Love in the Abbey OR Lady Ethel's Rival

CHAPTER XXXIII.
IN THE POSE OF DEFENDER.

Watching the speck of dust, he saw it grow into a cloud; then it was hidden by a clump of trees, and for the moment his face flushed passionately as he thought he had lost it for good and all; but presently there smote upon his ears the dim thud of a horse's hoofs smiting the dry grass, and a minute or so later he looked under his brows and saw a lady riding across the meadow and coming in a line with him.

For a moment his hand trembled so that he could scarcely touch the fly from him, for at a glance he had recognized her. Not a difficult thing to do, either, for there was no woman in the county who sat a horse as did madcap Kitty. Horse and rider seemed one as they came along, both their forms clearly cut against the red glow of the sky. They were like a heroic carving of a cameo.

As they came nearer he looked up again, and an emotion, difficult to analyze, stirred within him; for hidden by the turn of the bank, ringed as it was by alders, he could see her white she could not see him, and his searching eyes noticed the languid look of the little figure, the pensive turn of the graceful, sweetly smooth head. It was not thus he had seen her galloping across the downs that morning when she played the trick upon my Lord Sterne. It was not thus that any one would have pictured wild, willful Kitty. Suddenly she turned the corner, and he knew by the stiffening of the figure, by the haughty rising of the ivory head that she had seen him.

Then he turned, and, with an eagerness that was only too real—that he could not conceal or tone down, stood bareheaded before her.

A slight flush stained her face as she pulled up and looked down at him, then the color left her cheeks and a cynical smile took its place; and looking at her he saw, with a thud of the heart, that a week had done for madcap Kitty. Pale, with colorless lips, compressed as if by weariness of hours of hot battle and inward wrestling; with her deep, brilliant eyes flashing defiantly and yet miserably, with that hard look upon her white face so easily imagined, so impossible to describe; she was Kitty still—Kitty, more lovely certainly in his eyes than she had ever been—but light-hearted, merry-voiced, glad, smiling Kitty no longer. The tomboy Kitty had gone—alas! perhaps forever, and here was Miss Catherine Trevelyan, lovely, haughty, strong-willed, unmerciful to herself, to all the world; in a word, a woman. And a woman of whom the Honorable Francis might be indeed proud; Heaven forgive him!

"Good evening," she says, in a low, clear voice, cold, sarcastic, as unlike the old, merry welcome as it well could be. "What sport?"

"None," he says hurriedly, as if the question was too trivial. "Are you well, quite well? I heard—"

"That I had been ill," she says, with an angry glitter. "You should know better than give a moment's credence to the wild gossip of this forsaken district. I have never been better in my life. I am quite well. You may always draw your conclusions from Beveridge's gossip on the contrary principle. Do you generally—hurry on and pointing her whip with a fine sarcasm at his fishing line—"do you generally fish for trout without a fly? There are, never many fish in this part of the Lombe—it is about the only spot which they do not swarm in, and if they were as thick as blackberries in Durley Wood they would not swallow simple catgut."

He glances at the rod indifferently, and turns to her with a gesture of earnest entreaty.

"It is true that my heart has not been in this idle foolery—"

"Trout fishing is not bad fun," she says dryly, keeping her eyes fixed on his earnest face with a defiantly curious gaze.

"My thoughts have been elsewhere, Miss Trevelyan, I dared to hope against hope—with a kind of despair—that you might come—that I might see you to-night!"

Kitty's white teeth touch her under lip with somewhat too sharp a pressure for a smile.

"I always ride in the evening, and generally in this direction."

"Yes," he says hurriedly, "I was not so mad as to dream that you would go out of your way to meet me."

"No, indeed," she says, with cold impressiveness.

"And therefore I waited here in the wild chance that you might pass. When I called at the Lawn this morning—"

"And found papa asleep and myself for once following his revered example. It is a good example, too," she adds bitterly, "one that I intend to profit by most religiously. We sleep day and night at the Lawn, so if you should chance to call again, be kind enough to ring softly."

He looks up at her with sad protest against her raillery, and then sighs, and is silent.

"And you?" says Kitty. "I thought you were abroad."

He raises his head, and looks at her with a plaintive little smile.

"I intended going," he says; "but, you see, I am here!"

"So I see," she says coolly. "You remained for the delight of angling—without a fly—the miserable Lombe. Mr. Galthrop, you have my sympathy!" His face flushes at her tone of mockery.

"I need it more than you know or can guess," he says. "Miss Trevelyan, it was not to fish in the Lombe that I decided to turn my back on Switzerland—"

"Switzerland?" she says. "You, too, were going to Switzerland?"

"Yes," he says, looking at her earnestly. "It is in the papers, I have no doubt, that I have really started."

"No, it is not," she says sharply, and he sees by the quiver that runs over her face, by the sudden flash of color and quickly succeeding pallor, that the pregnant paragraphs have done their work.

He inclines his head slightly.

"I was to have gone," he says; "but—well, I could not go. Miss Trevelyan, a man does not break with the associations, the ties of a life without a struggle. My life has been spent in aiding the ambition, in faithful vassalage to one man. Until—recently," he pauses, and looks at her with a mournful significance, "I had no higher desire than to remain that devoted slave which the world believes me; but a power greater than any I have hitherto known, a power born within my heart, springing up within my being, has proved too strong for the dictating wisdom, the force of habit, the whisperings of common prudence. Miss Trevelyan—my friend, my chief and I have parted."

As he makes this announcement, sadly yet firmly, with a hidden significance, Kitty looks at him with dark, questioning eyes.

"Do you mean," she says presently, speaking as if with an effort, "that you and—Lord Sterne have quarrelled?"

He raises his brows.

"I fear," he says quietly, "that you have rightly described the separation."

"What about?" says Kitty abruptly, coldly, though her heart is beating with a wild, passionate despair.

"I cannot tell you," he says.

