New Superior Chevrolet

Underwriters Endorse Chevrolet
Now Rated as Class "A" Insurance Risk. Less Than a Dozen Motor Cars—All Much Higher in Price—Have Similar Insurance Rating, Which is the Lowest Possible.

The fundamentally sound construction of Chevrolet Superior Models has again been proved by the fact that the Underwriters have given to Chevrolet, Class "A" insurance rating. This means that the Chevrolet owner gets the lowest possible rate of insurance, which means a saving of from 30 to 40 per cent.

Less than a dozen other cars are rated as Class "A" insurance risks, and these cars are all much higher in price.

This new ruling is further evidence of the attention to detail which our engineers have given to the production of the Chevrolet car, and which is reflected in the increasing popularity of Chevrolet. The Chevrolet car is the most economical transportation unit for the public. It will take you where you wish to go, comfortably, and at lower cost per mile than any other car.

Chevrolet owners save in initial and upkeep cost, and they also save in cost of insuring their cars.

Orders for Chevrolet are taxing factory production schedules. A shortage on Chevrolet cars is threatened as the season advances.

Get in touch with the nearest Chevrolet dealer at once and ask for a demonstration.

DISTRICT AND GENERAL

The United Farmers of Middlesex are planning a big picnic to be held at Strathroy on the 1st of July.

Under the Mothers' Allowance Act 3,771 mothers and 11,640 children under 16 years of age are now receiving benefits.

The New York Tribune says jazz musicians have no right to make $15 per day. Riveters get only $10 per day, make just as much noise and accomplish something.

John Johnson, a prominent farmer of Euphemia township, near Bothwell, died in his sleep on Saturday night or Sunday morning. He had retired apparently in the best of health.

Early Saturday morning the farm house of Silas Stanlake at Sodam, three miles west of Exeter, was destroyed by fire. The wife brother and four children of Stanlake were burned to death.

Maud Johnston, 17-year-old daughter of Rev. E. D. Johnston, of Croton, while worrying over school examinations committed suicide by shooting herself with a shotgun, which she secured at her home during the temporary absence of the other members of the family.

Andrew Meek, who formerly resided in Dutchess for many years, suffered a heavy loss when the large barn on his farm at Talbotville was completely destroyed by fire. Two horses, a calf, two new buggies, two sets of harness and other articles were also consumed.

This year's strawberry crop is going to be smaller than that of last season by thousands of boxes, according to the opinion of growers in Kent county. They say a large percentage of the crop has been "winter-killed" as the result of conditions existing during the winter.

Postmasters have been advised that on and after June 15 post office C.O.D. articles are to be accepted for delivery to every post office in Canada. Heretofore this service was limited only to offices where money orders are issued but is now extended to serve even the small country post office as well as those in the larger centres.

Four young men whose homes are in Windsor and Pettit Cote were arrested on Saturday by the authorities on charges of burglary. According to the police the young men have admitted entering several garages in Kent county, and also have committed several other thefts during the past two weeks at places between Ingersoll and Windsor, including a confectionery store a short distance east of Wardsville.

POLICE PLAN REJECTED
Middlesex county council, after a long and heated debate, has turned down the report of a special committee appointed to investigate the county constabulary.

The committee recommended in its report the appointment of Detective Harry Down as high constable at a salary of $2,700 per year, and that he be provided with a motor car. The report recommended further that the resignations of all present constables be called for, these to be replaced by others. Had the report been adopted approximately 75 county constables would have been affected.

A new committee, consisting of Councillors Elliott, Homan, Sullivan, Henry and Pike, was formed to investigate the matter further and report at Thursday evening's session of the council.

In the debate, Allan McPherson, reeve of Glencoe, said that since the O.T.A. had come into force a curse had been cast upon the county. "It's a question of morals, not dollars and cents," he said. "Young men gather around with bottles as never before. The act, however, is in existence and it must be dealt with."

Counted 13 truckloads of booze being driven through this county during the last three weeks. The county is wide open just as same as the province is wide open," said the speaker, taking his seat.

"Cy" Henry, of Metcalfe, and Councillor Elliott vigorously opposed the appointment of Down on the salary question above.

JOHN DAVIDSON DEAD
Was Governor of Kent County Jail and a Prominent Mason

John Davidson, governor of the Kent county jail, and father of Chas. E. Davidson of Glencoe, died at his home in Chatham Saturday afternoon. Governor Davidson, who was 66 years of age, was born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, and was governor of Kent jail for 13 years.

Arriving from Scotland when a lad of 18, he settled in Thamesville, where he was reeve for many years and represented the town in the county council, being warden of the year the jail was built. He was a prominent Mason, being past district deputy grand master of Erie District No. 1. In 1900 Governor Davidson ran as Conservative candidate in East Kent for the Ontario House, but was defeated. He was a member of St. Andrew's church and for many years sang in the choir. An ardent horticulturist, Governor Davidson had a splendid garden at the jail.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon from his late residence to Thamesville, where burial took place. The services were under Masonic auspices.

LITTLE GIRL SERIOUSLY HURT

Lorene Best Falls Off Bicycle, Sustaining Three Fractures of Nose

While riding a bicycle on Monday evening, Lorene Best, 12 years old, daughter of John G. Best, oil operator, sustained serious injuries when the wheel ran into a rut in the road.

The little girl was thrown forcibly over the handlebars, falling upon her face on the hard gravel of the roadbed. The accident rendered her unconscious for several hours, and an examination by Dr. McIntyre showed her to have sustained three fractures of the nose. Lorene is now making good recovery from her injuries, and no permanent disfigurement or other untoward results are anticipated.

WORK OF THIEVES

On Thursday night thieves broke a chocolate slot machine from its fastenings in front of Roy Siddall's pool rooms and carried it away. The same night G. W. Sutton's car was drained of its gasoline supply and $5 in loose change left in the car was stolen, while an attempt was made to enter the jewelry store of E. Davidson by cutting out a panel of the rear outer door with a knife.

QUICK—LUCAS

A quiet wedding took place at the house in Glencoe Saturday afternoon, when Rev. D. G. Paton united in marriage Miss Lorene Lucas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lucas, and James Russell Quick, son of Mrs. W. R. Quick. After the ceremony a buffet supper was served at the home of the bride's parents, and the young couple left on the 6.37 train for Windsor, Detroit and Cleveland. Mr. and Mrs. Quick will reside in Glencoe and will be at home to their friends at Glangarry Cottage, Main street south, after June 15th.

MELBOURNE INDUCTION

The Presbytery of London will meet in the Presbyterian church, Melbourne, on Friday, June 16, to induct the Rev. G. W. Oliver into the pastoral charge of Melbourne and Riverside.

THE WOOL MARKET

The wool market has taken a decided upward swing of late and prospects appear brighter than has been the case for the past several years. This advanced price is all the more gratifying when an analysis of the situation shows that the demand is in no way fictitious but is the result of the age-old law of supply and demand. The position of the wool market today is sound, prices are far advanced from the depressed low mark of past few years and considerably better than the ruling prices just prior to the world war of 1914. Consumption is ahead of production and as long as that situation remains true the market for wool will continue to be good.—Canadian Farmer.

A HEAVY TYPE OF HORSE

Buyers from Montreal have recently visited Middlesex county in order to secure a heavy type of horses for dray work in Montreal. Four hundred and fifty dollars a team was paid for the suitable class, and R. A. Finn, district representative of the department of agriculture, states that several were secured. M. C. McPhail, district representative of Perth county, also reports that buyers from Toronto visited Stratford recently for the purpose of securing a heavy type of horse and also general purpose horses. "These, I believe, are to be used in farm work in Eastern Ontario," said Mr. McPhail. From $400 to $500 a team was paid for several Clydesdales and from $100 to $150 each for general purpose horses. In the Stratford vicinity a number of tractors are in use as the season advances, and very satisfactory results may be secured, and farm help being so scarce, farmers find the tractor proving beneficial in this respect. The farmers of Perth and Middlesex counties are beginning to realize that more attention should be directed to breeding horses of a superior type as a suitable market can always be found for this class.—St. Marys Journal.

MANY MONDAY HOLIDAYS

All the public holidays between now and Christmas will fall on Monday. The first Monday in July is Dominion Day; the first Monday in August is civic holiday in most places; the first Monday in September is Labor Day; the first Monday in November is Thanksgiving Day, and Armistice Day, falling on Sunday, November 11, will be observed on Monday.

CUTS TAILS OFF CALVES

Windsor, June 6.—An unusual case of mischief was solved Thursday by provincial police when Merwin Campbell, 11 years old, and his brother Carl, 14, confessed that they had chopped off the tails of a large herd of calves on their father's farm in Brooke township. The local detachment of provincial officers was called in by the father, Douglas Campbell, to investigate. He said that for the last six weeks some person had been cutting off the calves' tails and had also been terrorizing him by painting threatening notes on fences and barns on his property.

FOUR WAYS TO GET EGGS WHEN PRICES ARE HIGHER.

I suppose we all think sometimes that our hens are determined to lay all the eggs they can when eggs are cheap, and out of contrivance take vacations when eggs are high.

It is true that hens do lay more eggs when hen fruit is cheap, and fewer when it is high. But the reason is that when everybody's hens are shelling out eggs the price goes down because there are lots of eggs. And when production slows up, naturally the price becomes greater.

I am not going to promise that you can make hens lay heavily when prices are high and less when eggs are low. But I will say that it is wholly possible by careful, sensible management to get more eggs than usual during the later summer months, when eggs are always higher. I am going to mention four plans that I have found by experience will bring more eggs during those months.

Four reasons for the usual summer slackening of egg production are:

1. Broodiness.
2. Parasites.
3. Poorly balanced rations, during the spring as well as in the summer.
4. Heavy laying in spring that lowers the hen's vitality.

So, if we are going to get more higher priced eggs in July and August, these are our problems. The solutions may not be exactly easy, but my experience has shown me that enough can be accomplished to make the effort very profitable indeed.

The slump in egg prices, which usually continues through April and May, by July generally changes to an upward tendency, with higher prices from then on.

