The Wraith of McCarthy,
Sing, Goddess, the direful wrath of Achilles
John's death.

Mr. D'Alton McCarthy has got it into his head that the quarrel between himself and Sir John Thompson is of national importance. Whenever and wherever he addresses a meeting Mr. McCarthy goes into the details of this episode between the two great men, of whom his brother-in-law and his admirers eulogize McCarthy as the greater. McCarthy's personal followers are few in number, but they sound his praises with a loud voice. The brother-in-law compares the virtues of the two heroes, but Sir John Thompson is nowhere alongside the political giant of North Simcoe. Mr. McCarthy's latest recruit, the Mayor of Hamilton, delighted his chief with a shower of gorgeous attributes such as few of the demigods of ancient days ever applied to themselves. It looks, in fact, as if the world was about to make it appear that this estrangement between the Premier and McCarthy differs not much in magnitude from that celebrated Agamemnon-Achilles dispute which formed the subject of the first and, in Gladstone's opinion, the greatest epic of history.

McCarthy started out to sing his own praises. But he finds in history that the great men of the world have, as a rule, not written or spoken their own panegyrics. Every Achilles has his Homer. Mr. McCarthy accordingly has resolved to delegate to others the singing of his praises in the matter of this personal estrangement. Brother-in-law Pepler has taken up the strain, and it is to be hoped, although he butters his hero's head very lavishly.

Stewart of Hamilton is a man of more words than ideas and in the business of eulogy he shines with the coat of a bird with borrowed plumage. In his opinion McCarthy is a man who, in future ages, will be marbled and will occupy a distinguished position among the gods and men whose busts and statues adorn our Normal School and the British Museum. When the history of the nineteenth century comes to be written no name, says he, will receive higher eulogy than that of McCarthy. This century has produced men among the greatest of mankind in all ages. McCarthy, then, will rank with Pericles, Julius Caesar, Napoleon, Gladstone and Achilles.

But another Brother-in-law Pepler nor A. D. Stewart has the poetic imagination that is required of the singer of heroes. We have in Canada some poets who might usurp the task of singing in heroic measure the praises of a Gladstone, but Brother-in-law Pepler is not one of them. Right here in Toronto resides the author of the celebrated lines beginning:

A fine fat fish
For a noon-day dish.—J.D.E.

He, however, belongs to a different political party from McCarthy, and it is doubtful if he could be got to throw into the McCarthy epic such enthusiasm as bursts out in the lines above. Poor Jimmy Gay of Guelph had poetry in him. He could write fine verses, about a drygoods box or a cheese-knife. But he is gone and is not among available material. Poet McIntyre of Ingersoll, or Robert Wade, Toronto, or some other have written things that have excited the admiration of Joe Peacock and Tommy Webb. Our advice to Mr. McCarthy is to call off the brother-in-law and discreetly approach Mr. Wade or Mr. Sherwood, the artist-peeler. They will sing with wrath toward Agamemnon.

Col. Sweny's Venetian Project.
The question of getting street railway communication to and on the Island has suddenly come into the arena of practical municipal politics. It looks as if some definite project will be forthcoming within a week or so, and in that event there is no reason why the work could not be taken in hand at an early date and be finished before the summer is far advanced. Col. Sweny's suggestion to canals and electric launches is a fascinating one, and there is no reason why it should not be carried out; but it can be undertaken only gradually, and without keynotes before it would be any extent adequately met the requirements of local transportation on the Island. The railway need not, and will not interfere with Col. Sweny's Venetian idea. When the canals are built, the trolley can cross them on comedy bridges, under which the electric launches will glide noiselessly and swan-like on their way among the lagoons. The canals will come later, and they will add wonderfully to the beautification and sanitation of the Island. But for the general public convenience there will be nothing ahead of the trolley, for several years to come.

Resist the Attempted Gas.
The anti-Sunday car advocates will appear before the Legislative Committee in a few days and do their best to place restrictions as to the time and method of voting on the Sunday car question. If those who fought for the cars last summer desire to hold the ground they now occupy they ought to get together and appoint a delegation to lay their side of the case before the committee. While the car party will not object to all reasonable safeguards being provided for the taking of the vote, they will certainly vigorously oppose any attempt to prevent a vote from being taken in the cars. The fact that it is a little more convenient and less expensive to take the vote at the time of the municipal elections is a matter of no importance, and it ought not to influence the committee before whom the matter will be argued. Summer is the proper season to take the vote. It ought to be taken, if possible, at a time when there are no other civic issues involved. Where the interests of such a large number of citizens are concerned the question of expense becomes one of minor consideration. The Sunday car people should lose no time in getting together and appointing a strong and influential delegation to watch the petition that is now before the Legislature.