"That means," she says, with a hot, momentary flush; "that means that it was about me."

"It concerned," he says, looking up at her with suppressed passion in his voice and eyes, "it concerned the one being whom I respect, reverence, love, beyond all others on earth."

Kitty shrinks slightly from that quiet outburst, but she still keeps her eye on him.

"Miss Trevelyan—Kitty," he goes on, "a year, a month ago, a word of light gossip, the shallow sneer of a couple of empty-headed women, in a salon full of them, would have passed by me unnoticed, though it had concerned my best friend—such is the way of the world; but I could not endure that a slight, though so contemptible a one, should be cast upon her whom I adore, whom I worship! Yet I could have passed it by, I think, with silent scorn, had he not stood there, silent and shamefully acquiescent. He who should have been the first to avenge the whispered insult and spring to your defence—"

"My defence! Then," says Kitty, breathes rather, for she scarcely speaks, so light a grip seems to seize her heart, "then it was about me these ladies were speaking? About me, and he, Lord Sterne," the name drops from between her clenched teeth, "stood by, you say—"

He smiles bitterly.

"You are surprised," he says; "you would not be if you knew him as I know him."

"He stood by," murmurs Kitty, with eyes fixed on the ground and a hectic flush upon either cheek, "and—heard them speak of me what? words of pity, or—what? and said nothing! No, he is not capable of that!"

And she raises her eyes defiantly.

"What is he capable of?" he says, in a low voice, hushed with indignation.

"Not of love; he knows nothing more of it than the name, and that he has desecrated and crushed a score of times. The passing fancy he calls love is as sickle as the wind. Oh, Kitty! I must speak. Is that love which breaks its pledged word and solemn truth for a mere pretense—a jealousy grounded on a cause so slight? Or is it not rather the shallow, heartless impulse which seizes upon any pretext, however slight, to rid itself of a blessing, too, far too great for it to appreciate or understand?"

White and motionless she looks down at him.

"I—I understand," she murmurs, inaudibly. "I—I saw in the papers that—" she stops. "Is it true?"

He looks down, as if to spare her.

"Cannot you speak?" she says, with a harsh laugh. "Why do you hesitate? Do you fear that you will—wound me. Ha! ha! do you think women cannot be as sickle as men—that we cannot have our fancies and tides of them as easily?" (Oh, Kitty! Kitty! what words are these?) "Is it true that my Cousin Lady Ethel is to be the future Lady Sterne?"

"It is true," he says firmly. "Why should I not say it, and why should you not hear it? Kitty, if I thought that such news could move you, I—much as I love you—you know I love you—I would go, and never look on your face again."

She looks at him with absent eyes—does not hear him.

"It is true," he says, "and here, as I stand, I would part with all I hold most worth having, to know that you do not care, and to let him know it, too!"

She looks at him and her eyes gleam.

"Yes," she murmurs, "that would be well. 'Yes, yes!' he thinks, with a hard smile, 'that I am alone here, weeping,' she laughs a reckless, un-mirthful laugh, "and fretting for—what has passed! If he knew how little I cared, happy—happy, I say!—how happy I am! Yes, I would like him to know that," and her hand clenches on her whip.

"Dear Kitty!" he says, bending closer to her. "My own Kitty! I knew you did not care. I knew that when they said you were jilted—that it served you right for trusting to him whom no woman believed—"

"They said that?" she asks, between her teeth.

"That you did not care, and that some day he would know it!"

"Yes," she says, passionately but quietly, with a deadly quiet; "he shall know it!"

"Yes," he says, as if echoing her determination. "Ah, Kitty, when I spoke up and gave them—scorn for scorn, when I told them, with a smile, that it was he who had been jilted and not you—I had no right to speak in your defence—no right but that which my love for you gave me! Kitty, I have been waiting for you all day—waiting, hoping against hope, that I should see you; for, Kitty, I cannot keep silent any longer. I must speak; I must tell you how dearly I have loved you—aye, through it all and ask you to give me the right to show him that you are not the forlorn, deserted—" he stops, warned by the flash of her eyes.

A Fashionable Woman

knows that her figure is made with her Corset. She may have beautiful and natural lines from the artist's point of view, but she knows that her form must be modelled by the Corset in order to have the contour which is necessary for her fashionable dress.

Warner's Corsets

represent the best there is in Corset designing and making. Every part of the figure in a WARNER'S MODEL is relaxed.

The Corset is scientifically boned with flexible boning, and put together so accurately that it cannot fail to fit comfortably if the proper model is selected. WARNER'S CORSETS are not expensive—they parallel the highest priced Corsets in style and beauty at much lower prices.

Every Pair guaranteed not to rust, break or tear. Prices, $2.50 per pair up.

The Woman who wears a Warner's Corset displays a perfect figure, at the same time enjoying the best possible Corset comfort.

WHAT IF YOU DO FAIL.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

for I mean it far from unkindly.

They Boast Of The Wrong Things.

New Year's resolutions are beautiful things to me. I love them. Sometimes I hear people boasting that they no longer make them, and I am sorry for those people for it means to me that they are of that misguided class that boast of the wrong things. Is it something to boast about that one is losing one's idealism and one's aspirations or that one has lost 'faith in one's power' to do better? I do not think so.

A Time Of Failure, Not Absolute Failure.

But it is only because New Year's resolutions are so beautiful that I am willing to cloud the optimism of this day by predicting a time of failure. You notice I do not say failure, but a time of failure, and that is the thought I want to drive home.

Some people think that the moment a New Year's resolution is broken, it is therefore good for nothing, but to be cast on the ash heap, and that they are thereby absolved from the demands it made upon them.

Would You Stop Trying to Find Your Way Because You Lost It Once?

