It Takes Two Days to Die And Then in Horrible Agony

Major-General Stuart-Wortley Writes to Brother in New York of Gas Poisoning--Hopeless and Sickening--Sights in Hospital Described--Men Grasping for Air

New York, May 31.—A letter from Major-Gen. Edward Stuart-Wortley, Commander of a British Army Corps in France, made public here by his brother, Ralph Stuart-Wortley of New York, giving this distinguished officer's tribute to the behavior of a Canadian division in France, and describing the horrors which resulted from the use of asphyxiating gases by the Germans.

Takes Two Days to Die

"I am sure the public cannot have as yet the slightest idea of this last demorable effort on the part of the Germans to disregard all laws of humanity and civilization.

How Gas is Turned On

The letter follows:
"You will of course have read of the fighting that has been going on round Ypres just lately, and of the magnificent behavior of the Canadian division. In their attack on the Ypres salient the Germans made use of asphyxiating gases. This gas is disseminated both in shell and bombs and also from cylinders, which are buried in the trenches with their nose pushed out through the parapets. The taps of the cylinders are then turned on and the gas, which is, as far as we know, chlorine, is pumped out. The gas, which is heavier than air and which is blown by the wind across our lines, sinks into our trenches and kills or incapacitates any men who happen to be in them. The effect of the gas can also be felt as far back as five or six miles and produces headache and a smarting of the eyes.

28th Will Supply Draft of 50 Men

Will Be Reinforced for Artillery Units Which Have Been Depleted

A draft of one officer and between forty and fifty members of the 28th Field Battery is being organized to go forward to England as reinforcements for batteries of the Canadian Expeditionary forces which have been depleted.

Annual Meeting of Missionary Society

The W. F. and H. M. S. of St. James Church Elect Officers For 1915-16

The annual meeting of the W. F. H. M. S. of St. James Church, was held at the home of Mrs. Gillespie, June 4th. The officers elected for 1915-16 are as follows:

Academy Pupils Start Gardening

About Fifty Plots Have Been Prepared and Roped Off

The pupils of the Harkins Academy have fallen in line, and have begun the work of school gardening in a manner highly commendable to them. A piece of ground the property of Mr. C. C. Hayward, opposite the residence of Mr. Osborne Nicholson has been prepared, and so far about fifty plots are set apart and roped off.

Chatham Hero Saved Comrades

Heroism of Andrew C. Baldwin in Delivering Message Although Wounded

News of how a Chatham hero saved a whole Canadian battalion by delivering a message under fire, although wounded, is told in a letter from Pte. Jack Forrest to Alvan Walls, of Chatham. The wounded man is Andrew C. Baldwin, whose name has already appeared in the casualty lists.

Belgian Refugees Come to Newcastle

Mr. and Mrs. Poupaert and an Infant Babe, the Belgian Refugees who Came to Canada After the Outbreak of the War, and Meeting with Many Disappointments Since Their Arrival, are Now Being Cared for by Kind Newcastle Friends. They Arrived Here on Monday's Limited, and are Now Staying with Mrs. Follansbee.

For the past few months they have been staying in a detention camp at Montreal, but Mr. Poupaert, who was a salesman in his own native and now devastated country, Belgium, is very anxious to obtain employment, as he does not wish to be a burden upon others. It is hoped he will meet with better success on the Miramichi than he did in the larger cities.

LONG SUFFERING ENDS IN DEATH

Mrs. Henry Ingram, an Invalid for Two Years Passed Peacefully Away

After a period of two years suffering, death came as a relief to Mrs. Henry Ingram at 6.30 o'clock yesterday morning, and when least expected by the family, who, during her long suffering, gave her the care and attention that only a loving family could give.

Council Considers Matter of Power for Hospital Elevator

Strong Recommendations Made by the Architect in Letter That Town Adopt an All-Day Electric Service

Newcastle Town Council met in special session June 7th, all present but Ald. Hayward.

The Mayor stated that it had been called to consider the matter of power for elevator of the Miramichi Hospital. He referred to a letter received from Mr. E. A. McCurdy re an all-day electric service, and read the following letter from Mr. John Edgett, the contractor, to Mr. McCurdy:

Newcastle, N. B., May 27th, 1915
E. A. McCurdy, Esq.,
Newcastle, N. B.
Dear Sir:
Re Elevator for Miramichi Hospital
I have received a communication from Mr. Heans, the architect, in which he states that definite plans must be made at once regarding the installation of the elevator for the Miramichi Hospital which is now being erected in Newcastle. I understand that an agitation was on foot in Newcastle a short time ago, having in view the establishment of a day service from the electric light plant. It would be of great advantage and save the hospital management considerable expense if the Town Council would arrange for day service, as an elevator operated by water power will cost considerably more to install and will be much slower and not nearly so satisfactory as an electric elevator.

POPULAR YOUNG LADY WILL WED

Miss Margaret McKay Hubbard and Mr. Walter Amy Will Wed This Evening

An event which will be of very great interest to the younger people of Newcastle will take place this evening, at the residence of her grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Adams, when Miss Margaret McKay Hubbard, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Colson Hubbard, will be married to Mr. Walter Amy of St. Heliers, Jersey, the ceremony to take place at eight-thirty o'clock, Rev. S. J. MacArthur tying the nuptial knot.

Won One--Lost One

The Newcastle ball team went to Bathurst on the holiday and played two games there, winning the afternoon game and losing in the evening. They report having a good trip.

Douglstown Band Concert

The Douglstown band will, if the weather is favorable, give a band concert in the school grounds on Tuesday evening next, June 15th. Young ladies will sell ice cream and other refreshments, the proceeds of which will go to the band fund.

Paris, June 5--The capture by the French of the sugar refinery near Souchez is described in a report given out today by the official "Eye Witness" at the front.

Castle, which was getting good advertising. He had recently got assurance from a substantial person of further help for the hospital. Outside support is not by people helping themselves. He did not want the Town to leap in the dark, but let them get experienced men to find out the cost of this thing. Let the matter be thoroughly investigated before the Council committed themselves. If after making due enquiries it was found that electric power was impracticable, then fall back upon water power. Chatham was thinking of an all-day electric service, Newcastle must not lag behind in the procession.

Ald. Stables said the matter should not be dropped, but thoroughly investigated. The town had little enough water.

Ald. Stuart urged a thorough investigation on the part of the Council and completion of their petition by the hospital authorities. The matter needed to be put in a way that all could understand. An all-day service would be excellent if it could be made to pay expenses.

Ald. Doyle agreed that all possible information should be got re cost of new plant. Progress was the order of the day. Mr. McCurdy's suggestion that the Council thoroughly investigate was a good one. It was up to the Town sooner or later to put in a new plant. There was trouble already with the small electric engine we have. Let us look into the matter.

Ald. McKay asked where the money was to come from for new plant? He advocated assessing for $5000 or $6000 a year extra to prepare for its installation.

Ald. Creaghan thought every alderman was in sympathy with the ### WAR SUMMARY

The most interesting and significant operations of the war at the moment are those directed against Trent by the Italians under General Cadorna. They are campaigning at a great altitude, and by the seizure of ranges of mountains to the east and west of the Adige Valley, which runs directly up the centre of the Trentino to the capital, they have secured most important preliminary results which will enable them soon to tackle the fortresses barring the way up the Adige. The capture of Conf Zugno, a peak 6,000 feet high, is believed to have given the Italians control of positions dominating the chief defence works of Rovereto, a town on the Adige, fifteen miles from Trent. Frontal attack up the Adige on Rovereto would probably fail, for it has many trenches and sand-bagged batteries specially designed to guard against that. The Italians will scull the works by artillery fire from the mountain tops to the east now occupied by them. When Rovereto falls Trent will be in danger. General Cadorna may not await the fall of Rovereto before moving upon Trent, but, if he has an ample force, may leave it under fire and push on to the north. The strength of the Italian in the Trentino indicates that for the time this is the principal sphere of operations of the armies of Italy.

A British Report regarding the Dardanelles operations states that close hand-to-hand fighting took place on Tuesday. The British troops made a dash at two saps begun by the enemy toward the British lines with the intention of filling them in. One party was driven back but the other occupied the Turkish sap, and, using it as a trench, holds a position between the firing lines of the two armies. The action was accompanied by heavy artillery fire, by which the Turks lost heavily. Their attempts to recapture a fort taken by the French last Saturday have also failed, although twice they recaptured it, only to be driven out finally on Wednesday morning. The Turks are beginning to feel the strain. Their resistance is of the most stubborn sort as yet, but if Bulgaria sets her troops in motion toward Constantinople it will collapse suddenly and finally. The chief surgeon of the Turkish military hospital in Constantinople, who is in Athens, with the object, no doubt, of enlisting the aid of doctors, says that forty thousand Turks are now lying wounded in the hospitals of the Turkish capital, and that thousands cannot be cared for because of the lack of medical supplies, doctors and nurses. The Turk has had almost enough. He will say Kissmet soon, and pack his belongings preparatory to the surrender of his long lease of Constantinople.

Is the spirit of the German rank and file beginning to break? Twice recently on the front between Arras and Ypres hundreds of German soldiers have surrendered in large groups. At Ablain 400 put up their hands as one man. Now on the body of a dead German Captain in this district has been found a diary the entries in which ended on May 20, the day he was killed. In it he says: "Our men decamp as each shell which falls, and it is necessary to threaten them with court-martial." The mute testimony of Capt. Sievert's diary is important. The German soldiers have proved themselves fine fighting men, but there are limits to human endurance. The frightful French artillery fire that shook the nerve of the Germans in Ablain grows in volume daily along the French and British lines as ammunition becomes more plentiful. It begins to tell.

