"I never was rebuffed in so pleasant a way as on my last journey," said Joblots, the commercial traveller, lately. "I was just about to enter an office when I saw a staircase with a sign, 'This way for commercial travellers.' I supposed the stairs led to the counting-house, so I went up and found myself in a long hall, with walls where pointing boards directed the way. I passed through the hall and came to a staircase leading down as another board pointed. I descended, and, opening the door at lowest step, found I was in the street again!"
Mrs. Thos. Tracy, Byndale, Ontario, writes: "We have used Dr. Lee's Pleasant Worm Sprub and find it to be better than any other remedy. It is easy for the children to take and more effectual."

A French lady is showing a visitor the family portraits in the picture gallery. "That officer there in the uniform," she says, "was my great-grandfather. He was as brave as a lion, but one of the most unfortunate of men; he never fought in a battle in which he did not have an arm or a leg carried away." Then she adds proudly: "He took part in twenty-four engagements."

Minard's Liniment cures Burns, etc.
Don't suffer from Rheumatism this winter. Milburn's Rheumatic Pills eliminate every atom of the uric acid poison from the system and give complete relief from pain and suffering.

Friend.—You've never been called in consultation, have you?
Young Doctor.—No; but I'd like to be. It's nice to charge ten times as much as the other doctor for saying that you don't know any more about the case than he does.

Minard's Liniment cures Distemper.

Gentlemen.—While driving down a very steep hill last August my horse stumbled and fell, cutting himself fearfully about the head and body. I used MINARD'S LINIMENT freely on him and in a few days he was as well as ever.

"That'll be a powerful machine," said a native of the North of Scotland to a motorist the other day.
"Yes, it's a splendid car," replied the owner, proudly.
"I suppose a car like that will be nearly a hundred horse-power?" suggested the countryman.
"No, no," laughingly replied the motorist, "it is only ten horse; a hundred horse-power car would be much larger."
"I wasn't guessing by six," explained the Highlander, "I was going by the smell of it."

Hagyard's Yellow Oil is a healing, soothing, balm preparation, that cures pain, allays inflammation and reduces swelling. A perfect medicine chest. Price 25c.

The editor of a Western paper recently apologized to his readers for the lack of news somewhat after the following fashion: "We expected to have both a death and a marriage to announce this week; but a violent storm prevented the wedding, and the doctor himself having been taken ill his patient recovered, and we were accordingly cheated out of both."

Distress After Eating
Mrs P. Waters, Dirlton, Ont., writes: "I suffered for five years with pain in the stomach and distress after eating. Doctors failed to cure me, so I tried Lax-Liver Pills and three bottles of them made a complete cure."

"Ab, darling!" he exclaimed, "as we sit together under the spreading branches of this noble tree, I do declare on my honor that you are the only girl I have ever loved."
And just a suspicion of a smile crossed the dear thing's feature as she replied: "You always say such appropriate things, John; this is a chestnut tree."

Keep Minard's Liniment in the House.
Boarder.—I found something in my bedroom last night, madam, and—
Landlady (indignantly).—There's no such a thing in the house. You must have brought it with you.
Boarder (coolly).—I was going to say, madam, that I found a dollar in my bedroom last night, and I won't dispute your word as to my having brought it with me, so I'll keep it.

Hard Work the Secret of Success.

The young man who receives from kind and loving parents the opportunity of a high school or college education is more favored than perhaps he knows or appreciates. Education is a splendid weapon wherewith to fight the battle of life, and he who possesses it has an immense advantage over his less favored fellows who have to face the world, as it were, unarm-ed.

Yet the boy who has had few or no opportunities for schooling need not be discouraged. Every community can show men who have wrested success from life under the most discouraging circumstances. The college-bred youth has not the whole field to himself, by any means. In every walk of life, and in every profession, men have succeeded whose early education was obtained not in any school or academy save the school of hard work and the academy of the world.

