THE S. S. AND LEAGUE CONVENTION

The seventeenth Annual Sunday School and Epworth League Convention of the Brockville District of the Methodist Church, held in Athens, Nov. 7 and 8, 1912, will be counted one of the best and most successful in the history of the Association.

The programme prepared by the Rev. D. R. Kelley of Lansdowne, president of the district Epworth League and district Sunday School Secretary in collaboration with the Rev. F. L. Farewell, B.A., of Toronto, was arranged to be a progressive discussion of the essentials of Sunday School and Epworth League work. Mr. Farewell opened the Convention, after devotional exercises, with an address on the "Aim and Purpose of the Modern Sunday School," which showed the aim to be the Kingdom of God, or the establishment of right relations between man and God, man and his fellow-men, and Nature—these relations having been destroyed by sin. In life's earliest years, the home was the only factor looking to this end, but as life's connections broadened other forces entered and the need of the Sunday School to augment the waning power of the home is apparent.

The Sunday Schools of Brockville District, judged by statistics, were found to be holding their own, but Mr. Farewell followed the reading of the report with such an exposition of the standard of work to be done in the Sunday Schools as to lead to the feeling that many avenues of usefulness opened before the local never yet more than partially entered. In connection with the Temperance work, discussion by the delegates proved the need of regular temperance instruction and a yearly opportunity to sign the pledge.

Other branches of Sunday School work were dealt with in papers, each of which was followed by discussion. Evangelism in the Sunday School was shown by the Rev. L. H. Fisher, to be the aim of all Bible study and the crying need of the Sunday School. Personal efficiency and teacher training under the J. W. T. McFarlane was seen to require, first, the Christian character and then the training. The development of missionary spirit in the Sunday School, dealt with by the Rev. A. F. Haggart, showed how a study of the Bible with a conception of God's desires for the world could not fail to result in the missionary spirit.

A round table conference on what each Sunday School might accomplish, led by the Rev. W. Wells, gave a chance for further discussion of these and other matters of Sunday School interest.

The closing address of the evening session of the first day was an appeal by Mr. Farewell for the church to step into the unfilled places and to meet fully the needs of the boys and girls from twelve to twenty. The failure of church and Sunday School at this point resulted in the organized and unorganized powers of evil so contaminating the play, the associations, the reading of this period as to cause the loss to the church of seventy-five percent of its boys who up to this time were in the Sunday School. How the Sunday School could and should touch every part of the boy and girl life of this period was shown in masterly fashion by Mr. Farewell, who revealed, in control of his audience, a full knowledge of the subject, and his expertness in his chosen work.

The second day was Young Peoples' Day and an equally connected and well planned programme was placed before the delegates. Mr. Farewell showed the purpose of the organization of young people's societies to be the carrying point by training along educational and evangelistic lines of service, for the Sunday School, and this training was specialized by other speakers. The Rev. G. W. Snell showed the Epworth League training young people for missionary leadership and service, and therefore, addresses should be informing, interesting, inspiring and personal. In a discussion, the more intelligent and at the same time larger financial support of Dr. Service, our missionary to West China under the forward movement, was urged and plans made. The Rev. R. Calvert's paper showed the Epworth League training for literary leadership. The way the League could improve the taste of the young people was the theme and was shown to require a high ideal with adaptation to local needs.

The Rev. Mr. Farewell brought the two days of great inspiration to a close with a Watchword for the year. Discussing the Watchword under the question, "What can we do?" he very practically sent the delegates away with the feeling that there was very much they were not doing that they could do. The prayers for Sunday School and Epworth League leaders in their own church which they were not offering, the sympathy they failed to give, the home influence they did not try to develop, the rational planning, either never done or never carried out, were shown to be among the things they could do. But all were urged to return home with Marion Lawrence's motto, "And go, grow, glow."

The officers elected for the ensuing year were—
President—Miss S. L. Stevens, Prescott.

1st Vice-President—F. Lathan, Brockville.

2nd Vice-President—Mrs W. T. Towring, Glen Buell.

3rd Vice-President—Miss E. Giles, Brockville.

4th Vice-President—A. Lee, Athens.

5th Vice-President—Miss B. McLean, Brockville.

Recording Sec.—Mrs M. Small, Prescott.

Corresponding Sec.—Miss Pearl McLean, Brockville.

Rep. to Conference Epworth League Rev. George Edwards, Athens.

Much of the enjoyment of the Convention was caused by the generous hospitality of the people of Athens, who so freely opened their homes to the delegates. This, with the willing help of the organizer of the Epworth League and Sunday School, Miss Nellie Earl, and the choir showed Athens' enthusiasm in aiding the advancement of Sunday School and Epworth League work.

But much of the value of the convention was increased by the tactful and expert suggestions of Mr. Farewell, who was felt to be practical in his suggestions and yet inspiring by his vision of the possibility and future of both departments of the work. The whole convention was moved by the Holy Spirit who through the speakers gave a call to renewed consecration and effort to bring the Kingdom of Heaven on earth.

Pumpkin Pie; Seven Kinds

To make four large pies take two quarts of stewed, peeled pumpkin and mix it with one quart of rich milk, six eggs beaten together, one and one-half cups of light brown sugar, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, and two teaspoonfuls of nutmeg, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of ginger, one-half of butter, and one-half of cream. Pour it into the pie crust and bake in a moderate oven. Be sure to have all ingredients for the pie crust as old as possible before using it out.

UNIFORMITY IN CANADIAN DAIRY PRODUCTS.

A few months ago there was held at Ottawa a conference of dairy experts and officials from all parts of the Dominion. The meeting was called by the Minister of Agriculture for the purpose of endeavoring to perpetuate the uniformity of the quality and character of Canadian cheese and butter that has been responsible for the success of Canadian dairying.

TURKS WILL FIGHT TO THE BITTER END

Patriotic Sentiment in Constantinople is Flaming Against Any Submission.

Tchatalja Fight Was a Rout--Constantinople Situation Grows Worse Daily.

Constantinople, Nov. 11.—There is every indication here now that the war against the Balkan allies will be continued to the bitter end, as advised by Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief.

Officers of the army join with the Turkish press in applauding the determination of the commander-in-chief to continue the fight and it is stated that the population of the Turkish Empire is ready to assist by every means in its power. At the same time, many Moslems are said to have sworn to sacrifice their lives in order to safeguard the glory of Islam.

The Yeni Gazette says to-day: "If Europe wishes to tear up treaties it may do so, but we will not allow the Koran and the history of Osman to be torn up. All the Turkish Ministers, with the Grand Vizier, aged 84, at their head, as well as our high dignitaries, our soldiers and the whole nation, have sworn to shed their blood in that cause. Those who entertain the idea of abandoning the fatherland will incur the malediction of the Almighty Prophet."

WANT NO INTERMEDIARY.
Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 11.—The Bulgarian Cabinet maintains the absolute necessity of any peace negotiations with Turkey being conducted directly with the Balkan nations, in order to ensure the future position of the various states involved, and to prevent the danger of further conflict after the war has ceased.

The Government organ, Mir, expresses surprise that Turkey recognizes her defeat, but yet ignores the victors and continues to seek salvation from the powers. The newspaper remarks that such mediation in the past has proved costly for Turkey territorially, and if persisted in now may cause her Asiatic empire to become a second Egypt.

DIRECT NEGOTIATION REMOVED.
Cologne, Germany, Nov. 11.—It is reported in Sofia, Bulgaria, that the Porte has proposed to Bulgaria to begin peace negotiations without the mediation of the powers, according to a despatch to the Cologne Gazette.