In one field of operations there are no "slackers." That is the Caucasus, Turkish devilry during the incursion into Russian territory last winter roused the people to frenzy, and the army of the Caucasus is now pursuing the retreating Turks with right good will. The Americans, too, who have been under the harrow and subjected to atrocities of so terrible a sort that Sir Edward Grey practically told the Turkish Commanders involved that Britain would hang them if they ever fell into her hands are fighting bravely for their freedom in the Russian ranks. The capture of the city of Yen by the Russians has been followed by a disorderly retreat of the Turks, who are throwing away their rifles and ammunition. The liberation of Armenia seems a matter now of but a few weeks.

THE HUNS IN BELGIUM

From the thirteenth report of the Belgian Commission of Inquiry recently issued, it is plain that the Huns have carried on what is nothing better than a campaign of robbery in Belgium. Under the euphemism of "requisition" everything of value has been removed from that unhappy country, where only crime was that it lay between Germany and German ambition to dominate the world. Not content with the devastation that is the direct consequence of military operations, factories have been stripped of their machinery, raw material and manufactured goods. The finest trees, particularly walnuts, have been felled and the timber sent to Germany.

Belgium has long been noted for the breeding of horses. The Germans were evidently well prepared in this direction and possessed catalogs of the best of these animals. In pursuance of a plan carefully studied and long designed, they confiscated the choice horses and despatched them to Germany, where they were sold by auction. The prices paid the Belgian owners were ridiculously low and full advantage was taken of their ignorance of German. Certificates were given in some cases for "two rabbits" or for a certain number of lashes, and in others "payable in Paris." But, after all, these infringements of international law, compared with the more serious cases of crime, are relatively insignificant.

LIST OF HONORS CONFERRED ON KING'S BIRTHDAY

Three Canadians Among Those Honored, and List is a Long One.

London, June 4—The list of honors conferred on the occasion of the King's birthday, was, as had been expected in view of the war, an unusually long one. Three Canadians are among those honored. Lieutenant Colonel the Honorable John Strathearn Hendrie, Lieutenant Governor of Ontario; Dr. William Peterson, Principal of McGill University, Montreal, and the Very Rev. Daniel Minter Gordon, Principal of Queen's University, Kingston, Ontario, are made Knights of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

Improvement League Public Meeting

For Purpose of Making Recommendation to Council for New P. M.

The selection of a suitable applicant for the position of Police Magistrate for the town, to fill the place made vacant by the death of the late Col. Maltby, is occupying the mind of the citizens at the present time. The names of several applicants have been mentioned and petitions signed by the leading business men of the town. The Town Improvement League has taken the matter up and a public meeting was held in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening last for the purpose of getting an expression of opinion from the citizens as to the most logical selection from those who have shown their desire to receive appointment. The applicants mentioned are Messrs. J. R. Lawlor, S. W. Miller, John Clark, H. Wilkinson and J. W. Davidson.

After much discussion, a motion was moved and carried to refer the matter to the League's Executive. The public meeting was then adjourned, and the Executive met. Mr. J. D. Buckley, both at the public meeting and the meeting of the Executive, said he felt that the League should not make any one choice from the applicants mentioned, as he believed that any interference on the part of the League would cause a friction among its members. It was finally decided to submit two names, and after a ballot being taken, Messrs. Lawlor and Clark were recommended.

Week's War News

London, June 3—A British submarine has sunk a German transport in the Sea of Marmora.

Lugano, June 3—The tiny republic of San Marino has declared war against Austria, according to News Agency despatches.

The report that Sergt. Michael O'Leary, "the bravest man in the British Army," had been killed in action, is not true.

London, June 2—A letter from a Canadian Immigration Department employee, now with the Territorials, tells of a hot engagement in which some German trenches were captured by Belgians in support of the Territorials. This is not confirmed.

Rome, June 2—An Austrian aviator bombed Molfetto, on the Adriatic, last night, showering bombs near the Cathedral, the Bishop's Palace and the shipyards. One workman was killed.

Berlin, (via The Hague), June 2—Many Americans formally registered their names and addresses today, in accordance with the recent order providing for registration of all foreigners in Germany between June 1 and 10. Turks and Austrians excepted. The police and the various embassies have posted circulars, advising all foreigners to comply with the order at once.

Rome, June 2—The bombardment of the Austrian town of Mori, three miles from Rovereto, has begun. Italian batteries posted on the heights of Monte Altissimo have wrecked the railway bridge across the Adige and have damaged the railway station. Heavy rains have seriously hampered the rush of the Italian troops up the Adige, but despatches received here today said that the Austrians had suffered equally, flooded mountain torrents wiping out some of their lines of trenches across the Adige Valley, south of Rovereto.

Scene at Halifax When Soldiers Left

Departure of Steamer Was Marked by Many Pathetic Scenes

Now that the soldiers who left Halifax recently have landed safely in England, the Recorder gives an account of their embarkation on the Saxonia. It says: The Saxonia took from Halifax 42 officers, 1072 non-commissioned officers and men of the 25th Battalion, Halifax; 36 officers, 1097 non-commissioned officers and men of the 22nd French-Canadian Battalion, who had drilled at Amherst, Lieut. V. C. Johnson, a sergeant and eighteen men of the Divisional Ammunition Company from Fredericton, and four British reservists. The departure of the steamer was marked by many pathetic scenes, hundreds of Nova Scotians being at the pier and thousands on the streets to bid them good-bye. The scene at the North Common when the 24th were formed up for the parade to the ship was one that will be long remembered by those who witnessed it. Wives embraced their husbands, mothers their sons, and children their fathers who they might never see again. Many persons were unable to remain owing to their pent-up feeling. During the march through the streets the thousands on the sidewalks waved flags and cheered the volunteers for overseas service. Every here and there people would enter the ranks and march along with the troops while bidding some friend or friends good-bye. The battalion was preceded by the band of H. M. C. S. Niobe, the band of the 1st Canadian Artillery and the 25th Pipers were also in the parade.

By the time the troops reached the pier entrance the crowd had pressed so closely that there was only a small defile through which they could pass to the ship. The public were debarred from the pier during embarkation. At three o'clock Lieutenant Governor McGregor, accompanied by Premier Murray, arrived at the pier to say farewell to Colonel LeCain, officers and men. Later they extended, on behalf of Nova Scotia, good wishes and congratulations to Col. Gaudet of the French-Canadians. The visitors were received by General Ruthford and staff and escorted to the ship. When the 22nd Battalion arrived from Amherst at 4 o'clock that afternoon the sides of the cars contained the following in English and French: "Berlin in August or Bust."

The cheering as the troops left the pier was deafening, and those on the pier sang Auld Lang Syne, O Canada and other similar tunes, to which the volunteers responded. The National Anthem was sung as the ship commenced her voyage.

COULD NOT STAND ON FEET

Mrs. Baker So Weak—Could Not Do Her Work—Found Relief in Novel Way.

Adrian, Mich. — "I suffered terribly with female weakness and backache and got so weak that I could hardly do my work. When I washed my dishes I had to sit down and when I would sweep the floor I would get so weak that I would have to get a drink every few minutes, and before I did my dusting I would have to lie down. I got so poorly that my folks thought I was going into consumption. One day I found a piece of paper blowing around the yard and I picked it up and read it. It said 'Saved from the Grave,' and told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for women. I showed it to my husband and he said, 'Why don't you try it?' So I did, and after I had taken two bottles I felt better and I said to my husband, 'I don't need any more,' and he said 'You had better take it a little longer anyway.' So I took it for three months and got well and strong." — Mrs. ALONZO E. BAKER, 9 Tecumseh St., Adrian, Mich.

Not Well Enough to Work.

In these words is hidden the tragedy of many a woman, housekeeper or wage earner who supports herself and is often helping to support a family, on meagre wages. Whether in house, office, factory, shop, store or kitchen, woman should remember that there is one tried and true remedy for the ills to which all women are prone, and that is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It promotes that vigor which makes work easy. The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

FIRST DOSE ENDS INDIGESTION, HEARTBURN, OR GAS ON STOMACH

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from indigestion, dyspepsia or out-of-order stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking Tonaline Tablets. People with weak stomachs should take Tonaline Tablets occasionally, and there will be no more indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, sour risings, gas on stomach, or belching of undigested food, headaches, dizziness or sick stomach; and besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors. All these symptoms resulting from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved five minutes after taking Tonaline Tablets. Go to your druggist and get a $1 box of Tonaline Tablets and you will see how you go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. Tonaline Tablets freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living. Tonaline Tablets cost $1.00 for a 50 days' treatment. At druggists or mailed by American Proprietary Co., Boston, Mass.

MEN WHO KNOW ENDORSE THE IDEA

What Four Prominent Canadian Premiers Say of "Made-in-Canada"

Sir George Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce: "I have noticed with great interest the campaign being so capably conducted in favor of the 'Made-in-Canada' idea. I am viewing the matter, of course, entirely from the point of view of unemployment, and cannot rid myself of the conviction that one of the best remedies possible is that we who buy in Canada—and all of us buy more or less—shall make it a point wherever possible, to purchase for our needs what has been made by Canadian hands and of Canadian material. In this way we would considerably assist in the quick reduction of unemployment and the quick reviving of production and trade."

Hon. Walter Scott, Premier of Saskatchewan: "If all Canadians learned to consciously prefer the manufactures of their own country, that we do unconsciously prefer its natural products, there would be a splendid twofold result—the sum of our national prosperity would be increased, and more important still, the sum of our pride and confidence in Canada would be increased also."

