Meeting Unanimous, and Colonel Reason Accepts Nomination. Lieut.-Col. C. H. Reason, D.S.O.,

O.B.E., was unanimously endorsed as an independent-soldier candidate for the federal election for London at a meeting of ex-soldiers held in a downtown office Friday evening. The motion for the nomination was moved by John Glennie and was seconded by Alex Joseph, and was spoken to by several of the exservice men present. All referred to the proposed candidate as a man with a heart. The result of the ballot was received with manifest approval by the meeting. Before the meeting adjourned the acting secreary, John Rawlings, ascertained over the telephone that the proposed can-didate was willing to accept the launch a vigorous campaign on be-half of Col. Reason. On John Bacon's suggestion, with which several speakers showed them-selves in accord, it was made clear that the campaign committee was not representative of any existing veteran's organization, but was an independent committee of ex-soldier citizens on behalf of about two thousand, who claimed to have signified their desire to have Col. Reason as a candidate. The committee has undertaken to appeal at once for public dertaken to appear at the support for the soldier candidate.

MEIGHEN'S ABUSIVE WAY SPOILING TORY CHANCES

Conservative Leader Retains His Objectionable Speech Methods Despite Protests of Party Supporters, Who Fear He Is Alienating Votes—First Week of Campaign Brings Many Bitter Thrusts Which King Ably Turns Aside For Liberal Gains.

HEAVIEST SHOTS ARE STILL HELD IN RESERVE

By E. C. BUCHANAN. Special to The Advertiser by Staff Correspondent.

Ottawa, Sept. 11.-The end of the first week of the campaign finds the two chief combatants just getting warmed up. Neither Mr. King nor Mr. Meighen has yet released his heaviest punches. They are holding back, unwilling to disclose their whole bag of tricks in the initial round and have nothing left for effective employment later on. But the sparring stage is being gradually abandoned. They are beginning to et out in earnest. The first round undoubtedly goes o the prime minister. He has drawn to the prime minister. He has drawn out the opposition leader and had the countering blow ready for him in every instance. Expecting that Mr. Meighen would follow his usual tactions he was fully proposed for him. tics, he was fully prepared for him, waiting, in fact.

Mr. King's performance has greatly pleased his supporters, who have been following his utterances from the capital. Already the effect this procedure and published statefrom the capital. Already the disconnection of his speeches and published statements on the election atmosphere is discernible. The tide of opinion and sentiment, observers here are satisfactionally in favor fied, is flowing more strongly in favor fied, is flowing more strongly in favor of the government.

Displeases Supporters.

It was natural that Mr. Meighen should devote himself at his opening meeting at Wingham and in subsequent speeches this week to the prime minister's address in North York to giving his own version of it. That is the Conservative leader's way. Bitter denouncement of his opponent is the weapon he likes best to use. His employment of it has it opponent is the weapon he likes best to use. His employment of it has it ouse. His employment of it has displeased many of his own supporties in the past. Recognizing that it ters in the past. The prediction of Hon. Charles they had hoped Mr. Meighen would change his method, but they have change his method, but they have been disappointed. Any advice he been disappointed. Any advice he studying the situation as unduly optimistic.

has received in this respect he apparently has ignored.

Mr. King has taken full advantage of this predeliction of the Conservative leader, and has been leading him on. As Mr. Meighen has uttered his charges, the premier has taken them up and answered them with promptness and vigor. Thus in the matter of senate reform, the premier deliberately invited Mr. Meighen's attack in order to expose it the more effectively. Instead of disclosing his entire policy of furthering the cause of responsible government by constitutional reformation of the upper house, he waited, giving Mr. Meighen what seemed to him an opening. Mr. Meighen dashed in with the charges that the premier had failed to in-dicate any plan of reform, that he had no plan.

Mr. King had only to expose the hollowness of the accusation by making the announcement he had purposely withheld, that he proposed the abolition of life senatorships.

Move Eastward. From Ontario the party leaders are moving eastward next week. They will stop in the province of Quebec for a few speeches and then go on to Nova Scotia.

The Progressive party's campaign is not yet underway. Reports of developments in the west within the last few days have been received with interest in the capital. The dropping out of Mr. Crerar might have been accepted as attributable to have been accepted as attributable to business reasons, but when it is accompanied by the retirement of R. A. Hoey and Joseph Shaw, two of the ablest men in the Progressive party, significance is attached to it. It is thought that Mr. Crerar and others of the more broadminded and modof the more broadminded and moderate of the party are discouraged by the persistent pursuit of sectional and class aims on the part of the controlling majority. The announcement by Mr. Forke. the opening of whose campaign has been postponed by the death of his mother, that his party would have a candidate in every rural riding in Manitoba and perhaps one or two in Winnipeg is taken to mean that the proposal of Mr. Crerar for a western party of national scope has been

Refers to Fruit.

Mr. Meighen also made reference to fruit, particularly to that which came in here at a time before Canada's matured, which took the taste out of the mouth of the Canadian consumer for other classes of fruit, and sumer for other classes of fruit, and which came in here at a low tariff, and thereby destroyed or at least impaired the market for the Canadian product when it came. St. Marys Man Chosen To Contest South Riding by Conservatives.

Special to The Advertiser.

Mitchell, Sept. 11.-Robert Graham of St. Marys, farmer and drover, was chosen as Conservative candidate for South Perth at a convention held in the town hall here today. Fourteen were nominated but nine withdrew. Only one ballot was taken, Mr. Graham receiving almost one-half the vote. The other four nominees then moved that the nomination of Mr. Graham be made unanimous without further ballot, so that other business of the meeting might proceed.

Mr. Meighen was supported by J. D. Chaplin, M.P. for Lincoln county, and Eccles J. Gott, the Conservative candidate, who stated they had a good cause and should throw themselves whole-heartedly into the fight. Marshall had "sold out the partonial of industry," and was now trying to get the best of the Progressives by "making deals" to keep Progressive candidates out of competition with Liberals and cause three-cornered fights. Mr. Sutherland held himself up as the particular sponsor of the rights of the farmers, and declared that he had fought to have as large a measure of protection for farmers as was given manufacturers. In this connection he condemned the Australian trade pact.

Criticizes Expenditures. During his criticism of the King government, Mr. Sutherland read three questions which he had placed on the order paper at the last session of the house. These had to do with golf courses and radio stations as arranged by the Canadian Na-tional Railways, and he claimed that such expenditures were unwarranted, and that Mr. Meighen would not al and that Mr. Meighen would not allow any such expenditures to be made. He echoed the remarks frequently made by Mr. Meighen as to the operation of the railway and in criticism of the King government. List of 2,000 Closed Factories Never Existed, Liberal Chieftain Claims.

By Staff Correspondent to the Canadian Press.

Belleville, Ont., Sept. 11.-Premier King spoke this afternoon in support of Dr. Charles E. Hanna, who eleven months ago won the constituency of West Hastings in the by-election which followed the charges against Hon. James Murdock, minister of labor. Dr. Hanna is now a candidate in the new constituency of South Hastings. Invitations to this gathering said "Everybody invited to Charlie's big picnic."

The prime minister declared that the government had not come before the people simply for the sake of office. If that had been their desire they could have remained in office. "Our record with respect to the administration of the finances of the country is one which should inspire confidence on the part of the people, said the prime minister.

Premier King continued his reply to Mr. Meighen's speech at Wingham, He charged Mr. Meighen with deliberately trying to deceive the people. He charged Mr. Meighen with having neither regard for truth, or right,

"I say that in deliberately marking the statements he has made. Mr. Meighen is having regard neither for truth, or right, nor honor."

Once more in these words the prime minister again charged the Conservative leader with distortion of fact. Premier King this afternoon dealt more particularly with Mr. Meighen's references to business failures, and the cost of immigration. He declared that when Mr. Meighen's statistics on the cost of immigration had been challenged in Meignen's statistics on the cost of immigration had been challenged in the House of Commons, Mr. Meighen had taken the "cowardly" course and said "My secretary got the figures."

We have no desire to call Mr. said "My secretary got the figures."

"I have no desire to call Mr. Meighen names," exclaimed the prime minister. "but I have a desire to see certain high and honorable standards maintained in public discussion in this country. Explodes Charges.

Premier King first took up Mr. Meighen's Stratford speech, following the budget of last year, which reduced the tariff on certain implements of production. Mr. Meighen then said, continued Premier King, that 2,000 factories had been closed, and left the impression that the closing of the factories was due to the budget. Later, in the house of com-mons, when the accuracy of his fig-ures was questioned, Mr. Meighen said they covered the four years the government had been in office. Mr. King, "I at once confronted Mr. Meighen with the statement he had

Mr. Meighen claimed that he had taken the figures from Dun's, but Dun's figures of manufacturing fail-ures were not factories in the ordinary sense of the term. They were of enterprises in which six or more of enterprises in which six of more people were employed.

