at the features of the dead Queen. About 10 a.m. the shell was brought and the royal ladies. The latter havand in the presence of the King, the emperor and the duke, removed the body from the bed to the coffin. In death it was lovelier than in the clos-ing days of life. Not a trace of the ravages of disease were visible. The servants having retired, Queen Alexandra, the princesses and the children were recalled, and with lingering steps and stifled sobs they passed slowly before this white-robed and peaceful figure. At the foot, never moving, stood the King, and when the mourning crowd had passed, there remained only the son and grandson of the dead. Emperor William wept even more bitterly than the royal ladies. Finally he also retired, and the King was left alone. Sir James Reid, beckoning to the servants with the coffin lid, asked the King's instructions.

Officers and men from the royal yachts took their stand round the coffin over which the King, Queen and Kaiser gently laid the robes of a Knight of the Garter, placing at the head a diamond crown. Beneath lay the royal ensign, while hanging above was the Union Jeck. At the altar was the rector of Whippingham, who read a portion of the fun-eral service in the presence of the royal famfly. Emperor William covvered his face with his hands, and the grief of Princess Beatrice was pitiful. After the benediction they each placed a wreath upon the coffin, and they all retired.

MARTIAL FEATURES PREVAIL. It is a remarkable fact that all the proceedings are pervaded with an intense martial air. A Remedy for the Cure of Piles Which Has Met With Remarkable Success.

There are many popular medicines that are known in every household in America. There are blood purifiers, nerve ton-

But all of these must divide popu larity with many rivals, no one remedy has the field to itself, with the single exception of pile cures, for it is a singular fact, that among the host of remedies, there is but one pile cure that can be considered as having a national reputation, without a rival, and the remedy referred to is the Pyramid Pile seven years has steadily worked into favor, by reason of its extraordinary merit and a method and a record of remarkable cures, until it is known from Maine to California and from Manitoba to the Gulf of Mexico. It is true there are many pile remedies having a small local reputation or two, but the Pyramid Pile Cure has rapidly supplanted them all, and really has the field to itself when anything like national popularity is considered.

The explanation is simple. It is be cause piles is in no sense an imaginary trouble, that a simple salve or ointment will cure, but an obstinate, painful, and often dangerous trouble, and a remedy to give satisfaction must possess positive and very apparent merit. A person suffering from piles will not experiment for months with a remedy; it must give relief and cure in short order or it is con-

In the House of Lords, Lord Sallsbury moved the reply to ing retired, Sir James Reid, assisted the King's message in a speech by three trusted household servants, | full of emotion. He said that in performing the saddest duty that had ever befallen him, he was only echoing their sorrow, deeper than he had ever seen, of this nation, which had been called forth by a singular loss which, under the dispensation of Providence, they had suffered, and their admiration of the glorious reign and splendid character of the sove-reign they had lost. Being a constitutional monarch, with restricted pow-ers, she had resigned by sheer force of character, by the lovableness of her disposition, and by her hold on the hearts of her subjects. The example which she set of governing by esteem and love would never be forgotten, nor how much she assisted in the elevation of her people by their simple contemplation of her brilliant qualities as wife, mother and woman. Her wonderful powers of observing with absolute strictness the limits of her powers as a constitutional sovereign, and at the same time maintaining steady and persistent influence of the actions of her ministers, inspired the greatest admiration. She always maintained a rigorous supervision over public affairs, giving her ministers the benefit of her advice, and warning them of dangers, No minister could disregard them without feeling he had incurred a great danger. She had brought the country peacefully through a great change, from old to new England. She possessed extraor-dinary knowledge of what people would think. He had always said that when he knew what the Queen thought he knew for a certainty what her subjects would think, especially the middle classes. The King came to the throne with the one great advantage of having before him the greatest example possible. He had been familiar generation with political and social life. He enjoyed enormous popularity, and was almost as much be loved in foreign courts and countries. Congratulations could be tendered him with earnest sincerity, and in the be lief that he will adorn the throne and be no unworthy successor of the Queen.

> Lord Kimberley, the Liberal leader in the House of Lords, who seconded the address, said he desired to echo every word of the noble marquis. His access to the sovereign dated back to an even earlier period than that of the marquis. He had always been struck with the extraordinary consideration and kindness which marked her majesty's conduct towards all who came in contact with her. He was simply astounded at the sound, real knowledge she possessed of all important

IN THE COMMONS. In the House of Commons, Mr. A.

Balfour, government leader, said the house, in all its long history, had never met under sadder circumstances, or with a clearer duty to express the universal sorrow extending from end to end of the empire. The sorrow was felt not only as a national, but also as an irreparable personal loss. Never be-fore had been the national grief so deeply seated. The end of a great epoch had come, and the cumulative result of a great ideal, of the great example of Queen Victoria, was the greatest the world had ever seen. Her position had thrown upon the Queen a life of continuous labor. Short as had been the interval be een her final signature of a public document and final rest, it had been long enough to clog the wheels of the administration, as witnessed by the vast mass of untouched documents awaiting the hand of the sovereign. In moving a double response of condolence and con-gratulation, Mr. Balfour said they all had unfailing confidence that the great interests committed to the new sove-reign were safe in his keeping, and they assured him of the ungrudging support of his loyal subjects. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader, seconded the motion, which was adopted, the members standing. The house then adjourned until Feb.

The King ada in their great sorrow. The King is deeply moved by the many kind messages which have reached him from all parts of the Dominion. (Signed) Chamberlain.

CANADA'S CHILDREN. It is believed one of the last acts of Queen Victoria was to signify a wish that the testimonial sent by the children of Canada should be handed over to the royal patriotic commis-sioners for the benefit of the widows and orphans of soldiers killed in South Africa. This desire was communicated to the commissioners in a letter from the colonial office, dated the day of her majesty's death. The testimonial of the children of Canada consisted of the sum of $16,995, which Mr. Chamberlain forwarded to the royal patriotic commissioners the day Queen Victoria died.

LORD ROBERTS AT OSBORNE. New York, Jan. 26 .- Lord Roberts has paid his third visit to Osborne since his return from South Africa, says the Tribune London correspondent. The true story of his first reception has come out. He was terribly shocked by the change in the Queen's appearance, and the signs of feebleness and left the audience-room with tears rolling down his face. One of the Queen's last projects was the appointment of the Duke of Connaught as adjutant-general. It will probably carried out at an early day, as the King will need his brother's advice on military matters. It is expected that a patent will be issued at the time of the coronation for the creation of the title of Prince of Wales for George the Duke of Cornwall and York.

One of the most interesting illustrations of the Queen's thoughtfulness has come to light in connection with the Thursday's ceremonial, says the Tribune's London correspondent. When Which Boers Derailed With Sir William Vernon Harcourt was home secretary years ago, she sent a sealed package to him with instructions that it should not be opened until after her death. Sir William Vern non Harcourt's son went to the home Not Much Damage Done-Modern office recently, and after considerable delay the package was found and sent to the King. THE KING'S MESSAGE TO PARLIAMENT

Shanghai, Jan. 26.—Difficulty has arisen between the Russians and English over an expedition of the British gunboat Ployer to the Elliott and Blonde Islands, to suppress the pirates there. The Plover routed the outlaws and destroyed their junks. Subsequently Admiral Alexieff, Russian commander, wrote to Admiral Seymour, declaring that the islands belonged to Russia, and that the British action was unwarrantable. Admiral Seymour replied that he was not aware that Russia claimed the islands.

Admiral Seymour referred the matter to the British Government. His view is that the claim to the islands, which are 90 miles from Port Arthur ought not to be allowed, as it will naturally be followed by a claim on the Miaotao group across the Gulf Pechili, the possession of which would give Russia control of the gulf. PRINCE CHING'S FAIR PROMISES

He Says the Chinese Government Has No Desire to Place Restrictions on Missionaries or Their Work.

Pekin, Jan. 24.-The foreign ministers have sent a note to the Chinese pleni-potentiaries on the lines previously stated. Upon receipt of the dispatch announcing the death of Queen Victoria, the meeting of ministers then in session immediately adjourned.

Prince Ching yesterday assured a committee of missionaries that there was no intention or desire on the part of the Chinese Government to place restrictions upon the missionaries, and the government itself never had in the past any objections to the missionaries or their methods. The missionaries are greatly pleased with Prince Ching's frankly expressed

Berlin, Jan. 25.-The German foreign office confirms the reports that 25,000 Chinese troops have appeared near the French sphere, but it is asserted that thus far they have shown no signs of hostility. Count Von Waldersee, in a dispatch to the war office from Pekin, dated Jan. 21, says: "There are many bands of robbers in the Province of Chi Li. The British lost two men while en-gaging the robbers near Shan Hai Kwan." He alludes to three German columns moving through the Province.

The call made by the German min-ister to China, Dr. Mumm Von Schwartzenstein, upon Prince Chun is explained to have been a mere act of courtesy and without special significance

Foreign office officials declare that the New York dispatch saying that Germany was getting the Russians to Surrender the Shan Hai Kwan Rail-road in order to keep it for Germany is absolutely untrue, as the Germans ere receiving the line, according to egreement, to turn it over to the British, and will turn it over as early Question Discussed in the United States House of Representatives-Abrogation of the 1817 Treaty Suggested.

