GIRLS BORN 1908 TO 1912 May Need Medicinal Treatment

How Two Mothers Helped Their Daughters By Giving Them Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Every mother possesses information of vital importance to her young daughter, and the responsibility for the girl's future is largely in her hands. When a schoolgirl's thoughts become sluggish, when she suffers the consequences of wet feet, pain, headaches, fainting spells, loss of sleep and appetite, and is irregular—her mother should have a care for her health and give her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which has proved a reliable aid to Nature for just such conditions in many cases.

Had Faith in It Hamilton, Ontario. —When I was a young girl I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because father and mother had faith in it. It had helped mother and it helped me. I took eleven bottles of it then and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sarsaparilla Wash. Now I am on my third bottle for later female troubles. I would go two or three months and then have such bearing-down pains they were unbearable. I would have to go to bed and was unable to do my housework. I was weak and would faint at the least 42nd thing I did. My husband got me the first bottle and I am already feeling better in every way. I can do my washing now and before I could not. I can walk about at that time. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to every woman.

They are happy and contented and are all showing signs of the careful treatment they have received under the direction of the camp nurse, Miss Eason, assisted by Miss Vincent and Miss Magnuson.

OLD TIMERS TO REUNITE AT SMITH'S FALLS

Old Home Week at Smith's Falls, August 2nd to 8th, this year, bids fair to be a time of more than usual celebration. Such an occasion always brings forth great interest—for the very term means memories—thoughts of old friends of school days, fishing, the ball game in the vacant lot across the road, youthful flirtations—how gay and happy it all was! And now, after all these years, the old crowd will be home again! What changes they will see—the newly paved streets of which the city is so proud—the new white way through the business section of the town—the new business blocks and beautiful homes—the wonderful filtration plant and water service. The transformation of the Island Park in the center of the town into a beautifully parked area on which is erected the Municipal War Memorial, swimming pool and Tuxis Memorial.

Smith's Falls, at the gateway of the beautiful Rideau Lakes, has an ideal situation for a summer Old Home Week. There will be aquatic sports on the Basin of the Rideau Canal and daily excursions up the Rideau Lake. Only an hour's run on the new highway will take the fisherman to an angler's paradise before breakfast. On three nights of the week there will be staged historical pageants depicting Canadian life up to the present time, as this is being managed by the Local Council of Women, success is assured. Street dancing will be an attraction and undoubtedly will prove exceptionally popular, as the streets are wide and well paved. The Canadian Pacific Recreation Grounds will be the scene of baseball games and a large part of the Old Home Week's activities will be carried on there.

The town itself has an interesting background. In 1790, by patent royal, two lots of timberland in County Leeds were given to Major Thomas Smith, a United Empire Loyalist. Four hundred acres of this timber was in the vicinity of the Rideau Falls, hence the name, Smith's Falls. In 1823 the first saw mill was erected, in 1827 another saw mill and a flour mill, and in 1828 streets were laid out. From that time Smith's Falls has grown until today it is one of the most flourishing and up-to-date towns in the Dominion. And it is still growing.

So come back, old friends and townsmen! We'll be glad to have you, and you will have a fine welcome and a good time.

Unique Golf Title

VANCOUVER, July 13.—Title to the deep sea golfer's championship is claimed by a doughty Scotch ship's master.

Meet the claimant. His name is R. G. Latta, a four-striper in command of the Canadian Pacific liner Montreal.

With equal ease, Captain Latta boxes his compass or rattles out on the fairways of a dozen different courses in as many ports.

His bogies and birdies hang heavy to the scalp belt.

For a roarin' sailor man from off the deep, his skill with a niblick is something to be marveled at.

Latta plays a game consistently under 80 and has shot on more courses probably than is the good fortune of the ordinary mortal to enjoy.

From China to lands beyond the seven seas wherever golf is played, Captain Latta at some time has tried his luck in his years at sea.

He keeps in trim for games ashore with his practice machine aboard ship. And when driving in the hot tropical sun under the equator he always wears a heavy wrap.

