FURTHER IMPORTANT SUCCESSES

LONDON, July 16. An official statement says that further important successes have been gained on the German second line. The British have captured the whole of Delville Wood. There was heavy fighting all day yesterday. The third line of the Germans was further penetrated at Bois de Faureux. Bassentin le Grand Wood was also captured and further advances made east of Orville.

BRITISH PROGRESS SATISFACTORY.

LONDON, July 16. Progress on the British front continues most satisfactorily, says Reuter's correspondent at the British headquarters in France. He added that it is reported that the British have captured the high wood, and are pushing on toward Pozieres and Marpench. Delville Wood was taken by South African troops. Detachments of dragon guards and the Decan Horse came into action. They charged the enemy positions, killing 15 and capturing 34. The operation was small, but it was the first time that cavalry was employed, as such, since the early stages of the war.

NOTHING OF IMPORTANCE.

LONDON, July 16. With the exception of heavy bombardment, there was no event of importance on the Somme battlefield since last report, says a British official this morning. Five heavy howitzers and four 77 millimetre guns were captured by the British yesterday. The British detachment which was straightening new positions in Fouroux Wood, was withdrawn this morning to the main line, the statement adds, without molestation from the Germans.

ADMISSION BY GERMANS.

BERLIN, July 16. Continuation of the British attack on German lines between Pozieres and Louveval, has resulted in their penetrating the Germans lines. The British have also occupied Trones Wood. Fighting is continuing.

GIVE AND TAKE.

PARIS, July 16. Under a blanket of fog last night the Germans in the region south of the Somme River hurled violent attacks against La Maisonette and the village of Blachese, recently captured by the French, and took those positions by surprise, says a French official statement issued this afternoon. The French, however, launched a counter-attack and recaptured both places. North of Chilly the Germans penetrated the first line trenches of the French, but were later ejected. Near Souchez, north of the River Aisne, the French stormed the German trenches.

GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED.

PARIS, July 16. A violent artillery duel continues in the Fleury sector, the War Office announced to-day. A German attack on a trench northeast of Avocourt, recently captured, was repulsed. The official statement says that German attempts to undertake attacks on Apremont forest were checked by curtain fire.

THREE GERMAN ATTEMPTS FAIL.

PETROGRAD, July 16. The Germans made a determined effort yesterday to force back the Russians in the region of Baronovichi, where heavy fighting has been in progress for some time. Three times the Germans launched attacks in massed formation. The War Office announced to-day that these attacks had been broken down, and that the Russians in making counter attacks had made further progress.

ITALY DENOUNCES AGREEMENT.

ROME, July 16. The agreement that has been in effect between Germany and Italy, providing for mutual respect by the two nations of the rights of each other's subjects, has been denounced by Italy owing to the hostile attitude of Germany, according to the Giornale d'Italia to-day. No convention now exists between the two nations, the newspaper declares.

ITALIANS MAKE CAPTURE.

ROME, July 16. Despite violent thunderstorms there was heavy fighting yesterday, between the Austro-Hungarians and Italians in Posina Valley, says an Italian statement issued to-day. The Italians made progress at several points, and captured the town of Vandi.

ANTI-MONARCHIAL OUTBREAK IS REPORTED.

NEW YORK, July 16. A News Agency despatch from London says: Rome newspapers report that a violent anti-monarchical outbreak has occurred at Athens. The populace set fire to the royal palace. English correspondents reported that a careless cigarette smoker caused the fire that destroyed the summer palace of the Greek King at La Toi Woods.

GERMAN ADMIRALTY ANNOUNCEMENT.

BERLIN, July 16. The Admiralty announced to-day that on July 11th a German submarine sank a British auxiliary cruiser and three patrol boats. On July 11th a submarine destroyed in the North

ITALIAN DESTROYER TORPEDOED

ROME, July 16. It is officially announced that the Italian destroyer Impetoso was torpedoed and sunk in the Lower Adriatic on July 10, by an enemy submarine. Most of the crew were saved.

BRITISH DENIES REPORT.

LONDON, July 16. Replying to the German Admiralty announcement of yesterday, that a 7,000 ton British auxiliary cruiser and three guardships had been sunk in the North Sea on July 11th by German submarines, the British Admiralty says there is no truth in the report of sinking an auxiliary cruiser, and the guardships were armed trawlers.