BRITISH PRESS VIEWS.
New York, Nov. 11.—A London cable says: "The London press this morning gives much space to editorials discussing the division of spoils in the Balkans. Following are some extracts."

Daily Telegraph—"Austria will abandon her ambitions on the Adriatic coast only on the assurance that they will not be forestalled by a greater Serbia."

Daily Express—"The great powers have to deal with an unknown force in King Ferdinand, who will probably be the first to eat the cake, and the reckoning must be made with him."

Morning Post—"The small states by stepping into Turkey's shoes make little change in the frame-work of Europe, but a considerable extension of Austria-Hungary would be a great alteration."

Daily News—"Public opinion here will insist on Servia accepting an open way to the sea."

Daily Chronicle—"Austria-Hungary might purchase Italian support by offering Italy an autonomous Albania, under an Italian prince, and herself reassert her claims to the Sanjak and Salonica. It would be a disgraceful bargain."

Standard—"To the victors cannot be denied a share in the spoils."

Daily Graphic—"It would constitute an irreparable stain on the reputation of the Balkan states if they should despoil and partition Albania."

The Standard's Constantinople correspondent telegraphs: "The wild rush of a demoralized and hungry mob of soldiers into the doomed city is adding to the general terror. Many Turks have crossed the Bosphorus, and many Europeans are seeking refuge aboard steamships."

"The Sultan's yacht is waiting with steam up to take him to Bursa, in Asia Minor. The imperial treasure has already been sent away."

"Twenty warships of the powers are now in the Bosphorus."

"It is reported that the United Powers will lay before the Balkan states today the fact that Turkey has applied day for mediation, but it is believed the allies will insist on being addressed directly by the Porte."

TRIPLE ALLIANCE STANDS PAT.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—Germany, Austria-Hungary and Italy will not intervene in the Balkan situation so long as their special interests are not affected, and unless they are requested to do so by the belligerent nations.

This determination was reached during a series of conferences held here between the Marquis Di San Giuliano, Italian Foreign Minister, the Imperial Chancellor, and the German Foreign Secretary, at which the Austrian Ambassador was also present.

In a semi-official statement issued to-day it was announced that the three powers belonging to the Triple Alliance will follow a common course in regard to the Balkans, while at the same time keeping in friendly touch with the other powers.

THE ROUT AT TCHATALJA.

London, Nov. 11.—The Victorious Bulgarians made one swift, vicious assault on the fortifications of Tchatalja to-day, and won them. The disheartened Turks are now scattered over the 25-mile district between these captured lines of defence and Constantinople, and the Bulgarians are pursuing them, capturing some and killing others. There is now nothing save these disorganized, fleeing bands of Turks to stop the Bulgarians in their conquering march towards the capital of their enemies.

Flushed with the increasing total of victories, the Bulgarian troops, under the direction of King Ferdinand, decided this morning that it would not be necessary to await the arrival of the reinforcements which have already started from Sofia. The grating hatred which the Bulgars feel towards the Turks fed fire to the zeal of the soldiers, and after testing the mettle of the defensive army by pressing them hard on Tuesday, Wednesday and to-day, King Ferdinand decided on one assault.

The Turks resisted as best they could, but the soldiers, weak from lack of food, disheartened by defeat, and having endured terrific physical hardships during the few weeks of the war, at last were pushed from their position. The retreat of the Turks began in confusion, which increased as the Bulgarians pressed home their attacks, and at last the Turks broke into a sprint for their capital, throwing away their packs and arms to increase their speed.

HAS ADRIANOPLE FALLEN?

London, Nov. 11.—Charles P. Hands, one of the Daily Mail's war correspondents, has just telegraphed from Sofia, Bulgaria, that he believes that Adrianople has fallen, but the Bulgarians are concealing the fact, lest the powers, realizing that a decisive point has been reached in the war, should intervene before the capture of Constantinople. Extraordinary endeavors have been made since Monday to prevent the news from getting out. Nothing has been issued officially at Sofia except bulletins. The censorship has been extended to all letters.

CONSTANTINOPLE'S FLIGHT.

London, Nov. 11.—The situation in Constantinople is growing so desperate every day. News was received to-day that 25,000 Turks are marching through Asia on their way to Constantinople. Their purpose is to aid in the fighting against the Balkan allies, but it is impossible for them to do anything in the organized battalions.

These Kurds are religious fanatics, and are barbarians. In religious riots in the past they have proved their viciousness and will stop at nothing to wreak vengeance upon Christians. If they arrive at Constantinople they will add to the general confusion, and unless the authorities are able to keep them strongly under hand a slaughter of the Christians in the capital is probable. The small armed bands of routed soldiers who have drifted into Constantinople are there from hunger, and any day they, augmented by the Kurds and the riffraff of the town, may break out.

WOODROW WILSON, of NEW JERSEY, Newly elected President of the United States.

Every Christian who can do so is leaving the capital. There are 600,000 Christians in the town normally, and in the event of a massacre these will inevitably be wiped out. The feeling against them is caused not by the fact that they are coalition of Christian nations who are winning the victories against them, but also because the Mohammedan Turks say that the loss of many battles was due to the fact that the Christian soldiers in the Turkish army were the first to break under heavy fire. If a massacre starts the tide in the harbor will be able to do little to save the Christians.

The ambassadors of five powers held a meeting this morning at the Porte and there met the Grand Vizier and the Foreign Minister. It is understood that they discussed measures of public safety.

BIG BATTLE NOW ON.

London, Nov. 11.—A great battle is in progress between the Bulgarians and Turks along the line of Tchatalja fortifications, only some twenty-five miles outside of Constantinople. It is generally believed that this will be the last of the remarkable series of combats which have been going on for upwards of a fortnight, with little or no breathing space.

One report received from Sofia last night said that the Bulgarians had occupied the Tchatalja line, but this is not confirmed.

While the Turks have another more modern line of fortifications between Tchatalja and Constantinople, there is little chance, in the opinion of military experts, that they will make a stand there if they are defeated at Tchatalja. It is reported, however, that the famous Demassus regiments of the Turkish army have been reserved for this last effort to save the capital.

There is no fresh news to-day from Adrianople, which was reported last night to have surrendered. The position at Monastir and at Salonika, where large Turkish armies are concentrated, is unchanged, so far as the outside world is concerned. The Montenegrins are finding the Turkish fortress of Scutaria a hard nut to crack, and it is again reported to-day that they have had to retire across the Boyana River, because heavy rains and floods had made it impossible for them to keep up their commissariat service.

NORTHERN ROADS

New Ontario Highway Work Nears Completion.

A Cochrane despatch: Two weeks more, and possibly less, will see the completion of the road construction work being done by the Ontario Road Construction Branch in and about the Cochrane and Transcontinental section of Northern Ontario. The forces have now been reduced to the minimum, and at the end of a fortnight the headquarters will be transferred from Cochrane to the Parliament Buildings in Toronto. From that time on the headquarters will be in Toronto, and next summer the work will be directed not only in the north, but around Sudbury and Port Arthur.

ROYAL GEORGE ON THE ROCKS

All the Passengers Have Been Safely Removed.

OFFICERS PRAISED

Complimentary Resolution to Royal George Officials.

Edmonton, Nov. 11.—One of the most extraordinary accidents in the mortality records of Alberta was reported to Coroner Frankum, of Stettler, yesterday, when the 12-year-old son of Raphael Engel, a farmer living near Stettler, brought the body of his father home after an interrupted hunting trip, during which the father was killed accidentally by his own hand.

