The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol \rightarrow (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ∇ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

Legislative Library

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

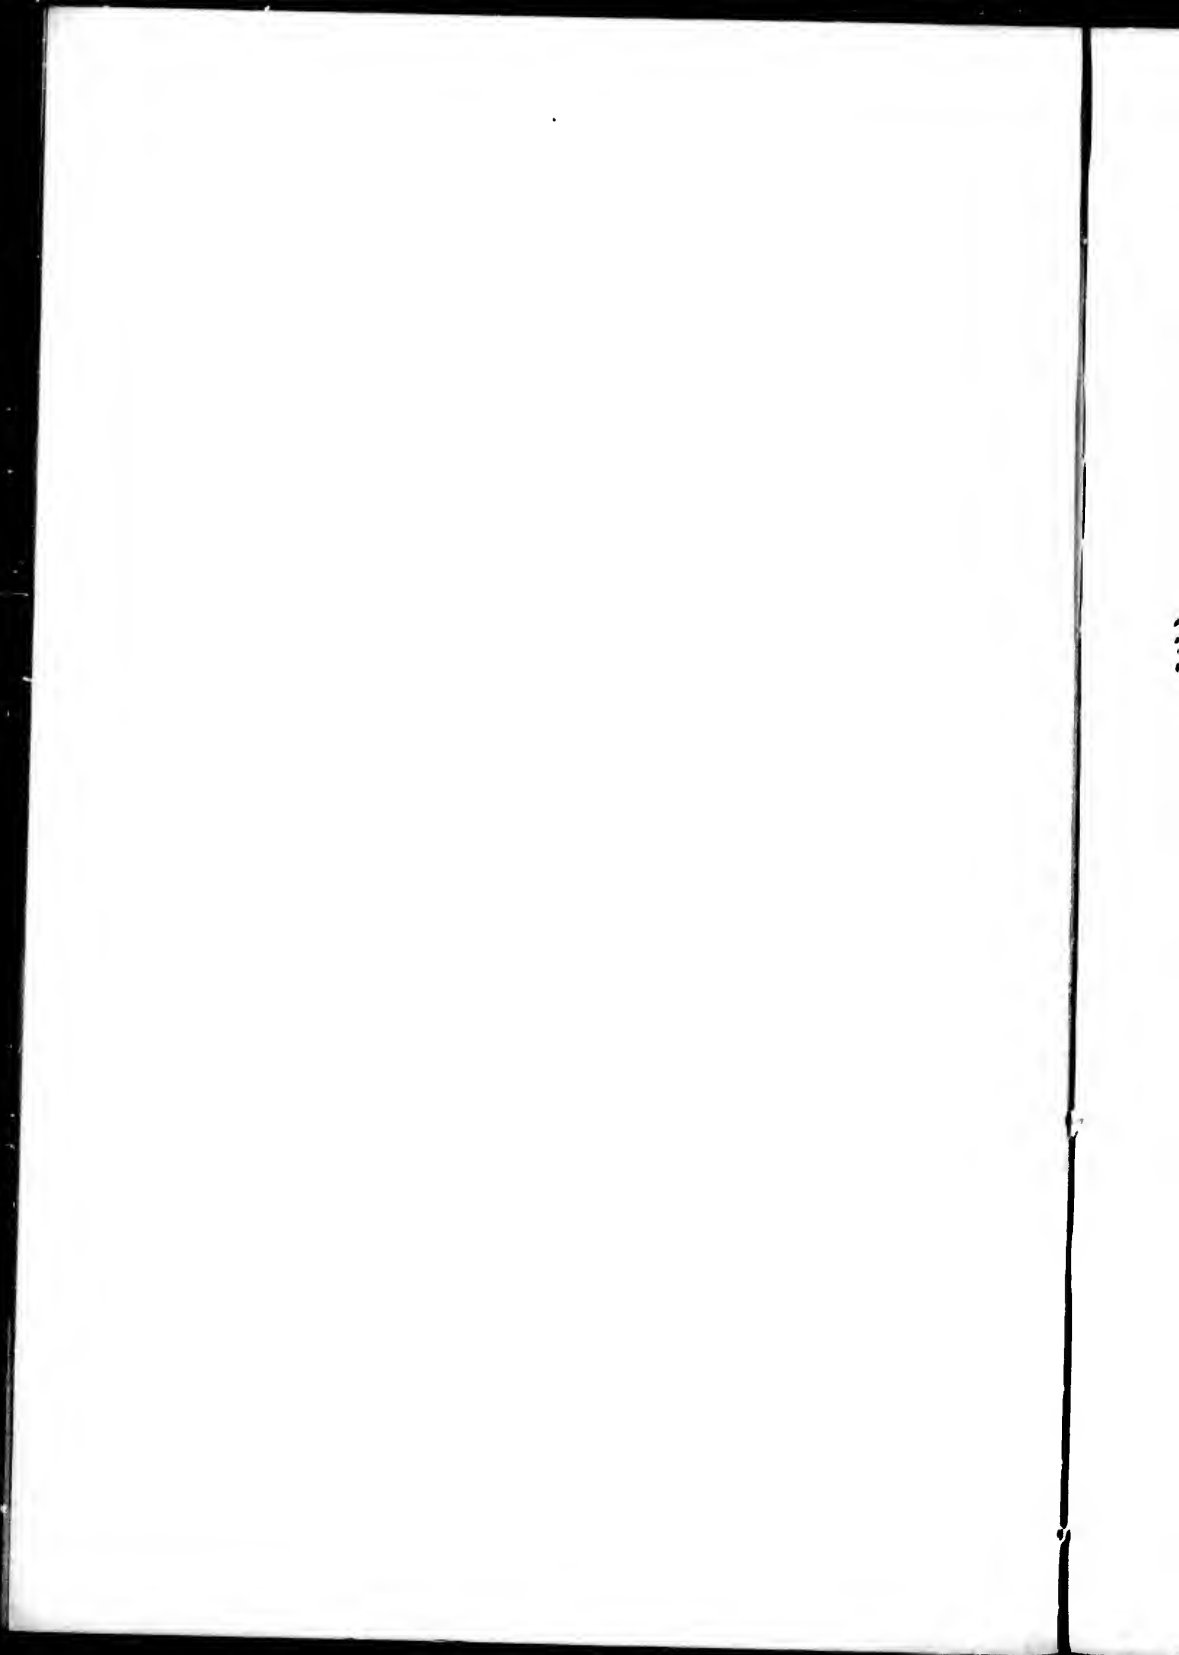

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole \rightarrow signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ∇ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

PREFACE

It was brave in Joseph Sabin to offer his Dictionary seventy years ago, a bravery, a daring appreciated best of all by those privileged to follow his steps. He promised a Preface to the whole work with the last volume, and now the writing of that preface falls to me as his successor.

There is really little to say. His ideal and his achievement speak for themselves. His followers are happy to have carried his banner. I am grateful for having received from Mr. Vail, and from Miss Greene and Miss Watkins, so much relief from details in these later years. To them go my sincere thanks, and we all join heartily and sincerely in a toast to the memory of Joseph Sabin.

THE FINAL "STATEMENT"

Gibbon closes with a sentence that sticks forever, once seen or heard: "It was among the ruins of the Capitol that I first conceived the idea of a work which has amused and exercised near twenty years of my life, and which, however inadequate to my own wishes, I finally deliver to the curiosity and candor of the public."

Would that Joseph Sabin had likewise told us when his dream first took shape, had given us the story of his pilgrim's progress, his tale of where and why he had changed this or that detail or principle and where he had stubbornly refused to budge a fraction of an inch from the path he had set out to follow.

The Prospectus of December 5, 1866, told how the Dictionary had slept and waked with him a full fifteen years, how he had taken four years to lay foundations for the first volume, how he hoped his ideals were now to be realized.

When the first volume was finished in 1868, he reprinted the Prospectus as an introduction, promising with the last volume a Preface to the whole. "Had the magnitude and extreme difficulty of the undertaking been presented to my mind in full proportion at the outset," he said, "I should never have attempted it; and, indeed, I may remark, that I have more than once almost determined upon its abandonment; but a deep sense of its importance, however imperfectly it may be executed, and a strong partiality for bibliographical pursuits, have stimulated me to continue my labor."

The child grew and flourished for fifteen years. Then death stayed the hand of the parent.

If Sabin had been spared to write his Preface seventy years after he penned the Prospectus, how suggestive would have been his comparison between the interest today in books relating to America and what he saw in those first years of his apprenticeship in Oxford or what he found some thirty years later when he had attained a unique position and reputation. What would that brusque forthright voice have snapped back to the man asking whether a listing of books was of real help to any one but a book "collector"! Teachers then did not talk about projects or assignments or themes nor use a dozen other phrases so glibly worshipped and flung about in these latter days. Indeed, when Sabin began there were no departments of American history in American colleges and universities, and the recognition of American history in the academic world had to wait nearly two decades for the founding of the American Historical Association. But thousands of young teachers and students of American history and literature and culture who later were to thrill their classes by their method or their spirit have come to profit by the labors of Joseph Sabin.

It would have been well worth a winter journey to have heard this bookseller pay tribute to Ebeling and Rich and Ternaux-Compans as earlier travellers on his road; to have listened to his comments on HARRISSE; to have heard him talk about Henry Stevens who had transplanted himself from Vermont to London as Sabin had swung from Oxford to Philadelphia and New York; to have got his views about George Brinley and John Carter Brown and James Lenox and their libraries; to have known what he thought about Peter Force and Jared Sparks, Squier and Brevoort, Charles Deane and Henry C. Murphy and Samuel Latham Mitchell Barlow; to have watched him compare Samuel G. Drake and William Gowans and Charles B. Norton and Joel Munsell and George Philes and the other rival booksellers of his day.