THE ALLIED CONFERENCE.

LONDON, July 16. Regarding the Allied Conference held in London, the following official statement was issued to-day: Reginald McKenna, and the Finance Ministers of France, Russia and Italy, held a series of conferences in London on Friday and Saturday in conjunction with the Ministers of Munitions of the United Kingdom and France, and General Bellet, Chief of the staff for Russia. They discussed the financial measures necessary to meet military and other requirements and several joint interests. McKinnon Wood, Financial Secretary of the Treasury, Lord Reading, Lord Chief Justice and the Governor of the Bank of England also attended.

LAURENCE GINNELL ARRESTED.

LONDON, July 16. Laurence Ginnell, Irish member of Parliament, who addressed many questions in the Commons to Ministers during the Irish rebellion, invariably alleging that his countrymen who had been arrested were mistreated, was himself arrested this morning. The charge is that he attempted by false pretenses to obtain admission to the detention barracks at Knutsford, where the Irish prisoners were being held.

STABBED TO DEATH.

TOKIO, July 16. Rev. A. W. Campbell and wife, Canadian missionaries, were stabbed to death early this morning in their summer cottage by a burglar.

CABLE FLASHES.

LONDON, July 16.—A Russian official says that their armies have overwhelmed the Turks on the Caucasus front. Much ammunition was captured. Belgians have repulsed attacks of the Huns. The official reports say that heavy batteries repulsed Germans.

An official says that financial arrangements have been arrived at amongst the Allied powers as a result of a conference, and that ways and means of shouldering the war expense, have been decided upon.

You're Wanted in France.

The news of the battle of late in the West. Have cheered all our hearts with a noble zest. "Our Boys" when the mandate was given to go. Arose, and dashed onward to grapple the foe; But many were wounded in that great advance. So that is the reason you're wanted in France.

You young men who loiters, when men are required. Who with the true spirit of grit isn't fired. You should be ashamed of your actions, I'm sure. You should think on your brothers and follow them o'er. To fight by their sides, when you're offered the chance, Arise men and go, for you're wanted in France.

The youth who won't go he lacks manhood and pride. For to stand in the breach where his countrymen die. To champion the cause both of Justice and Truth. The one who won't go is a cowardly youth. Where the cannons are roaring and bright gleams the lance, Won't you list to the summons, you're wanted in France.

No youth who have strength should be backward just now. When the Hun try to snatch the fair wreath from the brow. Of that fond loving Mother for whom our boys fight. Who ever and always have stood for the right; So come on you slackers, now here is the stamp window others bring at an angle of sixty-three degrees up against the letter boxes, while more had their backs up against the writing desk that is supposed to have been placed there for the convenience of any one who wants to write a letter, but is now turned into a stretch for those know-it-alls who criticize how the war is being run. The misass, as I said before, is a shy kind of creature except at a sale, and when she got over her first fright she asked me to buy a passage way through the crowd, intimating to me that she would follow in my wake. I tried to oblige her, but you can bet your bottom dollar it was little headway I made. Butt your way! Why the Ingraham in her youthful days would get jammed there, 'twould take the Walrus all her time to get through. 'Tis a pity, said the misass to me, to have all these men here lying up against hard board and iron heaters; why don't some one suggest that a couple of scores of stretchers be placed in the basement? 'Twould serve two purposes, said she, 'twould help to facilitate matters up here for those who want to see the stretchers, and give these poor tired creatures a soft place to rest their weary bones. The misass says we do things in this country on our own style, and she intimates us for it. For instance, in the States and Canada, she says, people would be compelled to line up, read the despatches, and then get out about their business. There are men in the Post Office since the war broke out and by the look of things they will be there after they are dead.

You may hear from me again if I feel like it.
Not Yours,
THOMAS D. FINNIGAN.

Thomas D. Finnegan and the Missus at the Post Office.

The misass and meself went into the Post Office the other night to read the news. 'Tis misass, you know, is the kind of woman that detests loitering in any shape whatever. And just as we entered sure our eyes stood motionless and he papers almost sightless, for everywhere were young men loitering around. Some half asleep on that board that stands out from the stamp window others bring at an angle of sixty-three degrees up against the letter boxes, while more had their backs up against the writing desk that is supposed to have been placed there for the convenience of any one who wants to write a letter, but is now turned into a stretch for those know-it-alls who criticize how the war is being run. RUSSIAN SUCCESS IN VOLHYNIA.
PETROGRAD, To-day.
In Volhynia the Russians in the region of Ostroff and Goubing have put down heavy Teutonic attacks, fanned in mass formation and have forced the Teutons to retire to avoid the danger of being outflanked. According to a Russian official communication issued this evening upwards of three thousand men were captured in the fighting.