Hon. G. H. Murray, Premier of Nova Scotia: "The 'Made-in-Canada' campaign has my heartiest sympathy. I am sure it will meet with a generous response from all Canadians. The movement aims at the development not only of a practical patriotism but also of a fine spirit of mutual helpfulness among our people."

Sir Richard McBride, Premier of British Columbia: "I am very glad to say anything that I can in support of the most commendable idea contained in your programme. One of the effects of this war has been to arouse the people of Canada to the necessity of a greater production in various lines of industry, and I know of nothing which will tend to promote this more than the campaign you are now engaged in."

Something Original—that's the Cry of Every Buyer of Printing

If every print shop could or would work character into their product there wouldn't be such common place printing. We'll be glad of an opportunity to prove to you that when your printing is placed with us, there will be character to it. Our new type faces will do that alone, but there will be more than up-to-date type faces. There will be care taken in the arrangement of the type—good ink will be used—the proper paper for the work will be selected, and printed in the largest and most modern country printing office in the Maritime Provinces.

Timely Topics ON PRINTING

FINE PRINTING IS AN ART

Do you know good printing?
Do you like good printing?
Do you know that it always pays to have the BETTER kind?
Perhaps you have been used to the one class of printing and know no other.
If this is so, it is time for you to have a look around and investigate and see what's what.
Do you know you do not have to go any farther away than Newcastle to obtain the BETTER class of printing.
Perhaps you have not given it a thought, but a great deal depends on the stock used in order to get a BETTER job. Investigate this.
Last, but not the least, do you know that The Advocate Job Department turns out only this BETTER class of work. If you will read on a little further, we will tell you how and why.

1st—We cater to that class of people who use only the best stock, and who know what BETTER printing is.
2nd—In order to give these customers the class of work they want, we have to keep in stock only the best grades of material. We do not handle cheap lines.

3rd—In order, again, to be able to turn out that BETTER class of printing, we employ only experienced and competent printers, who keep abreast of the times and watch the styles.

4th—What is as important as the above is equipment. If The Advocate Job Department was not fitted out as it is, with the most modern machinery and the very latest in type faces, it could not handle the fast growing trade, that has developed in the past year, of turning out that BETTER class of printing. Only the best inks are used, because this is necessary when high grade stock is used.

Now, Mr. Business Man, if you will read the above over carefully, see how your supply stands, then get in touch with this office, we feel sure you will become a customer. Give up that old-fangled notion that first class printing comes only from the large city printing offices. As a matter of fact, the reverse is the case, and prices are invariably lower.

REMEMBER THAT WE DO ALL KINDS OF PRINTING

For commercial use, we have superior grades of Letter, Note and Bill Head Stock, at prices and quality to suit any business and any purse. Our prices range from $2.50 to $4.00 per thousand for Letter Heads, and from $2.50 to $3.25 per thousand for Envelopes. Our Envelopes are the same material as our papers, and therefore match. We are always pleased to submit samples of stock, and prices, on application.

More Business IS WHAT WE WANT

You want the work—we want to do it for you. We have just the grade of paper you want, so why not let us get together in a co-operative way and make a strong pull for increased business—more business than usual.

A New Questions and Answers Department of Interest to Shooters

Readers are reminded that this column is open to questions which should be sent to me in care of the Sporting Editor, and to discussions by the readers on anything connected with hunting or target shooting.—A. P. L.

THE "ONE EYE—BOTH EYES" SCRAP

As to whether it is better to trap-shoot with both eyes open or to shut the eye not directly concerned with the sighting, seems to be a source of considerable worry to some shooters, especially beginners.

If a shooter is possessed of a pair of normal eyes, undoubtedly the proper way to sight a shotgun is to keep both eyes wide open and focused on the target in a natural and easy manner. The advantages of sighting in this way are a clear view of the entire field, including that part which would be otherwise cut off by the gun barrels, and freedom from the eye strain which results from any unusual use of the eyes.

I should certainly advise all new shooters to learn to shoot with both eyes open unless some actual optical defect makes it impossible. Older men who have been shooting for a great many years with one eye sighting will find some difficulty in changing, as constant practice will have crystallized into a second nature the habit of closing one eye. A point to be considered, however, is that you have nothing to lose by test, as it is easy enough to go back to the old system again, if necessary.

Remember, this is your column! Send in your questions.

I have a 12 gauge wrap gun and I would like you to give me the reason why the shell which I am using breaks off. When the gun throws the shell out, the paper remains in chamber. Is it that the load is too heavy—3 1/4 dr.—1 1/4 shot, 4c shot?

Ans. The trouble you speak of is sometimes due to a rusty chamber. Occasionally, it is caused by the brooch block not properly supporting the shell. I would suggest that you write to both the maker of the gun and the ammunition.

C. L. C. El Dorado, Ark.

1. Will .22 short cartridges lead the barrel of a .22 rifle?

Ans. .22 short cartridges will have a tendency to lead a barrel which is chambered for the .22 long rifle or .22 long cartridges, owing to the space which the bullet has to jump before it reaches the rifling.

2. Can you tell me how to make some home-made solvent that will remove the lead from the barrel of a .22 rifle?

Ans. There is no solvent which will dissolve lead without also dissolving the barrel. The proper way to remove leading from a .22 calibre barrel is by means of one of the regular nitro solvents on the market and a vigorous scrubbing with a brass brush.

Ans. Exact Alten, Ill.

4. I heard an old hunter say that he used scrap rods to clean the inside of the barrels of his rifle. Will this hurt the barrel?

Ans. Scrap water is very effective for cleaning the barrel, and will not harm the barrel in any way, providing it is thoroughly cleaned out with clean water and the barrel thoroughly dried and oiled afterwards.

W. O. R. Tyndall, South Dak.

You state in your column that the Springfield rifle can only be bought through the National Rifle Association. Where can I address them?

Ans. Write to Albert S. Jones, Secy. National Rifle Association, 1108 Woodward Bldg., Washington, D. C. J. E. F., Helena Ark.

I am possessor of one of the much advertised R. S. A. air rifles of .22 calibre. While it is true we need not expect the same accuracy from this arm as a cartridge gun, I find that it shoots very uniformly, but have never been able to do close shooting at distances over 35 feet, being able to put 15 to 20 pellets in one inch space at that range, as I find that the recoil from the powerful spring has a tendency to throw your aim off. I would like to have the opinions of others interested to do with it, also how the .17 calibre compares with the .22 in accuracy?

Ans. Owing to the shape of the bullet and the relatively low power of an air rifle compared with the .22 calibre rifle, it would not be reasonable to expect the same results that can be secured with the .22 calibre short cartridges for instance.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

This, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scourge. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!

LOYALTY TO CANADA AND HER WORKSHOPS

Women Shoppers Can do Most for "Made-in-Canada" When They Are Making Purchases

The editor of the "Department B. of Magazine," a United States publication, has a strong article on the "Made-in-America" movement, which is a feature of United States commercial life today. Speaking of the place that women occupy in the nation's purchasing, he says: "Upon the great mass of intelligent American women, who daily stream through the doors of our forty-five hundred department stores, rests a heavy weight of responsibility. It is for them to say whether some of the greatest industries in the country shall suffer or whether they shall come through the crisis stronger and more prosperous than ever.

"America can make anything that is necessary to the life and happiness of any man or woman. The most luxurious and beautiful fabrics can be produced here. Our carpets and rugs imitate the cunning of the Oriental weaver and often surpass as a work of originality of pattern. The furniture made in America is unsurpassed, and our glass and china compare favorably with the finest importations."

The remaining three paragraphs are also taken from Mr. Platt's article, but in each case we have substituted the word "Canada" for "America," as there is no doubt that what Mr. Platt says about the goods made in United States applies equally as well to those made in Canada. In fact there is an even greater reason why Canada should be loyal to the products of her own workpeople and her own workshops. Canada is a young country in the early stages of industrial development. It has a small population spread thinly over a large area. Unless all interests in Canada combine to promote the general welfare, our progress is sure to be much slower than we have been accustomed to during the future years of reconstruction which will inevitably follow the war.

Revised Version

"Made in Canada" should be the motto of every shopper who enters a store. It is more than a mere trade slogan; it is a precept of patriotism.

"Made in Canada" means busy factories in Canada; it means happy working people in Canada; it means fat pay envelopes in thousands of Canadian homes on Saturday night; it means the banishment of the bugaboo of hard times and the return of prosperity for all of us despite the war. And after the war is over it means a greater Canada than ever before, a Canada that will supply the world and reap the reward of a higher patriotism than that which is being voiced by European cannon.

All this can be accomplished if every purchaser who enters a store will choose Canadian-made goods. The great merchants are eager to meet this demand, and it's up to the shopper to see that the good things made in Canada do not lie idle on the shelves.

OUR BUSINESS INSTINCT

It's Good For Canada to Buy Canadian Goods

In a democracy like Canada manufacturers and consumers meet on a common level. Each looks to the other to do his part in this Made-in-Canada campaign. We need no paternal government to advise us. We need no ten commercial commandments as they have in Germany. This is a land of liberty. We think and speak as we like in loyalty to our own commercial interest. If we don't recognize that buying things made in this country is good for our pockets, our homes or our businesses, we naturally buy things made somewhere else. It's because we are finding out for ourselves without any paternal commandments from the supreme bureau, that it pays in every way to buy Canadian goods, that we are entering a campaign to do it. The German catalogue treats German consumers like a pack of children. The business sense of the average liberty-loving Canadian demands to be treated like a full-grown man. We don't need to be told that it's good for Canada that we buy goods made by Canadians. We know that; the same as we know that fresh air and good food are beneficial to the health. We don't even call it patriotism. It's just ordinary everyday, self-interest.