ON THE LAKES!

Washington, Jan. 25.—At the opening of the session of the house yesterday, consideration of the naval appropriation bill was resumed in committee of the whole. Speaking to a pro forma amendment, Mr. W. A. Smith (Michigan) brought up the question of the abrogation of the treaty of 1817, prohibiting the maintenance of war vessels upon the maintenance of war vessels upon the great lakes. Mr. Smith said the treaty was an inhibition upon the shipbuilding and commercial interests of the lakes, against which he protested. The treaty originally had been made in the interests of peace, and was very properly negotiated. The reasons which then exnegotiated. The reasons which then existed had passed away. He desired to see the shipyards of the great lakes participate in the building of warships. Mr. Mann (Illinois) opposed the abrogation of the treaty. If we built warships on the lakes, England must have a similar privilege. She could build great ships there which would threaten the cities on the American side and the whole commerce of the lakes. The treaty, he urged, was absolutely essential to the safety of cities of the lakes in case of war with Great Britain.

Mr. Boutelle (Illinois) was in favor of a modification of the treaty in the ina modification of the treaty in the in-terest of the naval reserve, so as to per-mit the maintenance of one small armed vessel on the upper lakes and one on the lower. The treaty also should be modified, he urged, so as to permit both parties to the compact to build warships of any class, to be taken unarmed to tidewater.

Mr. Foss said the question of a modification of the treaty of 1817 was dis-cussed by the government commission a few years ago. It was a matter for the state department, not the naval com-state department, not the naval committee, to consider.

The provision for the increase of the navy was made the occasion of an interesting debate upon the length to which the building up of the navy was to go, and drew from Mr. Cannon, chairman of the appropriations committee, a statement to the effect that when the ships now authorized, and to be authorized, were completed, $320,000,000 would have to be spent upon the new navy, and that in his opinion the time to stop will then have arrived. An amendment offered by Mr. Bixey (Va.), a Democratic member of the naval committee, to strike out the provision in the bill for two battleships and two cruisers, was defeated, 46 to 90.

BUFFALO BLAZE. Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 25.-The building at Ellicott and Carroll streets, owned by A. Judson Wells, and occupied by the Chase Medical Company and other firms, was burned this morning. Loss $50,000, covered by insurance.

WANTS WAR STOPPED. Washington, Jan. 26.—In the senate yesterday Mr. Towne (Minn.) offered the following joint resolution: "That justice, the public welfare and the national honor demand the immediate cessation of hostilities in the Philippine Islands, under terms recognizing the independence of the Philippine people, and conserving and guaranteeing the interests of the United States." Mr. Towne asked that the resolution lie on the table, and gave notice that on Monday next he would address the senate upon it.

IN CANADA IMPROVING

Good Movement in Wholesale and Retail Trade.

The Outlook Across the Border-Jobbing Lively—Failures Fewer.

New York, Jan. 25.-Bradstreet's weekly review of Canadian trade

Business conditions at Montreal have been steadily improving this week, and in most departments of trade a large volume of business is reported. The mills and other manufacturers are busy, and appear to have all the orders they can take care of at present. Business conditions have to some extent been dis-turbed by the great fire that took place in the middle of the week, and retailers may have to exercise a little patience in regard to getting orders filled, but no serious consequences are likely to result. The insurance will be large, and any inconvenience caused by the fire will, in most cases, be merely temporary. There is a good demand for funds and rates are

There has been a fair movement in the wholesale trade at Toronto this week. Travelers are reporting a very fair amount of orders for the coming season, and are keeping the volume of trade booked, so far, well up to what it was last year at this date. The wholesale firms look for a large movement in staple goods the com-

The weather at London has not been altogether favorable to business, but wholesalers are doing a nice trade for future delivery. General deliveries are rather light. The conditions of the retail trade at London and in the immediate vicinity are encouraging. Payments are fairly good. Business at Ottawa has been moderately active this week. There is a good deal of labor going on, and good wages are being paid—conditions which are favorable to retail business. The outlook for wholesale trade is very fair.

Business at Hamilton has shown an improving tendency this week.

Wholesale trade at Winnipeg has been somewhat on the quiet side the past two or three weeks, but this week has shown a marked tendency toward improvement.

Trade at the large coast centers is showing revival after the temporary derangement caused to some departments by the great snowfall and blockade, and the future is by no means discouraging to business men. IN THE UNITED STATES.

New York, Jan. 26.—Dun's weekly review says:

This week seems to have marked the climax of enormous dealings at figures which have become familiar, The jobbing trade in the interior is good and collections continue excel-

Bank clearings at New York gained 52.1 per cent over 1900, and 1.3 per cent over 1899 for the week, while at leading cities outside York there is a gain of 9.9 per cent over 1900 and 3.4 per cent over 1899. Railroad earnings thus far reported for January show a gain of 11.4 per cent over last year and 24.6 per cent

After a week of quiet conditions the iron and steel industry has taken another long stride forward. feature was enormous buying of pig iron at an advance of $13 25 at Pittsburg. Further improvement is seen in footwear, and manufacturers are receiving ample orders. Leather has been irregular in demand, although prices are steady. Hides at Chicago fluctuated widely, with more grades sold at concessions than advanced. It is difficult to find encouraging features in the wool situation. Sales for the week at the three chief eastern centers were a million pounds smaller than the preceding week, and in four weeks the aggregate is only 13,-275,700 pounds, against 21,504,700 last

Despite the advance in prices over those prevailing a year ago, exports of wheat, including flour, from Atlantic ports for the week were 2,568,818 bushels, against 1,644,149 last year; and of corn. 3.472.614 bushels, against 8.097.450 in 1900. Western receipts of corn were heavy, amounting to 4,315,450 bushels against 2,911,035 last year, but there is complaint of poor quality. Cotton maintained the advance above 10 cents.

Final returns of British exports of yarn in 1900 proved to be 30 per cent smaller than in 1899, while of cloth the reduction amounted to 400,000,000 yards. Foreign trade at New York for three weeks of January was less satisfactory. Exports for the last two weeks were heavy, but compared with a liberal movement last year and for the month the loss is $3,015,755. On the other hand, imports show an increase to $3.254.832.

Liabilities of firms failing during three weeks of January were $8,426,159, of which $3,534,864 were in manufacturing and $4,057,555 in trading. Failures for the week were 306 in the United States, against 231 last year, and 46 in Canada, against 38 last year.

Despite some irregularities in ports from different sections and in-dustries, trade as a whole is of satisfactory volume for this time of year. Special activity has been noted in some branches of the iron trade. Speculation is limited in nearly all of product and in stocks, and it is probable that clearings returns at present give clearer idea of actual business than for three months past. Prices show few important changes the cereals being slightly higher, while hog products and coffee are lower, with dairy products weak. The general range of other values is, on the whole, steady, although some shading to the higher grades of wheat has occurred.

Gross railroad earnings on 61 roads for the first two weeks of January aggragate $16,800,000—a gain over the same period a year ago of 9.6 per cent. The feature of the week in iron has been the placing of large orders-200,000 tons—of Bessemer pig at the equivalent of $13 25, at Pittsburg. Among the other metals copper is weak and fractionally lower, in sympathy with prices abroad, but tin is on news of excited markets wheat, including flour, shipments for the week aggregate 4,838,678 bushels, against 3,336,054 bushels last week, 3,581,197 bushels in the corresponding week of 1900, 4,997,522 bushels in 1899, and 5,026,024 bushels in 1898. Corn exports for the week aggregate 3,972,152 bushels, against 5,184,550 last week, 3,-526,834 in this week a year ago, 3,695,-733 in 1899 and 4,962,539 in 1898. Business failures for the week number 281, against 290 last week, 252 in the depothis week a year ago, 246 in 1892 438 balance.

CANADIAN MILITIA

Several Highly Important Changes in Official Staff Are Looked For.

Oitawa, Jan. 25.—Rumors are abroad of impending changes in connection with important militia commands. One of these connects Lieut.-Col. Foster's name with the vacant commandantship of the Kingston military college. Col. Foster's friends say that he has strong qualifications for the office, and is possessed of all the technical knowledge which is held to be necessary. They also say his selection would be satisfactory to the war office. The officer in question now discharges the duties of quartermastergeneral, which office carries with it a salary of $3,200 a year, and if he were transferred to Kingston it is likely he would be succeeded by Col. Otter. The latter is now D. O. C. and inspector of infantry at Toronto. In the event of Col. Otter being promoted to Ottawa, it is said that either Lieut.-Col. Pelletier, D.O.C. at Quebec, or Lieut.-Col. Lessard, commanding the Royal Canadian Dragoons, would become D. O. C. at Toronto. The odds would be in favor of the latter officer's promotion, especially after his brilliant services in South Africa. Lieut.-Col. Buchan, commanding the Royal Canadian Regiment in the Queen City, is mentioned as likely to combine the inspectorship of infantry, now held by Col. Otter, with his present duties. The department of militia will give out no official information in the matter; therefore it is not possible at present to verify the reports in circulation. Definite announcements may, however, be expected in a day or two.

