War Shock Cures.
MODERN MIRACLES.
WAR SHOCK; PSYCHOLOGY AND TREATMENT. By M. D. Eder, B. Sc. Lond., M. R. C. S., L. R. C. P. Lond.

This book of deep interest and value to the public whose sons and brothers and husbands are suffering from war shock, is the record of the experiences gained by the writer, Dr. Eder, in treating the victims of shell shock from the Gallipoli campaign in Malta, where he had charge of the department for the treatment of nerve cases.

Although intended for the medical profession, the book is written with so much simplicity and clearness, and with so entire an absence of the medical and scientific formulae that make most medical books unintelligible to the lay person, that it is perfectly comprehensible to anyone with intelligence, and it must come as a gospel of hope and encouragement to the many persons having those war and dear to them suffering from dumbness, deafness, paralysis, and tremblings of whom not a few have been already labeled as incurable.

They will learn after carefully studying these pages that the majority of men suffering in this way can be cured by a treatment which, at one time regarded as still so regarded in certain quarters as unconventional and unorthodox, is capable under legitimate conditions and in the hands of properly qualified men of character, of achieving this cure quickly and painlessly, and thus relieving suffering of the most painful and distressing kind for which the ordinary medical treatment entirely fails.

The lay person, then, to whom "treatment by suggestion" has become associated with doubtful practices, will feel unreserved confidence in what he reads when he learns that Dr. Eder, a properly qualified doctor, who has given years to the study of this subject, carried out his treatment in the presence of his medical colleagues, with the approval and interest of his commanding officer, Lieutenant Colonel Scanlan and his confidants, Colonel Purves Stewart and Surgeon-General Whitehead, and that the public are greatly indebted.

It is strenuously insisted that the sufferer from war shock must be regarded as a feeble person of a degenerate and, of course, not a "struck-shanker." On the contrary, the disease is likely to attack the bravest and most conscientious.

CASE OF AN IRISH V. C.
Thus one of the patients was recommended for the V. C. in the very fight that brought him with a paralyzed hand to the doctor. He was a young Irishman who was in a trench with a few men which was attacked by 200 Turks. He leapt out of the trench and engaged in a hand-to-hand fight, during which he received fifteen bayonet wounds, fortunately none of them dangerous. Fourteen of the wounds were on the right side of the body, the most exposed part, because he was a left-handed man. After the wounds were all healed he was found by Colonel Purves Stewart, the distinguished nerve specialist, to be suffering from paralysis of the right hand; he had no feeling on the right half of the body and could not feel when a pin was pricked into him. These symptoms were proved to have no connection with the wounds and to have no physical cause at all.

He was placed under Dr. Eder, who gives the following explanation of the condition:
"The hand was paralyzed in the exact position in which it was held during the glorious beyond fight. There was an inner self, 'the unconscious mind,' which wanted to continue the good fight and symbolized this desire in the bent hand. The absence of sensation on the exposed part of the body is made equally intelligible. He was a highly strung, sensitive young Irishman. Had he felt pain on the battlefield he would either have had to give up the fight or let go his rifle and be killed. The motive was the same as Nelson's conscious motive in putting up his telescope to his blind eye at the battle of the Sound. Nelson wanted to go on fighting. So did this soldier; he was not to be put off by feeling pain from never so many wounds; he would not allow himself to feel pain. The patient was hypnotized, and on suggesting to him that the fight was over and he could let go his rifle, his hand immediately relaxed. The normal feeling in the skin was restored at the same time."

Another striking case was that of an Australian who had been blind for six weeks in the right eye. He had been seen by Colonel Stewart and the eye specialist, who agreed there was nothing the matter with the eye itself. This patient was sniping when an enemy bullet knocked a piece off the stock of his rifle, but he continued at his post. A little later he could not see the rifle "sights" and in a few hours later he was quite blind. He was a lad of great courage with the elder's instinct strongly developed; he did not give up his post despite the danger; but when his eye went blind he was able without loss of self-respect to retire. By "suggestion" sight was regained in a few minutes.

