The Stage of Today

Throughout her history, the Catholic Church has denounced and waged war against all that is lew, vicious and corrupting in theatrical entertainment; and ever since those far-off times, when St. Gregory Nazianenns lifted up his mighty voice from the pulpit in denunciation of a theatre which competed in obscenity with the circus and the amphiteatre, the Church has been the patroness of all that is pure,

It is the wish of the Pope and of the Church that the Mass be sung in a simple devotional manner without senseless repetions, so that the people can follow with their prayerbooks, and, wherever possible, join in and sing. THE AFTER EFFECTS OF THE "FLU"

IT MAY BE SERIOUS TO-MORROW

May Develop Into Branchitis, Pneumonia and perhaps Consumption.

Miss 'Mary Trouse, R.R. No. 1, Cedardale, Ont., writes—"I had the Influenza in November last, and it left me with a terrible cough. I did not attend to it until it got so severe people warned me it was time to see about it. I went to the doctor and got some medicine. He told me it was a bad attack of bronchitis. I could not sleep, and would have to sit up nearly all night, it was so difficult for me to get my breath. The doctor's medicine did not seem to be helping me the least bit. One of our neighbors came in one day, and told me about Dr. Wood's Norway and told me about Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I tried it and took two bottles. No person could believe how it helped me. I have recommended it to different people since, for I believe I have reasons for doing so.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has been on the market for the past 30 years, and stands out by itself as a remedy for all coughs and colds.

"My uncle lived in London, and had never visited his brother since he had sinned against the eligious prejudices of an old amily by marrying a Papist. Much affected by my father's leath and the trust he had reposed in him, my uncle wrote to ny mother, asking permission to ome to see her for the purpose f making arrangements to carry out her husband's instructions as to placing his sons in a Protestant

"I remember vividly to this lay how my mother received hat letter, how she led prother and me to her little place of prayer, and there, before he lamp' with an arm round each of us, she offered us to God, calling on Him to save us. We were frightened and clung to her and wept.

" Rather take them to Thyself, God!" she prayed, 'as Thou lidst take their little sister. If Thou hast no good work alloted or them to do in this woald, take hem!' We both remembered he death of our little sister, and we wept the more when our nother brought her into her

"Meanwhile our uncle was ourneying toward us from Lonon, full of a benevolence which was to exercise itself by taking steps for the promotion of our future welfare in the world. Judging from my mother's letters, he knew that he would have lifficulties to encounter in the ischarge of his duty and, though enevolent he was prepared to e stern. His sister-in-law was loubtless a good woman, romantic und poetic as Catholics were vont to be; but it lay with him o exercise a firmness which would nake it impossible for her to lestroy the wordly prospects of her children.

"He mused much on the subect, as he travelled the whole of long winter's day up north; old ssociations revived, old affections tirred by the sight of once amiliar landscapes long unseen. Unlike my father, who was a ncere Protestant, my uncle had ittle or ne religious faith of any ind, and was known among his onden friends as a Positivist; nerefore, the removal of his rother's sons from the teaching their mother was to him othing more than a prudent arangement, securing them against nisfortune in this life. As the cottish hills came in sight, it occurred to him that such scenery vould naturally tend to encourage he fantasies of religious beliefs. ll of which seemed to him quite llusory-the Catholic only a little more so than the Protestant faith.