What a picture he could have painted of the people buying, selling, reading, using books of this kind in the middle of the last century!

But the very wideness of the field he might have covered forbids another man's trying to enter it. Here it were best rigidly to hold one's self to facts and to let some future Landor set down the imaginary conversation between Sabin and his printer when the first copy for the title in part one of volume one was turned in, setting over against that the tale of what they said when the printer starts to parcel out the "takes" for the last part of volume twenty-nine. Seventy years mark the interval, but in those seventy years the world has changed much more than in the seventy that went before, or many times that.

The "Statement" of 9 August 1928 prefixed to Part 120 that finished volume 20 gives in briefest form the story of the Dictionary through the 82 parts that came from the hands of Joseph Sabin between 1867 and 1881, parts 83 to 116 done by Wilberforce Eames between 1884 and 1892, the dormant years of 1893 to 1924, the revival that began with the appearance of Part 117 in 1927.

And now we have the final Part 172 in 1936.

Tribute was paid in that first "Statement" to the help given by the Carnegie Institution of Washington, the American Library Association, the Bibliographical Society of America, the Carnegie Corporation; the Pierpont Morgan Library through its Director, Miss Belle da Costa Greene; Mr. J. Percy Sabin, Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, Mr. Lathrop C. Harper, Mr. Carl H. Pforzheimer, Mr. I. N. Phelps Stokes, Mr. William L. Clements, Mr. Herschel V. Jones, Mr. William G. Mather.

To these friends renewed thanks are due, and to them must be added the names of Dr. George Watson Cole, the American Council of Learned Societies whose Permanent Secretary, Dr. Waldo G. Leland, listened with understanding and sympathy when pleas for help were made; and once more to the Carnegie Corporation which authorized its President, Dr. Frederick P. Keppel, to give further help in 1935 to permit the final spurt to finish in 1936.

Dr. Eames has been editor since Mr. Sabin died in 1881. In 1925 Miss Elizabeth G. Greene and in 1927 Miss Marjorie Watkins joined as his assistants. In 1930 Mr. R. W. G. Vail became joint editor, and from time to time the staff has included Miss Geraldine Beard, Miss Edna Watkins, Miss Frances Richey, Miss Helen Olney, and Miss Phyllis B. Chase.

From 1867 until 1892 the printing was done at the Bradstreet Press in New York City. From 1927 through 1935 (parts 117-156) the printer was William Edwin Rudge of Mount Vernon and New York. Parts 157 to the end stand to the credit of The Southworth-Anthoensen Press of Portland, Maine.

In the early days composition was probably—as it was certainly in the latest periods—done in the printing plant. During the 1884-1892 years the compositor was A. H. Engelke (Adolf or Adolph), some time a Bradstreet man, later a typesetter in his home in various parts of Jersey City and Englewood. (The type was owned by Mr. Sabin.)

All hand setting, of course, in those times, meant many struggles with the countless tribulations that beset the hand man before the arrival of machine composition. The letters between editor and compositor give a vivid picture of what it meant to set such a work so full of uncouth "foreign" words, to plead for more type to be ordered from Philadelphia by Mr. Sabin, to wrestle with the "sorts" caused by simultaneous imposition of Psalms and Ptolemy with their extensive notes in brevier, a proof that composing and press room problems were as varied, as exacting, as exasperating then as they are now or as they probably were in the days of John Gutenberg and William Caxton.

The devotion of Joseph Sabin and Wilberforce Eames has long been recognized, inadequately to be sure, but none the less a support of an ideal that was held up to emulation by all who had to do with books about the New World. This committee rejoices that it has been able to join to that goodly fellowship Mr. Vail, Miss Greene, Miss Watkins, and their assistants who have all worked so valiantly, unselfishly, loyally to finish this instrument of scholarship and research.

INTRODUCTION

This final volume of "Sabin" ends with serial number 106413 but thousands of these serial numbers represent not one but many titles or editions; in some cases dozens of editions appear in the main entries or the notes of a single number. It is therefore probable that well over a quarter of a million different publications appear in the Dictionary as well as the location in the world's great libraries of not far from a million copies.

Those who have not attempted a similar task will hardly realize the great amount of patient labor which has gone into the compilation of some of the groups of material here described. Dr. Eames' studies of the writings of Captain John Smith and Amerigo Vespucci are each of them, in the scholarly difficulty of their compilation and in their value to the historian, easily the equivalent of a doctoral dissertation. And such important groups as Miss Elizabeth G. Greene's South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont and Virginia bibliographies and Miss Marjorie Watkins' "Treaties" are of the highest type of bibliographical scholarship.

The very difficult work done by Dr. Lawrence C. Wroth in the letters "U" and "V," with their preponderance of complicated seventeenth-century Latin, Spanish and Dutch titles, and the fine work of Mr. Willard O. Waters in compiling the George Washington titles, merit the highest praise. These are but random illustrations of the scholarly usefulness of the Dictionary and of the great service performed by its contributors.

"Sabin" is not the work of two or three individuals but is a great co-operative enterprise which never could have reached its present usefulness without the aid of hundreds of persons whose names and services were known only to the editorial staff. Librarians, cataloguers, scholars and collectors have searched their shelves and their historical notes in order to make these records more complete. Many of them are mentioned here and there throughout the Dictionary but a few of those who have helped us most have our special thanks. They are as follows:

Mr. Matt B. Jones, Mr. Douglas C. McMurtrie and Mr. Thomas W. Streeter; Miss Rosalie Stein who supplied most of the titles secured from the libraries of Philadelphia; and the following busy librarians who gave generously of their time and special knowledge: American Antiquarian Society: Mr. Brigham, Miss Clarke.

Mrs. Reynolds, Mrs. Wilson. Boston Athenæum: Miss Crandall, Miss Gregory. Boston Public Library: Mr. Chevalier, Mr. Haraszti, Miss Swift, Mr. Tewksbury. Connecticut Historical Society: Mr. Bates. Grosvenor Library: Mr. Shearer. Harvard College Library: Mr. Briggs, Mr. Currier, Miss Wait. Henry E. Huntington Library and Art Gallery: Mr. Waters, Mr. Wright. Historical Society of Pennsylvania: Mr. Boyd. John Carter Brown Library: Miss Quinn, Mr. Wroth. Library of Congress: Mr. Kletsch, Mr. Parma, Mr. Schwegmann. Massachusetts Historical Society: Mr. Forbes, Mr. Tuttle, Mr. Wheeler. Minnesota Historical Society: Miss Nordin. New York Historical Society: Miss Barck, Mr. Wall. New York Public Library: Mr. McDonald, Mr. Nichols, Miss Root. New York State Library: Mrs. De Villa, Mr. Gavit. Peabody Institute: Mr. Dielman. University of Texas: Mr. Winkler. William and Mary College: Mr. Swem. William L. Clements Library: Mr. Adams, Miss Steere. Wisconsin Historical Society: Miss Nunns, Miss Welsh. Yale University Library: Miss Monrad, Miss Pratt.

"SABIN" PROCEDURE

In compiling the recent volumes of "Sabin" we began with the three by eight inch author and title slips inherited from Mr. Sabin and Dr. Eames. Many of them were clippings from unidentified auction, dealers' or library catalogues, some were actual title pages taken from imperfect books, others were manuscript notes of volumes examined in days gone by, and still others were mere cryptic references of a word or two which took much ingenuity to interpret. In many cases these titles were incomplete and had to be verified from actual copies of the books if such copies could be found. And it must be remembered that these original Sabin entries represented only a fraction of the titles eventually included in the Dictionary.

The next step was a thorough search of the catalogues of the New York Public Library, the Library of Congress and the British Museum. Then the brief checklists sent by the many co-operating libraries were examined in order to find new titles and editions and letters were written for complete descriptions of these new titles. If these sources failed, bibliographies, histories and other reference works were consulted and more letters had to be written to those who owned or might be expected to own such material. When full authors' names had been secured (no small task), the entries were typed in duplicate on 5½ by 8½ inch slips and filed.

While three of the staff were compiling a given block of material in the quarters generously provided for them by the New York Public Library, two other assistants were at work on a later part of the alphabet at the American Antiquarian Society, Harvard or in the Boston libraries, with headquarters in the former library and later at Harvard. Their completed titles were then sent to the staff in New York for further addition and revision. In the meantime, other paid or volunteer assistants were at work in Philadelphia and Washington and a constant correspondence was necessary with libraries throughout this country and with a few in Europe.

When the titles, collations and notes were completed, the locations of copies were added from library checklists and bibliographies. Then the work of each assistant was twice checked by the assistant editors and the titles sent to the editor for final revision. He made many changes and additions and not infrequently discarded unimportant titles. Then he added the page numbers, and the serial numbers and sent the copy to the printer in batches of several hundred titles at a time.

When the titles were in type, the galley proofs were read by the printer, the editor and the assistant editor and last minute entries inserted from the letters and checklists of belated correspondents. In some cases, additional sets of galley proofs were sent for further revision to individual libraries or specialists, as in the case of the Yale College entries, which were generously proof-read by the catalogue department of the University library and by the honorary curator of the special collection of Yale memorabilia. Finally, the page proofs were read by the printer and by the editor who added the caption titles, supplied the copy for title pages, dedications and other preliminary leaves, and shortly thereafter another part was delivered to the subscribers.

