The Eastern Trust Company.

A few reasons why an estate can be better administered by the Eastern Trust Company than by a personal executor or administrator:—

1. The Company affords the estate absolute security; it has a paid-up capital of $931,000.00, and a reserve fund of $228,300.00.

2. It has a long experience in the work of administering estates; it is incorporated for this business of acting as a trustee, and, unlike many other trust companies, it does no other.

3. Its existence is perpetual. Your estate, in the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, must look around for a substitute, and the work of administration is impeded during that time, and the new executor is unfamiliar with the policy of his predecessor, and confusion results. This company's existence is perpetual, and there is a continuity of policy in its administration that the death of its officers does not break.

4. It possesses the confidence of governments, universities and prominent charities, and administers their funds.

5. A number of other advantages which will appear in due course. The Eastern Trust Company, Pitts Building, St. John's. mar8,m,tf

Jains Quit! Back-Soreness Goes, Torturous Lumbago Cured by "Nerviline."

This Wonderful Curative Linctament Has Almost Magical Powers.

You can compare a congestive pain to a little fire. When congestion smoulders, pain comes and goes. Congestion grows into inflammation, but pain, now intense, grows excruciating and stays, too. There is an absolute antidote of pain—it is Nerviline.

"KYRA," OR, The Ward of the Earl of Vering.

CHAPTER XII. But Kyra put her hand up swiftly, and brandishing it round her head, uttered a reduced copy of the Indian war-cry.

"Ah, that means that scalps are a desideratum in that direction. Well— which way?"

The child shaded her eyes with her brown hand, and peered across the white plain, then touched his hand and face with one finger and pointed to the east.

"What does that—ah, I see! miserable palefaces like your humble servant lie in that direction. Good, my little Guide to the Desert! Eastward be it!" and, turning, he sent the horse forward at a good pace.

Percy, at first, put one hand round the child to prevent her falling, but soon perceived that she was not more likely to come to grief than himself.

Indeed, she sat on her perch as confidently and gracefully as a young Mexican, and now and then bent down to examine some buffalo or wild dog track with a cool audacity and fearlessness that called forth a caution from her guardian.

"Kyra no fear," was the invariable reply.

And so they rode on, for six days, stopping at noon and eve for food and rest, procuring the first after a haphazard fashion that was eminent-ly suggestive of starvation, and taking the latter under trees that might shelter innumerable foes, or in caves that might have been the bedchambers of the grizzly bear; but safely, notwithstanding the cold, the hunger, the peril of the way, they made their journey, and at the end of that time there had grown up between them a sympathy which, of its kind, was as unique a sentiment as any that could well be found.

Day by day, night by night, the man and child went on, and at last, when the last pinch of powder, and the last drain of brandy were lying in their expended flasks; when Percy, looking around him at the prospect that had grown so sickening to him, began to think that it would make a roomy, well-ventilated cemetery for the pair of them, before deliverance, or at least help came, for as he glanced down at the child's face so quietly calm that he thought her asleep, the dark eyes flashed open, and the little body raised itself in a listening attitude.

Indigestion Resulted From Bad Case of Inactive Liver

Experience Proved That Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Were Exactly What Was Needed.

If every sufferer from indigestion would study his case as did the writer of this letter, the great majority would find sluggish action of the liver and bowels to be the cause of trouble. It is then an easy step to finding a cure, for there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to awaken the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels. With these organs performing their natural functions the system is thoroughly cleansed of all poisonous waste matter and the process of digestion is no longer impeded.

Mrs. W. L. Jones, Hill Spring, Alta., writes: "I have often thought I would write and tell you how much I appreciate Dr. Chase's medicines, especially Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. It suffered terribly from indigestion and did not know what was the cause. I got to using Dr. Chase's

Not an ache or a pain anywhere that it cannot reach. No soreness or strain that it has not the power to relieve. Nerviline is the only remedy in the world sold under guarantee—if it does not relieve you, get your money back. Proof enough that Nerviline is a remedy that will fulfill absolutely every requirement of a pain-reliever, both for internal and external use.

Backache it cures like magic. For rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia, stiffness, sprains or strains, it is the only thing. Large bottle, 50 cents; trial size, 25 cents; at drug-stores.

Percy slipped the mare and listened. "What is it, Kyra?" he said. She turned to him and showed her teeth; they were as white and regular as a dog's, and that is saying a great deal.

"Buffalo meat and bread loaf, tonight," she said, quietly. "Delighted to hear it," said Percy, with a smile.

"Kyra hear paleface dog." And she imitated the low cry of the man's friend.

Percy listened, and there came across the waste the hollow echo of a bark. A more delicious sound he thought he had never heard.

"That's a dog," he assented, "but how do you know it is the property of a paleface?" he asked.

"Redskin dog no bark so loud; he no foolish." Percy smiled.

"May I never meet a wise dog again," he said. "Hold on, Kyra, we'll test your accuracy of observation, if there's any heart felt in Polly." And with a touch he sent the mare ahead.

The Indian girl's quick ears had not deceived her; every five minutes brought the dog's quick bark louder and nearer. The mare pricked up her ears; Percy's face grew quite satisfied; Kyra only of the three appeared neither delighted nor relieved.

"Another five minutes and we shall either be in the way of getting food ourselves, or be making food for some one else. Quiet, my Polly! Kyra, which is it, friend or foe?"

The girl thought a moment, then, as the mare dashed through the little open space and pulled up on the outskirts of a clump of three or four wooden huts, she looked up and answered:

"Palefaces." The next instant not one but twenty dogs set up twenty different howls; a door of the largest hut opened slowly, and—it was dusky evening—the tall shape of a man stood out from the light behind him.

"Who goes there?" he asked. "A friend," answered Percy, pulling up at the door and dropping from the saddle.

The man came out and quietly eyed them. "Ridden far, stranger?" "Very far," said Percy.

"Wassawa, p'raps?" "No, from Snake River," replied Percy, leading the horse to an outhouse.

"No," exclaimed the man, with wild surprise. "Lost track, I expect." "And run short of victuals," put in Percy. "We are tired, hungry, all of us," he added, as a quiet spur to the man's hospitality.

"What's that, furs?" asked the host.

Kidney-Liver Pills and was so improved that I began to study the remedy. I found that the indigestion resulted from a bad case of inactive liver, and as soon as I got the liver working right, I didn't have any stomach trouble or indigestion, the nervous spells vanished and the 'blues' flew away. I am never sick now, but should the old trouble return, I know how to cure it quickly."

There is a whole host of derangements which disappear when the liver is set right. Biliousness, indigestion, headache, irritability, constipation are a few of the more common results of torpid liver action. By the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you can control all such disorders. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

strolling alongside the horse and nodding at Kyra. "No," said Percy, and put out his hand. Kyra slid down the horse as if she were glass and the mare ice. "So!" exclaimed the man. "What! a little redskin, dang me!" and he eyed Kyra as if she had been a rat.

"Can you give us shelter and food for to-night?" asked Percy. "That so, of course," said the man, and he marched on slowly in front, and kicked open a stable door.

"Put her in here; there's oats and water. My boy will see to her.

"Thanks," said Percy, pouring some oats into the manger; "but, if you will allow me, I'll make her comfortable myself," and with his quiet rapidity he began at the animal.

The settler nodded, and his face grew a little less stolid. "Well, I guess I'd better make it sort of comfortable inside. I will go in."

Percy nodded. "Yes, and thanks. We have not seen the inside of a house for weeks."

The man nodded and disappeared. Percy went on with the horse; Kyra handing him straw, etc., with silent alacrity.

"Now, then, little one, we'll make our entrance and put our friend's hospitality to the test. What's the matter?" for the child, instead of taking the hand held out to her, drew back and leaned against the horse.

"Kyra stop with Poll-ee. Palefaces no like redskin."

"Palefaces will have to put up with one to-night then, young one," said Percy, with a smile. "Come!"

She could no more have resisted that quiet tone of gentle command than she could have flown. She put her little hand in his, and together they pushed open the door, and entered the principal room of the hut.

The first glance showed Percy that the place was an inn; the second that it was set on a fur trappers' and traders' settlement, for three unmountable trappers sat round the fire, and the fur merchant or trader was leaning against the wooden wall of the apartment, turning over the leaves of his pocketbook, and talking meanwhile to the others.

The landlord, with a cool nonchalance peculiar to his kind, sauntered forward as the two travellers entered; and, giving his fur cap an extra tilt, calmly pushed one of the fur trappers before the fire.

"Room here, Bill, this gentleman and the Ingen will thaw!"

"Thanks," said Percy, in his quiet but commanding tone; "we are very cold—do not move. Landlord, can we have some supper?"

The usual question was the retort. "Anything you have," was Percy's reply. "Whatever it may be, it will be a novelty."

The landlord sauntered off in the direction of an inner room. Percy drew the child closer to the fire, and mechanically began chafing her hands.

The trapper put their heads together, and stared, and mumbled. Presently the landlord re-entered, and, dragging a deal table forward with his foot as he approached, set a dish of stewed meat and bread before them.

"Drink?" "Whiskey?" Percy nodded.