"Mr. Meighen said that I cannot challenge his statement at the present time." went on the prime minister. "Let us take Dun's figures. In Dun's book of failures there are put down under the head of manufacturing failures a total of 857 in 1922 with ing failures a total of 857 in 1922 with a loss of $39,000,000. That was the year we came into office. It was the year we came into office. It was the year following the year in which Mr. Meighen had been in office, and if these failures were affected by government policies at all Mr. Meighen's policies would be responsible.

Failures Decrease. "Now, take the next year we were in office, 1923. Instead of 857 failures, there are recorded only 792 failures, with a loss of $31,000,000, and in the year 1924 Dun's shows that instead of 857 or 792 failures there were only 625 failures. In other words, Dun's shows that the failures were fewer the longer the present government stayed in office." Premier King also quoted Bradstreet. He quoted Bradstreet's figures of the causes of failures in 1923, and argued that of these causes. failures by reason of competition alone could be regarded as being affected by tariff changes. Failures by reason of competition, he said, acreason of competition, he said, accounted for four per cent, or less than one per cent of the total business failures in 1923.

"a man who sends broadcast that 2,000 factories have closed due to the tariff policies of the government, and when the causes of failures are when the causes of failures are analyzed you find that those for which the tariff could be held responsible at all amount to only four per cent, or 13 out of a total of 2.961 business failures. Official Statement of the Executive Committee on the New Hotel Project

The London Hotel Company is to be formed to provide for the urgent needs of London, a new and modern hotel which shall be fully in accord with our city's commercial standing and import-

For the best interests of our city it has been decided that this project shall be a community undertaking, in which citizens generally may have a proprietary interest. Citizens will therefore be given an opportunity to subscribe to stock in this enterprise during the week of September 21 to 25.

The stock of the company will be a practical investment. To place it within reach of citizens generally certain liberal features regarding payments have been authorized, which, it is believed, will prove popular and will promote general subscription by businessmen and resi-

The par value of the stock is $100.00 per share. On all subscriptions six months will be allowed for full payment. The first payment of 25 per cent will be due and payable on subscription. Subsequent payments may be represented by notes maturing monthly, the last note covering the full subscription amount becoming due and payable on April 1, 1926. The stock may be fully paid for on subscription, if the subscriber so desires.

A careful study has been made of the requirements of the community and the rental possibilities of the new hotel. The Executive Committee believes that all hotel concessions will be readily rented,

The question of site for the new hotel has been a matter of long and studious consideration. More than a year has been devoted to an intensive study of this question in consultation with recognized hotel experts. The Committee believes that in the site selected by the citizens' vote, the most desirable location for a hotel in London has been found at the corner of Wellington and Dundas streets, and one presenting the greatest possibilities of increase in the equity obtained. The site offers opportunity for rental of shops and store premises which will have a vital bearing upon the success of the enterprise. This added revenue will accrue indirectly to the stockholders.

The importance of this enterprise to the community as a whole cannot be over-estimated. Indirectly the whole city will benefit by an increase in property values, by the advertising value of a first-class hotel, by the greater number of visitors attracted, and the increased business transacted by the merchants through the additional conventions accommodated and the increased tourist patronage obtained. The new hotel will have accommodations for social, fratern= al and business gatherings, and should become a center of community influence and a source of local pride and satisfac-

Citizens of London should take an active interest and invest in this project; first, because it is a distinctly community enterprise, which will reflect credit upon the city, and secondly, because a fair return in the shape of dividends on the investment may reasonably be anticipated.

A Problem in the Making.

To what extent is the government of United States, acting through its war department, determined that Chicago shall cease taking water from the Great Lakes? Chicago is now working on modern sewage disposal plants, and in the course of a few years these will be completed able to having the provinces send representathen definitely, or will the scheme of a great inland waterway from Chicago to the Mississippi and on to the Gulf of Mexico be brought who would support his reform proposals from out into the open as an international problem within.

and when Mr. Meighen tells his audiences the opposite he is distorting the truth.

The premier has a railway policy, and has put it in force. He has said from the start that the National Railways must be operated on a non-political basis, and that the management must have an opportunity to operate them as a commercial enterprise. To this policy he has adhered, and from Mr. Meighen he has received no support. In facing the more serious problem of the future of the road, the premier has stated definitely that he will never be a party to a railway monopoly in Canada, but he would be favorable to something between that and unrestricted competition. There is provision now for the control of rates, and the premier considers that the proper course is to apply the same authority to the regulation of railway service. Such a plan would decrease the operating expenses of the National lines, which is another way of increasing the earnings. Regarding the senate, the premier has stated that the Liberal government is in favor of a limited period for senatorial appointment, so that when old age has stripped a member of his usefulness he will retire. He is also favorand in operation; then the plea that it is neces- tives to a conference on the question, and to sary to take water for sanitary purposes will reform of the senate from within. The Country Fair

Just at this season of the year when fall is speedin' on the way, we'll visit at the country fair and spend a pleasant sort of day.

A goodly time of year this is, with sniffs of coming autumn air, 'tis then we gather for a spell and visit at the country fair. There are some things that come along and linger with us for a day, and then their blood gets thin and cold, they shrivel up and pass away.

But fall fairs are a sterner sort, the hardiest of all flowers that bloom, as certain to be on the spot as comes the changing of

Besides these things I always like the time when comes the country fair, to get a chance to walk around and see the other folks what's there

So of the fair and all it has we'll speak about it much just now, and chant about the summer squash and glorify the fatted cow. It is a goodly thing, it is, to visit at the country fair, likewise to say hello to Bill and all the other folks what's there.-ARK.

Sammy Tells Buster Where to Find

Chatterer Squirrel's Mushrooms By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Now, though Buster Bear pretended that he wasn't at all interested in mushrooms, he didn't fool Chatterer the Red Squirrel at all. Chatterer knew that Buster was watching him. He knew that Buster was spying. Knowing this, Chatterer had no end of fun. He would climb a tree and pretend to be very busy up there. Then he would hide and watch. After a bit he would see Buster Bear come stealing along and presently he would stop and look that tree all over—all the time pretending that he was doing something else. Then Chatterer would snicker to himself under his breath. So little by little he led Buster quite a distance from the tree in which he had stored his mushrooms.

When shalls Chatterer considered. that he had led Buster far enough away

Just then, before Buster could reply, both heard Chatterer the Red Squirrel both heard Chatterer the Red Squirrel far away snickering. Buster Bear's black for rew blacker still as he listened. Sammy Jay guessed at once that for some reason or other Buster Bear was provoked by Chatterer. Now Chatterer and Sammy are not the best of friends. Each steals from the other whenever he gate a charge. Each likes whenever he gets a chance. Each liker to make trouble for the other. You see, both are naturally mischievous. Ves, sir, they are naturally mischievous.

Buster cocked a shrewd little eye up at Sammy Jay.

Sammy. "He seems to think something is a great joke." Sammy looked sharply at Buster as he said this. "There's no one," he continued, "whom I had rather play a trick on than Chatterer the Red

They are never happier than when they are engaged in some kind of mischief.
"Listen to that red robber," cried if some time you run across some mushrooms hung up to dry in a tree." Sammy stared down at Buster very hard. Buster winked. Sammy winked. "You follow me," said he. "Your mentioning mushrooms remind me that early this morning I discovered a lot in a certain tree. It may be the tree you are looking for."

So away flew Sammy Jay, and after him shuffled great his Ruster Rear And him shuffled great big Buster Bear. And so at last they came to a certain tree "There," said Sammy, "are your Buster looked up. Sure enough there were the mushrooms. Buster grinned. There was no doubt in his mind that this was the tree to which Chatterer had emoved those mushrooms.

"Well," said Sammy, "how about it?"

"It is the very tree," replied Buster. "I am much obliged to you, Sammy Jay. When I can do you a good turn let me know. I certainly am obliged to you." Buster turned and walked "Aren't you going to do anything about them?" demanded Sammy. "Not now, Sammy, not now," replied Buster, and that was all he would say. (Copyright, 1925, by T. W. Burgess. away.

Trafalgar Members Plan Silver Anniversary Tea for October 21.

The Trafalgar chapter, I. O. D. E. is strongly in favor of a Canotaph for London and has determined to stand behind the Municipal chapter in an effort to secure such a memorial. At yesterday afternoon's meeting held at the home of Miss Phillips, Quebec street, the members reiterated their intention to support the scheme. Their choice of a site is the "Y" at the corner of Richmond street and Central avenue.

Mrs. W. G. Bendle, regent, presided over the meeting. The chapter, which celebrates its 25th anniversary this year has decided to hold a silver anniversary tea on Trafalgar Day, Oct. 21, to mark this ronto friends.