That it pays to try to manage the flock so that the laying season is lengthened out. Here are the methods I have used to accomplish the purpose:

1. Prevent broodiness.
- If checked at the very start, broodiness will affect the egg production but little. But if your hens are allowed to sit a few days and get heated up, it is not only hard to break them, but they are also apt to be through with laying for a long period.

The best and simplest way to make a hen decide she doesn't want to raise a family is to put her in a small crate with a wire or slat bottom. This ventilated bottom allows air to circulate under the hen. She is kept uncomfortable. Still better, hang the crate up by wires so it will swing. Two or three days of this will usually break the most determined hen.

Feed in the crate the regular egg mash, plenty of green food and water. This will tend to keep the hens laying and prevent them from drying up. It is well to go through the hen house every night or so during the late spring and early summer, lifting the hens off the nest and taking them to the crate. After roosting is the best time.

I find this plan far superior to starving hens, which in itself checks production, or by wetting them, or any other commonly practiced plan.

2. Destroy parasites.
- Warm weather means more active lice and mites. They sap vitality. Lice and mites are often confused. They are different, and require different treatment. Lice are always on the fowl. They can't live unless they are on the bird, where they breed, hatch, and grow. There are several different kinds of lice, some feeding on the head, others on the neck, some on the back, since their feeding habits are alike, all can be fought alike.

Investigators a few years ago found that sodium fluoride powder was an absolute specific against chicken lice. For about 50 cents a pound your drug-gist will supply the commercial grade. It need not be chemically pure—a pound will dust at least 200 hens.

I use it this way. I hold the hen by the legs, head down. I rub a pinch of fluoride, held between thumb and index finger, along the base of the tail feathers, around the vent, under each wing, down the back, up the back of the neck, and on the back of the head. Usually take three or four pinches for each hen.

Salving a Tuberculous Dairy Herd

Successful Operation of the "Bang System" at the Central Experimental Farm.

About six years ago, the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa introduced the Bang System in connection with its dairy herd, which was then undergoing the process of "accreditation." Under this "accredited" system, a herd is tested for tuberculosis every six months, the reacting animals being removed from the herd. When reactors cease to appear under the test, the herd is accredited by certificate as tuberculosis free. Under the Bang System such reactors as are considered sufficiently valuable are segregated and isolated from all contact with other animals, their progeny being added to the main herd. The length of time during which the reactors are retained depends on their age, period of gestation, producing ability and the progress of the disease; but gradually they are eliminated, and in the course of time the Bang herd ceases to exist.

The object in establishing a Bang herd at the Central Experimental Farm was twofold: first, to preserve for breeding purposes a number of exceptionally valuable cows, and second, to demonstrate the value of the Bang System. The segregated animals were isolated in comfortable, well ventilated and properly appointed premises on an adjoining farm some two miles distant from the Central Farm. The cattle were in charge of a skillful herdsmen, and were treated in a normal manner in all respects. The maximum number of animals in the Bang herd at any one time was 23 head, while the total number isolated during the whole period was 66 head, and included Holsteins, Ayrshires and Jerseys. All of the cows were of high individual merit and record. Some of them remained in the Bang herd throughout the whole period, others were retained for a short time only.

During the winter the segregated animals were kept inside, but in the summer they were pastured. The milk was thoroughly pasteurized and separated, the skim-milk being used for feeding hogs and the cream being made into butter. The cows were for the most part bred to reacting sires. When a reacting sire was not available they were bred to another on neutral ground. The calves were removed or soon after birth and placed in isolated pens until tested before being allowed to mix with the calves from the healthy herd on the main farm. Of the sixty-six head isolated, 49 gave birth to 80 calves. Of this number 18 died previous to six months of age; 17 at the age of six months or over reacted to the tuberculin test, some of which infection undoubtedly occurred in the main herd, it not yet having been cleaned up; 45 remaining free from the disease. Of the latter, 19 have been sold and 26 retained in the breeding herd.

Bang cows were slaughtered. The majority of these were removed to make room for other and more valuable reactors and comparatively few on account of clinical symptoms of advanced tuberculosis. In the latter class there were not more than six cases. On the other hand, there were a number of cows that had outlived their usefulness but were still in excellent condition, which, upon slaughter and examination, proved to be highly generalized and advanced cases. This goes to prove that has been repeatedly observed, namely, that a cow may be in an advanced stage of tuberculosis and still not show any outward symptoms of the disease. Furthermore, the experience with this herd has shown that a cow may be in an advanced stage of tuberculosis and still produce milk quite heavily and profitably. Another outstanding observation as regards the health of the herd was that quite a large percentage of the cows when slaughtered showed only old calcified lesions, while a few showed two distinct sets of lesions, one old and calcified and the other recent and open. This would go to show that in many cases, nature, assisted by a rugged constitution in the animal, had isolated the infection, thus put the animal in the non-spreader class. The presence of a secondary set of open forced by lights and skillful feeding, is likely to mean lower summer production. But, in any event, experience has thoroughly convinced me that, measured by the bank account, the effort to get eggs when prices make them most profitable will be followed by results worth while.

Lesson of the Live Stock Markets.

A survey of the current market reports issued by the Live Stock Branch, indicates an unusually wide difference in the prices for good cattle as compared with those for common. Those offering fairly well finished stock are realizing satisfactory prices, but those in keeping the market in good tone.

At Toronto, during the week ending May 10th, choice steers, animals well bred and properly fed, brought $7.75 per hundred pounds, while common kinds sold as low as $5.25 per hundred. This means that a good steer, weighing 1,200 pounds, would bring $93, while a poor thin steer, weighing say 800 pounds, would fetch only $42, a difference of $51. In the report of the week previous, it is shown that good quality spring lambs sold from lesions in some animals points to re-infection, through being stabled with spreader cases.

Some cows that were in the Bang herd for two, three, and even four years, when slaughtered, proved to be but slightly infected, indicating that an animal may be some time developing the disease even when amongst diseased animals and, when eventually infected, may show considerable resistance to the ravages of the disease. On the other hand, among cows in the main herd that reacted and were slaughtered immediately, numerous generalized open cases were found, which goes to show that infection may take place rapidly and run a rapid course. It may be inferred that the rapidity of infection depends on the virulence of the strain of bacteria introduced and on the power of resistance in the animal itself.

Milk and butterfat records were kept of the Bang herd during the entire period. Eight of the cows qualified in the Record of Merit test and 13 in the test for the Record of Performance. Of the latter, eight records from mature cows averaged 461 pounds of butterfat, nearly all being made in less than 365 days. One Ayrshire cow, Marjorie 8th of Ottawa, during the four years that she was in quarantine, gave 32,987 pounds of milk containing 1,214.74 pounds of fat. This animal when slaughtered proved to be badly infected in the lungs and bronchials. These and other creditable records would indicate that tuberculosis, up to a certain stage, does not necessarily reduce the milk production of some cows, in fact, the production of the Bang herd varied but little from that of the main herd.

An accurate account was kept by the Experimental Farms Branch of the expense incurred in operating the Bang system from December 1, 1916, to November 1, 1921. The receipts for milk calves and manure amounted to $22,108.06. The expenses, which included feed, bedding, rent of building and labor, amounted to $15,930.63, leaving a profit of $6,177.43.

CONCLUSIONS.

In the light of the experience of the Central Experimental Farm, it is concluded that the Bang system is a feasible and practicable where dairymen are desirous of maintaining their herds at a high level of production. According to the views of the Experimental Farm officials, these circumstances would be (1) The existence of a herd or herds of purebred cattle of sufficient size and high quality to make the isolation of reactors and the reclaiming of their progeny profitable; (2) A sufficient number of reactors of high quality within the herd to ensure returns on the overhead charges that must be met in maintaining a Bang herd, which overhead charges might be so great as to exceed the returns from only a few reactors.

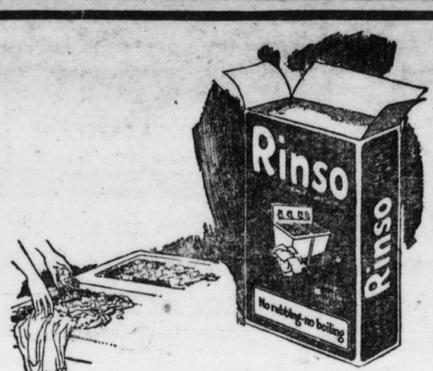

In view of the rapid adoption of the Accredited Herd System, now taking place, and particularly since the reduction of the compensation on reacting animals, there are undoubtedly many herds that might adopt the Bang system and at the same time fulfill the Accredited Herd conditions. In some cases, where the individual herds are not sufficiently large or the reactors within the herd not so numerous as to warrant the introduction of the Bang system, a group of breeders might unite in maintaining a joint herd under the Bang system.

A conclusion which should not escape attention is that if a Bang herd is to justify its existence at all, it must be established simultaneously with the entry of a herd into the Accredited Herd System, for the reason that it is at this time that the greatest number and often the highest quality reactors will be found. As each successive test proceeds, the number of reactors naturally decreases, so that in the course of a few years at most, the herd should have a clean sheet and the Bang herd would be gradually eliminated. It is when the herd has this clean bill of health that the owner who has omitted to establish a Bang herd may wish that he had done so and thus have retained some of his favorite individuals and strains.

$10 to $15 each, with others, considered too young by the buyers, sold as low as $5 each. The week following, four loads of Western lambs brought $15.25 per hundred while poor spring lambs from nearer points brought only $5 each. Really good calves, sold around May 10th, brought as high as $12, while common to medium, commanded prices ranging from $9 down to $5. Hogs were slightly higher that week than during the previous week, but there was the same discrepancy in prices between the good and the ordinary, selects selling on the average for $12.47 and extra heavies for $9.87. In developing trade, quality is a first essential, and therefore is a strong selling factor, while the quality of some other product in which we do business for export. Increased domestic consumption and satisfied customers can only be obtained on the basis of a palatable article.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR

OUR FEATHERED FRIENDS--THE BLUEBIRD.