Whereupon the landlord drew an order to some invisible person, and, with a satisfied conscience, sat down to stare at his new guests.

Percy placed some of the meat, etc., on Kyra's plate, drew a stool close beside him, and a little in the shadow, and reached for a jug of water standing near.

The child, hungrier than you have any conception of, dear reader, unless you have been shipwrecked, or lost in a North American forest, forgot her nervousness, and fell to like an Indian and a child.

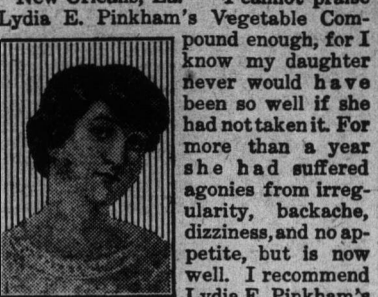

Every eye in the room, save Percy's, settled upon her and stuck to her. No one spoke, perhaps out of consideration for the too palpably hungry eaters.

At last the child let her bone spoon rest, and lay back in her chair, her arms folded across her breast, her dark eyes glistening like coals upon the dull, curious ones of the trappers.

"That was good, Kyra!" whispered Percy, touching her hand. She looked up at him and nodded gravely, then returned to the battle with the fierce pair of eyes, and—yes, conquered them! One of the trappers shifted uneasily, and rose to get a light for his pipe.

MOTHERS WHO HAVE DAUGHTERS

Read How to Care for Their Health.

New Orleans, La.—"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough, for I know my daughter never would have been so well if she had not taken it. For more than a year she had suffered agonies from irregularity, backache, dizziness, and no appetite, but is now well. I recommend Lydia E. gravelly, then returned to the battle with the fierce pair of eyes, and—yes, conquered them! One of the trappers shifted uneasily, and rose to get a light for his pipe.

"Furs, stranger?" he asked, eyeing Percy through the flame.

"No," said Percy, "I am trading in nothing."

"No!" exclaimed the man, with a gesture of surprise. "Travelling around for amusement, maybe?"

"Exactly," assented Percy. "Find it amusing?" asked the landlord, with a grim look at the snow-stained moccasins.

"Yes," said Percy, grimly. "Should 'a' thought you'd 'a' found it something else, stranger. British-er, I guess?"

"I am an Englishman, yes." The landlord smiled and shut one eye with a superior smile.

"Thought so; there's a great many moonatics in your village, stranger? Continual sound of the sea, they say." Percy smiled.

"You mean to infer that, being here, I am one lunatic the less in England."

"That's about it," said the landlord, coolly.

"Come," said Percy, "I have sense enough to know good whiskey from bad; allow me to congratulate you on the quality of yours. Will you join me?"

"That I will," said the landlord, and he poured out a measure not only for himself, but for all present—the custom of the place.

The spirit, undiluted in the case of the trappers and the landlord, disappeared as rapidly as it had appeared, and the examination was evidently about to recommence when an interruption occurred in the sudden sound of muffled hoofs, followed almost instantly by the shouting of a strong pair of lungs.

ITALIAN OFFICIAL. ROME, June 11. Progress was made in the Upper Arna Valley, the troops continuing steady advances. BRITISH OFFICIAL. LONDON, June 11. A British official says that activities in the Hohenzollern Redoubt continue. Heavy artillery actions around Ypres, also heavy loss was inflicted in a raid on the enemy south of Neuve Chapelle.

FRENCH OFFICIAL. PARIS, June 11. They were driven back into their trenches by machine gun fire.

BERLIN OFFICIAL. BERLIN, June 11. The French have been driven out of several positions northeast of Verdun, in the course of stubborn fighting, the War Office announced today. South of Fort Vaux, French field works were stormed, and more than 500 prisoners and two machine guns were taken.

HEAVY FIGHTING IN GALICIA. PETROGRAD, June 11. On the western front our troops have crossed the River Stry. There is heavy fighting in Galicia; 7 officers, 5,500 men, and 11 machine guns have been captured, making a total of 1,240 officers, 71,000 men, 94 guns and 167 machine guns.

RUSSIA'S CAPTURED PRISONERS. PETROGRAD, June 11. Further Russian successes bring the total captured to 1,649 officers, 106,000 men, 124 guns and 169 machine guns. In the fighting yesterday, on the front of Volhynia and Galicia, says an official statement issued here to-day, the Russians took 400 officers and 25,000 men. They also captured 39 guns and an enormous quantity of booty. The statement adds that the army of General Techtshyn alone, operating in the direction of Bukowina, overwhelmed the Austro-Hungarians and took 18,000 prisoners. Since the present Russian offensive started the Emperor's troops have taken 118,000 prisoners.

The Russian official statement follows: Our offensive in Volhynia, Galicia, and Bukowina obtained fresh successes yesterday. The enemy armies continue to suffer enormous losses. Of prisoners alone the fierce attacks of our troops are throwing into our hands thousands upon thousands, and booty of all kinds. An exact estimation is as yet impossible. For instance, in a single sector on the enemy front we captured 21 searchlights, 2 convoys, 29 field kites, 47 trains, machine guns, 12,000-poods of barbed wire, pool equivalent to 36 pounds each, 1,000 concrete planks, 7,000,000 cubes concrete, 10,000 poods coal, enormous depots of ammunition, quantities of arms and other war materials. In another sector we captured 30,000 rifle cartridges, 300 boxes machine gun cartridges, 200 boxes hand grenades, 1,000 useable rifles, 4 machine guns, two range finders, Norton portable pump for extracting drinking water. The capture of such enormous war materials, prepared by the enemy for various operations, affords proof of how opportune was our coup against the enemy.

ADMITTS WITHDRAWAL OF FORCES VIENNA, June 11. An Austrian official communication issued to-day admits the withdrawal of Austrian forces before a greatly superior enemy in northeastern Bukowina, where fighting is extraordinarily heavy.

ITALIAN CABINET RESIGNS. LONDON, June 11. The Italian cabinet, headed by Premier Salandra, resigned to-day. This action by the Ministry resulted from failure by the Italian Chamber of Deputies to pass a vote of confidence in the Government, following the presentation of the budget by the Minister of the Interior.

IS SHE GONE? LONDON, June 11. The report that the German battle cruiser Derflinger was sunk, is reiterated in an Amsterdam despatch which says that travellers arriving from Berlin say that they were told in Germany that the Derflinger was sunk after the North Sea battle, while being towed to Wilhelmshaven. The British Admiralty announced that the Derflinger was believed sunk, but the loss of this warship was denied by the German Admiralty.

STRUCK A MINE. LONDON, June 11. The British cruiser Hampshire, on which Kitchener and his staff were lost, was sunk as the result of striking a mine, it is officially announced this afternoon. All hope has been abandoned, save of the twelve men from the Hampshire who were washed ashore on a raft. The statement says: Admiral Jellicoe says the Hampshire was mined. The vessel was accompanied by two destroyers until the Hampshire was compelled to detach them on account of heavy seas, an hour before the explosion. The survivors says she sank in ten minutes. Destroyers and patrol vessels hurried to the scene. Search parties were sent in motor cars along the coast. Four boats were seen to land from a raft. All hope is abandoned of the others.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE. LONDON, June 11. In proof of the statement by the British Admiralty that the dreadnought Marspite arrived safely in port after the North Sea battle, the Commander of the Warship itself received an Associated Press correspondent to-day, and described the vessel's miraculous escape from the German fire.

NOMINATION OF ROOSEVELT AND HUGHES. WASHINGTON, June 11. Word that Justice Hughes and Col. Roosevelt have been nominated by the two conventions in Chicago, was communicated to President Wilson on its receipt here. There was no formal comment, but the administration supporters are obviously delighted. Justice Hughes, late to-day, sent a telegram to Chairman Harding, of the Republican National Convention, formally accepting the Republican nomination for President. At the same time it was announced that the Jus-

"Moving" Stories.

Interesting Anecdotes of Early Days in Film Land.

Of all the inventions in this age of advancement, few have been so conspicuous for rapid and continued progress as the cinema. Many of us will remember that but a few years ago the public went to the "pictures" by way of novelty, and that wiseheads of the legitimate theatre declared themselves apart from "all this mechanism."

But now we find the cinema not only brought very nearly to perfection and being shown in the smallest of villages, but great actors and actresses being regularly portrayed "on the screen."

He Changed His Mind. This remarkable advance, however, has not been barren of interest, like some of our modern inventions have been. On the contrary, the rise of the cinema can take its place in the front ranks of human drama and romance—the kinds which have a wonderful thrill in them.

There was the case of a journalist who was sent by his editor to interview a man who was about to sink many thousands of pounds in some theatrical venture. That was in the days when the "no treating" order was not even thought of, and the interview therefore took place in the comfortable bar of a London hotel.

Conversation turned to cinema matters, and the newspaper man expressed the firm conviction that the future of the picture-theatre was assured, and that fortunes were awaiting the man of enterprise.

His host seemed much impressed at this enthusiasm, and urged him to discourse at greater length on the subject. This he did; and when, a little later, he left with the notes of the interview in his pocket, he had the most puzzled grasp of the capitalist's intentions.

