CHAPTER XVI.
Love is Blind.

"Then I'll go," said his lordship, with a sudden precipitation. "Good-morning, Mrs. Gregson; morning, Tom."

Coming to the gate near Lavinia, he said:

"Nice day, isn't it? What do you think of the horse? Pretty color? Yes, very. Good-morning."

And his lordship cantered off.

"Bella," said Miss Lavinia, "I'm afraid—"

And she shook her head.

"So am I," said Miss Bella, shaking hers, also.

At the cottage gate Lord Crownbrilliant's manner lost a great deal of the calm with which it had carried things at the Folly.

Indeed, his heart beat to such an extent as he dismounted that he felt half inclined to leave his card only, and return to the inn.

But as the servant opened the door, Lady Mildred crossed the hall, and the "card trick" fell through.

"I am glad to see you looking so well," said Lady Mildred, as he took her hand.

And they went into the drawing-room.

"You have had a sad loss—very sad. I remember Lord Crownbrilliant, your father, a perfect Adonis in his youth. I danced three times with him one evening at Lady Crushcrash's. I think; very wrong, I know, but he was perfectly irresistible. Dear me, dear me! how the time runs by!"

Lord Crownbrilliant murmured something, and Lady Mildred ran softly on:

"Have you called at the hall yet? Sir Fielding was speaking of you last night. He remembers Lord Crownbrilliant well, and was quite shocked to hear of his death. You must go and stay at the hall. Sir Fielding has already sent you an invitation."

"I had it this morning," said his lordship. "Very kind of Sir Fielding. I shall be glad to go. The hall's a pretty place, I think."

"Oh, very," with the slightest suspicion of pride. "I don't think there's a better old place in England, not even your castle at Lanard."

Child Was Nervous, Irritable, Tired Out

She Had No Appetite, and Her Complexion Was Pale and Sallow.

How many parents realize the strain which going to school means to the child who is naturally nervous and of delicate health?

You see them come from the schools daily with pale faces, many wearing glasses, and looking tired and worn. At home they are irritable, do not sleep well at night, and are upset by a little extra excitement.

If they are to grow to healthy manhood and womanhood their systems must have attention now. Such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does wonders for children in this condition. We are constantly receiving letters from grateful parents telling what the Nerve Food has done for their children. This one is a fair sample:

Mrs. Stephen Hartman, Italy Cross, Lunenburg Co., N.S., writes: "My little sister at eleven years of age became nervous, irritable and seemed all tired out. She had no appetite, was

"I have never seen it," said Lord Crownbrilliant.

"Indeed?" said her ladyship. "You must go and see it at once. It is a beautiful place. I remember staying there three weeks, and thinking it the most delightful place in the world."

"It must be lovely if your ladyship speaks so highly of it," murmured Lord Crownbrilliant.

Then he commenced looking around the room in an aimless sort of manner, and answering Lady Mildred's questions at random, whereupon her ladyship, who was no dullard, rang the bell, and told the servant to inform Miss Lawley that Lord Crownbrilliant was in the drawing-room.

In three minutes, which at one moment seemed an age and at another a flash of a second to his enamored lordship, Carlotta entered the room.

How lovely she looked, in her simple dress of white muslin with black lace, her dark hair brushed from her pure white brow and her eyes lit up with a gentle sympathy he had never seen there before, Lord Crownbrilliant could not have described.

Her heart beat like a small bird against its prison bars, his face flushed, and for once, as he came forward and took her hand, he was perfectly natural.

What she said or what he said, they neither of them knew, one feeling only of extreme joy running through him as he glanced at the black lace on her dress, and thought that at least they had one thing in common—bereavement.

He did not remember that hers, indeed, was a bereavement, while his was merely the removal of the impediment to the title and estates of Brownbrilliant.

"Life is apt to be blind even to itself."

They walked through the garden into the conservatories, where Lady Mildred left them to fetch her sunshade.

His lordship, finding himself alone with his idol, got crimson and uneasy, but, stealing a glance at the regal face of his companion, was somewhat restored to his self-possession and affectation by seeing that it was calm and perfectly unmoved.

"Pretty flower," he said, toying with a camelia. "Nice for one's coat. I knew a fellow whose mother used to lock him out of the conservatories because he picked the flowers."

Carlotta raised her eyebrows.

"That was cruel, though perhaps necessary," she said. "Shall I give you this?"

"Will you?" he said, eagerly.

"Oh, yes," she replied, with the calm indifference which made her so irresistible, "if you promise not to tell Lady Mildred."

"I promise," he said.

And Carlotta took a pair of tiny scissors from her pocket and cut the flower off.

"There it is," she said, holding it out to him, while she returned the scissors to her pocket.

He took it from her eagerly, and pressing it to his lips, placed it in his coat.

She seemed not to have noticed the action, and stood as calm and still in the bright sunlight as Pygmalion's statue before it caught the breath of life.

"How is the wiver getting on?" he asked, leaning over the light oak fence and gazing at it.

"Getting on!" she repeated, with a smile. "Very nicely and very quickly. See!" and she dropped a leaf in the stream.

He dropped another, which, owing to a sudden stoppage of the first, caught it up.

"They have joined company," he said, eagerly. "See! they are twitting down together."

And he pointed to the two leaves.

"So they are," said Carlotta.

"Life is like a stream," he said, coming nearer to her and playing with a branch that touched her arm—he dared not touch the arm itself.

"Life is like a stream, Miss Lawley; men and women are like—leaves, eh?"

Carlotta inclined her head.

"That's very pretty," she said, with a smile that barely escaped being scornful. "It sounds like Tennyson."

"Does it?" he said, looking pleased.

"By Jove! Tennyson's a clever fellow. He writes verses, you know."

Carlotta raised her eyebrows.

"You have read them?" she said, with a slight surprise, which his lordship entirely misunderstood.