The late Wilson Barrett, the eminent English actor, playwright, and manager, is an example of one who rose to a foremost place in his chosen profession despite the handicap of a youth which knew little or no schooling. His death the other day makes his example apropos. At the age of thirteen we find him hard at work in the office of a wholesale corn merchant, who paid the lad six shillings a week. Out of this sum his parents allowed him two shillings and sixpence, with which he was expected to clothe and feed himself. He had only a bed and supper at home. His hours of labor were from seven in the morning until ten or eleven at night, with a half-hour's rest for breakfast and another half-hour for lunch—the larger portion of which time he employed in reading whatever he could lay hands upon, especially anything about plays or the stage. Every cent that he could spare from his tiny weekly stipend, or could gain in any extra way, he spent on books. His duties at the corn merchant's were numerous and varied. He would carry money to the bank on foot and convey grain to a purchaser with a horse and cart, and more than once, when about fourteen, he actually lugged sacks of corn or flour for certain distances, the sacks often weighing two and a half hundred weight. About this time, when he used to have to go to the wharves for flour, the men, seeing him do men's work, put hindrances in his way, drove their teams into him, and jeered at him. But he did not mind them. He kept on at his toil in all weathers, although sometimes so thinly clad that he had his hands frozen.

When young Barrett was fourteen he begged his master to let him leave work at eight o'clock for one evening in each week in order that he might attend evening school at a charge of twopence. This request the merchant granted to him for about six weeks, but at the end of that time, finding that the boy was too much missed, he withdrew the permission. And this was the extent of the schooling of Wilson Barrett. Despite all this, however, he made a name and a place for himself in the world. And it is pleasing to record that in a profession beset with unusual dangers and temptations his name was never associated with any scandal such as darkens the fame of so many actors.

Wilson Barrett's case is only one of many. We cite it here not to inspire all our young men to be actors, but simply to show how persistent and patient effort will succeed no matter how unfavorable and unfriendly the conditions of a boy's early years may be.—Sacred Heart Review.

An Archbishop on Labor.

The Archbishop of Montreal issued an address to Catholic workmen a few weeks before Labor Day, inviting them to attend in a body at the Church of Notre Dame on the eve of Labor Day to take part in a special service for workmen. On the occasion of issuing the invitation the Archbishop referred to the view the Catholic Church has always taken of the labor question. It is hardly necessary to say that that view differs radically from the one entertained by those who view the wage-worker as a machine out of which as much work as possible is to be obtained at the least possible cost in money.

To-day the battle between capital and labor is fought to determine whether or not the machine view in regard to workmen shall prevail. What else is the meaning of the struggle of organized labor against long hours and low wages?

It is too often the case that capitalists, with their eyes fixed upon profits, wholly lose sight of the fact that a workman in virtue of his being a man is endowed with inalienable rights, which take precedence even of dollars and cents. Hence, the grinding process which would have scarcely any limits if it were not for the existence of labor unions, which of necessity have to employ pressure to overcome pressure.

But settlements of labor difficulties reached by such means cannot be permanent. At most they can only bring about an armed peace, which, at any moment, may be succeeded by open warfare. There can be no permanent settlements that do not rest on a basis of justice. The Catholic Church recognizing this, has ever endeavored to impress upon employer as well as employee the conviction that in their mutual relations they have duties to perform which are binding upon both. These duties are not subject to union laws, nor to arbitrary rules laid down by capital. The Church, speaking in the Name of her Divine Founder, has defined them.

The Archbishop of Montreal, in his address to workmen, referring to these duties, says: "As workmen you have duties to perform. The Church, through her August Head, has called your attention to them on solemn occasions and she has reasserted them when occasion demanded it. But you have also rights. Who has defined them and proclaimed them more clearly and more sincerely than the Papacy? The Church condemns labor that is too hard and too prolonged, which would be detrimental to health. She insists that you shall be treated and respected as persons endowed with intelligence and freedom should be treated. She demands that you shall have equitable wages proportioned to your work and, as far as possible, suitable for the needs of your family." In making use of this language, the Archbishop of Montreal does not give expression to his personal views only. He voices the sentiment of the Catholic Church, which, in all ages, has been a valiant champion of labor.—N. Y. Freeman's Journal.

Europe. During the siege of the city in the Franco-German War these valuable works of art were lifted out of their sockets and carefully placed away in the crypt of the church, for fear that they should receive any injury. When they next saw the light the German flag floated from the tower of St. Mary Magdalene. The windows were placed once again in position, and remained undisturbed until they were consumed by the recent disastrous fire, which burnt away the building, but left the old tower standing. The city authorities have ordered it to be pulled down, for fear that it might collapse. The removal of the tower will mark the entire disappearance of the old church, the only one left standing through many a shower of shot and shell, only to fall an easy victim to an outbreak of fire in the piping times of peace.