BY LERGINE BALLANTYNE.

One of the first arrivals among our feathered friends is the Bluebird. He comes with the Robin and the Meadow-lark. Sometimes he is the first of the three to greet us, so that apart from his other virtues, he should be welcomed each year for the glad herald that we know him to be.

The bluebirds are brave little fellows, and very confident. That they trust us is evident from the fact that they build in orchard trees, birdboxes, and sometimes the nests abandoned by woodpeckers.

The bluebird wears a pretty coat of light blue with a vest the color of brick-clay—a sort of reddish brown. This brilliant coloration, together with its gentle ways and murmuring notes, make this bird quite a prized addition to any garden or place in which it cares to make its home.

Because it feeds mainly upon injurious insects, it is highly beneficial, and can in one season work a tremendous amount of good in one locality. Weed seeds also form an important part of its food, and though it eats a small percentage of soft fruit, practically no cultivated kinds are taken by it. We can therefore regard it as a consistently useful bird.

How lovely it would be if we could attract a few of these pretty feathered friends to our homes. If they could be persuaded to use our bird boxes, would it not be a charming sight to see the little flashes of blue darting among our trees, and when we consider the number of insects those bright little eyes can detect as they go up and down, some a branch, would we not find them valuable little friends to have around the lawn or orchard.

THE SWIMMING HOLE.

When the sun rides high in a summer sky And your shadow is short as your nose, On the country road where the earth, dust-dry, Puffs up through your naked toes; When the grasshopper scrapes his monotonous drone Half asleep in the withering grass, When the thirsty leaves scarce turn their leaves

In the hot breeze that pass; When the heat waves quake and shiver and shake On the crest of the sun-baked knoll— Come away with me to the willow tree That shelters the swimming hole!

Come away with me where the willow tree Dapples the water cool, Where the skate-wugs dash and the shiners flash In the depths of the magic pool; Where the lilies float at the mossy brink, Where the thrushes bathe, where the robins drink

Come away with me where the waters free Dance merrily over the shoal, Come away with me to the willow tree That shelters the swimming hole! —Cave Scout.

My experience in marketing crops right around home last season taught me that the way to sell is to let people know what you have to sell.

I had planted more peas, beets, turnips, and cabbages than I needed for home consumption. Always before I had found it necessary to haul the stuff twelve miles to market or let it waste. This time I tried different tactics. Many of my neighbors did not have the same kind of produce, so I resolved to see what a little advertising would do. First, I told a few whom I knew had no early garden. The result was that all my produce was sold out in short order. I charged the regular city market price, and my patrons were more than satisfied.

You would not think such things as beet greens, turnip beets, turnips, and carrots would sell in a farming community. I sold them last year. Cabbage and peas came on the last of June and I did not have half enough. This year I am planting more.

When sweet corn was ready for market, I put a notice in the entrance of a small shoe factory, in a village two miles away. I sold several hundred dozen ears in a week. I sold my early potatoes and all my garden crops, the customers often coming to the door. In other cases I delivered within a radius of two miles from the farm. It paid me to develop the home market.—C. H.

A New Food. One thousand reindeer carcasses recently arrived in Vancouver, British Columbia, from Alaska and Northern Canada. They are being shipped to New York and other eastern cities. There are more than 100,000 reindeer in Alaska and similar shipments will be made in the future.

The idea has been developed in this country that whatever has been done in the guise of clearing land for new settlers was, and is, excusable. This idea, together with general carelessness and lack of interest in the public property, has resulted in the destruction of an incalculable quantity of timber through fire started from brush-burning and land-clearing.

Why I Keep My Mower Sharp.

BY WALTER S. ERLING.

As a boy on the farm did you learn to mow hay with the scythe? You were careful of what became of the blade, for it was harder to swing when the edge became dulled.

But when one sits on the mower with the horses furnishing the power, it is more easy to forget that worn cutting parts make the work harder. We have learned that the power of three horses may actually be required to pull effectively a two-horse mower when it is very dull and some of the parts are badly worn.

The knife is only half the problem of keeping the mower sharp. A mower cuts like a pair of shears. No matter how sharp the blades of a pair of shears may be, they will not cut properly unless firmly held together.

The knife can readily be sharpened, but the ledger plates when worn must be replaced, either by putting new ones into the guards or by replacing the entire guard. As the guard is usually bent or worn by the time the ledger plate becomes dulled, it is often better to replace the whole guard rather than merely the plate.

If the sections no longer fit down closely upon the ledger plates, there are usually two causes for the play—wear of the clips which hold the knife down, and wear of the steel wearing plates which support the knife in the rear. The clips can be hammered down and the wearing plates may be taken out and turned over, so that the unworn under side comes into use, or they may be replaced by new ones.

With a few dollars' worth of new parts and a few hours of work I have seen smooth-running, clean-cutting mowers made out of machines that at first appeared to be ready for the junk pile. The life of the mower is in the cutting parts—the gears and truck do not readily wear out.

Seven points to be considered in keeping the mower in good cutting shape are:

1. Keep the knife sharp and the sections tight.
2. Keep sharp ledger plates in the guards. These do not wear very rapidly.
3. Keep all the guards level by bending, or shimmying between the bar and guards. Test them by laying the edge of a carpenter's square on the ledger plates.
4. Replace the wearing plates when they become worn so as to cause the tips of the sections to raise from the ledger plates.
5. Replace the knife head guide or shim it for adjustment when it becomes worn.
6. Keep the clips hammered down just tight enough to eliminate play but not to bind.
7. The sections should centre at least approximately in the guards at the extreme end of the pitman stroke when the pole is held about 30 inches from the ground.

Cranberry Culture.

Cranberries, in the opinion of Mr. M. B. Davis, Chief Assistant to the Dominion Horticulturist, and author of the bulletin "Cranberry Industry and its Possibilities in Canada," could be profitably grown a good deal more extensively in this country than they are. At present cranberries are cultivated in Canada only on a few bogs in Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island,

Quebec and British Columbia, although there are many acres of unemployed land suitable for cranberry culture. A point made is that, as a very large portion of the crop we import from the United States is grown at Cape Cod, the freight haul from there is very little less, if any, than it would be if the Eastern Canadian producer desired to ship to the western markets. It would appear, therefore, that there is opportunity for the more extensive development of the industry. The pamphlet contains information as to the nature of the site required, the system of cultivation to be followed, the enemies to be combated, and the cost of preparation. An instance is given of a sixteen acre bog in Nova Scotia that was purchased, cleared, tilled, ditched, sanded, dyked, and planted for $4,500. Although the cost is comparatively large, the profits from bogs are quite in proportion to the cost, when they are properly handled. Forty to fifty barrels an acre are often obtained, and thirty barrels are the average.

Translated literally the word "hull-but" means "holly founder."

Chivalry.
Now listen you who'er love said
That Chivalry long since is dead,
To a little tale that I will tell
Of a knight who loved his lady well.

"Twas in a vineyard, bare and bleak,
Though May buds promises did speak
Of beauty that should clothe it soon;
'Twas in the sunny afternoon.

A lady in a gorgeous gown,
A singer, too, of high renown,
Flew from a barn to her nesting tree
With a piece of straw, and such small booty.

Her lord and master, bluer still,
With redder breast and sweeter trill,
Close followed in her busy flight
The lady of his dear delight.

She halted there upon a post (How blue she was, how black the post!)
Her waiting mate flew to the ground
And there—surprise!—a worm he found.

Then what? Instead of gobbling it,
As most would do, you must admit,
With joyful dart he joined his mate,
And sang a song to the worm she ate.

—L. G. Young.

Moscow's "Human Wolf."

Komaroff, "the human wolf," as Moscow calls him, was placed on trial recently. He is the author of an appalling series of crimes, reminiscent of the darkest "murder den" legends of Central Europe. After his capture he confessed to no less than 33 murders, the bodies of 22 of the victims of which had already been found. Five more were dug up after his confession, and the rest of 12 apparently been lost in the Moskva River.

For the last two years the Moscow police have been baffled by discoveries, incessantly repeated, of bodies of men tightly bound up in sacks. Twenty-one were found in various parts of the city, on wheat ground, mostly in districts south of the river. The police noted two remarkable things: First, all of the bodies were tied up in the same fashion—"trussed like chickens for roasting," said one of the inspectors with horrid realism—and second, the discoveries were nearly always made on Thursdays or Saturdays. Further inquiry showed that the sacks generally contained scraps of hay or oats, indicating that the owner had something to do with horses. Most of the bodies were found in the Shabolovki quarter, where there is a horse market on Wednesday and Friday. This discovery narrowed the range of investigation considerably.

After a patient search, it was found that a certain dealer, named Komaroff, rarely seemed to do business at the market, but was often seen to go away with a prospective customer. He had a stable with horses at his home and three children, the eldest 5 years old. There was no direct link connecting him with the murders, and his reputation was excellent. He was a "genial smiling man," according to the report on him, "with nothing strange about him save that the pupils of his eyes were unusually small in comparison with the whites." So the police raided his home under the pretext of searching for an illicit still.

In the stable, under a pile of hay, they found the body of Komaroff's latest customer, in a sack. Komaroff escaped through a window, but was caught a few days later.

According to his confession, robbery was the motive of the crimes, which brought him an average of 80 cents each, but the man is evidently a Sadist for once he tried to hang his 8-year-old son, who was saved only by his mother's cutting him down.

Suited Him, All Right.
Noticing one of her pupils nibbling at some luncheon in school one day, the teacher called the culprit to the desk.

"You know," she began sternly, "that you must not eat during lesson hours. Now, as a punishment, you must stand in front of the class and eat every bit of it."

The small boy did as he was bid, a curious grin overspreading his face.

The teacher misunderstood that grin until the last scrap had disappeared, when from the class a small voice wailed in tearful accents:

"Please, teacher, that wasn't his lunch he was eatin'; it was mine!"

Collapsible Orchard Ladder Makes Fruit Picking Easy.