[From the Mail and Empire.] Consecon, Jan. 20.-For some time this village and neighborhood has been this village and neighborhood has been ringing with the story of David Rowe. Mr. Rowe is a farmer, who has lived on a farm three miles from here all his lifetime, and is known to every man, woman and child for miles around. Some time ago his friends noticed a great change in his physical appearance, and no little comment was appearance, and no little comment was made as to the rapidity with which he was failing in health, from a strong, vigorous man he had become a bent and crippled invalid. Recently, how-ever, he has appeared to his friends sturdy and straight, strong and well, and with all his old-time vigor and health. Knowing that such a case would be of great public interest, your correspondent visited Mr. Rowe to get the facts. Mr. Rowe is a modest man of few words, frank, straightforward and truthful. After having introduced myself, he said:

"You need not apologize for visiting me, to inquire into this matter. I do not consider it an intrusion at all. I have little to say beyond the fact that as everybody round here knows, I was bent nearly double with kidney trou-ble, pains in my shoulders, spine and small of my back. The suffering I endured was something fearful. I could not stand up straight to save my life. I could do no work. I consulted my physician and took his prescribed medicines, but got no better. I read in the newspapers how Dodd's Kidney Pills were curing people of Kidney Disease, Lame Back and Rheumatism. bought a box from Mrs. German, who keeps the grocery here. Before it was all used I began to recover, and after I had used ten boxes I was entirely cured, and now, as you see, I am in perfect good health. This is my story. You can print it if you like, as I have nothing to hide, and it may satisfy a good many people who knew of my previous condition to know how I was

"Have you any objections to signing a written statement?" inquired the reporter. "None whatever," answered Mr. Rowe, "just you go ahead and write down what I say." At Mr. Rowe's dictation I prepared the following statement, which he cheerfully signed:

"I had yery severe pain in my back, more or less, for upwards of two years. It commenced in my shoulders, and extended down my spine, finally concentrating its full force in what is commonly called the small of my back, or across my kidneys, and there the pain was almost unendurable. It made me go bent over. I could not straighten up to save my life. When I went to urinate it gave me great pain, and you can just imagine a man, suffering as I did, was not able to do much. I consulted a physician, and he preing as I did, was not able to do much. I consulted a physician, and he prescribed for me, but to no benefit. I noticed in the papers how that Dodd's Kidney Pills were curing many cases of Kidney Disease and Rheumatism, and I determined to give them a trial. I purchased a box off Mrs. German, who kept groceries and patent medicines here. I did not feel any benefit at first, but before I had finished the first box I began to feel a change for the better. I to feel a change for the better. I took in all ten boxes, and they have entirely cured me. I have no pains in my back or across my kidneys, and I am a well man today through taking Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Those who may read this article, and do not know Mr. Rowe, cannot fully appreciate the position he holds in this community. He is an able farmer, well and favorably known, and as an evidence of his character for truthfulness and honesty I append the statement of Mr. J. J. Ward, the local justice of the peace:

This is to certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. David Rowe, and know him to be a man Rowe, and know him to be a man of truth, a man of sterling honesty and integrity, whose word could always be relied on, and a gentleman well and favorably known in Consecon and vicinity, and, in fact, all through the county, and any statement he might give you I have no hesitation in saying that you need not be afraid to use, as a gentleman of Mr. Rowe's standing giving a written statement would be sure to carry weight with it.

The King's Birthday.

To the young of the community, especially, the death of the Queen brings a most unwelcome change. It changes the birthday of the sovereign from May 24 to Nov. 9, King Edward VII. being born on the latter date, in the year 1841. Both in Great Britain and in Canada-but especially in this country-the 24th of May has been the most welcome holiday of all. It ushered in the summer season, and was always celebrated with much zest. A sovereign's birthday in November will not be easy to become reconciled to in Canada, though we often have most delightful weather at that season of the year. It is generally recognized that Thanksgiving Day is enough for the month. But now we are to have the King's birthday. In Australia and New Zealand, a 9th of November holiday will be most acceptable, as it is then delightful spring or early summer in the greater part of these portions of His Majesty's dominions.

The many happy memories associatod with the 24th of May will, no doubt, cause a strong public sentiment in favor of continuing to observe that day as Empire Day, and in memory of Victoria the Good.

Lord Rosebery as a Political Wit.

In the recent short session of the British Parliament two subjects gave rise to much interest and were discussed with keen feeling, the fact that Lord Salisbury had bestowed so many important offices on members of his own family, and the charge against Mr. Chamberlain of being connected with companies that had trade relations with the Government. Many strong things were said on these subjects and some things both wise and witty. For instance, Mr. Bowles, defending a friend who had been referred to as a disappointed candidate for office, replied: "Perhaps my honorable friend is a disappointed candi-At any rate he was a Tory when right honorable gentlemen now sitting on the treasury bench were Radicals and Socialists." This, we are told, was a swinging left-hander for Mr. Chamberlain and his faithful follower, Mr. Jesse Collings, and an acid smile flitted across the face of the former. Mr. Henry Norman, who is a pretty good judge of literary style and political sense, credits Lord Rosebery with saying the best thing on both of these burning questions. We trust that Lord Rosebery will soon be doing as well as saying, but for the benefit of our readers, in the meantime, we reproduce the two striking statements of the ex-Premier. As to the number of Lord Salisbury's family appointed to important offices, a thing that has given offense to staunch Conservatives, the noble lord maid:

"We are enabled to congratulate the noble Marquis on being the head of a family with the most remarkable genius for administration that has ever been known. I remember, it was said in the history of the Jews that it was the practice of that nation to confine the priesthood to a single famfly; and I am not all sure that this great backward stride towards the traditional methods of that ancient civilization is altogether welcomed by some of the aspirants to office in Her Majesty's present Administration. But ple. there is solace for every consideration. We have often felt in the festive season which is rapidly approaching, that some danger may come to the country from the fact that some Ministers may be so much scattered that there would be no center of administrative power in which we could feel that our interests are safe. But when the festive circle assembles around the noble Marquis at Christmas, we shall feel, not indeed that the whole Cabinet is there-because I do not believe that the palatial accommodation of Hatfield could receive the whole Government at one time-but that there is an ample section of it. the inner section, assembled round the noble Marquis' family table and that our interests and our future are safe." On the other important question

Lord Rosebery said: "I venture to say that, though these instances are innocent and for the moment free from objection, with regard to the individuals to whom I have referred, yet they are of the very greatest danger to the political life of our country. What is it that we are most proud of? It is not the things in which we are equaled by other nations-interpidity, valor and abilitybut that in which we have boasted by tradition we are superior to other countries. It is the unattackable purity of our public men. I do not doubt that they are as pure now as ever they were; but the wife of Caesar must be above suspicion. There must be no possibility that, at a time when the enemies of the Government urge that the war has been undertaken in the interests of capitalistsbarge in my opinion as ridiculous kind that there should be any oppor- sionaries' families. tunity for these slanderers in the you expect from a Government which is connected in any way with companies or firms on the stock exchange?'

Spencer thinks that "a tactical and ethical mistake was made on the Liberal side when this subject was permitted to take on the aspect of a personal attack, and the vital national issue thus alllowed to be obscured in the pyrotechnic success of a private defense."

The Queen and the Poet.

The Poet Laureate Tennyson wrote a letter to our late Queen, in the Jubilee year, which casts an interesting side light on the woman Victoria. She sent Tennyson a letter of condolence on the death of his son Lionel, to which he replied as follows: "Madame,-I am grateful for Your Majesty's most kind letter. . . I do indeed feel how the sense of loneliness may oppress Your Majesty in the midst of these loud rejoicings. 'Ihr Beifall selbst macht mein Herze bange.' as Goethe says in his preface to 'Faust.' The multitude are loud, but they are silent. Yet, if indeed, as I have often felt, though silent, be more living than the living—and linger about the planet in which their earth life was passed-then they, while we are lamenting that they are not at our side, may still be with us, and the husband, the daughter and the son, lost my Your Majesty, may rejoice when the people shout 'the name of their Queen.' TENNYSON."

It is recorded that the Queen sent for the poet, and told him that she thoroughly coincided with his beautiful sentiments regarding the sainted

A Timely Retort.

At Weston, Hon. F. R. Latchford, Commissioner of Public Works, exposed some of Mr. Whitney's inconsistencies, which, let it be understood, arise from the difficulty of his position as an Opposition leader, with no positive programme of his own, but bound to attempt to get local support by special appeals on sectional grounds. Mr.