Father and son had started out with a horse and buggy on a hunting trip. They had gone only a short distance when Mr. Engel tried to make his horse travel faster. Failing to coax the animal into a trot the father picked up a loaded shotgun, which was lying in the bottom of the rig, and struck the horse sharply over the back with the stock of the weapon, breaking the butt end below the trigger guard. By some unknown agency the trigger caught and the right barrel of the gun exploded, the charge entering Engel's left breast, killing him instantly.

The son placed his father's body in the bottom of the buggy, returned to Stettler and notified the coroner.

RUSHING N. T. R.

Trains From Winnipeg to Moncton Next Year.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—That the National Transcontinental Railway will be completed sufficiently to permit the operation of trains from Winnipeg to Moncton by the time next year was the expectation expressed by Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways, to-day. The Minister and Major R. W. Leonard, Chairman of the committee, have been busy during the past few days in such a way that the prospect is bright now for the laying of steel sufficiently for the handling of wheat next fall.

A car ferry is being arranged for service at Quebec pending the completion of the bridge. A local service on the line from Edmonton, N. B., to Moncton will be started on Nov. 20, and Superior Junction service is completed, and will be ready to handle grain this fall.

Some people are careful to have everything in its place, and then can't find the place.

WILSON'S TOTAL

Will Have 442 Votes in Electoral College.

New York despatch: Based on returns at midnight, Woodrow Wilson has carried Illinois and California by safe margins. Thus he will have 442 votes in the Electoral College, Roosevelt will have 77, while President Taft will get but 12.

It now looks as if Illinois will poll up a plurality of 15,000 for Governor Wilson, while the rural districts of California will put him at least 3,000 ahead of his nearest opponent, Col. Roosevelt, in that State.

The popular votes of the three leading candidates figure something like 6,000,000 or more for Wilson, 4,000,000 or perhaps less for Mr. Roosevelt, and 3,400,000 for President Taft. These totals must vary to a certain degree with revised returns from the present doubtful States, but then in general they are not far from being correct.

The loss of California and Illinois to the Bull Moose candidate is somewhat offset by his belated success in Minnesota, where the farmer vote upset last night's predictions, and turned the tide there for the third party candidate.

The contest between Governor Wilson and Col. Roosevelt was a neck-and-neck race in Kansas, West Virginia, Illinois and California, but it was too much for the Progressive when it came to counting the votes from the rural districts.

Wyoming has been hanging in the balance, but estimates based on general returns would give the State to Wilson by from between 300 and 500. The Taft people have been claiming its electoral vote.

STRANGE TRAGEDY

Peculiar Hunting Fatality in the Northwest.

Edmonton, Nov. 11.—One of the most extraordinary accidents in the mortality records of Alberta was reported to Coroner Frankum, of Stettler, yesterday, when the 12-year-old son of Raphael Engel, a farmer living near Stettler, brought the body of his father home after an interrupted hunting trip, during which the father was killed accidentally by his own hand.

Father and son had started out with a horse and buggy on a hunting trip. They had gone only a short distance when Mr. Engel tried to make his horse travel faster. Failing to coax the animal into a trot the father picked up a loaded shotgun, which was lying in the bottom of the rig, and struck the horse sharply over the back with the stock of the weapon, breaking the butt end below the trigger guard. By some unknown agency the trigger caught and the right barrel of the gun exploded, the charge entering Engel's left breast, killing him instantly.

The son placed his father's body in the bottom of the buggy, returned to Stettler and notified the coroner.

ARRAERS CLAIM REFUSED.

Edmonton despatch: An important decision was handed out by Judge Henry tonight in connection with the application of the Collegiate Institute Board, which claimed $8,442.26 from the County of Brant for arrears on fees for pupils attending the Collegiate from the county from the year 1908 to 1912 inclusive. The county has been paying $4,500 per year towards the cost of county pupils, and the board claimed that the fee paid by the School Board for the past four years and could not go back on that agreement, he dismissed the application with costs.

ROYAL GEORGE ON THE ROCKS

This boat, like its twin, the Royal Edward, has been running for three seasons on the St. Lawrence-Bristol route for the Canadian Northern Steamship Company. The steamer is 345 feet long, 60 feet beam, and has a registered tonnage of 12,000. She is driven by triple turbine engines and can attain 20 knots an hour. Originally the two known as the Cairo and Heliopolis, ran in the Mediterranean. They are excellent examples of modern comfort and luxury.

Na-Dru-Co Tasteless Cod Liver Oil

Preparation of

Cod Liver Oil

This Na-Dru-Co Compound embodies the well-known nutritive and curative elements of Cod Liver Oil—Hypophosphites to build up the nerves—Extract of Wild Cherry to act on the lungs and bronchial tubes—and Extract of Malt, which, besides containing valuable nutrient itself, helps the weakened digestive organs to assimilate other food.

The disagreeable taste of raw Cod Liver Oil is entirely absent, and the Compound is decidedly pleasant to take. In 50c. and $1.00 bottles, at your Druggist's.

ANOTHER PRISON FARM.

Men. W. J. Hanna is Trying Experiment in the North.

While the Central Prison Farm at Guelph has been developing a continental reputation for improved and successful methods in dealing with ordinary misdemeanants, a new and perhaps more ambitious scheme has been introduced by Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, in northern Ontario. Six or eight miles from Fort William lies a tract of land comprising some six hundred acres, hitherto avoided as being unsuitable for agricultural purposes. Hon. Frank Cochrane, late Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, saw the land, found its value and immediately withdrew it from settlement. The tract has now been turned over to the Provincial Secretary for the purpose of another Central Prison. Unlike the Guelph Farm, however, the Fort William proposition was virgin land, unenclosed and untouched.

On June 6 last a party of men went on, not criminals, just ordinary misdemeanants—first offenders. They set to work. First, tents had to be erected and provision made for eating and sleeping the gang. The first field of seven acres was cleared by June 8. Then the organization was perfected they went to work, sixty of them in all, brawny, willing, delighted to be out in the air. In a few days they made a big dent in the surrounding forest, and are now clearing at the rate of three acres a day. Field crops have been put in, buildings erected for the winter and some machinery given to the settlement. The scheme is just unfolding, and the way they go at it is proof that they prefer their work to jail yards.

Three acres a day and more! What will it lead to? Those who are prating about prepared farms, clearings with a little shack and a barn where a settler can go in and get busy at once on his land, these are some of the things that may result from the new idea. At the present time the men are giving the province a better return than if they were held behind brick walls, and the province is giving the men a better chance to start right again, and the settlers, too, in the long run is benefited. Perhaps this is a bigger scheme than it looks, and Fort William may see an agricultural development that will startle the remainder of the province.—Toronto Globe.

A Tramp News.

Pittsie Ryan, a newsboy, left Montreal recently on the second stage of his trip around the world from Edmonton, Alta., for a purse of thirty thousand dollars. Pittsie was in Montreal for four days selling papers on St. James street and his attempted exploits so captivated the newsboys of the city that they formed a sort of trust with the traveler as receiver.

Pittsie started on his trip from Edmonton on April 29, with a cent in his pocket. He is to pay his way by selling papers and is to have in his pockets $500 on his return.

He is clad in a white suit with the inscription "Pittsburg Ryan, Edmonton, on a tour of the world, in black letters on the collar of the jacket."

He says that he has covered 2,800 miles since leaving Edmonton and he has sold papers in Calgary, Regina, Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, Portage la Prairie, Winnipeg, Kenora, Port Arthur, Ottawa, Toronto, Rochester and Montreal.

Pittsie Ryan is twenty-seven years of age and he has been a newsboy almost from the cradle. He went around the world in 1905-10 in four and a half years on the same terms as the present trip.

