

JERRY COLLINS WAS SPENDING HIS OWN MONEY; SENSATIONAL EVIDENCE IN THE ELECTION INQUIRY

Collins Drew $800 From His Bank Account, Saying That He Expected to "Get Something From the Government"—Admits He Was a "Sucker."

FRANK KALTENBACH THROWS LIGHT ON THE CASE

Says He Got No Money, But Signed a Receipt to Oblige Collins, Who Said It Would Benefit Him —A Saturday Night Meeting in Mr. Toth's Office, at Which Kaltenbach Says He Gave Collins the Lie—Ottawa Visitors to London.

[By Our Own Reporter.]
Toronto, Oct. 15.—At this afternoon's session of the London election inquiry, Mr. Frank Kaltenbach, of London, sprang a sensation by swearing that Jerry Collins admitted to him that he (Collins) had drawn $800 of his own money from the bank and spent it in the election. The evidence of Mr. Kaltenbach, who was a crown witness, was in the nature of a boomerang. He also declared that Collins had persuaded him to sign a paper, containing other names, on the plea that it would greatly assist him (Collins) to secure something from the Government.

Kaltenbach declared positively that the signature was not his receipt for money paid for his vote. He declared that he had never taken a cent in the Hyman-Gray or any other election. Kaltenbach also said he met Collins in Mr. Toth's office on Saturday night, and there gave him the lie direct.

Did Not Get Any.
Frank Kaltenbach, a London cigar-maker, swore he did not get any money in any election.

"You are sure?" asked Mr. DuVernet.
"Yes."
"Is this your signature," the lawyer asked, holding up Collins' receipt book for the Beck-Rumball election.

The witness admitted that it was his signature.

"How did you come to sign the book?"
"Collins asked me to sign the book, as it would be a benefit to him as he expected to get something from the Government, and it would look good for him to have many names. But I never got a red cent from him or anyone else. I did it simply and purely to do Collins a favor. I knew him for years and would do anything for him."

Helping Collins.
"He told me it cost him a lot of money to carry on the election," continued the witness, "and he said he expected something. 'It will do you no harm to sign the book,' he said, 'and it will very materially assist me.'"

The witness stated that he had got $3 a day in East Middlesex for driving a rig in the McWilliam election.

"You got nothing for your vote at any time?"
"No."

"You don't think Collins is a perjurer?" inquired Mr. DuVernet. "He says you got money in several elections?"
"Do you think I am a perjurer?" the witness asked heatedly.

"I'm not saying that," replied the lawyer. "But you don't think he would do you a wrong and say he paid you money when he did not?"
"He might make this case stronger. Never mind, Jerry," the witness shouted in conclusion.

"Never mind Mr. Collins," warned Mr. DuVernet.

"I don't want him to be shaking his head at me," the witness retorted.

"Did you get any money from Collins when your mother died?"

"Not a cent? I drew $15 from Bennett's, where I worked."

"You signed the receipt in Obernesser's?"

"Yes."

"You signed it to give your friend Collins a political advantage?"

Would Vote for a Socialist.
"Yes, Collins knew well he could not offer me money. He knew that if a socialist ran I would vote for him above anybody."

"I am told you got $5 in the general election; $5 in the Beck election; and $10 in the Hyman-Gray election?"

"He said, 'I never got a cent. Two months ago he told me that I lied; but he lied.'"

Mr. Robinette then took the witness in hand.

"You saw Collins Saturday night?" he asked.

"Yes; in Toth's office. He told me I was making a hell of a holler over this affair. I told him I had reason to make a holler, as he knew well I knew nothing of the case. I said you have dragged me into this thing, and I know nothing about it."

"He said: 'Didn't you get $10 from him when your mother died, and he told me I would have to go down to Toronto and swear to it or perjure myself.'"

Called Collins a Liar.
"I told him he was a liar, and my wife heard me call him a liar. She heard what I said to him in the hallway of Toth's office."

"What were the exact words Collins used when he asked you to sign the book?" Mr. Robinette inquired. "This is a very cogent bit of testimony."

"He said: 'I have worked and spent my good hard cash in this election, and I am going to get something out of the Government. He told me he went to the Dominion Bank and drew out $800 for election purposes. He told me that he had told the bank manager what he was doing, and the manager told him to keep his money, that he was a fool.'"

"Collins told me in Obernesser's, when we were having a drink, that he wanted my signature, as it would materially benefit him."

"He said: 'You know I have spent a great deal of money on the election, and I am going to get something out of it. I said I didn't know what he had spent, but I supposed it did cost a great deal. He said it would help him to have a good showing of names on the books.'"

LIVELY SET-TO IN THE COUNCIL; WARM TALK OVER DEPUTATIONS

Ald. Matthews Now Says He Didn't Want To Go—Declares Another Alderman "Rotten."

That Ald. Matthews does not entertain any love whatever for more than one member of the city council was borne out at the regular meeting of the aldermen last evening.

Two weeks ago it was Ald. Gilleen who was told in the plainest of language that he never was a friend of Ald. Matthews and never could be.

Last night Ald. Matthews had a set-to with Ald. Greenlees, and in the course of it he went so far as to say that he (Ald. Greenlees), was "rotten."

The report of the city treasurer on the deputations of 1905 and 1906 was what led up to the show of brotherly "love" on the part of Ald. Matthews. It was shown in the report that during the past two years there had been no less than 21 civic deputations, costing $1,575 75, and that of the 21, Ald. Matthews had gone on no less than 7. The report gave the cost of each deputation, but this was not altogether satisfactory to Ald. Garratt, who wanted to know the amounts paid to the members of each deputation.

Ald. Greenlees said this was going a little too far, and some allowance should be made for this when the expenses allowed the members of a deputation were being questioned. Personally, he had no use for deputations, and did not care if he was never named for one.

Wants None of Them.
Ald. Forristal took the same view of the matter as Ald. Greenlees. He thought it should be left as it stood.

"We find plenty of people in the city ready and anxious to pitch into the aldermen," said Ald. Forristal, "people ready to find fault. We should leave that work to them. Aldermen do not want to go on deputations, as a rule, but what I maintain is that if they are named by the council to go any place, it is their duty to go. I have never asked an alderman to support me for a deputation yet, and I hope that if I am in the council another year my name will never be mentioned for one."

But Ald. Garratt insisted that the report in detail should be given, as he thought it right and proper that the people should know what the money had been spent for, and what good had been derived from it.

Ald. Matthews defended the sending of deputations, as a rule, as he considered they were in the interests of the city. But he admitted that some were unnecessary, such as one to Buffalo, of which he was a member. Ald. Matthews referred to the trip to Dallas, which he was so anxious to take, but which the council refused to send him. He said that he had been told that his actions in regard to the Grand Trunk were reported.

Collins' Modus Operandi.

The evidence of the witness Frank Kaltenbach, gives a new turn to the London election inquiry. Kaltenbach swore that Collins told him he had drawn $800 from his bank account, and was spending money in the election in the hope of "getting something from the Government." He (Collins) complained to Kaltenbach after the election that they (meaning the Liberals) had given him the worst of it, and that he was "a sucker" for using his own money. Kaltenbach, who is a Socialist, says he got nothing from Collins for his vote, but signed a receipt for money to oblige Collins, who said it would be of advantage to him.

Kaltenbach's evidence supports the theory that Collins spent his own money, in order to make a showing which he thought would establish a claim upon the Liberal party; but the Liberal managers of the city refused to compensate him for unauthorized expenditures, and paid no attention to his threats.

Today's Election Evidence; More 10-Dollar Stories

A Number of West Londoners in the Witness Box This Morning.

[By Our Own Reporter.]
Toronto, Oct. 15.—Magistrate Denison announced today that the investigation into the London election case will be adjourned until Monday, when it will be resumed and continued until all the evidence has been heard. Thursday is Thanksgiving Day and his worship intends going on a short trip tomorrow.

Samuel Baumbeck, a London voter, was first placed on the witness stand this morning. He said he was bought at the bye-election. He went to the committee-rooms and saw Tom Lewis, who told him if he would vote right he would get $10. After the election he went and got the money from Lewis. He was paid the full $10, he said. There was nobody in the room except witness and Lewis when the money was paid over.

To Mr. Robinette, witness said Lewis did not put the money in the envelope, in the committee-rooms. Two five-dollar bills were put in the envelope there, but when witness was paid he got $10. Witness said he had voted Conservative previously. The man who put the money in the envelope might have been Jerry Collins, but witness could not say who he was. At all events, Lewis had not handled the money in the committee-rooms.

George Stevenson swore that before the election, Wm. McCausland told him that Jerry Collins wanted to see him, and he went to Collins' place and saw Collins and Mulloy. Collins talked to him, and then $10 was put in an envelope for him on the condition that he vote for Hyman. Joe Hardy had told him to go to Lewis' hotel for his money. He went and got his money from Collins. This man got the entire $10 from Collins, who in this instance omitted his rebate.

Stevenson had voted Conservative in the first Hyman-Gray election, and to Mr. Robinette witness stated that he was a Conservative in a way. "Which way?"