A month later the scribe received a cheque for twenty-five pounds "in appreciation of the excellent cinema idea," and before another thirty-one days had gone unannounced appeared to the effect that the anticipated theatre enterprise had been finally cancelled.

A Footlight Failure. Once an actress tried to obtain a part in a drama, but the manager would not entertain the idea at all. He told her bluntly that she could not act, and dismissed her from his office.

Time went on, and the cinema crept onward to popularity; and one day, about then, the manager paid a visit to a cinema, and saw there a play of intense interest, the principal part of which was taken by the actress whom a few years previous he had refused to employ.

The manager now recognized the professional skill of the woman; he was, indeed, conscious of looking at a wonderful piece of dramatic art.

As soon as practicable he got into communication with the actress, and made her an offer which she accepted. But she turned out a great failure on the boards, and it was recorded that the manager lost much capital through this curious error of judgment—an error which upheld his first opinion.

It is interesting to add that, although the case just described occurred in the earlier days of the cinema, others have also come to light, showing that many actors who are successful when appearing before the camera are unsuccessful when facing a human audience.

The End of the Story. On another occasion, in America, a young lady offered flowers to a stranger. The latter tossed her some dollar notes and passed on.

Amazed at her good fortune, the flower-seller returned to her poverty-stricken home to convey the joyful tidings to her invalid mother; and in the morning journey to interview the manager of a film company, which was then in its infancy.

Her good looks and dainty ways caused the manager to give her a trial, and from that day she never looked back.

Years went by, when the film-star, long since alone in the world, met the stranger of her poverty days. Both had grown older, but the recognition was instantaneous.

In a flash the girl saw the change in the man. He was no longer prosperous-looking, no longer able to give away dollars with impunity.

Amusements.

AT THE CRESCENT. The Crescent Picture Palace presents a great Diamond special feature to-day: "The Agony of Fear" is produced in three reels and is one of the great features the Selig Company stake their reputation on.

"At the Road's End" is a fine pastoral drama featuring the Biograph stars Isabel Rea and Jack Muihall. "Back to the Primitive" is a Vitagraph-Drew Comedy with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew. The musical programme is a special feature of Crescent shows; Professor McCarthy has arranged a new one for to-day.

THE NEW SERIAL AT NICKEL TO-DAY. The wonderful serial "The Strange Case of Mary Page," is the attraction at the Nickel Theatre to-day. This is the greatest work of the Essanay Co. and when first presented in New York created quite a sensation.

Edna Mayo and Harry B. Walthall are in the leading roles. The story was written by Frederick Lewis and the drama was staged under the direction of Charles J. Hayden. The opinion of the American Press is that it is the greatest serial ever produced. The costumes worn by the ladies are in themselves most attractive. There are fifteen chapters in the story and they will be continued every Monday and Tuesday until the close.

All patrons should attend to-day and see the opening chapter. The picture is full of throbs and thrills and the staging is perfect.

Girl Worker's Output

Double that of Skilled Trade Unionists. Some illuminating comments on the effect of trade union restrictions on war work came from Sir William Beardmore in his presidential address in London to the Iron and Steel Institute.

Early in the war, he said, it was found at the Parkhead Forge that the output from the respective machines was not so great as the machines were designed for. One of the workers who was induced to do his best to obtain the most out of a machine very greatly increased his output.

In all cases girls employed in the projectile factory produced more than double the output of thoroughly trained mechanics—members of trade unions—working the same machines under the same conditions.

"These conditions," said Sir William, "applied to war time, when the peril of the nation demanded unselfish patriotic exertion by everyone, and the men who thus limited the output can only be regarded as unworthy of the privileges of citizenship."

Sir Robert Hadfield said it was owing to Sir Robert Beardmore that the very important question of introducing women labour into munition works had been carried out with such great success.

Funeral of Mr. W. Payne.

The funeral of the late William Payne took place on Saturday afternoon. Rev. A. G. C. Stamp conducted a short service at his late residence, 77 Pleasant Street, and took the burial service at the C. E. Cemetery. Mr. Payne was well and favourably known and was born in Harbor Grace 64 years ago. He leaves to mourn a widow, four daughters—Mrs. W. B. Williams, Mrs. J. Maxwell, Port au Port; Mrs. H. R. Rendell, Heart's Content; Mrs. Wakeham—and two sons—William B. of Bishop's Falls and Pte. F. G. Payne of the Regiment and now fighting for King and Country in France.

Your Boys and Girls.

The boy realizes that the other children are prepared to take advantage of him and the instinctive habit of self-protection, common to all animals, makes him resent the attempt. In his efforts to maintain his own rights he is very likely to become impatient and dictatorial and he will not hesitate to take advantage of the fact that he is younger than the others, and so under the protection of his elders, who he feels certain will be on his side in the discussion.

A child is never too young to be taught that he must not be selfish and must ask no more than his rights. This habit of lording it over all his companions may increase as he grows older unless a wise mother can reason him out of it.

MONDAY, June 12, 1916.

Our Hearty Thanks.

We have to acknowledge most cordially the kind welcome extended to us by the 'Mail and Advocate' in its issue of Saturday. It is both a pleasure and an encouragement to us that this should be the first among the duties which we have assumed. We shall endeavor to deserve the good opinion it has expressed of us, and we thank it for its good wishes.

We are fully conscious of the high standard and responsibility which Dr. Lloyd's retirement bequeaths to us. After an association of some twelve years, the Telegram takes leave of Dr. Lloyd with gratitude for past services and regret that they have come to an end. We wish him the fullest measure of success in his profession, though we feel the wish to be superfluous. In his brilliant defence and vindication of Mr. Hickman we see an augury of it, and are confident that he will rapidly take his place among the leaders of the Bar in Newfoundland.

The Commissioners Enter the List.

We are pleased, though not surprised, at the public spirit displayed by Mr. Gosling and his associate Commissioners in submitting themselves to the test of the coming election. This is, in effect, an offer to continue the valuable and unselfish services rendered by them for the past two years. They were under no obligation to do this, and we must remember that the period of their voluntary government has already been double that originally contemplated. Their action is therefore the more commendable, and we are confident that their fellow-citizens will show their appreciation of it when the elections take place.

While we hold no briefs, it is our earnest hope that the Commission will be returned in the new form, or at least sufficiently represented on Sagona Races Express.

We learn from passengers on the express which reached town at 7.30 Saturday night, that excitement between the crews of the express and the s.s. Sagona on Friday at Port aux Basques, as to which would make the best time to St. John's, had created a spirit of friendly rivalry. However, the express which left Port aux Basques at 1 p.m. Friday, reached the city at 7.30 p.m. the following day, making the run across country in 30 1/2 hours or 2 1/2 hours below schedule. The s.s. Sagona, which left the same place some time after, arrived here at 2.50 a.m. yesterday, covering the distance in 33 1/2 hours, just 3 hours behind the train time. We understand this is a record run for the Sagona and while she did not outclass the express, the captain is to be congratulated on making such a splendid run. She brings a heavy cargo of general freight including a large shipment of flour. As soon as this is discharged, she will load for the Labrador.

"The Scottish Hero."

The S. S. Scottish Hero which put into this port twenty-five days ago to dock for repairs to her hull, and to have her engines overhauled, is expected to leave for Sydney, C. B., to-morrow evening. In order to complete the work on the engines, machinists, assisted by the ship's engineers, worked all day yesterday. Although a large ship, with a dead weight of upwards of 5,000 tons, she only carries as a deck crew six sailors and three officers, including the captain, while the engine room staff consists of three engineers, six firemen and one donkey man. First Officer A. A. Barrett has for over 40 years followed the sea, in which time he has sailed all around the world. In 1889 he was second mate on the barq. Storke owned by the Hudson Bay Company, and was employed in the fur trade. The Storke was afterwards lost near Prince Edward Island in a terrific gale that swept the east coast of Canada for several days.

To-night the League meets to draw up the season's fixtures.

Yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Bulley, Military Road, a slight fire occurred. The Central and Eastern Companies were called, but their services were not availed of as the application of a couple of buckets of water by the occupants of the house quenched the fire.

In Memoriam

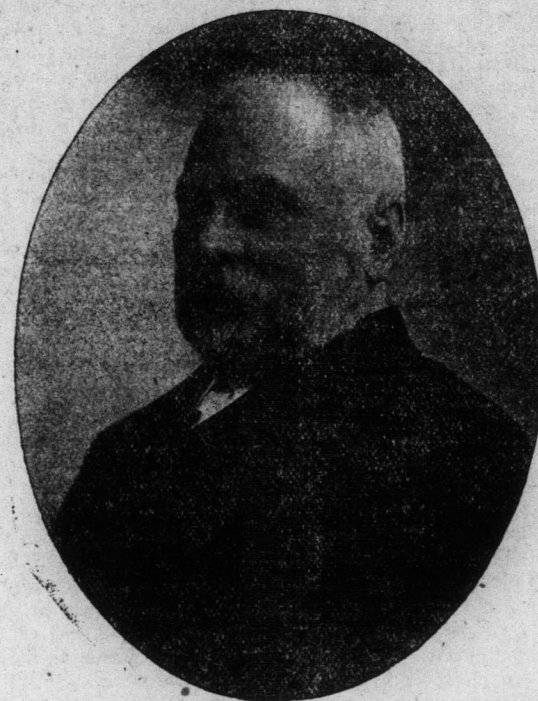

REV. GEORGE PAINE.