Whitney spoke at Weston a short time since, and Mr. Latchford pointed out that one of his planks was that all public franchises should go to the highest bidder. This was in striking contrast to the position of the Opposition leader, a week or two previously, when he addressed the electors of Niagara Falls. There a large number of votes in a bye-election were believed by Mr. Whitney to be trembling in the balance, and he declared that the mighty power of the Niagara River should be given free to everybody, which was on par with the action of his political friends at Ottawa, who gave at $5 per square mile all the timber limits in the disputed territory to their party followers. Within the past six months the Ontario Government have received $25,000 per mile for some of these timber lands. But if Mr. Whitney and his friends had their way, these timber limits would not only have been given away for a mere song to Conservative manipulators, but the territory itself would have been filched from this Province, and the wealth, power and prestige of Ontario would have been vastly curtailed, to the detriment of every

The people of Ontario do not forget that Hon, Mr. Ross and his colleagues always resisted the attempt to despoil the people, and can be trusted to continue to look after their interests.

Twentieth Century Mission Ideals.

Edmund F. Merriam, in the Review of Reviews for January, discusses the topic, "Foreign Missions in the Twentieth Century," in connection with the valuable lessons that have been learned by the century recently closed. Chief among the lessons established by the experience of the past century are:

1. The evangelization of every nation must be done chiefly by its own peo-

2. The necessity of self-support and self-reliance in the native churches has been acknowledged in the closing years of the nineteenth century.

As a result of these lessons from missionary experience, certain modifications of missionary methods may be expected in the century now entered

1. More responsibility will be thrown upon native Christians and native churches in missionary lands

2. Christian missions will increasingly take the form of sympathy and aid to the native churches in foreign lands. 3. Missionaries will be more and more selected for educational and administrative, rather than for preaching, abil-

4. There will be a proportionate decrease in the number of missionaries sent out from Christian lands in comparison with the amount of work carried on.

5. Evangelistic tours in pagan lands by preachers and lecturers from Christian countries will increase in number and frequency.

6. When Christian work in what are now non-Christian lands has become personally and completely conformed to twentieth century methods, based upon the best experience of the nineteenth century, the permanent residence of foreign missionaries in any country will

Mr. Merriam draws three conclusions from these points on twentieth century missionary methods:

It is not advisable, of course, that there should be sudden and radical changes. But there will be a general Agreeing fully with this, Mr. concensus of agreement with the main points made by this writer, and few will cavil with his conclusion that every man appointed and assigned, every measure adopted, and every dollar expended, should aim at the final object and end of all foreign mission work of every sort and character-the establishment of an independent, self-supporting, pure and self-propagating Christian church in every nation on the face of the earth

The good and noble Victoria, Queen of Great Britain and Ireland and Empress of India, died on Tuesday at her private residence, Osborne House. Full of years and of honors as she was, the sad event has cast a gloom over the whole world, for her estimable and pure life as a queen, wife, mother and widow has endeared her to all peoples, even those who were in principle opposed to monarchies.

[New York Journal.] There may have been many greater monarchs than Victoria, but there never has been one more richly endowed with the qualities that win a people's affection. The story of her painfully climbing to the top of one of her palaces a few months ago to cheer up a sick servant, at a time when her own condition made every step she took a matter of state importance, was the sort of thing that counted more than intellectual brilliancy in winning the devotion of her subjects.

Should Not Be Forced to Drink.

[Montreal Witness.] A correspondent signing "Temptation" tells how householders in Montreal give balls with suppers lasting from midnight till four in the morning, at which no beverage is provided but wine. Dancing is thirsty exercise, and this is almost forcing young people to drink, which, in view of the consequences-the certain possible onsequences to a certain proportion of those who learn the habit-is taking a terrible responsibility. If any those men who are thus lavish with their wine and penurious with wholesome beverages were to have an application for employment from a young man the next day with the smell of wine on him we are pretty certain that the applicant would be irrevocably dismissed, though he might not be told why.

SEVERAL INJURED. Charles Housen, a small lad, had his skull smashed by a flying brick. He will like'y die. Others injured were: Demarais, fireman, severely cut on chest; Chauncey Bennett, fire-man, ankle broken; Alex. Langlois, fireman, seriously injured; ex-Mayor Thomas Reid, chief of the fire department, cut on face and hands; Russell, deep gash on head and nose and Fred Cooper, cut on the face. MORE DETAILS.

The fire was noticed shortly after 5 o'clock, and the Walkervile fire brigade was soon on hand, but owing to the very inflammable nature of contents of the storehouse the had gained considerable headway. firemen were making desperate efforts to stem the flames, when suddenly there was a terrible roar, and the whole roof was blown off, rafters, bricks and burning cinders being thrown hundreds of feet in the air. Shortly after there was

The truck was wrecked and the horses were badly cut up. The storerooms were about 200 feet back of the main building of the match factory, and were totally de-

of the campaign, and marched with the Royal Canadians, under Lord Roberts, to Pretoria. He was one of the number who guarded the Boer prisoners, and landed at St. Helena with them on the return voyage. He had just succeeded in ridding himself of a bad attack of rheumatism, contracted there, and started work again. He was a son of Rev. Mr. Phillips, Blackheath, England.

WM. M. BRINDLE. Wm. M. Brindle, the other victim, had been employed as head of the shipping department in Parke Davis & Co.'s laboratory here, and was well and favorably known. He was a son a brother of Trooper H. M. Brindle, formerly of the Northwest Mounted Police force. Mr. Brindle had just re-turned from his home a week ago, where he had been to welcome his brother home from the South African campaign. The Walkerville fire brigade is a volunteer one, and the whole population of the town were wild with anxiety over the event. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Every member of the Ontario Hockey Association was present at Thursday afternoon's meeting in Toronto. The prominence of the clubs concerned in the Stratford-London protest and the serious charges against London created the greatest interest in the business to be brought before the meeting. The case was not closed, a further opportunity being given to London to clear itself of the offences charged. ARRANGEMENTS EVOLVING. The arrangements for the funeral are gradually evolving. The remains of the Queen will be taken to Portsmouth on remain on the boat Friday night, Feb.

THE PALACES WILL BE CROWDED London, Jan. 25.-The Grand Duke of Baden has given notice of his intention of attending the funeral. Such numbers of royalties and representatives of foreign nations are com-ng to take part in the funeral ceremonies that the royal palaces will be quite inadequate to accommodate them and various hotels and great residences in London are being secured.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S WILL. New York, Jan. 25.—Queen Victoria's will has been opened, and examined by the duly constituted authorities, says World dispatch from Cowes. Nothing ever will be made public efficially as to the provisions of the instrument, or the amount of her private fortune. follow exactly her majesty's directions in regard to her funeral. It is known that the Queen made a will early in her reign, which was repeatedly altered and added to as on ldren and grandchil vanced in value. This proceeded until There was one to 1896, when her majesty decided to have an entirely new document drawn, and with great personal care this was accomplished.

Those in a position to make any sort of a guess declare that the Princess Beatrice, widow of Prince Henry of Bat-tenberg, will be the principal beneficlary. She is the governor of the Isle of Wight, and will probably inherit Osborne House and the whole estate surrounding it.

Then the Duke of Connaught and his sons, who have been great favorites with Victoria, will receive a large portion of the fortune. The duke will probably become the owner of Baimoral and the Scottish property.

The grandchildren who are expected to receive the largest lequests are the two children of Victoria's youngest son, the former Duke of Albany.

The Queen's second daughter, Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, is not rich, and it is expected that she and her four children will be liberally provided for.

Edward VII., who will be amply provided for by the country, and the Duke of York, who comes into the duchy of Cornwall, will probably not be sharers in the late Queen's private fortune.

The Queen's life was never insured in American fashion for the benefit of her children. It was, however, insured by hundreds, probably thou-sands, of persons in no way connected with her, but whose business would suffer by her death. It is possible to insure against any imaginable contingency in England if sufficient premium is paid. The current rate on the Queen's life a month ago was 11 per cent for one year. Most of the theatrical and other amusement managers and the proprietors of fashionable ops were accustomed to insure the Queen's life at the outset of the sean in order that they might recoup the heavy loss her death would en-

For Housekeepers. The market today was of large proportions, and was attended by many purchasers. Retail grocers were buying freely, even more in proportion than the general public. In comparison with last Saturday's market, that of today was quite a busy one. The supplies of all staples were in excess of the demand. For the most part prices were firm.

The offerings of butter and eggs were dequate for all requirements. The readequate for all requirements. The re-markably slight fluctuations in prices were hardly worthy of quotation, as they were unlikely to last longer than the day. The demand was fair. The trade in vegetables, of which few were offerings, in meats and poultry, was tather slow, with prices as quoted. PROVISIONS.

NARROW ESCAPE

Of a Tramp Who Was Trying to Steal a Ride on a C. P. R. Train-Nearly Cost Him His Life.

An unknown tramp had a narrow escape from a horrible death at the Colborne street crossing of the C. P. R. this morning. The 9:10 accommodation for the east, was pulling out, and the tramp, who was a young man of the typical type of hobo, was waiting for it with the intention of boarding the blind baggage, and obtaining a free ride out of the city. The tramp saw the train coming on the north track and he accordingly stood on the south track, with his back to the approaching train, and braced for a spring to catch it as it passed. Just before it reached the spot where he was standing, however, the train switched over to the south track, and was almost upon the unconscious tramp before he was aware of it. The train was within a couple of feet of the hobo before he realized his danger, and his presence of mind alone saved him. He leaped sidewise quickly, falling into the ditch beside the track. The train was stopped in its own length, but proceeded at once when it was found that no injury had been done the man. The tramp stayed in the vicinity only long enough to explain to the bystanders how it happened, and then went south on Col-borne street, evidently to try his luck on a G. T. R. train.