Mrs. Lena Emery of the Queen Mary chapter, Daughters of the British Empire. Jacksonville. Florida, and an interesting little talk on the work of that organization in the south. Mrs. Emery is now state organizer for the Daughters of the British Empire. Their work is different from that carried on in Canada. One of their obligations is to look after British subjects, stranded in the United States, helping them to get along and paying for medical services if they are ill or in hospital, sometimes even burying them.

Mrs. Emery is visiting her cousin.

W. Jones, president of the mission, in introducing the speaker, told of his years of service for the outcast if the woman has no mentality.

Among the most tiresome peo ple in the world are the sweet, amiable, self-sacrificing women who are devoted wives and mothers, but who do not know one thing except what is happening inside of their own walls, and whose conversational range extends only from the kitchen to the nursery. Such a woman gorges her husband on good food, but she starves him for ideas. She may never argue with him, but she never strikes fire from his mind, and is as uninspiring as a batter pudding. She may his house immaculate, but he is ashamed of her outside of it. He may reverence her nobility of character, but she gets on his nerves, and he loves her best when he is farthest away from her tedious twaddle.

There can be no happiness in marriage without companionship, and an intelligent, educated man cannot have any with an ignorant, uneducated woman. She will not understand what he is talking about. She will not sympathize with his point of view. She will never get the nub guest through the Mrs. Shaw's wee nia, Dresden, Oil Springs, Watford, of his jokes, and conversation tween them will soon dwindle down to the exchange of the commonplaces of everyday material livingthe price of butcher's meat. What the people next door did. Taking down the curtains. Johnny's cold. Susie's adenoids.

Can any intelligent man look forward to spending thirty or forty years with a woman who has no more conversational repertoire than that? A woman with whom he can never discuss the last book, or the newest play, or any questions of politics or world news? What a prospect! What dullness! What boredom! How inevitable the woman who does understand.

Don't try it, Mr. Man, as you value your happiness and that of the woman. For you will have her just as much as she bores you. Let her marry in her own illiterate class. DOROTHY DIX.

In this case, I should advise you to begin with the man. Many widowers are blind, and only need to have their eyes opened and their attention directed to the woman whom they should marry. Also, you can talk with perfect frankness to a widower, and say things him that you could not say to a young boy or a bachelor.

For, having been married, the widower understands women, and he also knows what qualities in a woman best fit her for a wife. So "sell" the idea to the widower that this woman of mature years is the one best qualified to take care of him and his little children and make them a home, and help him in his work.

For the first half of the week, Sun-Up, the play that touched the heart of Broadway, will be presented in pictures. It's a picture with a thrilling human message of the Carolina hills, where drama lives in the cabins of the lawless. The stars of the production are Pauline Starke.

Romola, which is being presented the last half of Fair week, is the biggest picture of the year, requiring 13,000 feet of film to make the showing. The stars of this stupendous production are Lillian Gish and Dorothy Gish. It's a picture that hardened Broadway paid $2.20 to see, that movie-tired Los Angeles paid $1.50 to see, and now London is offered it at the usual Loew's price. Special to The Advertiser Wallaceburg, Sept. 11.-Wallace burg's most important bylaw of recent years, for the granting of a fixed assessment to the Dominion Glass Company, will be voted on Monday. There is but little doubt that practically a hundred per cent. vote will be recorded, and that the bylaw will carry with little or no opposition. The various committees met on Thursday evening to make final arrangements for the transporting of the electors to the polls, and for the appointment of outside scrutineers. Every elector entitled to vote has been sent a letter setting out the important features of the bylaw. Distinct Improvement In Agriculture Reflected In Western Fair Exhibits; Crops Abundant and of the Choicest Cream of Agricultural Products of the Countryside on Display at Exhibition, Which Has Always Been Mirror of Prosperity of the Farming Community.

SITUATION GOOD 'AND PRICES COMING BACK

Western Ontario has enjoyed abundant crops this year. From field and garden the farmers have harvested the choicest of wheat, oats, barley, vegetables and fruit. The prosperity of Western Ontario will be fully mirrored at the greatest of all Western Ontario exhibitions, the Western Fair which opens on September 12 and is concluded on September 19. District farmers are not dependent for a living on one or two crops, such as the Canadian West or the Niagara district. There are a dozen agricultural lines that Western Ontario farmers follow with profit. They include grain crops, cattle, hogs, sheep, fruit, eggs, dairy products, honey, and garden products, which include both vegetables and flowers.

Reflected in Fair.

The cream of these products will has been substantial, showing that agriculture has largely recovered that "London Fair," as it is called by many, is essentially a farm exhibition. The farmers of the district realize this and realize further that a prize badge won at Western that a prize badge won at Western that a prize badge won at the the stockyards on a fed and watered basis. War prices then came into effect, the peak being reached in 1919, when $26.50 was paid by Toronto packers. Then came the decline, hogs selling at $7.50 in May. On the other hand, however, the prices of commodities that the farmer has to buy are still much above pre-war prices and that is where the rub comes, as and that is where the rub comes, as 99 farmers out of 100 will tell you in short order. ways pointed with pride to the fact that "London Fair," as it is called by many, is essentially a farm exhibition. The farmers of the district realize this and realize further that a prize badge won at Western means that they have reached the pinnacle in the particular line in which they are specializing.

pinnacle in the particular line in which they are specializing.

Western Ontario cattle and sheep breeders who, having won prizes at the fall exhibition in London, have been encouraged to step out after international honors, have been most successful. Such breeders as Col. Robert McEwen, E. S. Little, Arthur Little and John Pringle have all carried the fame of Western Ontario to the Chicago International and the big dairy shows of the Western States.

Areas that were looked upon as smuch waste land are now pasture given time. However, the farmers' barns are always laden with crops at Western Fair time and offer the best period of the year for an inventory.

Improvement in Year.

There has been a distinct and definite improvement in agriculture during the past year. All major products have moved forward in price in much waste land are now pastured by sheep that bring in good returns both for wool and mutton. Farmers have been turning to alfaifa hay where they are assured of at least two crops a year. One farmer interviewed but yesterday states that he will cut his third crop of alfalfa next week. Five acres of alfalfa hay give him more feed than 15 acres of termine farm prosperity at any one given time. However, the farmers' businessman and is cutting down the overhead expenses right and left. Grain is Mostly Fed.

Western Ontario farmers do not sell much grain. They prefer to feed t to stock, thereby keeping their farms properly enriched. They are interested in the price of wheat just as much as the man who buys and sells it on the stock exchange, bu they are even more interested in the price of cattle and the dairy market. Except for a few reactions, hogs have been a profitable sideline to the dairy industry and other farming the last few years. In 1914 hogs were bringing $8.85 per hundredweight at the stockyards on a fed and watered

The old adage concerning acorns and giant oaks finds a very applicable parallel in the growth and development of Western Fair. Like other institutions which have grown on the solid foundation of honest expansion based on the growth and development of the surrounding country, Western Fair stands not only as Canada's second largest exhibition, but as a live rair stands not only as Canada's second largest exhibition, but as a live agricultural show in which competition in all classes is as keen as can be

In 1888, the second year on the new fair grounds. Western Fair was selected as the provincial fall fair, an honorary title which, accompanied with a bonus to help the financing came as a surprise and added much prestige to London's fair.

The years from 1888 to 1889 marked more than a decade of the greatest prosperity for Western. Thomas A. Brown had succeeded Mr. McBroom and carried out the plans and intentions of his predecessor with marked ability. This was an era of expansion in which building after building was added. Profits came with surprising regularity, and deficits were an unknown quantity.

Fire in 1895.

In 1895 the fair met its first real crisis in the burning of the carriage and poultry buildings during fair week. The exhibits were all sayed, however, and the fair lost none of its popularity. The city by this time had realized that the fair was something to be encouraged rather than humored, and came forward with assistance which made it easy to not only replace the burned building but to add several new ones.

At this time the fair took on a respectable size and became well known throughout the province. with the

AN INTERESTING DISPLAY

Always one of the most interesting exhibits, and certainly this year one of the largest, the automotive display at the Western Fair, both of cars and accessories, will show the confidence of the purveyors of this class of merchandise in improved business conditions. Pessimistic forecasts cannot be directed against the automotive trade this year. Actual newmotive trade this year. Actual new-car registrations for this year have already exceeded last year's full new-car registrations, with five months still to go. Remarkable, too, is the fact that this increase in business has not been due to great increase in the sale of lower-priced cars. Ad-vances have been made over last year's figures in cars over the $2,900 mark.

With these facts upon which to base conclusions, it is safe to look for increased interest in this annual opportunity to study and compare the congregated exhibitions of new models in the manufacturers' building. It will afford a great opportunity to view an assembled representation of the handiwork of the motor manufacturers.