STEAMERS SUNK.
LONDON, To-day.
At Lloyd's a shipping agency announced to-day that the British steamers Mopsa of Goulet and Alton were sunk this morning. The crews were saved. The British steamers Sylvie and Ecclesia are reported sunk. The Ecclesia, the announcement says, was unarmed. The Mopsa was 835 tons gross. The Ecclesia 3,714 tons gross, 333 feet long.

ON THE BRITISH FRONT.
BRITISH FRONT IN FRANCE.

Saturday.
Continuing the new offensive the British, who yesterday broke through the Germans' second line of defence, now have taken all Delville Wood, which was stormed by South Africans, establishing themselves beyond Bassin-Petit-Pette, advanced parties having been to the outskirts of Martinpuich, Pozieres and some other points close to the third German line of defence. The weather remains dry and warm. Operations after yesterday's advance were more in the nature of open fighting. The Germans are showing strong points and favourable ground with good machine positions to gain time for rallying their forces, which arrive and dig new trenches, while the British dig in opposite to them. "With each stage of the advance frequently they are so near to each other that neither side dares use its guns. Possession of stretches of woodland becomes as important as that of the villages. The German defenders of Trones Wood had orders to stand to the last man. The orders were virtually obeyed. Cases have been numerous of woods fighting where Briton and German have been pierced by each other's bayonets. It is amazing that in the thick of the struggle at all points the stretcher bearers manage to bring out the wounded. The Germans are keeping up a heavy artillery fire in answer to the British, indicating the arrival of fresh artillery. The British guns were able to-day to reach the main road of Martinpuich, which was crowded with transports, aeroplanes reporting immense destruction and confusion. Evermore coming from the front remarks upon the paucity of German aeroplanes and anti-aircraft guns. Despite reinforcements and other arms the British airmen in many instances descended as low as 300 or 400 feet, firing upon the German infantry with machine guns and receiving cheers from the British infantry. Such low flights have resulted in remarkably intimate scouting on the scene of action, which has been carried for the first time beyond the second main line of German defences since stationary warfare began on the west front. Officers returning from the front line speak of seeing abandoned German guns, but say they are too busy fighting to bother to bring them in.

The most dramatic situation in the battle comes when the German gunners strive to draw off guns with the British infantry which in the range. In the grinding conflict, which is courageously forced at close quarters, neither the front taken nor the number of prisoners is excessive of the results at stake, for which both sides are fighting. The British commanders merely say they have advanced farther than they expected, and repeat that they are proceeding through the various stages in a long and immense undertaking. Letters, diaries and orders taken from prisoners, on the British offensive contain enlightening news of the state of affairs among the Germans. One prisoner whom an Associated Press correspondent saw to-day, complained of the poor and undisciplined material in drafts sent forward to fill gaps in the regiments. General Von Steina captured a report of an inspection of a German second line about the middle of June, which complains that the trench is full of water and generally of its bad condition, with digouts in insufficient number, and condemns the troops of that sector as worthless idlers, and insists upon immediate improvement. Two different letters mention the recent Allied air raid over Karlsruhe, one referring to the loss of life as one hundred, the other as 150, of the desire for peace and the expectation that it will come is often alluded to by the prisoners. The commanding officers in addresses to the troops in France referred to her as being near her end, gasp. The German Emperor in his speech also referred to France's resistance as that of despair. To a correspondent who has been with the army for years, the change in the demeanour of the prisoners of late is apparent; he says that unbending confidence, which in many amounted to a defiant manner toward their captors has been succeeded by an amiably philosophic acceptance.

