We could not see the chariot for the gloom We could not see the horsemen for the The shadow rested darkly on the room,-

The shadow of the coffin and the tomb,-And bitter, wailing sounds so filled our ears The noise of wheels seemed but a muffled groan, The tramp of steeds an oft-repeated moan.

We clasped the mantle in a close embrace. The mantle which our father cast aside, There was no stain of time upon the face,-No dust of travel gathered in the race .-Even the mantle, too, seemed glorified : We knew no living heart could be so chill. And yet we clasped the mantle closer still.

But when the shadows gather thickest round, And falling tears our eyes most darkly blind We know the angels heard a music sound Grow louder as the chariot spurned the ground We know it left a line of light behind,-A line of light, a path by angels trod,-A way which leadeth to the throne of God.

And still the Sabbath, on its holy air, Bears the full music of the chiming bells, Calling our footsteps to the house of prayer, Bidding us join the sacred chorus there, Which, trembling, up to heaven's high tem ple swells : Breathing soft memories of days gone by, For memory lives, though all her treasures die Silent forever is the voice we knew,-

The voice that pleaded with strong cries and Fired by a holy purpose, firm and true, His Master's will, his Master's work to do, Silent, on earth, through all the coming years But heaven has gained a voice amid her choir Another hand hath swept another lyre-And heavenly harps a higher note must raise, To chord with his loud song of endless praise.

That Church Letter.

What have you done with it? One thing you sented it to the church where you reside. You are not in the communion of saints. You do not go to the holy sacrament of the Lord's Supper. His words, uttered as the shadows of his terrible agony and fearful death was over Him, "Do this in remembrance of Me," you disre-

The assembling together" has no charm t you. Once it had. Why such a change? You no longer bear a part in the expense the labors, the conflicts of the militant church Once you did. Once your sympathy was them. You often sung in those days-

"I love the church, O God!

Her walls before thee stand
Dear as the apple of thine eye,
And graven on thy hand."

You more than once felt the exiled Psalmist's emotions: " If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget its cunning." As that church letter grew old and sere, your love for Zion grew less and less. Now, deny as you may, you are backslidden, and no longer really love the church " He hath purchased with His own blond."

This loss of love for the church is a sign of soul blight, which should excite the gravest alarm. Why did you not present that letter? "I found the church cold and lifeless."

So instead of attempting to arouse it to life, you deserted it. You found it dark, and therefore put your light under a bushel! Can you go to the bar of God with that excuse? Did you think the world so much better, so much purer, that you chose it with its sins rather than the church with its ordinances? "I was a stranger and none noticed me."-Possibly there was wrong there, but what claim had you to brotherly recognition until you pre-sented a brother's credentials, and showed a brotherly sympathy, and brotherly love? Was manly in you, did it exhibit sturdy piety to stand off, forsaking privileges and abjuring duty because there seemed a barrier in the way? Have you a piety so spongy and infantile that it can-not overcome difficulties? Why did you not come into the church and set an example of Christian courtesy to strangers? Many have

"The church was contentious." Indeed, and you, forgetting the Master had said, "Blessed are the peace-makers," put yourself where it was not possible to breathe a peaceful, loving spirit upon it? By your own showing, you saw the ship in danger, and made no effort to save it!

Brother, sister, hunt up that old church letter. Take it in your hand look at it read it slowly. What memories it calls up. How the days of the past come up. Let them come—vows, pro-mises, and all! Remember them—measure your duty, and go at once to the minister of Christ, present it to him-tell him of your error, and start anew. Do this for the sake of your household, for the sake of your imperiled soul! - N. Y. Advocate.

Lo! Sunday comes, a day of rest To laboring man and toiling beast; A day appointed by the Lord, To read and hear his holy word. The Churchman rises from his bed And, after having breakfasted, Shav'd, washed, and cleaned his shoes, Puts on his shirt and Sunday-clothes. And straightway to the church he walks, To join the church-vard common talk : And then from every lane and street. mode of abolishing it. They could only hope that it would disappear under the benign influence of free institutions, but events soon proved how baseless were those hopes. The States, now called free States, one by one released themselves from the inhumanity; and bills were introduced into the legislatures of Maryland, Virginia, and Kentucky to effect a gradual emancipation. They were however quashed by the indiscrest violence of the abolitionists who commenced a rabid onslaught upon slavery and slaveholders. This conduct so exasperated those States that, fearing insurrection, the idea of emancipation was at once dropped, and they ranged themselves on once dropped, and they ranged themselves on the side of slavery as a permanent institution. Then began the unremitting contest between the two sections of the nation which has resulted in an appeal to arms. The Free States would not suffer slavery to extend itself with the growth of the republic, while they were willing to accept it within its existing limits as an irremediable evil. The Slave States however sought expansion in order to cope with the increasing power of their national antagonists - the Free States and determined to obtain greater political influence in the councils of the Union. These con flicting elements in some measure subsided upon the passing of the bill entitled the " Missouri Compromise," which stipulated that beyond the Southern boundary of that State freedom should not go, and beyond which Northward slavery should not be extended. The subsequent repeal of this measure served to renew hostilities. especially as the tide of emigration westward made it apparent to the South that the Free 23rd States would greatly out-number those in which 24th slavery could be established. The proposed admission of Kansas which lay contiguous to the 29th line laid down by the Missouri Compromise 30th aroused the fiercest passions of the contending parties, and the territory became a scene of strife and blood-shed. The breach between the North and the South gradually widened. Scenes violence, we well remember, occurred on the floors of Congress, and the two factions soon became more hostile in feeling than two distinct nations. They had no longer any interests in common, and the South resolutely determined to sever itself from the Union. The election of Buchanan seemed to allay the irritation, but the defeat of Douglas in 1860 renewed the contest, and then at once followed earnest preparations for the struggle.

A Word to Boys and Girls about Order.

Little friends, put things right back in their proper places. Never leave things all about, helter skelter, topsy-turvy-never. When you use any article-hoe, shovel, rake, pitchfork, axe, hammer, tongs, boots, or shoes, books, slates pencils, writing apparatus, pins, thimbles, pinushions, needles, work-baskets, kitchen-furniture, every article of housewifery or husbandry. no matter what it is the very moment you have done using it, return it to its proper place. Be sure to have a special place for everything-a place for everything, and everything in its place. Order, order, perfect order, is the watchwordheaven's first law. How much precious time is saved (aside from vexation) by observing order -systematic regularity! And little folks should begin early to preserve order in everythingform habits of order. These close, slip-shod, slatternly habits are formed in childhood, and habits once formed cling for life. Young friends, begin early to keep things straight in their proper place; study neatness, order, economy, sobriety,-everything just, honest, pure levely, and of good report.

It makes the inter-ocked stitch (which is alike on both sides,) and has great caracity for sewing all kinds of cloth, and with all kinds of thread. Even leather, as well as the finest muslin, may be sewn to perfection on this machine. It will use 200 spool cotton as well as No 30 linen thread. What it can do can only be known by seeing the machine tested. The Folding-top Case is among the most valuable of the new improvements. It may be opened out as a spac-ious and substantial table to sustain the work, and when the machine is not in use it may be fold into a box, which protects the working parts of the Machine. There is no other machine to equal the Machine. There is no other machine to equal the Letter A in simplicity, durability, rapidity and certainty of correct action at all rates of speed. The Family Sewing Machine is fast becoming as popular for family use as Singer & Co's. Manufacturing Machines are for manufacturing purposes.