"It all depends on the price. I took the ten-spot to vote for Hyman." Henry Taylor, of 20 Argyle street, West London, said he was bought at the election, and saw Tom Lewis. Lewis told him there was a ten-spot in it if he would vote right. Witness told Lewis he had always voted right, and he was a life-long Liberal. Jerry Collins paid him the money in the election, and he was the first to vote for Hyman. Witness got $5 in the first Hyman-Gray election from Jerry Collins.

Witness had voted for Beck in the provincial election, it being his first Conservative vote.

To Mr. Robinette witness said that money or no money he would have voted for Hyman.

When the arrangements were made with Lewis, the latter and the witness were alone in the room.

W. M. Gregory, 12 Napier street, West London, was next placed in the witness box. He was paid $10 for his vote for Hyman. The money was to be left in James Dewar's shop. At the general election witness had voted for Hyman.

Alfred Gregory, brother of the last witness of West London, stated that he had been approached by him and had stated that there was money going and he would send him some around. James Dewar had the money and paid the witness. Gregory had voted for Hyman in the general election, and he had told Hardy he was going to vote for Hyman. Witness swore he would have voted for Hyman again, money or no money.

An Aged Witness.
Patrick Mehan, an aged resident of West London, was next placed in the box. He has been ill and was given a chair. Before the election Collins sent word to him that he wanted to see him. Witness went to the committee rooms and saw Collins, who told him if he voted for Hyman he would give him $10. Witness saw no money at the committee-rooms.

A RIGHT-OF-WAY FOR POWER LINES

Engineer of Power Commission Looks Over Ground—Will Prepare Estimates.

Mr. Richards, an engineer employed by the Ontario Power Commission, was in the city for a short time today.

The object of Mr. Richards' visit was to ascertain the best route to be followed by the transmission line into London, and to prepare an estimate of the cost. He rounded up Engineer Graydon, who accompanied him over several routes that might be followed by the line. The route favored by Mr. Graydon was the Hamilton road west to Egerton street, north on Egerton street to Campbell, west on Campbell street to Rectory street, and west from that point on Bathurst street to a sub-station.

Mr. Richards thought this would be a very good route, and before leaving the city he called on the mayor. Mr. Richards is to visit Ingersoll, Woodstock, St. Marys and St. Thomas in reference to a right of way into those places.

Halifax, Oct. 15.—Jas. B. Lehmann, who was arrested here last week charged with being connected with the recent smuggling of Chinese from Newfoundland into the United States, on the schooner-yacht Frolic, has been released. Inspector Farrell of the United States immigration department, who was sent here from Boston, was unable to find grounds on which to take Lehmann to Boston, owing to the conflicting national laws.

RETURNED STOLEN MONEY.

Carman, Man., Oct. 1.—On Friday last $5 was stolen from the till in the C. P. R. station during the absence of Mr. King, the agent. Mr. King was the loser, as he would have had to reimburse the company. The burglars evidently got wind of this, and considerably wrote Mr. King a note, telling him he would find the money at a certain part of the station. The money came to hand, and Mr. King appreciates the compliment.

$372,500 ESTIMATED COST OF ACQUIRING KOMOKA SPRINGS

This, However, Includes $100,000 for Reservoir With 20,000,000 Gallon Capacity.

At the meeting of the water commissioners yesterday afternoon, Superintendent Moore submitted a report on the cost of increasing the city's supply by acquiring springs in the vicinity of Komoka.

Mr. Moore placed the total at $372,500, of which $15,000 would be required for land, $20,000 for collecting conduits, $100,000 for a storage reservoir with a capacity of 20,000,000 gallons, $75,000 for pumping station and machinery, $87,500 for an eighteen-inch wooden main from the pumping station to the present reservoir, and $75,000 for a twenty-four-inch wooden main from the present reservoir to the city.

On this amount the annual charges, interest and sinking fund by debentures bearing interest at 4 per cent, payable in 40 years, would be $18,840, and in addition to this sum would be the operating expenses of the station, amounting to $10,000 annually.

Mr. Moore also submitted an estimate of the cost of a dam and hydraulic pumping station below Kilworth. Fifteen thousand dollars would be required for land, $50,000 for a concrete dam, $10,000 for a powerhouse, and $35,000 for turbines and pumping machinery, bringing the total to $110,000.

PACK OF WOLVES ATTACK CAMP

American Woman in Northern Ontario Keeps Her Nerve During Ordeal.

Carver, Ont., Oct. 15.—Mrs. Marguerite Hemstreet, the young widow of W. K. Hemstreet, a Chicago sportsman who met death in the heavy timber 150 miles north of here while on a fishing expedition last summer, returned from the scene of the fatality, whither she went to investigate personally her husband's death. On her journey into the wilderness Mrs. Hemstreet met with several exciting adventures and on one occasion nearly lost her own life.

On the trip to the timber there were few incidents to vary the monotony, but the return journey was fraught with accident and excitement. Camp had been made one night in a rocky ravine and close to a stream when one of the guides was aroused at 11 o'clock by the cry of a wolf. The call was presently answered by another and other until a whole pack appeared to be sweeping down upon the camp.

There was just time to awaken the party when a yearling deer leaped across the brook, dashed by the tent and disappeared in the forest. The next instant the pursuing wolves came to a stand directly in front of the camp. For a moment they hesitated and then with common assent they rushed on the campers in a wild, furious howling avalanche. Everyone quickly sought a tree, the guides cutting loose with their repeating rifles while backing into a timber and covering their charges.

The guides feared that in this strait Mrs. Hemstreet might lose her nerve, but she was admittedly much cooler than her uncle and assisted him before she swung herself into a low-limbed spruce. The party was kept there until sun up, when the wolves withdrew after killing the ponies, tearing the tent to ribbons and devouring all the edibles except some canned goods. The following day one of the ponies which had been picked up thirteen days out on the return trip sprang a leak crossing a small lake, and had it not been for the young woman's presence of mind would have sunk. She was sitting in the prow when she heard the guide utter an exclamation and turned to see water entering through a hole.

There was no time to close the abrasion with pitch and bark, but Mrs. Hemstreet was equal to the emergency. She placed a bare hand over the leak, pressed down with all her might, and although the water was so cold that her arm was soon numb to the shoulder she prevented further leakage until the guide had paddled a mile and a half to land.

Mrs. Hemstreet nearly lost her life by sinking up to her armpits in a bog, where she was held for hours before discovered. She had gone out hunting alone.

Second Main $150,000.

Mr. Moore further gave the cost of an 18-inch castiron main from the proposed pumping station at Komoka to the present reservoir as $150,000, while for a 24-inch castiron main he placed the cost at $225,000. A 24-inch castiron main from the present reservoir to the city would cost $115,000. The superintendent summarized all of his reports on the matter in the following table:

Annual charges & expenses.

An independent fire, manufacturing and street watering system $250,000 $22,500 00

INSURANCE COMMISSION

Sun Life Company Before Opening Session of Montreal Sitting.

Montreal, Oct. 15.—The royal commission on life insurance opened its sessions in Montreal today, dealing first with the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada.

The president of the company, Mr. Robertson MacAulay, was the witness during a short session which lasted only an hour.

The evidence was for the most part of a preparatory nature, the hour being devoted to an analysis of the Sun Life charter.

Being one of the two oldest companies in Canada, the other being the Canada Life, the charter of the Sun Life is a little wider than those of the other companies in the Dominion. The company obtained its charter in 1871.

According to the rather indefinite wording of the clause in the charter, the Sun Life has taken the stand it had the power to go farther afield in its investments than do insurance companies generally.

The Sun Life carries on its business of life insurance in the United States, Great Britain and Ireland, Honolulu, Japan, China, the Philippines, India, Hong Kong, Straits Settlements, Burma, Siam, Egypt, France, Belgium, Holland, Newfoundland, Chili, West Indies, Peru and Mexico.

Dominion Counsel Shepley, of Toronto, conducted the investigation, and he questioned Mr. MacAulay at some length on the method of dividing the profits of the Sun Life. The directors have discretionary powers as to the division of profits and the proportion of these to go to the shareholders of the policyholders. The witness said this was as it should be.

He said the policy of the Sun Life in making this division was not influenced by the action of competing companies. The provinces of Quebec and Ontario are both represented by counsel at the investigation.

GOLD ON HAND FOR EMERGENCY

Ex-Manager McGill, in Interview, Says All Speculations Were in Interests of the Bank.

Toronto, Oct. 16.—The board of directors of the Ontario Bank were in session yesterday afternoon with representatives of the Bank of Montreal, and it was decided that in the best interests of the shareholders, and as supplementing the agreement with the Bank of Montreal, a curator and an advisory board should be appointed by the Canadian Bankers' Association under the bank act of 1900 to co-operate with the directors of the Ontario Bank. It is understood that Mr. W. F. Stavert, general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, D. B. Wilkie, general manager of the Imperial Bank of Canada, and Duncan Coulson, general manager of the Bank of Toronto, will be the advisory board.

Not Prosecuting.

The president, Mr. Geo. R. R. Cockburn, has given it as his opinion that Mr. McGill had gone into speculation with a view to making money for the bank. He had never been authorized to do so, and the directors were kept in ignorance of his operations.

