Today was the largest market day seen in Dalhousie for some time. The steamer Florence made her last trip tities of produce and returned, taking back many barrels of flour and other foodstuffs.

The Miguasha people report that further accommodation will be added to their wharf next year for the convenience of the public trading at Dalhousie. In addition to present house and shed, a barn will be built i lose proximity to the wharf to shelter the horses, while the owners are in town. A light will also be placed at the end of the wharf, to guide parties crossing the river at night.