KILL ON THE WILD-CAT SCHEMES.
We think the good sense of the public is opposed to the city fathering a wild-cat scheme of any kind, especially one where irresponsible and discreditable parties are the promoters. The council should refuse to ratify the agreement with the so-called

Toronto Aqueduct Company that passed the committee yesterday. The facility with which the promoter agrees to the conditions that have been attached to the agreement increases our suspicion that it is some ulterior purpose the promoter has in view more than the objects that appear on the face of the agreement. The company is pretty well shackled down with obligations, but it should not be granted the privileges in the draft agreement.

There is one thing to be remarked these days by the public, and by the civil service of the Dominion for that matter, and that is that there has been a steady advance made in the morals and discipline of the latter. Wrong-doing, neglect of duty, intemperance, are punished by removal, and when removed there is no hope of restoration. Once a report goes into the Cabinet or under the eye of the Minister of Justice there is no chance of escape.

A slight Improvement.
The World within the past few days has met with several signs of improvement in business generally. Real estate, too, is sharing in the movement. An author has used the expression, "A mob of gentlemen," and it would be ungracious to parody it with the phrase—a mob of ladies. But gentlemen were allowed to do all the speaking.

Sir Oliver Mowat's speech was very glad to meet the deputation, and wished to know the object of their presence.

Receipts and Expenditures of the U.S. Government for the fiscal year ended March 2—The official comparative statement of the receipts and expenditures of the Government for the first eight months of the present fiscal year shows:

DEFICIT $49,137,268.

To the receipts $168,274,487, expenditures $163,137,268, or an excess of expenditures over receipts of $49,137,268. For the corresponding period of 1893 the expenditures exceeded the receipts only $90,000. The receipts for the first months of 1894, received from you, are less than $61,000,000, and for the corresponding period of 1893, while the expenditures are $12,000,000 less for the same period.

Sir Oliver Mowat:—We obey the command of the Government.

Mr. Spence replied that they wished to present the resolution adopted at the convention, held about Feb. 2, last, expressing satisfaction at the action of the House of Commons in voting the pluriennial in January, and asking for the confirmation of the franchise upon women on the same terms as men now enjoy in Municipal and Parliamentary elections.

The convention was practically unanimous.

They made the demand, not from the standpoints of privilege, but as a right. Women had nearly as good right to assemble together as enact laws which would be forced upon them as had men with regard to the fair sex.

Sir Oliver Mowat:—We obey the command of the Government.

Mr. Spence said the ladies wished to right to vote on public questions and had received an answer from Mr. Hughes that the franchise also, in the interest of expediency, and some thought that if enfranchised they would be nearly unanimous in favor of the Government.

Inspector Hughes' Views.

Mr. J. L. Hughes thanked the Premier for allowing women to vote on the pluriennial.

[April 2.]—The Premier did not present to argue the question, for the Premier a year ago had told them that their arguments were unanswerable.

The only opposing argument last year was based on the Bible.

But during the past month he had written to the members of the House of Commons, the Chancellor Burwash and Prof. Jones, who had replied that the Bible was in perfect harmony with woman suffrage. Women paid taxes and should be allowed to vote.

During the past month New Zealand had enfranchised women 21 years of age, and the Imperial Parliament had recognized the right of married women to vote at municipal elections. There was a great deal advanced in Wyoming.

For 23 years, and recently the men in Colorado by a large majority had conferred the suffrage on women, while Massachusetts had permitted married women to vote in state elections.

They desired full suffrage, but if possible, if this could not be granted, that married women should have the right to vote at municipals as well as at school elections.

The grocer, leaving off his work,

asked every clerk;

But none up to that time had seen an article called "COTOLENE."

"What is it?" said he to the dame.

"That answers to this curious name."

What is it made of? What's its use?

My ignorance you'll please excuse."

"You're not the merchant for my times, I see you're quite behind the times.

For COTOLENE, I'd have you know, is now the thing that's all the go,

An article of high regard;

A healthful substitute for lard,

Its composition pure and clean;

For cooking give me COTOLENE."

As from the store the lady fled,

The grocer gently scratched his head;

On his next order, first was seen,

"One dozen cases COTOLENE."