A similar striking result is given of a soldier dumb and paralyzed on one side of the body. Treatment restored speech and the next day he was walking about.

HOW IT IS DONE.
The rule was for the patients to be examined by the physician, who determined that there was no physical cause for the illness. Dr. Eder then made a close psychological investigation. He was explained to the patient that he was suffering from a mental trouble; he was encouraged to talk freely about himself and his illness. This enabled the doctor to get the clue he was seeking for and ultimately to make the appropriate suggestion, usually under hypnosis, which has often to be repeated till the desired result was obtained and the patient had regained control.

If the case is neglected, more prolonged treatment is often necessary. One more case to raise the spirits of those similarly affected. A clerk suffering from shell shock remained in hospital and camp for nearly ten months without any improvement. He was then discharged from the Army with a gratuity of £20. The poor fellow, now, believing himself incurable and that he would never get well, became more and more dependent, and finally got so bad that he could not read or write a few lines or add a couple of figures. He was being supported by relatives. A few weeks' treatment restored him to the normal and put him in a position to earn a livelihood.

Dr. Eder claims that the larger number of these cases can be cured in an extraordinarily short time. He asks that the treatment should be carried out as soon as possible before a vicious habit is set up, and that no nerve case should be discharged from the Army till cured. Those who have seen the pitiable discharged wrecks, deaf, dumb, blind, and paralyzed, and even more those who have to stand by helplessly and see the agony and despair that overtakes their menfolk, will be glad to know that every day something new will see in this treatment a promise of new and most blessed hope.

The writer makes it clear that modern medical science is not helpless in the presence of this often terrible suffering. And one cannot close the book without feeling that such treatment ought to be available to the numerous men now going from doctor to doctor without result, and finally sinking into all the miseries of a breakdown of nerves and functions that by a stroke of unusual luck is sometimes thrown off or healed by time, but is more likely to land the unhappy victim in a condition of helpless melancholia.

Got Rid of Bronchitis.
Mr. W. H. Walker, Calgary, Alta., writes: "I am pleased to say that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Limes and Turpentine has done much good to myself, wife and children. My eldest girl, 7 years, had bronchitis and the doctor who attended her did not seem to do much good. We got Chase's Syrup of Limes and Turpentine for her and she soon got well. We always keep this medicine in the house now ready for use and find it soon cures coughs and colds."

HOW MRS. BEAN MET THE CRISIS
Carried Safely Through Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Nashville, Tenn.—"When I was going through the Change of Life I had a tumor as large as a child's head. The doctor said it was three years coming and gave me medicine for it until I was called away from the city for some time. Of course I could not go to him then, so my sister-in-law told me that she thought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure it. It helped both the Change of Life and the tumor and when I got home I did not need the doctor. I took the Pinkham remedies until the tumor was gone, the doctor said, and I have not felt it since. I tell every one how I was cured. If this letter will help other women you are welcome to use it."
—Mrs. E. H. BEAN, 825 Joseph Avenue, Nashville, Tenn.

Restoring a Razor
"Oh, George, before you get your razor I must tell you that I— I borrowed it yesterday."
"What, again!"
"Yes, I had to do some shooing. But it's just as good as ever. You'll never notice the difference. I sharpened it on the stove pipe."

"There," says the good woman as the transfer man drives off with her trunk, "Now I'll know whether or not the baggage men are really so rough with things as they are said to be."
"How will you know?" asked her friend.
"I put an egg here and there among my clothes."

Military Service Bill.
The Toronto Globe speaks for those who do not approve of the attitude of Sir Wilfrid Laurier upon the Military Service Bill:

The measure now goes to the Senate, freighted with the hopes of all Canadians who believe that it offers the only way of escape from repudiation of Canada's pledges to the great cause. Men in the trenches who have been fighting for nearly three years are unable to get a furlough or even a proper rest behind the lines, because Canada has refused to maintain the reserves in England. Every Canadian should feel the reproach like a knife-thrust. Every public man should realize his special responsibility and take his political life in his hands, if need be. No matter how sincere his motives may be, people will follow a man who shows the courage of leadership. They will not follow a man who merely trails after what he believes to be the prevailing sentiment in the narrow hearts of his own constituency. A statesman will first fix his course, and will then endeavor to persuade his fellow-countrymen to travel in the same direction.