A collapsible orchard ladder is made in two sections. The upper section of the two-part ladder is disposed at an obtuse angle to the lower one, and terminates in a single rail. As this rail is sheathed, no damage to the bark is possible when it is adjusted between the limbs of a fruit tree, and the fruit picker can pick over a considerable range without having to descend and shift the ladder to a new position.

According to Custom.

Customer—"What? Why, revolvers were not invented in Columbus's time."

Surnames and Their Origin

KELSEY
Variation—Kelsey.
Racial Origin—English.
Source—A place name.

Here is a family name which though it is properly classified as an English one, really traces back to an ultimate Celtic origin, rather than to Anglo-Saxon sources. As a family name, however, it is just as likely to be borne by descendants of the Anglo-Saxons as the Cornish-British from whom the place name comes down.

The village or town of this name, spelled Kelsey today, is in Lincolnshire. An older spelling, and one closer to the original name in the Cornish tongue, was "Kelsyck" or "Kelsy."

"Kel" in the ancient tongue of the Cornish, signified a "neck" in the geographical sense, and the word "syc" or "syck" meant "dry."
The place name is, of course, of great antiquity, antedating the Anglo-Saxon invasion of that section of England, and like other place names in the middle ages, it became the basis of a family name indicating originally that

Light Without Heat Invented in France.

A French engineer has made a discovery which, it is believed, will cause a revolution in methods of illumination. At present most electric lamps use up 70 per cent of their energy in giving out heat rather than light. Rieler has constructed a lamp which gives out light without heat. He makes use of a vacuum tube through which a phosphorescent material is passed. As soon as the electric current is passed through this, a light is produced which is brighter than that of the largest lamps now in use.
The consumption of energy is only 15 watts an hour in a tube six metres long and seven millimetres in diameter.

No Death by Accident on Railway in 50 Years.

There is a railroad in operation today which holds the remarkable record of never having had an accident so severe as to cause loss of life, says a London despatch. "It must be a toy railroad," some one will say. But even these meet with dire catastrophes sometimes.
This is a real railroad, which has been running for more than fifty years, and is still running today. During that time it has carried more than 1,000,000,000 passengers and not a life has been lost due to accident on the road. It is the North London Railway, begun by Robert Stephenson.

PAIN IN THE JOINTS

Is An Indication That the Blood is Thin and Watery.

The first sign of rheumatism is frequently a pain and swelling of one of the joints. If this is not treated through the blood, which is the seat of the disease, the poison spreads, affecting other joints and tissues—sometimes rheumatism attacks the heart and is fatal.

A remedy that has corrected many cases of rheumatism is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills enrich and purify the blood so that the poisonous rheumatic matter is driven out of the system as nature intended. Miss Gertrude Denne, Washago, Ont., was attacked with rheumatism and found relief through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says: "About a year ago I was attacked by rheumatism and for two weeks was confined to my bed. The trouble was so painful, affecting the joints of my limbs so that I could not stand alone. Mother had a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the house and thought they might help me. I began taking them, and when I had taken these pills got a further supply, with the result that the rheumatism vanished and I was a well girl. I may add that my mother and two of my sisters have also used the pills for various ailments with equal success, and now we are never without them in the house."

If you are suffering from any condition due to poor, watery blood, or weak nerves, begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now, and note how your strength and health will improve. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail, at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Giant Spiders.

A spider native of Trinidad has a body as large around as a fifty cent piece, and eight legs, which spread themselves out to a circumference the size of a cheese plate. For months at a time these spiders, husband and wife, will lie irrespectably together in a chosen corner of a cupboard or ceiling, where they stay during the hours of daylight, the wife clasping her white egg case to her body by her forelegs. After dark, when they hunt, they run all over the house, for they spin no web, but get their living catching cockroaches by sheer fitness of foot. They are seldom disturbed or killed, partly because of their very considerable running powers.

Soliloquy.

The roads of June are paved with shadows dancing,
The flowers now magic know,
Through trees, thick-leaved, the silver moon is glancing,
The glad reeds whisper low.

Soft ivy-fingers at my pane are tapping,
When zephyr drowsy dream,
And idle willows in the dusk are lapping
The waters of the stream.

June's cup of loveliness my heart is quaffing,
Ah, merry sounds the surge upon the bar,
As in the moonlight lone it tumbles laughing
At Eves' loyal star.

The heartstrings of the summer night are throbbing
Like pulsing of sweet lyres,
Then laughter of the creeping Morn comes, robbing
The dream and heart desires.

Eastern Church to Adopt Gregorian Calendar.

On October 1 the ecclesiastical calendar of Eastern Christendom will be brought into harmony with the Gregorian calendar, instead of sticking to the Julian, the Congress of all Orthodox Churches, under the presidency of Patriarch Meletios, decided.

On October 1 thirteen days will be added to the calendar, making it October 14, the same as most of the rest of the world. The change is due to the fact that most of the Oriental countries have adopted the Gregorian calendar, the latest country to do so being Greece.

The decision signifies celebration of all fixed Christian feast days in both east and west. As for Easter, the congress decided the Gregorian method of reckoning it is erroneous. Delegates look forward to adoption of a scientific calendar everywhere that will make Easter a fixed feast.

Meletios, the congress charged the observatories at Athens, Belgrade, Bucharest and Petrograd to draw up a table fixing Easter scientifically until the year 2000.

When the baby is ill—when he is constipated, has indigestion; colic; or any other minor ailment of little ones—the mother will find Baby's Own Tablets an excellent remedy. I now always keep a supply of the Tablets in the house." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

This tree awakened to a soul in flowers,
Exquisite joy into our hearts to bring.

Sell Verse-Scratched Inn Window for $65.

"There are Three Crosses at your door, hang up your wife and you'll count four."

A small pane of glass bearing the above couplet, scratched in a moment of chagrin by Jonathan Swift, the famous Dean of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, has just been sold by auction for $65.

Swift was wont to sleep at an inn called Three Crosses at Willoughby, near Rugby, on his way to and from his deanery in Ireland. On one occasion the landlady's wife, being occupied with other visitors, offended the irascible author of "Gulliver's Travels" by paying him less than usual attention.

To mark his displeasure of a hasty observation, Dean Swift scratched the couplet on the window with his diamond ring.

That was 200 years ago and since that day the name of the inn has been changed to Four Crosses.

Electric Rain Alarm.

Falling rain is likely at any time to drive into a room and damage the floor, wallpaper and furnishings. One manufacturer has devised an electric rain alarm which will give warning as rain in any quantity falls into a room.

The device consists of a box containing a battery, a buzzer, a small electric light and a switching arrangement that holds what the maker calls a "ratto-disc." The box is put on the window sill at night when the window is left open for ventilating purposes.

The falling rain drops on the disc, switches on the current and throws both light and buzzer into circuit. The buzzer awakens the sleeper and the light shows which window needs attention.

How Backache and Periodic Pains Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Leslie, Sask. — "For about a year I was troubled with a distressing downward-bearing pain before and during the periods, and from terrible headaches and backache. I hated to go to a doctor, and as I knew several women who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with good results, I finally bought some and took four bottles of it. I certainly do recommend it to every woman with troubles like mine. I feel fine now and hope to be able to keep your medicine on hand at all times, as no woman ought to be without it in the house." — Mrs. OSCAR A. ANDERSON, Box 15, Leslie, Sask.

Mrs. Kelsey Adds Her Testimony

PUBLICITY AND CRIME

Publicity as an incentive to crime was the subject of a protest by Calvin W. Rice, of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, at their convention in Montreal.

Mr. Rice declared that only eighty-three per cent. of the eight thousand murders committing crimes in the United States last year were pinched. He displayed copies of daily newspapers from many cities with front pages marked in red where murders were reported and contended that the reading of such items daily panders to the criminal element and contributes to the prevalence of crime. He asked members to do what they could to eliminate such matters and to refuse to read it.

When a man is exalted to a public position he has a right to demand the support and loyalty of every citizen who approves of his action. It is not so easy to get men to accept public office, and when we have men who are willing to act to the best of their ability in the performance of the duties of their office, they should be encouraged and not discouraged, which is too often the case.

One-half of the world is busy trying to separate the other half from its coin.

Many a man would be unable to paddle his own canoe if he couldn't borrow some other man's paddle.

Extra copies of the Transcript may be had at the office ready wrapped for mailing to friends at a distance.

TWO OF A KIND

A menagerie-keeper was bemoaning his hard fate that his one and only lion had died that morning, when an Irishman approached and asked him for a job.

"Yes," said the proprietor, "I can give you a job and an easy one at that. My only lion died this morning and we've just skinned him. If you'll wrap yourself in the skin and lie down in the corner of his cage, I'll give you two dollars a day."

"Good enough!" cried Pat.

Having been robed in the lion's skin and posed in apparent sleep in the corner of the cage the curtain was drawn, and Pat saw a curious crowd gaping at him.

"Now, said the proprietor, "this is a splendid lion from Nubia. He is the king of beasts, and it is astonishing how his mere presence subdues the most ferocious of his fellow wild beasts. I shall lift the intervening door and you will see this noble beast will enter the tiger's den."

"Here, mister," whispered Pat "I didn't bargain for that!"

"Go on," cried the other; "there's no danger."

"I'm not going in."

"Well, then, not a cent do you get from your job, and the tiger is harmless." I tell you the tiger is harmless."

The prospect of no wages instilled some courage into the poor man, and he made a shuffling movement towards the door of his companion "wild beast." But one look at the tiger sent him shivering all over as he moaned: "I can't go in!"

When the tiger saw his fear, he said in a stage whisper: "Come in, you idiot. I'm an Irishman, too!"

A. E. Sutherland, Publisher.

Ever since hydro-electric power was brought to Glencoe interruption in the service has occurred with almost every wind, rain or thunder storm of ordinary intensity. Surely there is some remedy for this.

Jobs are plentiful in this district now. Farmers are calling for men; the wages are good, and as J. C. Spencer, superintendent of the Ontario Government Employment Bureau, London, says: "Any able-bodied man who is willing to work need not be out of employment."