A New Year's resolution represents an aspiration towards the good and beautiful, a path that you have marked out for yourself to follow because you believe it leads towards success of one kind or another. Because you lose that path for a moment, are you to say "Oh well, perhaps it wasn't worth following after all," or I suppose I haven't enough courage or intelligence to follow it," and to wander down some by-path and give up the search? Is that what you would do if you were trying to find your way toward some city? If you had made one wrong turning, would you give up the search altogether and abandon yourself to aimless wanderings? Suppose you make an extra resolution this year in addition to those you have planned. It is a very simple one and one which anyone can keep. You have guessed it, I am sure. That when the sad, almost inevitable, moment comes that one of your resolutions is broken, you will not abandon it but will mend it again and bravely and hopefully "carry on."

Milady's Boudoir

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN AND BEAUTY.

Overwork and worry often cause nervous physical collapse. In such cases food and sleep should be prescribed. Perhaps one will have no desire to eat. Nevertheless it is imperative for with plenty of easily assimilated food and plenty of rest and fresh air the sooner will nervousness and weakness be overcome.

In case that one has no appetite and eating is an actual effort, liquid foods should be taken. Raw eggs and milk-rank high in value, in fact a couple of raw eggs beaten, to which is added milk not only satisfies hunger but it quite nourishing. This liquid may be sweetened and flavored if desired.

Many a woman suffers from indigestion simply from lack of exercise. If this is brought about by wealth or indolence I have but little pity to extend. Every housewife has at hand the very best means of producing a healthy condition if she will but adopt it—it is that of housework.

It is quite true that tight lacing of the waist is responsible for many cases of indigestion. The necessity for tight lacing is an ill-proportioned body, usually due to neglect or over-indulgence. The stomach rebels at being confined when performing its labors and announces its displeasure by not taking proper care of the food which results in discomfort and eventually indigestion.

Very interesting combinations of tricolette and Georgette, satin and taffeta are seen.

THE NEW YEAR.

Another chapter in the book of life. For us to fill with faith and courage high. Each morning we shall cut with Time's keen knife. The pages white and spotless to the eye. Some shall complete the chapter; some shall stop. And find life's narrative for them is told. Their fingers, once so sure, shall pause, then drop. The pen that was but loaned to them to hold. Few griefs Time brings itself to start our tears. We are the architects that plan and change our years. Man writes the record of his life in deeds. (Years are but chapters of the book complete). His actions, not his oft-repeated creeds. Indelibly shall stamp each glistening sheet. Nothing but empty pages brings the year. It plays no favorites with high or low. What shall be written when we finish here. We must determine as the days shall go. Time has no power the lives of men to bless. Man is the author of his own success. Another year to fill with service true! God grant that we may toil with courage fine. And with the old ideals blend the new. With neither shame nor sin to mar a line. May this book match the splendors of the old. May it relate man's progress toward his goal. And when at last the finished tale is told. May it proclaim the splendor of his soul. God grant this Year with joy and peace shall glow. And send to all the strength to make it so.

Toronto Worrying Over War Weddings.

English Girls Marrying Canadians at Rate of 300 a Week.

Toronto, Dec. 19.—English girls marrying Canadian soldiers at the rate of 300 a week is considered by many Toronto women to be one of the most serious problems of the present generation. The fact that over 35,000 Canadian men have married English girls and that they will bring them back to make homes in Canada, a new country to them, deserves a great deal of serious thought, they say.

Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, president of the Women's Patriotic League, said: "I think it will be a very good thing for the country for the reason that it will produce an increase of English blood in Canada, which will help to counter-balance the creamy blood that we now have in our North-West. Of course it will depend greatly on the type of English girls our boys have married. If they are of a high standard they will help to promote English ideals in our country, for the average well-bred English girl is an acquisition. If our boys have not married this type it will go badly with our country for they seem to be marrying fast enough to produce a decided effect one way or the other."

"Of course, men have short memories and maybe they'll be sorry when they return and see what nice girls we have in Canada, too."

"I am sorry for the Canadian girls, I think a great many charming ones will go unmarred for this reason." Mrs. N. Brock Wilkins, president of Personal Service Club, said: "I foresee a great domestic upheaval in the future. They are doing it too fast to be safe. Our soldiers are lonely over there. The dominance of a new country appeals to the girls, and I am afraid they are marrying without giving consequences much thought. Our ideas are different from theirs, and unless they change to suit our country I think there is bound to be domestic difficulty which will result in divorce courts. The spirit of unrest likely to issue will be shown in the next generation."

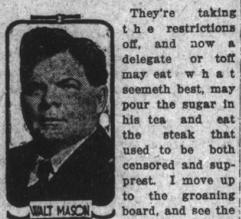

Frozen Dead At Sea.

Vessel Towed to Liverpool with one Man Dead, and Others in Freezing Condition.

Liverpool, Dec. 21.—The American schooner Catherine, of Gloucester, Mass., Capt. Archie McLeod, arrived here to-day with the French vessel Quo Vadis in tow. The Quo Vadis was bound to St. Pierre with a cargo of 3,500 bushels of salt on board. The captain of the American vessel picked up the Quo Vadis 45 miles off the coast in a helpless condition. Signals of distress were flying. Capt. McLeod went on board and found one man frozen dead and the crew in their bunks in a freezing condition. He took the vessel in tow and brought her into Liverpool. Coming up the harbor the line broke and a man on board the French vessel had his leg fractured. The American Consul here is acting for the captain and notified the French Consul in Halifax the condition of the crew of the Quo Vadis. The captain of the American vessel is asking a claim for salvage. The crew are being cared for and the doctors have them in hand.

Be sure the potatoes are thoroughly drained before starting to mash them, otherwise they will be watery. The water in which rice has been boiled can be mixed with the milk to be used in a pudding—and less milk will be necessary.

RESTRICTIONS OFF.