WAB-SAVINGS WEEK.
LONDON, To-day.
The week beginning to-day is regarded in this country as the war-savings week, in which every citizen of the United Kingdom is expected to invest according to his means in the various forms provided by the Government for financing the war. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Reginald McKenna, in a manifesto issued to-night urging the importance of the nation's efforts in this direction says, referring to the present military operations in France, "This is not a battle of a day or two, but the beginning of a long, patient and arduous offensive, demanding from our soldiers heroic exertions and unimagined sacrifices. Are we at home content to be mere spectators of this wonderful effort? Pointing to the necessity for the same patient rights of self-denial on the part of the community, McKenna says, extravagance and waste are treason in war time, indifference is crime."

LONDON, To-day.
The steamers Montreal and Acadian were in collision yesterday in the Thames of Millwall. Both were damaged.

"DREAD OF PEACE."
THE HAGUE, To-day.

The German newspaper Vorwaerts prints an article recently written by Professor Konrad Metzger of Berlin, member of the National Liberal Party, under the heading "Dread of Peace." Prof. Metzger at some length tries to make out that the role of peace mediator would only serve to raise the personal prestige of President Wilson, who, according to the writer, is anxious to emulate President Roosevelt's success at Portsmouth; but, he adds, this should be a warning to us, seeing the result was that Japan was cheated out of the fruits of victory. The Vorwaerts comments on the article: "The anti-Americanism of the National Liberals seems to have risen to such a pitch of self-deception that they would wish war to continue indefinitely, as long as America is kept from being mediator. The great majority of the German people certainly do not share this view."

A MILE FROM CAMBLES.
LONDON, To-day.

The Anglo-French advance has brought the Allied troops where they make a punction to a point about a mile in front of Cambles, which prior to July 1st, when the offensive began, was the German headquarters in the sector. Quiet prevailed on the British front. On Sunday a detachment which had been thrust forward to the third German line of Fourcaux Wood to protect infantry operations has now been withdrawn to the main position. The casualty list as announced gives a total of 227 officers dead and 487 wounded or missing, 597 men dead and 1,332 wounded. The Germans are keenly watching for a new move on the front.

THE CASEMENT APPEAL.
LONDON, To-day.

The Casement case reached the Board of Appeal to-day. Sir Roger Casement's counsel in his opening argument emphasised the technical point that the law governing treason does not include any offence of adhering to the King's enemies outside of the realm.

1.30 P.M.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.
PARIS, To-day.

The Germans made two attacks in Lorraine last night. The War Office report of to-day says both assaults were repulsed. Attacks were delivered at a point southeast of Momeny, West of Fleury, the French made some progress, taking three machine guns. A raid on trenches in Champagne occupied by Russian troops was successfully met by a counter attack, causing heavy losses to the Germans. On the Verdun front the night was comparatively calm, except in the vicinity of Hill 304, where rifle firing was brisk.

NO DOUBT ABOUT THE SHAKE-UP.
BERLIN, To-day.

According to private advices from Vienna, important changes have taken place in the Austro-Hungarian army and others are impending as a result of the Russian offensive. Something akin to a shake-up may take place in Germany. There is a strong movement that Marshal Von Hindenburg be placed in command of the entire eastern front, including the Austro-Hungarian armies.

House Broken Into and Ramsacked.

On Saturday evening two volunteers broke into a large unoccupied residence on Circular Road. The owner and late occupier is at present in the Old Country. The house, though vacant, so far as occupants are concerned, is filled with furniture. Entry to the place was effected through a window. The house-breakers were first caught at their nefarious work by a couple of civilians and later were rounded up in a remote section of the house "loaded to the plimble" and enjoying a quiet siesta. The invaders were immediately escorted to the barracks. Meanwhile the police authorities are investigating and this morning two detectives were engaged taking an inventory of the articles of furniture either stolen or broken in the house. Up to noon no arrest was made.

Portia Back From West.

The S.A. Portia, Capt. Joe Kean, arrived back from South West points at noon to-day. On the return run from Bonne Bay, the terminus, the Portia was ordered to the aid of the stranded ships Inger and Roguuld in the vicinity of St. Pierre. Capt. Kean found their condition such that it was impossible to tow them out into deep water. He says both of them will be total losses. The crews have left for Sydney enroute to their homes, excepting the Captains who are still standing by the vessels.

Capt. Kean reports the codfishery along the coast to be excellent, especially the bank fishery.

The War Week by Week.

By OBSERVER.