For the first time in the history of the world so far as known, the aeroplane is to be brought into use as a conveyance to bring voters to the polls at the coming Ontario elections on June 25. The far-distant polling station of Moose factory is to usher in this new world record.

The post office department has issued a warning to the public that in mailing letters or parcels when more than one stamp is used there must be no overlapping, that is, all of the stamps must be fully exposed. The stamps used which are partly covered by others will not be accepted.

No sooner does the blackbird get away with the tender corn plant and the potato bug make his first of the season onslaught on the potato vine than along comes the big city fair announcement to remind the farmer where he can most easily spend his dough when he threshes his pumpkins.

The garden party season is right at hand, and the early prospects are that these popular entertainments will be as numerous this season as ever. Nothing yet has been devised to attract people and entertain them in a manner equal to the garden party. They usually combine a pleasant drive, a good program and an opportunity to meet friends, at a season of the year when nature excels.

The provincial election campaign is developing some wonderful situations in the Middlesex, for instance, the Grits and Tories will walk arm in arm to the polls—perhaps; and that erstwhile staunch old Grit organ the Globe is now out on all fours in support of Adam Beck, the Tory candidate for London. Anything to defeat the U.F.O. or boost Toronto's hydro-radiant scheme appears to be the watchword of the old parties.

In silence she suffered, with patience she bore Till God called her home to suffer no more. —Loving Daughter and Son-in-law, Geneva and Jack.

TOWN AND VICINITY

Elections Monday, June 25th. The Comber Herald is taking a two weeks' holiday. The June session of Middlesex county council opened at London on Monday. Glencoe races and horse show next Wednesday. Nine hundred dollars in purses; $69 in prizes. Dominion Day, the next public holiday, falls on Sunday, and will be celebrated Monday, July 2nd. John A. Matheson, of Aldborough, will be returning officer for West Elgin in the coming Ontario elections. Glencoe Daughters of the Empire decorated the graves of Great War heroes in Oakland cemetery on Sunday. Linemen of the Western Union Telegraph Company are in Glencoe and vicinity adding lines to the service. The annual horse show and race meet will be held in Glencoe on June 13th when $1,000 in purses will be offered. Delaware defeated Newbury by a score of 16 to 10 in a West Middlesex League game of ball at Delaware Friday evening. A number of the Masonic fraternity and other Glencoe friends attended the funeral of the late John Davidson at Thamesville on Tuesday afternoon. We notice that Maier & Hartlieb, who recently came to Glencoe, are turning out some excellent work in auto painting and repairing. They have their shop in Graham's garage. W. J. Robinson, who died a few days ago at his home near Komoka, was formerly a resident of Glencoe where he was engaged in the butcher and cattle business for a number of years. "The Marrell boys and Williams seem to enjoy publicity," says a London paper. Most criminals do—and the sad feature of it is that too many of the daily papers are disposed to cater to their enjoyment. A game of soft ball between the high school girls and the town girls attracted the attention of many spectators last Wednesday afternoon at the public school grounds. The score was in favor of the high school team. Rev. A. S. Whitehall, of the Glencoe Methodist church, will preach at the anniversary services of Springfield Methodist church, on the Apple circuit, next Sunday, at 2.30 and 7.30 p. m. The choir of the Glencoe church will furnish music at both services. Crinan observes its church anniversary on Sunday, June 17th, and is fortunate in securing Rev. Dugald Currie, D. D., of Montreal, formerly minister of the Presbyterian church, Glencoe, to be the preacher at that day's services, 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. Proclamations announcing the coming provincial general election have been posted up. The nominations will be on Thursday, June 14th, and election Monday, June 25th. For West Middlesex the nomination meeting will be held at Mount Brydges, from 12 until 2 o'clock, standard time. The Western Fair Board, London, are making extensive improvements in their grounds and buildings for the coming fall exhibition, to be held Sept. 8th to 15th. Prize lists and advertising matter for the fair are now being circulated and may be had on application to the secretary, A. M. Hunt, Dominion Savings Building, London.

The auditors' report on the municipal finances of Glencoe for 1922 has been printed and copies are now in the clerk's hands for distribution. Every ratepayer should make it a point to get a copy and keep posted as to how his tax money is being spent. The net debt on Dec. 31st is shown to have been $17,999.49. Hydro-electric operation profit for the year is shown as $521.50.

E. S. Hudson has disposed of the Beamsville Express to George R. Westland, who assumed control of the paper last week and made his bow to its readers in the issue for last week. Mr. Westland has been in the newspaper business for many years of Inisfail, Alberta, and is a practical printer, having learned the trade in The Transcript office at Glencoe and subsequently with the London Advertiser. The Beamsville Express is an exceptionally good local newspaper and will be none the less interesting under its capable new management.

A rare opportunity of enjoying the finest musical and literary entertainments of the season is offered at No. 5 garden party. The Adanac Male Quartette, which has just returned from an extensive tour of American cities, is a feature hard to equal on any program. The following extract is quoted from The New York Observer: "The Adanac Male Quartette appeared at the Auditorium last night and presented what was undoubtedly one of the finest vocal programs ever heard in the city. The program was so arranged to suit the preference of all and was diversified by humorous monologues and piano solos." Pearl Newton, the other main feature of the program, whose impersonations are masterful and of the highest order, is an artist who never fails to hold the attention of her audiences, young and old. These along with other excellent numbers form a program on which the committee is to be congratulated and is deserving of hearty support.

As Tu Hee confessed the fact had held all her attention, Weng Toy read: "Lieutenant Paul Culver, adopted son of Dr. Neil Culver of New York, who has been awarded the highest honors of France and Great Britain, the Croix de Guerre and the Victoria Cross. China has also expressed her pride and esteem of her young countryman by conferring on him the famous sacred ruby of the Chow dynasty. The jewel has not swerved from its natural course, however, as the young hero is a direct descendant of the Emperor Woo Wang himself."

"How wonderful!" breathed Tu Hee, her eyes shining, and then, meeting her guardian's glance, the realization of why the picture had been shown her rushed over her. She turned wide and startled eyes on her uncle. She had looked upon the picture in delight, claiming the young hero as one of her own blood, one of her own noble house, as the brother that had been denied her. Bewildered, she clasped and unclasped her hands. There was confusion and a note of pleading in her voice when she spoke:

"But he is my cousin, Uncle Weng." Weng Toy laid aside the book. He replied calmly and evenly as if making an unchallengeable statement: "He is my nephew, but for reasons which I cannot now disclose, child, the fact would not prevent a closer alliance."

"You mean, Uncle Weng, you really wish me to marry?" Weng Toy lifted his hand. "I wish only for your happiness, my child. It would please me only if it pleased you."

But the words brought no relief to Tu Hee. It seemed that the inevitable was submerging her will power. A strange thing had happened. A problem had entered her life which she must solve for herself and by herself. Bending towards her guardian, Tu Hee brushed his forehead with her lips and ran from the room.

CHAPTER VII.
It was the night Captain Marsden was to dine at the mandarin's. Tu Hee's cheeks glowed until they matched the tints of the gown that Lun was fastening so proudly.

"You grow morose like your mother every day," conceded the old nurse, standing back and surveying her charge with head on one side.

"Ah, tell me about her, Lun, dear. You and Uncle Weng speak of my dear mother so seldom, and to think I haven't even a picture of her. I suppose, though, she was gentle and obedient and loved the husband her parents chose for her?" Lun had become suddenly busy with the trinkets on the dressing table. When Tu Hee paused she nodded and spoke in the quick, nervous way she had when excited. "Yes, yes, madam love husband much, great much, Missie Tu Hee."

"Oh, Lun, how I envy those gentle, willowy-backed creatures who pass us in their rickshaws with downcast eyes, waiting for their greatest joys in life, a husband and a son." "Ah!" There was a hopeful note in Lun's voice. "You envy. You too want husband and son?" "No, I envy their pliant natures, Lun dear. I know if uncle should ever force me to marry I should tear my husband's eyes out and then run away. Poor dear Uncle Weng, I'm afraid he doesn't yet know the little demon the gods left on his curls; although," and here Tu Hee's voice became softly reminiscent, "I believe I could almost adore Paul Culver."

"Eh?" Lun turned so quickly that the box of rouge flew out of her hand, half of it lodging down her neck and the other half on top of Tu Hee's head. "Scampering mice!" ejaculated Tu Hee, peering anxiously in the glass at her brightly powdered coiffure. "Shimmering fish scales! Lun, what have you done? And dinner in five minutes. Quick—dust me. You know how uncle likes murder with dinner waiting." While she was talking Tu Hee was dusting and knocking furiously at the red powder, which seemed to be getting redder and spreading with every flap of the handkerchief. "The Gods of Speed be with you, Lun. Hurry!"

Lun forced her wringing hands apart, but after fruitless efforts to dislodge the bright color, she resorted to artifice. Unwinding one of the long strands she drew it over the top of Tu Hee's head, giving the appearance of an ebony coronet.

Catching her reflection in the long mirror, Tu Hee clapped her hands. "You're a witch, Lun. You've made me two inches taller, and when I carry my head so, Uncle Weng will not dare to even look a scold from the corner of his eye."

"Yes, that hair dress does suit. But Missie Tu Hee, what you know about Paul Culver?" "Why surely, Lun, you don't need to be told any part of the family history?"

"Lun's hands went together. 'Well?' 'Don't you know he's uncle's nephew—my cousin and—' But at this point Tu Hee paused. 'But if you don't know, perhaps—' 'Of course I know all—but how you know?' Then fearing she had committed herself, the woman added quickly: 'Master no like velly much to speak.' 'Ah, but it's different now, Lunee dear. He is a great man. He won wonderful honors in Europe and the Chow dynasty ruby has been conferred on him.' 'You say so?—True?' The woman's eyes had become like round black beads. The dark skin of her cheeks foiled together and a chuckle came from her open mouth. 'Yes, isn't it wonderful?' Tu Hee, who for the first time in her life missed her nurse's finishing touch to her toilet, was giving the final pat to her dignified coiffure herself. 'Little Paul,' muttered the Chinese woman. 'The gods took care then.' From the doorway Tu Hee turned and looked at her curiously, but whatever question was on her lips remained unsaid for at that minute the big clock in the hall chimed eight, so tucking away her curiosity she flew from the room.