Asked how much he has saved since he commenced his present tour Pittsie said nothing yet. He was too busy engaged in attempting to secure enough money for his passage. At this juncture a young man who had been listening to his story to the reporter stepped forward, asked him to call at his office, and said he would get him a free passage to Great Britain.

Woman-Worship in the North.

James Oliver Curwood, author of "The Flower of the North," tells the following story about the men to be found in the country about Hudson Bay, where the scene of his story is laid: "I was at Prince Albert," he says, "sitting on the verandah of the old Windsor Hotel, facing the Saskatchewan. During the few days previous a number of factors, trappers, and half-breed canoeemen had come down from the north. One of these men had not been down to the edge of civilization for seven years. Three of the others had not been down in two, and this was the annual trip of the other eight—for there were just eighteen of us sitting there together. We were smoking and talking when a young woman turned up the narrow walk leading to the verandah. Immediately every voice was hushed, and as the woman came up the steps those twelve, roughly-clad men of the wilderness rose to their feet to a man, each holding his cap in his hand. Thus they stood, silent and with bowed heads, until the young woman had passed into the hotel. It was the most beautiful tribute to womanhood I had ever seen. And I, the man from civilization, was the only one who remained sitting, with my feet still on my head!"

A Big Province.

With the recent addition, now known as Patricia, the province of Ontario, contains 467,289 square miles, an area fully three and one-third times that of the United Kingdom, and almost equal to France and Germany combined. This latter fact, perhaps, conveys more vividly than any other an idea of the vastness of the territory subject to the jurisdiction of the Provincial Government and Legislature.

TEMPERANCE SUNDAY

There was an unusually large attendance at the World's Temperance Sunday meeting held in the Methodist church on Sunday afternoon. The teachers and children of the Baptist and Presbyterian schools joined with the Methodist in observing the day. The programme, as usual, was in charge of the W. C. T. U. and was arranged by Mrs. S. S. Cornell. Mr. T. S. Kendrick presided.

Following devotional exercises, Rev. L. H. Fisher of Mallorytown presented the lesson for the day in a bright illuminating way. Then the following programme was rendered:—

Boys' Chorus.
Recitation—Miss Ola Derbyshire.
Vocal Solo—Miss Ella Sexton.
Duet—Miss Bessie Rowsome and Mr. Abrahams.
Boys' Chorus.
Vocal Solo—Mrs. Derbyshire.
Campaign Song.
Quartet—Messrs. S. Howard, Haynes, Eyre and Burt.
Miss Nellie Earl presided at the organ as accompanist.

A feature of the day, of interest to all, was an address on tobacco by Mr. Haynes. He pointed out the poisonous nature of the weed and its evil effect upon the nerves—an effect particularly evident when the weed in any form is used by children, as it dulls their memory and weakens the power of concentrated thought necessary for the solution of difficult problems. He counselled a more careful surveillance of children by parents and a disabusing of the mind of the thought that children are in all respects angels.

LOCAL OPTION AT NEWBORO

A correspondent writing to the Pioneer says:—
Three years ago Local Option was tried in Newboro, and after a sharp contest there was found to be an even vote.

The temperance people have decided to enter on a campaign again this fall, and are now vigorously taking the necessary steps preparatory to a vote at the proper time. A local temperance society has been organized among the ladies, and they are prepared to assist as far as possible in the good fight. Active opposition as compared with three years ago seems lacking, but there is a strongly expressed fear that Local Option would mean the closing of the hotel.

The temperance people however, are alive to this situation, and are determined to do everything possible to secure a lessee or purchaser of the hotel in the event of Local Option passing, and to maintain open house. We think the three months residence clause in the by law will help us, and consider the prospect of winning fairly good.

1912 FARMERS' PRIZE CONTEST
WE held a contest last year in which 36 prizes were offered. This year there will be three times as many prizes (108) and therefore three times as many chances for you to win one of them. You do not have to use a large quantity of cement to win a prize. Many of last year's prize-winners used comparatively little cement.
THE contest is divided into three classes and in only one of these (Class "A") does the amount of cement used count in deciding prize winners. Class "B" is for doing the best concrete work (the class makes no difference). Class "C" is for sending in the best and clearest description of how any piece of concrete work was done.
THERE will be four prizes (First, $50; Second, $25; Third, $15; Fourth, $10) in each class in each Province. Thus you have only to compete with other farmers in your own Province, and not with those in all parts of Canada. This gives you the best possible chance to win a $50 prize.
IT COSTS NOTHING TO ENTER—There are absolutely no "strings" in this offer. There is no entry fee or set age to bother with. You cannot lose, because the improvements you make of concrete in competing for the prize will be more than worth their cost. We have a book, "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete," that will give you all the information about the use of concrete you can need. It will be sent to you free when you ask us for complete particulars of the Prize Contest. Ask for particulars to-day. Just say "Send me, free, your book and full particulars of the 1912 Prize Contest." on a post card and mail it to-day. Address: Publicity Manager,

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON VII.—NOV. 17, 1912.

The Great Question.—Mark 8: 27-31.

Commentary.—I. Peter's confession (vs. 27-30). 27. Went out—Jesus and his disciples went in a northeasterly direction from Bethsaida, where he had healed a blind man, along the course of the Jordan. He sought retirement for one of the most important crises of his earthly ministry. The solitude of this beautiful district whither Jesus now journeyed is illustrated by the fact that it is the only district of Palestine where a recent traveller found the "peculiar of the wilderness" (Psa. 102:6). Caesarea Philippi.—The ancient name was Paneas from the pagan deity Pan, but the city was rebuilt by Herod Philip, who named it Caesarea, in honor of Tiberius Caesar. It was called Caesarea Philippi, or Philip's Caesarea, to distinguish it from Caesarea on the Mediterranean. This was largely beyond the region of Jewish influence, and the farthest north that Jesus journeyed. Whom do men say that I am...

The question was asked to draw out the opinions of the disciples and to prepare them for the great subjects to be presented. 28. They answered—Various opinions were held yet all agreed that he was an extraordinary personage. Some said John the Baptist had returned to life. Some thought he was Elias (the Greek form for Elijah), who was to be the forerunner of the Messiah; and others said he was one of the prophets, that is, one of the old prophets risen again (Luke 9:19). It appears that the thought that Jesus was the Messiah did not prevail among the people. Whom say ye that I am—This was a natural question to ask at this point. Jesus would now have the disciples declare how they had been impressed by his teaching, his miracles and his personal influence. Peter answered—Peter was the spokesman of the disciples, not only on this occasion, but generally. His impulsive nature and his quickness of apprehension favored this practice. It is thought that he was the oldest of the twelve. Although Peter answered the question, his reply expressed the sentiment of them all. Thou art the Christ—Christ is the Greek word for "anointed," and Messiah, the Hebrew for the same idea. There was no hesitancy and no uncertainty. The declaration was positive and emphatic. Matthew adds the words, "The Son of the living God" (16:16). This notes the nature of Jesus in his relation to the Godhead. There is fully implied in this statement the fact of his divinity, as the former statement declares his office, as the Messiah. "The phrase, 'living God,' was common among the Jews, not merely to distinguish Jehovah from idols, but also to indicate his character as a personal Being who enters into sympathetic relations with the soul of man." Abbott. Peter's confession contains the very essence of Christian doctrine. 30. Tell no man—The time for his full manifestation had not yet come, and he was not willing to provoke the Jewish malice or the Roman envy, by permitting his disciples to announce him as the Savior of a lost world.