It livens up his stroke he says.

EMIGRATION SOLUTION OF GRAVE PROBLEM

Sir Robert Horne Discusses Over-Population Situation in England

SAYS OBJECTIVE IS OVERSEA DOMINIONS

Other Topics of Empire Metropolitan Letter From London

Correspondence of The Times-Star.

LONDON, July 2.—In his preface to "Sheltered Markets," just published by John Murray, Sir Robert Horne discusses our grim problem of unemployment. He regards it as beyond dispute that this country is over-populated, and that the only solution is emigration. The obvious objective must be our overseas dominions, but as General Smuts pointed out at the last imperial conference, the dominions cannot take immigrants from these islands if we refuse to help them in taking the produce of their labor. This is, of course, a blunt advocacy of imperial preference on the widest possible scale, and Sir Robert argues that in present circumstances only fanatical obsession in free trade doctrine, not shared by the original champions of that tradition, will refuse to countenance it. Mr. Douglas's conclusions are that our continental rivals will rapidly oust us from many foreign markets, and that the overseas dominions must be our only refuge and hope. It is a controversial topic, but his examination of the facts is worth a little study.

The manager of one of the big banks tells me that private advices, which have reached him during the last week, suggest that the China situation has been greatly exaggerated. Although shipping has at some points been held up by the attitude of Chinese labor, the delays have been no worse than frequently happened at British ports when strikes have been in progress, and bankers consider the outlook quite hopeful. So much so, that discussions connected with the financing of a new industrial scheme at Shanghai are continuing without interruption.

NEW BRITISH SILK FACTORY.

Mr. Winston Churchill was looking for an investment in favor of his silk industry, and he found it in a project which he has launched in London. An American firm of city hosier manufacturers has decided on the immediate construction of a factory for the manufacture of silk stockings, in which some 1,000 British workmen will be employed. The projected output is 1,000,000 pairs of silk stockings a day, with the possibility of expansion up to 8,000 pairs.

MAROOINED.

Most of these towns paid for their overpopulation, if they did not later repent and move heaven and earth to get the railways their way, by being hopelessly marooned. One example of this is the old river town of Abington, which kept the railway at arm's length, and then had to link itself up with the nearest junction. An example of unrepentant error is Chard, once a flourishing hill-top town in Somerset, but now a dismal derelict with an area of stagnation that depresses even the chance visitor. Chard strenuously repelled the suggestion of being right on the Great Western route, and found itself left high and dry, like a wreck on a lonely beach, with deserted market and empty hostels. It sits on its hill top, listening hourly to its own woe, as the Great Western engines whistle down the neighboring valley.

DUKE AND CHOIR BOYS.

The Duke of Newcastle has been at Belsey, spending a week in an hotel on the sea front with the choristers of All St. Margaret's, London. These youngsters are educated and trained at the duke's expense, and when their voices break are sent to college. Every year they spend a week at Belsey, on the Sussex coast, and give an impromptu concert in the local hall on behalf of Sussex hospitals. The duke is a middle-aged gentleman, very short of stature, and somewhat lame owing to spinal trouble, and is an ardent high churchman. He joins quietly as an onlooker in the holiday sports of his choristers, including kite-flying and cricket on the beach, and this year interested himself particularly in taking cinema photographs of the youngsters at play.

RED-HOT POLITICS.

Hyde Park on Sundays is becoming what Trafalgar Square used to be in the days when John Burns was a comparative youngster. It is now the regular thing for platoons of black-shirted British Fascists with Union Jacks to attend the alfresco meetings of Communists, and to attempt to drown the eloquence of the Red speakers by chanting patriotic songs. This invariably ends in a sort of scrap, or at least a scuffle for the Union Jacks, and the amenities of Hyde Park suffer accordingly. The First Commissioner is credited with plans for strengthening the police on duty in the park on Sundays, and adding a section of mounted constables. All this is very well in its way, but the majority of people who go to Hyde Park on Sundays take no interest in either faction, and desire only to enjoy the communal democracy. It would be more convenient if the warfare between the Reds and the Blacks were conducted elsewhere.