Mr. McGill points out that while he made investments without the knowledge of the directors he believed that the ventures were sound and made him solely in the interests of the bank. Mr. C. A. Stavert, representative of the Bank of Montreal, said that the Ontario Bank was not in liquidation. "It has ceased to do a commercial business," he observed, "but so far as the Bank of Montreal is concerned, we have simply rediscussed a quantity of the Ontario Bank's loans, and have assumed its liabilities. The Ontario Bank still holds its real estate, its securities and some loans which we have not rediscussed." Mr. Stavert confirmed the announcement that Mr. T. Brattin, local manager of the Bank of Montreal, had been appointed general manager of the Ontario Bank.

"We have not considered the criminal prosecution of Mr. McGill," stated Mr. G. R. R. Cockburn, president of the Ontario Bank, this morning. "We are chiefly concerned about the adjustment of the present difficulty."

McGill Interviewed.

"When I took hold of the Ontario Bank I made up my mind to do the best I could with a practically hopeless case."

Mr. Charles McGill was making a statement as to his eleven years' management of the Ontario Bank. His story is a record of constant struggle under various circumstances. He was very nervous this morning when seen at the King Edward, and what he had to say was told in short, disconnected sentences.

"When I assumed the management," said he, "the stable, the loans for the most part in a dead condition. Very little could be realized upon them. Almost everything that was good had gone to other banks to save the stock."

"I hesitated about taking the management, but was urged, and finally consented, deciding that with time and help I would be able to pull things together."

"For two or three years I found that the accounts in several cases were turning out worse than was expected. Times were very poor, and, for instance, there was one account amounting to about $100,000, which ultimately proved worthless, while, by the collapse of a lumber company, an account amounting to about $500,000, also proved unprofitable."

"Soon, however, prospects began to brighten. There was a slight improvement in accounts, but still there was a large amount that would have to be made up from some source."

"When I took hold there was nothing that would produce profits, and it became necessary to make money in some other way. The direct way I knew I had a lot to do to make these assets of any value. I concluded that if wise investments were made in American securities the profits on these from time to time would provide for any loss in accounts. I would not have placed myself under these securities if I had not felt that they might make up for deficiencies."

"When Ames took over the stock we got a little better credit, but it did not make the assets any better. Some of the securities in which we dealt have increased from 40 to 150 during the past six or seven years."

"My constant aim has been to protect the bank's stock, and to build up such a financial institution as would attract new blood. The business of the bank has increased considerably of late years. Some of the accounts have been working into a much better condition. Had the protracted period of prosperity been foreseen, the situation might have been saved, but I received no help. I did what I thought best. I am not trying to shift responsibility. I thought the directors were aware of the bank's condition, but I would always try to make it appear as promising as possible. Probably I was foolish to continue in the position during the past few years, for I saw little chance. My object has been to build up the bank."

"Were the directors aware of your operations in these American securities?"

"They had some knowledge of the bank's affairs and that it was necessary for me to secure help of some kind and from some source outside," replied Mr. McGill.

Plenty of Gold.

Toronto, Oct. 15.—A million and a half of gold reached Toronto this morning from New York on the 11 o'clock train. It was consigned to the Bank of Montreal to be used by them to meet any emergency occasioned by the Ontario Bank collapse.

A FAREWELL DINNER

Military and Civilian Friends Tender It to Major Laybourn.

A very pleasant function indeed was the farewell dinner tendered Major Laybourn in the officers' mess at Wolseley Barracks last evening. Major Laybourn leaves this afternoon for St. Johns, Quebec, where he is to be on the staff of the permanent force, and before his departure the officers of Wolseley Barracks, together with a few civilian friends, decided to tender him a farewell. The company numbered about 30, and they took occasion to express the regret felt at the departure from London of Major Laybourn, who during his residence here had made many warm friends.

Among those present at the function were Col. Peters, D.O.C.; Col. McDougall, commanding No. 10 Company, R.C.R.; Col. McEwen, Byron; Col. Garthshore, Col. Belton, Major Wynne, Major Abbott, First Hussars; Major Crony, Seventh Regiment; Captain George Brown, Captain Becher, Captain Hogg, Mr. George B. Gerrard, Dr. Becher, Mr. T. H. Carling, Mr. P. W. D. Brodick, Mr. Biddome, Mr. Coulson, Mr. F. P. Betts, Mr. Harry Blackburn, Mr. Lambie, Mr. Stevenson (St. Thomas), Mr. J. A. Hunt, Mr. S. N. Sterling, Mr. Jeffrey Hale, Mr. Charles Hunt, Mr. Thompson, Mr. Macbeth, Mr. Henderson, and Mr. F. F. Harper.

LIVELY SET-TO IN THE COUNCIL

responsible for his being turned down on the trip, and he wanted to say that he was at one time eager to go to Dallas, but it was not in the last three months.

This Was News.

This was news to the other members of the council, especially in view of the well-known fact that Ald. Matthews had gone to the mayor the morning after the meeting of the council at which he was turned down and had asked for his worship to do what he could to have him sent, not that he was so eager to take the long journey, but that he wanted to avoid the humiliation of being left at home after it being generally understood that he was to go.

Ald. Greenlees here took Ald. Matthews to task for casting what he (Ald. Greenlees), termed "about as mean an insinuation as an alderman can make in the council." "It is in keeping with his conduct in the council from the beginning to the end of the year," said Ald. Greenlees. "He never gets up without making an insinuation."

Ald. Matthews declared that no insinuation had been cast by him.

Ald. Greenlees (to the mayor)—A few weeks ago he insinuated that there was something wrong among certain members of the council who had voted for the Grant Trust agreement—either it was that their hands were greased or something else. I am just about tired of insinuations coming from a source like that.

Ald. Matthews—Well, then, sit down, "Order," called the mayor.

Ald. Greenlees' Hot Shot.

Ald. Greenlees continued to hold the floor. He said there was one thing that he was glad to see at the last meeting of the council, Ald. Matthews on that occasion boasted about the citizens of London holding him in high esteem, while he could not understand how the aldermen did not appreciate him as much. "It is simply this," declared Ald. Greenlees, "the citizens do not know him and we do, intimately, and we value him at his proper worth."

Ald. Armstrong took a hand in the discussion, by saying that he considered the talk over the report as much ado about nothing.

Ald. Gillen was the mover for the report on the deputations, and as such he said that the citizens were complaining that there were too many jaunts, and he had undertaken to let them know who was going on them. A great many of the deputations were, in the opinion of Ald. Gillen, unnecessary, and he said that according to decisions given the city treasurer would not dare to make payments for such purposes if any citizen should see fit to have an injunction issued. As to the insinuation of Ald. Matthews, Ald. Gillen said he (Ald. Matthews), had been asked by a unanimous vote of the council to name the aldermen, and he had not dared to name one. "Why did he not name the aldermen?" asked Ald. Gillen.

"I will do it at the right time and the right place," answered Ald. Matthews.

Ald. Gillen declared that he had never been on a deputation at the expense of the city—that any time he had gone away on the city's business he had paid his own way.

Ald. Forristal asked Ald. Gillen if he had ever protested against a delegation being named.

Ald. Gillen answered that he had not.

"And who moved for the Dallas deputation?" asked Ald. Matthews.

"I moved that the fire chief be sent," said Ald. Gillen.

Ald. Saunders Raps "Dick."

Ald. Saunders took a rap at Ald. Matthews. The latter, he said, was now trying to get him to go to Dallas. If that is the case, it was wrong for Ald. Matthews to have gone about telephoning to the aldermen beforehand, asking them to send him on the trip.

"Ald. Matthews either lied then, or he is saying what is not true now," said Ald. Saunders.

Ald. Matthews said that no alderman dare say that he telephoned them asking them to send him to Dallas. He spoke to the mayor the morning after the last council meeting, and told his worship that he could do as much for him as ex-Mayor Campbell had done a year ago, when he authorized Ald.

"The reason I did that," said Ald. Matthews, "was because I wanted to be able to say that I could have gone to Dallas if I had wanted to."

This caused some of the aldermen to smile.

Rebuked by the Mayor.

Mayor Judd said he did not understand the object of Ald. Gillen's resolution. He would say that if the aldermen who were now buying themselves about the cost of deputations had opposed them in the first place it would have been much more in the interests of the city. The mayor just wanted to say also that when he was spoken to by Ald. Matthews about Dallas, he thought the alderman wanted to go. He thought Ald. Matthews should have gone, but at the same time if he had no intention of going he should not have gone to him (the mayor) the morning after he was turned down and asked to be sent.

The matter ended by the council deciding to have the treasurer's report printed in the minutes.

Later in the evening, when the report of No. 3 committee was being discussed, Ald. Matthews proceeded to make an explanation of one of the clauses, but before doing so, he passed a remark about his not being construed as making insinuations. Ald. Greenlees countered, and Ald. Matthews, with a show of anger, turned to the former and remarked that he was "rotten."

Ald. Greenlees only appealed to Ald. Matthews to restrain his temper.

SEEKING FEDERAL ALMS.