That is as trenchant a denunciation of Sir Wilfrid's attitude as could be expressed. He is wounded in the house of his own friends. Wounded! Yes, because lacking breadth of vision to encompass Canada, the Empire, and the supreme cause, his eyes have been fixed alone upon parish politics and the little, selfish interests pertaining thereto.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speech on the third reading of the Military Service Bill was not lacking in shrewdness. It was even astute. It was the utterance of the politician, of one who tried to catch every floating vote. It is a reproach against the leader of a great political party. He had no need to quibble. The issue transcended mere party politics. The very existence of Canada is at stake and petty quibbling should be relegated to the back-ground. We are either for or against the prosecution of the war.

Sir Wilfrid asserts that Canada should continue in the war to the end, but that his tongue tells, his action belie. Thank kind Providence

A strong demand is being made on the government for the immediate enforcement of the Military Service Act. The selection of 100,000 men would relieve the anxiety of others in the classes called and not required. It is also believed that a demonstration of the scope and fairness of the measure would dissipate much of the opposition to the measure. There is also the feeling among conscriptionists that these troops will be needed at the front long before being fit for service, even if immediately mobilized. They cannot be sent forward before January so that a general election must intervene between mobilization and despatch overseas.

When the War is Going to End.
Absolute knowledge have I none. But my aunt's washerwoman's son heard a policeman on his beat say to a laborer on the street that he had a letter just last week written in the finest Greek from a Chinese Coolie in Timbuctoo who said the niggers in Cuba knew of a colored man in a Texas town who got it straight from a circus clown.

That a man in the Klondike heard the news from a gang of South American Jews about somebody in Borneo who heard of a man who claimed to know of a well society dame whose mother-in-law will undertake to prove that her seventh husband's sister's niece has stated in a printed piece that she has a son who has a friend who knows when the war is going to end.

A certain rich man did not approve of foreign missions. One Sunday at church when the collection was being taken up, the collector approached the millionaire and held out the collection plate. The millionaire shook his head. "I never give to missions," he whispered. "Then take something off the plate, sir," whispered the collector. "The money is for the heathen."

Hang the Spies
Once the United States gets started in a certain direction it goes the whole way with a thoroughness that is most refreshing in this country at any rate, where there is apt to be too much consideration given to the prejudices of cliques and sections.

National treachery has engaged the consideration of Champ Clark, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Washington, and this is what that staunch old Democrat has to say about it:

Speaker Champ Clark put his finger on one weakness in the national situation when he recommends that spies be hanged or shot as soon as they are detected. Jail sentences will not strike terror in the hearts of the agents of the German government. If a few of them are executed there will be a speedier end to the damage from that source.

In many villages and small towns in the interior of Spain no one knows how to read or write. There are in Spain thirty thousand rural villages without schools of any kind, and many thousands which can only be reached by a bridge path, these being no high roads or railway communication of any kind. Attendance at school is voluntary, not obligatory. Seventy-six per cent of the children in Spain are illiterate.

Piles

PILES, or hemorrhoids, are the cause of keen distress to thousands who do not yet know Dr. Chase's Ointment.

There are three kinds of piles—itching, bleeding and protruding. The itching, burning sensations usually increase at night, and the misery which many people endure is beyond description. The bleeding is sometimes so profuse as to cause death. Protruding piles are most dreaded because it is commonly believed that a surgical operation is the only means of cure.

If you will read the letters quoted in the daily press there will be little chance for scepticism as to the certainty of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for every form of piles. Or, better still, ask your friends about it, for Dr. Chase's Ointment is recognized among doctors and druggists as well as by the public generally as the only real cure for this wretched disease.

Our Ottawa Letter.