"Oh, yes. I've read them every one. You're astonished at a fellow having time for that sort of thing—eh? Oh, I'm very fond of poetry. I assure you. I always was. I could repeat the whole of D-D-Dr. Watts' hymns when I was six years old. T-T-That's not bad, Miss Lawley."

"On the contrary, very good," replied Carlotta, almost wearily. "You will be sorry to hear that I never knew one of Dr. Watts' hymns, or any one else's."

"No, no, I ain't," he replied warmly. "I don't care anything about your knowing hymns. I—by Jove! I don't think I know one myself now," he added, ingenuously. "Hymns are a nuisance, except in church. Miss Lawley, are you going to church on Sunday?"

"Oh, yes," said Carlotta. "Lady Mildred never misses, you know."

"I shall go, then," he said, decisively.

Then there came a silence, both leaning over the palings, she standing majestically at his side, both looking at the river.

"Miss Lawley, I'm going to buy a house d-down here," he said.

She started, the slightest in the world.

"Yes?" she said.

"Yes; I like Grassmere. It's very nice. 'Don't you like it?'"

"Yes, very much."

"I'm glad of that," he said, eagerly.

"Well, I'm going to look out for a little box near here. Mr. Gwesson says there is one to be sold on the Annsleigh road—belonged to a captain, he said, I think. Do you remember the one I mean?"

"Oh, yes, the Retreat."

"Yes, the Wetweat. Nice name, isn't it? Is it a nice place?"

"Yes, very beautiful," said Carlotta, staring at the stream and avoiding his eyes, which were fixed on hers.

"You like it?" he asked.

"Yes, it is a very pretty place," she replied.

"Then I'll buy it," he replied, emphatically. "I'll buy it, whatever it costs. Miss Lawley, you wonder what makes me so anxious to get the p-place? It's because you like it. I—"

SCARCELY a quarter of an hour had elapsed since the wily Italian had glided down the old, worn-eaten stairs of the house in Chelsea, when a firmer tread sounded on them, and a tall, majestically-built figure unlocked the door and entered the room in which Spazzola had stood petrified with astonishment.

Removing his soft-brimmed hat and placing it on the table, the occupant of the room dropped into the hard chair, with a weary gesture and a sigh.

"What next?" he muttered, looking around the room. "Light nearly gone—too late to paint. Would to Heaven it were sometimes too dark and too late to think! That poor child I have left—she had the blue eyes, clear, terrestrial, far-seeing, that only those who have who are already on their journey home. She will die to-night, or to-morrow, or the day after. Cui bono? What matters it? The fruit will moisten her pretty, bird-like throat," he mused, taking up a piece of crayon and almost unconsciously sketching the outline portrait of some poor child he had been visiting and brushing the crayon and flinging it into the grate with an air of utter weariness and despair. "What a hypocrite art thou, Maurice! Thou thinkest the child has won upon thee by her misery, her helplessness. Thou knowest 'tis because there is something in her face that thou thinkest like the girl's face thou lovest. Charity! It is but another name for self. Vanitas! vanitas!

"Nine! 'Tis time I went out. Yes, why should I? To what purpose? I am weary, and shall not escape myself by treading the water-side or pacing the narrow streets any better than by sitting here. Oh, Heaven, how slowly the time goes! I fear I shall never see it fly again. 'Tis a lame bird for Maurice Durant. Ten it strikes!—later than I thought. Now for supper," and he turned to the piece of bread upon the table. "Supper! Why should I eat? To live. Why should I live? Oh, bitter question! What other answer is there than the mocking one, 'To die?' and he dropped the crust upon the table, burying his face in his hands and leaning his elbows on the hard deal.

"Here is Lady Mildred," said the beautiful girl, turning her face, which was deadly pale, toward the house. "It must be luncheon time."

"I won't stay, thank you," said his lordship, frowning. "I'm going at once, Lady Mildred. Horse tired of waiting, quite restless. Good-morning, Miss Lawley," and pressing Carlotta's ice-cold hand, he vaulted into the saddle and galloped off, muttering:

"By Jove! how beautiful! he! he! I frightened her—white as a ghost. All right, Clawence, old boy, all right!"

She went back to the garden and the river, but murmured nothing; perhaps she was fully occupied in listening to the stream, which seemed to mutter, brokenly, as it swept over the pebbles:

"You will keep your oath, and break my heart."

As close a race as shade and sun.

SCARCELY a quarter of an hour had elapsed since the wily Italian had glided down the old, worn-eaten stairs of the house in Chelsea, when a firmer tread sounded on them, and a tall, majestically-built figure unlocked the door and entered the room in which Spazzola had stood petrified with astonishment.

Removing his soft-brimmed hat and placing it on the table, the occupant of the room dropped into the hard chair, with a weary gesture and a sigh.

"What next?" he muttered, looking around the room. "Light nearly gone—too late to paint. Would to Heaven it were sometimes too dark and too late to think! That poor child I have left—she had the blue eyes, clear, terrestrial, far-seeing, that only those who have who are already on their journey home. She will die to-night, or to-morrow, or the day after. Cui bono? What matters it? The fruit will moisten her pretty, bird-like throat," he mused, taking up a piece of crayon and almost unconsciously sketching the outline portrait of some poor child he had been visiting and brushing the crayon and flinging it into the grate with an air of utter weariness and despair. "What a hypocrite art thou, Maurice! Thou thinkest the child has won upon thee by her misery, her helplessness. Thou knowest 'tis because there is something in her face that thou thinkest like the girl's face thou lovest. Charity! It is but another name for self. Vanitas! vanitas!