The general public of today is motor wise and the Western Fair is an opportunity to further study the price, type, equipment, and mechanism when the price is the control of the control price, type, equipment, and mechanical differences of the various makes of cars. From fully informed salesmen the reasons for the popularity and selling attraction of the various makes of car can be learned. Here and selling attraction of the various makes of car can be learned. Here can be learned why Canada has some 34 different nameplates shown instead of some 60-odd as in the United States. Here, also, can be learned the reason why Canada's automobile sales executives have concentrated on these particular cars to the elimination of the rest, and to the elimination of the rest, and here can be decided your next car

In the cars of this year great changes have been noted in the riding qualities. Constant study from progressive automotive engineers, in which spring action has been analyzed, has brought motors to the Cana dian market which have the utmost in riding comfort. Lubrication has also been a problem for the engineers, but in viewing the latest models, test-ing them and realizing that they are more economical to operate and run with greater smoothness, it can be realized that their problem has almost been solved.

A Motor Mecca

The Western Fair exhibit will be one worthy of the city of London and Western Ontario, a motor mecca for all parts of Ontario and the United States. The authorities have been assured of a display which will eclipse those of any former years. The latest models of all dealers, the height of their workmanship, will be on exhibit. on exhibit.

The King-Hinners' Neutrodyne

This is a receiving set in which the very latest advances in radio engineering and craftsmanship have been incorporated.

The Radio Frequency Transformers are of unique design, in that windings of greater length and smaller diameter are used, and which give rise to higher amplification and greater selectivity. Inter-stage magnetic effects between coils are reduced. The direct influence upon the coils themselves from powerful nearby broadcasting stations, so destructive to fine tuning, is also greatly reduced. The full advantage derived from the improved coil system is attained by the perfect shielding afforded by the use of a continuous metal panel. The coil system employed is not only properly engineered as to form and position, but every improvement known to Prof. Hazeltine and his staff, supplemented by the work of our own engineers, is embodied.

This receiver is not only provided with a split grid antenna coil and twin winding neutralizing coils, but a new type pinion operated balance condenser is used, producing a perfectly balanced neutradyne,

The use of a two-position antenna switch, together with perfect control of the vacuum tubes amplifying the radio frequency impulses incorporated in this receiver, affords the utmost in selectivity.

Uncle Sam Makes War on Chicago

Outlaw City to Be Attacked by U.S. Army, Supported By Canadian Artillery and Cavalry?—Courts Are Defied and Chicago and Her Water Steal Handed Over to War Department-Will Lake Be Dried Up Before The War Is Over?

By GREGORY CLARK

HE United States army, assisted by certain units of Canadian artillery and cavalry, attacked Chicago at dawn." Are we to read something of this sort, some day, as the result of the international gunman water to carry it away. conduct of the world's most lawless city, of all authority in her stealing of water out of tion of the Great Lakes if the water supply of the Great Lakes?

Could it mean war? It begins It. For the war department of the United States has issued an ultimatum to Chicago. The exact procedure has been followed as if Chicago were an enemy of the United States. The supreme court of the nation found Chicago guilty of breaking the law and defying the law. Then the finding was handed over to the war depart ment, and the war department drew up an ultimatum. "Either you will cease taking out more

"The enemy has succeeded in deepening the sewage canal out of Lake Michigan into the Mississippi, with the result that ten times the amount of water former y taken is being run off the Great Lakes. Ship traffic has ceased entirely on the lakes. There have been a large number of wrecks. Practically no water is running over Niagara, and the power plants are dead. Toronto, Hamilton, Buffalo, Rochester and scores of other central cities and towns are without power and everything is in darkness and at a standstill. The water supply of these cities has failed and fires have broken out and cannot be controlled. Montreal harbor is filled with grounded ships. Typhoid has broken out in all the lake cities and towns. Unless the city can be captured within twenty-four hours peace will have to be made with Chicago before she lestroys the entire ten million population of the Great Lakes region."

In more than imagination, Chicago has the fate of the Great Lakes in her hands. Fortunately for Canada, there are more United States people than Canadians resident on the rakes. There are larger United States cities than Canadian cities to suffer from any damage Chicago may do to the Great Lakes. New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan are the four most powerful allies of Canada in the war to Those who have visited Georgian Bay or Lake Huron summer resorts this past summer What is to be the end of Chicago's defiance have an idea of what will happen to the civilizathe lakes is tampered with further. That whole district, a little civilization in miniature, has the fall of water more than two feet. Boathouses are perched far inland like henhouses. Channels that used to lead right to cottage wharves are dry land, and wharves are set like tent platforms on eminences of their own. Cottages that used to be upon islands are on the mainland now. Water pumps suck air. The whole summer civilization has been rendered water than we authorized thirty years ago, or ridiculous. The steamers can't call at certain

Already some Georgian Bay and Lake Huron towns are feeling the more sinister effects of the water lowering. Merritton's fire fighting system is impotent. Others can no longer use their water-pumping installation in case of fire. Bays into which their sewage was dumped are so shallow as to be no longer fit to receive the

In miniature, the fate of the ten million civilization of the Great Lakes is foreshadowed in these cases if control of the Great Lakes water supply is not assured.

Chicago takes up to ten thousand cubic feet of water per second out of the Great Lakes supply. That is from one-fifteenth to one-twentieth the amount of water that flows in the ancient natural way over Niagara Falls.

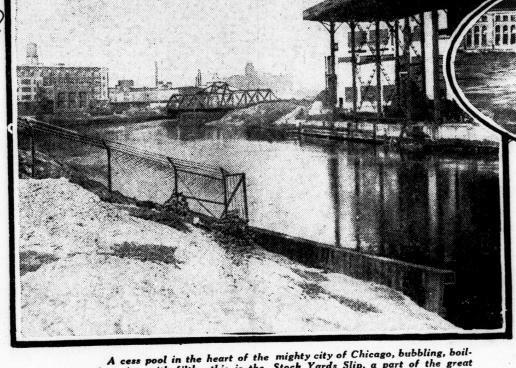

Away back in 1871, half a century ago, Chicago discovered that it was bad to empty her sewers into Lake Michigan when she was taking her water supply out of the same place. So she backed up the Chicago river which runs through her, made it flow south into the Illinois river, instead of into the lakes, and began taking water out of the Great Lakes to flush her sewage down this system. Those were the days when everybody thought the lakes were inexhaustible.

City's Terrible Open Drain

HICAGO got authority to take this water out of the lakes, to stick her auger into the great barrel, from the United States war department. They authorized some 4,000 cubic feet a

From that day, little by little, without authority from anybody, and in cool defiance of all orders to the contrary, Chicago has gradually The situation in a nutshell is this: The bung of the barrel of the Great Lakes is Niggara increased her takings from the barrel to 10,000 of the barrel of the Great Lakes is Niagara. of all that flows by nature out of the main bung at Niagara Falls. Anyone who knows Chicago cannot help but comes Chicago with an auger and bores a new sympathize with her present condition. She has got herself into a fine mess. While all the rest civilization of the Great Lakes is founded on of the world has been going ahead with modern the fact that the water of the lakes behaves in methods of sewage disposal by means of septic a known manner. Navigation is the least of all tanks and treatment plants, Chicago, the heart of considerations. Billions of dollars have been America and one of the wealthiest cities in the invested on the margin of this water that is universe, has been playing village. She has been being tampered with. Scores of cities, hundreds emptying her sewage into an open drain and let-ing, festering with filth—this is the Stock Yards Slip, a part of the great city's sewage disposal problem.

Right in the midst of that city with its stately towers and majestic buildings runs the cago sanitary district who gave the writer a stock yards slip. There is nothing in Shanghai complete statement of the situation as it now is simply a horrible, unbelievable stinking open drain, wider than a creek, perfectly stagnant, and bubbling, bubbling, curdling, festering in the broad light of day with putrescence. Handsome modern factories with nationally-familiar names rise beside this filthy canal. In the background, less than a mile away, ascend the stately towers of Chicago's fabulous enterprise. A stench as horrible as the sight of that boiling, writhing cesspool rises higher than all those

And this stock yards slip flows, slowly and horribly, into the fine handsome canal through which Chicago is flowing ten thousand cubic feet of good lake water in her antiquated endeavor to dispose of her sewage in the manner of the village she was a hundred years ago.