Catholics in England, says the London "Catholic Times," often wonder why men like M. Combes and his followers are so eager to secure a system of purely secular education for France. Their wonder may be dispelled by the testimony of M. Dequaire, a school inspector, who, writing to a newspaper, puts quite frankly the true object which those who demand lay schools have in view. It is not, he says, to teach children to read, write and cast accounts; that is a superficial conclusion. The true insight into the purpose of the secularists will show that they believe they will find, at a very early period, the best weapon against Catholicism in the lay schools, the aim of which is to train up a generation of free-thinkers. They have no intention whatever of observing a benevolent neutrality in matters of religion. Their one hope is to find in the lay school a mould wherein a child born a Christian can be thrown, to emerge a renegade to the faith of his baptism. We are quite sure M. Dequaire is right. Unless men had such an end in view they would never work with unceasing ferocity against a system of education which, while it brings up good citizens, brings up good Catholics, too.

One Dominion liner has just landed in Canada forty French nuns, from Brittany.

Late exchanges announce the death of Very Rev. Father Le Rannet, S. M., of Sydney, New South Wales.

M. Combes' policy of persecuting religious seems to have increased the faith in France. Enormous multitudes are making pilgrimages to Lourdes.

At the opening of the present Parliamentary session the Peruvian Government brought in a bill for the separation of Church and State and the confiscation of ecclesiastical property.

The Holy Synod, to which Pius X. sent his blessing, has elected in a session at Constantinople Mgr. Paolo Sabaghian, Bishop of Egypt, as Patriarch of the Armenian Catholics.

In order to avoid any further unpleasantness with the French Government, it is likely that Mgr. le Nordez, Bishop of Dijon, will not return to France. An important canonry will be given him at Rome.

According to official statistics the Catholic population of India is twenty-two per cent, of the whole European and Barasian population of the United Provinces of India, as shown by the census of 1901. Yet forty per cent of their children were being educated in Catholic schools. Which surely in itself speaks most eloquently for the zeal and efficiency of the missionary system of education.

The son of Namasacrus, known as the Emperor of Pampa, has arrived in Rome, where he will pursue his studies for the priesthood in the College of Propaganda Fide. His father, one of the most warlike of the Indian chiefs, was overcome in the battle of 1879, fought under command of General Rozas. His tribe was completely routed, and he himself saved by flight. Later a pardon was granted and a certain amount of territory, over which he presides peacefully.

The Church of St. Mary Magdalene at Strasbourg, which was destroyed by fire the other day, is said to have contained some of the finest stained glass windows in Europe. A munificent benefactor of the church and her institution died in St. Louis, Aug. 27, in the person of the late Francis Fisher says the Sacred Heart Review. Mr. Fisher was a prominent business man forty years ago and amassed a handsome fortune. Feeling that he had done enough, he retired from business in the eighties and since then has devoted himself entirely to works of religion and beneficence. There is not an asylum or hospital or home of the poor that has not counted him among its most generous contributors. Some years ago he determined to renew and repair the old Cathedral. He put in new furniture throughout; new marble altars, new pews and new organ. The interior of the building he renovated completely, making it appear as fresh as when it was consecrated. "No one knows how much money Mr. Fisher spent on the Cathedral," says the Western Watchman, "but it must have amounted to a good-sized fortune."

Outaway (briefly).—Oash.

The unseating of C. N. Smith, Grit M. P. P., at Sault, Ste. Marie, reduces Mr. Ross's majority to one. Perhaps before all the trials are over he shall be in a majority of two or three. The evidence of wholesale peroration and bribery brought out in this election is something most shocking. Yet this is the way Premier Ross and other Grit "purists" have managed on to hold power in Ontario, despite the will of the people.

Mr. R. L. Borden, Opposition Leader, is now in the midst of his Ontario tour, and everywhere the Conservative Leader is tendered a grand reception and his meetings are attended by overflowing throngs of people. Mr. Borden always improves an acquaintance, and wherever he has appeared once he is sure of an ovation on a second visit. This tour will be of incalculable good for his party.

So far as known to the public there is apparently as much uncertainty about the Federal elections as there was two months ago. A week ago there seemed to be elections in the air; but now the intelligence from Ottawa contain nothing that can be said to indicate an appeal to the people. Possibly the revelations from the Ontario election courts, as well as from the Yukon, may have staggered even the Government, and a little time may be required for them to get their breath and to inaugurate some new scheme by means of which the free will of the electorate may be thwarted. An honest appeal to the free and untrammelled electorate is something of which our Liberal friends have an abhorrence.