It is stated unofficially that the Federal Government has intimated its willingness to increase the provincial allowances on the scale recommended by the inter-provincial conference, which met at Quebec in 1887. These resolutions provide (1) for a larger grant for the purposes of government and legislation; (2) for an increase in the subsidy which was fixed by the B. N. A. Act at 80 cents per head of the population, as ascertained by the census of 1861. The conference asked that the subsidy be 90 cents per head of the actual population, except that in any province with a population of more than 2,000,000 the payment be 60 cents per head on all above that number.

Under the first head the seven older provinces would receive an aggregate of $1,250,000 annually, an increase of $900,000. On the basis of the last census—1901—the per capita subsidy would yield the seven older provinces an aggregate of $4,125,119, an increase of $1,107,009 over the present arrangement. Since the Quebec resolutions of 1887 were adopted, two provinces, Alberta and Saskatchewan, have been erected. They would share in any increase in the federal subsidies at the present time, so that the total of the new liabilities which the federal authorities would have to assume, in respect of the grant for government and legislation, and the per capita subsidy, would be considerably over $2,000,000, probably nearly $2,500,000.

A second inter-provincial conference was held at Quebec in 1902, and its recommendations were reaffirmed by the conference at Ottawa last week. In addition to the increase in the specific grant, and the per capita subsidy, the premiers agreed that his demands were unreasonable, and it is said they were so provoked by his refusal to compromise that they would have declined to recognize in the slightest degree his claim for privileged treatment had the federal ministers not intervened as peace-makers. Owing to their influence the conference recommended that British Columbia be given $100,000 a year for ten years over and above the regular scale of allowances. Mr. McBride refused to abate a jot of his demands, and withdrew from the conference in bad humor. The premiers of Saskatchewan and Alberta attempted to secure an additional allowance of $50,000 for ten years, but they accepted an adverse vote with good grace. Premier McBride was no doubt governed by the exigencies of local politics, but his recalcitrancy may make it more difficult for the Federal Government to obtain the imperial enactments necessary to the further amendment of the financial clauses of the B. N. A. Act.

After all, the financial proposals brought forward by the conference are of more interest to politicians than to the public. The people of Canada have to provide the money in any event. There would have been no outburst of sympathy for the provincial premiers if they had failed in their mission. The majority of people in this Province who give the subject any thought, will probably incline to the opinion that governments should find the money which they are at liberty to spend. If the Federal Government accedes to the demand that the per capita subsidy be based on the actual population, the growth of the country will mean that an increasing proportion of the federal revenue must be handed over to provincial governments, which would have no responsibility for raising it. The Province of Ontario, at least, is not in need of federal alms. Its revenues are abundant, its debt is light. If other provinces are not in so enviable a position, it is because they have not managed their affairs with the same thrift and foresight. This is at least true of the eastern provinces, though in the case of British Columbia there may be some justice in the claim that the small population is not equal to the task of administering the enormous area and resources of the province.

THE ONTARIO BANK.

A Canadian banking institution, with deposits of nearly $12,000,000, comes to grief, but there is no panic, and no loss to depositors or noteholders. The remarkable sequel to the crisis in the affairs of the Ontario Bank exhibits the strong points of the Canadian banking system. It establishes a community of interests among the chartered banks of the country, so that each is to a large extent propped upon the combined resources of the rest. So promptly and effectively was this feature of the system made operative that the Ontario Bank was not even obliged to close its doors. Arrangements were made in a few hours by which the Bank of Montreal assumed all obligations to the public, and was in turn protected by sister institutions to an extent which it is believed will fully cover any deficiency between assets and liabilities, if there is a deficiency at all. It is probable that the whole loss, if there is any, will fall upon the shareholders. The public will not lose a copper.

The disaster was caused entirely by unauthorized investments of the general manager. "Speculation" is the proper word to describe his extraordinary ventures in Wall street. He claims that he used the money for what he conceived to be the interests of the bank, and with no thought of personal profit, but he knew he was committing illegal acts. The directors of the bank, however, cannot wholly escape responsibility for their ignorance of the ruinous operations of the manager, carried on for a series of years. There is still some defect in a system which permits one employee of a bank to conceal a loss of one and a half millions from the men who are entrusted by the proprietors—the shareholders—with the duty of watching and conserving their interests.

One touch of trouble made the Canadian banks kin. The provincial premiers kindly offer to help in bailing out the federal surplus. And so Jerry Collins admits that he was spending his own money! The evidence of the witness Kaltenbach throws new light on the London election inquiry.

The Toronto Globe quotes from a London Free Press editorial in which voters were advised to take money if it were offered them in the Hyman-Gray bye-election. But the Globe does a great injustice to London when it insinuates that the Free Press represents the political morality of this constituency. London may be bad, but it is not so bad as that. Besides, the Free Press in that election lost what little sanity it had, and has not yet earned a discharge from the asylum.

The Free Press continues to dwell on the attempt of a Conservative deputy returning officer to rob Mr. Hyman of 69 votes in the election of 1895. Says the Free Press:

"Mr. Jeffrey swore that the ballots in question had been destroyed by a Conservative returning officer. The Free Press said his memory must be defective on the point, as the ballots after being reserved had been fairly counted for Hyman. If they were counted, they could not have been destroyed. Plainly the evidence of the witness was wrong, and the Free Press right in calling attention to it."

Mr. Jeffrey did not swear that the ballots had been destroyed. The Free Press puts words in his mouth which he did not use. What he did say was that the deputy had destroyed 69 votes for Mr. Hyman. The votes of 69 Liberals were canceled by fraud on his part, and the Liberals were compelled to take the matter to the courts in order to recover them.

But it has remained for the city council of Chicago to pass a resolution congratulating its two victorious ballnines and declaring the day of their first meeting for the world's championship a holiday. This is according to the national game appropriate honors, and it is significant that Mayor Dunne spoke for the resolution. SUMMER VOICES.

They say it in so many ways,
The message of the summer days,
In accents and notes quite still
From straight white stones on slopes of hill.

The shining, changing, changeless sea—
All bring that message clear to me.

All tell of peace not understood,
It "passeth" that—'twas writ it should.
We hear, we see, we read, we hear,
And whys and wherefores slip apart.
We do not understand; we love

WOULDN'T COMMIT

Judge Was Asked to Send a Bank Manager to Jail.

Toronto, Oct. 15.—Mr. Justice Mahee today refused to commit to jail William Turner, acting manager of the Bank of Montreal in Toronto.

The motion was made by W. M. Hall on behalf of Peter Ryan. Mr. Turner had refused under examination to answer certain questions as to the methods of the bank.

He refused to say whether a savings department tends to "stagnate circulation."

It was advanced by Hall that through its savings department a bank cornered its notes or I O U's and made money scarce.

Judge Mahee declared that the Canada Gazette contained all the information sought by Mr. Hall.

The suit in which the examination was held was brought by Peter Ryan to recover $12,000, his indebtedness to the Bank of Montreal.

BENNETT'S BILL AWAY ABOVE PAR

Brother of Famous John Drew in Leading Act—Trained
Sheep Amuse.

BENNETT'S Vaudeville offering this week is away above par, and the packed house which greeted last evening's performance appreciated every turn, some of the players being recalled several times.

Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew presented their delightfully humorous and clever skit, entitled "When Two Hears Are Won." The piece was well presented and took the crowd by storm. This highly-talented couple—Mr. Drew is a brother of the celebrated John Drew—have been presenting the same playlet for several years, and, like old wine, the turn seems to improve with age.

Chalk Saunders, in black and white caricatures of paper, proved himself to be a very clever artist. He was encouraged, but declined to respond.

The Holdsworths gave a very clever singing, dancing and banjo playing turn, and were forced to respond to several.

Jean Ardelle and her pock-pockinies were well received. The only objectionable feature of the act is the unearthly noise made by the pounding on the drums. Outside of this, the act is a very clever one, indeed.

Doblad's trained sheep were an oddity, inasmuch as it is the only act of its kind in the world. The animals are especially well trained, and the humorous part of the performance is well taken care of.

Marselles, in "A Puzzle in Black and White," presented a most novel and clever contortion and tumbling act. He is one of the best that ever stepped upon a local stage.

John McLaughlin, in illustrated songs, did not appear to be in good voice in his first offering, but captured the house when he afterward sang "Cheyenne."

Bean and Hamilton presented a very clever barrel-jumping turn, and received a good houseful of applause. The moving pictures were A1—much better than those generally shown.

Undoubtedly, this week's bill is the best vaudeville offering that London theater-goers have had the privilege of witnessing in a long time. The bill continues for the entire week, and should draw packed houses at each performance.

Every evening for the balance of the week, that clever xylophone artist, Harry McKenna, is to give a solo. Londoners are always glad to hear Harry.

There are more than 10,000 establishments in the United States for raising early vegetable plants under glass. Within a radius of fifteen miles of Boston there are nearly 2,000,000 square feet of glass used in forcing vegetables. Near Providence, R. I. are fully ten acres of glass for the same purpose. The suburbs of New York, Chicago and other big cities use nearly 5,000,000 square feet of glass for strictly vegetable and early fruit culture, and the glass alone used in thus forcing nature is worth millions. — Leslie's Weekly.