It needs little thought on the part of any observer for him to see that matters are working up, by however slight degrees, to a climax, and that that climax will have been reached before long. This is denied in many quarters by many writers. They say that the Somme fighting is not the great Western offensive; that the time is not yet. It is, they say, a subsidiary incident; with a design, of course, but that design not the smashing of the German lines at this point. They go further, and say that the British drive has been held, has been brought to a standstill. They profess great disappointment and make uncommensurate comparisons with the French achievements to the south.

This view seems to us quite erroneous. The British drive may not be intended to smash the German lines, necessarily; but it is very probable that it is. We cannot argue from a map of France with an irregular black line running across it, and putting a finger on such and such a point in the line, say, "This is the spot to advance from." The past offensive efforts of the French and British have proved more than the nature of the German defences and the need of ammunition; they have shown just what other parts of the German line are strategically weakest and most vulnerable to attack. This area north of the Somme is one of them, and of the whole line it is the section most favourable, from nearly every point of view, for an Allied advance. It was not chosen without long deliberation, based on experience, and enormous preparation. There are other sectors to the north where also an advance is practicable, but after it has been made here.

This, for one thing, would show that the great offensive has indeed begun, and no mere feint made. Next, it is absurdly untrue to say that the British have been held. The statement has hardly been made when it is successively confuted by the capture of Contalmaison, Bazentin and Longueval, all points of the greatest importance. It is a great mistake to argue from shaded map areas, "showing the advance of such and such an army since such and such a date." The advance may in some cases, notably on the East front, be over a great distance and have little tactical effect; it may, on the other hand, merely take in a little territory, but that of such importance that a large shaded area follows automatically.

The British know well that they cannot expect to cover much ground as yet; they have before them defences of inconceivable strength and intricacy. But they are pounding them methodically, and very evidently with great effect. If we took, say, the Champagne offensive as a standard, we should say at once that the British had been held. But that is no longer a standard. The advance was made by infantry, after great artillery preparation. Here, it is being made by artillery, with the infantry as a subsidiary element, the essential finishing touch. It is being done by artillery, more artillery and still more artillery. For the prodigious expenditure of shells can be met by the supply, and so our army is taking its time.

On the West front, the capture of these positions by the British was the most important event of the past week. Many of the prodigious initial difficulties have been overcome, literally blown away. The despatches hint at the gratifying discovery that the supporting German defences are in many places not so strong as had been feared. A most necessary task has been achieved in the straightening of the line, which is certain to be followed by advances by both British and French. We may see, not only incidentally for a resumption of the drive against Peronne. Its capture would be a signal triumph for the Allies, and a very disquieting fact for the Germans.

The past week has witnessed also two other developments which testify to the completeness of the transfer of initiative from the Central Powers to the Allies. These are, the renewal of fighting in the Caucasus, and an intensity of artillery fire by the Belgians, which might seem to prelude an offensive in that region as well. The Grand Duke has performed been idle in Turkey, as well because Russia was too busily engaged in her more important operations in Europe as by reason of the summer heat that would make a further Asiatic campaign very arduous. But apparently neither consideration has been of weight enough to deter this surprising commander longer, and the steamroller is again moving westward from Erzerum. If this indicates a serious effort towards an advance, we may look for activity in the region of Baghdad as well, though the time of year is very unfavourable. It may also be the signal for the long expected drive from Saloniki, which slope is wanted to make the general Allied offensive complete. The Belgian bombardment may mean anything, we can only wait and see. But if it does in fact herald another attack from our side, it will be immensely valuable as a support to that proceeding in the Somme. Germany has every available man she can spare either on the Somme front or immediately in reserve; but she is also compelled by continuous threats and unceasing bombardments to keep her troops at the greatest possible strength along the full British line. This is indirectly shown by the undoubted weakening of her troops before Verdun. If now she has to meet a formidable assault still further north, at the extremity of the long line, she will be sorely embarrassed, and her necessity will prevent her opposing the greatest possible resistance to the French and British.

The efforts of both sides on the Eastern front seem at present to be concentrated upon the attack and defence, respectively, of Kovel. The importance of this position justifies this, for the whole German line may be said to rest upon it. The Russians are straining every effort to obtain a firm footing on the left, or western, bank of the Stokhod River, which is the last natural barrier before Kovel. Once the passage of the river is thoroughly effected the town will soon fall before the Russian artillery. Then we shall hear stirring things from the East front. For the German line both north and south will have to fall back to a new position; and the northern approach to Lemberg, will certainly fall soon after; and Lemberg itself, menaced on three sides, will not be able to hold out long. It is not without reason that the German people look with far less apprehension to the west than to the east, where the sense of Russia's countless host weights on their spirits like a nightmare.