It is practical patriotism to give the preference to goods "Made-in-Canada," and it is practical self-interest as well. Your money stays in Canada—lives up Canadian trade generally—and so helps to create a prosperity in which you share.

Brest, France, June 5.—The French steamer Penfeld, bound from Nantes, France to Cardiff, Wales, has been sunk in the English Channel by a German submarine. The crew was saved and brought to this port. The attack was made Thursday. The Penfeld was a vessel of 794 tons and hailed from this port. She was 195 feet long and 30 feet wide, and was built in 1884.

SHOP IN YOUR OWN CITY FIRST

This "Made in Canada" movement can be brought a little nearer home to each individual by emphasizing this suggestion: "Patronize the stores of your home town." Each man is entitled to spend his own money where it will buy the most—whether it be in Rome or A—

But in fairness—

Is it not wisdom before purchasing elsewhere to see what the stores of our own town have to offer?

The prosperity of each of us is tied up with the prosperity of his neighbor.

Acquaint yourself with what the stores of your own town are offering by reading the advertisements in The Union Advocate.

MILDREDINA HAIR REMEDY
GROWS HAIR AND WE PROVE IT BY HUNDREDS OF TESTIMONIALS

It never fails to produce the desired results. It enlivens and invigorates the hair glands and tissues of the scalp, resulting in a continuous and increasing growth of the hair. Letters of praise are continually coming in from nearly all parts of the country stating that Mildredina Hair Remedy has renewed the growth of hair in cases that were considered absolutely hopeless. A lady from Chicago writes: "After a short trial my hair stopped falling and I now have a lovely head of hair, very heavy and over one and a half yards long."

Mildredina Hair Remedy stimulates the scalp, makes it healthy and keeps it so. It is the greatest scalp invigorator known. It is a wholesome medicine for both the hair and the scalp. Even a small bottle of it will put more genuine life in your hair than a dozen bottles of any other hair tonic ever made. It shows results from the very start.

Now on sale at every drug store and toilet store in the land. 50c. and $1.00.

WEDNESDAY JUNE 9TH, 1915

MUNITIONS RATHER THAN MEN

While of course no one would wish to say or do anything which could ever so slightly interfere with the recruiting campaigns now being carried on in this country, yet in view of the fact of Mr. Lloyd George's statement that it is ammunition and other supplies that are more needed than men at the present time, would it not be well to try and stimulate production along these, and kindred lines, rather than take away men who might be engaged in them? Mr. Lloyd George said at Liverpool last Friday that England had all the men she needed at present, but she badly needed shells, without which the men would be of little use.

The remarks of the Minister of Munitions to give Mr. Lloyd George his new title, directs attention to the production of war supplies in this country. Some months ago, a vigorous campaign in shell production was started in Canada, which has not only stimulated industry, but has been of tremendous assistance to the Allies. From every factory or shop that has the equipment, from the steel plants in Nova Scotia right through to Vancouver shells are being turned out. Many smaller concerns have adapted their equipment to shell making, while others are making parts.

The total production of shells in this country is at present about 30,000 a day, and it is planned to raise this output to 50,000 as soon as practicable. Two kinds are being made, shrapnel and explosive, and at some places, shells of the most destructive kind are being made. The orders so far placed in Canada by the Allies are close on $2,000,000 in value, and they will be continually added to. Sixty thousand men are already employed at shell making and more are needed. Upwards of 600,000 shells have already been sent to the front from this side, and are giving every satisfaction to all but the Germans. Several industries are working at high pressure in the manufacture of machine guns, rifles and other equipment.

So that in the anxiety which exists to impress upon every unattached young man the idea that his King and Country need him, the fact must not be overlooked that equipment is wanted even more urgently than men.

THE EFFECT OF THE WAR ON GERMANY

That the war will end with a bloody revolution in Germany is the opinion of more than one public man well versed with conditions in that country. Few men perhaps are better able to gauge German public sentiment than Dr. Sarolyea, a Belgian savant who in 1912 published a book entitled "The Anglo-German Problem" in which he foreshadowed with remarkable correctness the probability that Germany would in 1915 attempt to crush England in the same way that she overthrew France in 1870, and in that book expressed the belief that the war of the nations would terminate in a civil upheaval in Germany.

Dr. Sarolyea likens the German national mind during the past 40 or 50 years to that of a lunatic confined in an asylum. He notes that the average lunatic goes through five stages. In the first stage, the victim of lunacy is seized with one fixed idea, that of his own personal importance. This stage he calls "The delirium of greatness." For the past 40 or 50 years Germany has been obsessed with the delirium of greatness. She imagined that she was the salt of the earth and the Kaiser believed that he was the co-partner of the Almighty. This delirium has been taught at the Universities, from the pulpit and in the press, until the people have come to believe that they are the chosen race.

The lunatic in the second stage, the delirium of persecution, tries to impress his beliefs upon the community. The community does not accept him at his own valuation, and he therefore imagines that he is the victim of persecution, that every one around him is trying to do him out of his rights. Germany has passed through this stage. She has tried to convert the world to her style of culture; but the world has not been brought to believe that Germany was right and all the other nations wrong.

In the case of the individual lunatic, this stage is rapidly followed by the delirium of homicide. He lies in wait to kill when opportunity offers. This is the stage reached by Germany at the present time. Two other stages complete the course of the average lunatic. The foregoing stages give way first to the delirium of melancholia or complete depression, then later to the final stage, the delirium of suicide, when the victim of derangement tries to take his own life. Dr. Sarolyea believes that Germany will take the same course. When the German people find their army can make no headway against the Allies, and when the truth is borne home to them that they cannot fulfil their supposed mission, a period of national depression will set in culminating in national suicide, which will take the form of a terrible revolution, in which vengeance will be wreaked upon those who have misled them.

TOWN IMPROVEMENT

At a meeting of the Town Improvement Association of Sussex last week, President H. A. White was able to report that about a hundred young trees had been planted this spring, to further beautify the town. Rev. W. F. Parker brought up the question of the protection of song birds, and the Record report says:—"Mr. Parker showed how very useful these birds are as a means of destroying the fly pest, one bird alone accounting for over 3,000 flies per day. It was suggested that the game laws be studied to see if the destruction of song birds is a criminal offence in New Brunswick as in other provinces of Canada, and if so, to commence an active campaign against those, both young and old, who think it good sport to shoot and wound these innocent helpers in our national health. A committee was formed to deal fully with this matter."

Might not our Newcastle Town Improvement League take up work along a similar line?

THE ZEPPELIN RAIDS

Judging from the cables which come from London, the visits of the German airships cause very little anxiety to the English people. The general opinion seems to be that the attacks so far have been merely scouting trips preparatory to the much advertised attack on London which Germany has announced her intention to make. Every trip of the Zeppelins so far has been to some isolated spot on the coast, where it is known that no preparations have been made for defence against them. But when the attack on London is made, the aerial commander will find that every preparation has been made to give him and his fleet a warm welcome.

Since the war started the Zeppelin, though still a very formidable craft for night attack, has relatively greatly diminished in its powers. Prior to the outbreak of hostilities it was estimated that a Zeppelin flying at 5,000 feet was practically safe from artillery fire. The upward range of ordinary cannon is from 5,000 to 6,000 feet. On this calculation most of the German airships were designed. But the evolution of the aero-gun has completely set at naught the rules by which a Zeppelin could be built to fly within a mile of the house-tops and go scot-free of shells. The anti-aircraft cannon will shoot high explosives to the great height of 8,000 feet, and with fairly accurate aim. Driven to this height, or possibly 9,000 feet, for safety, the German marauder would find it extremely difficult to drop bombs with any likelihood of hitting the object aimed at.

ARE THESE LIVES WASTED?

(Ottawa Evening Journal)

Sir George Foster, who seldom speaks without uttering something worth while, touched upon a redeeming phase of the war, when, in his fine address to the 38th Battalion recently, he spoke of the fact that conflict and death had brought about spiritual awakening, had caused men to estimate life's values differently, to ponder things heretofore unthought of. For there is nothing more manifest than that this world upheaval has brought about a stimulating quickening power whereby we are enabled to see a little more clearly into the inner nature of things. We are beginning to think of things which never before challenged our understanding. During the long and easy years of peace and material prosperity with its enervating softness, perhaps too many of us were led to endow with too high a value the mere fact of living. The graver issues of the world made no appeal. Of course, in life too often is proved the well known picture of Matthew Arnold:—

"Most men eddy about
Here and there—eat and drink,
Chatter and love and hate,
Gather and squander, are raised
Aloft, are hurled in the dust,
Striving blindly, achieving
Nothing, and then they die—
Perish; and no one asks
Who or what they have been
More than he asks what waves
In the moonlit solitudes mid
Of the midmost ocean, have swelled
Foam'd for a moment and gone."

Today we are being taught to weigh life's values differently, to measure its success, not by the table of years lived, but by the purposes triumphantly achieved. Often in our discussions of the war and its horrors we speak of the "awful waste of lives." And yet, what do we mean by wasted lives? Lives that do not seem to have attained a goal set by human standards, cut off before a full consummation of years, as the flowers are cut off before they reach full maturity. That is one of the closed books, one of the mysteries of life with which human reason cannot cope. Men at all times have felt its perplexity as poignantly as we do today. The broken column was the old symbol for it; the unfulfilled ideal. But most of us as Christians have attained to a hope which, in the past failed to reach—

"That nothing walks with aimless feet,
That not one life shall be destroyed,
Or cast as rubbish to the void,
When God hath made the pile complete."