A MISSION FULFILLED

A minute later, and Keith encountered Geronimo on the narrow pathway, and the annoyance smoldering within him took easy fire from the small spark of the young fisherman's discourteous behavior. Geronimo and Keith were not on the best of terms. Keith termed the young man "a sulky dog," and the expression was not quite undeserved. Geronimo usually looked the other way, or pretended to be afflicted with partial blindness whenever he encountered the Englishman. At first Keith had laughed at this conduct of the young fisherman's, and even combated it good-humoredly; then he had acquiesced with careless indifference. He was not a man, however, who could put up with anything, and he felt how strong a dislike was growing up within him toward this ill-mannered, ill-mannered young Capriote, who was so strange a contrast to the majority of his companions. For some reason or other his temper rose within him more than usual this morning at the sight of the unwelcome figure. A man is apt to be more tenacious of the outward deference due to him from his inferiors when his own social position is severely shaken; and Keith was in

The little Princess robe is very pretty and well adapted to so young a wearer. The front panel offers field for adornment as do the shaped ruffles over the shoulders. A pretty idea is suggested in the form of ribbon—on one side, might adorn the front or an all-over embroidery be used. If made by hand babies' clothes are far daintier. CHAPTER XLII.

A Hurried Journey.

"Husband," said Margherita, softly, laying her hand upon his arm, and speaking with an effort, "you must go to England—to your father."

There had been a long silence between them. The frugal supper was over, little Keith Stefano lay asleep upstairs, and they were sitting over the wood fire which was so necessary, but so expensive a luxury in the chilly, stormy weather now upon them.

There was another pause; then Keith answered her abruptly: "No," he said, "not I. You must go, Margherita."

"If," she repeated, in a startled tone, "yes, you must go, I will go with you. I should have said so. You know my temper. Even if my father agreed to see me, I should never be able to put up with his strong language. We should only quarrel again worse than ever. It would do no good."

"But he is very ill, Keith; he would not use strong words to you."

"Oh, yes, he would. He isn't too ill for that. I should only make matters worse. I tell you I know it. But you have done nothing to offend him. He was always fond of you; he would not refuse to see you. He looks upon you," continued the young man, smiling, "as a fellow-victim to my wickedness, I believe. Well, perhaps he's right—perhaps I am a very wicked fellow. Anyhow, as I was saying, he will listen to you; and you won't lose patience, as I should. He will hear the truth from you and you, perhaps, persuade him of the iniquity of punishing an innocent babe—of throwing his grandson upon the workhouse."

"But your mother and sisters, Keith? They would welcome you—"

"My mother would be kind to you for my sake. She wishes justice done, only she is so phlegmatic. Florence is on our side, anyway; but she is probably not there. As for Mildred—poor soul, I believe she is mean enough to egg my father on to this injustice—I believe she would fight against either of us! But I will back you against Mildred, Margherita."

Margherita sat on, very still, very silent, her hands clasped, her eyes fixed upon the futile flame.

"You will do it—you will go, Margherita?" he asked, with some eagerness.

"I am not afraid," she said, slowly. "I am not afraid. I will do it, if you think it best. When shall I go, caro mio?"

"The sooner the better. What do you say to the day after tomorrow?"

The door opened and a maid came in. "And, Keith—my baby? May I take him with me?"

"Take him with you? My dear child, are you mad? I hope you will be back in a week or ten days, unless you telegraph for us to join you. How could you rush about with a baby in your arms? It would kill both of you."

BROUWER MURDER CASE

Accused Husband Tells His Life Story To the Court.

Tom's River, N. J., Oct. 15.—The trial of Dr. Frank Brouwer for the alleged murder of his wife by poison was resumed today. Two of the jurors, Edward Wilson, of Dr. Brouwer's counsel, and Dr. John Marshall, the Philadelphia chemist, who testified as an expert for the defense, all of whom had been sick, were in the court today.

After two neighbors of Dr. Brouwer had testified that the doctor and his wife had seemed to be on the best of terms, Dr. Brouwer took the stand in his own defense.

He told the story of his early struggle with poverty, when he worked as a carpenter to earn money to pay his way through college and medical school, and then of the time when he began to practice medicine at Lake Hurst.

It was while struggling along to make a living at that place that I first met the woman who became my wife," said Dr. Brouwer.

"We were married not long afterwards, and when the foundation for our home was completed, I transferred the property to my wife. Much has been said about the financial relations between my wife and myself, and I wish to say that all the money that went into that house was furnished by me. Subsequently I sold the house and the money received from the sale was purchased some property at Tom's River. Then I started to build the house where I now live. I had to borrow some money from the Dover Loan and Trust Company, and it would have been a reflection on—"

Here the witness broke down and began to sob. After a few minutes he continued: "We always had servants in that house when we could afford them, and when we could get them. My annual income was about $2,000. We were married July 1, 1896, and after residing a year at Lake Hurst we came to Tom's River."

Dr. Brouwer denied much of the testimony given for the prosecution by his wife's sister, Elizabeth Hyer. He never told her that he did not respect his wife, nor that he intended to get a divorce, and he never struck his wife in the presence of Ben Hyer or at any other time.

Dr. Brouwer told of the illness of his wife, and said that he gave her every possible attention, and called in other physicians to attend her.

Nature's Own Great Skin Healer

Ancient Greece and Rome will always be remembered for the fine types of manhood found on their battlefields and in their arenas, but perhaps these manly men themselves will be most remembered because of the valuable custom they bequeathed to later ages of healing sore and injured places on their bodies by the external application of secret balms or salves. The charioteers, gladiators and wrestlers seldom emerged from their contests without some severe bruise or gaping wound; and to anoint each injury carefully with their favorite balm was an indispensable part of the day's programme. If we go back in history we find that this external rubbing has prevailed right from the earliest times, and the only explanation of its survival, amidst so many changes in science, seems to lie in the fact that the external use of salves and balms is dictated to us by Nature herself. Our own instinct tells us to rub a part that hurts; and in Zam-Buk the ideal substance to apply to an injured or diseased surface is universally believed to have been found at last. The objection to ointments, salves, liniments and embrocations has hitherto been that they are imperfect in their action, and frequently contain quantities of rancid animal fat and mineral products of a harmful nature. Now, Zam-Buk is entirely free from any of these objections. It is compounded from the finest herbal balms and essences and is absolutely devoid of all trace of animal or mineral substances.

Whoever watches the healing of a wound or sore with Zam-Buk is face to face with one of Nature's greatest wonders. The healing process thus set in motion is nothing but a phenomenon of regeneration—a natural process of replacing destroyed tissues by new ones. The antiseptic substances contained in Zam-Buk first attack and kill off the microbes or germs that are the cause of inflammation or disease, and then the healing ingredients proceed to build up new tissue to replace that which has been damaged or lost. New cells appear like a builder extending a new row of houses; the whole of the wounded area is gradually overlapped, and soon it is difficult to tell where the injury has been, so perfect and complete is the growth of the new skin.

Zam-Buk is a household necessity. For skin disease or injuries in home, factory, field or workshop, Zam-Buk can be confidently recommended as well for its general efficacy as for its wholesomeness, its power and purity.

ZAM-BUK CURES

Cuts, Burns, Bruises, Scalds, Sore or Chapped Hands, Eczema, Disfiguring Spots, Blood Poisoning, Encrustations, Scabs, Obstinate Sores, Running Wounds, Inflammation, Peeling or Scaling Skin, Scurf, Sore Heads and Bumps, Bad Legs, Erysipelas, Piles, Psoriasis, Scalp Diseases, Abscesses, Boils, Ringworms, Chilblains, Stiffness, Etc. Rubbed well on the chest in cases of colds, chills, etc., it gives great relief. Obtainable from all druggists at 50 cents per box, or post free from the Zam-Buk Company, Toronto, on receipt of price. Six boxes for $2.50.

Zam-Buk

THEY ALL PRAISE ZAM-BUK

Mrs. W. E. Rice, of London Junction, Ont., says:

"I cannot be thankful enough for the day Zam-Buk came to Canada. For nine years I had been a sufferer from running sores on my legs, caused by blood poisoning. I had tried every kind of ointment and salve that I had heard of, but none of them seemed equal to my case. Last winter I was worse than ever, and could not bear to stand on my feet for five minutes. The pain was so acute that I could not bear to have my slippers on."

"I heard of Zam-Buk, and decided to give it a fair trial. From first commencing with it, it did me good, and it has now cured me. Where as before I could not stand on my feet for five minutes at a time, I can now not only stand, but walk about without feeling any pain whatever. I feel like a new woman. I have waited to see if the cure was permanent before making any statement, and now I am very willing to give my testimony. I shall be pleased to answer any inquiries, and if anyone cares to come and see me, I shall be pleased to tell them what Zam-Buk has done for me."

Mrs. J. J. Wilson, of 53 Wickson avenue, Toronto, says:

"I am thankful to testify to the value of Zam-Buk. It is really a wonderful remedy for cuts, burns and skin diseases. My little girl, five years old, had an abscess on her knee. The knee was very much swollen and inflamed, and very painful. We put on some Zam-Buk, and it quite cured her. I have also used it for cuts and bruises sustained by both my children."

"My husband had his eye badly burned with hot lime. The eye was swollen and very much inflamed, and the agony was terrible. We applied Zam-Buk and the pain was very speedily relieved. In three days the eye was quite cured."