"Nine! 'Tis time I went out. Yes, why should I? To what purpose? I am weary, and shall not escape myself by treading the water-side or pacing the narrow streets any better than by sitting here. Oh, Heaven, how slowly the time goes! I fear I shall never see it fly again. 'Tis a lame bird for Maurice Durant. Ten it strikes!—later than I thought. Now for supper," and he turned to the piece of bread upon the table. "Supper! Why should I eat? To live. Why should I live? Oh, bitter question! What other answer is there than the mocking one, 'To die?' and he dropped the crust upon the table, burying his face in his hands and leaning his elbows on the hard deal.

"I won't stay, thank you," said his lordship, frowning. "I'm going at once, Lady Mildred. Horse tired of waiting, quite restless. Good-morning, Miss Lawley," and pressing Carlotta's ice-cold hand, he vaulted into the saddle and galloped off, muttering:

"By Jove! how beautiful! he! he! I frightened her—white as a ghost. All right, Clawence, old boy, all right!"

She went back to the garden and the river, but murmured nothing; perhaps she was fully occupied in listening to the stream, which seemed to mutter, brokenly, as it swept over the pebbles:

"You will keep your oath, and break my heart."

FLATLY REJECTED.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. The United States flatly rejected Germany's offer to discuss the differences between the two nations while the ruthless submarine campaign is in progress. In a note to-day to the Swiss Minister who on Saturday presented orally the German proposal, Secretary of State Lansing said, the United States does not feel that it can enter into any discussion with the German Government concerning the policy of the submarine warfare against neutrals which it is now pursuing unless and until the German Government renounces its assurances of the fourth of May on the Sussex note and acts upon these assurances.

BRITISH MAKE FURTHER PROGRESS.

LONDON, Feb. 12. The official report from the British headquarters in France to-night, reads:—We made further progress last night north of the Ancre in the neighborhood of the Beaucourt-Prussieux road, where, as a result of a small enterprise undertaken on a limited front, we occupied some 600 yards of hostile trenches without difficulty. We took a few prisoners. Early in the night the enemy attacked our new positions south of Serre Hill, but was caught by our artillery barrage and machine-gun fire and easily repulsed. The enemy's lines were entered by our patrols at a number of places. Southeast of Arras one of our raiding parties blew up a hostile ammunition dump and captured a few prisoners. This morning an enemy raiding party, observed collecting on the enemy's positions to the northeast of Neuville St. Vaast, was dispersed by our artillery. Successful bombardments were carried out by us during the day north of the Somme and in the neighbourhood of Arras, Amiens and Ypres. In the course of air fighting yesterday one German airplane was driven down, damaged. One of our machines is missing.

AMAZING TO AMERICAN GOVERNMENT.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. Formal notification re the detention in Germany of 72 American sailors brought in as prisoners on the prize ship Yarrowdale was given to the State Department to-day by Dr. Paul Ritter, the Swiss Minister here, acting for the German Government together with an inquiry as to the status of German warbound ships in American harbours. The Germans, Dr. Ritter said, decided to hold the Yarrowdale prisoners until she had definite assurance that German crews in American harbours would not be held or imprisoned. This development, wholly unexpected was amazing to the American Government officials here, who had come to the conclusion that the early reports which misled the German Government as to the treatment of the German crews here had been effectively dispelled by forwarding complete details. As this included the President's announcement that German ships would not be seized now or in the event of war, and full information about the fair attitude of the government toward the German sailors, officials are wholly at a loss to know what kind of a report could have so suddenly changed Germany's attitude. The eventual release of the Yarrowdale prisoners is regarded as assured, but an urgent protest against their re-imprisonment will be made at once. A preliminary demand for the release of these prisoners was about the last instruction sent to former Ambassador Gerard.

WAR EXPENDITURE.

LONDON, Feb. 12. The average daily expenditure of Great Britain is now £5,790,000, Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer announced in the Commons to-day. The Chancellor said the total expenditure since the beginning of the war was £4,200,000,000 and at the end of the current year the national debt would stand between £3,800,000,000 and £3,900,000,000. Advances to the Allies and dominions would be approximately £390,000,000. The number of applications and amounts applied for by the General Public for the new loan, the Chancellor said, was the largest ever before. The Chancellor pointed out that the total votes of credit for the current financial year would amount to £195,000,000. He said this was in excess of the estimate of Reginald McKenna, Chancellor of the Exchequer under the Asquith Government, and that the increase was due to additional expenditures for munitions and advances to Allies and Dominions. The average expenditure had increased by £1,000,000 daily compared with the first six months of the financial year. There also had been an increase in expenditures for the army, but was in proportion with the increase in numbers, the basis of the army being fourteen times larger than when the war began. The amount asked for, Law said, would enable the Government to meet expenses until the end of May. On the last vote of credit there had been an unexpected balance of £76,000,000. We have superiority not only in men, but equipment, said Law. He asserted the increase in the production of munitions was going on all the time, being as marked now as at any previous period. The smallest increase in any kind of shell, as compared with the average during the first year of the war, was twenty-eight times that output.

DEBATE ON NEW CREDIT VOTE.

LONDON, Feb. 12. There was considerable debate on the new vote of credit, but after McKenna had spoken it became uninteresting. Colonel Arthur Lynch, Nationalist, made reference to President Wilson's proposal for world peace as the most momentous declaration ever made in the history of the nations, terming it a definite plan, which if followed by civilized powers would almost eliminate warfare. If the United States intervened in the present war, he said, this would secure victory for the Entente Allies. Col. Lynch strongly criticized the conduct of the war and demanded the recall of Field-Marshal Haig, the British Commander-in-Chief. McKenna's reference to the possibility of a general election provided much lobby gossip. This was based upon the fact that the life of the present Parliament expires at the end of April. The new vote would give the government enough money to carry on the war till after the general election if it became necessary. The prevalent opinion was, however, that the Government would ask for an extension of the life of the existing Parliament.

CUNARD LINER SUNK.

LONDON, Feb. 12. The steamer Lycia has been sunk, Lloyd's Shipping Agency announces, the crew being saved. The British steamer Lycia was a Cunard line vessel of 2,715 tons and built in 1894.