Early yesterday afternoon the Rev. George Paine passed to his eternal rest, after over forty years of faithful and earnest service to the Methodist Church in Newfoundland. He was born at Uxk, in the border county of Monmouth, on March 20th, 1845, son of James and Anne Paine. As a young man he engaged in mercantile pursuits. For some years he held a position of trust in Swansea, South Wales, where he was active in circuit work, and foremost in all branches of church activities. In 1874 he came to this country, and after the customary four years of probation was ordained on June 17th, 1878. A few weeks later he was married to Miss Isabel Bemister, daughter of the late Sheriff Bemister of Harbour Grace. During his long itinerancy the devoted minister resided in many sections

The Rev. George Paine was always active in forwarding the interests, temporal as well as spiritual, of the people among whom he dwelt. He was a friend, as well as pastor; counsellor, as well as teacher. No more loyal son of Empire breathed British air. It was his pride and joy to know that fighting in the cause of liberty, humanity and right were at least nine of his near relatives, some as officers, some in less conspicuous positions, but all volunteers. His love for Newfoundland came first, but his love for the Mother Country was intense. His patriotism was an inspiration and a help to many. Newfoundland and the Empire has lost to-day a true and loyal son and citizen, as well as a faithful and earnest ambassador of Christ.

To his widow, sons and relatives we extend sympathy in their sorrow. Be it theirs to find consolation in the fact that

GENERAL VICTOR WILLIAM PRISONER.

LONDON, To-day. Definite news has been received from Military authorities that General Victor Williams who commanded a brigade of the Fourth Division was taken prisoner during recent heavy fighting near Zellebeke. The British Military authorities at the Hague forwarded a number of post cards which General Williams and other Canadian officers who had been taken prisoner had been allowed to send. General Mercer who was reported missing with General Williams according to a correspondent, was wounded and rendered stone deaf during the heavy five-hour bombardment of the Canadian lines. Beyond this adds the correspondent, no one seems to have seen General Mercer.

Five hours artillery fire from guns of every calibre from trench mortars, cross fire as well as frontal being directed at a salient angle where water-sub-soil makes dugouts impossible. Utterly levelled the trenches at several points. Against the German counter-attack the British guns sent a shower of fire curtains. The German infantry which survived the British fire, rushed into the breaches after the bombardment ceased. They had their backs with blankets, each carrying a flask of rum, one of coffee and an electric flashlight, full rations evidently having been prepared for a big advance. When they pressed on, confident, and their guns blew away they were checked by our men. The Canadians unflinchingly stepped to the support of the trenches under a shower of shells that lasted from 8.30 o'clock in the morning till 11 at night when reinforcements should come and counter-attacks be made. Tales abound of heroism in small units at points where the fighting was violent. At one place in the front line where the trenches had been smashed level with the ground the surviving Canadians rushed forward and faced an overwhelming German charge and died. At another place in a square pit of earth Col. Shaw with 70 or 80 men who were surrounded, fought the Germans hand without offering to capitulate. Col. BRITISH HEADQUARTERS, France (Thursday).

Talks with officers who have been relieved of duty in the front line trenches show that the battling in which the Canadians were engaged on June 2nd and 3rd was the bloodiest on both sides fought on the British front since the battle of Loos. The Germans attacked in larger force than was at first supposed. They evidently decided to use their Verdun tactics. Five hours artillery fire from guns of every calibre from trench mortars, cross-fire as well as frontal being directed at a salient angle where watery sub-soil makes dugouts impossible, utterly levelled the trenches at some points. The British official statement quotes the German official casualty lists for the month of May, placing the total German losses of killed, prisoners and wounded at 1,025,597. WARSPITE'S MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

LONDON, To-day. In proof of the statement of the British Admiralty of the miraculous escape of the Warspite from the concentrated German fire, "I am still commander of the greatest battleship in the world, and my men are as fine as Nelson's bluejackets," said this officer, Capt. Philipotts. The Captain treated the interview on his return from Buckingham Palace, where he told King George the story of his part in the great naval battle. Capt. Philipotts was very modest and minimized his own part in the battle, but he was full of praise for his men and what he termed the amazing powers of resistance of his ship. "I am not surprised that there have been reports that the Warspite was sunk," he said, "as from our position between our fleet and the German battleships, our escape from such a fate was simply miraculous. Several times we disappeared from sight in smoke and spray. Even some of our own officers on other ships believed the gallant battleship had sunk. As we left the fighting line we disappeared in a complete veil of spray. The division of battleships of which the Warspite was one, was with the battle cruisers. We were practically engaged as soon as they were, but the Warspite did not fire until a few minutes after others had been in action, as I was not satisfied with the range at first. We soon knew we were up against the whole German battle fleet, but it was our business to engage them as fully as possible until Admiral Jellicoe could come up. You ask me what result I saw that our fire had on the Germans, but it is quite impossible to give a definite reply, as the Capt. of one of a row of battleships above five hundred yards apart steaming in battle line must keep an eye on the ship to make necessary swerves. The flag captain has some chance to see with some degree of accuracy what damage has been done to the enemy, but others are too busy keeping their places in the line and doing the damage to keep a glass to the eye to see what he is suffering. However, I saw that we registered hit after hit enough to convince me that the Germans got a hiding which will keep them in port for many months to come. After two hours of action, in much of which our division of battleships engaged the whole German battle fleet in an effort to protect our battle cruisers until Admiral Jellicoe came up, the Warspite's steering gear went wrong and she ran amuck among the enemy. It must have annoyed the German gunpointers exceedingly to attempt to gauge our erratic movements, for soon we were almost in the midst of the German battleships and well between them and our own battle line. I know of six German battleships which concentrated their fire on the Warspite and there may have been others which we could not see. Under a worse pounding than the Lion received in the Dogger Bank fight we remained in action without receiving a single vital injury, our chief difficulty being from the mishap to the steering gear. During our difficulties we received considerable credit for protecting the cruiser Warrior which was practically helpless, but I must admit that sheer good fortune rather than intention was responsible for this, for the Warspite came across her bow while drifting almost helplessly. As I said before, the fact that we got out was an absolute miracle. Once repairs were quickly made, we wanted to return but found we were not popular. Sufficient battleships were present to fill the line and the possibility of our running amuck among our own friends was not welcomed we steamed home. The Warspite will be sailing the seas months before the German fleet comes out again. My men were splendid and their behaviour all I expected, but their baptism of fire has given them a feeling of confidence which will be a valuable asset to them when we go into action again. As for the general result of the action the Germans were defeated and driven into their own ports with losses which they can ill afford.

SWEDISH STEAMER SUNK.

LONDON, To-day. Striking a mine off Sandham, an Island of the Archipelago at the entrance to Stockholm, the Swedish steamer Para was sunk yesterday afternoon, the crew was saved.

FURTHER GERMAN NAVAL LOSSES!

LONDON, To-day. According to a Reuter despatch today from Ymuiden, Holland, the crew of a trawler which was taken by the Germans to Cuxhaven, but later released, declare they learned at Cuxhaven that the German vessels participating in the Skagerrack battle, six great warships and seventeen destroyers did not return to Amond. As to the names of the vessels reported lost, adds the despatch, the sailors say they heard the Osterreichland, a battleship of 22,440 tons, mentioned.

ROOSEVELT AND HUGHES.

CHICAGO, To-day. Colonel Roosevelt sent a tentative declaration of the nominations with the understanding that it was to stand if Hughes turned out to be sound on issues of Americanism and preparedness, that if Hughes turned out to be Pacificist or pro-German he would accept and make a race as a Progressive Candidate. The Republican and Progressive Parties have been united, according to the calm, sober judgment of the Progressive leaders, who, although disappointed that their idol, Theodore Roosevelt, was not accepted by the Republicans, prepared to follow the advice of their leaders and work for the defeat of President Wilson through the medium of one opposition ticket.

TREMENDOUS OFFENSIVE.

LONDON, To-day. From the wooded region of south west Russia to the Roumanian frontier the Russians are keeping up their tremendous offensive against the Austro-Hungarians, who have been reinforced at several sectors by the Germans. The advance of the Russians is notable for the large number of prisoners taken and the enormous capture of guns, machine guns, ammunition and other war stores. Having previously captured Lutsk, the Russians have now re-taken Duzno.

Progress has also been made by the Russians against the Austrians all along the battle front and they are putting up a stubborn resistance especially east of Kellki lying to the north of Lutsk, where they have forced back the Russian advanced elements across the Sty River and in the region of Torgovitsy on the Sty south of Lutsk where a sanguinary battle is in progress since Saturday night. Three German infantry attacks against the French trenches on Hill 304 and other points in this sector were put down by the French fire; bombardments alone have been in progress in the fighting zone about Verdun.

No changes in position have taken place here or at any other points on the line in France and Belgium held by the French, British and Belgian troops. The British around Ypres have again been heavily shelled by the Germans. Only one infantry attack was attempted; this the British repulsed. ACTIVITY AROUND YPRES.