"Mothers in particular should know how useful Zam-Buk is. No mother need be afraid to use it on her children."

A GENUINE OFFER

Once Zam-Buk is tried it inevitably gains such favor that it is installed in the home as the family balm. So assured are the proprietors that once tested you will appreciate the superiority of Zam-Buk that they are willing to allow you to test it at their expense. Write your name and address in the following lines and mail it to the Zam-Buk Company, Toronto, with one cent stamp to pay postal, and a sample box will be sent you free of charge.

GAVE ALDERMEN MUCH LATITUDE

Mayor Did Hold Them Down to Rules Last Night.

ENCROACHING ON THE STREETS

Many Buildings and Fences Alleged To Be—New Stand Proposed For the Draymen.

When the aldermen were called to order at the regular meeting of the council there was enough business to keep them engaged for an hour or an hour and a half at the outside—that is, if they had confined themselves strictly to the rules of order. But they did not, for the mayor seemed to give the members of his municipal family the greatest latitude, and this caused the proceedings to drag on until a quarter to 11. Ald Garratt was the worst offender.

No a little of the time was taken up with a clause of the board of works report, regarding an alleged encroachment on Waterloo street, between York street and the Grand Trunk tracks, by E. Leonard & Sons. It is claimed by the city that Leonard's fence is two or three inches over the street line, and it was also stated by Ald. Booth that the east end of the Grand Trunk

An Ointment With a Record

There are, we believe, few, if any, preparations which have such a remarkable record of cures as has Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Some have been cured of eczema, salt rheum, tetter, psoriasis, or other torturing forms of itching skin diseases.

Some have found this great ointment the means of healing old ulcers and sores which for years had defied any other treatment.

Others have obtained cure for chafing, skin irritations or eruptions, and poisoned skin.

Again, there are those who have been freed from the keen torture of itching, bleeding or protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment.

From rich and poor alike come tributes of praise for the exceptionally soothing, healing, antiseptic influence of Dr. Chase's Ointment, which in most homes is now considered a household necessity. 60c a box, at all dealers, or Edman, Bates & Co., Toronto.

freight sheds was in the neighborhood of 25 feet over the line.

Half a Dozen Votes.

Before the council disposed of the matter half a dozen votes were taken. Some advocated notifying Leonard & Sons and the Grand Trunk of the encroachment, with the idea of letting the railway in particular know that the matter had not been lost sight of, and in the hope that should the Grand Trunk erect new freight sheds on the same site it would keep on its own land.

Ald. Booth even wanted the city solicitor instructed to notify all parties encroaching on the street line, but this was defeated owing to the cost that would be incurred. Eventually the council decided to refer the matter back to the committee to have the engineer ascertain the names of the several persons who have built over the street line.

Mayor's Authority Questioned. Then there was the letter from the Grand Trunk explaining the recent blockade of the Richmond street crossing for 25 minutes.

The letter was in answer to a protest sent by the mayor, and Ald. Garratt wanted to know on whose authority his worship had written to the Grand Trunk.

"On my authority as mayor," was the answer.

"Well, I think it is the duty of the engineer to do so, and it is the duty of the mayor to instruct him."

"The mayor of the city knows his duty," was the only satisfaction Ald. Garratt received.

Want Fixed Assessment.

Wortman & Ward asked the council for a fixed assessment of $25,000 on their factory on York street.

The premises are at present assessed for $28,000, which the firm claim is their full value. The firm had asked for a fixed assessment last year, but the application was presented near the close of the aldermanic term and no action was taken on it. The matter was referred to No. 1 committee.

Everly Johnson's letter asking for the annual grant of $25 to the London Teachers' Association, was sent to No. 1.

Among the matters sent to the board of works were petitions for a cement walk on the north side of Hope street, a cement walk on the north side of Tecumseh avenue, from May Bros., asking for the removal of the intersection crossing at Lyle and York streets, and Alex Fitzsimmons, notice of a claim for damages alleged to have been received through a manhole being left open.

The letter from the Trades and Labor Council complaining that butter sold on the market was short weight, was sent to No. 3 committee.

The Ladies' Orange Lodge was granted the use of the city hall for a hop on Nov. 23.

John W. Thompson's letter re exemption for Cathcart street sewer, was sent to the board of works.

St. Paul's Evangelical Church was granted the free use of the city hall on Nov. 23 and 30 and Dec. 1, or Dec. 6, 7 and 8.

An application to have Mr. and Mrs. James Williams admitted to the Aged People's Home was referred to the mayor and Inspector McCallum.

The Pavement Delay.

The King street pavement was given some attention. The work on the new roadway is proceeding very slowly, causing complaints, and in addition to this, there are not a few who think the pavement will prove something of a failure. As the work is not nearly completed, and there is some question about it being satisfactory, the mayor was instructed to sign no further checks for the contractors, Messrs. Blight and Fielder, until such time as the road is declared A-1.

It developed during the discussion that the pavement has been under way for six weeks or more, whereas three weeks should be sufficient, the delay being caused by the loss of two carloads of surface material in a wreck. A curious feature to some of the aldermen was the fact that although scarcely anything had been done to the roadway for ten days, the city's inspector was steadily employed on the job.

New Stand for Draymen.

Ald. Gillen was informed that the placing of the electric light at the Hamilton road and Egerton street was due to the inability of the lighting company to secure poles.

Ald. Armstrong moved that the form of contract between the city and the street watering contractors be revised and made more in accordance with present conditions. Carried.

Ald. Armstrong also gave notice of a motion to instruct No. 3 committee to secure a new and suitable stand for the draymen, who now stand on York street in rear of the Grand Trunk depot.

Ald. Garratt's motion to have No. 1 committee submit an estimate of the cost of taking a census of the city, was carried.

The report of the special committee recommending the purchase of a strip of Tecumseh Park from W. J. Reid for $1,000 was approved of.

THE MOST POPULAR PILL.—The pill is the most popular of all forms of medicine, and of pills the most popular are Parmentier's Vegetable Pills, because they do what it is asserted they can do, and are not put forward on any fictitious claims to excellence. They are compact and portable, they are easily taken, they do not nauseate nor grip, and they give relief in the most stubborn cases.

There has been established at Notre Dame University a chair of Japanese history.

CUCUMBERS and melons are "forbidden fruit" to many persons so constituted that the least indulgence is followed by attacks of cholera, dysentery, griping, etc. These persons are not aware that they can indulge to their heart's content if they have on hand a bottle of Dr. J. J. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, a medicine that will give immediate relief, and is sure cure for all summer complaints.

CONTROL OF FISHERIES

Mr. Whitney Says Does Not Think Ontario Would Like a Change.

Toronto Oct. 15.—Premier Whitney, who returned today from the premier's conference at Ottawa, in an interview drew attention to that portion of the first resolution passed by the conference reserving to any province the right to submit a memorandum in writing as to any claims it might have to larger sums or additional consideration or recognition.

This was added to the resolution at the request of Ontario and British Columbia after considerable discussion. "In pursuance of it," said Mr. Whitney, "a memorandum was filed on behalf of Ontario and was considered by the Dominion Government along with the other resolutions."

"Copies of that memorandum gives the exact position assumed by Ontario, and without knowledge of it it is impossible to understand the situation from our point of view."

The Premier alluded to the matter of the fisheries, and the suggestion of the Dominion Government that the present dual control should cease.

He said he said, taken the position in speaking to Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the subject that it would be necessary for him to consult his colleagues of the provincial cabinet.

"And," continued Mr. Whitney, "I hazarded the view that the people of Ontario would not regard with a friendly eye the handing over to the Dominion of everything which they looked upon as their property."

SNAP-SHOTS AT VARIOUS SPORTS

The Forest City football bunch are putting in some strenuous licks in practicing for the game with the strong Dundas team on Thursday at Tecumseh Park. The recent game with Woodstock has been a great boon to the boys inasmuch as it showed them their weak points. The boys are practicing faithfully every night under electric lights.

Cy Eddy, the lanky gridiron warrior, is confident that he will be allowed to play for London on Thursday by the O. R. F. U.

The Victorias were tripped up for a couple of games last night in the City Tenpin League by the Orientals. Those Orientals are getting to be quite the style.

While the Cubs were running out in front in the race for the National stakes, the White Sox were running in the ruck for the American prize. By one of the games, if not the very game exhibition of nerve and stick-to-it-in-the-history of the national pastime, they worked themselves up from seventh place to the lead, finally capturing the position which had been alternately held previously by the Athletics, the Clevelanders and the New Yorks. It was the most gruelling fight in the history of the American League, for in the middle of July there were four clubs with a seeming chance for the flag. There wasn't a cinch in the American League. It is true that the Boston Nationals did better in their race than did the Americans in theirs, but the Americans were invariably harder to beat. They always played out the string, and not a team in the outfit could afford to make any experimenting in the pitching line when stacked up against Stahl's bunch at the finish.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Y. M. C. A. Soccer team beat the Collegiate Institute team to the tune of 2 to 1 last evening on the Barracks grounds.

Harry Lewis, who recently administered a sleeping potion to Willie Fitzgerald, has been matched to fight Jack Dougherty ten rounds next Friday in Washington, D. C.