This brief summary gives very little idea of the intricate detail of the task of compiling and editing "Sabin." The typed instructions prepared for the use of the staff fill fifteen single-spaced pages but even a perusal of this outline of Sabin practice is inadequate to the proper understanding of the many difficulties.

THE SCOPE OF "SABIN"

The field of American historical literature as outlined by Joseph Sabin in his Prospectus was very wide. He intended to include everything dealing with the political, governmental, military, economic, social and religious history of the Western Hemisphere from the discovery of the New World until the date of publication of the particular part of the Dictionary on which he was at work. This was the general policy until volume 21 began to appear in 1929.

An attempt was made to put each entry in alphabetical order under its author or, if anonymous, under its title. However, material dealing with a particular locality will frequently be found under the locality if it has been omitted in its proper place. Anonymous titles, if omitted under author, will often be found under title even when the author is known. When entries have been omitted under both author and title, they will occasionally be found under subject. When an incomplete entry appears in an earlier part of the Dictionary, an improved entry will frequently be found in a later volume under the title, with a cross reference to the original entry.

With volume 21, it was found impossible to include the entire literature of American history down to the date of publication and so titles were restricted, for the most part, to entries published not later than 1876, the year when the American Catalogue began. Early newspapers were generally omitted since they were fully described in Mr. C. S. Brigham's "Bibliography of American newspapers to 1820." Broad-sides were generally omitted after 1800 and an author's works were included only if they had American interest, though his other writings were sometimes mentioned in a footnote.

It was decided in 1932 that if the Dictionary was ever to be completed, a further restriction of its scope would be necessary and so, after part 130, practically all titles published after 1860 were omitted. Unimportant sermons containing no historical or biographical significance were excluded after 1800; government publications, including congressional speeches, were left out, as well as much unimportant town, county and state material. Collections of general world travel and geography containing little new material on America were omitted, as were the publications of commercial companies, other than railroads, after 1830, and the bulk of civil lawsuits. General poetry, drama and fiction stopped at the year 1800, unless of historical importance, in which case they were included to 1830.

By 1933 still more drastic restrictions were made necessary in order to finish the Dictionary within the time limit set for its completion. After part 141, virtually no titles were included after the year 1840, except in the case of early Texas material which was included to 1845, and California and Pacific Coast material to about 1860. Almanacs and mere imprints were not included after 1600 for Spanish America and 1700 for North America. To save time, European and Spanish American titles were not lined off after 1600 or North American titles after 1700. Most local documents and college publications were omitted, as well as American reprints of foreign works except in the case of important first editions. State publications were also affected by the new rules. Those for the older states were included only through 1800, Tennessee through 1821, etc.

Titles in the native Indian languages were restricted to those not later than 1700 for Spanish America and 1800 for North America, with certain rare exceptions. Legal and medical works, Fourth of July and other orations and all transportation titles except those for the earlier years of each locality, were omitted. Serials after 1830 were also generally omitted and long titles and imprints were frequently abbreviated if published after 1700. The practise of giving credit to individual contributors for the titles and information supplied was abandoned in 1934. Beginning with the letter "U" it was no longer found possible to record the holdings of Columbia University, the University of Pennsylvania or Union Theological Seminary. The New York Academy of Medicine was not searched for titles after the letters "Ve" or the New York Bar Association after "K. Williams."

It was most regrettable that these and other similar restrictions had to be made but it was thought better to narrow the scope of the later volumes of the Dictionary than to leave it unfinished, since there were not available sufficient funds to continue it as originally planned by its founder.

Sabin is finished and, as did the monks writing in their scriptoria during the Middle Ages, we have placed after the last entry of our manuscript a fervent "Laus Deo." On the title page of each volume of "Sabin" you will find the following quotation from the preface of Anthony à Wood's History of Oxford of 1674:

"A painfull work it is I'll assure you, and more than difficult, wherein what toyle hath been taken, as no man thinketh so no man believeth, but he hath made the triall."

And to those who find inconsistencies, errors and omissions in the pages of this work of ours, I would quote a phrase from Foulkes

Robartes' all but forgotten treatise: "The revenue of the Gospel is tythes," Cambridge, 1613:

"Who faulteth not, liueth not; who mendeth faults is commended: The Printer hath faulted a little: it may be the author oversighted more. Thy paine (Reader) is the least; then erre not thou most by misconstruing or sharpe censuring; least thou be more vncharitable, then either of them hath been heedlesse: God amend and guide vs all."

GENERAL AIDS

Sabin's list is undoubtedly representative for his time. A few omissions make one wonder. Other titles that come to mind show in striking fashion the advance these seventy years have seen.

Sixteen catalogues of institutional libraries are cited, among them the "Alphabetical Catalogue of the Library of Congress," Washington, 1864; this contains probably less than 45,000 titles, and even adding those recorded in "Books added" to that Library (1868-75, passim) we should have a total equal to only a fraction of the present Library of Congress card catalogue. The two volume Stevens "Catalogue of the American Books in the British Museum,"

London, 1866, furnishes an even smaller ratio in relation to the British Museum catalogue we bear in mind today. We look in vain, of course, for the "Catalogue of the Library of the Boston Athenæum," Boston, 1874-82, or the five volume "Catalogue De L'Histoire De L'Amérique," issued by the Bibliothèque Nationale, Paris, 1903-11.

Sabin did as best he could with comprehensive works such as Lowndes, with its 50,000 titles, or Watt, or Brunet, to which his personally marked sets indicate frequent reference. Some of those he used were of very questionable value; for example, the "Biblioteca Americana," London, 1789, which HARRISSE called a "worthless compilation." But almost any title in the list calls for a story of its own.

One notes too that Sabin makes no mention of those ever-appreciated assistants in solving anonymous or pseudonymous works, Halkett and Laing, and the volumes by William Cushing. Other titles to which one turns repeatedly now, but yet to come when Sabin undertook his task include:

Winsor, Justin.

Narrative and critical history of America. 8 v. Boston and New York, 1884-89. [The members of the staff recently employed on the Sabin work found this of great assistance.]

Larned, Josephus N.

The literature of American history, a bibliographic guide, Boston, 1902.

Evans, Charles.

American bibliography. 12 v., Chicago, 1903-34. Volume vi dedicated to Joseph Sabin and others.

Griffin, Grace G.

Writings on American history, Washington, 1906-to date.

Bradford, Thomas and Stan V. Henkels.

Bibliographer's manual of American history. 5 v., Philadelphia, 1907-10.

Larned and Griffin call attention to an important influence, of beneficial character, which has arisen largely since Sabin issued his Prospectus. The two items were the result of interest and activity by professional societies organized in later years; the American Library Association (1876) and the American Historical Association (1884). The stimulation of scholarship, critical study, as well as publication of deserving but financially unprofitable aids to knowledge, resulting from these bodies would have been pleasant to Sabin. Other evidence of their worth comes readily to mind.

Almost at the very beginning of the list Allibone's "A Critical Dictionary of English Literature" strikes the eye. The entry for Allibone in volume 1 of the Dictionary (page 112, number 914) notes that volume 2 was then on the press, and adds that "The industrious author of this book has devoted many years of unwearied patience to the examination of various literary journals and reviews, and the result is a cyclopedia of varied opinion."

Studies by Mr. Douglas C. McMurtrie incorporated in his forthcoming history of printing in the United States show how our knowledge in such matters has increased since Isaiah Thomas finished his history in 1810.

INDIANS

If Sabin was confronted with a query concerning Indian material he could avail himself of Ludewig's work (see the Bulletin of The New York Public Library, December, 1934), or the pertinent but not especially full chapter by Schoolcraft. Not until 1873 did he have Thomas W. Field's "Essay towards an Indian bibliography," New York, 1873. Nor could he use James C. Pilling's "Proof-sheets of a bibliography of the Languages of the North American Indians," Washington, 1885, followed by the same author's separate bibliographies of various Indian tribes, to which Mr. Eames contributed so much. Joaquin Garcia-Icazbalceta's "Apuntes para un catálogo de escritores en lenguas indigenas de América," Mexico, 1866, may have come to Sabin's attention after his Prospectus was issued; it had one hundred seventy-five titles he could have panned for nuggets. There was the monograph on Central American languages by Squier (whose manuscripts went ultimately into the H. H. Bancroft library) noted by Sabin among his sources. In 1876, when Squier's library was sold, the catalogue was made by Sabin.

LOCAL STUDIES

Bibliographies of printing studied as the product of a state or locality have increased many-fold. Sabin lists seven of the "state" kind, four showing New England as a pioneer on this frontier (Bartlett, Eastman, Hall, and Willis); Florida the subject of two (Boimare and Brinton); Asher's alone treating of New York. The only section of the country treated was, again, New England (S. G. Drake's work, then so recent, 1864). Some of these are turned to yet as ready aids, but most of them are incomparable in scope and completeness with such compilations as:

Hildeburn, Charles S. R.

A century of printing. The issues of the press in Pennsylvania, 1685-1784. 2 v., Philadelphia, 1885-86.

Streeter, Floyd B.

Michigan bibliography . . . 2 v., Lansing, 1921.

Swem, Earl G.

A bibliography of Virginia, Richmond, 1916-32.