CLOTHES FROM PARIS.

Lady Alexandra Curzon's marriage to Major Metcalfe—"Frisky" Metcalfe, as everyone, including the Prince of Wales, calls him—is to be a quiet affair, because of the death of Lord Curzon, the bride's father. It is to take place at the Chapel Royal, St. James. The tiny royal chapel which is not very often used for weddings, and then only with the consent of the King. Lady Alexandra is now in Paris, visiting the model houses and completing her toilette, which is an important business for a girl who can claim to be one of the best-dressed people in society.

ding ought to be an "affair" worth recording, because Major Metcalfe is himself something of a Beau Brummell in matters of raiment.

THE RAIL BOOM.

Though we are now celebrating the railway centenary, the real boom came 20 years later than 1825. In 1845 the public imagination became suddenly fired with railway prospects. All sorts of people rushed to invest in railway companies launched by speculators by the hundred. It was another South Sea bubble, with the same tragic sequel. Two years later, the companies collapsed, banks broke, business firms toppled down, and thousands of people were utterly ruined. They were the pioneer victims of the new age of steam, and shared the common fate of pioneers. But many towns were fiercely opposed to railway invasion, and to their ultimate undoing, successfully resisted it. They refused to have anything to do with the unclean new thing.

IN THE PARK.

It was wonderful to see how the sudden return of the heat-wave — which is now the accepted Fleet street cliché for a little name summer weather, just as all colds in winter are an influenza epidemic — made Hyde Park brighten up. There was a great crush at the early morning parade, both of riders in the Row and of sitters under the trees down the adjacent avenue, and press photographers were busy snapping notabilities. All the hardy annuals were there, including the inevitable picturesque Canningham Graham, with lords and ladies, M. P.'s, a few cabinet ministers, a judge or two, and lots of stage celebrities. Riding in the Row, or sitting out under the trees watching and chatting with the riders, it was quite a theatrical habit. Thin actresses, whose physical adaptation to modern silhouette fashions is perfect, sit out. Plump ones ride hard to achieve perfection.

FLEET STREET THRILLERS.

There are several London journalists who are only just beginning to recover from the R. A. F. gymnastics at Hendon. Before the show proper opened the public, a number of Fleet street men were invited to "go up". The kind invitation was accepted, and about a dozen newspaper representatives, in their workaday attire, accompanied R. A. F. pilots on their rehearsal stunts. Most of the aerial trippers had been "up" often enough before, and at least one was an experienced artillery observer, who regularly flew over the Hendon lines in France spotting for his battery. But the pilots were all circus performers, and they performed. Onlookers gazed in admiration while the machines executed all the latest thrills and stunts. When the journalists landed, white-faced and trembling, most of them suffered acutely from seasickness.

A SPECIAL STUNT.

My friend the artillery observer suffered worse than anybody. His pilot specialized in a manoeuvre, beautiful to behold, but awful to experience. He soared aloft to a good height, looped the loop, and, at the top of the loop, very slowly spun his machine round sideways as well. My friend assured me the sensation beat anything he had ever known in the Bay of Biscay at its worst. One's insides seemed to come loose, and undergo a thorough churning. There were moments when it was impossible to breathe. What aggravated things was the absurd impossibility, though seated close up to the pilot, of making him hear a word. There were some urgent things the ex-artillery officer was planning to say to the R. A. F. pilot, but they had to be reserved for landing. But then his shaken condition, and the honest homesickness of the pilot, who obviously thought he had given his guest a thoroughly good "show", quite vanquished personal venom.

RUSSIAN BALLET ROMANCE.