To the Canadian Electors.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

The greatest question in the next general election will be that of ownership by the people of the new Transcontinental Railway. It is the greatest question because the Conservative leader has given notice in Parliament that if the electors return the Conservatives to power the people shall own the railway that is to be paid for by the country.

It is not a question whether the Government shall spend millions in constructing or acquiring railways.

It is the question whether the Government, being already committed to the expenditure of about a hundred and seventy millions of dollars of public money, in building a railway shall own the line or give it away.

If the people of Canada pay for the Transcontinental Railway they should own it. The people through their representatives will then

Control the routing of traffic;
Control the passenger rates;
Control the freight rates.

No Government would dare to route the traffic to American ports; but the Liberal Government gives the Grand Trunk Pacific the right to route as they please and to charge as they please.

The Grand Trunk people will route the traffic to suit their own interests. It is to their interest to route the traffic to Portland.

"Shall we have a Government-owned railway or a railway-owned Government?"

THE QUESTION OF COST.

The Grand Trunk Pacific constructed at a cost of $170,000,000 to the tax-payers of Canada means that each county on an average will be taxed and mortgaged to pay it.

Prince Edward Island's share of this mortgage is $3,252,984.

There are three [3] counties in Prince Edward Island; so the average mortgage on each county will be $1,084,328.

And, besides,

The Liberal Government is assuming for the people of Canada nine-tenths of the cost of this tremendous undertaking, while the promoters to whom the road will be turned over, practically as a gift, only assume a liability of one-tenth of this amount.

The people pay $170,000,000. The promoters pay $17,000,000. Mr Borden says:

"Let the people who pay for the road own the road and operate it for the people, or lease it." Mr Borden further says:

"Shall it be a railway owned by the Government or a Government owned by the railway?" What do the people say?

Their answer at the polls will be to the people of Canada, as was the signing of the Magna Charta, to the people of Great Britain.

Ross Government Kept in Power by Wholesale Bribery and Peroration.

A Carnival of Corruption.

C. N. Smith an M. P. P., one of the Liberal supporters of Premier Ross in the Ontario Legislature, has been unseated for bribery and corruption. The trial was commenced at Sault Ste. Marie, on the 13th inst., before Chancellor Boyd and Mr. Justice Teetzel. The revelations of audacious and flagrant electoral corruption were most sensational. The evidence showed among other things that wholesale peroration had been employed at several polls.

After spending an hour and a half on the first day in reading evidence from the candidate himself, Mr. DuVernet Counsel for petitioner proceeded to take up the charges in connection with the notorious trip of the steamer Minnie M. to Michipicoten Harbor at the time of the by-election.

Nicholas Cote, the purser of the Minnie M. at the time of said trip, was the first witness. The steamer, he said, belonged to the Algoma Central Steamship Company, and was under the jurisdiction of M. Coyne, manager of the Consolidated Lake Superior Company. On the Saturday before the election day (Tuesday) he took on provisions as usual, being told by Capt. Barr, superintendent of the line, that there would be 100 passengers to be left at a point to be subsequently named. At 2 o'clock next morning he was awakened by Mr. Coyne, accompanied by a Mr. Ferguson, who asked for statements, as they intended taking a trip. Mr. Ferguson then went ashore. In the morning the steamer went over to the "Michigan Soo," where Mr. Coyne pointed out some six or seven half barrels of beer, a 10 gallon jug of whisky, a case of cigars, and ordered them put on board. Mr. Coyne told witness to look to Mr. Ferguson for further instructions. A man named P. J. Galvin, an employment agent, also boarded her. Then, proceeding up the American lock a considerable distance to an "unusual landing place," the steamer took on some 20 passengers, who looked like lumbermen. The whole proceeding was irregular. The steamer headed for Michipicoten, the passengers during the voyage making merry with song and dance and freely flowing liquor.

WAD OF $100 BILLS.