Ottawa, Aug. 3rd, 1917.—Some progress is being made with the work of Parliament. The Military Service Bill is now before the Senate and there is a probability that it will pass second reading Saturday.

The Government's Income Tax Bill is going through the House of Commons with fair rapidity. The principle meets with general approval. There will, no doubt, be some amendments. There is a small gang in the House that nothing satisfies.

The great move of the government in regard to the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways is, next to the war, one of the most important events in Canada since 1867.

The C. N. R. and G. T. Pacific were cradled by the Laurier Government. Both companies were drifting on the rocks of financial disaster.

This means a great step forward in the nationalization of the railways of Canada. It is big business by the government of Sir Robert Borden which the people will commend.

The political air is not so full of rumors just now as it was a while ago. There seems to be a settling down to the belief that some day, in the near future, Sir Robert Borden will announce the formation of a union government and that after that the elections will come.

Quebec Domination?

The Dominion of Canada was formed by a union of pre-existing provinces or states. The German Empire was formed by a union of pre-existing states. One organized a few years earlier than the other. Among other differences between the two the most noted is that, whereas no Canadian province is above another, the kingdom of Prussia is the dominant state in Germany.

to this? Because Quebec forbids, because Quebec makes a scene, because Sir Wilfrid Laurier throws off the mask of broad Canadianism and British connection, is our army of gallant Canadians to be left unsupported? Is Canada a self-governing country or a Quebec governed country? The supreme direction of the Military and political affairs of the German Empire is vested in the King of Prussia.

Save and Produce.

We have got to save and produce. On every side, from every land, we hear the same cry of warning, "We have got to save and produce if we are to win the war."

David Lloyd George in a recent statement to the press said that Great Britain and her colonies had over seven million men in the army and navy, more than the total population of the entire Dominion. In addition, there are the millions of France, the millions of Italy, the millions of Russia and the millions contributed by the smaller countries, all fighting for us under the banner of the Allies and civilization.

The human mind is too small to grasp the enormity of the demands of this huge army in food, clothing, munitions and all other necessities to maintain a fighting force in the field at the very highest pitch of efficiency. It means an expenditure of scores of millions of dollars every day. And the war has been lasting a great many days.

These men were producers three years ago and now they are only consumers. With twelve millions less producers and just as many consumers as there were before the war, the people at home have got to produce more than ever before. Production has got to be speeded up to an enormous extent and anything that puts the brakes on that speeding up prolongs the war, works to the advantage of the Hun and is traitorous to a degree.

Save and produce then is the slogan. First, as to saving, he saves most who buys at home. It may look like saving to buy on the attractive offers of a catalogue; but it is a penny wise and pound foolish policy. It means the going out of dollars from your town which you will never see again. You get a second chance at the dollar that you spend at home. Buy at home for it is the greatest saving in the end.

Second, as to production. Production, as you know, has got to be increased and increased and increased. It is vital. And, as you know, production depends on three things, land, labor and capital. We have got the land in abundance in Nova Scotia. We don't have to worry about that. But we have lost thousands of our best young men who have donned that khaki in freedom's cause and marched away to the troopships.

We all have got to work harder and bend all our energies to increase production. And that brings us to the third factor in production—capital. We must have money, all the money we can lay our hands on. And how are we going to get it?

We have got to learn the lesson that if we send our money away to buy goods we have just that much less for productive purposes in our own province. You may say that the money will be used in the other province to which we send our money. True it may be and then it may not be. In any case, we are not doing our duty. Our duty is to keep our money at home so that we may speed up our factories and take our place in the fight for freedom.

Buy at home, then.

Buy at home so as to keep our money at home that we may use for speeding up production. Buy from your home town merchants. Your province needs the money.

When a Child Led Them.

The terrific battle in progress for a small French village stopped suddenly. Not a rifle was fired, and the unexpected, uncanny stillness was like that which precedes an attack by infantry—yet neither side left their trenches. The Prussian cavalry officer who was in command of the section lifted his head above the dugout to find the cause of the peculiar silence, and, when he had found it, he could not believe his eyes.