LONDON, To-day. A British official statement issued at midnight reads: "Since last night Ypres salient has again been the chief scene of activity. On the southern portion of it, from Hill 60 to a point about 1500 yards north, the enemy shelled our trenches heavily for about three hours this afternoon. The bombardment was preceded in the morning by the shelling of the town of Ypres and back area. Southward and north of Menin Road our trenches were shelled intermittently throughout the day. There were no infantry actions during the day on this front beyond an attempt by the enemy to rush one of our blockading posts in Sanctuary Woods. This was repulsed. Last night after heavy bombardment of our trenches between Thiaepial, Blaumont and Hamel, the enemy in the course of a raid in Ancere Valley was able to cut off a few men who formed part of a wiring party; five are missing. On the remainder of the front there was nothing except minor trench mortar and artillery actions. Opposite Pricourt and south of Neuville St. Vaast the enemy has blown up three mines yesterday, two in the vicinity of Labasse Road and the third east of Vitrostraat. None of them damaged us. There were rain and thunder storms at intervals. There was successful aerial work. Six combats taking place. A POKKER was brought down and crashed into a field near Hadourdin.

LONDON, To-day. "There are all the makings of another disturbance here," says a telegram to the Weekly Dispatch, "and considerable military precautions are being taken." Soldiers are being told off to occupy the leading buildings of the city. The rebellious element claims that it was the recent violence which led to the re-opening of the Home Rule question arguing that by holding further violence as threatened, over the heads of the authorities, they can bargain better and get any terms they want.

Notes From Gambo.

Will you allow me space in your valuable paper to write of a most successful entertainment given here on the evening of Wednesday the 7th inst. at the R. C. Academy.

The majority of the participants were school children and although they were assisted by some of their grown-up friends in a few dialogues, it was essentially a school children's concert.

To Miss Monica Kelly and to her untiring efforts throughout the rehearsal, is due the success which undoubtedly attended the event. The hall was packed to overflowing, and although the admission fee was small, a sum approaching within a few cents of $40 was realized. This will be devoted to the building of a Presbytery.

for the priest. Mr. Power, the senior teacher, was an able chairman.

Amongst the audience were Rev. Frs. Whalen and Ashley, who were visiting friends in town. Every item of the programme was a brilliant success, and was singularly free from those little "hitches" of bashfulness which so often obtain in a children's concert. Perhaps of the whole the recitation by Gertie Moss was the best. For one so young her enunciation and delivery approached the perfect.

The dialogue "Jelly for the Minister" in which a married woman, a widow and an old maid were all setting their caps for the new minister, was one of the leading features. Mrs. Arabella Doolittle, whose "poor John Peter was so soon to pass away," Widow Barrington already on the lookout and Clementia Clipp, the

"Old Maid" were all admirably personified by Misses Rose White, Maggie Moss and Johanna Hart, respectively. Miss Mary Kelly made an excellent "Biddy" to Miss J. Broderick's "Unappreciated Genius." In fact all parts were well taken. The whole went off with great "eclat."

Following the close of the concert was a dance which lasted to the wee sma' hours.

Upon request a second performance was given on Thursday night. This brought similar success and results.

RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON.

A neighbor of mine says she wishes she could afford to fill her garden with plants already started. She hates seeds, she says, because half the time they don't come up, and anyway they are so slow that she gets impatient. Now, never a person lived who was more impatient about most things than I, but I would not have a garden filled with potted plants that someone else had the joy of seeing, come into being, even if some one would give me carte blanche in the finest greenhouse in the land.

The Romance Of The Garden.

Seeds are the romance of the garden.

If I did not have a foot of land, I would buy me some window boxes and plant seeds in them so that I might have the joy of watching the miracle of life renewed take place.

"He hath set the world in their heart so that no one can find out the work that God maketh from the beginning to the end." That is one of my favorite verses, and it seems to me that the seed is the heart of the flower world, and in that, too, He has set the whole world.

Just think how tiny some of the seeds are, and how powerful, withal! Take a poppy seed; they are so tiny that a fairy might carry hundreds of them in his pack, and yet in each little black atom the life principle lies waiting, ready to rouse up, push itself through hundreds of pounds (comparatively) of heavy dark earth, win through to the light and "climb to a soul in leaves and flowers."

One Can Minister To The Miracle

True, one does have to wait a few days after planting before one can expect to see the first act of the drama, but one knows that the wonderful prologue is going on down underneath the earth, and one can have the honour of ministering to the miracle with a watering pot, and when the few days are past the excitement of watching for the first signs of life comes.

"I go out every morning before I eat my breakfast to see if anything has happened in the night, and lo! one morning I see the first sign, a little crack in the earth. I show it to my housemates and they are inclined to be sceptical, but the next morning I lead them out triumphantly and point out that along the crack there is a little line of green fuzz, if it is the nascent sprout, a sturdy little pale green sprout plodding methodically up towards the light.

Pity The Child Who Has No Garden.

The next day there are more green shoots and more little lines of fuzz. Every day I watch their progress; they are a never ending source of interest and delight.

I can't understand how any mother can fail to see that her children have their own little garden plots, and their self-chosen, self-planted seeds.

A life would have to be rich indeed that it could afford to miss this joy out of it. Have you planted your seeds yet? If you haven't, go out and buy some happiness at five cents the package. It isn't often for sale so cheaply.

A cool and tasty summer dish is coldslaw served in green peppy shells. Paste adhesive tape over the holes in overshoes, raincoats and umbrellas. Any cooking that is done in ves-

Volunteers Parade.

The volunteers held their first church parade, yesterday morning, marching from their new quarters, headed by the C. L. B. and bugle bands. The soldiers, 750 strong, attended Divine Service at St. Thomas's, the R. C. Cathedral, George St., St. Andrew's and S. A. Citadel. After service each section returned direct to the Barracks.

PAYING UP.

How lovely is that princely gent who never owes a man a cent, that he won't gladly pay; whose glance is not severe and chill, when you present your little bill upon a collection day. He scans your little bill and cries, "It is a pleasure, bless your eyes, to deal with folk like you, who charge a reasonable price for shredded prunes and boneless rice, and other things we chew. Just wind a smile around your neck, while I sit down and write a check, with my large fountain pen; I am glad to pay the plunk, the kopeck and the yen." This man may be a homely skate, he may not wear his sideboards straight, his necktie may be hid; he may have warts upon his ear, his awkward feet may interfere, and bald may be his head. But men will say he's quite in style; they'll praise the beauty of his smile, the contour of his nose; they'll overlook his features mean, and say, "We've really never seen a man with finer toes." No man is uglier when he hauls his bundle from his overalls, and hithely pays his bills, who pays the tailor for his duds, the washerwoman for her suds, the sawbones for his pills.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS How They Help

Four years ago I had such pains in my back that I could not work. The pains extended to my arms, sides and shoulders. I used many kinds of medicine for over a year, none of which did me very much good. I read about Gin Pills and sent for a sample and used them, and found the pains were leaving me and that I was feeling better. So I bought one box and before I used them all, the pains were almost gone and I could keep at work. After I had taken six other boxes of Gin Pills, I felt as well and strong as I did at the age of 20. I am a farmer, now 67 years old.

Famous Peace Conferences.

Where Historic Treaties Were Signed.

The French capital has been the scene of a number of historic international meetings. There the agreement which brought the Seven Years' War to a close was signed in 1763—a war in which the English and the French were the chief combatants, and during which we acquired Canada, and by Clive's victory at Plassey established our position in India.

Twenty years later we signed a further treaty in Paris whereby we acknowledged the independence of the United States. Paris was also the scene of the treaty which, in 1856, marked the conclusion of the Crimean War.

The last time the Powers met to settle amicably a division of territory was at the conference of Algiers, a little town in Spain on the Bay of Gibraltar, in February, 1906. Germany had resented France's proposals in regard to her scheme for "peaceful penetration" of Morocco, but at the conference in question matters were amicably arranged, France being left a fairly free hand.

Three years ago there was an historic scene when at St. James's Palace representatives of the Turkish Empire and the Balkan League, which included Bulgaria, Greece, Serbia and Montenegro, signed a treaty of peace which ended the thirty-two weeks' war between Turkey and the Allied States. The signing of this treaty was entirely due to the firm action of Sir Edward Grey, Serbia and Greece were inclined to haggle about details, but Sir Edward politely but firmly intimated that those delegates who declined to sign had no further business in London; and it was thus that by a stroke of the pen the Empire of Turkey in Europe was signed away.

It was at Frankfurt in 1871, that the treaty which ended the Franco-German war was signed, giving Germany Alsace and Lorraine and £200,000,000. Seven years later the Russo-Turkish war ended with the treaty of San Stefano, which gave Russia an immense amount of territory. The subsequent treaty of Berlin, in which other Powers had a deciding voice, gave Russia money instead of land. This Berlin Peace Conference of 1878 was attended by Lord Beaconsfield, and it was on his return that he used the famous phrase "peace with honour."