Chicago is famous for many things. She is famed for her lawlessness, her political corruption, graft, as well as for her wealth; for her slums as well as for her handsome hotels. After a few days in Chicago, looking on her tremendous modernity on the one hand and on her unbelievable backwardness in the simple matter of sanitation, after a few experiences of her lawlessness and her utter helplessness to govern herself as all the rest of America governs itself, the visitor gradually becomes aware of a horrible suspicion of Chicago. The hair begins to creep. The idea takes form that Chicago is not quite all there. It is as if Chicago were a great big strong mental defective. There is a violence, an ingenuous uncleanness and a beauty about her that is seen in some adults who are mentally deficient. Like them, Chicago can't be

Away Behind the Times

HICAGO has at last decided to be up-to-date in the matter of her personal cleanliness. The Supreme Court decreed that Chicago was an outlaw in taking all the water she is taking out of the Great Lakes. The war department then took the first step in an act of war and issued an ultimatum to Chicago. Over a period of four years, she may take her usual supply-8,500 cubic feet a second, increased to the peak load at certain intervals-on condition that she undertake at once a program of modern sewage disposal works at enormous expense.

So Chicago, having already built three small sewage disposal plants at points from which she could not dump the raw sewage into her canals, has almost completed one huge sewage disposal plant to look after a population of 800,000. You have seen a Great Lakes freighter. It is about 600 feet long. This new plant has ninety tanks, each as big as a lakes freighter, side by side, a huge and picturesque establishment. It will be connected up and functioning in two years. The war department's ultimatum says that by 1929, when the permit to use the full quantity of water ends, there must be sewage disposal works to handle the sewage of a population of 1,200,000.

H. P. Ramey, assistant engineer of the Chistands, showed a schedule of design and construction of sewage treatment and disposal works for the period 1925 to 1929, which called for an expenditure of $61,745,000. This schedule is already well ahead of itself, and there is every evidence of good faith. Chicago means to proceed at once with the business of making itself up to date in the treatment of all sewage.

Does this mean that Chicago will in due time require no water from the Great Lakes? Once she has all her sewage passing through treatment plants, can the water steal be ended? Now arises a new and rather staggering and permanent factor in the Great Lakes problem. The dream of a Pan-American inland water way from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, a dream that is a century old, a dream that visions not merely the great commercial importance of a barge canal clean down the continent but the economic value of inexhaustible water from the great inland seas for those Mississippi states, a dream that has played a part in the war department's schemes and plans as well as in the ambitions of mid-American cities-the dream of that great Pan-American water highway is about to come true. Without Chicago and her absurd sewage problem, her lawlessness and irresponsibility, that dream could never come true. For no international commission would ever consent to the tapping of the international Great Lakes for the benefit of the United States alone.

To Use the Mississippi

TERE is the Mississippi running within a few hundred miles of Chicago. One by one, through the long years, the tributaries of the Mississippi are drying up, through natural causes, the clearing of the land, deforestation. As a great wealthy civilization has grown up on the banks of the Father of Waters, the river has been crying out even now for sources of new water. What it would mean to all those states along the Mississippi to be in direct water connection with Chicago and the Great Lakes, as well as what it would mean to Chicago to be in direct water communication with the great country to the south, can not be computed in

But without a canal across that divide which lies between the Great Lakes basin and the Mississippi watershed, this dream was vain. Chicago and Chicago alone has made the dream a reality. For it is a reality. Who has been responsible for making Chicago the whole goat in this Great Lakes war?

For the state of Illinois is aiready spending $20,000,000 most busily on the next section of the Pan-American waterway, the Illinois State canal, linking up the Chicago "drainage" canal with the Mississippi river.

And andthat war department which runs out its pop guns and grimly orders Chicago to obey the supreme court to use only 4000 c.f.s. by using NOT MORE than 8500 c.f.s., EXCEPT on certain frequent occasions, when, for sanitary purposes, it may use up to 11,000 The only water-power being developed out of the stolen water amounts to about 17,000 horse-power, a flea bite in Chicago's demands.

(not the famous 10,000 cubic feet per second)that same war department has for years had its engineers working on the whole scheme of the Great Lakes waterway. And it is on the plans and specifications of that war department's engineers that the Federal government section of the great canal, which is the deepen- project is profound. ing and canalization of the upper reaches of the Father of Waters to a nine foot barge canal is to prevent Chicago from enlarging her present connecting with the great river itself, and to canal?

Chicago will have caught up with the times. All her sewage will be treated. There will be no reasons other than "sentimental" ones-the word is Chicago's own-against running the effluent of these sewage plants back into the lake, tion of the continent-how embarrassed is the just as Toronto and all other Great Lakes cities do, chlorinating their water supply.

But by that time, the Pan-American waterway will be completed. Then who will the Great Lakes cities charge with stealing water?

now-all the states to the south, clear down to Louisiana. The question will no longer be one of a city but of a nation stealing water. The problem will have solidified into part and parcel of the political economy of the United States of America.

How Chicago Defends Action

T is all very evident in the report of the engineering board of review, a board of the most eminent engineers in the States, who reviewed the case of Chicago in so impartial a manner as to discover that at least 10,000 cubic feet per second was essential. In a quiet part near the end of their report they say: "The diversion of 10,000 c.f.s. at Chicago would make feasible a nine-foot channel without locks from the Gulf of Mexico to within 100 miles of Chicago, and but five locks, to be paid for by the people of Illinois, would be necessary for the remainder of the distance. "With no diversion at all from the Great Lakes, the cost of the waterway becomes almost prohibitive."

The claim made by Chicago and those who defend the waterway project is that the taking of 10,000 c.f.s. is not responsible for the great lowering of the upper lakes, but that a general condition of lack of rainfall in the Great Lakes basin is responsible. To prove this, they have the charts of the Great Lakes Survey covering a period of sixty-five years. This shows a slow rise and fall in the lakes over long periods of years. They claim that the most the 10,000 c.f.s. diversion could do, calculated by expert mathematicians from the area of the lakes and the amount taken out in cubic feet, would lower the lakes only six inches. The trick in this defense is that there is a possibility that the water will rise again to nearly its old level. Then public opinion on the Great Lakes will be satisfied that Chicago is not guilty. Chicago is banking her whole roll on this natural rise in the Great Lakes within the next four years. If the water comes up, the situation is saved. Then she can press hard for the regulating and compensating works which she advocates. The scheme is to erect dams at the outlet of ach of the lakes, like the dam at Sault Ste. Marie. The Soo locks and dams have, of course, actually controlled the levels in Lake Superior since 1916. There is some justice in the claim that the severe lowering of Huron and the other lakes is aggravated by the fact that Lake Superior is conserving her water and not letting the lower lakes have the full natural supply they have been accustomed to. A great scheme of dams to control the lakes, each by itself and co-operatively as necessary, would, of course, be wonderful for the lakes but disastrous to the St. Lawrence. For every inch held back in Superior Huron would have to hold back an inch and a little more. And so on. By the time Lake Ontario did her conserving the accumulative effect on the St. Lawrence would be the full blow of the whole system. The effect of the United States is taking in hand the third on the St. Lawrence water power and waterway.

But-if the lakes are controlled, what, then,

When the canal is no longer a drainage canal but the beginning of the Great Pan-American Private Waterway, and the needs of more water from the Great Lakes are not merely Chicago's needs but the needs of the entire middle section of the continent how embarrassed is the civilizaivilization of the Great Lakes?

And, of course, with a controlled water supply in the Great Lakes, what on earth would be the objection to letting the Great Pan-American Waterway and all those wealthy and power-Chicago will have behind her-as she has ful states down the middle of the continent have a few thousand more cubic feet per second of life-giving water?

Developing a National Problem HICAGO officials will be gladly quoted on the sanitary aspect of the case. These same engineers who made the survey on which the war department based its findings, points out the pitiful situation Chicago finds itself in: "Should the current of the canal be reversed," they say, "sewage will flow into the lake and the only defense the people will then have is the chlorination of the water supply."

But, of course, Chicago already chlorinates its water. Once in a while, during flood seasons and time of great rainfall, the canal does back up, and raw sewage goes out into the lake.

"When this happens," say the engineers, "only chlorination of the water supply protects the people against disease due to the use of sewage-contaminated water." Every city of the Great Lakes faces this problem and has faced it for years. But this statement gives away once and for all the crumbling basis of the sanitation excuse for the diversion of water at Chicago. There is a larger

Chicago sets up as a sentimental city.

"To discharge the sewage into the lake, however well it may first be treated, would be a backward step, highly repugnant from the sentimental viewpoint and equally objectioanble from the point of view of public health."

The outcry of the state of Illinois in those parts below Chicago through which the Illinois river passes, horribly polluted by the raw sewage of Chicago, has died down. As the vision of the great barge canal opens up, with the promise of Chicago to get busy at once and treat its sewage, opposition fails.

The whole question suddenly takes on new dimensions and moves to new ground.

"Unquestionably," said another engineer of the sanitary district, "the load is being lifted off Chicago's shoulders. It looks now as if we never will reduce the amount of water. The question is, when will be able to increase it? People talk as if we were not the greatest power on the Great Lakes. Why, we are as interested in the welfare of the lakes as anybody. More so, in fact. For, owing to the low levels of the water this year, we can't get as big a flow through our canals as we would like!"