On the way Mr. Ferguson handed over to the purser for safe keeping a roll of bills two inches thick, with the bottom bill $100. Ferguson also announced that there was change of plans due to the letter of warning handed to the attorney general at the liberal meeting of Saturday night. Owing to stress of weather, they put in at Bachawana, where Ferguson interviewed the deputy returning officer, McCauley, and asked as to the number of voters on the list there. The sheriff said there were twenty-two on the list, but only some seven were there at present. Ferguson replied that it would be worth two suits of clothes, or $50 in cash, to the deputy returning officer if the whole list could be voted. The deputy returning officer said he feared the conservatives' scrutineer would knock the scheme on the head, and shortly after a boat with the said conservative scrutineer appeared, and the Minnie M. left inconspicuously for Michipicoten Harbor. On arrival at Michipicoten Harbor election morning, said the witness, they were met by Mr. Hopkins, conductor on the Algoma Central, who produced a letter from Supt. Kennedy of the railway company, stating that the party was to be taken to Helen Mine. The men boarded a train waiting, and made the run to the mine at once. On arrival there, they proved to be perfect strangers to the place. "This is where you vote," was the information vouchsafed in reply to a query from one of them.

What the New Coats are.

The new coats may be said to arrange themselves in three separate classes. First the coats from twenty-four to twenty seven inches in length, which are rarely dressy coats, but may be worn on all occasions, except with one's very best frocks. They are made of the plainer, more substantial materials, such as the fine-twilled meltons, the smooth kerseys and the covert cloths, and are cut with fitted but not necessarily plain seamed backs; the fronts are semi fitting, though not quite so loose as the semi-fitting coats of last year were; they are broad on the shoulders and the sleeves are put in to accentuate the broad shoulders effect. Stitching buttons and bands, are the only trimmings used upon them. The second is the long three-quarter coat, with the length graded according to the height of the wearer; this model is developed in the Scotch and rough-faced goods and in the smaller checked and double faced materials; sometimes it is loose in cut, and occasionally plaited. Coats made after this second model are invariably double breasted and have wide, loose, bell-shaped sleeves plaited into the armholes. The third coat is our old friend short coat, which this year is quite as much worn as ever.

We wish to remark that this stock will not be beaten either in quantity or quality of garments or lowness of price

CARDS TO IDENTIFY THEMSELVES.

Under Ferguson's and Galvin's directions, the passengers were schooled as to their respective names, and given cards to "identify" themselves. They were instructed to say they had been at the mine about three years. After they had voted, the men were entrained again for Michipicoten, where a similar process was gone through. All voted except three, one of whom, according to Ferguson, was "too well known, and too loud-mouthed." One man declined to vote, and the third omission was a boy. Further questioning elicited the fact that the passengers did not seem to know the purpose of their trip when they embarked. They were "instructed" en route. On the outward trip, said the witness, Ferguson had remarked to him: "This trip is costing the Ross government a bunch of money. It will cost more than it did Morrison down in Muskoka." This mysterious Ferguson, who was described by witness as a short, stocky clean-shaven man, also told his assistants that if they did have to take an oath at the polling booths, it would not count, because the Bible would be a false one, only the cover looking orthodox, while the leaves would be false. On the return trip from Michipicoten witness returned to Ferguson his roll of money. The latter then told Galvin he would square up accounts with him "for services rendered." No official report of the trip was made after the return to the "Soe." Chancellor Boyd—And was all this done in the conservative or in the liberal interests? TOLD TO VOTE FOR SMITH.

Witness—it was done in the liberal interests. The men were repeatedly told to vote for Smith, and make no mistakes.

DECKHAND CORROBORATES TESTIMONY.

Max Bieman, a deckhand on the Minnie M. at the time of the trip, was the first witness called after luncheon. He corroborated Mr. Cole's evidence with regard to the embarkation of the liquor and the lumberjacks at an un-expected landing place on the American side. The men on the way up were very "happy" and there was a standing invitation to attend at the beer kegs.

Witness told of the landing at Michipicoten Harbor and Sachawans Bay as told by Mr. Cole, and after the return to the Michigan "Soe" were discharged at a saloon. One of the passengers, he said, was named Patrick, who kept a saloon at the American "Soe." There were about 20 of the lumberjacks taken on board.

Mr. DuVermet, before calling the next witness, called the court's attention to the fact that a number of witnesses who were present during the morning were being spirited away across to the American side.

Chancellor Boyd—if you can show any instance of such being done the court will act promptly. It is clearly contempt of court. The next witness, George E. Richardson, steward of the Minnie M., told of receiving general instructions for the trip from Capt. Barr. The liquor taken on board on the American side was consigned to witness' care by William Coyne. The lumberjacks, numbering some 20 or 25, were taken on board at Algonquin, a landing place some four miles west of the Union dock at the American "Soe," where the liquor was put on. The men appeared to be in charge of Galvin, the employment agent. No tickets or any pay for meals, drinks or cigars were collected. No liquor was given to the men on election day at Michipicoten Harbor until night time. Some of the whisky and some of the beer was brought back to the "Soe." On instructions from Galvin he had left the beer on tap for the men to drink whenever they wished during the trip. Ferguson himself did not imbibe.