WALT MASON

They're taking the restrictions off, and now a delegate or toff may eat with a t seemeth best, may pour the sugar in his tea and eat the steak that used to be both censored and suppressed. I move up to the groaning board, and see the old grub restored, and there are pies and hard boiled ham, and prune preserves and onion jam, and all the things I like. My being was profoundly loved when war was on, and Hoover hooved, with his official seal; and as I ate my basswood bread I sometimes tore my clothes and said, "Oh, for a good square meal! I hope to live to see the day when I won't have to live on hay and dried excelsior! Oh, how I'll eat the luscious things when we have canned a lot of kings, and won this beastly war!" And now I face the groaning board, and carve the roast beef with a sword, the sword of Bunker Hill; and there are luxuries to burn, all things for which a man might yearn—and I'm unhappy still. I can't help thinking of the skates in many war-demolished states, who cannot pick and choose; the children and the weary frames who'd like to fill their bony frames with grub that I refuse. So I feel guilty as I eat the scalloped oysters and the meat, I'm rather shy on mirch; I don't enjoy the wheaten bread; as some old sage or post said, there's no true bliss on earth.

Looking Backward.

Standing on the threshold of the New Year, with thoughts centred upon the future which it promises, and with hope of the brightest that color all its prospects, we are nevertheless, perforce drawn toward the year past, and our mental gaze looks backward over the vista of the past twelve months, can scan the many occurrences, which time has now covered with its passage, and which some will wish that oblivion may conceal, and memory forget. It is true that the year itself has departed into the pocket of time, but those things which have been done since January 1918 is ushered in, have left an indelible impress, and the thought uppermost in the popular mind with the beginning of the New Year is, how much longer are these to continue. Newfoundland has quietly stood by and let much peculiar legislation go through, without question, because of a feeling that any embarrassment of the Government would be detrimental to the task for which we had set ourselves to accomplish, viz. the winning of the war. And, taking advantage of that patriotic spirit, on the part of the people, and having in view the benefits of personal advancement more than those of national progress, men in authority have gone to extreme lengths in purveying for themselves and their friends, honors, which have been made possible by the sacrifices of others, and notwithstanding the opprobrium which has manifested itself openly in all quarters, and the unconcealed hostility and heaped up ridicule which have been bestowed upon the recipients, the stream of insinuated tales has not been stemmed, but appears to be flowing more rapidly toward the dominions, which in justice to themselves have been obliged to protest against the multiplicity of distinctions conferred unworthily and at the expense of the life sacrifice of others. Wealth and honors, (but very little honor) have been gained by many since August 1914, and the whole trend of legislation since then has been to give a greater impetus to the personal advancement of those who were placed in a position to gain a bubble reputation, bought for them by men who faced the cannons' mouth, and whose deeds are unrecognized and unrewarded, while the wearers of such honors flaunt them in the faces of those who willingly gave their all, and are now passed by and overlooked, having served their turn. And it is not only in this way that the deserving have been thrust aside, while their dearly won victories have been made the source of profit for others.

There is a lengthy and sordid history to be related in connection with the conduct of certain matters relating to war affairs in this colony, and in the telling of this history, certain exposures will of necessity, have to be made. The few will not be permitted to profit at the expense of the many, and if, in giving publicity later to the disclosures which have been communicated to us, some persons in high authority, become marked for life, the cause and the blame alike, will be attributable only to themselves. We speak now of regimental affairs only. Looking backward there are other public matters which have to pass through the avenue of discussion and under the searchlight of the press, and their name is legion.

New Year Honor.

His Excellency the Governor has received a telegram from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, announcing that His Majesty the King has been pleased to approve of the grant of the Dignity of Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George to the Prime Minister of Newfoundland, the Right Honourable Doctor William Frederick Lloyd, K.C. Government House, St. John's.

Minister's Explanation.

In an interview with a Telegram reporter this morning, Hon. J. R. Bennett, Minister of Militia, explained that, in the case of the recent resignations, the matter had arisen through a misunderstanding, that he had meant no discourtesy to the officers in question, and that they had meant no discourtesy toward him. "No animosity exists between us," declared the Minister. "The matter is being taken up by the Government, and I have no doubt but that the misunderstanding will be satisfactorily adjusted."

Mentioned in Orders.

(French Journal Official.) His Royal Highness Edward Prince of Wales, staff-captain in the 14th British Army Corps from July to October 1917, in the region of Bessinghe and Langemarck, by ensuring liaisons up to the first lines under bombardment contributed very effectively to the close co-operation in battle of the 14th British Army Corps and the 1st French Army.

Shipping News.

The schr. Revenue left Bordeaux on Monday last for this port. After coming off dock the Cambrai will proceed to Botwood for a load of pulp and paper for France. The Lady of Gaspe reached port yesterday morning and brought a full freight from Boston, New York and Halifax. She makes another trip ere being taken off the route. The Adolph is expected here sometime next week.

Receives D. S. O.

A telegraphic communication to Sir Joseph Outerbridge, this morning, announces the fact that his third son, Major Leonard Outerbridge of the Canadian Army, received the D.S.O. for services in France during the past year. No further particulars are to hand at present.

Noted Traveller

Rev. Daniel Cook, who has been working in India for the past ten years, came in by the express to-day. For a number of years Mr. Cook was principal of the industrial school at Mow, on the Canadian Presbyterian Mission Staff. He is well versed in the conditions prevailing in China and Japan. He has also worked in the Yukon, and on Labrador and was resident in Harbor Grace for a year. Rev. Mr. Cook has descended from what we may call a line of Presbyterian clergymen, one of his ancestors having established the first church of that kind in Truro, N.S. Mr. Cook will preach at St. Andrew's Church on next Sunday.

J. R. BENNETT,
Minister of Militia.

C.L.B. Band Concert.

By permission of the officer commanding, the annual concert of the C. L. B. Band was given in the Methodist College Hall last night. The hall, which is the largest in the city, was filled to capacity. A fine programme was gone through, reflecting much praise on the members of the band. Mr. Gordon Christian was the accompanist during the evening. His Excellency the Governor was in attendance.