But Chicago, that great careless city, feels a little relieved that at last the problem is coming out into the open, and appearing in its proper guise-a problem of national rather than of municipal responsibility.

Canada should never forget that the United States' national game is poker.

BE A LAWYER? NOT HE IT WAS MUCH TOO EASY

Col. George Ham Decided on Newspaper Work Instead—Celebrates His 78th Anniversary

OLONEL GEORGE H. HAM, veteran official of the C.P.R., celebrated his 78th birthday at his home in Montreal on Sunday, August Few Canadians have more friends than Col. Ham. He is noted for his ready wit and ability to tell a good story. In speaking of his choice of a profession he says that law was proposed for him, but he balked and went into newspaper work instead. He says: "One reason for this was my previous experience. When I was a mere kid and visiting grandfather's old home at South Fredericksburgh, opposite the upper gap of the Bay of Quinte, that venerable ancestor of mine confided in me that he wished to make his will without the knowledge of the rest of the family and suggested that I should draw up the docu-

"In schoolboy hand the will was drawn up, and while it suited grandfather all right enough, I wasn't so cocksure it was the right form of phraseology. So I commandeered a horse the next day, stole off to Napanee, eighteen miles away, and called upon Mr. Wilkinson, whom I had met at my father's house in Whitby. He pronounced the will to be perfectly legal, and having all of $2 in my pocket, I rather ostentatiously asked him his fee,

"'Nothing,' he smilingly replied. 'Nothing at all - we never charge the profession anything,

"And thus I was able to get an elaborate twenty-five cent dinner at the hotel. 'So when the question of my future came up I thought if it was so blamed easy to be a lawyer I wanted something harder."

20-Year-Old Song May Make Him City's Mayor

"limmy" Walker, New York Candidate Being Welcomed by Hit He Once Wrote

ILL you love me in December as you do Will you love me in the good old-remember this popular song of a generation ago. It is just possible that it may decide who will be next mayor of New York city. For it was written by "Jimmy" Walker, state senator, who is Tammany's choice to run in the coming election against the present holder of the office,

James J. Walker was a bard of Tin Pan Alley as a youth. He made $10,000 by writing the "May and December" thing as he called it recently in an interview. It was away back in an age when songs of a semi-sentimental type won fame before jazz became the rage.

It is not too much to say that this song may win the fight, or lose it. Some people are inclined to think that the fact that he wrote popular songs of a somewhat saccharine type may militate against Walker in the minds of redblooded voters. On the other hand, crowds at his meetings are reviving Walker's popular bal- a rifle, Mrs. Fraser put her gun away, and has lad and singing it with gusto in a pre-election never used it since the tragedy.

It must not be forgotten that the old-timer, The Sidewalks of New York," helped to re-elect "Al" Smith governor of New York State. And Walker, like Smith, is a product of these same

Premiership No Cinch Mr. Meighen Declares

The Higher You Are, the Harder It Is Must Be a General Rule

EFORE 1922, when Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen was prime minister of Canada, his political friends in Toronto arranged a reception for him there. Mr. Meighen was feted and felicitated on his high office, and one would have thought from all the kind things that were said that to be prime minister of Canada was an easy and delightful task. Mr. Meighen did not think so, and proceeded to make the facts known to his admirers.

In acknowledging the many compliments paid to him during the course of the day, he said it reminded him of a collector who went to a book shop to pick up a few rare volumes. He wandered around the stacks for a short while, apparently without finding what he wanted, and then approached a boy clerk who was behind the counter.

"Have you the 'Life of the Poets' here?" he asked.

"No," responded the boy. "I haven't the life of a dog, and I am getting out next Saturday night."

and Mr. Cobb, of course, was tackled. "Are you a clairvoyant?" he was asked by one enthusiastic woman.

Mr. Cobb answered guardedly. "Not that I know of," he said. "Do you ever talk in your sleep, then?" she

"No, I believe not," replied Mr. Cobb, "but I often talk in other people's. I'm a lecturer."

Is That Child Going to Guide Us? Timid Tourists Got a Severe Shock

But Diminutive Ed. Barrow, Youngest Guide in the Rockies, Was No Child in the Saddle-He Has Been Riding Horses Since He Was Three

By MADGE MACBETH .

T the vast age of three he left the Alberta ranch and went to visit his grandfather in Pennsylvania. Part of the tangible welcome that awaited him was a richly-caparisoned rocking horse.

"Ned is his name," said grandfather proudly. "He loves little boys."

But the little boy behaved very badly. Nothing would induce him to mount Ned of his own free will, and when grandfather lifted him up, he kicked and screamed vigorously.

"What the devil is the matter with the child?" his grandfather demanded testily.

"I'm afraid he misses his own pony," replied the boy's mother, as she stifled a longing, herself, for that far-away Claresholm ranch. Grandfather whistled. "Does this scrap of humanity ride a real horse?" "Oh, yes," said mother. "He rode before he could walk." In telling me the story-balanced in one stirrup and facing the horse's tail, as he "guided" me up the O'Hara trail to peerless Lake McArthur-Ed Fraser asked no indulgence for his conduct

"I should have had the end of a quirt," he said, "for r'arin' up, that way. But somehow, I seem to remember I couldn't get any kick out of that wooden horse.

Ed looks fourteen, swears he is seventeen and All readers of over twenty years of age will talks like a man of seventy. He was a jockey in his younger days, riding sure-enough races in and about his home, and in Pincher Creek. Extraordinary as the things sounds, he rode a winning horse at the age of five years.

When asked the obvious question, he grinned. "Sure I've been piled, but not often." 'Piled' is the cowboys' picturesque term for being thrown.

Of course, his mother didn't want him to do all these daring and spectacular "stunts." But his father, to whom he always appealed with a child's uncanny shrewdness, voiced the comfortless and masculine phrase. "Oh, he'll be all right!" So the mother gave way. By the same token, she was a wonderful shot, being known throughout the district by some such colorful title as "Dead Shot Susie." When her brother was accidentally killed while handling

After Ed was badly hurt in a race, his mother overruled the easy philosophy of her husband and forbade the boy to enter the lists again. Certainly, the track lost a good jockey, but the high school gained a good student. Although his love of horses impelled him to "guide" at the age of thirteen, thereby keeping him out of school until well on in the autumn, young Fraser has never failed in an examination, and has just recently fitted himself for entrance into the university. He places great importance upon education and wants to acquire

If he is not, now, he was when he undertook the work the youngest guide in the Rockies and one has only to see him, to hear him talk, to understand the courage necessary for him to have persevered. "Are you going to send us out with that child?" was the question invariably asked; and more than one "party" has refused his leader-

"That child," however, can hold his own with any man. He has saddled horses since the time it was necessary for him to stand on a fence in order to reach the animal's back, and when he outgrew that ignominy, he held the saddle upside down on his head, and flipped it-in a manner of speaking-on the horse. Where he derives sufficient strength for tightening cinches, I don't know. But I do know that on the most precipitous hill his saddles never slip. He is an economical and a neat packer. He can cook. Indeed, he can help you forget the distance between your camp and a good steam laundry!

When, in appreciation of these sterling qualities, an English lady of timorous disposition and rheumatic joints presented Ed with a tip of twenty-five dollars, his embarrassment was ag-

"I can't take all that for a two-day's trip," he protested. "Indeed, I'm not worth so much money to anybody!"

He was persuaded to keep the gift for the purchase of school books and his "parties" as well as his friends are very grateful to the lady. Ed neither drinks nor uses tobacco. "There's no taste for liquor in my family," he will tell you, soberly, "and my smoking days are over! We fellows had a smoking club when I was nine, meeting every evening in the fire hole of the threshing machine! We smoked tea leaves, corn silk, dried weeds and anything that would burn. Our mothers," he added, "couldn't understand why that season was so unhealthy for us!" One day as we were riding down the noisy Kicking Horse Canyon Ed seemed less happy than usual.

"This horse has three gaits," he told me way of explanation ... "walk, stumble and fall. I wish I had my Sandy."

Sandy is his own beloved friend, a handsome chestnut who astonishes the chance acquaintance by rising on his hind legs and executing a dizzy waltz, for no apparent reason, what-

King Alfonso Finds Business Not So Good

Unconventional Spanish Monarch Con-

B IARRITZ has been much amused recently by the unconventional manner of King Alfonso of Spain, who has been living just over the border at San Sebastian and frequently crossing to Biarritz to visit friends and play golf. Sometimes he loses both his chauffeur and his car; in which case he takes a train or a tram back. The other day a Biarritz tram conductor saw a tall thin man running like mad after the car. Eventually the runner caught it and breathlessly jumped aboard, remaining on the outside of the second-class compartment. Rolling a cigaret, he asked a workman next to him for a light and then got into a conversation on the high cost of living.