Coroner's Jury Finds Death of Mrs. Ivey Purely Accidental.

Dr. Wilson's Criticism of Druggists-Says Counter Prescriptions Cause Many Deaths.

The coroner's jury endeavored last night to clear up the mystery concerning the death of Mrs. Richard Ivey. of English and Elias streets. Their verdict was "That deceased came to her death by accidentally taking a dose of carbolic acid, and that we strongly recommend the authorities to urge upon druggists the necessity of properly labeling bottles containing poison."

The jurymen concluded that there was nothing whatever to show that the domestic relations of the deceased were other than happy, and no one had heard her express any desire to end her life. On the contrary, deceased was said to have been of a cheerful disposition. She suffered greatly from ill-health, the post-mortem showing the body to have been greatly emaciated. Her eyesight was so dim, she could not see to sew.

Dr. John D. Wilson, who was one of the witnesses, severely criticised the druggists for prescribing medicine over the counter. Often people enter drug stores, and, feeling unwell, ask the druggist for something to cure a cold or other complaint when perhaps the person is suffering from some en-tirely different malady. Many deaths, the doctor believed had resulted from this custom. Other witneses were Richard Ivey, huband of deceased, his sister Mary Ivey and his two children; Dr. English, Druggists P. B. Wallace and H. J. Childs, Undertaker Clark and a neighbor, Mrs. Stone. The evi-dence showed that deceased had been taking a mixture of rum and quinine for a day or two previous to her death. Not more than an hour had elapsed after taking her medicine when she went to the pantry, where medicines were kept, and returning with a bot-tle of carbolic acid, took the dose which resulted in death. Against this suspicious circumstance was the fact of deceased's impaired eyesight, and that the bottles were not dissimilar. The bottle of "quinine and rum" bore the label of "C. McCallum & Co." It contained sixty grains of quinine, with five grains to a dose. Mr. Wallace said he had prepared the remedy, but did not sell it. The carbolic acid bottle bore the required warning label as to its poisonous character. This label had been pasted over another label, a portion of which remained exposed beneath the carbolic acid label, and bore the words "In a little water three times a day after meals." The acid had been purchased last summer for household use and at this time Mr. Childs had an apprentice assisting him. Mr. Childs stated that he certainly had not put the label on the bottle produced.

HONORS FOR COL. OTTER

He Is To Get the Post of Quartermaster-General-Lieut.-Col. Peters Likely to Come to London.

[Special to The Advertiser per C.P.R.] Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 25.—Col. Otter will be the next quartermaster-general, and once position is given to a Canadian it will likely remain that way. The manner this will be brought about is to appoint Col. Foster, the present quartermaster-general, to the command of Kingston Military College. It is understood that this will be done, although it is too early to say anything officially about it.

Col. Otter's place in Toronto will be filled by Lieut.-Col. Evans, who was in command of the mounted infantry. This also would open up a place for Major Williams, who would be placed in command of the Royal Dragoons, at Winnipeg, instead of Lieut.-Col. Evans. In regard to the changes in the D. O. C.'s, it is still talk, and matters are about the same as outlined in this correspondence already—that is, that Lieut.-Col. Peters will go to London and Lieut.-Col. Holmes go to British Columbia. There is also a rumor that Lieut.-Col. Lessard will go

On Sunday, the 20th inst., Sarnia lost one of its most respected citizens, when one of its most respected citizens, when Mr. Walter S. Davidson, O. L. S., passed away at 11 a.m., after six weeks' illness with enteric fever. He was in his 40th year. The funeral took place from the family residence, Victoria street, on Tuesday, Jan. 22, at 12 o'clock, to the tunnel station, thence to Arkona for interment. Service was held at the house at 11:30 a.m., conducted by Rev. H. C. Speller, who accompanied the remains to Arkona, where they were met by Rev. J. A. Baldwin, who conducted the service in the church. Many floral tokens were laid on the casket. The pall-bearers were Robert Crawford, Jas. George, H. Rook, Wm. Baldwin, Alex. Inornan and Wm. McKay, all of Arkona. Among the friends from a distance were Charles Hastings, St. Louis, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Moses Moore, of Avoca, Mich.; N. C. Eastman, Arkona; L. Cameron, Fort Gratiot, Mich., and Lorne Hunter, Brussels.

Mr. Davidson had charge of government exploration party, No. 5, who were exploring in New Ontario, arriving home about Oct. 25 last. He was well and favorably known, and his early demise is much regretted. He leaves a young widow and two children—a boy, aged 7, and 2 girl, aged 6. AT FIRST GLANCE.

Is Would Appear That Local Remedies
Would Ee the Best for Cure of Catarrh.

It would seem at first glance that catarrh being a disease of the mucous membrane; that salves, sprays, etc., being applied directly to the mem-branes of the nose and throat, would be the most rational treatment, but this has been proven not to be true. The mucous membrane is made and repaired from the blood, and catarrh is a blood disease, and any remedy to make a permanent cure must act on the blood, and when the blood is purified from catarrhal poison, the secretions from the mucous membrane will become neutral and healthy.

In this climate, thousands of people seem scarcely ever free from some form of catarrh; it gets better at times, but each winter becomes gradually deeper seated, and after a time the sufferer resigns himself to it as a necessary evil.

Catarrh cures are almost as numerous as catarrh sufferers, but are nearly all so inconvenient and ineffective as to render their use a nuisance nearly as annoying as catarrh itself; anyone who has used douches, sprays and powders will bear witness to their in-convenience and failure to really cure. There are a number of excellent internal remedies for catarrh, but probably the best and certainly the safest is a new remedy, composed of Euca-lyptol, Hydrastis, Sangularia and other valuable catarrh specifics.

This remedy is in tablet form, pleasant to the taste, and sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and anyone suffering from catarrh may use these tablets with absolute assurance that they contain no cocaine, opiate nor any poison-cus mineral whatever.

A leading druggist in Albany, speaking of catarrh cures, says: "I have sold various catarrh cures for years, but have never sold any which gave such general satisfaction as Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. They contain in a pleasant, concentrated form all the best and latest catarrh remedies, and catarrh sufferers who have used dauches, sprays and salves, have been astonished at the quick relief and permanent results obtained after a week's use of Stuart's Catarrh Tab'ets." LONDON JUNIORS LOST.

The Stratford Juniors defeated the London junior team at the Jubilee rink last night in one of the hardest-fought games of the season. The local seven put up a fast game, but their passing and shooting was never in it with that of the visitors. The score was 4 to 1, with London hugging the small end. The game was replete with plenty of hard body checking, tripping and slashing, in which both teams seemed decidedly proficient. Stratford's defense was like a stone wall, and while London rained shot after shot on goal, in the first half, they failed to tally. Young Bishop, London's new goalkeeper, proved himself a wonder between the posts, and will likely be in faster company next season. The local boys did too much individual play, which lost them many a nice chance for a count. Stratford had a strong aggregation, including Schweitzer, who played two games with the intermediate team, but London is not likely to protest. The game was started at about 8:15, with the teams lined up as fol-

The game started with a rush on London's goal, which was nicely blocked, and the puck was worked up to Stratford's end, where it stayed for ten minutes. Stratford's forwards got clear away, and came down the ice with a rush, and scooped the puck past Bishop for the first score. After the face-off, L magain pressed, but the Stratford ese was strong. TRYING TIMES

In a Woman's Life.

There are three periods in a woman's life when she is especially in need of the heart strengthening, nerve toning, blood enriching action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

The first of these is when the young girl is entering the portals of womanhood. Very often at this time she is pale, weak and nervous, and unless her health is built up and her system strengthened she may fall a prey to consumption, or be a weak woman for life.

The next period a woman needs Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills is motherhood. The drain on the system is great and the exhausted nerve force and depleted blood, require replenishing. These pills supply the system with the very elements needed to make rich red blood and create new nerve tissue.

The Change of Life is the third period in a woman's life when she is most liable to heart and nerve troubles. Often there is nervousness, hysteria and melancholis; palpitation, dizziness, feeling of "pins and needles," hot flushes and general weakness. Every woman approaching this eventful period should fortify her system by the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and thus safely tide over an epoch in her life fraught with so much danger OOOOOOOOOOOOOOOO to her health.

Saengerfest directors tonight gave out a statement, which announced that the sparring contest for the benefit of the Saengerfest deficit will be held on schedule date, Feb. 15, 1901, and that since Mayor Fleischmann has issued the per-mit all doubts as to the contest are removed from the success of the under-

THINKS FITZ WILL FIGHT WIN-NER.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—"I think there is a strong chance of Bob Fitzsimmons accepting the offer I am going to make him to fight the winner of the match between Jeffries and Ruhlin," said Dan Stuart, the fistic promoter, yesterday, at the Auditorium Hotel. "You see, if my present plans are carried out I will be able to offer Fitzsimmons something pretty good in the way of a purse, and that, I think, will fetch him. It is true that he has promised his wife for the sake of their children that he will not fight any more, and from what I hear and from what he tells me, I guess he does not have to unless he wants to. But I am figuring partly on Fitz's natural love of a mill, as well as a well-developed mercenary trait in his na-ture. I think the Cincinnati fight will be a go. If Jeffries whips Ruhlin in Cincinnati, he is also sure to fight in Carson City against Fitzsimmons." Stuart is on his way from New York to Hot Springs, Ark.