Of course one notes that Ludewig's "Literature of American Local History" was available. Jeremiah Colburn's "Bibliography of the Local History of Massachusetts" appeared at Boston in 1871; in 1880 Sabin could look to a new aid for a trans-Alleghany state, Peter G. Thomson's "Bibliography of Ohio," Cincinnati, 1880. But he missed the delights of Rusk's "Literature of the Middle Western Frontier," or Mr. Wagner's "The Plains and the Rockies," or Mr. Cowan's "California," or Dr. Wroth's "History of Printing in Colonial Maryland," for Georgia materials Mr. Mackall's catalogue of the De Renne library. The list could be extended to Williamson's and Noyes' Maine, Gilman's Vermont, Trumbull's Connecticut, Tapley's Salem, Cundall's Jamaica and West Indies, Hammett's Newport, Raines' Texas, Nichols' Worcester or Ford's Massachusetts Broad-sides, to name only a few.

American literary works were a field to which bibliographers turned only recently. The pioneer work of the "Catalogue of the Harris Collection of American Poetry," Foley's "American Authors," and the Oscar Wegelin volumes, as they appeared, helped to ease the spade work which, in spite of great bibliographical developments, confronted the editors of Sabin from 1866 to 1936.

CANADA

For books pertaining especially to our neighbor on the North, Sabin consulted the work of Faribault and the "Catalogue of the Library of Parliament," Toronto, 1857-58. He has no mention of Henry J. Morgan's "Biblioteca Canadensis," Ottawa, 1867; six years after this work he could have used HARRISSE'S "Notes pour servir à la histoire, à la bibliographie et à la cartographie de la Nouvelle-France et des pays adjacents, 1545-1700," Paris, 1872. What distractions HARRISSE must have endured preparing this work while shut in the besieged French capitol! Here are other aids particularly Canadian in their field, all of them since SABIN's days and so unavailable for him:

Canada. Archives Branch.

Catalogue of pamphlets in Public Archives of Canada, Ottawa, 1916, 1931.

Dionne, Narcisse E.

Inventaire chronologique . . . 4 v., Quebec, 1905-09; supplement, 1912). (This was published by The Royal Society of Canada — another example of our debt to learned or professional societies of recent date for this Society was incorporated in 1883, two years after SABIN's death.)

Gagnon, Phileas.

Essai de bibliographie canadienne. 2 v., Quebec, 1895-1913.

Haight, Willet R.

A Canadian catalogue of books, Toronto, 1897; supplements, 1898-1904.

Toronto. Public Library.

Bibliography of Canadiana, Toronto, 1934.

The Review of historical publications relating to Canada, Toronto, 1896-1919, now The Canadian Historical Review, was also yet to come.

LATIN AMERICA

A rapid glance over the list, seeking those items clearly relative to Latin-American regions, exclusive of Florida, yields less than half a dozen. If the period of time involved, rather than geographical association, be the standard of selection, the works of HARRISSE, TERNAUX, and of RICH are sources not to be neglected. There are several titles one is surprised not to find noted by SABIN. First, AUGUSTIN DE BACKER's "Bibliothèque des écrivains de la Compagnie de Jesus," Liège, 1853-61, the more recent ten volume edition, Brussels, 1890-1909, by CARLOS SOMMERVOGEL being known familiarly under their joint names. In addition, we miss MARTIN F. DE NAVARRETE, "Biblioteca marítima española," Madrid, 1851.

If Sabin approached this field of bibliography anew today, he would have numerous splendid studies to help him. He would find an excellent guide in Cecil K. Jones' "Hispanic-American bibliographies," Baltimore, 1922. He would find Jose T. Medina's pre-eminent "Biblioteca hispano-americana," Santiago de Chile, 1898-1907, covering almost 8,500 titles and his numerous bibliographies on early Latin-American printing. He would find also that Latin America has not been backward in producing its own scholars capable of delving into its book-lore and giving us noteworthy results, as these titles witness:

Montt, Luis.

Bibliografía chilena, Santiago de Chile, 1904-21.

Palau y Dulcet, Antonio.

Manual del librero hispano-americano, Barcelona, 1923-27.

René-Moreno, Gabriel.

Biblioteca boliviana, Santiago de Chile, 1879; supplement covering items back to 1602, issued in 1900. The same author's Biblioteca peruana, Santiago de Chile, 1896.

Rodrigues, J. C.

Bibliotheca brasiliense, Rio de Janeiro, 1907.

Sacramento-Blake, Augusto V.

Diccionario bibliographico brasileiro, Rio de Janeiro, 1883-1902.

Sanchez, Manuel S.

Bibliografía venezolanista, Caracas, 1914.

In 1869 Sabin had the Puttick and Simpson sales catalogue, "Biblioteca mexicana," containing 2,962 items, and in 1880 another of the same title from this London firm of auctioneers containing much of the library of Jose F. Ramirez which they were offering.