Obituary.

ELI WHITEWAY.
The community has heard with deep regret of the death of Mr. Eli White-way, which sad event occurred at his residence, 81 Springdale Street, at 3 o'clock this morning. Mr. White-way had been ailing for some time, but it was thought that, with the extra care and attention bestowed upon him, he would pull through, but unfortunately this was not to be. The deceased gentleman and for some years been employed as receiver of patients arriving in town for treatment at Hospital, and during his period of service never missed a train or a boat bringing a subject for medical treatment. Affable, courteous and obliging, the late Mr. White-way made many friends amongst those whom it was his duty to receive and convey to Hospital, and his passing will come as a shock and surprise to them, as well as to his numerous acquaintances in the city and elsewhere.

BAD WALKING.—The streets were in a terrible condition this morning, and those who were anything but long gun boots went home with wet feet. Little or no effort was made to clear the slush and water from the sidewalks, and in places pools of six inches and even a foot in depth were plentiful.

Thanksgiving Reunion

AT WESLEY CHURCH.
It was a happy thought of Mr. Mark Pike's Class to have, following the family gatherings of last week, the larger gathering of the husbands and wives and their friends, particularly the returned soldiers belonging to the congregation, sit down to a bountiful tea last night in the S. S. Room of the Church. Previous to enjoying the good things, an excellent program was gone through. Rev. W. Bugden, B.A., delivered the opening address, congratulating all on the success of the undertaking, and the many reasons for thanksgiving. A very fine piano solo from Miss Florence Pike, was followed by a lovely song from Miss Rita Pippy and recitations from several young ladies, were well rendered. Solos by others whose names we have not ascertained, club swinging by Miss Vasey, a reading from C. R. Steer, Esq., and a splendid address from Rev. Mr. Forbes, and several overtures from the fine brass band of No. 2 Corps S. Army, all made up a very enjoyable programme. The social part then commenced, greetings and pleasant chatting at the tea tables, music by the S. A. band, the tasteful and elaborate decoration of the brilliantly lighted room, all contributed to make it a very gay affair. The supplies provided being more than required, it has been arranged that the Ladies' Church Aid will supply another tea to-night at 30c. for which an entirely new programme has been prepared, assuring all who attended a very pleasant evening and the proceeds will go for church purposes.

Orange Society's New Year Parade

Nearly five hundred members participated in the loyal Orange Society parade yesterday, and leaving Victoria Hall at 10 a.m., with the Salvation Army and C. L. B. bands accompanying them, marched down Theatre Hill, up New Gower Street and to Water Street, via Springdale Street; down Water and Duckworth Streets to St. Thomas's Church by way of Cochrane Street, Rev. Dr. Jones, Grand Chaplain of the Order, was the preacher, taking as his text 11th v. 13th ch. of 1st Corinthians. His subject was "Three Epochs in a Nation's History," preaching a most eloquent sermon, emphasizing the three periods in the life of the British nation, Childhood, Youth and "Madness." The church was filled. After service the Society went to Government House where it was received by His Excellency, Mr. J. C. Puddister, Grand Master of Newfoundland, tendering expressions of devotion and loyalty to the King through the Governor. Mr. A. W. Piccott, M.H.A., Past Deputy Grand Master, then called for cheers for the King, the Governor and family, Britain and her Allies, and the sailors and soldiers, the large concourse responding heartily. Having enjoyed the hospitality of Government House, the parade was continued to the Hall, where the usual votes of thanks were carried by acclamation. This was the first parade the Orange Society has held for five years, and consequently yesterday's was most enthusiastic and all the more enjoyed.

Should Be Stopped.

Especially now that the streets are in such a condition, the custom of small boys hailing slides along the sidewalks, splashing water and wet snow around, should be stopped, for the wetting that most people receive from ordinary causes is quite sufficient, and calls for no additional help from this objectionable means.

On Tuesday the signal man at Cabot Tower had a very narrow escape from death. Mr. Cantwell had gone to the magazine for the charge of powder used by the noon-day gun and it is presumed that a spark from his pipe exploded the powder. Fortunately there was not a big quantity of the explosive in store, and how the man escaped with life is remarkable. Mr. Cantwell, although lacerated badly about the chest and hands; managed to get out of the building, but immediately collapsed. He was found by his assistant, Mr. Bartlett. Dr. Roberts, who was attending the Small-pox Hospital at the time, looked after the injured man. The explosion caused the tower to take fire and had it not been for the promptness of Mrs. Winslow and the nurses the structure would have been burnt to the ground. Mr. Cantwell is doing very well at the Hospital, whether he was taken after the accident.

Allenby's Brilliant Campaign.

Allies Make Gains in Russia--- Marine Disaster on Scotch Coast.

ALLENBY'S GREAT PLAN.

LONDON, Dec. 31. (British Wireless Service).—Details of what was perhaps one of the most spectacular operations of the war became known to-day when General Allenby's report on the Palestine campaign was published. British, Indian, French and Italian contingents participated in the fighting, and in addition Arab forces from east of the Jordan rendered effective assistance. The British navy had also shared in the operations. General Allenby's plan was ambitious. He sought to break through the Turkish lines, send his cavalry through and encompass what he described as a rectangle forty-five miles in length and twelve in depth in which the Turkish troops were crowded. By this stroke he planned to cut the enemy's communications and complete his discomfiture by joining hands with the Arabs. A force vastly superior to the Turks was gathered against the right wing of the enemy's army near the Mediterranean coast. On the morning of September 19th, after an intense bombardment lasting only 15 minutes, the Allied infantry attacked, a great gap was torn in the Turkish lines, and through it were sent masses of cavalry which had been held in leash until the moment had arrived. Within thirty-six hours, says General Allenby, all the main avenues of escape for the seventh and eighth Turkish armies had been closed, all organized enemy resistance ceased, and roads were blocked by retreating men and transports. Then the Allied air forces hurled themselves at the huddled masses of Turks. The Turkish army melted away, says the report, a junction was made with the Arabs, and the way to Damascus and Aleppo was opened.