Wonder what has happened to the press agents of Burns and O'Brien? We haven't heard a word about them or a day or two!

What kind of an article will the weatherman provide for Thanksgiving? There will be several foot races and other athletic events pulled off in this city if the weatherman does the right thing.

Captain Bobby Hague requests his mates on the Forest City team not to get on the outside of too much "turkey" on Thursday until after the game with Dundas.

The New York Morning Journal has the following to say about the recent baseball series in Chicago:

The showing of the Chicago White Sox in the world's championship series which has been contested for the past few days in the Windy City is something marvelous. Fielder Jones truly had an extraordinary aggregation of pitchers and stick workers, but there was little hope in the baseball world that he could hold down the Chicago team of the National League, because of the decisive fashion in which the latter carried off the honors from the former world's champion Giants.

When it is remembered that the Cubs have been loafing along at an easy gait for the past month, merely because they did not have to play hard, and that the White Sox have been attacked and hard pressed by both the Yankees and Lajoie's Cleveland Naps, the showing of the American League is all the more wonderful.

Fans have been discussing with some concern the meaning of the games played so far in the west, and have come to various conclusions. One enthusiast has gone so far as to say that he believes that there has been a "stall," that feature of sport which makes it obnoxious to the public. He feels that the Cubs have been allowing the Sox to win in order that interest in the series will not flag as it has done during the entire National League series after the Giants were put out of the running. His argument is based on the fact that the White Sox must have been fatigued by the hard ball they have been playing and could not have put up such good resistance to the Cubs.

Unless the Capital lacrosse team show a big reversal of form and the Tecumsehs a vast improvement next Saturday the Minto mug is going to hibernate in the home of the Dominion Legislature and the lumber pile.—Toronto News.

COMISKEY REWARDS HIS FLAG-WINNERS

Makes a Present of $15,000 to the Members of the Chicago Americans.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Charles A. Comiskey will make his White Sox the best rewarded team that has ever won a world's championship. As soon as Fielder Jones had dressed this afternoon, and had torn away from the crowd that insisted on shaking hands with him, the old Roman took his field manager into the club office, and there made out and handed him a check for $15,000, to be divided among the players of the club. This money is nearly half of the Chicago American League club's share in the receipts for the series, and is entirely distinct from the money of the players' fund, which the commission will disburse.

In round numbers the Sox will get $40,000 for upsetting the dope on baseball. The winning players' share, held out of the first four games by the commission, was $25,951.53. Those Sox who were eligible for the series divide this. Now comes the additional $15,000 given by Comiskey. Every player now under contract to the club gets a piece of the added money.

The figures on the series were as follows:

Tuesday	12,693	13,910
Wednesday	12,595	13,890
Thursday	13,667	14,056
Friday	18,384	19,980
Saturday	23,357	23,834
Sunday	19,249	20,861

Total $9,845 $106,550 00
Of this sum the two clubs split $22,492 20. The players get $23,401 70, divided $25,951 53 to the Sox and $38,359 43 to the Cubs. The National commission takes $10,655 for expenses incidental to the series.

The Sox share is $1,190 72 per man from the commission's disbursements, and $681 82 each from the $15,000 added money, making it worth $1,872 54 to be a member of Comiskey's nine. Each Cub gets $439 49 for his share.

As Comiskey's share of the receipts for the series was $31,246 05 he virtually cut the money in two with his players.

THURSDAY'S RACES AT QUEEN'S PARK

Big Crowd Expected to Witness Contests for Canadian Club Cups.

A big crowd is expected at Queen's Park at 10 o'clock on Thursday morning to witness the cup races to be held under the auspices of the Canadian Club.

Two trophies are to be offered—one being for a mile race for teams representing the public and separate schools of the city, and the other for teams representing the athletic organizations of London. The race for the school boys is to be one mile, on the Queen's Park track, five boys to constitute a team, the first three members of each team to cross the line to count.

The race for the athletic clubs is to be five miles, most of which will be run over city roads. The start will be at the Queen's Park track, and the course mapped out to be followed, is east on Dundas street to the asylum grounds, through the latter to Oxford street, west on Oxford street to Waterloo street, south on Waterloo street to Dufferin avenue. From the latter place the runners can follow any course they choose to the park. The teams are to constitute five men each, the first three across the line to count.

The public are cordially invited to witness the races. No charge whatever is being made to the public, and the promoters of the events say "the more that come the merrier."

The majority of the schools are expected to have teams in the mile event. It is also expected that several teams will enter in the five-mile run.

PULLIAM SURE HE WILL BE "IT"

Has No Doubt About Re-Election as President of the National League.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 12.—Immediately after the conclusion of the world's championship series this week President Pulliam will leave for Europe, there to remain until the eve of the National League meeting in the second week of December. In speaking of the presidential election Mr. Pulliam expressed utmost confidence in his reelection. Said he: "I can't figure out how I will lose. There will be only two votes against me, as there were last year. I am not apprehensive about Boston. I have every reason to believe that Mr. Soden will vote for me. He has always been my friend, and every year he has been the one who has drafted the resolution endorsing my administration. The report that Philadelphia might go back on me is a joke, for if every other club in the league was against me, they would vote for me in Philadelphia. I believe Potter is one of my best friends. I met him at the boat when he came back from Europe, and this suit I have on is brought back for me. No, I can count on Philadelphia, Stanley Robinson, I know will be for me, for we are the very best of friends, and Dreyfus, Murphy and Ebbetts, I can surely count on for me. So where can I lose?" President Pulliam then said in a warm tribute to the new National League champions. Said he: "That bulldozing and bullying are not essential to the winning of a championship is shown by the success which the Chicago team has had this year. Since the present season opened the Cubs have had just five men put out of the game. There is no doubt at all that Manager Chance, after his own suspension in April, came to the conclusion that in order to be successful it would be necessary to keep his team as intact as possible, and that the only way to accomplish that would be to refrain from kicking so that no talent would be lost. I was informed of one game in which Johnny Evers, the scrappy second baseman of the team, tried to get into an argument with umpire, Chance saw there was something on, and when he heard that Evers was kicking on a decision he said: 'If there is any kicking to be done on this team I'll do it. If I hear any of it from you (meaning Evers), or anyone else, I'll put you out of the game myself.' And it is that spirit that, has helped bring the flag to Chicago."

YANKEE CELEBRITIES AT HAMILTON TOURNEY

Hamilton, Mass., Oct. 15.—A picked field of twenty golfers, including Eben Byers, of Pittsburgh, the present national amateur champion; Walter J. Travis, of Garden City, a former national, as well as British champion; H. J. Whitman, the title holder in 1896 and 1897; C. B. McDonald, the first American champion, and many other players of national reputation, made the three days' invitation tournament, which began at the Myopia Hunt Club, one of the most interesting events in the golfing year.

J. B. Hyland, of the Vesper Country Club, of Lowell, led the field in the qualifying round of the morning, with an 82, while Travis was 83. P. W. Whittemore, of Braintree, was 84, and Byers and W. C. Chick, of Oakley, 85 each.

Whittemore played the course in 91 strokes and McDonald in 88.

F. O. Horstman, of Philadelphia, and Archie Graham, of New York, played rather poorly, getting 97 and 93 respectively, while W. P. Smith, of Philadelphia, with the help of a pretty three on the last hole, made an 83.

Are Fully 25 Per Cent Better Than the Suits You Can Buy Elsewhere At This Price.

That this is a most conservative statement will be proved by comparison. For you will find our $15 Suits are in reality as good as most of the $20 suits of others. We made special efforts to have, this season, the best line of $15 Suits we ever had, and the way the suits are selling shows that our efforts were not misdirected.

There are 25 distinct suits to choose from—single or double breasted Goodwood Sacks of black chevrons, heavy blue serges and fancy worsteds in light and dark effects and in plaids, stripes and over-plaids. Every one is made of all-wool fabrics. Every one is tailored throughout by hand. Every one is absolutely correct in style.

But it's only because they are made in our own factories that we are able to give you so much better than anyone else. Our prices are based on a fair profit over the cost of manufacture. Other stores must provide for their own profit and pay the manufacturers' besides.

You see, don't you, why our prices are less? And it's the same way throughout our stock. At every price you get better value by 25 to 30 per cent than you can get elsewhere.

YEAR IN CARING FOR THE ORPHANS

Annual Meeting of the Protestant Home Board — Officers Chosen For 1907.

The annual meeting of the trustees of the Protestant Orphans' Home was held yesterday afternoon at the home. Rev. J. W. Graham opened the meeting with a Bible reading, after which the secretary's annual report was read and adopted.

The report covered the twelve months ended Sept. 30, and showed 24 boys and 14 girls in the home at the end of the year. The number of admissions to the home during the year was, boys 19, girls 10; total 29. Total number of discharges, boys 23, girls 10; number of inmates in the home Sept. 30, 1906: Boys 20, girls 14.

It was reported that not one death had taken place during the year and that the health of the inmates had been exceptionally good, no cases of serious illness having occurred.