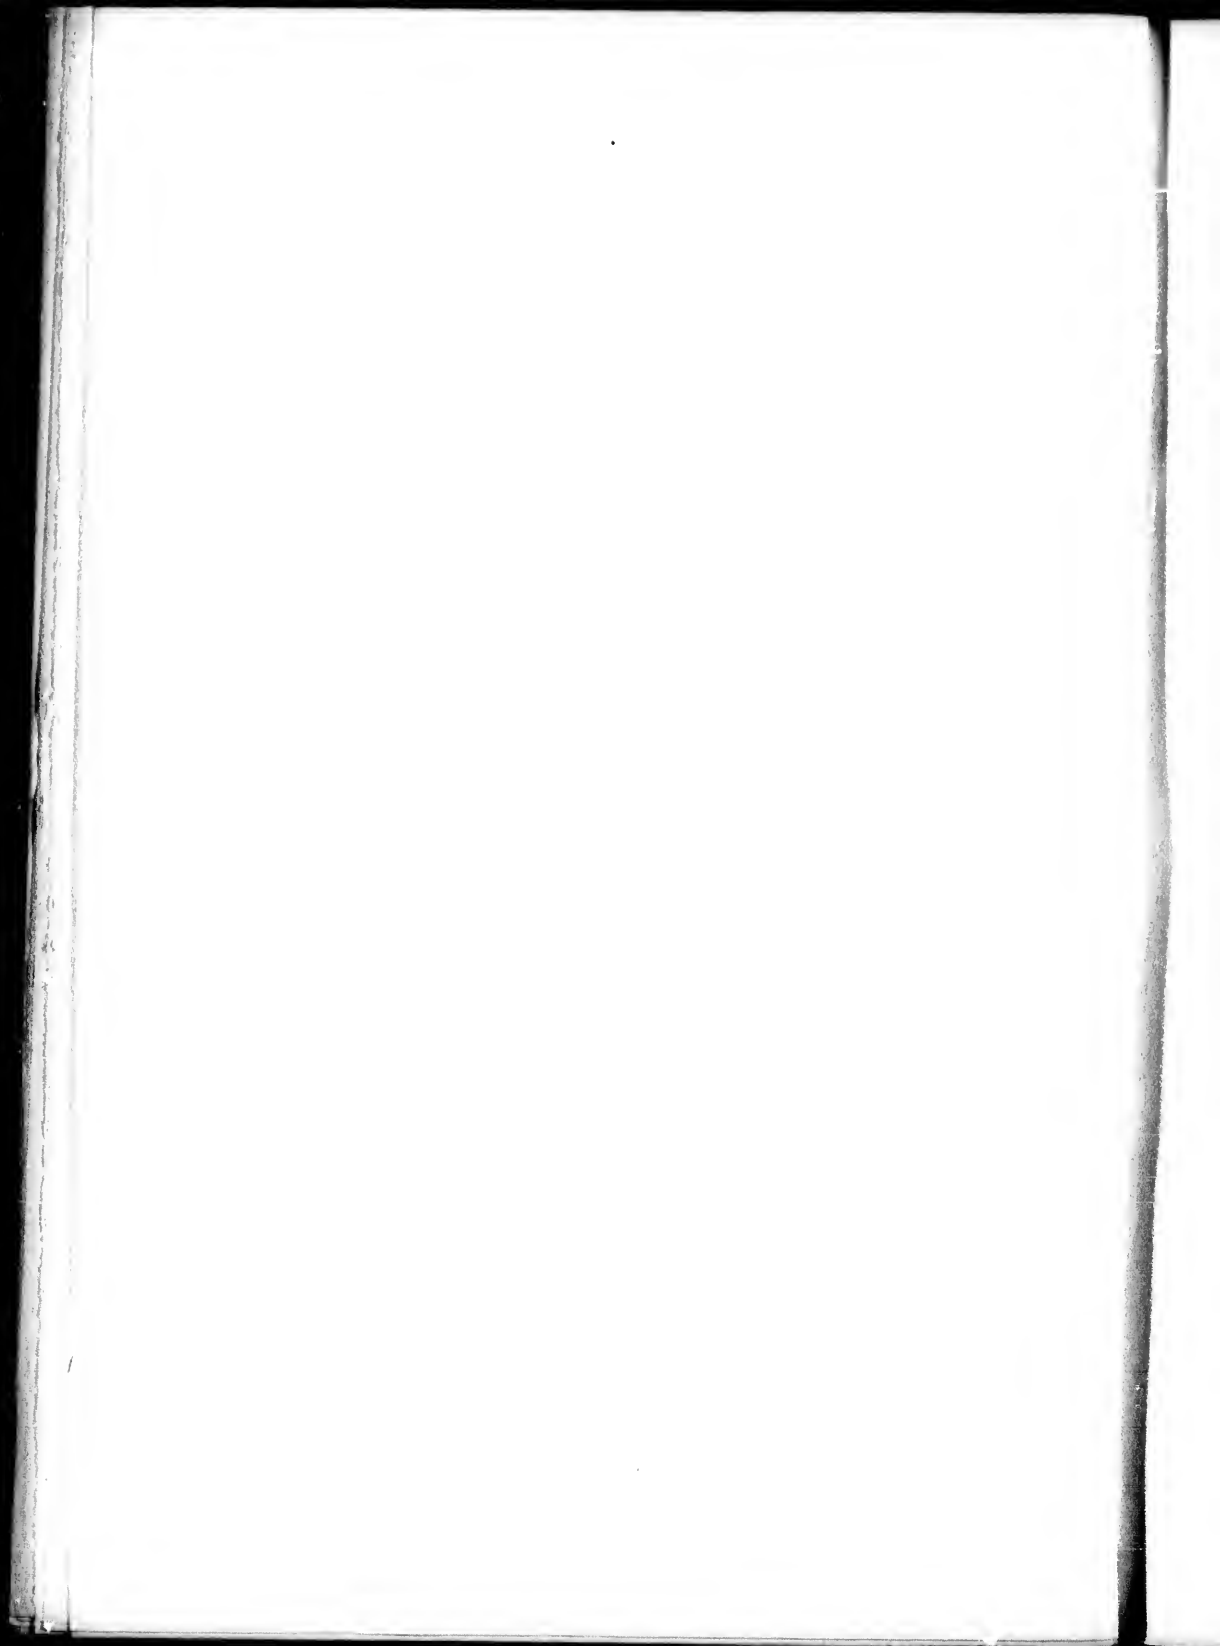

SALES CATALOGUES

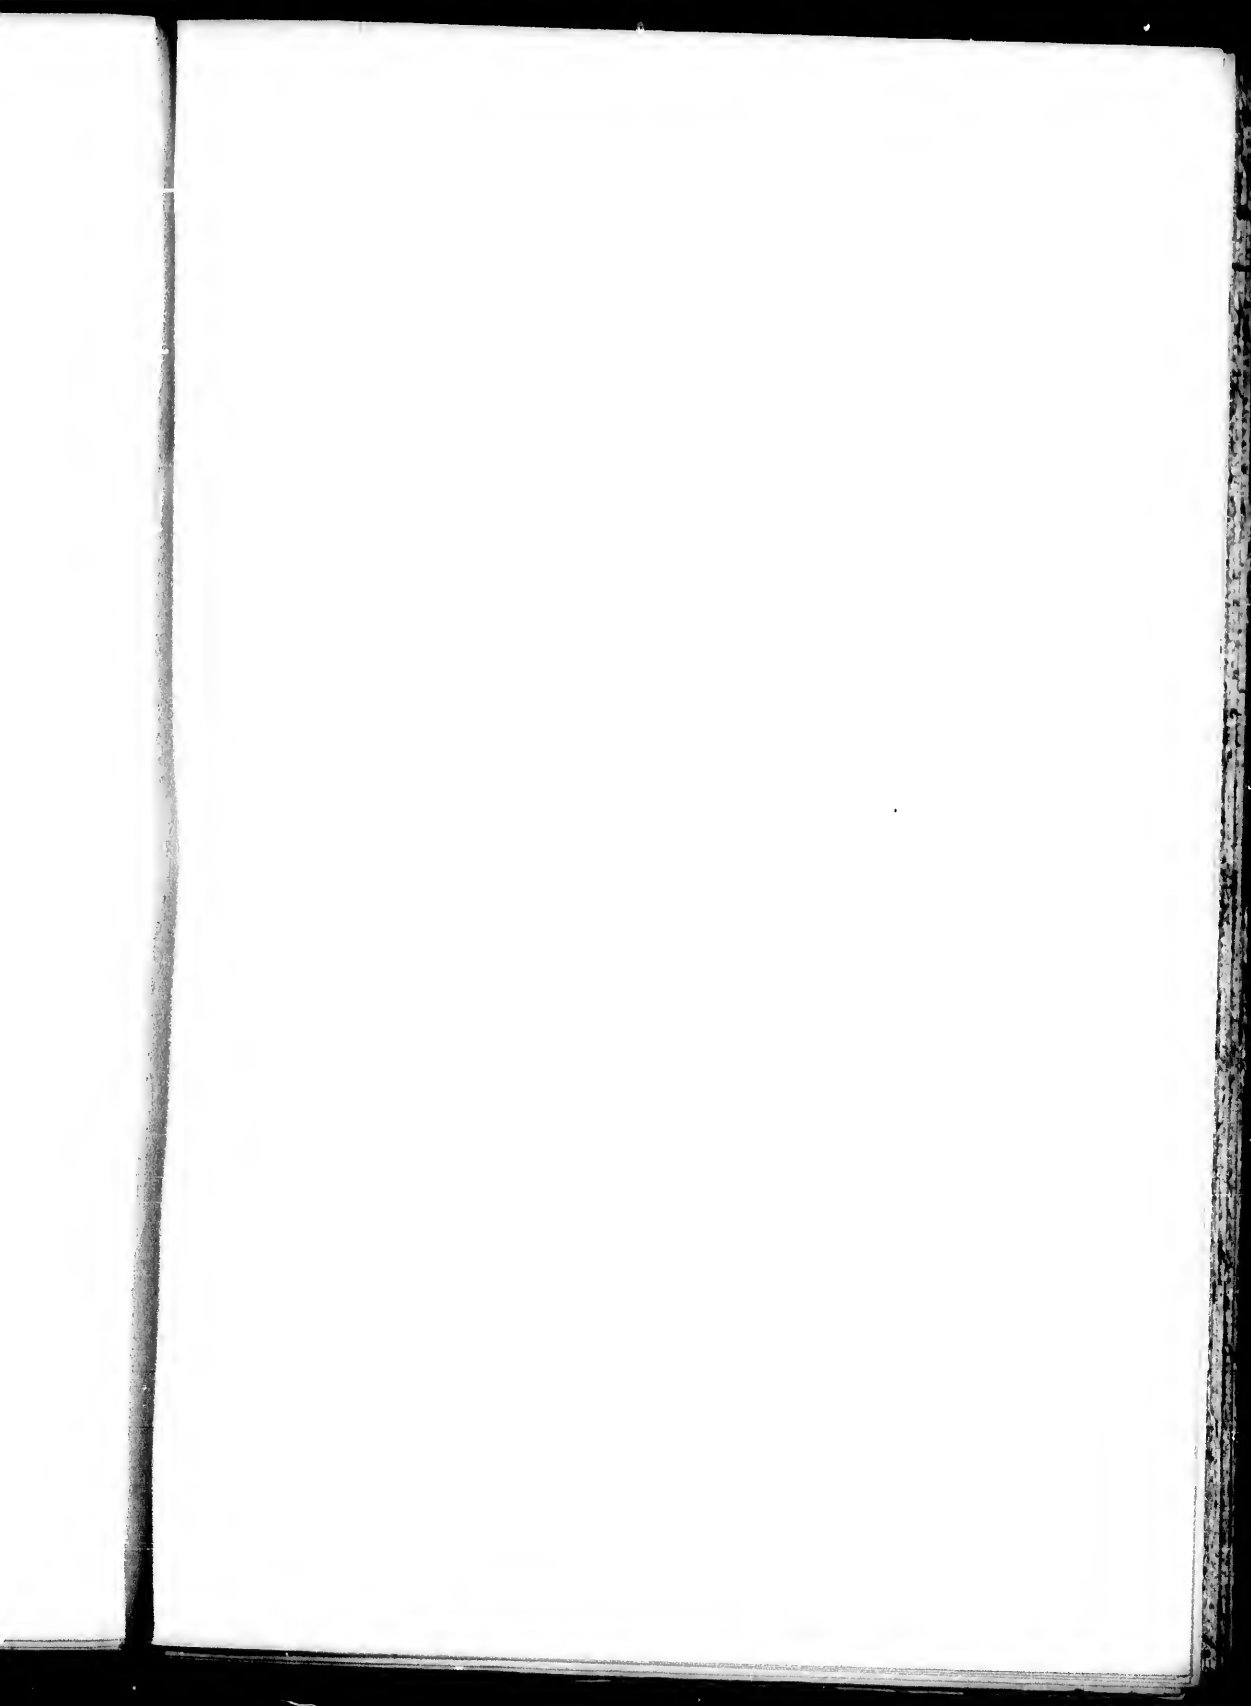

One aspect of this list is striking: the absence of many catalogues now commonly used because of their great bibliographical value although the collections they record were dispersed at auction. The Brinley catalogue appeared in 1878-93; Murphy in 1884; Menzies in 1875; Barlow in 1889; Pennypacker in 1905-09. Even the Goelet and Terry collections were catalogued for auction and became useful reference works in the compilation of the final Sabin volumes. It is interesting to note that Sabin himself acted as auctioneer in the Brinley sale (the earlier parts) which is still regarded as the greatest collection of Americana ever sold.

Among the permanent collections brought together in this great collecting era are those of James Lenox, John Carter Brown, and later the E. Dwight Church and William L. Clements collections. A short-title catalogue and a series of seven "Contributions to a catalogue" were later printed for the Lenox collection. Bartlett's catalogue of John Carter Brown's library (in Sabin's list) has been replaced by that of 1875, and that in turn by the catalogue begun in 1919 and now in progress. The great Church catalogue, listing books now in the Henry E. Huntington library, was printed in 1907. While Sabin had access to only three or four public libraries containing Americana collections, his successors have carefully recorded the holdings of some forty great libraries, with a less complete checking of scores of others listed at the end of this volume.