Ask Your Grocer for it.

The agreement provides that a ship canal with all necessary appurtenances for the conveyance of ships between Georgian Bay and the city of Toronto shall be constructed, upon such conditions as may be approved by the Legislature. The canal to be completed within six months after such agreement is obtained, and to be operated within 10 years after the incorporation of the company, or within such further period as may be authorized by Legislature. Mr. Job Scales of Toronto writes: "A short time ago I was stricken with grippe and my poor stomach and lame hand. In fact I was completely prostrated and suffering intensely. I had no money to buy medicine, so I went to a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Salve. I used one bottle, nothing more, and recovered in a few days and made a new man of me. It is such that I cannot wish for a better medicine." This expression of my gratitude.

Dr. Sims—I had an abscess on my breast and several of the very worst kind, the doctors said I got so weak that I could not walk around the room without assistance, and I could not support me. The doctors treated me for three years, but I did not get well. I then consulted Dr. Sims. He asked if I might take B.B.B. and they said it would do me no harm, so I began to take it, and I have been well ever since. It has been a benefit. I have now taken six bottles and am nearly well again. I am a good mother and a good blood person, and very good for children as a spring medicine.

GORGEOUS FUNERALS.

"BABY" ROUNDLY DENOUNCES MORTUARY EXTRAVAGANCE.

Funerals of Loved Ones Often a Festival Day for Mere Acquaintances and Gossips.

Who is to be considered—the living or the dead? Do you know what I mean? Put yourself in the place of the man who is about to meet death. He has but a home, two or three children, and little care and economy of his wife, she lies alone without getting into debt, and because illness will come to the rich and poor alike, because there may be a desire to give a helping hand to an erring brother, there is no money saved. One day death comes into that little flat which represents home to these people, many of whom have been poor, it may be the oldest child, and source of sorrows, who is the wife, or else, God help them! it may be the man himself. That is the time of grief over something says something about the funeral. You and I shrink with horror from the funeral trappings, and yet they must come. There may be a little money given here and there, from one and another of the family, but the rest of the pittance minds the living that so much will have to be paid for the box which holds the casket without the soul; that so much must be spent on the funeral home that receives that which you love living or dead, and that behind it must come a troop of carriages filled with costumed friends, who absolutely enjoy the mortuary fun, and induces us to look at you in your grief.

Well, you give the little money that you have; you think how you loved that dead person, and if that is all you can possibly insist upon it that you must not fail in the outward respect due TO THIS ONE WHO IS SLEEPING.

And then, for months after, there must be money saved; you must give up the idea of doing what you wish for the wedded pair since you have paid for this funeral. And the boy who wanted to go to school another year is forced out into the world, and the girl who was anxious to study, finds that she must do so, and the future gives a long hard hand, but to stay at home and shed quiet tears over her disappointment. All becomes a miserable, mean conception of what is right and wrong, and you say that you still bind yourself for many months to the dead and ignore the living. I can't tell you how much I feel about this. I have seen it, and when I know that loving principles are at stake, I feel that if this could come back and help them, they would ask that only a quaint resting place be given to them, and only a willing prayer be said for them and that the grave be left open, and that the entrance through which he has passed. He says: "In the summer of 1889 I felt far from well, my knees, elbows and shoulders ached. One day, after reaching home, I felt my knees getting weak. I went into the house to lie down on the sofa. That night I had to be lifted up in bed, and it took two or three men to do it. My wife had to lay my legs while they were being washed. Weeks later I was again laid in bed helpless. When my bed was changed another bed had to be brought in, and I was given a galvanic battery, but it gave me no relief. In reading my Brockville paper, I saw an advertisement concerning Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They were formed, but that itself would not induce me to try them, for I had seen the name of Mr. T. C. Williams in Brockville, Ontario, with them. That gave me hope. I had read of him from a little boy, and I knew that many people had been helped by his fellow-man. I wrote Mr. Ford to send some Pink Pills and before I had used them for a week I noticed improvement. I sent for more, but had more trouble, for they had not paid post. By addressing Dr. Williams' Pink Pill Co., Brooklyn, N.Y., or Schenectady, N.Y., Beware of imitation.

TO REV. DR. VELVET.

He values his time well.