The sun had risen and the fog of the early morning had disappeared. Between the trenches stretched a meadow, and there—it was no delusion—was a fire of both sides, crawling about on hands and knees was a little baby. It seemed perfectly happy, chucking at the long rows of steel helmets cautiously raised above the trench parapets by the amazed soldiers. What follows is told by the Prussian officer, Edgar von Schmidt-Pauli:

"Before my weary brain can summon up any convincing reasons that child got there—whether some poor mother lost it in the panic due to the battle of the night before—a German soldier jumps out of the trench and runs to where the child is crawling out.

"Absolute stillness prevails in the trenches, and only to our right from which this extraordinary sight is hidden by a clump of trees is the sound of gunfire heard.

"And this spot, which all through the night had been a veritable inferno of shot and shell is now like some peaceful island or a cool, friendly oasis in a burning desert.

"Over there, in the enemy's trenches, we can see the helmets of the Frenchmen as they peer over the edge. No one is any longer thinking of the enemy, or the war, or the danger. All eyes are on the tall soldier and the child which he is approaching. And as he picks up that little frightened, helpless piece of humanity and fondly takes it in his arms, a laugh, a long friendly laugh, passes along our entire column.

"The laugh is infectious, and we can feel how it is going along the ranks yonder. And suddenly—'What—are they going to shoot?—No, on the contrary, a great wave of applause, with shouts of 'Bravo!' from thousands of French throats breaks the stillness. Then, as the soldier jumps back into our trench with the child safely in his arms, our ranks, too, burst into a triumphant shout which passes all along the line.

"Even for some time after not a shot is fired. It is as if we felt ashamed of ourselves, and no one touched a gun while that child was in our midst."

"When the firing did start again it was rather desultory and indifferent, and there was nothing dangerous about it. The little child had worked a wonderful change in the hearts of both friend and foe that morning."

"Young Man—So Miss Ethel is your oldest sister? Who comes after her?
Small Brother—Nobody isn't comin' yet; but pa says the first feller that comes can have her.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body and local treatment in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.
To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the medicinal food and building tonic, from which all harmful drugs. Try It.

Proper Methods of Butter-Making.

Few people trouble themselves about the reason that creamy butter is to be preferred to dairy butter, but by way of introduction to Bulletin No. 53 of the Dairy and Cold Storage Branch, Ottawa, Dairy Commissioner Raddick furnishes an explanation. Incidentally he also points out that a good deal of damage is done to the trade by inferior dairy butter. The bulletin, for which Mr. Geo. H. Barr, Chief of the Dairy Division, is responsible, in concise terms describes the whole process of butter making, tells the utensils that should be used and how they should be used, gives the results of experiments with the separator as regards temperature and variations in speed, deals with the care of cream in cooling and preparing for churning and in pasteurizing, gives expert counsel as to salting and working and points to the advisability of attractive packing in parchment paper. He also points out the requirements of the law in branding or marking and supplies practical hints on care of the utensils. Finally he tells in terse terms how to get the best results in farm dairy work. Both the bulletin and a blue print of the plan for a dairy that is given can be had by application to the Dairy Commissioner or to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

For Baby's Tender Skin.

A child's skin is tender as well as beautiful and eczema may be caused by chafing of clothing, the use of poor soap, exposure to cold or sudden change of temperature. Probably no treatment for eczema has ever proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this applies particularly to baby eczema. This ointment is delightfully soothing, stops the itching and consequently prevents scratching. Gradually the sores are healed up and the skin is left soft and velvety.

Flowers

Flowers are perhaps the most effective of the many little 'finishing touches' necessary to an attractive home. There are thousands of persons with beautiful homes, costly furnishings, perhaps, artistically and skilfully arranged by the hands of a clever decorator, but it takes the little finishing touches, the seemingly unimportant tiny things, done by the woman who loves and exists for her home and expresses her soul in her surroundings to make the house lovely.

Make Yourself Strong.