If Sabin had begun a few years later he might have used Charles Le Clerc's "Bibliotheca Americana," Paris, 1867, furnishing 1,647 titles offered by Maisonneuve Company; and a similar one of 1878 would have given him full details on 2,638 titles. The firm of Frederick Muller, in Amsterdam, offered a "remarkable collection" described in a three volume catalogue (1872-75), more extensive than the one noted by Sabin. Later catalogues of Bernard Quaritch, particularly beginning with the year 1886, not to mention those of numerous competent bookdealers of our days issuing carefully prepared catalogues (see Maggs Brothers' "Bibliotheca americana," 1922-30, for example), all would have added many items that clearly come within the compass of Sabin's plans. How many of the auction sales catalogues noted in Mr. McKay's List (Bulletin of The New York Public Library, March, 1935, passim) may have been seen by him is impossible to state. The chances are strong, however, that few important ones escaped his eye.

Copies of the first issue have the publishers' imprint cut out.

Although the work was printed by the end of 1801, the publication was interrupted by Aaron Burr and his friends. Burr evidently considered that the virulence of this attack on the Federalist party, which consisted principally of "low scurrillous and illy-told private anecdotes; with about thirty pages of high eulogium on A. B." would react against his own party. See his "Correspondence" with his daughter, 1929, p. 90, and Wandell and Minnigerode's "Aaron Burr," 1925, p. 242. Tompkins in his "Bibliotheca Jeffersoniana," 1887, p. 169, stated that Burr's group purchased the edition from the publishers. However, it was later issued with a new title page, and the second imprint given above, and was advertised in the New York "Evening Post" of June 2, 1802, as follows: "This day is published in one large octavo volume and for sale by Naphtali Judah, 84 Maiden Lane, The History of the Administration of John Adams . . . By John Wood . . . The above is the work said to have been suppressed by the Vice-President."

Wood, "an English hireling writer, strung together long patches from Callender's Prospect and other writings, and Duane helped him out with clippings from the Aurora, and from the scraps in his desk . . ."—Winsor, vol. 7, p. 334.

[WOOD (John)], Captain. Capt. John Wood's Lottery, assigned to Col. Mathew Lyon. The Honorable the General Assembly of the State of Vermont having, by their Act, passed the 9th of March, 1797, given liberty to John Wood to raise by Lottery the Sum of Five Hundred Dollars, to reimburse him for Services rendered the Public, before the Existence of said State; the Managers, therefore having given the ample and necessary Bonds, with Security for the Payment of the Prizes, and the regular Management of the Lottery, present the following Scheme to the Public. [Fairhaven: James Lyon? 1798.] Folio broadside. AAS. 105048

Evans 34028 enters under Matthew Lyon and supplies the imprint: [Fairhaven: Printed by James Lyon. 1798]; he enters it again, no. 35048, under John Wood and supplies the imprint: [Rutland: Printed by John Walker, jun. November 28, 1798]. It is not improbable that Colonel Lyon had the broadside printed by his son James on the latter's press at Fairhaven. On the other hand, the managers of the lottery were located at Rutland and so the printing may have been done there.

Entered at Stationers' Hall, July 7, 1634. See Arber's "Transcript," vol. 4, p. 322.

The author had lived in New England for four years previous to Aug. 15, 1633, when he sailed for England. See pp. 8 and 44. According to Winsor, his work is the earliest topographical account of the Massachusetts Colony, so far as the settlements then extended. Descriptions of the climate, the flora and fauna, and of the Indians are included. The final pages are a "Nomenclator," or Indian vocabulary.

It has been suggested that Wood may have been assisted in the preparation of the latter by Roger Williams, whose own "Key into the Language of America" was published in 1643, and by John Eliot, to whose missionary work among the Indians reference is apparently made on p. 92.

The map has the title: "The South part of New-England, as it is Planted this yeare, 1634." It is the earliest to give detailed local treatment of the shore from "Narrogansetts" Bay to "Acomenticus" on the coast of Maine. See Winsor, vol. 3, page facing p. 380, also p. 381, for a comparison of this map with a ms. Winthrop map, circa 1633, in the Sloane mss. in the British Museum. They may both have been based on the same earlier survey. Facsimiles of Wood's map are in the Prince Society reprint, 1865, and E. M. Boynton's reprint, 1898. A reduced facsimile is in Palfrey's "History of New England," vol. 1, 1858, and other reproductions in Young's "Chronicles of the First Planters," 1846, p. 384, and A. E. Wood's "Plantation at Musketquid," published by the Concord Antiq. Soc., [1901?].

Pp. 17, 53, and 56, misnumbered 9, 55, and 48, respectively.

An introductory essay by the eighteenth-century editor is a plea against the policy of "cramping" the trade with the colonies, "which must consequently lessen their importation from Great-Britain." William Brigham in Mass. Hist. Soc. "Proceedings," for Nov. 1862, p. 335, stated that he owned a copy formerly belonging to Dr. Gordon Tufts, on the title page of which was the note in Tufts' handwriting: "The gift of Nathaniel Rogers, Esq., by whom the Introductory Essay was written, to Cotton Tufts, 1767." The essay has also been less convincingly attributed to James Otis, on the authority of an inscription in James Bowdoin's copy. See "Proceedings," for Sept. 1862, pp. 250-251.

The footnotes added in this edition include a comparison of a few words in the Penobscot and St. John's Indian dialects.

[WOODRUFF (Sylvester)]? A Voyage to the Island of Philosophers, By Cæsario San Blas, Bachelor. Part 1st, Containing an account of the Island and its Inhabitants, together with the Incidents which occurred [sic] there, during the sojourn of the Writer. . . . [Albany?] 1830. 8vo, pp. (2), 53. NYS.

Dedicated to General Stephen Van Rensselaer, Jun. [of Albany]. S. Woodruff is given as author in the 1855 catalogue of the library of Albany Institute, whose copy now at NYS., has "S. Woodruff" written on the title.

There is a Sylvester Woodruff listed as a carpenter in the Albany directories for 1828 and 1832. The crude style of this pamphlet leads one to suspect that it may have been written by the Albany carpenter, especially since it is dedicated to one of the principal citizens of that city.

Hard-Ware Goods. S[amuel] and S[tephen] Salisbury, Continue Importing from London, Bristol, Birmingham and Sheffield, A large and complete Assortment of Hard-Ware Goods, Which they sell very cheap, by Wholesale and Retail, at their Shop at Boston, two Doors Southward of Dr. Silvester Gardner's in Marlborough-Street. And at their Shop at Worcester, upon the West Side of the Bridge near the Goal. . . . [Boston, 1773?] Folio broadside.

AAS. 105359

Stephen Salisbury's house "upon the West Side of the Bridge near the Goal," was built in 1772-1773 and was partly used to house his store. This had previously occupied a small wooden building east of the bridge, which was abandoned in 1773. Dr. Silvester Gardner left Boston with the other Tories about 1774-1775. Therefore this broadside must have been printed between 1772 and 1775, presumably in 1773.

The broadside also advertises groceries.

Of the 33 editions and issues, both complete and abridged, the University of Rochester has the largest collection, with all but three titles. This collection was made by combining the largest private collection, received as the gift of R. W. G. Vail, with the Frederick Strecker collection, secured by purchase. Important privately owned collections have been assembled by Elmer Adler, Frank C. Deering and George J. Skivington.

The Ayer captivity bibliography dates this edition [1792-1793], but J. C. L. Clark in his "Notes on Chapman Whitcomb," 1911, p. 14, states that except for what appears to be a second edition of the "Narrative of the Captivity of John Vandike," 1801, probably the date of none of the undated Whitcomb chap-books can be fixed nearer than "about 1800." The typography resembles that of imprints of the Leominster press, see note on our no. 103344, vol. 28.

ophical Society, of the Boston Athenæum. One folded map, eight lithographs and eight woodcuts. Pesth, Publishers Lauffer and Stolp.

An account of travels in southern California written from an ethnological, historical and scientific point of view, including a description of Los Angeles. Pages 37-63 relate to the Tejon Indians in the San Joaquin valley, including a list of their numerals and a vocabulary of the language.

The tinted lithographs are said to be from drawings by the author, but several appear to be copied with but slight alterations from those of R. H. Kern in Sitgreave's "Report of an Expedition down the Zuni and Colorado Rivers," 1854. They are signed in the left hand corner: Rajzolta Xántus J. 1858; and in the right hand corner: Nyom Haske és Társa Pest. 1859.

The titles of the plates are: San Fernando. Déli Kaliforniában.—Indián kovácsműhely. (San Fernando. Déli Kalifornia.)—Indián szövöszoba.—Tejoni indiánok tengertől örlenek.—Éji tanyánk. Timpa és Todos Santos közt. (Kaliforniai félsziget.)—A Sierra Nevada tetején, Julius 13^{án}.—La Joya. A kaliforniai félszigeten.—San Marco.

The folded map of California is dated 1858 but has, in the lower left hand corner, the later imprint: Kiadják Lauffer és Stolp Pesten. 1860.

Improved title of no. 35764, vol. 9, entered under the Christian name of the author.