"I suppose monsieur is a manufacturer?" the workman hazarded. "No," the other answered, "I've got an old business house which has been handed down from father to son for a long time." "And how do you find trade?" "Oh, things might be a good deal better!" It was King Alfonso confiding his troubles to a sympathetic French workman.

Darrow Is Likened to Jesus and Abe Lincoln

New York Clergyman Extols Agnostic and Declares His Spiritual Victory Over Bryan

S an echo of the famous Tennessee evolu-A tion trial comes the statement from the Rev. Charles Francis Potter, a prominent Unitarian clergyman of New York, that he would welcome Clarence Darrow even in his pulpit.

This clergyman, who was present at the trial, has conceived a tremendous admiration for the tolerant agnostic, and Mr. Potter's pleasant words, as quoted in an interview, come as an antidote to some of the passionate utterances of that recent event.

"Looking back," he said, "to the Scopes trial, I find Clarence Darrow standing out as far and away the most human and winning figure in Dayton. I find him reminding me of two great historical characters-Jesus of Nazareth and Abraham Lincoln. Of course, he is not nearly as great a man as either—he himself would laugh at any comparison-but he shows the essential spirit of both. Ungainly, awkward, uncouth, he has a warm light in his eyes of sympathy and understanding, together with the humor which Lincoln had and Jesus lacked.

"He shed serenity and kindliness around him. He refused to become excited or angry.

"I talked with him a little about his philosophy of life. 'Well,' he told me, 'I suppose I'm what they call an agnostic, because I confess I don't know some things that some ignorant men say they do know.' Softening his scorn for the ignorance of his opponents and his contempt for their bigotry was a kindly human tolerance.

"The unhappy man at that trial was Darrow's chief opponent. I honestly believe that Mr. Bryan died of chagrin. I shall never forget the angry malice in his eyes as he glared at Darrow. The agony of a tortured soul and breaking heart was visible in the commoner's face as he retreated from one ditch to another under Darrow's courteous but relentless questioning until the supreme moment of admitted doubt when he confessed that the 'days' of creation might have been more than twenty-four hours long."

That contrast may have been still in Mr. Potter's mind, the clergyman admitted, when he told his congregation that he would admit the agnostic to membership in a Christian church of which he was minister,

"Why not?" he asked his interviewer. "You recall that passage in Matthew's gospel, 'As Jesus sat at meat in the house, behold, many publicans and sinners came and sat down with him and his disciples.'

"Darrow has been called 'the defender of sinners,' which reminds us of the opprobrium which Jesus suffered in this respect, the motives in both cases being entirely misrepresented by their

"It is well known," Mr. Potter continued, "that Darrow has defended many a case without money and without price. In this evolution trial he refused the remuneration offered him by the American Civil Liberties Union and even went so far as to refuse to accept reimbursement of his legitimate traveling and living expenses at the trial.

Clarence Darrow's service to his fellows has been an example of best Samaritan service. It has gone, or tried to go, to the roots of evil. He has tried to discover the motives of criminals, and his social service has been of the highest

"About the time of the Scopes trial, the Rev. Daniel M. Welch, minister of the First Unitarian Church of Knoxville, Tenn., took Clarence Darrow as the theme of his sermon, and pictured the lawyer arriving in heaven. Darrow seemed decidedly surprised to find himself in such surroundings, but finally mustered assurance to ask Jesus what it all meant. 'When I was down on earth you were good to me, Jesus explained. 'I was hungry and you gave me meat; I was a stranger and you took me in; I was sick, and you visited me; I was in prison, and you came to see me.' "'Well,' said Darrow, 'I certainly don't remember seeing you before, whereupon Jesus replied, Inasmuch as you did it unto the least of these, my brethren, Darrow, you did it unto

SPOILED HIS CHERRIES

When Former Minister Was & Fruit-Grower Driving to Market With His Fruit

BURRELL HAD A SPILL,

THE many friends of the Hon. Martin Burrell of Ottawa, while perhaps aware that he was once a fruit farmer in the Niagara district of Ontario, will hardly believe that once upon a time the designation of him was more important than his properly spelled name. The following is culled from the Saturday, June 27, 1896, edition of the Daily Standard, St. Catharines:

"A fruit grower of Louth named Burrill had a miraculous escape from serious injury on Friday afternoon near the postoffice. He was driving a democrat wagon loaded with cherries and was turning from King street on to Queen when the wind caught his straw hat and blew it away. He made a grab for it and at the same time the horse he was driving started with fright. Burrill had dropped one line and as he pulled on the other the animal turned short and made for the stores opposite. So short, however, was the turn that the vehicle made it with one side in the air. As the outfit reached the postoffice side of the road the wagon struck the curbing. Burrill was thrown out, one of his legs entangled in the lines and the cherries covered the sidewalk in great profusion. More frightened than ever, the animal made another dash and Burrill was dragged all over the street by one leg, the wonder being that his head was not crushed in by the curbings. J. S. Lutz happened along at this moment and made a grab for the horse's head. Luckily he succeeded in catching the bridle and holding the horse. Burrill was liberated from his dangerous position and it was found that no damage was done other than spoiling a few baskets of cherries."

The "i" in "Burrill" was rightfully changed to an "e" in Burrell when the "fruit grower" later represented Grand Forks, B.C., at Ottawa, later becoming minister of agriculture and, during the war, secretary of state for Canada. Hon. Martin Burrell still carries on his constructive work as chief librarian of the parliamentary library at Ottawa.

MOUNTBATTEN'S BATH LIKE BOTTOM OF SEA

ORD LOUIS MOUNTBATTEN, who married Miss Edwina Ashley, granddaughter and heiress of the late Sir Ernest Cassel, has succumbed to London Society's latest craze for unusual bathrooms.

At his famous mansion, Brook House, in Park lane, a bath has recently been completed for him in which the walls around the tub are painted to represent the bottom of the sea and the denizens thereof.

Lord Louis is a lieutenant in the British navy. His father, the late Marquis of Milford Haven, who until the war was known as Prince Louis of Battenberg, was a British admiral.

Carying his love for the sea even further than his submarine bath, Lord Louis has had his study in Brook House converted into the closest possible representation of a ship's cabin.

TWAS CHURCHILL HIMSELF.

HEARD an amusing little story the other day in connection with the latest Hogarth Press pamphlet written by Professor J. Maynard Keynes, the economist, writes T. P. O'Connor, the famous Irish journalist.

Recently his publishers received a telephone call from an enquirer who said: "I hear that you are bringing out a new pamphlet by Mr. Keynes called 'The Economic Consequences of the War." "Yes," he was told, "we are publishing a pamphlet by Mr. Keynes, but that is not its title. It is called 'The Economic Consequences of Mr. Churchill." At this the enquirer was heard to chuckle very heartily, and he was asked: "Who is speaking?" "The chancellor of the exchequer," was the

Here is the great Babe at his wife's bedside in their cheap little apartment, to which he has returned in sad sorrow from the great open spaces after being suspended indefinitely and fined $5,000 for being a big, bad boy. Even the nurse looks sad. It's an awfully sad picture, isn't it? By the way, the caption on the photo says it's the first time the great King of Swat has ever been photographed in tears. It's certainly terrible. Perhaps somebody will give the little boy a stick of candy and cheer him up. Sniff!

Mrs. Todd Had Been Practising 25 Years On Her Husband -Five Best Cooks of New York All Married

HE best five amateur cooks in New York city were selected recently in a stirring, sizzling, boiling hot contest, a unique and in a way, a thrilling event in the annals of sports. For two hours fifteen "finalists" in the prize recipe contest conducted by the United Restaurant Owners' Association fussed, seasoned, burned and cried over various dishes ranging from old-fashioned corned beef to filet of sole. When the smoke in the kitchen of the Toddle Inn, No. 2549 Broadway, cleared, three judges sat down at a table, tucked napkins under their chins and started in to taste fifteen dishes.

The judges, headed by United States Senator Royal S. Copeland, all of whom had gone without anything to eat since 7 o'clock in the morning in preparation for the event, pronounced the following winners:

Best Plate of Corned Beef and Cabbage-Mrs. Stewart Todd. Vegetable Dinner-Mrs. Alice Dopler. Chicken Fricassee-Mrs. Ralph Trautmann. Hash-Mrs. Hadwick Marchfeld.

youngest, Mrs. Preble, has been married two years, while Mrs. Todd, who concocted the best dish of corned beef and cabbage, New York's favorite dish, has been married twenty-five I didn't know him. "I've been practising twenty-five years, you see," she explained after winning. "I guess the reason why I'm such a good cook when it comes to corned beef and cabbage is because of my husband, my twenty-three-year-old son and my two daughters. They always have wanted corned beef and cabbage at least twice a week. I owe my success to them."