ALLIED ADVANCE IN RUSSIA.

ARHANGEL, Dec. 31. An Allied force composed of Americans, Russians and Poles yesterday advanced 14 miles southward along the road bordering the Onega River. They met with considerable resistance from the Bolsheviks, but captured more than a dozen villages and did not halt until they had taken the village of Gogoll. Starting from the village of Kalovang early Saturday morning American forces took the village of Prilaki where there is a large monastery. They continued to advance in hot fighting Sunday and had not yet been halted up to late on Monday. Sleighs are being used to transport the Allied soldiers. The advance, the first attempt of the winter, was carried out under semi-Arctic conditions, and in the few hours of daylight which obtain in this region. The village of Gogoll is approximately eight miles south of the town of Otega and about four miles west of the frozen swamp which forms the Allied positions along the Vologda railroad. The road along which the Allies advanced leads in the general direction of Vologda and crosses the railway line at an important strategic centre from which the Bolsheviks have been operating. An important role in yesterday's fighting was taken by a Russian naval brigade which has been trained by American and British naval officers. The Polish troops who participated distinguished themselves in the early days of the fighting along the Dvina. The Poles and Russians are filled with hatred of the Bolshevik and neither ask nor give quarter in combat.

BRITISH DELEGATES TO LEAVE.

LONDON, Jan. 1. An important portion of the British delegation to the Peace Conference will leave for Paris Saturday, according to the Evening News. In addition to Premier Lloyd-George, Foreign Secretary Balfour and Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, the paper says the British representatives will include Viscount Harding, former Governor-General of India and permanent Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs; Sir Wm. G. Tyrrell, former Private Secretary to Sir Edward Grey, who will act for the Foreign Office; Sir Louis Mallet, former British Ambassador to Turkey, an authority on matters relating to Turkey; Sir Ems W. Howard, Minister to Sweden, an authority on Northern Europe; Sir Ralph Paget, Minister to Denmark and former Minister to Bulgaria, an authority on the Balkans, and Sir Eyre Crowe, Assistant Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, as an authority on affairs of Western Europe.

SHUTTING OUT PRUSSIA.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 1. The new bill for Germany's legislative organisations, according to a semi-official despatch from Berlin, provides for a People's House and a State House. The members of the State House will be appointed by the Parliaments of the Federated States. A referendum is provided in case of disagreement between the two houses or between the President and the House. The bill says that the continuance of Prussia in its present form is impossible, because Prussia has disgraced its historic past. The State House will be composed of one member for each one million inhabitants, but Prussia which has a round 30,000,000 inhabitants, will have only twenty-three representatives. However, it is provided that if Prussia is divided into more states each state will have full representation.

MENACE TO PEACE.

BERLIN, Dec. 30. (By the A.P.).—A feature of the congress of the Spartacus group to-day was a speech by M. Radeka, head of the Bolshevik mission to Germany, who launched a long defence of Bolshevism and declared the Russians did not fear an entente invasion, because the invaders would become infected with the germ of Bolshevism. He said he welcomed the prospect of French occupation of Germany for the same reason, because it would help to promote Bolshevism still further in its progress westward. The Russian workmen, Radeka declared, were filled with pride at the prospect of fighting beside their German comrades on the banks of the Rhine against Anglo-Saxon capitalists. The Vossische Zeitung commenting on the presence of Radeka in Berlin, says, "It is useless to enquire how he came to be admitted. The thing is, what is to be done now that he is among us. Apparently the German frontier no longer is efficiently guarded against foreign agents striving to rob the German people of peace and to incite them to fresh war." Radeka's speech will be the first step toward resuming war with the Entente. A prominent member of the new German Government informed the correspondent to-day that Radeka had been smuggled across the border and probably would be asked to leave the country at once.

BIG LOSS OF LIFE.

LONDON, Jan. 1. Two hundred and seventy sailors were drowned to-day as the result of the loss of the British steam yacht Iolaire, off Stornoway, Scotland. The yacht had 300 sailors on board. They were on a New Year's leave. The vessel struck on the dangerous rocks known as "the beats of hell" near Stornoway Harbor, and only about thirty of them were saved, many of these terribly injured in their efforts to reach the shore. All the officers and crew of the Iolaire were lost. The Iolaire was a vessel of 302 tons. She was built in 1902, and before the war belonged to the estate of the late Sir Donald Currie.

WILSON EN ROUTE TO ROME.

PARIS, Jan. 1. President Wilson to-night is en route to Rome, where he will be the guest of King Victor Emmanuel. During his stay in the Italian capital he will visit the Pope and also the Methodist College, and will continue his conferences with the King, Premier Orlando and Benito Mussolini, the Foreign Minister. Some important results are expected from this visit, which will be the last to the Allied countries before the beginning of the Peace Conference.

PARIS, Jan. 1.

All root vegetables should be scrubbed before peeling them so that the peelings may be used for stock. A boiled custard can have the milk heated before putting in the eggs and sugar. However, it must not boil. Ammonia and warm water poured on a grease spot on the rug will remove the spot without changing the color.

The Royal Stores Ltd.

Nfld. Scotch Cured Herring.