II. Christ's prophecy of his death and resurrection (vs. 31-33). 31. He began to teach them—The question asked and the answer given prepared the way for Jesus to declare plainly to his disciples the truth, that he must suffer and die, and be raised again in the fulfillment of his great mission. He had spoken figuratively of his death, and John the Baptist had called him the Lamb of God who would take away the sin of the world (John 1:29). Jesus had said, "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up" (John 2:19). To Nicodemus he had said that the Son of Man must be lifted up (John 3:14). He had told the disciples that "the bridegroom" would "be taken from them" (Matt. 9:15). He had said in the synagogue at Capernaum that "the flesh would be given for the life of the world" (John 6:51). Now in clear and unmistakable language he foretold his death. Suffer many things, etc.—The opposition would constantly increase and culminate in his death at the hands of the highest officials of the Jews. Rise again—Here is expressed a prophecy and a promise of his resurrection.

32. Openly—The word is used in the sense of plainly, not publicly. Peter took him—Aside. Began to rebuke him—Peter's impulsiveness again asserted itself. He could not reconcile the course Jesus had declared was being before him with the great fact of his Messiahship. 33. Get thee behind me, Satan—Jesus did not call Peter Satan, but indicated that Peter's rebuke emanated from Satan. Satan put the words in Peter's mouth, and Jesus used the same language that he did at the temptation in the wilderness. Thou mindest not (R. V.). Peter took into consideration not the deep import of Christ's mission, but had temporal advantage and glory in view. Peter's words showed very clearly that he had failed to grasp the nature and completeness of Christ's work as the world's Redeemer.

III. Conditions and rewards of discipleship (vs. 34-35). 34. Called the people, with his disciples—There were those who gathered in the wilderness that they might be near Jesus. They were apparently at some distance from him and his disciples when he called them to him. Whosoever will come after me—The word "will" is not the sign of the future tense here, but expresses determination. Whosoever wills to become my follower, is the thought. Deny himself—He must refrain from every wrong, and deny himself every lawful thing that would hinder his progress in following Jesus. Take up his cross—Be ready to suffer whatever it is necessary by virtue of being a disciple of Christ. 35. Whosoever will save his life—Life is determined to secure for himself ease and temporal advantages, shall lose it. Shall lose the higher good, the salvation of the soul, by trying to obtain earthly good. Shall lose his life—Is determined to sacrifice temporal good for eternal. Shall save it—Shall save his soul and shall secure all the earthly good that is necessary. 36. Gain the whole world, and lose his own soul—If it were possible for one to become owner of the material world, and in so doing lose his life, his loss would be great; but if he should lose his soul, the spiritual loss would be infinite. 37. In exchange for his soul. The soul forfeited can never be restored. 38. Ashamed of me and of my words—It is a deplorable fact that mortal man, full of sin and of little worth, should be so puffed up in his own sight as to be ashamed of the infinitely mighty and holy Christ. Adulterous generation—People untrue to God and estranged from him. Of him also the Son of man be ashamed. Jesus as Judge will forever disown him. Cometh in the glory of his Father—Christ will come in glorious majesty, and will reward every man according to his works. 1. Some of them that stand here. His disciples. The kingdom of God come with power—Of those men standing with the Lord, three, six days afterwards, beheld him transfigured; all, save one, were witnesses of his resurrection; one at least, John, survived the capture of Jerusalem and the destruction of the temple, and on each of these occasions "the kingdom of God" came "with power."—Macler. It came with power also on the day of Pentecost.

Questions—Where was Caesarea Philippi? What question did Jesus ask his apostles? Why did he ask it? What was their answer? Who did Peter say Jesus was? What prophecy did Jesus utter regarding himself? Why did Peter rebuke Jesus? Give the language of Jesus' rebuke to Peter. What are the conditions upon which one can be a follower of Jesus? What is the des-

SALT RHEUM CAME OUT ON HANDS

Formed Watery Pimples, Itchy and Had Horrible Burning Sensation. Lost Some of Finger Nails. Could Not Open Hands. Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

235 N. Ligar St., Toronto, Ontario.—"For seven years I have been troubled with salt-rheum. It came out on my hands and formed kind of watery pimples all over them which became itchy and it had a horrible burning sensation which caused me a good deal of pain. It came out on my hands in the fall and remained there till after spring. I might mention that I lost some of my fingers by the rheum. During this length of time I was utterly useless, as I could not open my hands. I tried several other patent medicines without a bit of relief. Some of my friends advised me to try Cuticura Remedios so I sent for samples and by using them there was the great improvement. They sent me a box of Cuticura Soap and bought one cake of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment; after using them I am glad to say I am completely cured. I had given up all hope of being cured. I can say to all those who have suffered as I have, not to lose courage but try Cuticura Remedios. A fair trial." (Signed) Miss Lillian Irwin, Oct. 13, 1911.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment have afforded the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp that torture, itch, burn, scale, and destroy sleep. Sold everywhere. Sample each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post card: Pottery Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 35D, Boston, U.S.A.

Field selection gives some knowledge of ancestry. Seed should not be selected from a stalk near barren stalks. There would be a strong chance that the barren stalk was one of its parents, and that it would tend to produce other barren stalks.

Moderately good ears from a thick stand are better seed than very fine looking ears from a thin stand where they have had an extra supply of sunshine, moisture, and plant foods. Moderately long ears produced higher yields than short ears, twenty-one times out of twenty-two in two years' tests.

The heavier ears usually give higher yields. This weight should accompany reasonable length, circumference and shelling percentage. Immaturity must throw it out, however. Crossed-dented ears produced a little more than rough-dented ears. Ears selected from the plant averaged over three bushels per acre more than wagon-shelled seed from the same field. The wagon-shelled ears were shorter in size and general appearance, but the mother plant and its surroundings were not definitely known.

More information may be obtained from Bulletin No. 212 of the Ohio Experiment Station, Wooster, Ohio. Although this corn was grown in Ohio, the results are worth our consideration. Differences in season should be kept in mind.—J. O. Benkin, Minnesota College of Agriculture, in Farmer's Advocate. GROWERS SHOULD CONTROL EVAPORATORS.

Canadian fruit growers find evaporation the most convenient method of disposing of inferior grades of fruit, but owing to the small orchards and the lack of co-operation, much valuable fruit for evaporating purposes is entirely wasted. In view of the large quantity of fruit lately blown off the trees, and the additional fruit that may be expected to fall during the usual season before the close of the packing season in October, it would appear to be in the interests of Canadian apple growers to organize the evaporating industry, not only to secure a product better graded and packed, but also to utilize a far larger quantity of the lower grades of fruit. This can be most conveniently done if the apple growers unite into co-operative associations, not only for selling purposes, but for the purpose of establishing evaporators. An evaporating plant is not an expensive plant, nor is the necessary skill for managing it beyond that which can be readily obtained. The only really useful evaporator to the fruit grower is the one controlled by the fruit grower. Privately-owned evaporators seldom prove of much value to the fruit grower, nor are they likely to promote the reputation of the country for good fruit.—September Fruit Crop Report.

HANDLING THE FATTENING ANIMAL. If the animal body is to be increased in weight, it is evident that food must be supplied in excess of the quantity needed for the mere renovation of wasted tissue, and for the production of body heat and work. When an excess of food is given a part of the albuminoids or flesh-forming materials, and the ash or bone-forming elements are generally converted into new tissue, whilst a part of the fat formers, carbohydrate and albuminoids is stored up in the form of fat. In the case of the juvenile animal taking exercise in the field, the increase appears as a general growth of the body; in the animal at rest the increase consists in the deposition of fat in the tissues. The ability of any animal to fatten depends on the breed and temperament. It is almost impossible to fatten a wild animal, whilst our domesticated species can be readily fattened. The causes in the animal intended breeding are strikingly illustrated in the pig. In the wild boar the intestines are six times as long as the body; in the domesticated breeds the intestines are four times as long. The length of the body. Different individuals have different appetites, powers of digestion and rates of fattening.