AMERICANS WON. St. Paul, Jan. 25 .- For the first time in five years the great international curling trophy, the Walkerville tank-ard, was won by American rinks yes-terday at the annual bonspiel of the Northwestern Curling Association, the Canadians being beaten by a total score of 116 to 93. The eight American rinks coming from the cities of Chicago, Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Sault Ste. Marie, will now contest among themselves for the possession of the trophy, to be held by the winning rink until the next an-nual "spiel."

The rink skipped by "Bob" Dun-bar, of St. Paul, has made a maryelous record, not having been beaten during the entire week's play, and being well up in the contest for each of the trophies.

AQUATIC.

Philadelphia, Jan. 25.-The Press says that the board of stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association of America has extended an invitation to the winner of the Oxford-Cambridge boat race to participate in the intercollegiate rowing contest between Wisconsin, Columbia, Cornell, and Pennsylvania on the Hudson River at Pough-keepsle on July 3. The stewards agree to pay all the expenses of the visitors.

THE DEFENDER. Boston, Mass., Jan. 25.—The Herald today makes public the dimensions of the Lawson cup defender. Her extreme beam is 24 feet (2% inches narrower than the Columbia), and her draught is just the same as the Columbia, 20 feet. Her load water line is 30 feet. Originally she was over 142 feet over all length, but this has been cut down in the after overhang. Across the stern, where she originally measured nine feet, she has been made a foot wider.

THE EDWARDS

Who Have Reigned at Different Periods From the Crusades Down to Present Time.

Albert Edward is the seventh in the line of Edwards of England. Following is a glance at his predecessors in the line of Edwards:

Edward I., surnamed "Longshanks," was born at Westminster in 1239. He was engaged in the seventh crusade, and was returning from the Holy Land, when he heard of his accession to the throne. He banished the Jews from England and defeated the Scots under Wallace in 1298.

Edward II. was the fourth son of Edward I., and the first Prince of Wales. In consequence of his incompetence, the government was intrusted by the barons to twenty-one ordainers. He was imprisoned in Berkeley Castle and murdered at the instance of his queen, Isabella.

Edward III. was the son of Edward II. and Isabella of France. He imprisoned the queen-mother and seized the reins of government. He involved England in the one hundred years' war with France. His reign was signalized by several visits of the "Black Death.

Edward IV. was the son of Richard, Duke of York, and Cecily Neville, daughter of the Earl of Westmoreland. He played a prominent part in the struggle between the houses of York Lancaster for the throne.

Edward V. was born in Westminster Abbey on Nov. 2, 1470. He was King of England from April to June, 1483, but was imprisoned in the Tower of London by his uncle, Richard, Duke of Gloucester, by whom he and his brother were secretly put to death. Edward VI. was the son of Henry VIII. by his third queen, Jane Seymour, and succeeded to the throne under the regency of his uncle, the Duke of Somerset, who was supplanted by the Duke of Northumberland. During his reign occurred the publication ing his reign occurred the publication of the Forty-second Article of Religion and the introduction of the Book of Common Prayer. He was induced by the Duke of Northumberland to assign the throne to Lady Jane Grey, to the exclusion of Elizabeth and Mary.

FEARS FOR THE LIVERPOOL. Philadelphia, Jan. 25.—Fears for the safety of the British steamship Liverpool are entertained. She sailed from this port on Aug. 23 last for Hi-ogo, Japan. A day or two ago a pre-mium of twenty guineas was paid on her insurance.

SCHOONER WRECKED Yarmouth, N. S., Jan. 25.-The schooner St. Bernard, of and from St. Pierre, for Louisburg, in ballast, was wrecked at Seal Island a week ago Wednesday, and the crew were com-pelled to remain on the island a week, when Mr. Cann's steamer called on her regular trip and brought them here. The schooner was a small one, about 50 tons, and owned in St. Pierre.

The Title Is Not Hereditary, But Is Conferred by the Sovereign.

PRINCE OF WALES

London, Jan. 21.—It has been explained that the title Prince of Wales is not hereditary, but is conferred by the sovereign. There is now no Prince of Wales. The title of the Duke of York (son of the King) is set 10 th in the order concerning the changes to be made in the Book of Common Prayer, in which he is styled the Duke of Cornwall and York, It is not supposed that the title of Prince of Wales will be be-stowed upon him until parliament has dealt with the question of the civil list, which will be one of the first matters to be decided after the reassembling of the house in February. The allowance granted Edward and Alexandra, cs prince and princess, cease with Edward's accession, and further provision will have to be made them. The Duke of Cornwall's appropriation, $180.000 a year, was made a few years ago for the Prince of Wales' children. It expires six months after the Queen's death.

I. O. F. MEETING. On Tuesday, Feb. 12, the Independent Order of Foresters are to have a meeting in the Auditorium, which will be attended by many of the most notable officers of the order, including the supreme chief ranger, Dr. Oronhyatekha, Dr. Montague, Rev. Alex. McGillivray, P.H.C.R., Dr. Cameron, H.C.R., of Ontario, and others. Recently the order has had an organizer in this city, and the increase in membership has been exceedingly large, and the project of the meeting is to bring before the notice of Londoners the wonderful increase in the order's membership throughout the world. Besides remarks pertaining to the order, the speakers will give other interesting addresses. A committee has been formed in the city to handle the affairs of the reception, and it is likely the Auditorium will be filled. It is many years since the order has had the presence of the supreme chief ranger and other officers of the order, and as London is the birthplace of the I. O. F. in Canada, without doubt many of the old members will be glad to again extend a hand of welcome to Dr. Oronhyatekha,

TWO MISHAPS.

A Hensall correspondent, writing to the Exeter Times, says: On Thursday forenoon, when the Rev. J. S. Henderson, of Carmel Church, was on his way to Toronto, he had the misfortune when alighting from the train at London to slip on the edge of the stool that is placed under the steps of the car in order to lessen the distance between the high steps and the middle tracks at the London station, where the platform does not ex-tend, and in thus missing his footing, with a valise in his hands, fell heavily on his knee, injuring it so much that medical aid had to be obtained, and the reverend gentleman was obliged to abandon all thoughts of going to Toronto, and returned home by the evening train. Arriving at the station here, he was conveyed to the manse, and medical assistance at once again obtained. His friends will regret to learn of his very serious and painful accident, which will in all probability confine him to his room for a month or two, but will be pleased to learn that no bones were broken. Miss Duffies, of Thamesville, who had been in Hen-sall on a visit, and was returning home by the same train, had also the

Miss Chapman stated to the commissioner when arraigned that her home is in London, Ont., and that she is only visiting in Detroit at present. The sealskin sacque, she stated, was given to her as a Christmas present last De-cember, and when coming here she wore it as she would any other garment, without any intent to defraud the government. The sacque was valued at $225, and the officers say that they have proof that she asked someone else in Windsor to get it across

HOSPITAL TRUST INAUGURAL

Mr. Thomas McCormick Chosen Chairman at First Meeting.

Consideration of Questions of Food Supply, Plumbing and Fire Protection - Reports and Accounts.

The hospital trust held its inaugural meeting yesterday afternoon, and Mr. Thomas McCormick, who was absent on account of his illness, was chosen chairman. The position was temporarily filled by Mr. Adam Beck, and the other members present were: T. H. Purdom, K.C., and James Gilmour,

M.P. The trust was approached by Mesdames Edge and Labatt in regard to a remedy for existing imperfections in supplying food to the patients, especially those in the private wards, which should be maintained, they said, as attractively as possible. They mentioned the necessity of cupboards for the use of patients in the long ward. The ladies also expressed their appreciation of the courtesy always extended to them by Miss Murray, lady superintendent, and Miss Scellon, matron. Their suggestions will be borne in mind by the trust, whose reply to the ladies, made by Mr. Gilmour, was that lack of funds had prohibited action. Mr. Beck intends to visit some of the hospitals in the large cities soon, and will report the result of his observa-

The trust will meet No. 1 committee next Tuesday to confer with its members about furnishing the top floor of the paying patients pavilion.

Mr. Beck spoke of the sewage diffi-culty at the hospital, saying that a four-inch soil pipe was receiving from 47 inlets, and that the city engineer had recommended a new pipe. Mr. Beck said also that in all the hospital there was not a fire extinguisher, a bit of hose or a hydrant.

Mr. Purdom said that the firemen should be instructed in the plans of all big buildings. The ald Masonie Tem-

THE RECESSITY OF A CHANGE

It is necessary for the welfare of our being in order to preserve our health, we should have an occasional change.

A change of dress is as essential as a change of climate.

KNOX CHURCH PROGRESSING!