BRITAIN GRATEFUL TO GERARD.

LONDON, Feb. 12. The gratitude and thanks of the nation has been conveyed by the British Government to former American Ambassador Gerard at Berlin for his work in behalf of British civilians and prisoners of war in Germany. Foreign Secretary Balfour announced to-day in the House of Commons.

U. S. REPLY TO GERMANY.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. The United States replied to Germany's proposal for a discussion of the submarine situation by declining to enter into any negotiations while the proclamation of unrestricted warfare remains in effect, and until Germany restores the pledges given in the Sussex case. The State Department to-day made public Germany's proposal submitted in a memorandum by Dr. Paul Ritter, the Swiss minister.

GREEK STEAMER SUNK.

LONDON, Feb. 12. Lloyd's announced the Greek steamer Aghios, 765 tons, has been sunk by a submarine. Five men from the vessel landed, the captain and remainder of the crew being drowned.

PLAYING GERMAN GAME.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. General Carranza sent a note to the United States Argentina, Brazil and Chile, as well as to all other neutral nations asking them to join in an agreement to prohibit export from their countries to the warring European nations of foodstuffs and munitions of war.

CHINA BREAKS WITH GERMANY.

PRECAUTIONS TAKEN BY GERMANY.

LONDON, Feb. 12. In an address at Wilhelmshaven regarding the precautions taken by Germany in view of the possibility of war with the United States, Dr. Stresemann, a prominent national liberal member of the Reichstag, made the following statement: "Our German bluejackets in the United States will have seen to it that the German steamers in American ports shall not be useable by anyone for some time." Dr. Stresemann also expresses the opinion that the work of the German submarines was encouraging the army for the spring campaign.

Marshall Bros

Roderick's Unselfishness.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Mrs. Martin came into the room where Roderick was reading with a match in one hand, the telephone book in the other, and a much-mused pair of Roderick's trousers over her arm.

"Roderick, didn't you say yesterday when Rose wouldn't lead you to her tennis racket that you thought selfishness was the very worst fault?" she asked.

"Yes, I did, and I meant it, too."

"Don't you think you're selfish?" Roderick looked up at his mother.

"Didn't I just save up my money for weeks to buy Rose that toilet set for her birthday?" His voice showed art and resentment.

"Selfishness is only one form of selfishness, and it was selfishness that you said was the worst fault."

"This is the match safe from the kitchen. It isn't a bit like the safe in burnt matches, is it? And yet you kept putting the burnt matches in your father's can't see in the dark as well as you and several times he has had to grope his way back into our room because he has tried several matches and found them all burnt. I've told you about this again and again, and you just said you didn't think, and went on doing it."

Mrs. Martin took up the telephone book. "I had just a few minutes left after I finished my sewing yesterday to take a walk before dark. I had to take two calls on the telephone first and I spent the whole of that time looking for the telephone book. It was up in your room, where you left it the night before."

The trousers came last.

"He threw his trousers On A Chair."

"I pressed those a few days ago," said Roderick's mother, "and look at them! Instead of putting them on a hanger, you throw them over a chair when you came in that wet day and now they need pressing again."

"If you look in the dictionary, Roderick, you'll find that the definition of selfishness is 'preferring your advantage or convenience before another's.' When you make Father and the rest of us all that trouble about burnt matches rather than both yourself to put them in the right place isn't that preferring your convenience to ours? And when you made me miss my walk because you wouldn't bother to put things back in their places, what was that?"

There was a deep red color in Roderick's face as he bent over his book with a half audible murmur that sounded like, "I don't know."

"But the next day when Roderick's mother came in from a walk, she found him in the kitchen bending over the ironing board."

"Look here, Mother," he asked, with an elaborate affectation of carelessness, "do you press the cuff, or not?"

Too wise to admit that she read any significance into his act, or to offer to help him, Mrs. Martin casually answered that it wasn't good form to press the cuff. But that night she did venture to put her arms around his neck and give him a specially tender hug when Roderick came to kiss her good-night.

And Roderick understood.

Your Boys and Girls.

When baby becomes a year old its diet should begin to include fruit juices and the whites of eggs. Begin with a wine glass of chicken broth or bouillon fed from a spoon, and gradually decrease the amount of bottle food. Soon after it turns its first year the child should learn to drink from a small cup and its meals may be reduced to five a day with an occasional drink of orange juice and plenty of water.

The first and second meals should consist chiefly of modified milk to which half as much strained oatmeal had been added. Early in the afternoon a gill of chicken broth, or half as much beef juice, may be given, and this may be varied every few days with the white of an egg boiled for a minute. The two remaining meals should have milk as their mainstay.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Would it be proper for me to call upon a new family in our neighbourhood first and how long should I wait before doing so?" was Barbara's query.

"You should call upon your new neighbours as soon as they have become settled. Such calls are usually made between the hours of three and six in the afternoon," directed her aunt.

AN IDEAL PEACE.

New York World:—I believe that nowhere is this demand for "realization of the principles of nationalities" realized to such a degree as in both states of the (Austro-Hungarian) monarchy—Croat, Thessa.

The Bohemians, whose Twenty-eighth Regiment, the "Children of Prague," went over in a body to the Russians; the Bosnian Serbs, 800 of whose civilians have been executed for plotting against the Government; the Italians of the Trentino who are fighting for Italy; the Rumanians of Transylvania, deprived of political power, might dispute this estimate. It may be agreed, though, that Austria-Hungary is an ideal place to introduce that principle.

THE CONTRACTOR

The contractor is a busy, bustling mechanic who agrees to build a house by the day and usually winds up by building it by the year.

One of the most discouraging epochs in a man's career is to let a contract for a six-room house with pebble dash trimmings, with the understanding that it is to be completed during the lifetime of the party of the first part.