Rest and quietness are absolutely essential to profitable fattening; the production of work by the animal must be suspended if the putting on of flesh is to proceed with any degree of economy and activity. An animal at rest in a stall will increase in weight far more rapidly than an animal taking active exercise on a similar diet. A moderate degree of warmth is also favorable to the fattening process. If, however, the temperature becomes so high as to increase perspiration, a waste of food will occur. The temperature most favorable to animal increase is about 60 degrees Fahrenheit. Freedom from excitement is essential to rapid fattening, and thus the absence of strong light is desirable. Because but a part of the food in excess of the requirements of the body is converted into increase, liberal feeding is within certain limits the most economical. If a beef animal be brought to a certain weight, say one thousand pounds at one year old, the amount of food consumed will be far smaller than if two years are spent in attaining that one thousand pounds, because the food required for animal heat and work during the second year is saved by the one year feeding only.

In the case of a lean or growing animal, the quantity of food it will eat will increase during early stages of fattening, and the stomach and intestines become larger; in the full grown animal this increase in consumption soon ceases. When the animal becomes very fat the consumption of food falls off somewhat and the increase of weight at this point is somewhat diminished. As fattening advances the same amount of food will produce a steadily diminishing amount of increase. The increase during the latter stages of fattening is also slower and contains a larger proportion of fat than in the earlier stages of the process. These changes in the rate of consumption and increase are stronger in the pig than in other animals.

In fattening animals to the best advantage it is very evident that the farmer ought to have as his object the supplying to the animal of the largest amount of food it can profitably make use of. So long as bulky foods such as hay, straw and roots are used the animal may safely be given all it will eat. The limits of profitable use must, however, be considered in the matter of grains and other concentrates. Information on the value of the different feeds and the amount of different elements needed in the diet of any of the breeds of live stock will be available on application to the editorial department of this journal.—Canadian Farmer.

FIELD SELECTION OF SEED CORN. The increased yield of shelled corn per acre is the purpose of field selection. Strong germination is one of the incidentals that can be taken care of later by a germination test. Knowledge of ancestry is almost as desirable for seed corn as for dairy animals.

POISONED IN LABORATORY.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., despatch: Poisoned by powerful acids with which he was experimenting to-day, Edward C. He was married in September, and came here from Paris, France.

INFLUX OF SETTLERS.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Of 133,710 people who came to Canada last year from the United States 19,384 were returning Canadians. Of the total 69 per cent. were naturalized Americans and 31 per cent. had never taken out their citizenship papers. Fully 150,000 are expected this year.

5 Years' Rheumatism Really Cured!

Your Case Isn't Likely to be Worse, and Can be Cured Quickly by Nerviline.

"After being an enthusiastic user of Nerviline for years, I feel it my duty to tell you personally what your wonderful preparation has done for me. I continued to use Nerviline and was derided by many physicians, but derived only slight benefit. A friend insisted on my using Nerviline and to my surprise a vigorous rubbing of this powerful liniment eased the pain and reduced the stiffness in my joints. I continued to use Nerviline and was permanently cured. I am now perfectly well and for three years have had no rheumatism at all. I know many families where no other medicine but Nerviline is kept. It is so useful in minor ailments like earache, toothache, neuralgia, coughs, colic, lumbago and sciatica. I call Nerviline my 'Life Guard' and urge all to try its merits. Chapped Hands AND Cold Sores

Are your hands chapped, cracked or sore? Have you "cold cracks" which open and bleed when the skin is drawn tight? Have you a cold sore, frost bite, chilblains, or a "raw" place, which at times makes it agony for you to go about your household duties? If so, Zam-Buk will give you relief, and will heal the frost-damaged skin. A ointment the sore places at night, Zam-Buk's rich healing essences will sink into the wounds, end the smarting, and will heal quickly. Mrs. Yellen, of Portland, says: "My hands were so sore and cracked that I was agony to put them near water. When I did so they would smart and burn as if I had scalded them. I secured a tin of Zam-Buk to get relief from anything I put on them until I tried Zam-Buk, and it succeeded when all else had failed. It closed the big cracks, gave me ease, soothed the inflammation, and in a very short time healed my hands."

Winsome Winnie

"Oh, no, I did not," answered Stephen Tredennick, smiling. "I came down after you. I don't know your father, but I know you; you must introduce me when we go up, if you please."

He seated himself on a stone beside her, half amused and half admiring the shy flush on Winnie's demure little face, the evident fluttered girlish embarrassment—poor Winnie was expecting the interruption of Sarah McKilda and Caroline, with their pinafores full of wet seaweed and live crabs, every moment struggling with a certain gentle, old-fashioned, sweet little womanliness that seemed habitual to her, as she carefully spread her old shawl and placed thereon the baby that was so alarmingly quiet, gravely stooping to give her a soothing pat, or supply her with playthings in the shape of colored pebbles and shells, while she conversed with Captain Tredennick, delighting him with her girlish simplicity of intelligence, without a fear or an arrierepensée that might have disturbed the communications of a worldly-wise woman.

Gravely and unaffectedly, in her ignorance of the sneered-at existence of him—stockinging, she gave him certain learned statements and statistics—quite correctly too—concerning some of the things which surrounded her daily life—the depth of water in the offing, the height of the cliffs and their gigantic formation, the force and prevalence of the winds, and the whereabouts of sunken reefs and rocks and dangerous bars.

"I hear my father and the men talking, you know," she explained, "and then I remember things very well."

Earnestly, in her glowing enthusiasm and pleasure at having found one whose thoughts were responsive to her own, and in her innocence of false sentimentality, the little girl in the shabby blue gingham dress talked to Captain Tredennick, with her dark-grey eyes sparkling, the color depending on her thin, pale cheek, and her nervous slender fingers clasping and unclasping in eager impulsiveness.

She spoke as she felt, and Stephen Tredennick listened with a deepening interest—more for the speaker than her words—while Winnie Caerlyon talked to him of the beauty of the sea, of the glories of silvery moon risings across the dark, rippling ocean breast, of the more solemn glories of the sleeping dawn, lying in the rosy flush of the brightening east; of summer days, when the waters lay spread out to the purple horizon, blue, hazy, blinding, dazzling mirror of pellucid blue, darkened here and there into great shadowed patches of olive green from some fish shoal gliding beneath the untroubled surface, of dark winter days, when the sea was a dreary leaden hue, expanded all flecked with foam crests and atomisms of froth, as the wild waves rushed on like shrieking steeds to battle, and crashed with all their artillery of force and sound against the jagged black rocks of Tregarten reef, and the great dark precipitous face of Tregarten Head, scarcely a mile beyond them, and rearing itself in profile against the blue sky.

Nothing had escaped the artistic perception of those glowing, passionate dark grey eyes beneath the faded black straw hat, with such a pitiful scrap of velvet trimming around its rusty crown. Amber sunshine gleaming through the translucent green of the great unpaired billows, changed over lights on the shimmering waves, glittering phosphorescent trails and sparkles in dark sultry summer midnights, white and crimson and purple lengths of trailing seaweeds, and snowy shells tangled in emerald tresses of ocean grass—she knew them all.