Hoxton is one of the most uncompromising proletarian suburbs in London, usually associated with professional pugilism and silk stalls, but this week it had its glorious hour of crowded triumph. A Hoxton man, George Dines, who served in the navy and later in the R. F. A., has suddenly leaped into fame and fortune. He was earning a precarious living for himself and his large family by playing a luteo accompaniment with spoons to a street barred organ. Long ago I described the skill and dexterity of this artist, but now he has been taken up by the Russian ballet. His performance was noticed by someone of influence, was brought to the notice of the ballet manager, and after a private full-dress rehearsal up a back alley, near the theatre, George Dines, with his spoons, but in bluejacket's uniform, this week appeared in "The Salons" ballet at the Coliseum, and, partly owing to the superb enthusiasm of a strong Hoxton contingent in the gallery, figured as the star turn. Now he is booked for a six months' engagement, and later for a continental tour.

A BATH ROAD COMEDY.

The new play at the Haymarket, "The Man with a Load of Mischief," is an amusing romantic comedy and ought to prove a popular attraction in spite of the hot weather. The play takes its name from the hostelry on the Bath road where the action takes

Senator Broussard On Visit To Exiled Ancestors' Home; Stay Too Brief For Reception

SHEDIAC, July 14.—Hon. E. S. Broussard, of New Iberia, Louisiana, United States Senator, and a prominent Southern Democratic leader, with his son, E. S. Broussard, Jr., was a motor visitor to Shediac on Sunday, calling on Rev. A. D. Cormier, Senator Poirier and Placide Gaudet. Senator Broussard said he was greatly impressed with the climate and scenery of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, and hoped to visit Canada again.

He had never been in the Maritime Provinces, but had heard and read so much of the land of his ancestors that he arranged a motor trip this season. He visited Grand Pre, the historical phase of which Father Cormier has done so much to perpetuate, and saw the sites of the homes occupied by his ancestors before the expulsion of 1755, when many Acadians were sent to Louisiana, now the one distinctly French State of the American Union.

Had Senator Broussard been able to remain in Shediac beyond a brief time he would have been honored a reception by the town. He and his son left here for a tour of Quebec province.

SHEEP DUTY LIFTED FOR THREE MONTHS

Ottawa Step Taken to Improve and Enlarge Canadian Flocks.

OTTAWA, July 14.—For the three fall months of September, October and November the duty of 25 per cent. on grade sheep imported into Canada from the United States for breeding purposes will be removed, according to an announcement today by Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture.

To Offset Decline.

The reason for this step is the fact that for the past two or three years there has been a gradual decline in the sheep-breeding industry in the Dominion. It is felt that with the removal of the duty encouragement will be given to Canadian sheep breeders to improve and enlarge their flocks.

Saint John's All Year Port

By R. E. ARMSTRONG

FOLLOWING is the first of two articles from the pen of R. E. Armstrong on the Port of Saint John and the Port of St. Andrews. Today's deals with Saint John and will be found of interest as recalling the history of the port, telling of the early days of sailing vessels and the advent of the steamship and dealing with the matter of port equipment. The story of St. Andrews will be published tomorrow. Of Saint John he writes—

New Brunswick—the largest province in the Maritimes—can boast of being the possessor of two healthy ocean ports that are constantly open. The Port of Saint John occupies a central position on the northern coast of the Bay of Fundy. On Saint John's Day, 1804, Admiral Champlain (whose statue occupies a central place in Queen's Square), who was seeking for his French home sections for his French people, was so pleased with the appearance and opportunities of this ocean port area that he christened it River Saint John. That name was clung to until 1783, when Loyalist refugees from the neighboring republic came hitherward. When the city was founded the following year the name "Saint John" was continued to both the river and port.

PRESENTED TO CITY.

The Imperial Government honored its loyal refugees by presenting the entire harbor area to the city, since which time it remains under civic control. In this respect it differs from all other Canadian ports.

In its early days, vigorous ship-building construction was carried on both within the city and in adjacent localities. Throughout summer and winter, these splendid sailing ships traversed the entire world and established a record for the East. One of the Motherland was proud of one of the world's finest clipper ships was the celebrated Marco Polo, a Saint John built ship, which broke the world's sailing record between Great Britain and Australia. There were thousands of other ships, barks, barkentines, brigantines and schooners that were constructed in this New Brunswick section and that won splendid records.