Some people endeavor to hurry up the contractor by attaching a time penalty to the contract, with a forfeiture clause, which compels the contractor to bring in a bill for extras longer than a clothes line. This causes a strong bond of affection to spring up between the contractor and the builder, which bond is seldom severed outside of the district court.

Every contractor has a force of movable carpenters, who are never found in the same spot two days in succession. This usually enables the plasterers to begin their work about the time the fall rains set in. However, the contractor has a good deal to put up with. One of his worst enemies is the tight citizen who expects him to throw in a few extra bay windows and use cressian walnut instead of yellow pine, at the original contract price. There is also the hind-sighted man who decides to move the dining room around on the east side, after the wall is up.

The contractor is always being delayed by the weather or a foreman who has just come down with inebriety or the death of a second cousin of his wife on her mother's side, but in all other respects he is a model citizen and his life is one long-drawn-out dream of peace. Every once in a while we find a contractor who is a real Christian, which teaches us that some men can retain their religion under the most severe trials.

A peculiar and well recognized theory had always existed in local athletic circles that the Old Feildians encountered more than their share of ill-luck in any branch of sport in which they participated, often having to take defeat from inferior opponents, but anyone who witnessed last evening's hockey match at the Prince's Rink must be convinced that fortune has refused to frown on them any longer, as the ringing of the gong gave them a victory over the Terra Novas (last year's champions).

THE GAME.

A large and enthusiastic gathering of onlookers greeted the teams as they came together. A good exhibition was anticipated and the fans were not disappointed.
At the command of Referee Parsons the teams got into action, each side working its best to secure an advantage. Play was fast and the puck was taken from one end of the rink to the other in turn. Jerrett and Ewing broke away and, after a brilliant run, scored the first goal for the Feildians. Deafening applause from Feildian supporters followed. Encouraged by their success the College lads worked with renewed determination. Ewing gave a splendid exhibition of stick-handling and again succeeded in passing all opponents and put the puck in the meshes. Excitement then grew red-hot. However, the Terra Novas turned the tables apparently to the dislike of the tooters. Tobin controlled the disc, made a fine run and passed to Sellers, who was on the spot and scored the first goal for his side, amid almost absolute silence. The Feildians had not exhausted all their strength and Ewing again displayed individual work, but when near the danger zone was tripped. Another vigorous rush by the Terra Novas equalized the count, through Sellers, and just before the close of the first period the Terra Novas sport swept the rink and scored.

The Feildians became aggressive on resumption of play. Their forwards repeatedly attacked their opponents goal. Herder and Quick saved many difficult shots. Selfishness and erratic shooting were responsible for the Feildians getting no results. Fifteen minutes of play had expired in this period when Ewing notched up the equalizer and Bugden got the credit of the winning goal 30 seconds later. No further scoring was done, though the Terra Novas had play in their favor.

NOTES.

The best game for the season, though by no means the cleanest.

Mount Cashel Entertainment.

On Wednesday and Thursday nights of this week the annual entertainment in aid of Mount Cashel Orphanage will be held in the Casino Theatre. The entertainment will be under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor and His Grace the Archbishop, and we bespeak a liberal patronage on the part of the public.

The generosity of the people of this city towards deserving causes merits the highest commendation and no institution existing in our midst is more deserving of liberal support and assistance than that institution which is the home of the homeless, the refuge of the waif, Mount Cashel Orphanage.

The splendid work it has done since its establishment needs no advertisement other than that afforded in the ever increasing number of homeless and neglected children it annually takes in under its hospitable roof and later sends forth into the world well equipped physically and intellectually to take their place in the country's industrial pursuits, who otherwise may have drifted into the ranks of undesirables, and swell the ranks of unemployed because from lack of training they would be unemployable.

Strained to its utmost at all times its scant resources have been unequal to the requirements of the orphanage during the past two years owing to the greatly increased cost of nearly everything required for the maintenance of the inmates and the proper upkeep of the institution. The food, clothing, education and incidental expenses of 130 boys is a strain upon the resources of the orphanage beyond that which its permanent income supplies, and therefore the greater need exists of voluntary assistance if the good work, in which the self-sacrificing Brothers freely give their lives, is to be conducted in a manner which will assure the homeless and friendless orphans sheltered there the best results which the institution is capable of giving.

As a proof of the sterling qualities of the boys trained at Mount Cashel we need only point out that among the young men who answered the call for volunteers there were no less than sixty Mount Cashel boys, and of that number thirteen have already given their lives on the battle fields of Europe.

This year Brother Ennis has acceded to the wishes of his friends in having the entertainment run two nights, and a change of programme will be given the second night. On reference to the advertisement of the entertainment will be seen that the programme embraces some of the best and most popular local entertainers, and that in addition to assisting a laudable cause the patrons of Mount Cashel annual entertainment will enjoy a very pleasant evening.

Tickets are on sale at Atlantic Book-store.

Don't fail to attend the Valentine Soiree in Congregational Lecture Room on Wednesday evening, 14th inst. A pleasant evening is assured.

THE IMPORTANT POINT

To remember with regard to Zam-Buk is that, unlike ordinary ointments, Zam-Buk is so refined that it is capable of penetrating to the seat of the trouble, which in the case of skin diseases and old sores is found in the diseased underlying tissues. This is due to the fact that Zam-Buk contains no animal fat or coarse mineral drugs whatever, but is entirely of herbal origin. Ordinary ointments, on the contrary, owing to the animal fat and mineral drugs contained in them, are incapable of penetrating beneath the surface skin, so that the relief, if any, can be only temporary.

In addition to this, Zam-Buk is a strong germicide, and having reached the underlying tissues, it destroys all germs and thoroughly cleanses the diseased parts. Then Zam-Buk's healing essences promote the growth of new skin and a permanent cure results.