During the year numerous applications for children to be taken from home for service and for adoption had been received. Some of these applications had to be rejected, but five children had been sent to excellent homes. The visiting committee, which visited the home every month during the year, reported that on every visit they found the home clean and in satisfactory condition, and that the grounds were always in good shape. The committee further reported that they were well pleased with the general management which had been quite satisfactory under the careful supervision of the matron, Miss Auld.

The work of the children in the school was at all times most satisfactory. Mrs. Oliphant deserved great credit for the progress made in this department.

The report contained a reference to the late Mr. Thomas McCormick, who had long been a friend of the home, and for many years a member of the advisory board.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Niven and Stevenson, Mr. J. H. Flock, Mr. E. W. M. Flock, Dr. Woolverton, the city press, and to the advisory board, and all others, who have assisted in any way in the work.

The following officers were elected for the year:

President—Mrs. Cuthbert McCallum. Patronesses—Mrs. George Robinson, Mrs. W. M. Spencer and Mrs. Becher. Vice-Presidents—Mrs. De la Hooke, Mrs. R. Fowler, Mrs. C. H. Ziegler and Mrs. W. T. Edges. Secretary—Miss F. M. McNamara. Assistant Secretary—Miss A. S. Stevenson. Treasurer—Mrs. E. H. Gregston. Auditors—Messrs. E. W. M. Flock and J. H. Bowman.

The trustees were re-elected, with the addition of Mrs. McGarvey and Mrs. J. Scandrett.

The advisory board were re-elected with the addition of Mr. W. T. Edges and Dr. Hugh Stevenson.

The financial report for the year showed as follows: For maintenance, $4,488 31; expenditure, $4,298 69; balance on hand, $189 62. Amount received from endowments, $1,712 50.

Ald. Armstrong presided over the meeting.

CONGRATULATIONS

Toronto Bar Expresses Its Best Wishes for Mr. Justice Riddell.

Toronto, Oct. 15.—Mr. Justice Riddell, who was appointed to succeed Mr. Justice Street, presided over his first court in the grand jury assizes today. Before the judge had been empaneled, Mr. Frank Arnold, K.C., rose and expressed, on behalf of the bar, its congratulations to one of its members who had been elevated. Mr. W. A. Skeans, on behalf of the junior bar, joined with his learned senior in expressing congratulations. It was a matter of regret that his lordship's career at the bar had come to a close.

"Gentlemen of the bar," replied his lordship, rising, "the sentiments which you have just addressed to me are simply a culmination of a long series of kindnesses which I have received at the hands of my brethren of the bar. I have been, as you have said, a very active practitioner now for more years than I care to think of, but I can say that there is not a living man at the bar in active practice from whose hand I have experienced anything else but the utmost kindness, courtesy and consideration on all occasions."

"For years I have been rheumatic. I tried various forms of relief without success. The disease increased, settled in my joints and muscles; these swelled, caused excruciating pain and kept me from sleeping. My limbs and arms stiffened, my shoulders were lame and prevented me from working. Week by week I was losing strength and despaired of finding a cure. It was a happy day I heard of Ferrozone. Every day I took Ferrozone I felt better; it eased the painful joints, gave me energy and a feeling of new life. Ferrozone cured my rheumatism, cured it so that not an ache has ever returned. Even damp weather no longer affects me."

Ferrozone has power to destroy uric acid, neutralize and enrich the blood, and therefore does cure the worst cases. Mrs. Warman's statement proves this. By removing the cause of the disease and building up a reserve of energy Ferrozone is certain to cure. Sufferer, isn't it about time to stop experimenting? Ferrozone is a cure. We guarantee this. The regiment had fallen in at the armories for its regular drill, when it was decided that on such a fine evening a route march would be very profitable. There was a good turnout, and the regiment presented a splendid appearance, headed by the two bands, which rendered good music, and showed a vast improvement. The regiment was in charge of Major Hume Cronyn. COULD NOT BE AVOIDED.

STIRRING DRAMA AT THE GRAND

Heart of Gold a Hit Before Big House—Rip Van Winkle Tonight.

The justly-celebrated White Stock Company opened a two nights' engagement at the Grand last night, playing to a crowded and highly pleased house. "Heart of Gold" was the offering. It is a strong drama of intense human interest, clean and inspiring, and in the hands of a most capable company, the powerful climaxes and delightful comedy were splendidly brought out.

The moderns of the act, Jean Le Pelletier, had only been in London a short time, but he has made many warm friends.

FOR OBSERVANCE OF THE LORD'S DAY

Mr. Shearer Speaks of Recent "Battle For" Sabbath Legislation.

At a meeting held last evening in the First Presbyterian Church, Rev. J. G. Shearer, secretary of the Dominion Lord's Day Alliance, spoke on the recent "Battle for Sabbath Legislation."

He was introduced by Rev. J. G. Stuart, of South London, who opened the meeting.

Speaking of the struggle in general, Mr. Shearer pointed out the battle which took place in the Dominion Parliament was not different in many important points from that which has taken place in other countries, and one of its most important issues was its effect upon the nation. The reason that the Lord's Day act was passed was because the Government realized the great importance of the institution of the Christian Sabbath to the people of Canada in general.

Mr. Shearer went on to relate some of the more important incidents in connection with the debates in Parliament. Henri Bourassa had been the most outspoken in opposition to the measure, while the Premier had defended it by recalling what had taken place in France within the last few years. The Premier spoke of the time when the French tried to do away with the Sabbath altogether, and noted the fact that they had found it ruinous to their country, and that the French Chamber of Deputies, on the 6th of July last, had passed a drastic Sunday law for France by a vote of 575 to 1.

Mr. Shearer spoke of the conditions which he saw in France when he visited that country, and said that he never wanted to see such a state of affairs existing in Canada. France found that even the holiday Sunday was ruinous, for a holiday for a few days for all France, Spain, Belgium and Italy were all pointed to by the Premier as countries which had a trial of the holiday Sunday or no Sunday, and they have all of recent years passed good Sunday laws.

This strong argument of the Premier's said Mr. Shearer did away almost entirely with the chief opposition in the House, which came from the French-Canadian members, because it was an appeal to Frenchmen by a man of their own nationality, and was bearing conditions in the land of their forefathers. Mr. Shearer then spoke of the steps which have recently been taken in China, where the Imperial powers have requested Chinamen, not only in China, but all over the world, to observe the Christian Sabbath. He said that the reason for the Chinese Government taking this step was that they had observed the prosperity of Great Britain, the United States and other countries, where the Christian Sabbath was observed.

The second issue which Mr. Shearer mentioned in connection with proper Sunday legislation, was its beneficial effect upon workmen. This, he said, was well demonstrated by the fact that at one time the working classes were in a state of lawlessness, but now most of the labor organizations are supporting the cause. Another issue was the effect upon the vitality of the Church of Christ. "The eternal salvation of large numbers of people depends upon the maintenance of the Lord's Day," said Mr. Shearer.

Speaking of the methods pursued by the alliance in presenting their bill to the Government, Mr. Shearer said that they had profited by the experience of John Charlton, M. P., who had tried to introduce Sunday legislation in a private bill, but had completely failed, and had decided to introduce it as a Government measure, and the Government was willing to look at the bill in a reasonable way. Some people think that petitions do not count, but Mr. Shearer, who went on to show how the importance of the measure had been constantly kept before the Government by petition after petition, signed by hundreds and thousands of electors. These petitions came in a constant stream during the hearing, and an hour was spent each day in hearing them. Opposition petitions from Seventh Day Adventists and Jews were numerous, signed, but not by voters, women and children. Many letters were also sent to the members, and they had a good effect. "A member should be influenced to represent the prevailing public opinion," said Mr. Shearer, who claimed that these private letters and petitions indicated to the members which way the public sentiment was going.

Speaking of the second reading of the Sunday bill, Mr. Shearer said that Mr. Fitzpatrick presented it in a reasonable light. The appeal made by the Jews and Seventh Day Adventists was forceful in that it seemed hardly fair to prevent them from earning more than five days' wages per week; but it is impossible to favor the minority, without putting the majority at a disadvantage. The Sunday excursion clause was one which he had expected would be vigorously opposed, but it had not, for all the railway, steamship and transportation had favored the measure. The Sunday newspaper clause was one which they also expected would meet with much opposition, but they were delighted to find that public sentiment in Canada was not so much in favor of Sunday papers as was thought. All they had to do was to allow the 5 per cent of the newspapers in opposition to the Sunday paper to fight the 5 per cent in favor of it.

"The chief opposition to the Sunday amusement clause came from Montreal," said the speaker, "but to this clause we were agreeably surprised to find comparatively little opposition."

The most formidable opposition to the bill as a whole came from the transportation companies. The only clause affecting railways which they did not fight to a bitter finish, was that governing Sunday excursions. They had expert lawyers with all the rail managers of Canada, present to oppose the measure, and joined as they had never joined for any purpose before, to oppose the measure. The chief argument offered by the Alliance was in pointing to the example of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway and the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul clear the crossing as quickly as possible, as the stalled train was delaying passenger traffic.

The Advance of the Healing Art.

The healing art has advanced vastly since the days when wounds were cauterized by red-hot irons to stop bleeding, and the tourniquet was in everyday use. In the treatment of skin diseases and injuries the greatest discovery of modern times has been that of the healing power of the Zamb-Buk.