Mrs. Marchfeld, who prepared the best dish of hash, said she owed her success to the fact that her husband always has been in a hurry to eat. The oldest cook in the group, Mrs. Trautmann, seventy-two, is president of the Woman's Health Protective Association, and said she wanted to prove that chicken fricassee is better and healthier than almost any dish.

When Senator Copeland, Miss Katherine A. Fisher, director of the Good Housekeeping Institute, and Miss Lettie Gay, representing the Tribune Institute, sat down to the table to begin "judging" the foods their eyes sparkled. They started with corn beef and cabbage. They cried for more. Three plates of filet of sole were placed before them for sampling. By the time they reached hash they were quite worn out. Senator Copeland staggered to his feet and fell back into a seat helpless,

As an individual player last year, fans saw the transformation Baker was able to work on a ball club that was discouraged and was fast losing fight and all semblance of hope. As a manager he has had more opportunity to transmit his own indomitable spirit to this team, and, in addition, has commanded the respect that all successful managers must get, and with it a quality of loyalty which few managers have been able to inspire.

The club with which Wetzel hopes to add another pennant to his long string add another pennant to his long string add another pennant to his long string and a much costlier machine. But whether it can withstand the fighting spirit of the locals is a matter for speculation.

Baker's corps of flingers look better right now and have been going at a better gait than has the Wetzel souphone brigade. They are all steady and poised, and Baker should have nothing to fear here.

The Bakermen lead the Hams in club hitting, and practically every member the club right now is hitting at top of the club right now and one thing the club right now is hitting at top of the club right now and one thing the club right now and nothing the club right of the club right now is hitting at top form.

There is little to choose between the teams defensively. Hamilton probably has a slight edge on the infield for spectacular play.

But if it comes to a last-ditch struggle, it will be the spirit which animates the London club which should swing the balance in favor of the locals.

At a dinner the other night at which Manager Baker was host to his athletes this spirit was easier to catch than it is on the ball field. Not a man but paid sincere tribute to the qualities of Baker's leadership or failed to prophesy in passing that the club would defeat the Hamilton clan.

The ball team has shown its mettle from the start of the season, when it ran into a series of one-run reverses that threatened to run into a record. Flint. Sept. 11.—Flint evened the series with Hamilton today by winning a brilliant pitching duel. 1 to 0. Welch provided the margin by driving a home run to right field in the second inning and beating the relay to the plate.

It was a battle of southpaws. Webb outpitched Montgomery as far as base hits go, but the Vehics' star hurled superbly in the pinches, five times turning back the enemy with runners on the bases with less than two outs.

Feigert's great throw to the plate in the eighth, to double Froman trying to score on Lopez' fly, was one of the outstanding features, while McCrea was nipped by Montgomery in an attempt to steal home a moment later.

Sidney Leaver of Point Ed- Monday Closing Date for Entries

Monday is the closing day for the receipt of entries for the track and receive of entries for the track and field meet under tne auspices of the Ontario athletic commission, which is to be conducted at the University of Western Ontario oval on Saturday Sept. 19.

Because of organization and many other difficulties, the entries nave not been received in safficient numbers to warrant the committee going on with the meet, and the public schools, together with the secondary schools, entering in the special events at this time, are warned that the opportunity presented throughout this program will be missed entirely and the meet cancelled unless a sufficiently large entry is received. It is again published for the information of all concerned that for the public schools the events are as follows:

Ages 12 and 13 years—75-yard dash.

Both Are Angling For Bout With Eber-Johnston Survivor.

MEETS GENARO SOON

The fact that both Tommy Ryan o McKeesport and Joe Clements of Chfcago are angling for a bout with the winner of the Eber-Johnston fight in Toronto assures London fans of seeing an earnest argument between the two bantams when they meet in the arena here Wednesday night.

Clements has nothing like the impressive record which has been industriously compiled by Ryan, but he has met many of the same men that Ryan has fought, and he has yet to lose a bout, the worst he has received being draws. Clements has everything to gain by beating Ryan, or at least earning a draw. It means recognition in a field where he is a newcomer. Ryan practically has to beat the head off the Chicago boy to make sure of a match with the Eber-Johnston winner. That means a match for the victor with thing broad jump, 120-yards low nurgles, the provided relay (tour boys to a team). For the secondary schools the events are junior—Pole vault, 120-yards low nurgles, 220 yards. Intermediate—Pole vault, javelin throw.

The university track is being conditioned for this event, and will undoubtedly be in first-class shave.

FINANCIAL REVIEW

Associated Press Despatch. New York, Sept. 12.-Relaxation of money rates provided the stimulus for another sharp advance in stock prices this week, which carried the industrial average to the highest level in history. Rails also started forward on the announcement that all freight traffic records were broken in the week ended Aug. 29, but they slowed up later.

Motors gave one of the most impressive demonstrations of group strength. Nearly a dozen issues in that group smashed their previous 1925 high prices crude output.

Steels improved on further seport of expanding mill operations, and the announcement of a relatively small drop or ciation of travelling passenger agents, in the August unfilled to in number, will past through London tomorrow night at 9 o'clock, en route from Chicago to Toronto, to attend a convention.

A special Canadian National train of twelve sleepers fiwill be used by the rialroad men. noney rates provided the stimulus for on buying obviously influenced by re-rorts of unusually large sales as a result of recent price cuts. Steels improved on further seport of expanding mill operations, and the an-nouncement of a relatively small drop of 26,664 tons in the August unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel Cor-noration.

of the largest this fall, buying was at a standstill owing to the weather. A few grocers hurried around in the rain in the early hours, and made their purchases from trucks and wagons piled high with fruit and vegetables. Retail buying was practically negligible, and likely that owing to weather condichases from trucks and wagons piled high with fruit and vegetables. Retail buying was practically negligible, and the tarmers were hobing for otear skies for the late morning and afternoon. Potatoes dropped to see a bushel and $1.25 per bag, with a stack demand. Creamery butter was firmer at 42c to 44c per lb, with darry prices a trifle stronger than they were. Tomato growers, anxious over the weather, were sching five baskets for $1, when they could find any customers. Metons were plentiful as were peaches, grapes, pears and apples. There was a diversity of prices in all lines of produce, with a tendency to lower prices later in the day. Hay and oats have been scarce during the latter part of the week, ar quoted prices. The demand should be fairly brisk early next week, in the opinion of market officials.

DODGE BROTHERS CONTINUE TO STRIVE FOR BETTERMENT

"Constantly Improved, But No Yearly Models," Policy Adhered To.

CHANGES ARE MANY

The refinements and improvements which Dodge Brothers have made in their product since their first car was built, are far greater in number and importance than is commonly realized, says W. J. Chisholm, London distributor. From the beginning, Dodge Brothers have strictly adhered to their policy of "Constantly improved but no yearly models." Important ed but no yearly models." Important and numerous changes have been made, but always with the definite object of actually improving the car in comfort, appearance or value in service. Changes have never been so drastic as to cause undue depreciation in Dodge Brothers' cars in the hands of owners, nor has any change been made for the sake of stimulating a seasonal demand.

Davies "A" has been tearlier in the month. Light trading occurred in Davies "A" shares at 32½, a recession of ½ point.

Barcelona was given further attention, and the price reached a new high tion, and the price reached a new high for the current movement at 23¾ on transactions involving 340 shares.

Within the last year "headquarters reason for this is that they cushion for balloon tires" has become a popular synonym for the London Tire Repair Depot, operated by Art Wilkes, at 354 Wellington street.

"Give me something that will soak up bumps, something that a will conting the result of the surface in contact with the road, saw yith a lot of the jarring and bumping that are felt at times in even the highest-priced automobiles," has been the cry of motorists all over the country for years past, and despite the many improvements in motor body and chasels construction, there was until the coming of balloon tires something lacking to assure an ultimate degree of comfort) is admitted to assure an ultimate degree of comfort is admitted.

Balla arucies can be bought at a saving of at least 30 per cent. The three big display windows of the Silverman shop are filled with underedeemed pledges at bargain prices.

"If you are ever short of money gar in need of anything come in and look my stock over. I can save you about one-third on your purchase."

The balloon tire solves this difficulty.

When it appeared that general automobile construction had well night attained perfection, but that despite this the occasional bump and jar were still there, the tire manufacturers turned their resources toward turning out something radically different from the old style tire that had to be inflated until it was band had to be inflated until it was hard in order to prevent rim-cutting. In the perfection of the balloon tire they called their and so lessen upkeep, expense and depressionally their and so lessen.

The chief advantage of balloon tires lies in the fact that they provide greater riding comfort. The
