it may be hoped the west-winds of the last two days have helped to free them from the obstruction to their passage down.

The fishery news of the last two or three days is generally favourable, while previously we could hardly report anything doing. The accounts from the northward up to Saturday were most discouraging; but on that day we learned by telegram of good fishing in Bonavista, Trinity, and Conception Bays. Similar news was received of the work doing from Burgeo as far as Bonne Bay; Trepassy also is well reported, and they appear to be faring not badly at the harbors of the Southern Shore. About St. John's and neighbour there have been very fair catches within this week. Of course we do not speculate on these data as to what the future of the season may be; but as far as they go they are satisfactory.

A fishing punt upset at Bonavista on Sunday last and two men were drowned. Their names are not yet sent on. We notice with great regret the announcement of the death of the Hon. Robt. Kent, which took place at his country residence, Kilbride, on last Friday morning. His health had long been visibly failing; and though it was not weaker than usual a few hours before death, the symptoms of the approaching end have been for some time manifest. Mr. Kent was in his 63rd year. He was the younger brother of the late Hon. John Kent of this place, and of Mr. James Kent, who died recently in Waterford. He held for many years the positions of member of our Legislative Council and member of the Board of Works, to the duties of which he gave assiduous attention while he had strength enough to enable him to take part in public affairs.—R. I. P.

The pulpit of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and that of Queen's Road Congregational Chapel were occupied yesterday by Methodist Ministers. The Rev. Mr. Macneil, pastor of the former church, has not yet returned from Montreal, and Rev. Mr. Hall, of the latter, left by the Nova Scotian on Wednesday last on a six-weeks visit to Toronto. We are informed that arrangements have been made to supply these pulpits regularly during the absence of the pastors.

The Stolen Interview
OR, HOW WILL IT END.

Mine host of the Blue Boar Inn, Westmorton, stood at his doorway surveying with lazy pleasure the prospect afforded by the village street, with its groups of rosy-cheeked white-headed urchins playing at "hop scotch knock-le-under," and other unaristocratic but highly interesting games. It was a lovely evening in October, and the worthy landlord had indulged in his after-dinner nap, and was now enjoying his pipe preparatory to going in to tea. He was a portly man, who looked as though the world had wagged easily with him, and whose appearance certainly spoke well for the cheer to be obtained at the Blue Boar.

Retired as the village of Westmorton was, the inn had a good number of visitors; for there was excellent fishing in the neighbourhood, and ardent lovers of the sport often came to the spot, and not unfrequently stayed for some time, charmed with the quantity of the finny prey, and the comfortable quarters they founk at Josiah Goodman's hostelry.

One of these disciples of Isaak Walton was at the present time staying at the inn; he had arrived the night before and had departed with his rod and basket directly after breakfast, leaving word that he should not be back till evening. As the worthy Josiah stood gazing down the street, he saw his guest advancing towards the house, and went forward to meet him, with the double inquiry of 'what sport he had had, and what he would have for dinner.'

"Oht as for sport," the fish were rather shy; I must hope to do better to-morrow. For dinner, anything you happen to have ready will do; and, while they are putting it on the table, I will follow your example and lite my pipe."

When the pipe was lighted, the stranger lolled against the doorpost opposite the landlord, and, like him, gazed vacantly into the street. He was a tall man, with a dark face, almost swarthy complexion, and nearly covered on the lower part with the large moustache and beard which he wore. The most noticeable feature in his face, however, seemed his eyes, which were bright and keen, but with a restless, uneasy expression in them, as though they were always looking out for something or somebody. He had a habit, too, of starting and looking round, which was far from pleasant, suggesting as it did the idea that he heard or saw something invisible to other eyes, and inaudible to other ears.

While the two men were standing at the door, the clatter of horses' hoofs sounded through the quiet village and at the end of the street there appeared on horseback the figures of a lady and gentleman, followed by a groom. As they dashed by, the landlord made a low bow, which was returned with a kindly nod from the two foremost riders. As soon as they had passed, Josiah turned round to his guest, and saw that he was gazing earnestly after the retreating figures.

"Ah, sir," said he, "I don't wonder you look after them, for I'll be bound you won't a handsomer couple between here and London town."

A strange smile was on the visitor's face as he replied, "They appear to merit your admiration certainly. Pray, who are they?"

"Who are they?" echoed Mr. Goodman, in a tone of surprise, as though he thought his guest ought to be known such grand persons at once by some intuitive perception; "why, who should they be but young Squire Rivingdale and his wife? She's a regular beauty, she is; I don't believe Queen Victoria herself beats her in good looks, and then she always has a kind word for all the poor folks round. They worship her about here; and as to the young squire he doats on the very ground she walks on."

"Dear me, she's quite a paragon!" exclaimed Josiah's auditor, with a slight sneer.

"Indeed, sir, it's truth," said the landlord, rather indignantly; "my wife's niece is Mrs. Rivingdale's own maid, and she says everybody both high and low, seems to love her mistress, and no one more than her husband. But I dare say your dinner's ready now, sir; I'll just go in and see."

When the landlord had gone the stranger descended the steps, and, clasping his hands behind him, began to pace up and down the space in front of the house, with a thoughtful expression on his face.

"Rich, and with a dotting husband, he mattered; 'come, that ought to be worth something to me. Anyway I'll try it on. I wonder if Nell will be glad to see her—'

"Please, sir, your dinner is ready," exclaimed the voice of the rosy-cheeked waiting-maid, breaking in upon his muttered soliloquy. The stranger entered the house and sat down to dinner, but he soon finished his meal, and then asked for pen, ink, and paper. He wrote a few lines, sealed the note, and saluted forth with it in his pocket. When he got down the village street he called a shock-headed urchin from a group at play, and asked him, abruptly, but in a low tone, if he would like to earn a shilling.

"Ah, shouldn't I, that's all!" said the boy, with visions of marble and peg tops floating before his dazzled eyes at the mere mention of such a treasure.

"Then I will give you a bright new one if you will carry this note for me safely, and bring me the answer back," said the gentleman, giving him the paper. "But you are to tell no one where you have been. Do you hear?"

He then looked round carefully to see that no one was by, and, whispering in the boy's ear the direction to which he was to take, he bade him be off and not loiter on the road. The other boys wondered what made Bobbie Jones desert his game of marbles, but wisely considering that they were not bound to follow his example, they soon resumed their play.

As the squire and his wife rode up the avenue of Rivingdale Park, the village clocks were striking the hour five. When they reached the house the gentleman dismounted, and throwing his reins to the groom hastened to assist his wife from her horse. As he did so, he gazed admiringly at the bright face to which the exercises had given an extra glow.

"Well, Nellie," he exclaimed, "if the roses have left off blooming in the garden, they have only transplanted themselves into your cheeks. You have such a colour, my darling!"

"Now, Hugh, my dear old goose, don't talk nonsense; but, like a sensible cavalier, help your lady to alight," said Mrs. Rivingdale, with a laugh.