FIRST STEAMSHIP HERE.

In the early 80's it was gradually impressed on shipbuilders and ship-owners that the life of the sailing ship would soon be at an end, and, and iron were taking the place of wood in hull construction, and steam engines were doing the work of the canvas sails.

I recall when the Troop & Son Company, one of the most energetic and wealthy of Saint John's ship-owners, decided to add the first steamship to their craft. She was constructed overseas and was sent to Saint John for her first cargo. A loyal welcome was extended her by the people of the city, and she was sailed with a timber cargo a few weeks later. Capt. Fritz being in command, she was accompanied outside Partridge Island by a large group of citizens. Unfortunately on her return trip she was driven ashore on the Cape Breton coast and was totally wrecked. Capt. Fritz and many others on board were drowned. It was a heart-breaking experience and proved a source of agony not only to the owners but to many others within the city.

Some years later the William Thomson Co., another active shipping organization, founded the Battle Line of steamers and was doing an extensive traffic when the world war broke out. Two of these steamers were in a German port at the time and were seized upon by the German government. Within the last few weeks the announcement has been made that the German government will repay the Thomson Co. by contributing $1,250,000 for the return of their ships. This announcement should be a source of satisfaction to the company's survivors.

CANADIAN PACIFIC.

While the withdrawal of sailing craft traffic by the steamship lines was greatly mourned by the citizens of Saint John, a progressive spirit was aroused in 1889, when the Canadian Pacific Railway Company completed its transcontinental system between Vancouver and this eastern ocean port. A strong determination was aroused within the people of Saint John to have the Port of Saint John—Britain's ocean gateway into Canada—utilized for Canada's traffic instead of a certain Maine port, which was being maintained by subsidies from the Canadian government. For six years these demands were persistently made, while the City of Saint John was endeavoring to furnish a pierage system for itself on the West Side at its own expense. The purchase by the City of the Carleton Branch Railway from the government of Canada for $40,000 and the presentation of this branch line to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company awakened an active feeling on the part of this progressive railway body. A grain elevator was supplied by the Canadian Pacific Company and various other forms of equipment had upon.

Finally, between 1895 and 1896 the government decided to coincide with Saint John's demands. The promotion of this situation apparently aroused a sympathetic feeling on the part of Canada. Shortly after 1899 the subsidies that were being paid to the marine steamship lines were cancelled.

USE OUR OWN PORTS.

Gradually, it was impressed upon practically all Canada that the Port of Saint John, which had contributed so much to Confederation, was acting within its rights and that it was entitled to carry on the freight traffic of the Dominion, particularly in the winter season when the St. Lawrence ports of Montreal and Quebec were closed by ice. While the Port of Saint John—which never suffers from ice trouble—is still affected in a degree by the rivalry of the Maine port, due to the utilization of the Grand Trunk or Canadian National Ry. system between Montreal and Portland, yet from the Atlantic to the Pacific the view has been strongly expressed that Canada's freight should be forwarded through her own ports, in preference to foreign ports. This is still Canada's predominant feeling.

TRI-PARTITE AGREEMENT.

The fact that the City of Saint John was given the control of the port by the Imperial Government and that in a measure it was out of the control of Canada's government, tended for a time to make it somewhat difficult to receive governmental financial assistance, such as was being extended to Montreal and other Canadian ports, but between 1910 and 1911 the government decided to come to Saint John's aid and in the latter year a tri-partite agreement was entered into by the Government, the City and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, the special objects of which were for the Government to enter upon pier construction on the West Side, for the city to provide additional land, and water and sewerage development, and for the railway company to assist in the expansion of the trackage system in front of the piers and also to help in the filling up of adjacent land areas.

PORT EQUIPMENT.