Does not the matter appear in this wise with the countless lives sacrificed on the far-off plains of France and Flanders? What purpose had they in leaving home, splendid types of manhood before whom the future must have stretched so alluring? What ideal beckoned them on as they turned to the din and death of battle? Willingly, eagerly they offered the "last full measure of devotion" in the highest enterprise men can undertake. Gladly they made the supreme sacrifice, faced the Great Unknown for the ideals of Justice, Righteousness, Humanity. So fighting, so falling with faces to the sun, can we think of their lives as wasted? Had they lived to the ripest age to what loftier purpose could they have consecrated their years? These ideals for which they lay down their lives, are they realities at all, or only vain figments of the imagination? If so, then the cynic is right, and all is vanity. We are fools to w. ste, where we might enjoy. But no! We dimly see that the heights are only won by struggle, that in some strange incomprehensible fashion suffering and apparent waste are woven into the very tissue of life. The reason of it we cannot know, but this is our faith.

"We have but faith, we do not know,
For knowledge is of things we see
But yet we trust it comes from Thee;
A beam in darkness; let it grow."
And so, as during the coming weeks and months we read the lengthening lists of our heroic dead, let us not speak or think of wasted lives. "Did I not lead them straight?" asked a dying young soldier of his commanding officer. Is any life wasted which thus freely offers itself upon the altar of duty? Rather has it been greatly lived.

REXTON ITEMS

Of Interest to Readers From Our Regular Correspondent.

June 7—The community was startled this morning to hear of the death of David Thompson, one of our respected citizens. Mr. Thompson who was seventy three years of age, had been an occasional sufferer from asthma and about two weeks ago contracted a heavy cold, followed by an attack of asthma to which he succumbed. He is survived by a widow who was a Miss Lawton of Richibucto, three daughters, Mrs. Allan Hains of Bathurst, Mrs. Thomas Forster and Mrs. George Beattie of this town, and a son William Thompson of Richibucto, also two brothers, William Thompson of Campbellton, and Tom Thompson of Richibucto; and three sisters, Mrs. McIntyre of Blackville; Mrs. James Long and Miss Dianna Thompson of Richibucto. The funeral will take place Wednesday afternoon. Interment will be made in the Union Cemetery at Richibucto.

The regular meeting of the Red Cross Society was held in the public hall Thursday evening and was largely attended. The reading of accounts showed a small amount on hand, and it was decided to hold a supper on Wednesday June 16th to raise funds.

Mrs. David Palmer is visiting her husband of the 26th battalion at St. John.
Mrs. M. Gordon is visiting her sister, Mrs. H. H. Warman at Moncton.
Miss Pugsley of Halifax is the guest of Mrs. Alex. McGregor, Upper Rexton.

A number of our citizens attended the dance at Richibucto Friday evening.
G. C. Machum and Miss D. R. Smallwood who are teaching here, have tendered their resignations.

WORRY AND WEAKNESS

Often Indicate Over-work, and a Run Down Nervous System

Overwork and worry have an evil effect on the system and often give rise to nervousness and sleeplessness. Other signs include a weak back, headaches and indigestion. In time if matters are neglected a complete breakdown of the nervous system follows. On every hand one can observe victims of this state of nervous exhaustion who are at a loss to know what to do with themselves, their nervous debilitated state having baffled all ordinary treatment.

If you are a victim of exhausted nerves, if your symptoms are as described above, you need Dr. Williams' Pink Pills because they are a powerful nerve tonic. Their strengthening action on weak nerves is due to the fact that they enrich and build up the blood which the nerves are fed. Under the tonic influence of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills all traces of nervous weakness disappear together with the headaches, the insomnia, the feeling of intense weakness and depression of spirits that mark the victim of nervous ailments. Here is the proof. Mr. Henry Marr, Port Felix, N. S., says: "It gives me greatest pleasure to testify as to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When I began their use I was a physical wreck; my nerves were all unstrung, I suffered from frequent headaches and backaches, and was almost wholly unfit for work. I had tried several remedies without success, when I finally decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. I took six boxes and they made me a well man."

What these Pills did for Mr. Marr they will do for every other weak and nervous man. If given a fair trial. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

More Recruits Secured

PROVINCIAL HAPPENINGS

Canada is making 30,000 shells a day for the Allies' armies.

The body of an unknown man was found in the St. John river at Fredericton Saturday morning.

The I. C. R. is calling for tenders for twenty large freight and passenger locomotives, and also 1,000 standard steel frame box cars.

Recruits are continually being added to the 55th Battalion at Sussex. About 175 were added last week, thirty of them coming from Campbellton.

A forest fire, which was set by a spark from a locomotive on the Fredericton and Grand Lake Railway Thursday afternoon, destroyed fifteen acres of timberland at Lower St. Mary's belonging to Mr. A. E. Hannon of Fredericton.

Private Driscoll, of the 26th. St. John, met with a peculiar accident Thursday evening. Some matches in his trousers pocket ignited and set fire to potash tablets in the pocket, burning him severely. He was taken to the hospital for treatment.

R. M. Hope, Chatham manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, has volunteered for the war, and asks for an appointment as paymaster in the Canadian artillery. He proposes, however, to go in any capacity.

Friends of Miss Emma Humble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Humble, of Cross Creek, have received word that she has volunteered to go to the war zone, in Northern France and Belgium as a nurse. She is to sail from New York on the 21st instant with a number of doctors and nurses and will go to Holland, later being attached to a British Base Hospital.

UTILIZED WILD CATTLE TO CAPTURE POSITION

Fifty Wild Cattle Aided Italian Troops to Break Austrian Entanglement.

Rome, (via Paris), June 5—Fifty wild cattle materially aided Italian troops in capturing a strong Austrian position on Monte Corno, according to the Corriere D'Italia.

The Austrian garrison had surrounded itself with a high barbed wire entanglements, against which the Italians drove the cattle. Startled by exploding bombs the animals attacked the entanglements with their horns and hooves, and in a quarter of an hour had swept away the obstacle, so that the Italians were able to gain the summit easily.

The charge of cattle, for which no previous military experience had prepared them, is said to have hampered the Austrians.

COUNCIL CONSIDERS MATTER

hospital, but he could not see where money was to come from for new plant. He would like to see an all-day service if it could be made to pay. We wanted to find out cost. Electricity for power purposes was generally a failure in small towns. Ald. McGrath understood that the W. & L. Committee had searched into the circumstances and found out about the extra expense and probable income. If it were convenient to the hospital representatives to wait, he would move. That a committee of three, consisting of two aldermen and the Mayor, be appointed to ascertain the cost of putting sufficient new plant to furnish an all-day service.

Mr. McCurdy said that Ald. McGrath's suggestion was a very good one. Within a very few weeks the exact additional expense could be found, and in the meantime there would be ample opportunity to circulate the petition. It was wise to have the committee appointed moved for by Ald. McGrath.

Ald. Doyle seconded Ald. McGrath's motion. Ald. Ritchie said that it was not necessary to enquire into the matter further. Was not Mr. McCurdy satisfied at the Committee meeting that an electric elevator was impracticable?

Mr. McCurdy—No: I was not. The expert was agent for a $2500 hydraulic elevator. The Mayor said he himself had been going to ask what the expert's business was. He was much pleased with the interest shown by Mr. McCurdy, and all the Aldermen, and he would be glad to work on the proposed Com. The cost of supplying power was quite high—it did not now pay interest on the money invested. The money invested in a new plant might pay better. If it would not he would not be for it.

Ald. Creaghan asked if it would not be possible to get power from the Universal Radio Syndicate's plant. Mr. McCurdy replied that it was not. It was the property of a private corporation, and they did not know what they were going to do. If the Government should take it over, the hospital could probably get a concession, but the change to government ownership was not likely to soon take place. The British Post office department, which also owns the Telegraph lines, was anxious to take over the Irish Radio Station, but in Canada, where the telegraph lines are private property, there was opposition to a change. Possibly after the war the U. R. S. will be compelled to sell power by the force of circumstances.

Ald. Ritchie said that he had understood from the expert the other night that electric power was out of the question, and he still thought that the electric elevator was not practicable. Would there be much difference in cost between electric and hydraulic elevator? Mr. McCurdy—Not much. Council resumed regular session, and Ald. McGrath's motion, that a Com. of 3, including the Mayor, be appointed to look into the matter of cost of installing and running a 24-hour electric system, was carried, 6 to 1. Ald. Ritchie voting nay.

The committee are Ald. McGrath, Ald. Mackay and the Mayor. Adjourned.

Joseph Ingram Died Wednesday

Death Came as Relief After Illness of Ten Months

The death of Joseph Ingram occurred on Wednesday evening, at his residence, after an illness of about ten months of heart trouble. The late Mr. Ingram was a well-known barber, having carried on a business here for fifteen years.

The funeral was held on Friday afternoon to St. James cemetery, Rev. S. J. MacArthur conducting the services. There was a large attendance. The Presbyterian choir attended in a body and the hymns sung were: "Asleep in Jesus" and "Peace, Perfect Peace." The pallbearers were ex-Ald. Wm. Ferguson, Horace G. Kethro, Nell O'Brien, W. L. Durick, Jas. O'Donnell and B. F. Maltby. He is survived by his wife Lucretia Mildred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Barran, of Millerton; four sisters, Mrs. Russell McKnight, Winnipeg; Mrs. John Petrie, Maple Glen, N. B.; Misses Mary and Maud, Newcastle; and four brothers, George, in Wisconsin; William, in Vancouver, and Henry and John, of Newcastle.