A remarkable war palaver was the meeting of Napoleon I. and Emperor Alexander of Russia on June 25th, 1807, in a pavilion erected on a raft moored in the middle of a stream at Tilsit, a town in East-Prussia, situated on the banks of the Memel. It was this conference which ended the war between France on the one hand and Prussia and Russia on the other, France taking half Prussia's territory.

Our first war with China was ended by the treaty of Nanking in 1842, by which we got a few million pounds with the island of Hong Kong and liberty to trade in five Chinese ports, while in 1895 the war of China with Japan was brought to a close by the treaty which gave Japan £32,000,000 and possession of Formosa and the Pescadores.

At Verdun.

(The "Tribune" New York.)

The problem of Verdun remains precisely what it was at the close of the second week of the Great German drive, which began on February 21.
By that time it had entirely ceased to be a battle to pierce the French line, because time had been allowed the French to bring up reserves and to prepare lines behind the threatened points.

As to the other question, that of the possession of the town itself, this never had any importance. After the first great thrust by the Germans was halted the battle became one purely and simply for moral values. If tomorrow or next month the French should draw their lines back behind the Meuse from St. Mihiel to Verdun, the general situation would remain exactly what it was when the trench war began—two lines of trenches
would face each other from Switzerland to the sea.

But if the Germans should take possession of the town of Verdun,
the French and the German people, the world in general, would recognize that the battle for moral values had been won by the Germans and the victory on the field, which was inconsiderable, might be translated in the press and the policies of the belligerent nations into something considerable and material.

So far the Germans have made no real progress since March in the taking of Verdun, Dead Man's Hill and Hill 304, which have figured so much in the despatches, are several miles north of the line on which the French must make their last stand to hold the city. Possession of these hills is valuable to the French because it permits them to deliver a flanking fire upon the Germans attacking across the river. But the view in Paris has been from the outset that these hills would be "sold to the Germans" for a cost in casualties.

It is essential to remember in thinking of Verdun that it is just a sector in the battle front which goes from the sea to the Jura, that no great advantage can be obtained by either side unless the line is pierced at some point, and that there is no possibility now of piercing the French line about Verdun because behind the present front the French have prepared other stronger lines.

The Germans are attacking at Verdun because, owing to the fact that the railways are cut by shell fire, it is the most difficult part of the western front to munition. They believe that if they succeed in taking Verdun the French people will be thoroughly disheartened and ready to listen to peace talk. They believe the German people will be heartened by a victory which will quite naturally be magnified to the utmost.

But it is well to bear in mind that if the German attack at Verdun ever becomes too threatening, the French and the British along the western front can begin either general or a limited offensive of their own, and that there will be an immediate demand made upon Germany to find reserves to meet this. The same is true for the Russians, now that the weather conditions permit operations.

We have all been looking at Verdun
so intently for many months that it has come to have an exaggerated value for us and its fate seems to have an importance which is altogether illusory. It is well to recall that it was the French who elected to stand on their present lines and not to draw back three or four miles more to a position that they could hold with far less difficulty.

It is well to bear in mind, too, that the French high command reasons that the defence of the present lines is inflicting tremendous losses on the Germans, losses disproportionate to the French and disproportionate to any military advantage that is now to be gained.

Actually the situation at Verdun is what it was in the middle of March, save that on the west bank of the river the Germans have progressed about half a mile nearer the main French position, which is several miles back of Dead Man's Hill. There has been no important change, no change at all on the east bank of the Meuse, except as the French have taken and lost Douaumont, and the only result has been that a very large number of French and German troops
certainly more German than French, have been put out of the line by death, capture or disability.

The Germans believe French numbers are falling and French endurance approaching a term. In this they are utterly wrong, as the words of Poincaré and Viviani indicate. They believe that France, under this terrific attack, will lose heart, and of this there is not the smallest evidence.
They must continue the attack because their failure up to the present moment has depressed their own people, heartened the French and had a very unfavorable effect upon neutral opinion.

When the German attack becomes dangerous there will be an allied offensive on some sector in which the chief burden will be borne by the British. The British failure to act so far is not due to unreadiness, but to obedience to the plans of the French General Staff, which is able to call upon the British for assistance whenever it chooses.

One of the main objects of the German campaign is to compel the Allies to attack before they are ready to attack on all fronts. When such an attack is made the Germans will lose all the advantages of interior lines and be unable to move troops from east to west and west to east as the danger threatens.

At Verdun the French are fighting
a methodical, careful, utterly deliberate battle, with the purpose to inflict as great losses as possible at the least possible cost. They believe that their reserves and those of their allies greatly exceed the German reserves and that the Germans are wasting a large fraction of the man-power left to them on a costly and empty effort.

Two months ago General Joffre told a visitor that the one fear that the French high command then had was lest the Germans should abandon the Verdun attack and terminate the huge and sterile sacrifices in men and in munitions. His hope, frankly expressed, was that they would continue.

In three months the Germans have advanced about four miles; practically the whole advance was made in the first fortnight. Their losses have Claim It Was a Complete British Win.

Germans Were Outfought, Lost Heavily and Were Chased in Disorderly Retreat Into Their Ports.

London, June 5.—The naval battle of the coast of Jutland is claimed to have been a complete victory for the British by the naval expert of the Morning Post, who writes in this morning's issue.

"The salient fact is that the German fleet was completely outfought, lost heavily and was chased in disorderly retreat into its ports. Admirals Jellicoe brought his forces to bear upon the enemy at a time and place chosen by him. The vanguard of the British fleet was composed of the battle cruiser squadron, supported by a squadron of four fast battleships. Behind this vanguard followed the main battle fleet. The German fleet adopted the same formation and the Germans lost one, if not three battle cruisers in the first part of the action, which was fought between the two vanguards of the two fleets.

"Admiral Beatty, after engaging the German battle cruisers, must have turned away when the German battle fleet approached, in order to allow the British battle fleet, which was also drawing near, to engage. The armored cruisers, which were following the battle squadron, should also have turned aside, and if they had done so it is difficult to see how three of them could have been lost. It is possible that owing to some confusion, always likely in such circumstances, they went on, whereupon the approaching German battle fleet sent them to the bottom. Their loss is therefore due to an accident.

"We now come to the moment when the two main fleets joined battle. The action was fought in line, according to the accepted theory of tactics. As the two fleets approached, the lines began to overlap. The first ships of each line probably concentrated their fire on the leading ship of the other.
One, and perhaps two, German battleships were sunk, but no British, and therefore the British gunnery was evidently superior. The speedy loss of one and perhaps two battleships determined the Germans to retreat. They turned about and steamed pell mell into the haze, heading for their harbors and pursued by the British fleet."

"MEASLES."

Hundreds of children are suffering from "Measles" at the present time, and one has to be very careful in trying to avoid the complications that often follow them.
A heavy "Cough" is very prevalent during the present epidemic, and
"Pneumonia" is the great danger.
Avoid this by keeping a bottle of "Stafford's Phoratoxine Cough Cure" on hand.
Stafford's Drug Store (Theatre Hill) is open every night from 7.30 to 9.30.

tured only by

"Specialties":—
"Stafford's Liniment"

been colossal; they have so far won nothing of value; there is as yet not the smallest prospect that they can get Verdun, and if they presently do get it at the cost of 300,000 or 400,000 casualties, they will have acquired nothing but a few square miles of French territory and such moral values as the possession thereof may give them.

If the whole world which sympathizes with the Allied cause could be as calm not as the men who are about Verdun but as Paris is, as Paris has been since the first terrific drive was halted, the German campaign itself would lose practically all its importance, since it is a moral before it is a military venture. Despite the heavy casualties the French are viewing the Verdun campaign with confidence and with satisfaction;
so far what has happened, was exactly what they expected would happen
when their high command fully decided to hold and not to evacuate Verdun, yielding to the appeal of the politicians.

Killed in Action.

News was received on Saturday
that Private Edward Cole Peters, of the Princess Patricia's Light Infantry, had been killed in action in France. He was a native of St.
John's, son of Mr. Alfred M. Peters, Manager of the Bank of Montreal at Calgary, Alberta, and grandson of Mr.
J. E. P. Peters, of this city. He was educated at the Methodist College and at Sackville Academy. He had been in the trenches since November last and on June 2nd laid down his life
at duty's post.

The Sanctity of Promise

On what foundation doth our fabric rest.
The ever-growing edifice of Life,
Its increment, age-long through stress
and strife,
Of State-craft, commerce, art, and all
that's best?
The "Sanctity of Promise," keeping faith
To one's own hurt, e'en to the bitter end
Is Culture's chief begetter. As God
saith
So will He do. Shall men have power to bend
His rule to gratify their greedy lust,
Or basely vow but to deceive; or break
Sworn promises for whim or gain;
In dust,
Cast Honor, Truth and Right so they may make Foul triumph? Thy vows, Oh Lord,
we trust,
And Thou, all Promise-Breakers wilt forsake!

Commencement.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Slivash."

Commencement is an annual ceremony in which the pupils who have absorbed an entire course of study submit samples of the wisdom they have acquired to their friends and relatives.