BM., C., H., NYP. 105715

Letters from North America, dated from 1852 to 1857, describing travels and researches chiefly in the middle western, and southwestern parts of the United States, including visits to San Francisco and Los Angeles, and edited by Stephen Prépost. Vocabularies of the Comanche and Wichita Indian languages are given on pp. 118-122. The tinted lithographs of scenery and Indian life are said to be from drawings made by the author at the time, and eleven have the imprint: Ny. Rohn Pesten 1858, while plate 9 has: Nyomt. Rohn, Pesten, 1857.

John Xántus, while an officer in the Hungarian army, was captured by the Austrians in 1849, escaped and in 1851 went to America. Assisted by a certificate from Kossuth, he obtained employment in New York, and was later naturalized. While holding several government posts, including a consulship in Mexico in 1862, he carried on investigations and formed collections in southern California and Mexico for the Smithsonian Institution. In 1864 he returned to Europe, becoming prominent in the scientific activities of Pest, where he was connected with the botanical and zoological gardens, and was at one time curator of the ethnological museum. He also accompanied an expedition to eastern Asia, and was the author of scientific papers in several languages. See Von Wurzbach's "Biographisches Lexikon," and references in the annual reports of the Smithsonian Institution, from 1858 to 1864. See also the Royal Society's "Catalogue of Scientific Papers," for his publications.

Improved title of no. 35273, vol. 9, entered under the Christian name of the editor.

Theses. [Theses and Catalogue of the Collegiate School of Connecticut at Saybrook, September 8, 1714. Boston: Printed by B. Green? 1714.] Small quarto ? broadside. 105855

Of this, the first printed document of what was later to be Yale College, there is no known copy. It is described in a letter written from Norwich, May 28th, 1779, by Benjamin Lord of the class of 1714, to President Ezra Stiles of Yale. The following extract is quoted from Dexter's Yale Graduates, vol. 1, p. 116: "The first printed Thesis and Catalogue, very small, was like y^e State of Infancy, exhibited in y^e year 1714, printed at Boston under the Inspection of Dr. Cotton Mather. That Catalogue, with y^e Theses, were all on a small sheet." Copies of this document were sent to England in the hope, which was realized, of attracting gifts of money and books to the infant institution.

[Caption title for the Theses is missing] . . . [Catalog]us eorum qui in Gymnasi[]c Connecticutensi, ab anno 1702, ad annum 1718. Alicujus [] donati sunt. . . . [Novi-Londini? Excudebat Timotheus Green? MDCCXVIII.] Folio broadside. Y. 105856

First edition of first Theses and Catalogue after the institution was removed to New Haven under the name of the Collegiate School of New Haven, and before its name was changed to Yale College on September 10, 1718.

Described from unique fragments at v. For second edition see next title.

MISCELLANEOUS MATERIAL RELATING TO YALE COLLEGE.

The Answer of the Friend in the West. See [Clap (Thomas)], no. 13213, vol. 4. AAS., BM., C., CHS., JCB., NYP., NYS., Y.

This is a reply to Benjamin Gale's The Present State of the Colony of Connecticut Considered, no. 26353, vol. 7, AAS., CHS., H., JCB., M., Y. The latter was written in answer to Clap's Religious Constitutions of Colleges, no. 13219, vol. 4. AAS. Gale continued with his "A Reply to a Pamphlet entitled, The Answer of the Friend in the West," no. 26354, vol. 7. c., JCB.

An Appeal to the Candid, upon the Present State of Religion and Politics in Connecticut. [New Haven? 1798.] 16mo, pp. 23 [i. e. 24.]
BA., C., NYH., NYP., Y. 105925

Attributed to John Cosins Ogden in Dexter's Yale Graduates, vol. 5, p. 316, but assigned by Y. to Benjamin Trumbull, b. 1735, d. 1820. Yale supplies [New Haven, 1799] as place and date of printing, while Dexter says the pamphlet was issued early in 1798 and Evans supplies the place and date as [Litchfield? Printed by Thomas Collier, 1798]. There is a marked similarity between the type face of this work and the contemporary imprints of Collier.

The pamphlet is a criticism of the lack of freedom given Episcopalian students at Yale.

The Benefactors of Yale-College. A Poetical Attempt. . . .
Boston: Printed by S. Kneeland and T. Green. M,DCC,XXXIII. 8vo, pp. (2), 13.

Yankee Chronology: or Huzza for the American Navy. [Boston. 1813.] Folio broadside. AAS. 105957

The AAS. copy is one of a collection bought by Isaiah Thomas from "a Ballad Printer" [Nathaniel Coverly] in Boston in 1813.

The original poem was written by "Mr. Dunlap," and the last four verses by "a resident of Boston."

YANKEE DOODLE. [Two woodcuts of woman with supernatural beasts, and of hunter riding dog.] Yankee Song. [n. p. n. d.] Folio broadside. AAS. 105958

Probably the earliest known authentic text of Yankee Doodle. Published, circa 1758-1765, during the last of the French and Indian Wars, or at least, based on a text of that period.

Eighteen verses and chorus twice repeated. First line: "There is a man in our town." Second verse refers to the soldier's going to Canada. First line of chorus: "Corn stalks twist your hair off." Nine of the verses appear, with many changes, in: "The Farmer and his Son's return . . .," while there are six verses of the latter, including the references to Washington, not in this variant.

Another variant of the Yankee Song, words and music, with most of the verses entirely different, published after 1775, is reproduced as plate 20 of Sonneck's Report. This version speaks of the soldier's going to Canada to fight the Frenchmen, which obviously dates at least part of its text years before the Revolution.

[Full length woodcuts of five soldiers.] The Farmer and his Son's return from a visit to the Camp. [n. p., 1775?]. Folio broadside. A.S.W.ROSENBACH. 105959

Probably the earliest Revolutionary version of Yankee Doodle. Fifteen verses and chorus. First line: "Father and I went down to Camp."

The six verses not in the Yankee Song, were probably written by Edward Bangs to whose authorship the entire text has been erroneously attributed.

Facsimile from photograph of a lost original, in O. G. T. Sonneck's Report on "The Star-Spangled Banner" "Hail Columbia" "America" "Yankee Doodle," Washington, 1909, plate 23; another from the Rosenbach copy, in the Saturday Evening Post, June 15, 1929, also one in O. E. Winslow's American Broadside Verse, New Haven, 1930, p. 141.

The figure of the first woodcut soldier was also used in the broadsides: The Soldier's Drill . . . [n. p. n. d.] xi.1; and Female Drummer: And the Blue Bell of Scotland, AAS., in the Thomas collection, which also contains several other ballads from the same printer, none with an imprint, though one is dated as late as 1812.

[Full length woodcuts of five soldiers.] The Yankey's return from Camp. [n. p. 1775?]. Folio broadside. AAS., EI. 105960

Same woodcuts and text as in previous entry, except for slight improvements in phraseology and punctuation.

Yankee Doodle has been used as the title for numerous seventeenth, eighteenth and early nineteenth century songs and instrumental selections which have no connection with the familiar national song just described, or which have the same air but entirely different words. They range in sentiment from "Yankee Doodle came to town riding on a pony," and "Columbians all, the present hour as brothers should unite us," to "A Yankee Boy is trim and tall, and never over fat Sir." For these and similar selections, we would refer to the collections of sheet music, song books and dance music in AAS., C., GROSVENOR, H., and NYP.

YARICO.

The various forms of the story of Yarico and Inkle had their origin in Richard Ligon's "A True & Exact History of the Island of Barbados." We quote from the London, 1657, edition (our no. 41057, vol. 10) at AAB, pp. 54-55: "We had an Indian woman, a slave in the house . . . This Indian dwelling near the Sea-coast, upon the Main, an English ship put in to the Bay, and sent some of her men a shoar . . . But the Indians . . . intercepted them in their return, and fell upon them . . . some were taken, and some kill'd: but a young man amongst them stragling from the rest, was met by this Indian Maid, who upon the first sight fell in love with him, and hid him close from her Countrymen . . . till they could safely go down to the shoar, where the ship lay at anchor . . . sent the long-Boat for them, took them aboard, and brought them away. But the youth, when he came ashoar in the Barbadoes, forgot the kindnesse of the poor maid, that had ventured her life for his safety, and sold her for a slave, who was as free born as hee: And so poor Yarico for her love, lost her liberty."

This story was taken by Richard Steele from Ligon and, after considerable sentimental embellishment, including the addition of the name of Thomas Inkle of London, to the hero (?), was published in the Spectator, vol. 1, no. 11, March 13, 1711. AAB.

AAS., BU., H., HEH., M., NYP. 105983

The fact that the monogram "I S" [Isaac Story Jr.] appears on the title and the initials "I S 1792" above the caption on p. 9, has led to the incorrect attribution of this edition to Story (b. 1774, d. 1803) but the text is that of the 1736 edition, with the last 30 lines replaced by the last 28 lines of the entirely different London, 1776, poem, one line of the latter omitted.

Note in AAS. copy: "This pamphlet was printed by [i. e. for] Isaac Story [Jr.] of Marblehead in the winter vacation while a Junior sophister. Mr. Story graduated [from Harvard] in 1793, and died in Aug^t 1803."