You who happen that day to have gone out to look at a little baby's grave, pass this group, raise your hat and stand still. That baby died if you had gone to Rev. Dr. Velvet and told him that you earned $15 a week, and wanted some prayers said over your dead child, you do as well as I do. The man who is supposed to preach the doctrine of him who died that you might be saved would instantly find a pleasant excuse for doing what you need, though the clever? I do not think so.

The above advertisement, which was inserted in an evening paper, caused a lot of annoyance and disappointment to a number of young ladies anxious to obtain work. The author of the advertisement is evidently a person who has a mean and contemptible idea of a joke.

When the ladies visited 641 Adelaide street east to search for work, they found the doors of 4, 6 and 7 locked. These rooms are used as sleeping apartments by three commercial travellers, Messrs. E. A. and J. L. O'Malley, who pay their rent to the city during the week and only occupy the rooms on Saturday and Sunday. They were not in the city when the advertisement was inserted, the measly hoax cannot be attributed to them.

Why can't you be a little brave about your dead? Why can't you say, when the breath has left the body, that no one can care for you? Why can't you die in it something that had worn in life. We won't put it in a plain box without embellishments of silver or gold, have it carried in a dark velvet case, and let it rest in peace only by the one who loves it while there was life in it? How can you, if you have a heart permit the mere curiosity to look at your dead? How can you now the person who has died, who has never spoken, never known of, to look at and criticize her, when she lies there helpless, unable to say a word?

What is the matter with the man and woman who have such beautiful sentiments? They talk of truth and art and love, and yet they permit their dead to endure vulgar scenes that living would have honored them. With such a dead man, moral courage when death comes, to give to reverence for it, the simplest and sweetest of ceremonies in which only those who loved it while it lived.

FLOWERS SENT FOR POLICY'S SAKE.

You see the great wagon full of flowers going out; it seems to you the expression of kindness. Nine times out of ten it is the expression of policy, and make a man has robbed his own to sell the flowers that the dead have to send to the home of his employer because death had entered it. And what is the result? Ask anybody in the cemetery and he will tell you that the dead are buried decently, there are plenty of them—take the ribbons off the pain leaves, break off the freshest of the flowers and carry away the wire frames that were the foundations of the anchor or the cross, or the crown, and get them.

Well, after while you have paid the undertaker's bill. And then because somebody else's child has one you feel that you must put up a marble monument, and for a year or perhaps two, you act the thief to the living, to gratify, what is, after all, not a desire of the dead? You think, perhaps, that I am a little severe. There is not to-day one human being who has a greater respect than I for the dead, and for that very reason I do not see them make any excuse for extravagance, nor can I endure their going out of this world being made a sort of festival day for the most avaricious among us. What good is it?

I think I speak in earnest. I'll tell you. The first duty you owe is to the living, but you can give your love and reverence, help and comfort with the help you have. That is the form that you will live, if you wish, in its plain wooden box; if you wish, have a little plate with its name on it, but I think at the last great day, under God more than man, you will be asked to give account of your life, and the decision will be quiet and with just a few simple services, and then come back home, and go on living. Let the bright sunshine, and if you will, say to the world that you love living or dead, and that behind it must come a troop of carriages filled with costumed friends, who absolutely enjoy the mortuary fun, and induces us to look at you in your grief.

Well, you give the little money that you have; you think how you loved that dead person, and if that is all you can possibly insist upon it that you must not fail in the outward respect due

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

The Discussion on Biennial Sessions and Maintenance of Government House
—The Site of the Legislative Buildings.

In the Ontario Legislature yesterday Mr. Marter asked the Attorney-General to state when the motion regarding Government House maintenance would be taken up.

Mr. Meredith remarked that the motion would be out of town next Wednesday.

Sir Oliver Mowat: We will let the hon. gentleman know by and by.

Biennial Sessions.

In reply to a query by Mr. Murdoch with regard to fixing a date for the discussion of his motion in the biennial sessions, Sir Oliver stated that an early date would be fixed.

A Good Title.

Mr. Hammell: By what title does the province hold the land on which the Legislative buildings are now situated?

Sir Oliver Mowat: This land formerly belonged to the Provincial University, but it was now given to the province, free from trust, as appears in the Statutes, 33 Vic, ch. 2, and 52 Vic, ch. 53.

These Aspirations.

Mr. White enquired: How many of the Argyllshire cattle owned at the Agricultural College are used in the Dairy Department?

Hon. Mr. Dryden: All of them are used in the Dairy Department. Four have shown symptoms of tuberculosis by test, three calves and one cow. Two of the heifers have been twice tested, showing rising temperature in both cases. The women, on the other side, they think, probably enough, that nervous, excited, tender-hearted women are often the best cows.