As she sped down the hall towards the drawing-room voices reached her from the mandarin's study. She paused, puzzled that her uncle should treat his foreign guest so informally as to have him in his private apartment. She slipped behind the heavy drapery to recover her poise after her undignified haste, and was amazed to hear Chu Sing's voice coming from the room, muffled but angry.

"Broad, you call yourself? You are binding yourself with foreign chains in permitting that girl to dine openly with a foreign devil. You call her life freedom. I call it a damn disgrace. She will have no modesty left in a year's time with such training."

Weng Toy's reply came back low and tense. Tu Hee clasped her hands nervously. Only once before had she heard that note in her guardian's voice, once when he had caught a slave beating a woman.

"You are a drunken man and not responsible, or I would choke the breath out of you."

The other's voice wavered until it was almost a pleading whine. "I suppose you would consent to her marriage with the foreign devil?"

Tu Hee did not realize she was eavesdropping. The knowledge that she was the pivot of the conversation magnetized her to the spot. She held her breath now for the denial she expected to be forthcoming.

"And why not? She is but a gift to China!" Tu Hee's head swam. She grasped the edge of the door to steady herself. What did Uncle Weng mean? Was he disowning his own blood? She made a step forward to confront him, when the derisive laugh of Chu Sing sent her shuddering back, and she listened tensely, fearing she knew not what.

"A gift—a gift of the gods!" Tu Hee's heart gave a throb of relief. She wanted to throw herself forward laughing for joy, so great was the relaxation that swept over her, but instead she stepped out into the hallway and proceeded towards the drawing-room, her head high, a true mandarin's niece and daughter of a heathen China.

David Marsden, whose artistic eye had been trying to regulate his impatient heart and failing miserably, crossed eagerly to meet the bewildering vision that entered the room. For six days he had been delving assiduously into Chinese etiquette, but now stood forgetful of it all, aware only of the ecstasy of being able to gaze again into a pair of eyes the blueness of which had brought back a little of God's sunshine into his broken life.

"My uncle has been detained," Captain Marsden, by an unexpected caller," explained Tu Hee, as she gave him her hand. "I am sure she regrets keeping you waiting, for Uncle Weng is punctuality itself."

"The time flies so rapidly in this interesting room I didn't even know I had been kept waiting," reassured David, obeying her motion to be seated.

"This interests you?" David fidgeted under the quizzical look in the blue eyes and wondered if she were laughing at him. He smiled, then, when she continued naively: "Please don't say it looks unusual to you. We like to think this room is tolerably foreign in appearance. I know Uncle Weng had that object in view when he furnished it."

It was with a decided effort David made himself agreeable with light talk, an entirely new experience for him when with the fair sex. His admiration for the Eastern maiden was growing by leaps and bounds. Her poise and self-confidence in comparison with her years astonished him. She couldn't possibly, he decided, be more than eighteen, and how lovely she looked, like some rare, delicate, exotic flower with a peculiar refinement all her own! Why didn't English women wear gowns that rippled like pink rose vines down to slippers as dainty as buds?

"If you are really interested in what we of the East consider beauty, Captain Marsden—"

David endeavored to get a firm and equal grip on his two senses, hearing and seeing. It required great effort, though. Yes, her voice, he decided, equalled her other points. It was soft and almost lazy in its nonchalant way, yet saved from monotony or drawl by an almost American alertness that rounded off each word.

Tu Hee paused in the middle of a sentence. "But perhaps I am presumptuous in supposing you are interested in us. After all, your mission in our country, I understand, is not voluntary."

"Indeed, Miss Weng Toy, the East has fascinated me from childhood. I appear dazed and absent-minded I assure you it is not indifference. It is rather that, please pardon me how I have been so abruptness to your Eastern training, you are a very unusual young lady."

But Tu Hee was not at all affronted. Her lips parted in an alluring smile and she leaned towards him eagerly. "Do you really think me that? Do I seem at all nice to your foreign eyes? O Captain Marsden, if you only knew how I've been enjoying the magazine of the past week! And that pretty young lady—Mrs. Claymore told me she is your cousin—"

"ah yes, vivacious company" (To be continued.)

The Liveryman's Prayer.

It was a hot August afternoon when the gasoline stove in Mrs. Jones' kitchen exploded. As the Jones shack was the only house in the block, no one heard the noise; and no one saw the fire until the flames burst from the window. As the town was a new one in the remote West there was no fire company; and there was, moreover, not enough water to fight such a fire.

Mrs. Jones was terribly burned. She had managed to drag herself out of the room, and when neighbors came they carried her away from the intense heat. The doctor, who arrived a few minutes later, examined her burns, and said there was no hope for her.

"I want a minister!" pleaded the woman. "The minister's gone to the next town to preach," some one replied. "Somebody pray for me, then!" The women shook their heads; all that they and the half dozen men gathered round could do was weep. None of them had ever prayed aloud.

"Can't somebody pray for me?" Without a word Jim Peck, the liveryman, stepped forward and knelt by her side. "O Lord," he began, "this isn't in my line. I should be prayin' for myself instead of somebody else; but, Lord, you know how Mrs. Jones is hurt for her. Now, Lord, if you'll help her an' save her, we'll all go to church an' learn how to pray. Amen."

"Did I do wrong, minister?" the man said to the Rev. Henry Walker on Sunday, after relating his experience. "You did right. Your prayer was as effective as any minister's would have been. The Lord looks on the heart, not on the outward appearance. But, Mr. Peck, God has called you to be a Christian, and, as you led in prayer for Mrs. Jones when she lay dying, He wants you to pray for all your neighbors."

"Do you think so?" "I know it! God wants you to lead this town to Christ. This tragic death is a summons for every man and woman in the town!" "I'll have a lot of things to unlearn," answered Peck thoughtfully, "but with God's help I'll try."

The next Sunday he and four other men came forward and, kneeling before the dry-goods box that served as pulpit, received Christian baptism and the right hand of fellowship into the church. Peck was made a deacon and prays with spiritual fervor whenever there is need. The dying have sent for him in the absence of the minister, and he never refuses to help men and women to find Christ.

Woman's Interests

YOUR SUMMER PROCES.

Batiste and Valenciennes lace! Sheer voile and all-over embroidery! Dainty and tucked net! Soft muslin, colorfully embroidered! If you are in your teens or a little older, these are the cream of the sheer stuffs to choose from this summer. Take any one of them, add flounces, tiers, or tucks that look like skirt sections, and you are almost sure to come out with a pretty frock.

You see, soft goods won't stand for the severe treatment we have been giving organdie for the last two or three years. They need trimming. Lines to cut them up. And fullness to fluff them out. I'm almost tempted to use the word lingerie in describing them. There's so much lace. Lace to edge the bertha and the sleeves and flounces. You can slip by with one row, but three or four is all the prettier.

As one might expect, when daintiness is the quality to be achieved, the lace is Valenciennes. Flounced dresses are made straight as to waist, a rather close-fitting skirt foundation. And then just as many flounces as you please. The material is an embroidered voile with a broad satin ribbon sash that blends with the embroidery.

This brings me to another smart trimming: ribbon edges. There's a great variety made especially for finishing. Sometimes these edges are formed of a narrow and wide ribbon sewed together on one side. Can't you picture a white batiste embroidered in blue, with its flounces edged with blue and blue ribbons? Other ribbons are scalloped or plicated. All you have to do is to turn the edge of the flounce an eighth of an inch, press it, lap it over the ribbon, and slip-stitch it in place. It goes surprisingly fast.

In the case of a three-tiered skirt, bandings make attractive trimmings. A plain white batiste or voile could be made quite out of the ordinary if Egyptian embroidered batiste or wool-embroidered organdie were inserted an inch above the bottom of the tiers. These bandings vary in width from one to two inches. For wide tiers, four-inch bands are effective.

Of course, not all of the tiered and flounced dresses are sheer cotton. One meets them almost as often in silk. In small-patterned silks they are especially pretty. Here the edges are bound with self-bias and the fastenings finished with ribbon—grograin, picot-edged ribbon, or velvet.

And even heavier goods, such as cotton ratine, show a tiered effect. An easy way of accomplishing this is to tuck a straight skirt. Since the lower edge of the skirt is straight, it's a style that could be copied in checked gingham or a bordered goods.

"Ha, I caught you that time. It's d-u-m-b."

To Recover a Debt.
The way to get a man to pay his debts is to get him to be a man. Sometimes you have to get him mad to bring him manless to the surface; you have got to "get his goat" to get his money. ## Men or Deer?

In England under the severe taxation following the Great War estate after estate is passing from the hands of the hereditary owners. Some are merely sold to wealthier persons, but many are broken up or from properties productive for generations chiefly of beauty are turned into farms and made to earn their keep. No doubt that is well, though we can but sympathize with the hard-pressed owners of many lovely domains who in the past have shared with the public the loveliness of their lands.

Lord Shaw of Dunfermline has recently related that he was called to the defense of some prisoners, crofters under the leadership of a village schoolmaster, who had been arraigned for their part in a deer raid. It was not a poacher's raid but a protest, a lawless and unwise one perhaps, but the crowd authorities overtook the mark when they called it "mobbing and rioting."

"The loneliness of the spot," says the narrator, "the total absence of any terror or alarm to anyone except the deer or the hawk or the curlew, made a charge of mobbing and rioting ridiculous. The advantage of it, however, from the point of view of the administration was that it could be followed by such swiftness of sentences, even that of penal servitude, as might stamp out land agitation for a generation."

The defence did not try to prove its clients innocent of offense but that their offense was merely under an old statute—"assembling and trespassing to the number of five or more in pursuit of game," penalty five pounds each. The climax of the trial came dramatically when Lord Shaw argued the impossibility of the mobbing and rioting charge in such a region.