CHANCELLOR'S JUDGEMENT.

Mr. Watson continued his argument after luncheon. He maintained that sub-agents appointed by Sutherland were not therefore necessary agents for Smith.

Chancellor Boyd—"Sutherland came into the riding to take full charge of the organization work and sub-agents such as Kennedy (alias Ferguson) appointed by him must be held responsible as being regularly appointed agents of the candidates."

Mr. DuVermet, replying, elaborated in some detail the intimate connections between Sutherland, Coyne, Ferguson and Galvin as shown over and over again in the evidence. The links were complete from the arrival of Sutherland from Liberal headquarters in Toronto down to the interviews between Coyne, Sutherland and Ferguson on the early Sunday morning previous to the departure of the Minnie M. followed as it was by the actual carrying out of the reformers' scheme of persuasion under the direction of Galvin and Ferguson. The disgraceful violation of the Election act has been proved up to the hilt. And when we trace it back it goes straight to Sutherland, the duly accredited general in charge of campaign," concluded Mr. DuVermet. "The respondent in defence has virtually admitted the charge so far as he is concerned. We must not introduce American methods of the worst character into our own country and I submit that your lordship should make it known that no such practices will be tolerated here." Chancellor Boyd in delivering judgment declared that he and his learned brother were agreed as to the conclusions to be drawn from the evidence. The evidence all pointed in one direction. The only point at issue seemed to be as to whether or not agency had been sufficiently established.

COLE WAS ENDORSED.

"Starting with the evidence," continued the chancellor, "the salient points of the story told by Purser Cole were fully corroborated by Filmon, the young man who went with the party." That story as sketched by the chancellor included the start from the Canadian Soo on Sunday a. m.; the taking on of liquor, cigars, etc., and afterwards the loading at Algonquin of the "cargo of living beings, chiefly roughs." Then came the call at Sachawans Bay, where the unique spectacle was witnessed of a deputy returning officer consulting as to the personing of voters in the list at his poll. From there they went to Michipicoten Harbor and to Helen Mine at both of which places they voted. They were all given free transportation, free food, free liquor throughout. They were schooled and drilled as to the business of personation and of the actual consummation of that personation the court had not the slightest doubt. There were no other men at these places who could have given the votes that were cast. There was thus a cluster of offences against the election law—free transportation to voters, payment of expenses, free drinks, free board, and personation, in all of which Kennedy, alias Ferguson, was the chief agent, assisted by Galvin, the keeper of a saloon at the American Soo. It was also shown that Coyne had ordered the party to be carried free of charge, that

Kennedy had settled up with Galvin on the return trip, who afterwards paid off his men at $2 a piece, probably making considerable on the transaction himself. "Evidently," said his lordship, "there was plenty of liquor and plenty of money floating around."

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

"Who is responsible for all this?" asked the chancellor. "First Kennedy, but Sutherland had appointed him and he must therefore be considered as an agent of the respondent."

Continuing, his lordship pointed out that starting with the reading of the famous letter of warning at the Liberal meeting on the Saturday night before election the candidate himself was at that meeting and though he might have treated the letter as a joke, what was predicted actually did happen with the exception that only some 20 men were taken on the trip instead of 100 as originally contemplated. However, if the candidate did not take much notice of the letter those working in his interests did. Mr. Ferguson and Sutherland, the latter the general in command of the campaign, paid a midnight visit to Coyne's house where Sutherland and Coyne held a private conference. Thus the two chief persons concerned in the carrying out of the scheme—Sutherland who commanded the agents of the candidate, and Coyne, who was in charge of transportation—were holding an emergency council of war. Plans were changed and the plain inference, of course, was that they were changed at this interview. Mr. Ferguson was despatched to Sutherland on board the Minnie M. and bring him to meet Sutherland at the Cornwall hotel. Another conference followed between these two and evidently the change in the plan was communicated to Kennedy. Then in the morning Coyne tells the steamboat officers that they were to take instructions from Kennedy. The conclusion from such a train of events was obvious. Agency was shown between Sutherland and Coyne and Kennedy. Mr. Smith, who had been warned of what would happen could not be allowed to share the benefits of the transaction without also running the risk of suffering the penalty involved. "We shall give out our finding as to the particular acts of wrong-doing proven after we have had a further opportunity to confer about them," concluded the chancellor, and sentence will be meted out upon Sutherland, Coyne, Kennedy et al.