Zam-Buk is best not only for old sores, eczema, and all skin diseases, but also for blood-poisoning, ulcers, abscesses, boils, scald sores, piles, burns, scalds, cuts and all skin injuries. All druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, 50c. box, $ for $1.25.

Railway Accident Inquiry.

EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

An inquiry into the railway horror, which occurred near Glenwood on February 5th, began before Mr. F. J. Morris, K.C., J.P., in the Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon. There were present Deputy Minister of Justice Hutchings and Government Engineer Hall for the Crown, Mr. Higgins representing the Reid Mill Co. and Supt. Grimes on behalf of the police. In order to avoid another inquiry by the Government Engineer's Department, Mr. Hutchings asked that Mr. Hall be allowed to examine and cross-examine witnesses. Mr. Higgins consented, adding that the Reid Co. were desirous of having the fullest investigation made. At 11 a.m. to-day the inquiry was continued and the examination of witnesses commenced. Conductor Lush was the first witness called. He was examined by Mr. Hutchings and testified as follows:

I was the Conductor on the express that left here on Sunday afternoon for Port aux Basques. My train crew consisted of Baggageman Bishop and Brakeman Pike. The engine attached was No. 153. The engineer's name was Patrick. The fireman's name was White. The train consisted of one baggage car, one second-class car, diner, one first-class car, sleeper and private car. The baggage car and mail car were combined. We left St. John's at 12.30 and arrived at Clarendville about 8.50. At Clarendville I changed engines with engine No. 115 then attached. The driver's name was Webber. I don't remember the fireman's name. We left Clarendville about 9 o'clock. We arrived at Benton about four hours afterwards. I don't know how many passengers I had on board when I left St. John's. I don't know how many passengers I had on board when I left Benton. I made no stop at any place after leaving Benton. When the train left Benton I was in the first-class coach. I remained there until the wreck. I was not asleep. The first thing that attracted my attention was the train stopping. I felt the train bump. It was not very heavy. I left the coach and jumped off on the outside and went ahead. I noticed then that the track was running on a curve and the curve was to the right. The first car I passed was the diner, she was off the track and leaning at an angle of about 60 degrees. Attached in front of the diner was the second-class car. She was on her side about fifteen feet from the track, tipping over on her side with the roof away from the track. She was all afloat. The baggage man and I kicked the door open on the east end and the brakeman went to the west end and was doing the same thing. As soon as we kicked in the east end door the passengers started to come out. I don't know if anyone got out the west end door. In about three or four minutes everything was quiet. I mean, whoever was in the car were all suffocated or burnt. In order to save the passengers in the other cars, the train crew bent all their energy towards keeping them from catching fire. That was after everything had become quiet in the second-class and it had become impossible to rescue the remainder of the passengers. After I kicked in the east end door I sang out to the passengers and hurried them out and then went around to the west end door. Up to the time of my leaving the east end of the car to go to the west end there was no one helping me to rescue the passengers except the baggage man who was there with me. The engineer came around to the west end to assist the brakeman. There was no one else there except us four to render any assistance to the passengers in that car. All the passengers who did get out got out themselves after we had opened the doors. The mailmen were not there. There was none of the first-class passengers there at that time. The next car ahead of the second-class car was the baggage car. She was also on her side about the same distance as the second-class car from the track. Next ahead of the baggage car was the tender. It was off the track by the baggage car at right angles to the track with the front of it towards it. The engine was standing on the rails intact. The coupling between the tender and the baggage car was broken, and the coupling between the tender and the engine was broken. All the other couplings were intact. The train was lying on the left hand side of the curve, which was on the outside. I cannot be sure how many passengers were in the second-class car at the time of the accident. There were fifteen got out. I don't remember their names. The bodies of eight passengers were discovered. Their names are: Joseph Watts, Carbonear; Mr. and Mrs. Moses Rodway, of Muscle Harbor Arm, Placentia Bay; Philip Hounsell, of Pound Cove; Thomas Stapleton and John Jacobson, of St. John's; Ambrose Rodgers and Simon Rodgers, of St. Jones' Within. I was present when the bodies of these eight persons were discovered. I am not certain if there were more than those passengers on board that second-class car. I cannot swear whether or not Monday evening and then proceeded on to Port aux Basques. We took the three cars that were intact at the wreck and got the balance of our train at Bishop's Falls. I cannot give an explanation whatever as to the cause of the wreck. The passenger cars that I had on that day, excepting the private car that made up the train that day, were heated by steam from the engine and lighted by oil lamps. There were three lamps in the second-class car with two branches each; that would be in all six lights. They were suspended from the ceiling. They are the same kind of lamps that are used in the other passenger cars. The last time I passed through that second-class car was after I left Benton. I noticed that three of the lamps were lit then, one light on each branch. I swear that everything possible to be done was done for the rescue of the passengers in that car. It would not be possible for them to have got out any way but through the doors as the time was too short. From the time I felt the jolt till the noise subsided in the car was about three minutes. It would not be possible for any of those passengers to have got out through the windows. I think the windows would open sufficient for them to squeeze out through. The car was a Colonist car with double windows with wooden screen. The accident occurred about ten miles east of Glenwood.

FOR THE KIDNEYS

Mutual Life of Canada.

The business of life insurance seems to have received an impetus rather than a set-back from the events of the last two and a half years. The reason probably is that in such a time of stress and strain the public has learned that it is wiser to build on the rock of life insurance than on the sands of speculation. Such a state of mind would naturally result not only in applications for new insurances, but would cause existing policies to be more highly valued and carefully kept in force. Another cause for the extraordinary prosperity of the companies was doubtless the phenomenal prosperity of the country, at least in many lines of business. This made possible the payment of renewal premiums where otherwise there might have been lapses or surrenders recorded.

The first thing to attract the attention of the reader of the annual statement of the Mutual Life of Canada, which appears in another column, is the steady increase both in the size and the strength of the Company. The statement shows new business written greater than in any former year to the amount of $1,613,390. It is evident, therefore, that though many prospects for insurance have been lost on account of enlistment in the army, this has been compensated for in the fact that those who remained at home were more accessible.