It is the duty of the family to the cattle having indications of the disease been removed.

Mr. Dryden: And when the animal is sold to W. Woodley of Dundas, but when it has been returned. This animal has since been pronounced healthy.

The Rate of Taxation.

Mr. Clarke (Lanark) moved for a return from each municipality in the province, other than that of June 1st, of the rate of taxation that is (1) for municipal purposes, (2) for school purposes, (3) total. Agreed to.

Petitions.

Mr. Meredith presented a petition from the London Real Estate Owners' Protective Association, protecting against the action of the London City Council and Water Commissioners in seeking to spend money on the waterworks system contrary to the express wishes of the ratepayers at the polls, and paying attention to the petition of the council's request for authority to issue waterworks debentures to the amount of $50,000.

The Toronto City Railway Co. petitioned against legislation which would compel them to provide shelter for motormen, alleging that this would impede traffic; that to alter the agreements between the two cities, and that the example of Ottawa did not apply here, where trailers being used, the use of vestibules, as in Ottawa, was impracticable and would be costly, while those had to be built at great expense.

Mr. Dryden: An application has been made to the Board of Trade for a radical cure.

Mr. Dryden: And when the animal is sold to W. Woodley of Dundas, but when it has been returned. This animal has

since been pronounced healthy.

The following bills were read a first time:

To empower municipalities to exempt from taxation, in addition to manufacturers, certain storage warehouses.—Mr. Allan.

To confine the membership of county councils numbering over 25 to reserves; in other cases than that the system can accommodate. Each reserve shall have one vote for every 500 ratepayers in its township.—Mr. McKechnie.

To provide for triennial assessments in counties, by which it may be necessary to make a trial for a little time. I was on my crutches and walking around the bottom of my right leg, and on the other foot on the floor. That night I went to two or three men to all of whom I had to lay my legs while they were being washed. Weeks later I was again laid in bed helpless. When my bed was changed another bed had to be brought in,

and I was given a galvanic battery, but it gave me no relief.

In reading my Brockville paper, I saw an advertisement concerning Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They were formed, but that itself would not induce me to try them, for I had seen the name of Mr. T. C. Williams in Brockville, Ontario, with them. That gave me hope. I had read of him from a little boy, and I knew that many people had been helped by his fellow-man. I wrote Mr. Ford to send some Pink Pills and before I had used them for a week I noticed improvement.

I sent for more, but had more trouble, for they had not paid post.

By addressing Dr. Williams' Pink Pill Co., Brooklyn, N.Y., or Schenectady, N.Y., Beware of imitation.

TO REV. DR. VELVET.

He values his time well.

You who happen that day to have gone out to look at a little baby's grave, pass this group, raise your hat and stand still. That baby died if you had gone to Rev. Dr. Velvet and told him that you earned $15 a week, and wanted

some prayers said over your dead child, you do as well as I do. The man who is supposed to preach the doctrine of him who died that you might be saved would instantly find a pleasant excuse for doing what you need, though the clever? I do not think so.

The above advertisement, which was inserted in an evening paper, caused a lot of annoyance and disappointment to a number of young ladies anxious to obtain work. The author of the advertisement is evidently a person who has a mean and contemptible idea of a joke.

When the ladies visited 641 Adelaide street east to search for work, they found the doors of 4, 6 and 7 locked.

These rooms are used as sleeping apartments by three commercial travellers,

Messrs. E. A. and J. L. O'Malley, who pay their rent to the city during the week and only occupy the rooms on Saturday and Sunday.

They were not in the city when the advertisement was inserted, the measly hoax cannot be attributed to them.

Why can't you be a little brave about your dead? Why can't you say, when the breath has left the body, that no one can care for you? Why can't you die in it something that had worn in life. We won't put it in a plain box without embellishments of silver or gold, have it carried in a dark velvet case, and let it rest in peace only by the one who loves it while there was life in it? How can you, if you have a heart permit the mere curiosity to look at your dead?

How can you now the person who has died, who has never spoken, never known of, to look at and criticize her, when she lies there helpless, unable to say a word?

What is the matter with the man and woman who have such beautiful sentiments? They talk of truth and art and love, and yet they permit their dead to endure vulgar scenes that living would have honored them. With such a dead man, moral courage when death comes, to give to reverence for it, the simplest and sweetest of ceremonies in which only those who loved it while it lived.