The present equipment of the port consists of the above, also 12 ocean piers, seven of which are on the west side and five on the east, two C. P. R. grain elevators, a series of shipping warehouses, coal and oil bunking plants, a cold storage plant, Partridge Island hospital and an immigration depot which is well equipped. In addition to the above, the port is provided with one of the largest dry docks in the world. If some floating cranes could be supplied there would be no better equipped port in Eastern Canada. One of the needs of this port is the reduction of the harbor and rail charges, which tend to reduce its traffic. The port is now so well protected by wireless direction-finding plants within the Bay of Fundy and by various other aids to navigation that marine casualties have been practically eliminated. This helpful situation has led to the recommendation from the Imperial Shipping Committee that the marine insurance discrimination against this port be removed and that it be placed on the same basis as Boston, Portland and Halifax.

The port is being utilized quite actively throughout the winter by steamship companies connected with the United Kingdom, Europe, South Africa, Australia, the West Indies, Cuba and South America. In the summer season it has connections with Manchester, Eng., the West Indies, Cuba, Canadian lake ports and Boston.

On the whole, the Port of Saint John has become one of Canada's most efficient ports, although it is still affected by the rivalry of certain U. S. ports that are connected with the Canadian National Railway.

HOME FROM CAPITAL.

C. F. Inches, K. C., returned to the city last evening from Fredericton, where he had been in attendance as a member of the council of the New Brunswick Baristers' Society at the investigation by the council of the charges of unprofessional conduct preferred against H. B. Hanson, K. C., M. P., of Fredericton.

Dominion Tires are GOOD Tires

Here is the Proof

Tire A with round tread, has worn down at the sides.
Tire B, with Low-Pressure flat tread, travelled 1,000 miles farther and has worn evenly.

Low-Pressure Tread is the only real Balloon Tire Tread

LONG after the usual round tread found in balloon tires has worn down prematurely at the sides, the new Low-Pressure Tread of Dominion Royal Cord Balloons will still be giving remarkable service on the road. With its flat contour and greater road contact, the wear is slow and even.

Low-Pressure Tread is the only tread precisely correct for maximum balloon tire wear. Low-Pressure Tread means better traction and easier steering, better non-skid protection and supreme balloon tire comfort.

Low-Pressure Tread can be had only in Dominion Royal Cord Balloons—the only Canadian balloon tires with latex-treated cords, webbed together with pure rubber latex, without injurious chemicals.

POSTPONE RACES ON COURTENAY BAY

Tidal Conditions Unfavorable For Next Saturday—To Name Another Date.

It was officially announced this morning that the proposed single scull races which were carded for Courtenay Bay next Saturday afternoon have been postponed because tidal conditions will be unfavorable. At a meeting of the Saint John Rowing Club last evening preparations were made to hold the two events, one for seniors to pick a representative for this city at the Canadian regatta at St. Catharines and another for intermediates. It was decided to hold the races at 2 o'clock as high water will be 11.29. Later Harry Gigegey, maritime champion, and Willie Logan, the star intermediate, announced that they were opposed to race at the time specified as a strong tide would be setting out from Courtenay Bay and the water would be getting very low. Fred Logan, who is in charge of these races, explained that he was opposed to their competing under such adverse conditions as a time limit was to be set for the senior event. He strongly favors holding the race some evening next week when the tide will be favorable.

NEW YORK, July 15.—"So long, Mr. Gallagher!"

"Good-bye, Mr. Shean."

It is probably the last chance one will have to introduce a Gallagher and Shean story in this wise, and the author seizes upon it as strangely apropos.

For the famous vaudeville, musical comedy and phonograph record team-mates have dissolved partnership—the combination which lifted them from obscurity to the heights and the big money. The dissolution, which has just become public, occurred for reasons unannounced. But Broadway gossip blames the break on Fil Lusster, a former Greenwich Village Follies chorus girl with whom Gallagher is immediately to enter vaudeville, while Shean continues with the G. V. F. Company, next season.

Rumor has it, further, that Gallagher will marry Miss Lusster when legally able. Their romance dates back to the entrance of Gallagher and Shean into the Greenwich Village show. That was three years after Bryon Foy wrote them the "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean" song with innumerable topical lyrics, which made them famous. Gallagher's present wife, his fifth or sixth, is Ann Luther. They have been separated for many months.