"You ought to have been a mermaid, Miss Caerlyon," Stephen Tredennick said, with a smile in his eyes; "you would have loved your ocean so dearly. Perhaps you are a mermaid—I am half doubtful about it. Perhaps you will begin a siren song presently, and I shall be obliged to follow, under the spell of your voice, until I sink down in the deep green water out there, and never be seen any more!"

But all at once, as he spoke, the earnest little enthusiast with the artist eyes and the poetic words changed into a shy timid little girl in a shabby frock. Winnie remembered the thinness and brownness of her impulsive nervous hands, and folded them closely to try to hide them from Captain Tredennick's keen blue grey smiling eyes.

"There would be no fear of that," she said, rather coldly and constrainedly. "You would not come, sir."

"But I should, though," he persisted, the smile deepening, and a curious sensation coming over him of his heart quivering in its beatings, as he noticed that the flush on Winnie's pure little face grew swiftly crimson beneath his gaze.

The March afternoon was in all its brightness when they met—the March sunlight was shining clear and strong from the west when they rose to part. Not much more than an hour had they might have faded from her memory as time passed on; but thus it was appointed. The goblet of life is held to each lip; we must each drink as it passes. Deeply or slightly, all must drink of that bitter cup—filled with waters that upstart. When the deep fountains of the heart, by strong convulsions rent apart, are running all to waste.

For "the who has learned to know"—the depth and darkness of the cup of life's sorrow—he has not learned to live."

Stephen Tredennick did not know—how should he? Had he known—could he have seen the end from the beginning—he, the brave, tender-hearted sailor, the kind, wise, generous man, the honest, chivalrous gentleman, would have thought it as right and kind and wise in him to take innocent, lonely, friendless young Winnie Caerlyon in his arms, and lay her under the cold sea in a deep ocean grave, as to follow the pleasant impulse towards her society on this sunlit March afternoon, to seek her presence down on the quiet beach by the murmuring waves, to talk wistfully, kindly, tenderly to her in his deep pity and warm liking, to look into the pure depths of her passionate eyes, to softly touch her little thin work-worn hand, and smile at the tremulous flushes of her ingenious emotional face. He was not selfish—kind, generous Stephen Tredennick—whom his sailors loved as a commander who considered his men's welfare even prior to his own comfort; for the probable cost of what was to him a rare gratification, a hitherto unexperienced enjoyment, as he thought afterwards, laughing at himself for the romantic folly of the thought—

"Once as I told in glee
 Tales of the stormy sea,
 So eyes did gaze on me,
 Burning, yet tender."

A pleasure, a gratification, perhaps, something more it was to him, who would not willingly have injured one hair of the fair young head. But, ignorantly—perhaps thoughtlessly—had he fallen in a shadow of darkness, and his hand had made rough with cruel roughness the lonely path her weary feet should so patiently tread.

CHAPTER VI.

"If you will stop and take a cup of tea with us, Captain Tredennick, we shall be very happy to have your company, sir."

Lieutenant Caerlyon proffered the invitation himself, after sundry appealing glances and vain waiting for the lady of the house to perform the ceremony.

But Mrs. Elizabeth Anne Caerlyon, with the expeditious good-breeding she displayed whenever she wished to punish her luckless husband—who, unfortunately for himself, happened to be a gentleman by birth and profession—sat at the fire, dividing her attention between some woolen socks which she flannel peddled on the fender, and a baby's flannel petticoat which she was making, ignoring guest and host alike after the first brief introduction, and feigning not to hear or notice her husband's words, although her high-colored, sharp-featured, shrewishly handsome face took a deeper tinge from vexation.

Winnie listened, whilst her father spoke, and thought while smiling, but may and despair of that evening guest of which Captain Tredennick was invited to partake of the seven children clamorous for bread and butter—of Tommy's inveterate habit of choking himself with his tea, and having to be led from the table in a paroxysm of gasps, and cries, and sobs, and tears of Caroline's tendency to strain her mouth to a painful state of distension with buttered barley-seed, of the coarse table-cloth, the cheap, ill-flavored tea, and her step-mother's utter neglect of all the etiquette of a hostess.

"Oh, I know," responded Winnie, calmly and smiling, "besides, I am a stranger, and I do not expect you to care for tea just at your dinner-hour."

Mrs. Caerlyon turned sharply around, and looking at the smiling girl, she said, "You are a stranger, and I do not expect you to care for tea just at your dinner-hour."

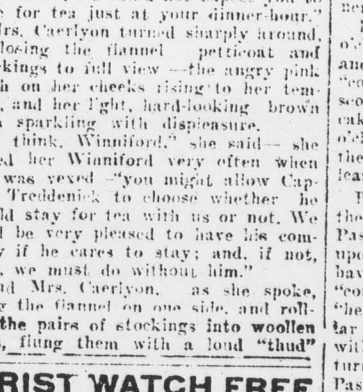

"I think, Winnie," she said, "she called her Winnie very often when she was young. You might ask Captain Tredennick to choose whether he would stay for tea with us or not. We shall be very pleased to have his company if he comes to stay; and, if not, why we must do without him."

And Mrs. Caerlyon, as she spoke, flung the flannel on one side, and rolling the pairs of stockings into woollen balls, flung them with a loud "thud"

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble

There are some causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these are kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom, the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well-known to the medical profession of Canada, as well as to thousands of sufferers from the disease named above.

Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stones by SANOL after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she she sent to us a large number of people to be rallied by a similar complaint. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to, whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period, and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the Sanol Manufacturing Company of Canada, Ltd., 977 Main Street Winnipeg. For sale by most leading druggists, or direct from the manufacturers at $1.50 per bottle.

SANOL IS SAFE AND SURE

one after the other into a basket, by way of emphasizing her final clause.

"Not this evening, thank you, Mrs. Caerlyon," said Captain Tredennick, pleasantly. "I may come in some other afternoon, when I have given Madam notice that she is not to expect me home at six."

Lieutenant Caerlyon responded—

"Very well, Captain Tredennick—we shall all be most happy to see you, I am sure."

Mrs. Caerlyon said nothing, but patted the baby's head, if possible, arching her light eyebrows, and pursing her mouth with an air of what she considered to be cold hauteur.

"You had better see after the kettle, Winnie, and cut the bread-and-butter for the children; the maid can't be back from Thomas' yet this half-hour."

She started at length in an elaborate manner, ignoring Captain Tredennick's presence, and giving him at the same time a broad hint to hasten his departure.

"Good-evening, Mrs. Caerlyon," he said with a slight bow.

"Oh," she cried, turning round from the cupboard—"oh, good evening, Captain Tredennick."

She was ignorant enough, in spite of her cold hauteur, to expect that her strange male visitor would offer her, his lady, his hand, to be shaken in farewell, after the custom of Mr. Thomas Pascoe, Mr. John Williams, Mr. Edward Johns, and the other gentlemen of her previous acquaintance. The slight bow and cold smile—very slight, very brief—of etiquette, were to Mrs. Caerlyon nothing less than a flagrant insult.

"And John Caerlyon to stand by and see him slighted in her own house in that manner! Wait, until she talked to him! Bringing his grand, stuck-up visitors in there and inviting them to tea; and Miss Winnie, with her airs and graces, and her fine table before her fine Madam Vivian's neglect! It was nothing from morning till night that that gab-about of a maid, but Madam Vivian, and Madam Vivian's style and splendor. Never mind, but she would put an end to that some day! Making the girl as empty-headed and idle and stuck-up as she could be!"