There are many kinds of commencements, including those in High Schools, Universities, Training
Schools for Nurses, Business Colleges, Conservatories of Music, Barber Colleges, Veterinary Schools, Theological Seminaries, Boxing Academies and Correspondence Schools. But of all these, by far the most important is the High School Commencement, where the pale young graduate, in his first black suit, plants one foot on the threshold of life and the other in the furl decorations on the village stage,
and discovers that beyond the Alps lies Italy, and that beyond the footlights are 10,000 people, each one of whom is glaring at him with two eyes
like automobile searchlights.

Commencement lies midway in terror between the first visit to the dentist and the wedding march down the church aisle. After a boy has gotten over these three crisis he is tolerably safe for the rest of his life if he is firm in his refusal to respond to toasts.
Commencement, like a wedding, consists mostly of clothes for the girl, and embarrassment for the young man. Clothes take away the horror of both occasions for girls, and keep them happy through the ordeal, but there is no oplate for the young man who has to lug his eighty-pound feet and ham-sized hands to the front of the stage at commencement and try to illuminate the world with an oration of which all he can remember at that moment is the fourth line from the last.

Educators often wonder why so many young men leave High School to become captains of industry or grocery boys, and thus abandon the cause of education to their sisters.
The answer, however, is simple. The boys are not abandoning education, but the commencement oration. If the sterling young athletes in our High Schools were to be allowed to speak at commencement per phonograph, while they themselves sat behind a bank of palms and perspired unseen by the populace, they would not quit school with such firmness and determination in their junior year.

Commencements are held in June at an average temperature of 101 degrees and are a great source of joy to parents, florists, and dressmakers.
Many entirely new discoveries in history, science, and politics are made by the essayists at commencement exercises, but thus far the wickedest trust which runs the encyclopedias has scornfully declined to embrace this rare wisdom in print.

Household Notes

Wicker or willow furniture is ideal for the porch, if protected, and for the summer living room.
Never allow a baby to use a nursing bottle with a tube attached to it—
the tube can never be cleaned.
Add a teaspoonful of sugar to the water in which vegetables are boiled.
This will bring out their best flavor.
Vegetables containing sugar will not keep their sweetness long, and should be cooked as soon as possible.
Egg beaters should be rinsed as soon as used, and any dish that has had eggs in it should be filled with cold water until it is used.

Gower St. Sunday School.

Interesting Address by Hon. J. A. Robinson.

The members of Gower Street Methodist Sunday School were yesterday privileged in having with them Hon. J. A. Robinson, who had been asked by the Superintendent, Mr. W. H. Peters, to give the School a talk on the happenings of the past two weeks, but particularly on the life and death of Earl Kitchener.

Every boy in the school knew of Earl Kitchener, to every boy for a hero, but as Mr. Robinson sketched his life, briefly told of his career in the Army, of the battles he had fought, the honors he had won, as he told how when the war broke out, Kitchener, home in England on furlough, was looked to by the whole nation as the one man for the work of the War Office, he loyally gave himself again for service; how, under his leadership the Army grew steadily day by day, till eighteen months after it was declared it numbered five million men, as he told that at the very moment when his critics were bitterest, he was planning, silently and carefully, his last journey and his last march, as he imagined the last scenes on the deck of the Hampshire or in the life-boat; as he described the survivors from the ship with their last breath murmuring "Kitchener, Kitchener," the silence was intense. Every boy was listening breathlessly. His appeal to the boys, in whatever sphere of life their work may be, humble or exalted, to ever do their duty, made an impression that will be lasting. He quoted Lord Tennyson's poem "The Revenge," where Sir Richard Grenville, fighting to the death with his one ship against the enemy's fifty-three, said: "We have fought such a fight for a day and a night, As may never be fought again."

It was not Horatio Herbert Kitchener's fall on the battlefield, or in the heat of battle on the sea, but he too had fought such a fight for a year and a half in bringing his small army of 150,000 men up to a voluntary army of 5,000,000 and may never be fought again. With Sir Richard he too could say: "I have fought for King and Faith as a valiant man and true. I have only done my duty as a man is bound to do."

In concluding his appeal, the speaker said, "What matter where, or when, or how we die, whether we lie in a thousand fathoms of water, or in six feet of earth, if we too can say, 'I have only done my duty as a man is bound to do.' 'Kitchener dead!' he said, 'Never, Kitchener lives! and will live to the end of time.'"

Mr. Robinson also made reference to the loss of Gower Street School has met in the death of three of her boys of former days—Jack Chaplin, who was the first of "Ours" to lay down his life, not on the battlefield, but no less in service; his brother Hal, who went to his death with Kitchener, and Ned Peters, the nephew of the School Superintendent and son of a former Superintendent. "These three," he said, "have done their duty."

The School desires to thank Mr. Robinson for his noble and helpful visit.

NOTICE!

Complying with widely expressed public opinion as voiced by the Press and individual citizens, We, the undersigned members of the Municipal Board, deem it our duty to offer our services to the City for the next two years.

While making this announcement as a body, we wish it to be clearly understood that we are standing as individuals, and desire to express our readiness as individuals to work with any Mayor or with any other Councilors that the Citizens may see fit to elect.

In respect to the Charter which has been submitted to the Legislature, we beg to state that, while firmly of opinion that its adoption will enable the City to be more effectively governed than at present, we have always recognized that some of its provisions are debatable. We have supposed that the Legislature and the Citizens would carefully consider such sections and would arrive at some decision in respect to them which would be generally satisfactory.

We can point with some satisfaction, if not with pride, to the improvements which have been made during our short term of office, and it is in the hope that we may be able to complete and perfect the work begun, and to institute further improvements, that we now signify our willingness to serve the City for another term of two years.

House Almost Burnt to the Ground.

At 7.40 this morning, a fire broke out at the house owned and occupied by Mr. Arthur O'Neal, cabman, 62 Fenwick Road, and resulted in the building being practically destroyed. The Central and East End Companies were quickly on the scene and for upwards of an hour they continued to pour several streams into the burning building before the flames were extinguished. The fire is supposed to have originated through the medium of flying sparks resting in a service in the roof which soon burst into a spreading blaze. The loss to Mr. O'Neal is a heavy one as it represents the savings of years. We understand there is $300 insurance which will in some measure compensate for the damage done.

Forest Fire Raging.

We learn from passengers on the train which reached town this morning that a big forest fire is raging along the railway from Shovel Harbor to Port Blandford, and in several places as far as Glenwood. In the vicinity of the Terra Nova River the fast-spreading flames are making their way along both banks of the river for several miles inland. The fire first broke out near Caribou Lake, midway between Port Blandford and Shovel Harbor, early Friday morning, and despite the efforts of section men and others the flames spread rapidly. This is the second big forest fire to take place this year, the other being near Stephenville and Flat Bay in St. George's Bay.

Police Court

(Before Mr. F. J. Morris, J.P.)
A blacksmith charged with being drunk and disorderly while in charge of a horse, was released on depositing $5.

A fisherman of the Goolds, concerned in an affluence case was released on giving bonds.
An old offender, who refused to appear in Court when summoned, for maliciously damaging a woman's door, was fined $2 or 5 days.
A laborer, convicted of assaulting his wife and ordered to furnish bonds in $100 for his future good behaviour.

The Armlet Question.

With reference to the delay mentioned by "York" in this morning's 'Daily News' in the provision of armlets to rejected volunteers, we are requested to state that the matter has some time since passed out of the hands of Mr. Morris and the Recruiting Committee into those of the Reserve Force Committee. The former accordingly have no further responsibility in that connection.

Destructive Fire.

House and Contents Destroyed.
A message was received to-day by Deputy Minister of Justice Hutchings from Magistrate Currie, Bay L'Argent, stating that a serious fire occurred there at 2.30 o'clock this morning. The house of Mr. Philip J. Handfield being burned to the ground. The entire contents were wiped out by the blaze, the savings of fifteen years. Bandfield's wife and six children escaped in their night clothes.

The War

The past seven days have been eventful ones, justifying the opinions of those who foretold great activity with the approach of summer. The news has been distinctly cheering, the news of Vaux by the Germans being the only dark spot in it. It has now been definitely learned that the result of the great naval engagement to establish it as a British victory, alone of the German fleet constitute it such, but that the es should actually have been as than ours, and in the class of wherein they could least be attributed a piece of good news far other the first reports led us to expect world is waiting greedily for the Jellicoe's report.

How closely all parts of the struggle are correlated is shown by one attributed by experts to this day the paralysis of German naval operations against Russia in the Baltic, the case of a German military offensive against Russia, the left wing of their army would have invaluable assistance from their navy, and the greatest menace, would for excellent pivot on which to swing ward, farther south, against the All danger, it is said, of any advance through Courland against Riga removed by the weakening of the man navy and the increasing strength of British submarines in those waters.

However that may be, Germany now compelled to look to herself in another place, Russia having taken the initiative in no uncertain manner. The weight of her blow, however aimed chiefly at Austria, as has been expected, Russia has bent on surprising the world, rapidly and strength of the sea, which reduced Ezerum and Trebizond are here repeated. Galicia. Allowing for exaggerations in the reports, the Russian progress against strong defenses, supported topographical difficulties, is surprising, and if the figures are to be believed, more than one hundred thousand prisoners is not a bad bag for a days' fighting. It is now announced from Petrograd that the Styria front has been crossed, which means a formidable obstacle overcome. The river rises near, and runs north of Lemberg, which seems to be finally threatened.