While the fact of sales of Green Bay have been confirmed at $23 per barrel, to New York, a majority of the importers here contend that they have no intention of buying at anything like this price, and from most quarters the statement comes "we have not purchased a barrel as yet and do not intend to at the prices being asked by packers." This attitude has dominated the Nfld. Scotch cured herring situation in New York since the opening of the season, and the fact that one or possibly two have purchased at high prices appears to have had little effect on the others. It is reported in private advices that some of the packers are offering their herring at prices below those at which sales were recently made at Green Bay, and some importers here hold the belief that the packers of Newfoundland will see the error of their ways before the season over. They point out that New York is now in a position to choose from what sources it will purchase its herring, and that with European fisheries soon to be resumed, it will be possible to offer many varieties within a comparatively few months. The trade is firmly of the conviction that Newfoundland Scotch herring will not sell here at $35 or $40 per barrel, and if packers persist in asking the high prices now quoted, importers will be obliged to forego the importation of it entirely. There are stocks of Alaska herring in New York and there appears to be a good demand for it, while Newfoundland Scotch herring of the spring and winter pack is not selling at all. Quotations are nominal in most cases at present.—N.Y. Fishing Gazette, Dec. 21.

Household Notes

It is best to roast or pan chicken with the breast down. It will be more juicy. Add salt to starch water and it will prevent the starch from frosting out. Pictures should be hung at the height of the eye of the average person. Good gored aprons can be made from old skirts, especially white linen ones. A shelf in the chest for shoes is far better than placing them on the floor.

THE Sunlight enterprise and organization for production, manufacture, and distribution were made complete long before the war. But during the war the difficulties and costs of transport have been multiplied. Therefore, Lever Brothers have purchased a fleet of steamships to convey raw materials direct from their plantations to Port Sunlight.

The Housewife is given the full benefit of this enterprise, and thus, in spite of the difficulties caused in England by the war, Sunlight Soap remains the best soap throughout the world, and gives the fullest value for the housewife's money.

THE SUNLIGHT SERVICE IS THE MOST COMPLETE SOAP SERVICE IN THE WORLD. SUNLIGHT SOAP IS MADE FOR THE HOUSEWIFE'S PROFIT, FOR ONLY THEREBY CAN THE MAKERS HOPE TO PROFIT BY SUNLIGHT SOAP.

Grand Concert in Aula Maxima.

What was voted to be one of the most successful and pleasing entertainments, ever held there was given in the Aula Maxima to a very large and appreciative audience. New Year's night, under the management of Mr. Chas. Wiseman and Mr. Gus Hodder, the former as stage-manager and the latter as musical director. Among those present being Rev. Dr. Greene, Father Savin, Fr. Renouf and Fr. St. John, and a number of Christian Brothers, besides a large number of leading citizens, after the performance a vote of thanks was tendered to the Company by Dr. Greene on behalf of the Holy Name Society, after which an excellent repast was tendered the Company by the committee, to which full justice was done. Each item on the programme was rendered excellently. Sincere thanks are due all concerned, especially Messrs. Wiseman and Hodder for their efforts in making the concert a success.

Proprietors Honored.

On New Year's Eve, Mr. I. C. Morris, proprietor of the well known sailworks, and Mr. Ronald C. Morris, his son, were presented with an office chair and gold ring respectively, by the employees. The presentation was made by Mr. John McGuire, the senior sailmaker in the country. Mr. McGuire was prominent in sail works during the business days of the late Charles Hutchings. Messrs. Morris replied expressing their surprise and thanks at the tangible appreciations of good will of their staff towards themselves.

Obituary.

MRS. EUGENE TAYLOR.
At three o'clock yesterday morning, Mrs. Eugene Taylor passed to her eternal reward. Mrs. Taylor had been an invalid for some years, but through out her lengthy illness bore up with the courage characteristic of a Christian. Her three sons enlisted at the outbreak of the war, all three having paid the Supreme Sacrifice one daughter, Miss Isabelle Taylor, has for the past year been engaged in V. A. D. work in England, four others share with their father and absent sister their irreparable loss. Mr. J. P. Powell, Carbonear, is the only surviving sister. To the sorrowing relatives the Telegram extends sincere sympathy.

HOWARD TAYLOR.

After a few days' illness, of pneumonia following influenza, Howard Taylor, of S. Milley's employ, passed away just before last midnight; the visiting doctors being powerless to do anything that would save his life. For years Mr. Taylor has been in Milley's employ, being looked upon as one of our most efficient business men, and his presence will be sorely missed by those who were fortunate enough to come in contact with him. We extend our sympathy to the parents, relatives and friends of the deceased gentleman.

STRAITS ICE-FILLED.

English, of the s.s. Ethie, who arrived at Humbermouth yesterday, from Battle Harbor, reports the Straits packed with slob ice, and that during the past week southeast snow storms, with heavy frost, prevailed.

Poor Asylum Concert

On Monday afternoon at the Poor Asylum, the annual tea and concert given by a number of charitable ladies, took place, the inmates thoughtfully enjoying the occasion and appreciating the kindness that prompted it. The concert consisted of items by Mrs. Cabell, Misses Curtis, Brown, Barron, Shears, Hiscock, K. Power and Burns, and at the close refreshments were served by a number of ladies under the direction of Mrs. P. Burke. The male inmates of the Institution received a plentiful supply of pipes and tobacco, which, needless to say, were very much appreciated. These ladies deserve hearty thanks for their christian efforts in relieving the monotony that must otherwise have been experienced by the unfortunate inmates at the Poor Asylum.

The Herring Situation.

Clouds of misunderstanding appear to be dissipating in Newfoundland among the herring packers, and it is entirely likely that the high prices now being asked will be lowered as a result of sane reasoning out of the matter. Newfoundland newspapers are discussing the subject and endeavoring to point out to fishermen and packers that this is not the time to extort high prices from buyers who have been instrumental to a very large extent in the development of the industry. The "Trade Review" of St. John's, commenting upon the present situation, says: "It is time that the Government through the Marine and Fisheries Department, should step in to control this (herring) business in the interests of the fishermen themselves and in order that the fishery be not ruined. New York is not dependent this winter solely on Newfoundland herring. Thirty thousand barrels are now on the way from British Columbia, and the Scotch and the Dutch will also be sending over herring very soon. The extraordinary prices that importers of Newfoundland herring in New York will have to look for to make the venture pay will militate seriously against the sale of our herring this winter and there will be ruin and loss to individuals and a black eye to our herring trade." Cleveland's Health Cocoa.