Annual Meeting of S. S. Association

N. B. and P. E. I. Sunday School Association Annual Meeting Monday Afternoon and Eve'g

The annual meeting of the Newcastle-Nelson Parish branch of the N. B. & P. E. I. Sunday School Association, was held in the Methodist Vestry Monday afternoon and evening. Rev. S. J. MacArthur presiding. Representatives present at the first session were:

St. James' Presbyterian, Newcastle—Rev. S. J. MacArthur, Miss Adelaide Stables
Methodist, Newcastle—Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. H. S. Leard, Mrs. T. J. Jeffrey and Miss Jean Ashford.
Baptist, Newcastle—Mrs. L. R. Hetherington

Rev. W. A. Ross, Field Secretary, was present, and assisted in the program.

Encouraging reports were received from the 4 Newcastle schools.

Rev. S. J. MacArthur argued that boys over ten years of age needed male teachers. Teacher Training classes were necessary, and community Teachers' meetings. All pastors should meet regularly and discuss S. S. work. Barclay's 1st standard Teacher Training Manual (604) was the best book of its kind.

Mrs. Harrison reported on the Home Department and Mrs. Hetherington on the Cradle Roll.

The following were appointed a nominating com.: Mesdames Harrison, Hetherington and Leard. The evening meeting was much more largely attended both by representatives and the public. The following recommendation of the Nominating Committee was accepted: Pres.—Rev. S. J. MacArthur

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED

Look Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

"Italian Mother Ship For Submarines"

The participation of Italy brings to the Allies great additional strength both in the army and in the navy. That the Italian forces are modern in every sense is amply shown in many ways. In the matter of communication for instance, signor Guglielmo Marconi the wizard of wireless telegraphy and more recently of wireless telephony, has been called to Rome and put in sole charge of telephonic services in the field. Again, in connection with the navy, the Italian naval staff have built and thoroughly tested a vessel of a very exceptional type. It is known as a mother ship for submarines and is designed to salvage and take care of injured submarines and their crews. From outside appearances, it is much like the ordinary boat except at the rear. The rear is built like a catamaran, and the rear of the hull, between the two parts of the catamaran, is provided with a large bulk head door opening into a long cylindrical chamber which runs nearly the length of the hull and is provided with ways to receive a submarine. Within the hull and along one side of this chamber, is provided a workshop fully equipped, on the opposite side is a large sick bay for the injured crew, and at other points are arranged the various other quarters for the ships forces and supplies. We will suppose that a submarine has been injured and foundered. The mother ship starts at once for the scene. It locates the submarine, attaches hoisting cables, hoists it up and in between the catamaran stern sections, opens the bulk head door, and draws the submarine into the cylindrical chamber. The door is then closed, the submarine crew liberated, and repair work started.

STORY OF A STORE

Tom Tasker had a corner store. He got it from his father who built up his trade from the farmers that spent their money for things made in Canada. Taskerville grew into a little town of cement sidewalks and electric lights. Tom's business developed and he got an automobile, a $10,000 house, and a big new store with plate glass, patent show-cases and a stenographer. The blacksmith shop grew into a carriage factory; the local cabinet-maker became a furniture manufacturer. A few years ago when a wide-awake man discovered that the country around Taskerville had the very best kind of soil and climate for raising tomatoes, cucumbers, field peas, corn and small fruits, and reckoned it a good stroke of business to start a canning factory in Taskerville, the farmers fetched their truck to the factory which became as good a purveyor of canned goods as any in Canada. Its products were found in the mining camps and the kitchens of the wealthy that went to grand opera. But whenever any farmer went to the store of Tom Tasker, built up from their farms in two generations, they never could find a blessed tin of the Taskerville factory's goods on his shelves. When they asked him why he wouldn't encourage home industry and stock up with home goods, he said he reckoned he knew his own business. Wherefore the farm folk round about Taskerville boycotted the Tasker store, and Tom Tasker made an assignment. Which, to most sensible folks' way of thinking was the only way to prove to the Tasker intellect that you can't expect both boots to fit the same foot.

This is a homely illustration and localized to Taskerville; but if it doesn't prove that it's the business of the retailer in Canada to keep on his shelves the goods made in Canada by Canadian workmen at a time when Canada is making the fight of her life to stay industrially efficient—then there must be something wrong with the argument. Think it over.

"We came quick, and we're both tired; but if those are the orders, why back we go," growled the fellow.

"Yes, you must have been tired. And I suppose you are not any too well paid for your work? Stop a moment. You took this journey on a mistake of mine. When you get to St. Petersburg, go to my banker—I'll give you a check for five hundred roubles; half for your comrade."

She went to her escritoire in the adjoining room, and wrote the check, and gave it to the man, who went off with a smile on his brutal face. She saw him leave the room with a feeling of relief. It seemed to her that as long as he was in Paris, Boris was not absolutely safe.

"Thank Heaven!" she murmured. "Now for the letter to General Boroff."

It was not an easy letter for her to write, and all things considered, it is not to be wondered at that she made several attempts before she could construct a missive that would just suit her.

There were several things to be considered. In the first place, General Boroff not being in love with Boris Ipanoff could not be expected to take as lenient a view of the duel as she had done. Vladimir had not deceived his father as he had her. Indeed, as she thought it over, she had no doubt that the father had known all along of the relation Vladimir bore to the wife of Boris.

That, no doubt, was the clew to the guilt of Boris. Then the general was not a man for ever to be angry with impunity. It would never do to tell him that she was in love with Boris, and was going to marry him.

She detested the general, thinking of how he had made use of her when he knew the baseness of his son toward her, and she would have defied him on her own account, but after the episode of the two murderers coming to Paris with power to kill Boris, she felt uneasy for him.

How to write the letter so as to let him know that she had withdrawn from the pursuit of the person guilty of the death of his son, and at the same time to convince him that Boris was not the person who that puzzled her. She wrote and rewrote before she could settle on the following:

"My dear General:—We have narrowly escaped a terrible mistake. Everything was arranged with the two men as agreed upon, and by this morning the event would have been un fait accompli, had I not, at the last moment, discovered that I had been grossly misinformed. Boris Ipanoff did not murder Vladimir, I have, therefore, sent the men home again.

"I have received such a shock in consequence of the narrow escape from the murder of an innocent man that I shall no longer be able to take an active part in the pursuit of the man at whose hands Vladimir received his death-wound. I hope, however, that you will keep me informed of any discoveries you may make."

She signed this, and prepared it for the mail. It reached General Boroff before the men did, and by this morning the event would have been un fait accompli, had I not, at the last moment, discovered that I had been grossly misinformed.

It seemed as if a little more only was required to entirely wipe out that ugly few days. She looked up at Marka with a smile as she entered, evidently with something on her mind.

"Madam," she said, and stopped. "Yes, Marka," said the princess, encouragingly.

"Er—er—madam—"

"Marka, you have a favor to ask. What is it?" asked the princess, gayly.

"It is not for myself, but for my friend."

"I am sorry for that, but ask anyhow."

"It is about Gretch."

"Gretch! Dear me! I had quite forgotten Gretch. I have not seen him for days, and now I do want to see him."

"But, madam, he has a favor to ask—a confession—"

The princess looked up quickly, and laughed merrily.

to the brandy bottle, it was no longer with any distrust of mind. The brandy had accomplished the purpose for which he had taken it. It had given him peace.

The stairs which led to his apartment gave him some trouble, but he accomplished the ascent in the course of time, and without making one impatient exclamation. If he stretched himself in his bed with infinite care, but without removing his clothing, it was because he was at that moment superior to the mere conventionalities of life.

It took Gretch three days to recover his mental and moral tone. The first day after he recovered consciousness he did not care whether he lay with his clothes on or off. Life that day was at its best a jockey. The second day he suffered agonies of remembrance. He thought of Marka all that day. The third day he recalled the fact that he knew very well that the Russian government would never excuse him because he was in love with the maid of the princess. The Russian government, as he very distinctly understood, did not take the divine passion of love into account by reckoning with its employes.

He knew very well that the Russian government would never excuse him because he was in love with the maid of the princess. The Russian government, as he very distinctly understood, did not take the divine passion of love into account by reckoning with its employes.

The fumes of the brandy being spent, he was no longer reckless. A certain indistinctness in the lapse of time since he saw Marka rendered resignation more easy. He loved her as much as ever, but there were other considerations that shared his thoughts with her. One thing he decided to do. That was, go to the princess and beg her to excuse him for this one time. He did not resolve never to think any more of Marka, but he did promise himself to treat her no longer as an attainable thing. He would worship her silently and sorrowfully. The main thing of a practicable nature was to reinstate himself in the favor of the princess.

It was impossible to recover his beard and the dye would not yet come out of the mustache and imperial. How they made him recall Marka's laughter. So there was nothing for it but to present himself with the mustache and imperial as they were, and let her see that he could not help seeing that they were terribly out of keeping with the cut of his mustache and imperial. He knew Marka would shriek at such a sight, and he had no mind to see her laugh again at his expense.

The Parisian clothes he loathed, but he tried them on. Perhaps it was because he had taken the extreme style out of them by using them for night clothes, or it might be that they suited him better than his old ones. Anyhow he looked less absurd in them, so he wore them.

It was the fourth day after his unhappy resort to the brandy bottle that he presented himself at the palace. He was extremely dejected and subdued, but he bore himself with as brave an air as he could.

He had intended to be civil, but his distant, with Marka, but when he found himself alone in her presence, as he was at his very first entrance into the palace, he turned about to look at her. But that was only an impulse, and he faced about again at her first words.