Another Gallipoli Veteran Invalided Home

Corporal Vall, a Gallipoli veteran, arrived here by Saturday evening's cross country train, being invalided home. He left here with the first contingent in October, 1914, and recounts some interesting and thrilling experiences since then. He was stricken with dysentery at Suvla and before he recovered developed enteric fever and was put in hospital. Subsequently he contracted diphtheria. As a result he was slightly paralysed in the legs from the knees down. He is able to walk, though not any great distance. After coming out of hospital latterly he went to France with the first draft attached to the 29th division, but owing to his disability he was sent down and ordered back to headquarters where he received instructions to come to St. John's on six months sick furlough.

Incandescent Gas Lighting.

Possibly, the feature of incandescent gas lighting most frequently noted by casual observers is the great ease with which it can be installed. Under artificial light may be performed under the Welch's gas mantle. The light has a peculiarly "friendly" quality, difficult to describe, but which is readily recognized by those who have had experience with the gas mantle lamp.

In its general effect upon bodily health and comfort, the use of incandescent gas lighting is decidedly favourable. The currents of air set up by the burning gas improves ventilation, tending to expel the air vitiated by respiration and draw in fresh air to replace it. Harmful or dangerous disease germs are instantly destroyed in the flame. The extent to which this effect takes place may be verified by placing a glass jar close to a ceiling, and immediately above the lamp are the remains of dust particles which before passing through the flames were laden with germs and microbes. Actual experiments have shown that the burning of gas lamps in rooms previously containing bacteria, resulted in absolute sterilization of the air.

Contrary to the popular notion the temperature of rooms lighted by incandescent gas lamps is seldom markedly greater than in rooms lighted by electric light, even under unfavorable conditions of ventilation, while in rooms provided with the ventilating facilities required by the demands of hygiene, the temperature in gas-lighted rooms is frequently lower.

L. O. A. Church Parade

The members of Royal Oak band Leeming Lodges, L. O. A., accompanied by the S. A. Band attended Divine Service yesterday afternoon at the Cochrane Street Congregational Church. The Rev. C. A. Whittemarsh who severed his connection with the church yesterday, having been appointed in charge of Brigus, C.B., officiated, and preached an interesting and instructive address in which he made touching references to the Great War now devastating the fair fields of France and Flanders. The congregation, which filled the spacious edifice, joined heartily in the singing of the different hymns which were especially chosen for the occasion. The turnout was the largest in the history of the lodges.

A Bit of History.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—Yesterday after I witnessed the magnificent parade of "our boys" I was imbued with the idea of a parade having taken place at St. John's in 1864, the largest and most historic in its history. On looking over my notes I discovered that a troop ship had arrived here containing 800 soldiers of the Scotch Fusiliers; the Duke and Duchess of Athol were on board also. The troops were then on their way to the Old Country. They came on shore 900 strong and marched through our principal streets and countrywards as well; the beautiful strains of the bagpipes were heard on the occasion, altogether according to a writer of that period: "It was the grandest parade of soldiers ever witnessed at St. John's."

With many thanks in anticipation of publication. I remain yours most sincerely, JAMES MURPHY. July 18th, 1916.

Service For Volunteers at Wesley Church.