People with strong constitutions escape most of the minor ills that make life miserable for others. Don't you envy the friend who does not know what a headache is, whose digestion is perfect, and who sleeps soundly at night? How far do you come from this description? Have you ever made an earnest effort to strengthen your constitution, to build up your system, to ward off discomfort and disease? Unless you have an urgent disease it is generally possible to improve your physical condition that perfect health will be yours. The first thing to be done is to build up your blood as pure blood is the source of physical weakness. To build up the blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is just the medicine you need. Every dose helps to make new blood which reaches every nerve and every part of the body, bringing color to the cheeks, brightness to the eyes, a steadiness to the hands, a good appetite and splendid energy. Thousands throughout the country whose condition once made them despair, owe their present good health to this medicine. If you are of the weak and ailing give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and note the daily gain in new health and abounding vitality.

United States Warns Public of Poison Plaster.

Washington, July 24th.—Warning to the public not to use court-plaster, except that obtained from approved sources of supply was issued today by the Department of Justice. The statement, which bears the signature of Assistant Attorney General Pitts follows:

"While the department of justice does not take a sensational view of the reports indicating a possible use of my activity in the dissemination of poisonous sticking or court plaster, there has been enough factually reported on the subject to warrant thorough investigation, both as to the manner of distribution and the germs in the plaster.

"Consequently, the samples in hand are being analytically examined, both in Washington and in a Western city pending further information. It would be well for the consuming public to use no remedies of this kind, except those obtained from approved sources of supply.

Merchant's Wife Advises Wolfville Women.

"I had stomach trouble so bad I could eat nothing but toast, fruit and hot water. Everything else turned and formed in me. Dieting did no good. I was miserable until I tried Buckle's, then buck, y' see, as it is called in Adler's ONE SPOONFUL benefit of me INSTANTLY. Because Adler's supplies BOTH large and small intestine it relieves ANY CASE constipation, sour stomach or gas and prevents appendicitis. It has QUICK, INSTANT action of anything we ever sold. A. V. RAB, Wolfville, N.S."

LARRIMORE'S TRUMP

By Allan Ingalls (Copyright, by W. G. Chapman)

The prison gates closed behind Larrimore. He was free. Nobody had put their all in his wicked scheme, but that caused Larrimore no distress. Of course, Laura would not have come to the prison gates. She had pride, and, though he had been unjustly condemned, Laura was not going to publish her shame before the eyes of the newspaper men.

Larrimore had done no wrong. True, he had beguiled a few scores of women and trusting men who had put their all in his wicked scheme, but then everybody did things like that every day in the course of business. The five years in the penitentiary that he had served had been a gross injustice. Larrimore felt no degradation. He meant to repeat his trick, but more craftily, in order to secure the funds to start things going again.

Still, he was thinking as he sat in the train, a lot of things which distressed him; and yet he could not shake them out of his mind. He had gone to the metropolis twenty years before, a swifty farmer boy, to make his fortune. He had become wealthy in an incredibly short space of time, for Larrimore was quick to adapt himself to the dubious ways of finance. In ten years he was married and had a house on the avenue.

He had married the daughter of his employer. He had not loved Laura exactly, but she had thought he had. No children had come to them, and of late years Laura had seemed dissatisfied. Larrimore had lavished money upon her and had never known what ailed her, but then he had not understood her.

After his marriage he seldom went home. He made his allowance, but he had not adequate leisure, but he had not see her for three years before he was sentenced. With his connections he could not afford to have it known that his mother was an illiterate woman. Laura had never seen her. Larrimore had been ashamed to let her know. And when he was sentenced Laura had, by his orders, written to the old woman that they were going abroad to live. Larrimore had provided for his mother before his conviction. He begged that thought to his heart. He was a pretty decent sort of a man.

He was thinking, as he sat in the train, a lot of things which distressed him.

Still there had been trying episodes, which, as a man of the world, he had found difficult to explain to his wife. For instance, old Mrs. Larrimore's letters. The old woman had come to town and live with her son. Of course, that was impossible, but he had told his mother so frankly, but Laura had seen one of the ill-spelled letters and Larrimore had been ashamed.