The narrow-minded woman's petty jealousy against her step-daughter's strivings and longings after some of the beauty and grace of existence had not half exhausted itself, as she stood there, angrily muttering her ire against "stuck-up" people into the sugar-jar and tea-tray in the cupboard, while Captain Tredennick and her husband stood talking on the doorstep outside, when she heard a familiar voice greeting them, a stamp and rattle of boots on the door-mat, and "Hi! evening, Lezabeth!" announced Mr. Thomas Pascoe's hungry young man.

He was apt to be hungry after his one o'clock dinner of "oasty" or pork pie, and rebuffed with an exceeding appetite, "Lezabeth!" had buttered barley-seed, or sweet saffron cake, at six o'clock when the work-lad came, at eight o'clock when the work-lad came, and at least was over for the night.

Be it understood, however, amongst the honorable ones of the earth that Mr. Pascoe had no intention of meanly living upon his cousin's substance as he would have expressed it, of thus devouring "Lezabeth's" barley-seed, and "heavy cake," and blabbing the news of her fluid which she designated "tea," without intending to make her some return. Away with such a base idea. Mr. Pascoe would have indignantly scoured it. His "cousin Lezabeth" understood him and he understood her, and they had long since parted pleasantly and conveniently between them.

In returning thanks for past favors he had informed "cousin Lezabeth" of his generous resolve for the future, possibly, continuing the tradesman's simile, hoping to merit a continuance of the same—"of taking off her hands, out of the overcrowded home, and away from the charges on the overcrowded income, too burdened two months to be fed, two bodies to be clothed, and housed at his expense and not hers, from the moment he took possession of them. Surely no wonder that "cousin Lezabeth," with this hope and incentive to generosity before her, buttered for Mr. Thomas Pascoe the best and hottest barley-seed on the dish, did not more than half fill his cup with water when she poured out tea, and cut such thick wedges of "heavy cake" for his refreshment.

POULTRY NOTES

THERE'S MONEY IN POULTRY.

This is the time of year when many will start raising poultry. Probably no live stock has the following of poultry. Few have not had, at some time in life, hen fever, and wished to possess a few chickens—many from purely a utility standpoint, wishing to enjoy fresh eggs and meat, and others as fanciers who enjoyed looking at the beautiful. The majority many have failed. Others have profited by their early mistakes and made a success, whether for eggs and meat, or the fancier, or the combination of all, which is now possible by proper breeding. So many have failed just at the point of success, due to discouragement, lack of funds and many other conditions. A large percentage is avoidable, but known.

To the old-time raiser of poultry as he looks at the present conditions and advantages, and harks back ten or more years at the crude methods then used, and yet with a fair measure of success, it is surprising to hear of many failures to make good in these enlightened days, with the present advanced knowledge of poultry raising. The beginner to-day has the advantage of the past. Breeders who have made good are to-day writing of their methods. The experiment stations are solving problems and handing them out free to the poultry public. The poultry journals and the daily press have engaged men who are experts in their line. No industry obtains the free advice from experts in their line that the poultry raiser of to-day enjoys. No industry is getting more publicity.

By no means have the problems of poultry been solved. In fact, from what is to come, we stand as did the poultry raiser of 10 or 15 years ago. So great has been the improvements in poultry culture over the past, however, that the beginner of to-day has a greater chance to succeed. For instance, the poultry house construction has really provided a healthy place for fowls to live in, with their open-front ventilation. This is the first essential in successful poultry, for without health, feed or breeding would be of little use. It is known that fowls should be allowed at least three square feet floor space—more is better, especially for the beginner. In feeding the successful breeder and the experimenter stations give the best results, based on experience as shown by their tests.

Why, then, the failures? Why the failures in any line of business, and you have the answer in a measure. Human nature is the same all over. A great many we know start out after a fixed pet theory in poultry and have a little success, but when they try to do it as a rule, so different from what they are generally thrown after riding it a while. Some recover and come back to earth again, and succeed, and others do not.

The first essential in poultry for profit is common sense. The second, a willingness to work, and the third, grit in the face of discouragement. And are they not the qualifications of any line of business? Then, if the poultry beginner is willing to work, study the conditions, obtain good advice, purchase the best stock that he can afford, house, no matter how small, and feed well, and that within himself, his success or failure. Poultry will, and is, making money for thousands, but they ride no pet theories. They started first in a practical way, and each year gained experience.

Avoid spending too much money the first year. Start well, but slow. Build practical poultry houses. Any old thing will not do, and is costly in the long run. Avoid cheap stock, for sooner or later if one stays in the business they will purchase better stock. It costs no more to feed good stock and the results are better.

Again, after having been in the business several years, one can dispose of the surplus brooders at a fair price, and by advertising sell hatching eggs and day-old chicks. But the stock must be good to obtain a fair price and satisfy the purchaser. There is no good reason why anyone should fail in making poultry pay, if properly managed.

One quickly hears of failures. They are caused in many instances from the following: Not so with the success in all cases. The failure has been due to lack of management. Start now and carefully plan for the coming season. If the poultry house is completed by the fowls now and when they are cheapest. Order the incubator and brooder so that it may be ready without delay when you wish to place the eggs in it. It is not too early to place your order for hatching eggs or day-old chicks. With the brooder, it is first come, first served, and there promises to be a large business done this year in day-old chicks and hatching eggs. Plan ahead for a good start at the proper time. It means much toward a successful poultry season.

GROWING GIRLS AND ALL WOMEN

Should Keep Their Blood Supply Rich, Red and Pure.

On every hand you see women and growing girls in the deadly clutches of anemia. Slowly but surely a pallor as of death, settles on their cheeks; their eyes grow dull; their appetite fickle; their steps languid. Daily they are being robbed of all vitality and brightness. The trouble, if neglected, becomes more acute until the signs of early consumption become apparent. What women and young girls in this condition need is new, rich, red blood, and there is no other medicine can do the work of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In making this new, good blood, these Pills make girls and women well and bring back the charm and brightness of perfect, regular health. Here is a bit of proof. Miss Lilla O'Carroll, Norwood, Ont., says: "About two years ago my health began to fail. I was weak, run down and had no ambition for anything. I had frequent headaches, would be completely tired out after the least exertion, and had little or no appetite. A doctor who was giving me medicine finally told me he feared I was going into consumption, which, of course, made me very much downhearted. As the medicine I was taking was not doing me any good, I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and shall ever feel grateful that I did so. My story may be summed up in the words 'nine boxes of the Pills fully restored my health—perhaps saved my life, and I am now as strong and healthy as any girl.'"

Every anemic sufferer can obtain equally good results through a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GOOD FOR ALL BABIES

Baby's Own Tablets are good for all babies. They are good for the new-born babe or the growing child—the babe who suffers from constipation or one whose feeding is difficult or who has indigestion, colic, worms or any of the other baby ailments. The Tablets banish all these troubles. They are perfectly safe; being guaranteed by a Government analyst to contain no opiates or harmful drugs. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HARVESTING AND STORING POTATOES.

I die potatoes when the tubers are thoroughly ripe—about October 15th—this year. Every specimen of the tubers I have been left a short time on the ground to dry. I sort out the small potatoes and bag up those which are fit for seed and put the rest in a sack bag with airtight mouth to the south is chosen for the pits. This is an ideal place, being away from the wind and the cold. The pits are four feet wide by three feet deep. A space of six inches is allowed on top with a layer of straw. The potatoes are placed in rows across the pit six feet apart being through a covering of poles and straw. These are covered with six inches of straw, and a second covering of straw is placed over the top. A space is left between each row of the potatoes so that they may be turned when they are needed for the winter. The potatoes are covered with a layer of straw, and a second covering of straw is placed over the top. A space is left between each row of the potatoes so that they may be turned when they are needed for the winter.