Yarico to Inkle. An epistle. In: Poems on Several Subjects; by the Rev. John Anketell, A. B. Curate of Donaghendry Parish, County of Tyrone, Ireland. To which are added, The Epistle of Yarico to Inkle. Boston: Printed and sold by William Spotswood, No. 55 Marlborough-Street. 1795. 12mo, pp. (2), xiii, (1), 218. AAS., BM., C., JCB., NYP. 105985

The author, having published Yarico and Inkle as his own work during his college days, regretted the deception and, in the preface to the present work, pp. ix-x, explains as follows: "When I was a school-boy, a relation of mine, long deceased, was so kind as to lend me the original poem of Yarico to Inkle, which he got from an intimate friend, the author of it, who had been dead many years before it came into my hands. I took a copy of it, which, together with the original happened to be mislaid shortly afterwards. When nearly seven years had elapsed, at which time I was a student in Trinity College, I was lucky enough to recover my copy; but the original is totally lost. On my return from the country to town, I had it published in the then Dublin Chronicle, printed by William Spotswood & Co. from which it found its way into several newspapers in Ireland and England. It was also published in the form of a pamphlet in Dublin, by said Spotswood & Co. where it met with a very rapid sale; and I understand it went through repeated editions in London, in a similar shape, and was purchased with great avidity. Unless the singular elegance of the epistle should serve to detect the imposition, I could safely pass with the public as the author of it—a kind of fraud, however, which I shall never be guilty of. Into the poem, as now printed, I have incorporated ten or twelve lines of my own, and made three or four alterations in the original, too immaterial to be particularized."

Same text as 1736 edition, with slight variations as noted above.

B., BA., C., H., HEH., NYP. 106062

Joseph Sabin originally intended to enter this work under Arthur Young as supposed author, on the strength of the following note from O. Rich's Bibliotheca Americana Nova, London, 1835, p. 209: "A correspondent thinks that every passage of it [American Husbandry] discovers the industrious hand of that eminent book-builder, Mr. A—r Y—g, (Arthur Young.)" An examination of the text shows that the author was not familiar with American conditions but relied on information of uneven merit secured from various sources. But he was obviously familiar with conditions in Great Britain and Ireland, all of which seems to fit the case of Arthur Young who was also an industrious compiler of anonymous agricultural works.

For a Spanish translation, see under the translator, J. F. F. Pinheiro, no. 62954, vol. 15. NYP. There is a French and also a German translation at u.

YOUNG (John), d. 1797, homicide. Narrative of the Life, Last Dying Speech & Confession of John Young, Condemned to be executed this Day, for the Murder of Robert Barwick, One of the Deputy Sheriffs. [New York, 1797.] 8vo, pp. 8. NYH. 106080

Signed and dated at end: John Young, August 17, 1797.

The execution took place August 17, 1797. See the "Minerva" for that date and the "Gazette" for the following day; and for a review of the above pamphlet, see the "New York Gazette" for August 23, 1797.

See also: The Ghost of John Young the Homicide, who was executed the 17th of August last, for the murder of Robert Barwick, a sheriff's officer. The following monody is written with a view of rescuing his memory from obloquy, and shewing how inconsistent sanguinary laws are, in a country which boasts of her freedom and happiness: By Mrs. [Margaretta V. Bleecker] Faugeres. . . . [New York, 1797.] 8vo, pp. 6. BU.

The above title suggested to Mr. Charles Evans the possibility that John Young the homicide and John Young of New Hampshire, below, might be identical. The subject matter of the Poor Man's Companion, and the fact that Mrs. Faugeres, in her title page, quotes the phrase sanguinary laws from the title of the Poor Man's Companion, suggests the possibility of identity.

Gentlemen, Numbers of you are . . . [Signed:] Thomas Young. [Hartford: Printed by Ebenezer Watson, 1777.] Folio broadside.

BRATTLEBORO PL., C., JCB. 106119

Text begins: In Congress, May 15, 1776. Whereas his Britannic Majesty . . . Extract from the Minutes, Charles Thomson, Secretary.

The Address is followed by: April 12, 1777. Your Committee have obtained for you a copy . . . A word to the wise is sufficient.

It is possible that the Brattleboro Public Library copy is a local reprint of the Hartford edition, since it resembles Dresden printing of the period. If so, it was probably printed at Dresden by Judah-Paddock and Alden Spooner in 1778.

[YOUNG (W. A.)]. The History of North and South America, Containing, an Account of the first Discoveries of the New World, the Customs, Genius, and Persons of the original Inhabitants, and a particular Description of the Air, Soil, natural Productions, Manufactures and Commerce of each Settlement. Including a Geographical, Commercial, and Historical Survey of the British Settlements, from the earliest Times to the present Period. With an Account of the West Indies and the American Islands. To which is added, an Impartial Enquiry into the Present American Disputes. Vol. I. [-II.] London: Printed for J. Whitaker, in Mitre-Court, Fleet-Street, 1776. 2 vols., 24mo, pp. (10), 276, engraved frontispiece; (6), 280, engraved frontispiece. BA., C., JCB. 106120

Originally issued in 16 parts, as is shown by a leaf addressed "To the Public." The engraved title was supposed to replace a printed title issued with the first number. This printed cancel title, without imprint date, appears to be present in the JCB. copy. The c. copy has the leaf "To the Public," which is not present in all copies.

Improved title of no. 32147, vol. 8, entered under title.

C., JCB., NYP. 106330

On the verso of leaf xcii appears Peter Martyr's statement regarding the American discoveries of the Cabots. The section of Ziegler's work in which he describes the northern regions under the name of Schondia (Greenland, Iceland, etc.), occupies folios 85-108 and the final map, Schondia (facsimile in Winsor, vol. 2, p. 434), and was reprinted in Krantzius's Regnorum Aquilonarium, Frankfort, 1583, no. 38299, vol. 9. An English translation is included in Richard Eden's translation (with additions) from Peter Martyr, "The Decades of the newe Worlde," London, 1555, and later editions, nos. 1561-1564, vol. 1.

Ziegler's "de regionibus septentrionalibus . . ." appears in Joannes Boemus's "Omnium Gentium Mores," Antwerp, 1542 (JCB., NYP.) and later editions, no. 6117, vol. 2; Harrisse Add., no. 136 and John Carter Brown Library Catalogue, vol. 1, 1919, pp. 130-131.

The most important theological treatise of the Pennsylvania German mystic, Johann Conrad Beissel.

The general title, second title and preface were removed and burned by order of Beissel, who had quarrelled with his associate, Israel Eckerlin, who wrote them. With new titles, preface and six new epistles added, the original sheets were issued as Urständliche und Erfahrungs-volle Hohe Zeugnisse . . . Ephrata, 1745. Small 4to, pp. (8), 294. HSP.

Zionitischer Weyrauchs Hügel, oder: Myrrhen Berg, worinnen allerley liebliches und wohl riechendes nach Apotheker-Kunst zu bereitetes Rauch-Werck finden. Bestehend in allerley Liebes-Würckungen der in Gott geheiligten Seelen, welche sich in vielen und mancherley geistlichen und lieblichen Liedern aus gebildet. Als darinnen der letzte Ruff zu dem Abendmahl des grossen Gottes auf unterschiedliche Weise trefflich aus gedrucket ist; zum Dienst der in dem Abend-Ländischen Welt-Theil als bey dem Untergang der Sonnen erweckten Kirche Gottes, und zu ihrer Ermunterung auf die Mitternächte Zukunfft des Bräutigams ans Licht gegeben. Germantown: Gedruckt bey Christoph Saur. 1739. 8vo, pp. (12), 792, Register (14). AAS., C., HEH., HSP., JCB., NYP., NYS. 106364

Preface dated: Ephrata in Pennsylvania, den 14. des 4ten Monats, 1739.

A large collection of hymns, which according to Seidensticker, was printed for the Ephrata brethren, and was the first American book in German type and also the first book printed by Saur. The appendix has half title: "Die ehemals verdorrete nun aber wieder grünende und Frucht-bringende Ruthe Aarons . . ."

Seidensticker states that it "includes nearly all hymns contained in the three Franklin prints of 1730, 1732 and 1736 with a few new ones composed by C. Beissel and his friends. But the large bulk of the text consists of material obtained elsewhere, mainly from the Kleine Davidsche Psalterspiel der Kinder Zions, a collection of hymns used by the 'Inspired' in Germany and for the first time reprinted in America by Christoph Saur in 1744."

There are two issues, the difference appearing in signature B. In the first issue, the inner form of signature B was incorrectly imposed, causing the pages to appear in the wrong order. When the mistake was discovered the signature was reset and, in most of the copies, this second issue of the signature was substituted for the first, which was cancelled. In one or more copies, however, the incorrect signature remained, as in the first issue at HHH. There were at least two impressions of the entire work, on paper of different weights. The HHH. first issue is on thin paper measuring $1\frac{3}{8}$ in. in thickness. The HHH. second issue is 2 in. thick while the AAS. second issue is $1\frac{3}{8}$ in. thick.

A contemporary manuscript volume of music for this work is at HSP.

LIBRARY LOCATION SYMBOLS

The following list of symbols includes those in constant use but does not include the occasional location which is spelled out in full and so needs no further identification.

Because this Dictionary has been the work of many hands over a long period of years, the location symbols are not always uniform and it sometimes happens that two or even three symbols have been used for the same library. Symbols also have been changed to make them more intelligible as in the case of the New York State Library which was designated by Joseph Sabin with an "s." but by later editors with the more familiar symbol "NYS." It is worth noting that books having the "s." location are generally copies which were in the New York State Library before the fire of 1911 which virtually destroyed that library, while those designated with the symbol "NYS." are generally copies added since the fire and so are still available.