"You see, she never could learn to spell very well," he explained to his wife. "She is of good family, but mother was always the dumbest at school."

The look in his wife's eyes when he apologized for his mother had vaguely annoyed Larrimore.

After his conviction Laura had come to see him regularly, each three months for three months before his sentence expired she had told him that she thought it would be no use their living together. Things had been sold and she was living then in a boarding-house. Larrimore had not answered her, because he meant to go to her as soon as he came out of prison and explain that he would be a rich man again within a year, and that he could provide her with every luxury. That would alter his wife's decision, he knew.

Nevertheless, when he got out of the train he was disheartened with himself. Something of conscience had begun to prick the thick skin of the man. When he called at the boarding-house he discovered, to his dismay, that his wife had gone away. A letter was handed to him, and the door closed on him. Larrimore did not mind the closing of the door; he went into the park and read the letter.

"I am leaving you for ever, Henry," his wife had written, "because I cannot live with you so long as you are ever lived. I am going to the last place on earth where you will think of looking for me."

The letter was signed simply "Laura."

LANGUAGE OF THE HORSE

Words of Command go Back Many Hundreds of Years.

In commenting upon the 4,000 words used in the world of equestrianism in olden times a writer in "Country Life" states that the terms used to direct laboring horses so much further back than Anglo-Saxon or any definite language; they are probably the instinctive sounds made by early man as he tamed the horse and have crystallized into the words used by every plowman. They vary slightly in dialect, but are known, for while a Yorkshireman will say "gee" when he wants his horse to turn to the right, in Cheshire he says "gee" when he wants the horse to turn to the left in the same condition in the same order is "half," "back," or "haw," "coom-yeh," "back" and "come-lither." To go on in the money was "back," while "gee" is "two," "wey" and "wea" are the sounds that salute the ears of the intelligent animal when he is greeted to a stall. The word "gee" is farm beasts in general and "wea" horses—in particular which is still used in the North of England and constantly in that "Superintendent of Office of Seneschal" which was the guide to good husbandry in the Middle Ages.

Seven-Million-Ten Monument. The greatest monument in the world is the Great Pyramid of Egypt which was built nearly 4,000 years ago. It was built by Cheops, King of Egypt, who, following the example of previous kings, wished to have a magnificent tombstone, so that he would be remembered. It is certain that the thousands of men who were engaged in building it worked in the heat. The result is, Cheops is always put down as a tyrant.

According to Herodotus, the great Greek historian, 100,000 men were at work on it for twenty years. It covers an area of thirteen and a half acres, and contains 7,000,000 tons of masonry. It was built in layers, 900 in number, a d that the steps were filled in to make the sides smooth. The actual height is 481 feet from two tons to sixty tons. When it was built it was about 40 feet high, and the sides were seen for 100 miles.

Destroys Insects Wholesale. An electrically charged net mounted on a wagon for removal to where it may be needed, has been invented in Argentina for the wholesale destruction of insects.

New Idea in Corsets. Its inventor claims superior tones are produced by a new corset in which the tubes constantly increase in size from the waist to the feet.

Conspiracy Against Flies. Neatness is the chief virtue of a new fly trap to be hung on a wall, made in the form of a box with open ends and with an adhesive substance only on the inside.

In the Footsteps of Our Fathers.

Once upon a time, says the Christian Scotsman, there was a school-keeper who was classed by his associates as a "pretty respectable sort of a citizen—never drinks or gambles and thinks the world of his family, you know." The story is told that he went home one afternoon and found his wife away from home and his three boys in the back garden where they had been playing "keep school." The youngest, who was behind the bar had a towel tied around his waist and appeared to be acting up the drink pretty freely. The father was dismayed at the nature of the children's play, a feeling that turned to the deepest alarm as he realized that the actual beer was being dispensed over the make-believe bar, and that his boys were staggering, while a neighbor lay drunk under a tree. When the mother returned she found the boys in bed and her husband sobbing like a child. That night the school was closed, and its former keeper entered another line of business.