Yesterday morning, as was anticipated, a very large congregation was present to hear the "last words" to the two hundred fine men who are to leave us for duty and self-sacrifice. The Pastor, Rev. H. Royle, conducted the service, Rev. Dr. Curtis the opening prayer. Rev. Stanley Williams read the lesson. Miss Cora Eadie presided at the organ and there was a full choir present. Rev. Mr. Royle's address was based on the words, "Seeing that we are compassed about with a great cloud of witnesses." It was an earnest appeal for true manliness and trust in God. We were looking on as friends and parents and would rejoice in success and spare lives; the nation was looking on. Witness the magnificent eulogy of General Haig and the admiration of the King, the congratulations of other countries and colonies, and even from heaven itself our forefathers are looking down upon the battlefield in sympathetic anxiety. In God's Name he wished them victory because they were fighting for justice and liberty, the prayers of the Church would follow them as well as their mothers and fathers, and he prayed they may be pure and godly and maintain the highest standards for honor and bravery. After singing of hymns "Onward Christian Soldiers," Rev. Dr. Curtis rose, and after congratulating the fine appearance on the march as the battalion had passed spoke to them as follows: He referred to the inspiring sight before him, the magnificent audience and called attention to the tremendous events transpiring in Europe at the present time as the great crisis of the struggle is on, with the Russians pressing from the east, the Italians from the south and the British and French from the west. He congratulated the soldiers upon the privilege of taking part in these world-determining events, and felt sure that in common with those already on the firing line they would do themselves and Newfoundland credit. He assured them of the absolute righteousness of our cause, saying that in the Germans we were encountering the very incarnation of evil, and therefore could be confident that all that makes for righteousness in the universe was on our side. But if we are to be worthy of such a cause, and such holy allies, all must be God-fearing men. We should be doing everything that would make it impossible for these mighty forces of heaven to co-operate with us. He urged them every one to take Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord, and shape their lives in harmony with His teaching and do it at once. He closed by wishing them a speedy victory and a safe return.

At the evening service the crowded church were greatly pleased with the excellent playing of Mr. Hayden at the large pipe organ. He showed himself a thorough master of the instrument and brought out its sweetest tones as well as its greatest power in the voluntaries, prelude and postlude. It is a great blessing that though deprived of sight, Mr. Hayden is so gifted with fine musical abilities. Rev. Mr. Coppin preached with much acceptance from the words, "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdom of our God and of His Son, and He shall reign for ever and ever."

The Picnic Question.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—I have to agree with the reasoning and logical conclusions of your correspondent "Theobald," as contained in his popular note in Saturday's Telegram in relation to "Sunday School Picnics." Whilst hundreds of grown people nightly crowd the movies to their utmost capacity, and other hundreds go in pursuit of various forms of pleasure, it does certainly seem inconsistent to draw the line with the children's annual day. I have nothing to say against those who are leading in the crusade against picnics as the object of providing beds for our wounded soldiers must appeal to all who can help in the good work; and whilst I give place to none for depth of sympathy with the bereaved, I don't think it will be necessary to deprive the children of their annual day. Let the children be asked to give up their festival? Of course they would give it up. On the walls of many homes in the city are little tokens of self-sacrifice to certify that the children have not been behind in "doing their bit." The children of Sunday and Day School alike (in many cases the same children) have given up their right to receive the prizes they had won for their work during the year in order that the money spent in their purchase might be given to the Belgian Relief, Women's Patriotic Association, etc. On the whole I would say the children of both St. John's and the outports need the great war and deserve some encouragement for what they have done. Sir, children are "wise in their generation," and have a queer way of catechizing sometimes. Let us be sure we are not imparting to them their first lessons in insincerity or hypocrisy. I would suggest that the usual prizes be cut out of the program of Sunday School Picnics this year, and the money thus saved be given to the most worthy object; but let the children have their day in the open, where they may, with their teachers, breathe in God's pure air, away from the shallowness and inconsistency of the world.

Yours very truly, SYMPATHIZER.

VISITING HIS PARENTS.—Mr. Harold Russell, of the Western Union Telegraph Co., North Sydney, who was north as far as Battle Harbour on a vacation returned to St. John's by the Sagona yesterday, on a visit to his parents.

The EASTERN TRUST COMPANY
WE GO ON FOREVER.

Just two reasons why the Eastern Trust Company can administer an Estate better than a personal executor or administrator.

1.—It has nearly twenty-four years' experience, and its existence is perpetual, neither does it cost any more to employ the Company than an individual. The Company affords the Estate absolute security. It has a paid-up capital of $1,000,000.00 and a reserve of $250,000.00. The Estate held in trust to December 31st, 1915, amount to $15,036,688.85.

2.—In the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, your Estate must look around for a substitute. The new administrator is unfamiliar with the business and confusion is often the result. The death of any officer of this Company does not break the continuity of the policy of administration.

While the Company administers over Fifteen Million Dollars worth of Estates, it also does a very large business in executing Trusts of all kinds and acting as Financial Agents of all descriptions. We can give fullest satisfaction in the collection of rents, interests, mortgages, dividends, etc.