LOCAL AND OTHER ITEMS.

Eighty-five thousand five hundred people attended the Exhibition at Halifax. That was four thousand less than attended last year's Exhibition.

The Newfoundland legislature has been dissolved. A general election for a new parliament will occur October 31, with three parties in the field, the government party headed by Premier Bond, being opposed by two organizations, one headed by ex-Premier Whiteaway and the other by ex-Premier Goodridge.

James Maclellan, the Queen of Scottish Song, was greeted with a splendid audience in the Market Hall, on Thursday the 15th, inst. Her rendition and interpretation of Scottish songs leave nothing to be desired. The compass and training of her voice are marvellous. After each appearance she was obliged to respond again and again to encores. She is accompanied on her tour by Mr. Robert Buchanan, pianist, Mr. Douglas Young, tenor, and Mr. John McLinden Cellist. They constitute an admirable quartette. Mr. Douglas Young has an exceptionally good tenor voice, and his rendering of his numbers elicited most generous and well merited approbation.

The new market building was formally opened and handed over to the citizens on Wednesday evening of last week. The inaugural ceremonies attracted an immense audience to the magnificent new market hall. Worth's Band was in attendance and discoursed sweet music, at the opening and close of the meeting. Appropriate addresses were delivered by his Worship, Mayor Kelly, Premier Peck, Recorder Harnard, ex-Mayor Warburton, Hon. George E. Hughes, Nelson Rattenbury, President of the Board of Trade, and John P. Tanton Esq. Miss Hazel Bremner and Messrs. Frank J. Stanley and Charles Bell rendered some excellent vocal music. Their solos were enthusiastically encored. After the formal ceremonies, the Mayor, the Recorder, Councilors, ex-Councilors, the health officer, the City Clerk, the Band and several other gentlemen partook of coffee and sandwiches. Toasts were proposed and responded to, and a very pleasant social hour was spent.

As will be seen by reference to our obituary column, Hon. Benjamin Davies, one of our oldest citizens has passed away at the age of ninety-one. Deceased was born in Charlottetown in 1813, and was the son of Nathan Davies who came here from Wales. He went into business in his native city, and for many years conducted a general merchandise establishment. At the same time he built vessels at Orwell and Reddy Bay. He was elected to the Legislature from the Belfast district in 1850, and joined Coles and Whelan. He was defeated in 1855, but was again elected in 1867 and continued in the Legislature till 1876. He had been in the Executive for a time and held the offices of Colonial Secretary and Postmaster General at one time or another. He was subsequently Paymaster on the P. E. E. Railway till about 15 years ago. He was three times married; first to Miss Watson St. Andrew's, N. NEW FALL JACKETS FOR LADIES AND CHILDREN.

Where the highest brains and nimblest fingers have been at work comes our NEW FALL JACKETS FOR LADIES AND CHILDREN. We haven't been saying very much about them up to the present, because we had so many nice new things to tell you of, in this small space, that we couldn't find room, but if we haven't their hearts—or their tongues—have been doing it for us, so that it is now a pretty well known fact that, for quality, style, fit and price ours take the palm. We could take two ciphers and put any figure from one to nine before them to convey the number of Jackets in stock, but we do not mean to build up our Jacket trade at the expense of our veracity, but rather on our veracity itself. The simple fact remains; the Jackets are here, hundreds of them, and to any lady who can honestly say she has seen a prettier, more stylish or more moderate priced assortment in Charlottetown we will give a Jacket free—and we do not figure on having to bestow many either. We invite comparisons, as we know they will prove complimentary to our stock.

A radical change in styles is one of the features to be noted in the Jackets this season, and withal the styles are so varied that each individual taste can be gratified, and you can choose a loose, a semi-fitted or a fitted coat, and still be in accord with Dame Fashion. However, almost all kinds show shoulder capes of some design. We specify just a few:

- Nice Grey Frieze, velvet collar $ 5 50
- Grey Frieze, strapped with silk, semi-fitted, fancy cape 6 75
- Handsome Fawn Coat, fancy cape collar, self-starting, gilt buttons 11 25