The net increase in the amount of the business in force is $8,553,551. This remarkable increment is due not only to the amount of new business written, but to the persistence of the old business, in respect to which the Mutual holds the Canadian record.

There is one item in which all the activities of a life company are reflected and that is the surplus earnings. This represents the balance of actual profit after all the operations of the year have been concluded. The amount was $1,158,831, and it must be remembered that this result has been achieved after meeting the extraordinary mortality strain due to the war. As a result the company will continue to pay the liberal dividends for which it is noted.

Two elements of great importance in operating a life insurance office are the rate of interest earned and the ratio of expense to income. Last year it was noted that while the average rate of interest earned on its investments in 1915 had increased, the ratio of expense to income had fallen. This has been repeated in the experience of 1916 and clearly indicates two things—renewed investment and economical management—both of which are essential if the policyholder is to secure life insurance at a minimum of expense.

The year has been one of marked progress in all departments, the business of the Company at the close of the year totalling $109,645,581, the assets $29,261,963, and the surplus over all liabilities $4,595,151. The claim this Company makes that Mutual Life Companies are among the most stable of all financial institutions, is being well borne out in its own experience from year to year.

TERRORIZING HOLLAND.

COPENHAGEN, To-day. Five German Army Corps concentrated on the Holland front are a convincing explanation in default of other reasons, for the failure of the Dutch Government to adopt the policy towards Germany recommended by Wilson on account of the German sub. campaign. That the Germans were assembling large numbers in the vicinity of the Holland border had been the subject of gossip in Berlin military circles for several weeks.

HARD TO FIND WORDS FOR IT.

LONDON, To-day. The Foreign Office has issued a statement showing that just before the rupture of diplomatic relations between Germany and the United States, Germany, through American channels, notified Britain that she would no longer permit as heretofore the transportation of British and German incapacitated war prisoners on hospital ships to and from Holland, such a method of transportation being no longer considered safe owing to the changes which have occurred. It was said that henceforth it would only be permitted by a Dutch Paddle steamer, which would have the conduct from the German side, or by hospital ships to southern France outside the prohibited maritime zone, and thence to Switzerland. The German notification further announced that the transport of severely wounded English was temporarily suspended until Britain replied to this note. The Foreign Office appends a note that comment on the nature of such communication or upon the character that inspires them seems superfluous.

MEAT SCARCIE IN BERLIN.

BERNE, To-day. Americans who have arrived here from Germany with Ambassador Gerard are congratulating themselves on having escaped further wrestling with Germany's food problem. The butchers' windows, well stocked with assorted meats, such as are seen here, are an unwonted sight in Berlin. Meat is now so scarce in the German capital that it is never shown in windows, but is specially distributed without advertising. Customers keep in close touch with butchers so as to know when the next meagre supply will be on sale. Practically all meat is sold on a card entitling each person to half a pound weekly, but a dish made of kidneys, lungs and other scraps can be bought in restaurants without a card. Game and poultry are exempt from the card system and command extraordinary prices. The maximum prices of pork and mutton range from fifty to seventy cents.

PREPARING FOR BERNSTORFF'S DEPARTURE.

NEW YORK, To-day. New York is crowded with shipping and the officers of the various trans-Atlantic lines are busy settling the questions raised by the German blockade declaration. Twelve large steamers came in yesterday and last night, five of them from the danger zone. The busiest place in the shipping district today is the office of the Scandinavian-American line, where final arrangements are being made for the departure of the Frederick the Eighth, upon which the German Ambassador and his staff will return to Europe. The assurance of safety from German submarines has crowded the liner with passengers. It is estimated that she will carry 1200 persons in addition to her crew when she leaves port to-morrow. Extraordinary precautions have been taken by the police of Hoboken where Frederick VIII. is docked and by Federal officials here to guard the pier and the steamship. Ambassador Von Bernstorff will be carried from the railroad terminal upon his arrival from Washington to the Scandinavian-American pier on a navy cutter. The river in the neighborhood of the liner will be patrolled by New York police tugs.

PATRIOTIC SUBSCRIPTION.

LONDON, To-day. The newspapers to-day call attention to the investment of a part of the millions of the Smith family, of Chicago in the new British War Loan by Sir George Alexander Cooper, who on Monday applied for the biggest allotment of stock yet asked for by a private individual, exceeding $2,300,000. Sir George's new investment plus his holdings of the former loan, which he has converted into the new stock, makes a total of $2,825,000 which he has subscribed for. Cooper married in 1887 Mary Emma, daughter of George S. Smith, Evanston, Ill.

FARM AND LABOUR PETITIONS IN CANADA.

OTTAWA, To-day. Mobilization for home defence by means of the enforcement of the Militia Act; the application of the National Service system to the farm problem in order to furnish labor and facilitate production; an occupational survey to determine the previous line of employment of men now at the front; and the utilization of female labor in munitions output are the outstanding recommendations of the National Service directors who have just concluded a lengthy session. The labor situation in the west is the most serious problem which the Board has to deal with. There is a shortage of 15,000 men while 375,000 more acres than last year will await cultivation this spring.

United Epworth League Service

The Quarterly United League Service at George St. Church S. S. room last night was most enjoyable, and the very able address of the Rev. Gordon Dickie, M.A., on "Missions" was much appreciated by the large audience. His brushed aside in the most complete and convincing manner the arguments of those narrow-minded people that object to spending money on the heathen in foreign lands, and the best answer for the success and authority of the men who are carrying out the divine command "Go ye and teach all nations," etc., is the answer of Christ dictated to the disciple of John the Baptist, "Go and tell John of the things ye have heard and seen, how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed and the poor have the gospel preached unto them." The rev. gentleman stated that in many cases, in the hospitals and dispensaries in China, India and Korea, there were missionaries treated by medical missionaries and nurses supported by the churches than those in city and other hospitals supported by the State.