"What a picture!" he exclaimed. "No less than one hundred and fifty square miles of forest under deer! The people lifted from the good inland holdings to the wastes near the shore, and the whole island consolidated—turned into one vast solitude—sport! Then I quoted amid dead silence Tennyson's lines on pagan England: 'And there grew great tracts of wilderness. Wherein the beast was ever more and more. But man was less and less!'"

"There was an uproar in the court in which I think I saw the jury joining with their feet!" a tumult that the court and the ushers perceptibly suppressed. But the jury's mind was clear. All six prisoners were found not guilty and went free amid acclamations.

So much did the trial mean to the people that thirty years afterwards a Scotch hostman said solemnly to Lord Shaw's son: "Sir, there is many a man in Scotland would die for your father."

Leaky Faucets on Public Treasuries.
Every time a Canadian forest burns down, the public treasuries are stripped of a future cash return. Under our system of forest leases, the provincial treasuries of Ontario, Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and British Columbia collect so many dollars for every thousand feet cut by the lumber operator or for every cord of pulpwood cut by the paper maker. This arrangement makes the public a financial partner with the millman. When he destroys the "limits" of the "X. Y. Z. Company," the latter is of course a heavy loser but the Public also suffers the yearly revenues that would have come to the Treasury from the dues on the wood cut.

The public impression that "limits" represent "alienated" resources is largely in error for the public treasury is a financial shareholder with the lessee of the limit and in case of fire damage, the penalty is fixed on both.

For example, one of the largest spruce limits in Ontario has been fifty per cent. destroyed by prospectors searching for minerals that were never found. The limit holder lost part of his heavy investment, his payroll was cut down by the fact of the timber being burned, and the province lost one dollar in dues for every one of the million cords that went up in smoke. Forest fires are paid for by the Public every time.

NORTHERN ONTARIO DISTRICTS AGAIN THREATENED BY FOREST FIRES

White River Still in Danger Should Wind Arise—Timber Limits in Vicinity of Sudbury Suffer Considerable Loss—Forest Rangers Better Equipped Than Last Year to Handle Situation.

Port Arthur, June 1.—The situation at White River, threatened by forest fires, has improved, but the danger is by no means past, and should a wind spring up serious consequences would result.

The situation in Northern Ontario, which during the past few days has been confined largely to isolated spots, took on a much broader aspect with the receipt of reports from several sections. The spread of the danger area is indicated in the new reports which have been received.

From various points along the Algoma Central fires of more or less magnitude are reported. Further north again, on the line of the Canadian National to the east of Hornepayne, the bush fires have reached the point of destruction of homes, and at a station called Peterbeke, where are located a number of residences and stores, one has already been destroyed. Residents are burying their possessions.

Train crews and passengers, coming in from east and west, state that fires of various proportions can be seen in many directions. Atikokan is mentioned as one district.

At Graham, on the Canadian National, 104 miles west of Port Arthur, people were forced to take to the lake in boats for safety, when the flames encroached near the station. Later in the day the wind changed and relieved the situation. Graham consists of a station and a few other buildings only. Sudbury, June 1.—With the bush as dry as tinder and a high wind blowing, dozens of forest fires are raging throughout Northern Ontario, and unless rain intervenes shortly the situation will be fraught with serious possibilities for railway towns in the hinterland.

While admitting that the fires are of grave proportions, forestry headquarters officials here stated that the situation has been exaggerated by reports from the West and declared that at the present time no towns along the C.N.R. or the C.P.R. are in danger. There are few farmers in the areas in which the fires are most serious, these extending largely over big timber limits, but the property loss at the least will amount to many thousands of dollars because of the burning of the timber. The forestry district to-day, Everything possible is being done by the rangers, despite the fact that a high wind has been blowing and the heat is suffocating. They are immensely better equipped than they were this time last year and chief rangers are moving from point to point, handling the situation. Every available ranger is on the job and the railways are co-operating in every manner, many extra gangs being out fire fighting along the lines. Ten new pumps arrived this week and are all in use. The forestry service aeroplanes have not been used, owing to the thick pall of smoke which now hovers over the entire north country.

ROYALIST PLOT TO RESTORE MONARCHY

Scene of Unprecedented Violence in French Chamber of Deputies.

A despatch from Paris says:—A Royalist plot engulfing every Province and city throughout France, threatens the life of the Republic, the Cabinet told the Chamber of Deputies in the midst of scenes almost unprecedented in violence. Minister of the Interior Manoury, speaking for Premier Poincaré in the latter's absence, declared the Government will stamp out the contemplated revolution to the full extent of its power. Philip the Eighth shall not reign while the Republic retains power to administer justice, the Minister said.

After four and one-half hours of unrestrained rioting, during which sticks and fists were shaken high in the air, and fist fights often began, only to be broken off by guards, the Government felt itself shaken.

For the second time within three days the Poincaré Cabinet had to ask the Chamber for a vote of confidence. Although the leaders of the Opposition arose and said the Chamber should not overthrow the Government during the present Ruhr situation, the vote was only 279 to 191 in Premier Poincaré's favor.

Thus M. Poincaré loses almost 200 votes from his last Tuesday night's overwhelming majority.

ESTABLISH AIRPLANE BASE AT DANES ISLE

Airplanes Will Reconnoitre for Raold Amundsen During Flight Across North Pole.

Christiania, June 3.—A Norwegian navy vessel with a special expedition aboard sailed yesterday for Spitzbergen to establish a base at Danes Island from which airplanes will reconnoitre for Raold Amundsen, who is to attempt a flight across the North Pole this month.

Five supply depots will be placed along the ice barrier in big airtight copper boxes, to make them proof against attacks by bears. Each box will contain enough provisions for three weeks and a note telling the place where the other depots are located.

Two naval airplanes will always be in the air together so as to be able to assist each other; each will have provisions for a week. A smaller airplane will be used for scouting purposes.

The expeditions consist of twelve men, including a wireless operator, a physician and some of the most competent naval aviators.

Flood Conditions Improve in Southern Alberta

Calgary, June 3.—With reports of receding water from all districts, the flood situation is much better here to-night.

The Bow and Elbow Rivers in Calgary are almost normal, although the water is high. Damage is said to have reached $100,000 in the Calgary district. This includes damaged gardens, streets, furniture and payment for men hired in emergency work.

Western Crop Conditions Show Excellent Promise

Saskatoon, June 3.—Rainfall in this district since Tuesday has been 2.77 inches. Friday's downpour measured nearly half an inch, and farmers are to-day going around with 30-bushels-to-the-acre smiles.

Reports received from 300 correspondents of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company show excellent crop conditions in practically all districts of Saskatchewan.

Bush Fires in Quebec Somewhat Abated

Montreal, June 3.—Reports from the various towns in the Laurentians to-night showed that the bush fires which have been burning there for several days are somewhat abated. Slight rain fell Saturday night and this morning, and this is thought responsible for the diminution in the fires. There is now thought to be little chance of the fires spreading and threatening towns and villages.

One out of every fifteen people in Saskatchewan owns an automobile. According to the latest Government figures Saskatchewan, whose population is over 70 per cent rural, has a larger automobile registration than any other province in the Dominion.

WHITE RIVER IN STATE OF PANIC WHILE FOREST FIRES THREATEN TOWN

Inhabitants Preparing to Leave Railway Town if Flames Continue to Advance—C.P.R. Train Ready to Remove Valuables to Place of Safety.

A despatch from White River, Ont., says:—This little railway town beyond the north shore of Lake Superior, which is known to fame principally by reason of the weather reports which distinguish it during the winter months, has been the centre during the past couple of days of a forest fire which has been threatening to rival in many of its features some of the most serious conflagrations that have been known in the province. For nearly a week the town has been threatened with flames, starting in the woods, gathering strength day by day as they were fanned in the dry woods, driven from tree to tree, slowly and relentlessly creeping up on the community, overcoming all attempts to check them until Thursday saw the inhabitants of the town commence a general evacuation of their homes in the face of danger that was so close at hand as to partially destroy home buildings and to threaten to take others at any time.

On Wednesday the fire, which had during the day come to close proximity, died down somewhat with a favorable wind, but early Thursday morning there was a new outbreak to the east of the town. Flames crossed the railway track, burned down the poles carrying the telegraph lines, carrying the lines of communication with them and for some hours, during which workmen made strenuous endeavors to effect repairs, cutting off telegraphic connections with the east. In the early afternoon, after the flames had devoured a couple of houses, and the people who were not engaged in fighting them, the women and children, had begun to move out, carrying with them such possessions as they could get into suitcases, grips and bundles, the turn in the wind improved the situation and it began to look as if fears that the whole town was to be destroyed would not develop into realities.

The day was one which will never be forgotten by the townspeople. People were almost in mourning for destruction as they set about various ways of saving their valuables, when the word was given that a train had been prepared by the Canadian Pacific Railway, made up of box cars, in which the people could place their personal possessions, and which would carry them to safety in case of necessity, strange processions through the streets began. Women carrying bundles, with little children tugging at their sides, trudged through the streets toward the railway station, not knowing what was before them, while others set about burying the more valuable articles they could not carry with them. Altogether it was a scene of greatest confusion.

DEMAND FOR WHEAT EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY

Canadian Grain Growers May Look With Confidence to the Future.

London, June 3.—The world demand for wheat is out-pacing the supply, according to a preliminary report on world consumption issued by the International Institute of Agriculture. The report indicates that, even if Russia re-enters the grain market this year, Canadian wheat growers may look with confidence to the future. The report's consumption statistics cover only European countries, but the conclusions are reinforced by the general law of diminishing returns, which is in operation in Canada, United States and Argentina, the great wheat-producing countries. Twenty European countries are shown to have a present yield of 23,000,000 tons, leaving a deficiency of 22,000,000 tons. This is an increased deficiency of about 7,000,000 tons since the pre-war years, or more than Canada's export surplus. There is the additional fact that some countries like Poland, which have been forced to rely on home-grown potatoes, will return to wheat consumption when prosperity allows them.

Movement of U.S. Farmers.