A shipment has just arrived, and there will be no advance in price, notwithstanding the shortage of Cocoa in the United States. All during the war Cocoa has been in the highest favor, and justly so on account of its great food value, and the soldiers in all branches of the service have consumed enormous quantities.

Belvedere Crib.

For many years past the Crib at Belvedere has been a centre of attraction to many devout worshippers. This year the good Sisters in charge of the Orphanage have spared no pains to make an ideal representation of the Stable of Bethlehem. No more appropriate place for the Crib could be chosen, where the sweet-toned voices of innocent little ones chant hymns of praise to the Christ Child. At noon and at four o'clock daily, the children assemble for devotions at the Crib, and earnest prayers ascend that the Divine Babe of Bethlehem may bestow His choicest blessings on the many generous benefactors of the Belvedere Orphanage.

WELL MERITED HONORS.

LONDON, Jan. 1. Earldoms will be conferred on Field Marshal Haig and Vice-Admiral Beatty, in recognition of their services during the war. According to the Mail it is stated that Generals Horne, Plumer, Byng, Rawlinson, Birdwood and Allenby will be elevated to the Peerage. The newspaper says that these honors probably will be accompanied by grants of money. Immediate announcement of these honors, is said by the Mail to be improbable, as Field Marshal Haig prefers to remain in command of the British armies until the treaty of peace is signed and the army is reconstructed on a peace basis. It is recalled that Lord Roberts received a parliamentary grant of 100,000 pounds, and Lord Kitchener was given 50,000 pounds after the South African War. These grants were in addition to the title conferred upon them. It is reported that Vice-Admiral Beatty will be given the rank of full Admiral. Since he took over the command of the British fleet from Sir John R. Jellicoe, he has borne the title of Acting Admiral. The Marquis of Milford Haven, commanding the second cruiser squadron, and former First Lord of the Admiralty, has been placed on the retired list at his own request.

DIVIDING THE SPOIL.

LONDON, Jan. 1. German submarines, which have been surrendered, are being divided among the Allies, according to the Mail. The newspaper says that 35 have been given to France ten to Italy, seven to Japan and four to the United States. The U-boats, turned over to the United States are said to be on their way across the Atlantic. The newspaper does not specify the manner in which the rest of the 127 surrendered subs are to be allotted.

RIGA FEARS BOLSHIEVICS.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 1. Riga is panic stricken over the advance of Bolshevists forces, which are but 18 miles away, and many families are fleeing the city, according to advices from Berlin.

EASTERN READJUSTMENTS.

PARIS, Dec. 31. (By the A. P.)—France plans to assume the guidance of the destinies of Armenia, Syria and Lebanon, in the new order of world affairs growing out of the war, in conformity with treaties signed with Great Britain and Russia in 1915, if the coming Peace Conference does not rule otherwise, according to authoritative information furnished the Associated Press. Palestine, according to plan under consideration, would, with its complexity of nationalities and religions, be placed under international protection. Great Britain would be responsible for the Arabian Peninsula, with the exception of the Kingdom of Hedjaz, which would be free. France, it is emphatically stated, eschews the term protectorate in connection with her proposed supervision of these countries, and it is probable that some such relations with them as exists between Great Britain and her Dominions would be established under the plan.

ALLIED OCCUPATION.

LONDON, Jan. 1. A battalion of French troops has been detailed to occupy the Stamboul District of Constantinople, while a British battalion will occupy Pera, the European quarter. Italian forces will occupy another district of the city.

NAVAL VISIT.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 1. At the invitation of the British Government, the Brazilian fleet now in European waters will visit Great Britain.

TORONTO'S MAYORALTY CONTEST.

TORONTO, Jan. 1. In the mayoralty contest, 350 polling divisions give Mayor Church 19,093, O'Neill 12,021, Fobler 1,579, and Shaw 2,997. Re-election of Church probable.

POLAND IN DESPAIR.

LONDON, Jan. 2. Poland is in despair owing to the invasion of Bolshevik troops, and the apparent indifference of the Western Powers to the plight of the country, according to a Warsaw despatch to the Mail. Telegrams are sent begging intervention by the Allies, the despatch stated, but no reply comes.

The Vision of Mons.

Bishop Moule, in a letter to the "Spectator," quotes from what has been told him regarding the Vision of Mons by the Rev. W. Elliot Bradley, Vicar of Crosthwaite, who "got a practically identical account of a certain incident of that crisis from each of three soldiers, old 'Contemptibles,' to whom he talked on three separate occasions. Mr. Bradley asked in each case whether the soldier recalled 'anything unusual' at the crisis of the retreat. And each man without hesitation gave this answer. "The Germans were coming on in massed formation and the men of the thin British line were preparing to sell their lives dearly; it was the one thing to do; the Teuton host could not help walking over them on the way to Paris. Suddenly the grey masses halted; even the horses of the cavalry jibbed and reared; and the collision did not take place. German prisoners, taken a little later, were asked why they failed to attack at such an advantage. The answer was straight and simple; they saw strong British reinforcements coming up. Such was

Editorial
FOR THE NEW YEAR

The satisfactory business which has been ours during the past year, in spite of the extraordinary conditions which have prevailed, is good evidence of the success of our Store policies.

It has been our aim to give you an efficient, courteous, attentive service in the face of the severe hardships which the war placed upon us. For the present year, 1919, it will be our endeavour to improve and progress so as to deserve your custom as in the past.

James Baird

OUR WISH
 That Your New Year May Be A Happy and Prosperous One.

And now before starting our SALES for 1919 we take this opportunity to sincerely thank you for your generous patronage during the year just closed.

Believe us when we say that our best efforts to retain that esteemed patronage will be made during 1919. We thank you.