HELP THE GOOD BROTHERS.

His Excellency the Governor and Suite will attend the concert to-morrow night at the Casino Theatre in aid of the Mt. Cashel Orphanage. Besides the certainty of receiving full value for your money, you will be helping the good Brothers in the great work they are carrying on in educating and supporting the fatherless.

AT THE CRESCENT.

The unique comedian Davy Don features in "Otto the Salesman" at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. The Knickerbocker Star features present Marie Empress in "Sibyls Scenario," a great feature in three reels, and Vernon Home Bailey's sketch "Petrolina" an educational topical. On to-morrow a great big holiday programme of all feature pictures. Take in the Crescent on Wednesday.

A Prominent Book-keeper in one of our Water Street firms on looking down the local columns of the Daily News the other morning was very much interested in an item referring to the engagement of a well known West End couple. The book-keeper it appears is a married man and it seems he and his wife were discussing the item in question when the lady stated she intended getting some of the valuable premiums given in exchange for Cigarette Coupons, and to prevent any unpleasantness the "better half" promised in future to buy V. C. Smoking Mixture in the fifteen cent tin. Of course you know there are three coupons in every tin.—feb12,mt

A NEW STUNT AT ROSSIEYS.

Everyone was delighted with the performance at Rossiey's British Theatre last night. Appearing in a funny rural comedy entitled: "The Pooch Bah of Peace Town" Mr. Edmund Fox and Miss Carolyn Carr convulsed their audience with their clever delineations of the poor old Pooch Bar and the would-be divorcee. Special mention must be made of "Widow Brown," who was screamingly funny and it is hoped that she will appear in some future production. Friday night will be "Country Store" night when a large assortment of useful articles in groceries and dry goods will be distributed to patrons of the British Theatre. Full particulars later. The pictures are all new and up to date. "The Grouch" in three parts; "A Jealous Guy," a Vitagraph comedy.

When Appetite Fails And Health Declines Follow This Suggestion

REQUIRES ONLY A COUPLE OF SMALL TABLETS AFTER MEALS TO FIX YOU UP AGAIN.

A New Blood-Food Called Ferrrozene Sure to Restore you Quickly.

Every day comes the good news of wonderful cures with Ferrrozene. In Peterboro' it worked marvels for Louis Meehan—put him right on his feet—made him entirely well. "About three years ago," says Mr. Meehan, "I had the Grippe which left me in a very run-down condition that finally developed into Dyspepsia. I was unable to eat but a few things and had a craving for acid. I gave up treating with the doctors because they did not help me and on the advice of a friend used Ferrrozene. It not only cured me of Dyspepsia and flatulency, but has built up my strength to what it was before I had the Grippe. I can recommend Ferrrozene as an ideal restorative. Ferrrozene gives you force, energy, vim. It strengthens the stomach, cures indigestion, prevents headaches—guarantees good health. Thousands use Ferrrozene—they all feel better; try it yourself—sold in 50 boxes, six for $2.50 at all dealers or direct from The Cattarhozene Co., Kingston Ont.

Look After the Boys.

London Daily Express.—The large number of boys of the hobbledochoy age, freed from the influence of their fathers at the front, and looting in the streets, is a present nuisance and a future menace. Concerts for boys to join the Baden-Powell Boy Scouts would be an admirable scheme. Time that is now spent in idle mischief and worse could be employed to the nation's advantage. Squads of boys, disciplined and enthusiastic, could do all sort of work that badly needs doing, much to their own physical and moral benefit. The fanatics would protest, but in war time a boy is better and happier spending the after-school hours sweeping out a shop under supervision than looting without restraint in the streets.

Shannahan on the Trippers.

Tucker says that a tremendous exodus of our well-to-do-citizens is on just now and he fears that if the outward passenger list keeps up we will have no one left amongst us only those who haven't a copper to rattle on the marble slab of a soda water fountain. Tucker says that all these people look good and healthy and therefore cannot be leaving this salubrious clime for their health's sake. Maybe it is for recreation they are going, for after all, one likes now and then to witness a real drama acted by the genuine actor while in the flesh, or to behold a good old-fashioned boxing match such as we used to have in the Prince's Rink in days gone by. The point Tucker would like to make is that while most of our well to do citizens stroll in far-off lands when they feel like it, they come back to dear old Newfoundland after their rambling and put on a very serious face and sweep over the extravagance of our poor beggars who blow our selves now and again at the Nickel. Nothing gets on Tucker's nerves like this kind of twaddle. It takes the Rich Man all his time to keep his enthusiasm at high pressure, by an annual or semi-annual tour of to the States, Canada or Europe, where an ordinary being is supposed to be as gay as the morning lark and have no 'bust' at all. The well-to-do's lose a lot of sleep over the extravagance of the "Tailor" but does it ever occur to them that the "Tailor" being a human being has a desire for and is entitled to something more than "steady work and a voracious appetite." The "Poor Man" has to manage to live out the three score and ten limit without ever getting a more luxuriant trip than a voyage to Harbor Grace in the "Delta," but the "Rich Man" ere he is followed to his family plot by a "large concourse" has visited all the beauty spots on the globe and taken his wife with him so as he won't get astray. Tucker don't find fault with them for having their "Annual Bust" but would ask them that when they return when they ramble home again that they kindly bear in mind the fact that we were here all through the winter and that we are in no mood to hear from them long speeches as to how we should spend our hard earnings.

A story is told of a little boy who asked his father for the price of the Nickel. "What do you want?" says the indulgent father, "were you not out one night last week to see the eclipse of the moon? Do you want your life to be one continual round of pleasure?" And this is how the Travelling Gentry seem to think that the stay-at-homes are extravagant.