Resumption on a larger scale of the movement of farmers from the United States to Canada is looked for this year, according to those most closely in touch with the situation. Even greater, it is anticipated, will be the number of visiting prospectors, to investigate Western Canadian conditions and to decide as to their own settlement there and that of their neighbors the following year. It is pointed out that many renters, facing discouraging conditions and dropping behind with their payments, are anxious to seek on cheaper land, where they might soon hope to be land-owners outright, whilst the desire for expansion and the possession of larger acreages induces the same trek which is always in evidence.

The movement of American farmers to Canada was in the ascendant when the war broke out, and the pinnacle was reached in the year 1913 when some 139,000 American citizens crossed the border into the Dominion. Since the war the annual contribution has ranged around 50,000 per year until the year 1922 when only some 24,000 arrived. The flow has, however, maintained the same high quality and was almost purely agricultural and possessed of considerable means. Whilst United States settlers always lead all nations in the purchase of improved and other lands, last year they also led in the number of homesteads filed on. The average wealth brought in by the United States settler in 1919 was $342; in 1920, $372; in 1921, $312, and in 1922, $402.

A single instance may illustrate what American farmers are doing for Canada whilst furthering their own best interests. In the middle of March, R. Ebert, a farmer of Lewiston, Minnesota, left for Manitoba, where he had acquired land. He sold out 90 acres of his Minnesota land at $200 per acre and about 160 acres at $150 per acre, having $46,000 to invest in his new farm, which consists of 720 acres, all cleared and in crop for several years, but which he nevertheless secured at an average price of less than half at which he sold any of his American land.

The inducement which is annually luring American farmers to Canada is the possibility of acquiring at very cheap rates land which is not only equal in every respect to the highly held farm lands of the United States, but which every year outyield them in most crops.

In this connection it is well for the farmer hesitating on the brink of decision, procrastinating in the matter of making a move, to realize that this situation cannot exist for ever. Each year settlement and cultivation are effecting substantial increments in the prices of Canadian farm lands. The average acre of Canadian farm land which was worth $31 in 1908, had risen to $35 in 1915, was for $41 in 1918, and $44 in 1922. Taking Alberta prices as an average for the Prairie Provinces, where most United States farmers locate, the average occupied farm could be bought for $18 in 1908, in 1915 it was necessary to pay $23, and in 1922, $24.

Western Canadian land values may be low, but not so low as they were few years ago. There is constant progress in land settlement, cultivation, railroad construction and other improvements which elevate land prices. The farm which the United States settler acquired a few years ago for nothing or a mere trifle he is holding to-day at a high price justified without effort on his part. The farm which the settler can purchase to-day for a low figure he will have to pay increasingly for in the years to come.

Storm in Manitoba Washes Away 12 Bridges

Winnipeg, June 3.—Reports were received here to-night of a heavy rain-storm which broke over the Margaret district, carrying away 12 bridges along the right of way of the Canadian National Railways between Margaret and Dunrea, washing away the grade at seven places and destroying culverts. Nineteen is also reported to have been affected by the storm. There was little damage to the crops.

FLOODS CAUSE HAVOC IN SOUTH ALBERTA

Rivers Break Bounds and People Forced to Flee for Safety.

A despatch from Calgary says:—With rivers and small streams running wild, following the abnormally heavy rains of the past few days, great havoc has been caused in southern Alberta districts and in the suburbs of this city during the past 24 hours. Streams continued to rise Friday afternoon, some at the rate of three inches an hour, and rain was continuing at many points.

Serious conditions prevail at Macleod and Okotoks, where residents have been forced to abandon their homes. Several houses have been washed away at Macleod, and it was necessary for police officers to make a number of rescues during the day. The Old Man River is a mile wide at Macleod and the lower part of the town is inundated. The situation is somewhat better at Okotoks, with the water in the town receding slowly, but apprehension exists that further damage will result when the heavy flow from the mountains reaches the town.

The Elbow River, running through Calgary, was within eight inches of the 1913 high-water mark early Friday afternoon, with nine feet of water pouring over the crest.

The town of High River, 45 miles south of here, is being flooded by the Highwood River.

Serious damage occurred during the day, when the Old Man River broke away the main ditch of the Lethbridge northern irrigation project's new canal, 10 miles west of Macleod. The costly headworks and dam are still holding, according to reports late Friday afternoon, with nine feet of water pouring over the crest.

More Armed Men in Europe Than Before World War

A despatch from London says:—Lord Robert Cecil made an eloquent plea to the United States before the English-speaking Union to join the League of Nations.

Lord Robert sounded a warning that in many parts of the world war-like symptoms were developing which were profoundly disquieting. He surprised his audience by informing them that there were more armed men in Europe to-day than before the world war. He declared that the tendency of most of the larger countries was toward greater military equipment.

Absolute Surrender Eamon de Valera, "President of the Irish Republic," has ordered his followers to lay aside their arms, saying, "The Republic can no longer be successfully sustained by your arms." It marks the official end of the war against the Irish Free State.

King of Belgium and Foch Among the Saints

A despatch from Paris says:—Representations of King Albert of Belgium and Marshal Foch have been installed among the saints and sacred characters in the stained glass windows of the little church at Ferrières la Petite, near Maubeuge. Figures of the King and the soldier were introduced when windows, smashed by war bombardments, were being replaced.

A survey of the strawberry crop prospects has just been completed by the fruit branch of the department of agriculture and, from information available, it appears that there will be good average crops in the heavy strawberry-producing districts, both in British Columbia and Ontario. The acreage planted to strawberries this year is considerably larger than last year and with favorable weather conditions, the producers should be able to supply all the demands of the consumers.

Rub It in for Lame Back—A brisk rubbing with Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil will relieve lame back. The skin will immediately absorb the oil and it will penetrate the tissues and bring speedy relief. Try it and be convinced. As the liniment sinks in, the pain comes out and there are ample grounds for saying that it is an excellent article.

Owing to ill health Mr. Elder resigned as pastor of the Church here, settling in 1899 on the farm upon which he died, being followed by his family in the following spring. Here this family lived and prospered, till they now have one of the best located and most modern farm homes in the Valley.

Recently Mr. Henderson decided to take a trip back to the old home in Ontario, where he renewed his former acquaintances and met many friends of his younger days. While away he contracted an attack of pneumonia and typhoid. After returning he fought these diseases stubbornly, but regardless of the fact that everything possible was done for him, and the most tender care administered by an indulgent family, he passed away on the above date in his sixtieth year.

Besides a grief-stricken widow he leaves five children, four boys and a girl, to mourn. Two brothers are also left—Chris Henderson, who has been a close neighbor and life-long companion, and Thomas, who is resident on the old farm home at Glencoe. There are also two sisters—Mrs. C. A. Jeffery, of Windsor, and Mrs. John J. McDermott, of Idaho.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, May 15, interment taking place in the Mission cemetery, in the presence of a large concourse of friends and neighbors. It was held under the auspices of the members of the Orange Order, and a large number of this organization were present on the occasion.

ILL FOR TWO YEARS; DRECO HELPED HER

London, Ont., Woman Tells About Her Sufferings and What One Bottle of This Famous Remedy Did for Her; a Story That Every Woman Should Read

"For two years," says Mrs. Albert Hetherington, of 504 Fall Mall Street, London, Ont., "I have taken medicine for kidney and liver troubles. I was subject to constipation for 14 years, constantly taking a laxative for relief. My nerves were so bad I could not stand hearing even the slightest noise. I just had a feeling that I wanted to get away from everyone. The pains in my muscles were so severe I could not rest nights. My appetite was no good. I had pains across my back, over my kidneys, and I felt tired and worn out all the time."

"It is a fact that one bottle of Drego has benefited me more than any other remedy I have ever taken. I am indeed glad to recommend it. Drego is being specially introduced in Glencoe by P. E. Lumley, and is sold by a good druggist everywhere."

"You women who suffer, who have pains in the back and are run down, will find the same relief in Drego that Mrs. Hetherington found. At least, Drego is worth a trial."

Referring to the death of the late William James Henderson at Milton, Ontario, on May 13th, the local paper of that district says:

Mr. Henderson was a highly respected pioneer resident of the Valley, having come to this section of the country from the original home at Glencoe, Ont., settling in 1899 on the farm upon which he died, being followed by his family in the following spring. Here this family lived and prospered, till they now have one of the best located and most modern farm homes in the Valley.

Recently Mr. Henderson decided to take a trip back to the old home in Ontario, where he renewed his former acquaintances and met many friends of his younger days. While away he contracted an attack of pneumonia and typhoid. After returning he fought these diseases stubbornly, but regardless of the fact that everything possible was done for him, and the most tender care administered by an indulgent family, he passed away on the above date in his sixtieth year.

Besides a grief-stricken widow he leaves five children, four boys and a girl, to mourn. Two brothers are also left—Chris Henderson, who has been a close neighbor and life-long companion, and Thomas, who is resident on the old farm home at Glencoe. There are also two sisters—Mrs. C. A. Jeffery, of Windsor, and Mrs. John J. McDermott, of Idaho.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, May 15, interment taking place in the Mission cemetery, in the presence of a large concourse of friends and neighbors. It was held under the auspices of the members of the Orange Order, and a large number of this organization were present on the occasion.

A most interesting and profitable paper was given in the Epworth League of the Methodist church at their last regular meeting. A debate, "Resolved that the pioneer woman has done more for the welfare of the home and community than has the modern woman," was ably given by Mrs. McTavish, Mrs. Geo. Lee, Mrs. McColl and Mrs. Will Cornell, all Ekfrid ladies. And this debate has been given before and the decision given in favor of the affirmative, it was not judged again. Solos were given by Mrs. Harry Brodie and Wm. Lewis. A vote of thanks was tendered to those taking part.

Cause of Asthma. No one can say with certainty exactly what causes the establishing of asthmatic conditions. Dust from the streets, from flowers, from grain and various other irritants may set up a trouble impossible to eradicate except through a sure preparation such as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Uncertainty may exist as to cause, but there can be no uncertainty regarding a remedy which has freed a generation of asthmatic victims from this scourge of the bronchial tubes. It is sold everywhere.