OPPOSE EMPLOYMENT BUREAUS.

Trades Council Think They Will Have a Tendency to Lower Current Rate of Wages.

There was a very large attendance of members at the Trades and Labor Council last night. President Burnell occupied the chair. The report of the Municipal Committee congratulated the licensed pedlers on their recent victory over the bylaws prohibiting them from selling on the main streets. The committee also recommended that Architects Lemire be urged to open work on the Court House at Etobicoke.

Members of the Liberal and Hespell argued that the Toronto Railway Company be compelled, if their agreement requires it, to have their new engines constructed in Toronto.

Delegates Jennings said that the action of the industrial campaign in getting their engines built in Boston was no more worthy of blame than was the action of the Dominion Government in sending to England to have three vessels constructed which will be used in union men and plants capable of doing the work are lying idle in Canada. The report was adopted.

The Legislative Committee recommended that the council oppose the proposition to establish a permanent employment bureau, as such bureaus have a tendency to lower the current rate of wages.

A delegation from the Patrons of Industry conventioned on the council for the purpose of expressing the fraternal feeling held by the farmers for their city friends.

SHOT FATHER AND DAUGHTERS.
Then Went Home and Blew Out His Own Brain.

EGREGOR, Oregon, March 2.—Albert Moss and his father quarreled last night, and David Coleman, a farmer living near by, took sides with the elder Moss. Mr. Moss and Mr. Coleman's house last night, and took a revolver and pointed it at Coleman, shooting his wife and killing her instantly. He then shot another daughter through the arm, and finally attacked Coleman, whom he shot through the abdomen and fatally injured. Moss then went home and blew out his own brain.

THE REPLENISH INDIA'S TREASURY.

For Five Per Cent. Due to Be Levied on Most Imports.

CALCUTTA, March 2.—The Government's proposal to meet the deficiency by a five per cent. duty on imports of coal, cotton, and woolen goods, and doubling the duty on petroleum, as announced by Finance Minister Westland at the sitting of the Viceroy Council yesterday, excited very little comment, but the proposal to exempt cotton, wool, and woolen goods from importation. The Indian press and public are unanimous in condemnation of the proposal.

Bradstreet's Report.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say: "As Toronto's wholesale trade is fair, the Canadian market's opening which has been largely attended to retail dealers throughout the province. At Montreal the drygoods trade has been of moderate proportions, and there also milliner jokers have had spring openings. In蒙特利尔, Montreal, Quebec, and at the city of Quebec are working, full wages. There is no change in the trade, and Nova Scotia, the Bank clearing at Hamilton, Toronto, Montreal and Halifax aggregate $15,225,000, a gain of one-half of one per cent. over the total the week before, and a decrease of 21 per cent. as compared with the total for the same week last year. The annual church service will be held in St. James' Cathedral on Friday evening at 8 p.m. and an annual dinner will take place in the hall on the following night. The Relief Committee met after the meeting and distributed supplies to about 75 applicants.

It is expected to have a large number of the members of the congregation present.

WHAT "GENTLEMAN" MAY DO.

They Need Not Pay Tradesmen's Bills,
but They Must Play Cards Fairly.

There are many things which it appears a gentleman may do now in Europe, but interesting the less of his right to that designation by society or forfeiting what the latter regards as his "honor," says a writer in the New York Tribune. The author avows that he has given up his credit, and that the most frequent was a game of practical plants and palms. Refreshments were served at the large dinner of the college.

With the scholars, however, God Save the Queen, between 1 and 2 o'clock, the guests were unanimous in the opinion that this was the most successful entertainment ever held in the college.

HIP-JOINT DISEASE.

Elizabeth, Harrison Co., Ind.—At the age of eight years, Elizabeth was stricken with "Hip-Joint Disease." Dr. Pierce's Golden Rule—"Never give up hope"—was as much as it was possible for a human being to do. Dr. Pierce's skill and steely determination to help his patient procured him some of Dr. Pierce's famous "secret" remedies, and I found myself restored to health. I can only say that I believe I owe my health to the skill of that valiant physician. EDWARD J. RUSH.

PIERCIE GUARANTEES A CURE OR MONEY IS REFUNDED.

A scrofulous state of the system is the primary cause of Hip-Joint Disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Rule—"Never give up hope" is the secret of success. In Skin Diseases, all Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, it's the only guaranteed blood-purifier.