If the Russian successes are tied to any great length, they are certain to have not only a military a political effect. Whether or Roumania will be influenced will be seen, but it should help to alter the situation in Greece, where the matter are becoming intolerable. Greece, even a Graco-Bulgarian alliance. Might not be right, it seems to be the only argument of Balkans. Strong pressure by the lies will, no doubt, hasten a crisis, the overthrow of Skoufis, and the return of Venizelos, would at least give the Allies a hand at Salonika, where they have been massing troops for nothing.

On the West front the capture of Vaux by the Germans is of importance which should not be underestimated.

The War Week by Week.

By OBSERVER.

The past seven days have been eventful ones, justifying the predictions of those who foretold great military activity with the approach of summer. The news has on the whole been distinctly cheering, the capture of Vaux by the Germans being perhaps the only dark spot in it. Enough has now been definitely learned of the result of the great naval engagement to establish it as a British victory. The flight alone of the German fleet would constitute it such, but that their losses should actually have been greater than ours, and in the class of ship wherein they could least be afforded, is a piece of good news far other than the first reports led us to expect. The world is waiting greedily for Admiral Jellicoe's report.

How closely all parts of the struggle are correlated is shown by one effect attributed by experts to this battle—the paralysis of German naval operations against Russia in the Baltic. In the case of a German military offensive against Russia, the left wing of their army would have invaluable assistance from their navy, and if not the greatest menace, would form an excellent pivot on which to swing forward, farther south, against Vilna. All danger, it is said, of any advance through Courland against Riga is now removed by the weakening of the German navy and the increasing strength of British submarines in those waters.

However that may be, Germany is now compelled to look to herself in another place, Russia having taken the initiative in no uncertain manner. The weight of her blow, however, is aimed chiefly at Austria, as might have been expected. Russia seems bent on surprising the world. The rapidity and strength of the assault which reduced Ezerum and then Trebizond are here repeated in Galicia. Allowing for exaggerations in the reports, the Russian progress against strong defences, supported by topographical difficulties, is surprising, and if the figures are to be trusted, more than one hundred thousand prisoners is not a bad bag for a few days' fighting. It is now announced from Petrograd that the Stry has been crossed, which means another formidable obstacle overcome. This river rises near, and runs north-east of, Lemberg, which seems to be definitely threatened.

If the Russian successes are carried to any great length, they are certain to have not only a military but a political effect. Whether or not Roumania will be influenced will soon be seen, but it should help to clarify the situation in Greece, where matters are becoming intolerable. We are ready to expect anything from Greece, even a Græco-Bulgarian alliance. Might may not be right, but it seems to be the only argument in the Balkans. Strong pressure by the Allies will, no doubt, hasten a cabinet crisis, the overthrow of Skouloudis and the return of Venizelos. This would at least give the Allies a free hand at Salonika, where they have not been massing troops for nothing.

On the West front the capture of Vaux by the Germans is of an importance which should not be underestimated, particularly as it seems to have cost the French as dearly as the attackers. With both Douaumont and Vaux in their possession, the Germans have a strong post for their artillery. The situation is not devoid of danger, though it is a long way yet to Verdun. On the British front the fighting has been of an intensity from which only the greater events elsewhere have distracted attention, and our Canadian neighbours have suffered very severely. Neither side can claim any decisive advantage.

It is very satisfactory to note that the Italians are holding the Austrians so well. It has been well said that Italy has hitherto been fighting, not Austria, but the Alps. On the lower ground of the Asiago valley they are holding their own and taking a high toll for every foot of ground relinquished. We are confident that Russia's successes will materially aid Italy here and permit her to resume the offensive very soon. The question of most interest now is whether the Russian advance will necessitate both Germany and Austria withdrawing sufficient forces from their other fronts to permit the British, French and Italians to make a great connected move forward. Is the grand Allied offensive at hand? We do not think the time is yet, but we shall soon see.

Sad Drowning Fatality.

A tragedy occurred at Gull Pond, off the Thorburn Road yesterday afternoon when Francis Edwards lost his life by drowning. Deceased was a native of England and 26 years of age. He had been a draper in the employ of the Royal Stores, Ltd., since February last and for several years previous worked in the dry goods department at Mr. G. Knowling's. Yesterday morning, in company with two other young men named Duncan McLean and William King, he left town to spend the day in the country. When they reached Gull Pond they launched a flat bottom boat that was there and rowed off to the middle of the pond and started fishing. The forenoon was spent by the party in enjoyment and pleasure and nothing happened out of the ordinary. Early in the afternoon, however, Edwards, who was sitting in the forepart of the boat, overbalanced himself and fell overboard. He could not keep afloat as he was unable to swim, besides being heavily clad, and sank immediately. One of his comrades McLean made several efforts to save him, but without avail. First McLean plunged in the water and seized Edwards and brought him to the surface, but as he did so Edwards grasped him around the neck and to save himself McLean was compelled to make Edwards release his hold. A trout rod was reached the drowning man, but as he grasped it the joints came apart and in an instant Edwards sank to rise no more. Where the drowning occurred the water is less than ten feet deep, consequently there was not much difficulty experienced in recovering the body, which was taken to the morgue a few hours later in charge of Supt. Grimes and Sgt. Savage. A post mortem was held on it last night and this morning the body was coffined and prepared for burial.

Capt. Wes March Home on Furlough.

Capt. Wesley March, of the 1st Nfld. Regiment who saw active service with D Company at the Gallipoli Peninsula, and who now comes direct from the trenches in France, arrived in the city last evening by the s.s. Sable I, which ship he joined at North Sydney after visiting London, Liverpool and Quebec, en route to St. John's.

He speaks in glowing terms of the splendid manner in which "Ours" behaved in that never-to-be-forgotten Gallipoli campaign in which many of our brave boys paid the supreme sacrifice. Although Capt. March declines to speak of his own part of the work, we have evidence enough to prove how invaluable it was. For Capt. Bernard, he has nothing but the highest praise, who under trying conditions held a section of the trenches at a time when he was almost half dead with dysentery, and when taken from the trenches had to be placed on a stretcher. Not for one moment did he allow his men to lose heart, but gave them all the encouragement possible to keep their spirits up. The Military Cross which he recently received, is the reward of his faithful duty. Private Gladney, who was decorated with the D.C.M., was awarded that honor for services performed as a scout, in which capacity he gained valuable information concerning the movements of the Turks. Capt. March spoke in very touching words of the heroic conduct and death of Private Jno. Fitzgerald. Deeds of personal bravery time and again were performed which may never be known to the Empire at large. The much delayed Mayo-linds, shirts and socks had reached the boys at their quarters in France, and with the incomparable home-made articles the Newfoundland soldiers were to be invited by the soldiers of other regiments.

Capt. March was given leave on May 22nd and while in London saw many of our boys and officers. Included in the latter number were Capt. Carly, who is returning home on sick leave, Capt. O'Brien, who has been appointed in command of A Co., now in France, and Lt. Herbert Rendell, who, has also resumed duty. Capt. March, after completing arrangements in connection with the estate of his late father, whose death occurred recently, will return to active service.

VOLUME XXXIII.

To the Citizens —AND— Ratepayers St. John's.

CITIZENS:
Having been requested by a large number of RATEPAYERS to place MYSELF in NOMINATION for MAYOR at the forthcoming MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS, I have decided to do so, and respectfully solicit your votes and influence.
I promise, if elected, to do my utmost in forwarding the best interests of the CITY.
WALTER A. O'D. KELLY.

NOTICE

Complying with widely expressed public opinion as voiced by the Board and individual citizens, we have designated members of the Municipal Board, deem it our duty to offer services to the City for the next years.

While making this announcement as a body, we wish it to be understood that we are standing as individuals, and desire to express our readiness as individuals to withdraw any Mayor or with any other officials that the Citizens may elect.

In respect to the Charter, has been submitted to the Legislature we beg to state that, while we are of opinion that its adoption will be to the City to be more effective than at present, we are fully aware of the fact that some of the provisions are debatable. We have no doubt that the Legislature and Citizens would carefully consider the same and would arrive at a decision in respect to them which would be generally satisfactory.

We can point with some satisfaction, if not with pride, to the improvements which have been effected during our short term of office. It is in the hope that we may be able to complete and perfect the same, and to institute further improvements, that we now signify our willingness to serve the City for a term of two years.

TO THE CITY RATEPAYERS

GENTLEMEN:
You hardly need to be reminded that six years ago you honoured me with a seat at the Council. At the expiration of that term I was appointed to the Government as one of the members of the Committee holding office temporarily pending arrangements for holding a new election. Having had the opportunity of that time to examine the City, and to co-operate in the forthcoming election, I feel that my experience warrants me in asking you to renew of that confidence in the forthcoming election. I intend to again put myself in nomination, and should I once have the honour of representing you, my very best efforts will be devoted to conserving the interests of the taxpayers of the City, and to co-operating to the best of my ability with the Mayor, whoever he may be whom you may select to fill the Mayoralty Chair.
Respectfully yours,
J. J. MULLI