"Where have you been, Gretch? I was afraid you were sick. I am so glad you are here."

Yes, she said nothing less than that. Gretch did wheel about and stare at her in amazement. After all, her tone, more than her words, surprised him. It was serious and earnest.

The fact was just here. The distress of the two lovers in a sphere above her had softened Marka wonderfully, and then, moreover, she was in trouble, and girls in trouble like a man to lean on. Marka could trust Gretch, and since he had so successfully mimicked Monsieur Paul, he had risen in her estimation.

"You are glad," ejaculated Gretch, doubting his ears.

Marka did not notice the tone especially, and went closer to him, whispering:

"Have you been on business for the princess?"

Gretch started at that, but he replied, with great honesty:

"No, I have been trying to kill myself with brandy because you would not love me."

At that Marka started. Then she said, compassionately:

"Do you love me so much as that? I am sorry I was so hard with you. But never mind that now. Do you know anything about the trouble we are in?"

Of course he had not the slightest idea of it. So she told him, thinking he might have some secret knowledge that might help them out, but he was as much in the dark as she was.

However, that led them to several confidential conversations, in the course of which he discovered that she had not been laughing at him, but at what she considered his exquisite imitation of Monsieur Paul. Do you think he undecieved her? Not he.

But he also was reminded of the note she had given him. He knew he had delivered no note, but he said nothing about it until he had gone home and searched every part of his room. Afterward he questioned her carefully and adroitly, and tried hard to gain some recollection of what could have become of that slip which he now was satisfied was, by being missing, the cause of all the trouble.

When, at last, he could not find the note nor think of where he could have lost it, he decided to tell Marka. It happened that he told her on the morning when the princess was so happy.

Marka scolded him roundly, though she forgave him a great deal when she learned that it was during his despairing moments that he had lost the paper; but she insisted that he should tell her mistress. And that is why he wished to see the princess. And, no doubt, it is clear enough why Marka stammered and blushed when she spoke of Gretch to her mistress.

At first the princess refused to believe that it was Gretch who stood before her, but Marka not only vouched for it, but told the reason of it in her own way, and that made the princess laugh heartily enough. She was so ready to be happy that morning.

"But the confession, Gretch; what of that?"

It was not about Marka, as she had expected, but of the telegram. She listened and questioned and wondered. Feared a little, too; but finally decided that it did not matter after all, since everything had happened right in the end, and so she did not only forgive Gretch, but made herself very happy and them, too, perhaps by teasing them about each other.

Why should she trouble herself about the telegram. He must really have sent it while he was drunk, and have forgotten it afterward.

CHAPTER XXI

The Countess Olga had conceived a great fondness for the Princess Fedora, but she loved Ipanoff with a devotedness that had enabled her to listen to Lasinsky when he so grossly insulted her, and would have enabled her to assist Ipanoff to secure the love of Fedora.

She liked Fedora, but she loved Ipanoff. She would sacrifice herself for Ipanoff, and she would equally sacrifice Fedora to aid him. When she wrote her letter to St. Petersburg it was with the memory of the fact that Fedora had at the first confessed to some secret purpose in being in Paris.

The countess was of the opinion, after what she had heard from Ipanoff of the duel with Vladimir Boroff, that it might have some relation to the purpose of the princess in coming to Paris. That is she suspected it vaguely after having been to see the princess on her errand of pacification.

The real truth of the matter did not begin to dawn upon her, and her only reason for having any suspicion was her knowledge of the devious ways of the Russian diplomatic and police system. Knowing nothing of the relations of Fedora to Vladimir it was impossible to conjecture how the Princess Fedora Romanoff could be mixed up in any such matter as his fatal duel with Boris Ipanoff.

She wondered if Lasinsky could by any possible chance be an agent of the government, but passed that as unlikely. Then what was the meaning of his sudden rupture with her, after taking so much trouble and so much risk, too, in trying to gain her assistance.

She wished she had slashed his face with her whip when he spoke to her as no other man had ever dared to do, but she did not quite despair of some day having her revenge for the insult.

In the meantime she tried to see, and have a talk with him, but he carefully avoided her. He had watched Boris enough to know that he applied in vain at the palace for admission, and that he surreptitiously met the maid in the street.

The ravages of despair in the face of the man he was pleased to call his rival delighted him beyond measure. He knew the Russian government too well not to be sure that a telegram from the Princess Fedora to General Boroff must mean something of moment.

Ipanoff was evidently guilty of something, and since Fedora took the trouble to send such a telegram it must also be that something would happen to Ipanoff which would certainly not be pleasant.

He could do nothing but wait, but he waited with the satisfaction of one who has done all he could and a great deal more than could have been expected of him.

The Countess Olga would say nothing of what she suspected to Boris for two reasons. She could prove nothing, and he would not do any less than hate her if she went to him without proof. It was likely enough that he would hate her if she went to him with proof, but that she would risk, since she was willing to sacrifice anything to help him.

If she had gone to him she would probably have learned that he was reconciled and more than reconciled to Fedora, but she did not go to him, contenting herself with the report of a footman whom she sent to his apartments, not to ask after him, but to discover by ocular proof that he was still there and well.

She remained away because she did not know what to say to him of the result of her visit. She did, indeed, think he would come to her to find out, but the fact that he did not was added reason why she should not go to him.

Several days passed in this way. Bristled days to Boris and Fedora, but wretched ones to Olga. She watched the mails anxiously before there was any possibility of an answer coming to her. But one day she looked for letters was there. She tore it open feverishly, and read it. There were but few words in it.

She had not expected many. It read:

"The Princess Fedora Romanoff was to have married the Count Vladimir Boroff. He was murdered. She is now working in conjunction with General Boroff to discover the murderer. Do not betray this to anybody."

"My God!" cried Olga, "and Ipanoff killed him! If she harms him I will tear her heart out with my own hands."

She rang her bell violently, and when the footman answered it, exclaimed:

"Quick! my carriage!"

She ran to her room, and, without waiting for her maid, began to throw her wraps on.

"The horses!" she muttered. "She would be revenged on him for the worthless life of her lover. Oh, I see it all now. It was all a part of a cruel plan. Ah, she duped me with her sweet, pretty ways, but she did not reckon on woman's wit when suspicion was roused. She coaxed his secret from him, and now only waits for his destruction. My God! am I too late?"

If the lovers had only given a thought to the woman who had the good of them both at heart, she might not have leaped into her carriage crying:

"To the apartments of the Count Ipanoff."

She would not have leaped back in her carriage, gazing that the horses did not fly, in order that she might the sooner tell Boris Ipanoff that the woman he had loved had been the fiancée of the man he had killed, and was an agent of the police to compass his destruction.

CHAPTER XXII

A happier man than Boris Ipanoff there could hardly be. Now that peace had settled in the heart of Fedora she was all and more than he had ever dreamed a woman could be.

It was not only that every good impulse of her nature was developed in the sunshine of their mutual love and adoration, but she was endeavoring by every device known to her to atone to him for the wrong she had nearly done him. Never was woman more humble in her devotion than she was, never a woman more eager to please.

All of that pretty tyranny which a woman feels it her right to practice with her lover she eschewed. She would have been glad had he been tyrannical with her in order that she might then prove to him how completely she was his by cheerfully submitting to the most unreasonable demands.

But he was as eager as she to please and worship, and he only laughed when she urged him to test her complaisance. It was so delightful to him that this woman, who was strong and self-reliant, as few women are, should give herself up to him and his will so absolutely. The only way he could show his appreciation of it was by doing as much for her.

It was a loving rivalry that made life a paradise to them, and it was only the moments when they were apart from each other that they realized they were actually on this earth. And even then it was a glorified earth to them.

Occasionally it troubled Fedora that she had such a secret from her lover, but she kept promising herself that at some fitting time she would tell him, but as she shrank from doing it, the fitting time kept removing itself further into the future, and it was not yet told.

At the time when Olga was hurrying to him with the secret which Fedora should have told, he was in his apartments beguiling the hours of separation by singing some of those Russian peasant songs which had become a means between them of telling in another way the love they felt.

He did not move from the piano when the card of the countess was brought to him.

"Ask her to come up," he had said to his valet, and to himself he said, "That good Olga! I owe her something for my happiness, and I have neglected her shamefully. I believe it is true that the happy are the most ungrateful."

And then he turned again and played and sang softly one of the love songs which Fedora liked best. "My poor Boris!" Olga stood watching him from the doorway, her face set with anger for the woman and pity for him. He wheeled quickly on the stool, and ran toward her with extended hands and happy, smiling face.

"I am so glad to see you, my friend!" he cried. "I hardly know how much I owe you, but if it were only your good will that would be enough. I am so happy, Olga, and you will rejoice with me. Forgive the raptures of a lover. Come, sit here, and let us talk of her," and he smiled gayly.

"Of her!" said Olga.

"Of Fedora. It was all such a dreadful mistake; but it is right now. Olga, she is an angel! Do all lovers talk so? How stupid it must be for you. But you are glad, are you not?"

"You are reconciled to Fedora? She loves you? You are happy?"

"Loves me! Happy! I know six languages, Olga, and all of them will not supply me with words enough to realize how much she loves, how happy I am."

What could it mean? Olga was too truly anxious to serve him to be precipitate, but she could only think that he was being still further duped.

"Let me understand you," she said. "Fedora Romanoff loves you?"

"If she only said so I might doubt," said Boris, "but she proves it by every look and act. I forgive your incredulity," he said, laughing, "for I think it wonderful and surprising enough that she should love me; but I can't even at a distance from her doubt it. I know she loves me. And, ah! how I love her!"