Interesting Reports Laid Before the Members

At Their Annual Meeting-Large Contribution to the Century Fund-Sunday School Needs More Room-Presentation to a Worthy Officer-Full Financial Statement.

That the members of Knox Presbyterian Church, South London, have every reason to pride themselves upon their record for the past year, was amply evident last night on the occasion of the sixteenth annual meeting of the congregation. The pastor, Rev. J. G. Stuart, took occasion to refer to the cordial and harmonious relations, and the spirit of mutual helpfulness, which had characterized the congregation during the year. Although there had been an apparent falling off in some departments, it was not really so, for the financial position of the church was better by $1,268 than it was last year. The pastor also referred with pride to the fact that Knox Church's quota to the century fund, which now totals over $1,200,000, was more than $3,000. Their record in the past gives the people of Knox Church the right to entertain very bright hopes for the future.

The meeting opened in the usual way, with the singing of a hymn, Scripture reading and prayer by the pastor, and the reading and confirmation of the minutes of the previous annual meeting. Mr. J. S. Dewar then arose and asked to be permitted to offer the following resolution:
Moved by J. S. Dewar, seconded by

Col. Gartshore: "That the congrega-tion of Knox Church, in annual meeting assembled, deeply lament the death of her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria, the most illustrious of earthly sovereigns, distinguished alike for her wisdom and goodness. Of all queens the greatest, she was of all women the simplest. She was pre-eminently a woman in the sweetest and most womanly sense of the word, gift-ed with fine sympathies, supreme and exquisite tact, perfect self-command, flawless purity and a strong personal potency for good. Revered alike for her sympathy and her Christian life by all her subjects, she has been summoned by her Creator to exchange a crown of earth for a crown of righteousness. She is gone, but her example and her virtues will ever be a precious possession of her successors, and the nations of the world will ever call her 'Victoria the Good.' Of her it may be truly said, 'Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord; even so, saith the Spirit; for they rest from their labors and their works do follow them.

"And resolved, that this record be spread upon the minutes of this meet-ing as a tribute of respect to the greatest woman of the nineteenth centurya model wife and mother, and the queen of queens."

The resolution was adopted unanimously by a standing vote, taken in ct silence. THE SESSION'S REPORT.

The pastor then proceeded to take the pleasure of the meeting on the various reports presented for their consideration. The first was that of the session, it being in substance as fol-

The session expressed their gratitude God for the many mercles vouchsafed to the congregation. Only three of the congregation had died during the year, they being Mrs. Corliss, in February, Mrs. A. F. Kemp in June, and Mrs. R. Stephens in October. While there were many things in connection with the Sabbath services and the weekly prayer meeting of a hopeful and encouraging character, many of the members do not live up to their, privileges in the matter of attendance. The attendance at the quarterly communions had been gratifying, churches being able to show a larger percentage of the total number of members than has been present each of these occasions. The choir and organist have been faithful and zealous in the discharge of their duties, and the congregation is under very great obligations to the ladies gentlemen who have so zealously and efficiently led in the service of praise, both at the Sabbath services and the weekly prayer meeting. The contributions to the mission schemes of the church have not been what were expected, only a small proportion of mbers having given anything for this purpose. It may be that the yery liberal response to the call for subscriptions to the century fund has les-

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL. Superintendent McAlpine's report of the Sabbath school was partly as follows: There are now on the roll 130 girls and 111 boys, 3 girls have been promoted to the pastor's Bible class. so that the gain for this year has been 28 girls and 22 boys. 'The school has been held every Sabbath during the year. To avoid the excessive heat it met during July and August in the mornings, before divine service. The average attendance for the year has been 147, varying from 194 on the 23rd December to 33 on the 12th of August. Sixteen Bibles have been awarded for diligence and faithful attend-The senior classes have, beside studying the Life of Jesus as appointed with international lessons for the year, gone through the whole of the Shorter Catechism, and have learned also by heart the 19th, 67th, 84th and 103rd Psalms in prose ver-sion, while the infant classes have learned their lessons and Golden Texts and many verses in a remarkably pleasing manner. The report closed with the plea for the showing of greater interest on the part of the parents in the welfare of the Sunday

The financial statement showed disbursements of $128 81, receipts of $104 74, and a baance due the treasurer of $24 07. The mission funds showed collections of $57 10, of which $40 had been handed over to the India famine fund. In the discussion which followed, several speakers urged the need of more accommodation for the Sunday school, which is at present handicapped in its work, owing to lack of room. Mr. Dewar moved that the matter of providing increased accommodation be left with the incoming board of managers.

Secretary Clark's report of the Bible class, which was adopted without discussion, said that the past year was one of increased success and pro-fit. The average attendance was good and the work showed a general advancement. There are at present 47 names on the roll. Funds for 1900, as in the past, have been con-tributed towards the work of church extension in the southeastern part of the city. The report expressed ap-preciation of the faithful services of Miss Wildern, organist for the Bible class.

WOMEN'S WORK. The report of the Women's Association, the adoption of which was mov-ed by Mrs. J. W. Johnston, showed that the association had held seven regular, and about as many informal, meetings during the past year. The annual tea was given during January, with the usual success. On Feb. 4 and subsequent days, at call from the Red Cross Society, the ladies met and sewed for the soldiers in South Africa, and sent to the sick in the hospitals 170 yards of flannelette, made up into articles, and $9 worth of hospital food supplies. The present membership is 105. The report of the treasurer showed receipts totalling $387 17.

The report of the auxiliary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society showed a membership of 48 during the year and a present membership of 53. The thank-offering meeting was the financially in the history of the society, the offering amounting to $75.75. The financial statement $75 75. The financial statement showed receipts of $317 97 for ten months.

OTHER REPORTS. The Gleaners' Mission Band reported an active year, with a membership of 25, and an average attendance or 21 for the nine meetings held. The financial statement showed receipts of $45 50 for ten months. The Christian Endeavor Society re ported a decrease in membership to 20 active and 6 associate members. This falling off was explained by the pastor as owing to the withdrawal of the older members. The society had, howbeen reorganized, and better things were expected in the future. The treasurer's statement showed receipts of $122 64, and disbursements of $116 77.

The floral committee expended $7 25 during the year in flowers for the pulpit, which were afterwards distributed to the sick. In connection with the report, Mr. Gilbert Pritchard asked that members of the congregation should inform the committee of any cases of sickness among the members.

BOARD OF MANAGERS. The pastor then vacated the chair, and it was assumed by Mr. Thos. Alexander, chairman of the board of managers. The report of the board, which was then taken up, clause by clause, and adopted, was as follows: To the Members and Adherents of

statement, your managers have much pleasure in congratulating the congregation on the greatly improved finan-cial condition, and they desire to thank the members and adherents for the liberal spirit that has marked their givings during the past year. "The managers are pleased to note that notwithstanding the large demands made upon the congregation on account of the century fund, the current revenue is greater than last year, and has more than met the current expenditure, and that at the close of the year there was a balance of $62 69 in the hands of the treasurer. "It will be observed from the state-ments submitted to you, that the board, having due regard to the carrying on of the financial business of the church in an efficient manner, has still kept within the estimates, the expenditures not reaching the estimates by $48 48.

"A new furnace was provided for the lecture room, at a cost of $76 52, and a new water motor was added to the or gan, at a cost of $130. The congregation will no doubt agree that these were necessary improvements, and will indorse the action of the board in having made them.

"The mortgage indebtedness of the year 188 of the congregation was to raise $3,000. Amount subscribed to date, $2,956 50; amount raised by the cent-a-day fund sine June 1, 1899, $618 93; total, $3,575 43. The amount aimed at has been exceeded by $575 43. Already $1,861 63 of the amount subscribed has been paid in, and your managers expect that the balance will be forthcoming by April 1 next.

"At a former annual congregational meeting your managers were instructed to inquire into the acoustics of the church, and, if possible, to recommend some remedy for the defect. They inquired into several propositions, and after careful consideration came to the conclusion that if the pulpit was moved back directly under the arch, the acoustics would be corrected. The moving of the pulpit would necessitate the extension of the keyboard of the organ and other incidental changes, the expense of which was found to be of such magnitude that, although unanimously of the opinion that the change would effect a vast improvement, the managers are agreed that the present time is innopportune to make the change. There were twelve board meetings held during the year, attended by the respective managers as follows: Thos. Alexander attended 11; Sheriff D. M. Cameron, 4; John Ferguson, 5; Geo. A. Somerville, 6; W. S. Davidson, 11; Geo. R. Hamilton, 8; F. H. Heath, 9; Alex, McArthur, 8; John Macpherson, 7: James L. Murray, 7; Wm. Kennedy,

The last four members retire by effluxion of time, and Sheriff Cameron has severed his connection with the congregation. In closing, the managers desire to express their high appreciation of the valuable services rendered by the choir and the different organizations connected with the church, and re-turn thanks to Almighty God for the great prosperity with which he has blessed our church during the past year.

All of which is respectfully submit-WM. KENNEDY, Secretary. JOHN MACPHERSON, Treasurer.