"But she said to me—ah, I do not comprehend at all."

Loris laughed gayly. His happiness was terrible to her.

"Of course you do not comprehend. Did she say perhaps that she did not love me? I can quite believe it, for she has told me that tried to hate me, but thank God! she did not succeed. Ah, Olga, she was near! In those days, and so was I, but who would not suffer ten times as much for such bliss as this of being loved? Why don't you laugh at me? I give you permission. Is this the Boris Ipanoff who had such a ready tongue for the disparagement of your sex? It is the same, and he glories in his shame. Why do you not smile?"

"My God! Boris, I cannot smile. I am dazed. Will Fedora see me? I go to her, do you think?"

His face lighted up.

"Will you go now? Come, that is well. Now I have an excuse. I will take you. Let us go at once. Olga, you are my good angel!"

"I will be if I can," muttered Olga.

"Eh?" said he.

"I must go alone, I wish to talk with her."

"Go alone! Come, this is serious. What is the matter, Olga? You do, indeed, look distressed."

"What is the matter? How can I tell? I do not know. I know nothing. But I will find out."

"Olga," said he, soberly, seeing by her expression that she was much moved by something, "you will say nothing to Fedora that will disturb her? She has suffered terribly, and I would keep everything from her that would cause her the least anxiety. If you know anything tell it to me. I am almost her husband—we are to be married in a few days."

"In a few days!" said Olga, wonderingly. "Do not be alarmed, Boris. I will say nothing to her that she may not hear with safety. Let me go. I would like to congratulate her."

Loris shook his head. He had begun to have a profound distrust of his own powers of judging women. What Olga intended he could not fathom. He was quite satisfied, however, that she was kindly disposed toward Fedora as well as himself, so he only said:

"Assure me it is something you can tell Fedora as well as I."

"It is far better that I should tell her."

"Ah, you have made me uneasy, Olga. Well, go, then. Will you not return to me from there? She may not be quite well, you know. I have not seen her since last night, and shall not see her again until this afternoon."

HOW THE WOMEN ARE GIVING HELP

A Matter of Intuition—Sustain the Pay Roll by Purchasing "Made-in-Canada" Goods

What are the women of Canada doing about the "Made-in-Canada" movement? As usual, more than meets the eye. There never was a good movement without women in it somewhere. When the women of Canada undertake to put their sanction on the campaign that means prosperity to their husbands, sons and brothers, the success of that campaign is certain. In this case that intuition, counts for more than all the logic of well-constructed arguments. Women are natural economists—as well as instinctive spenders. When they endorse a policy of buying goods made by Canadians for the sake of Canadian homes, they do it as a matter of plain instinct. You don't have to reason to a woman that it's her duty to support her own cause before anybody else's. She takes it for granted.

All this movement needed to carry it with flying colors to the winning post of national prosperity was the intuitive backing of the intelligent womanhood of Canada. To them it's as obvious as the smile that disarms opposition, or the tears that conquer an enemy. There isn't an intelligent woman in Canada who doesn't stand behind this campaign to boost Canadian prosperity. Any mere man who feels doubtful or lukewarm about it had better introduce the subject to his wife. One gleam of her intuitive perception will be a match for all his lame and limping arguments to the contrary. This is no cause that divides families. Buying "Made-in-Canada" goods at a time like this is the one cause that unites both families and communities.

It isn't a matter of buying silks and bric-a-brac... What keeps the Canadian factory going nowadays is the main part of what you buy every day, and the small items multiplied run into a larger total than the big purchase

CANADIAN DOLLARS NEEDED AT HOME

Everybody Can Help—Where the Wholesaler Comes In—The General Welfare of Canada

Keeping the Canadian dollar at home is very much a matter of the wholesale dealer who buys in carload lots.

No matter what retailers and individual consumers may decide to do as a national self-interest campaign, the jobber is the man who very often controls the situation. The wholesale dealer has a wide-angle vision. He has customers far and wide; not in one province, but in many. His parish is often as large as that of the manufacturer. His business has a national scope. To the wholesaler the general welfare of Canada is of more direct importance than it is to the retailer of the individual.

Naturally this country looks to the wholesaler to help along the "Made-in-Canada" movement, because it is going to be in his best interests to offer the retailer the goods his customers are demanding, and in his position of buying in carload lots he can do a great deal to help or hinder people in carrying out the "Made-in-Canada" sentiment.

The wholesaler who buys his goods from a foreign country is letting the reservoir leak without pumping into it. Every carload of goods bought outside of Canada means the value of a carload taken away from the purchasing power of the Canadian people, which depends directly on the business done by Canadian factories quite as much as on the proceeds of Canadian farms and mines and fisheries.

We all realize the insanity of killing the goose that lays the golden egg. The golden egg in this case is the ability of the Canadian people to buy goods, and the ability of the Canadian manufacturer to supply them, as well as if not better, as cheaply if not more cheaply, than any other nation now competing for business.

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE MAN WHO DRAWS HIS PAY IN ONE TOWN AND SPENDS IT IN ANOTHER?

At the Yarmouth Y. M. C. A. Boys' Camp, held at Tusket Falls in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for sun burn, an immediate relief for colic and toothache.

THE WEEK IN NEWCASTLE

Quiet Holiday
Thursday, June 3rd was quietly observed as a public holiday in Newcastle.

Played Soldiers to Church
The band escorted the soldiers to St. Mary's and the United Baptist Churches Sunday morning.

Forest Fire's Raging
Forest fires have been raging in the northern part of the province along the International railway and also near Bathurst. Much valuable timber has been destroyed.

Trey O' Hearts
The Trey O' Hearts, which has been drawing immense crowds at the Happy Hour since its beginning here, will finish next Wednesday, and the last chapter will be in three reels. The Master Key will follow, beginning on Wednesday, June 23rd.

New Advertiser
Our readers will notice that Mr. Wm. Ferguson is now using space in the Advocate's advertising columns. Mr. Ferguson is conducting an up-to-date grocery business in the Fish building.

Looking for Absentees
The provincial police have been given names of a number of absentees of the 55th Batt., and they are being rounded up and taken back to Sussex. A number of them were rounded up in Moncton and vicinity.

Band Friday Night
The band is preparing a program for Friday night, which will be the opening night of their season's engagement. The band has been raising a fund for the purchase of new uniforms, and by Friday week they expect to have them. The order for the new uniforms has been placed through Russell & Morrison, and for patronizing a home industry the band is worthy of support.

Suspected Spy Released
Therkild Therkisen, who enlisted with the First Canadian Contingent at Montreal, became a sergeant in the Twelfth Battalion and was subsequently arrested and sent back to Halifax as a suspected spy. He was released from the Internment Camp at Amherst on Wednesday, as the result of representations made by the Dominion minister of foreign affairs. Therkisen, who is a Dane by birth and has served several years in the Danish Life Guards, will return to Montreal and declares that he will report to his "general" and seek another chance to serve against the Germans.

Loggerville's Man Missing
Sergeant Jerry Langfang, of Loggerville, is reported missing since May 15th.

Will Preach Here
Rev. Mr. Godfrey will preach in the Methodist Church on Sabbath, June 13th morning and evening.

Northumberland Boy Wounded
Lance Corporal G. F. Y. Mersereau, of Blissfield, Northumberland county, is mentioned in the list of casualties as being wounded.

Is Practically Blind
The many friends of Major C. J. Mersereau, who was so seriously wounded at the battle of Langemarck, will regret to learn that he is practically blind. He was hit in the head by splinters from an exploding shell.

23rd Battery Crossed to France
The Twenty-third Battery, in which there are Moncton boys and some 25 U. N. B. men, crossed to France on May 28th. Sgt. Arthur Ripley, of Moncton, and Pte. E. L. O'Leary, son of Mr. A. E. O'Leary, of Richibucto, are in the 23rd Battery.

Toot Your Horns
Auto drivers in Newcastle are showing signs of carelessness in not tooting their horns when approaching teams and corners. Thursday night a very near collision occurred when an auto coming down Prince William street just missed by a hair's breadth running into another car crossing at the foot of the hill. In neither case did the drivers blow their horns.

Died at Amherst
Private Wm. Innis, of Lower Newcastle, who recently enlisted at Chatham with Lt. Col. Irving as a member of the 6th Mounted Rifles, died at the Amherst hospital on Thursday of pneumonia. The body was brought to Chatham and taken to Lower Newcastle for burial. The remains of Pte. Innis was escorted to the train at Amherst by the Mounted Rifles, the hearse being drawn by a number of his fellow-soldiers. Deceased was 21 years of age and is survived by a widowed mother, one brother, Ebenezer, and five sisters, Mrs. Stephen Dunphy, Mrs. Wm. Miller, Mrs. Chas. Doherty, Mrs. Robert Yee, and Jeanett at home. The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment was at Moorfield Cemetery.

Chancellor Jones Coming
Dr. C. C. Jones, Chancellor of the U. N. B., is expected to visit Harkins Academy this week. Since Mr. Hetherington became principal, this institution has become an important factor to the University. There are now five students at the U. N. B. who are graduates of Harkins Academy, and last year out of a class of thirteen entering the U. N. B., at the beginning of the college year, three were from this school.

6th Mounted Passed Through
Fifteen cars containing about six hundred men of the 6th Mounted Rifles passed through here last evening about 7.45. Besides the band a large crowd of people were at the station to greet them. Two Newcastle boys, John Woods and Robert Adair, and several Chatham boys were among them. They are en route to Valcartier from whence they will sail soon for the other side. They were given a rousing send off.