Mr. J. S. Dewar moved the custom-ary vote of thanks to all who had as-sisted in the work of the church during the year. PRESENTATION.

The business of the meeting being concluded, Mr. Alexander announced that he had a pleasant duty to perform, and he asked Mr. John Macpherson to step forward. Mr. Alexander then read an address, expressing the debt of gratitude entertained by the congregation towards Mr. Macpherson for the manner in which he had fulfilled the arduous duties of treasurer for eight years, with no remuneration or reward, but as a labor of love. To his services had been due, in large measure, the improved condition of the church finances, and he had guarded the interests of the church with zeal and prudence. He He had won the esteem and regard of the entire congregation, and they wished him to accept as a tangible evidence of the feelings a gift which would act as a reminder that the congregation had not forgotten the good work he had done and the many sacrifices he had made.

Mr. Alexander then presented Mr. Macpherson with a handsome wood cabinet containing a valuable and beautiful set of sterling silver cutlery. Mr. Macpherson replied briefly, de-precating what he called the extravagance of the praise accorded him, but thanking the congregation for their kindness, of which he was deeply sen-

The proceedings then closed with the singing of the doxology and the pronouncing of the benediction.

THE WHITE HOUSE FLAG

Action of President McKinley Assumes an International Aspect.

New York, Jan. 25 .- A special dispatch to the Herald from Washington says: President McKinley's action in having the flag over the White House placed at half-mast on the day of the death of Queen Victoria has assumed an international aspect, if not embarrassing to the adminstration, at least distasteful to the diplomatic representatives of continental Europe. It has caused comparison between the conduct of the president on this occasion, and the course followed in the past.

The flag over the White House was not lowered on the day of the assassination of King Humbert of Italy, nor on the occasion of the death of M. Faure, President of France, of the Empress of Austria, of President Carnot of France, of Czar Alexander of Russia, and Emperor William of Germany, though administration officials emphatically declare that in lowering the flag over the White House, the president did not thereby establish a precedent.

Members of the diplomatic corps contend that failure to pay a similar mark of respect in future on the day of the death of a foreign ruler will be a significant breach of etiquette, to which offense can justly be taken. The president's direction that the flag be placed at half-mast was not cause Victoria was the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland and Empress of ven, it is authoritatively stated, be-India, but because of her greatness as a woman, and upon the many occa sions upon which she showed friendship for the United States. It is added that a precedent has not been created any more than her long reign estab lished a precedent.

A CENTURY'S DIFFERENCE

How They Cured Stomach Trouble One Hundred Years Ago.

Methods in Science Completely Revolutionized During the Last Quarter of Century-Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Now the Universal Remedy.

Much has been said and written with regard to the achievements in science during the past hundred years. The 19th century just left behind has certainly been a remarkable one. Thousands of the world's most brillian! men have bent then selves devot-edly to the discovery of methods and remedies, to relieve and cure sickness, and have made wonderful discoveries of great value to humanity.

Conspicuous among these discoveries is Dodd's Lyspensia Tablets, the neverfailing remedy for Dyspepsia, Indiges tion, Heartburn, Sour Stomach, and all allments of the Stomach and digestive organs.
When the century opened, the only treatment designed to cure Stomach trouble was a laxative treatment. Physics, often very obnoxious, and always weakeneing, were administered in every

Later on, some wise man discovered that laxatives did not cure the stomach, acting as they do only on the bowels. Then came the starvation treatment of the sanitariums, where the poor sufferer was kept on a small allowances of very simple food. Both the laxative and starvation treatments have the general result in the weakening of the body, and consequent limitation of the strength, vitality and nervous force

Then came the crowning discovery the remedy which accomplishes all that is necessary in the complete restoration of health and strength of the stomach and digestive organs,-Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets rest the stomach and correct all irregularities, without in any way diminishing the general health and strength of the body. In fact, they increase it, stimu lating the action of the organs of digestion, and toning up the system.

They mark the very latest era in medical science, and it is safe to predict that nothing will be discovered to take their place, as medical scientists having fulfilled their mission in this direction, are now turning their attention to other branches.

Expert Steeple Climber Talks Interestingly About His Profession.

[From the Cleveland Leader.] Climbing tall church steeples is an easy, healthful and pleasant way of making a living, according to Joseph B. Perry, the man who recently repaired and painted the spire that towers skyward high above the roof of St. John's Cathedral at Erie and Superior streets. He has been long at the business and has made enough money to retire in a year or so and spend the remainder of his life com-fortably on the ground at his farm near Alpena, Mich. Perry is getting toward 49 years now, and he says that when a man is 50 years old he is old enough to give up the steepie jack business. He is one of the most tamous steeple climbers in the country, and although he has taken all kinds of chances in his work, he has never been hurt. In repairing the steeple of St. John's Cathedral in this city ne took about as dangerous a chance as has fallen to the lot of any one.

He came here the day after the wind storm that seemed to be blowing the spire over almost, and, al-though the wind was about as high that day, he ascended the steeple and tied a rope around it. He went up inside the steeple to the highest point where there was a chance to get out, and from there threw a small rope around the base of the cross at the top. With this he pulled a heavier rope into place and was ready for work. He put a strong rope around the steeple where it was beginning to crack open, attached a block and tac-kle to this and tightened the rope until the steeple was squeezed to-gether again and the crack closed. This put an end to the danger of the steeple blowing apart for the time be-ing, and after the wind moderated he climbed the steeple again and repaired It thoroughly. This took a week. For his work, although he could not work all the time on account of the wind and rain, Mr. Perry got $225. When he was through he made a contract to paint the portions of the spire that need repainting. Next spring he will gild the great twelve-foot cross that surmounts the steeple. The gilding cannot be done in winter, because the gold leaf cannot be made to stick in cold weather.

Mr. Perry is well known all over the United States and Canada, being, perhaps, the best known steeple climber in the country. All the summer he has been in New York repairing one and another of the tall steeples there. It is interesting to hear the steeple climber talk of the things he has done high above the heads of the people in the streets.

"I made $110 before breakfast one morning," he said to a reporter. was at my home in Alpena. The v had blown the cross from the top of the spire of one of the churches. The is 204 feet high and the new cross that was to be put on was sixteen feet tall and ten feet across. There were some little windows in the spire about fifty feet below the top and I went inside the steeple until I reached them. That much of it was easy. They had had a man working for a week to put up the cross and he from the roof of the church, thinking that he would be able to reach the top in that way. He didn't get as near the top with the scaffeld as a boy would go in five minutes by climbing up the inside of the steeple to the highest windows. When he was through they sent for me. They thought I ought to go up as far as the other man's scaffold went, but I didn't want any of that in mine. I

HÉR FATHER WAS A DRUNKARD

A Plucky Young Lady Takes on Herself to Cure Her Father of the Liquor Habit.

STORY OF HER SUCCESS.

A portion of her letter reads as follows:

"My father had often p omised mother to stop drinking, and would do so for a time, but then returned to it stronger time, but then returned to it stronger than ever. One day, after a terrible spree, he said to us: 'It's no use. I can't stop drinking.' Our hearts seemed to turn to stone, and we decided to try the Tasteless Samaria Prescription, which we had read about in the papers. We gave him the remedy, entirely without his knowledge, in his tea, coffee, or food regularly, according to directions, and he never knew he was taking it. One package removed he was taking it. One package removed all his desire for liquor, and he says it is now distasteful to him. His health and appetite are also wonderfully improved, and no one would know him for the same man. It is now fifteen months since we gave it to him and we feel sure that the change is for goal. Please send mo one of your little books, as I want to give it to a friend."

wouldn't trust myself on a scaffold.
"They were in a hurry to have the cross placed in position on the top of the steeple, and sent for me to do it. They offered me $110 for the job. I got up at 5 o'clock in the morning and went up inside of the steeple to where the little windows are. Then I got out and climbed up the lightning rod to the top of the steeple, fastened a block and tackle, and had the men on the ground below hoist the cross up to me. I put it in place and fastened it so that nothing less than a hurricane could blow it away, and then came down and went to breakfast. I less than two hours on the job, and it was making money faster than I ever made it before or have since. 'The easiest money I ever made was by going up in a balloon. I happened a town up in Canada where the old Barnum circus was showing. To make it more interesting the circus people was in the habit of offering $100 to any man who would go up in the balloon with the aeronaut when he made the ascension. This was to make it look as though it was a very dangerous thing to go up in a balloon. I had nothing particular to do, and so I waited until the balloon was about ready to start, and the offer of $100 to any man who would go up had been shouted over and over, and the handbills making the same announcement had been passed around all through the crowd, and then I went up to the ropes around the balloon and said I would go up in it for $100. Everybody heard me, and I got a cheer, and there was no chance for the show people to back out. So they told me to get in and up we went. We came down 60 miles away, but I got back and got my $100 the next morning, all right. It was the easiest money I ever made.

"I have been in the steeple-climbing business for seventeen years, although I made my first climb when I was only years old. I was working for E. D Oliver with the intention of learning the carpenter and millwright business, which I afterward learned and worked at until I began climbing steeples altogether for a living. There was a steeple 154 feet high, and they wanted somebody to put a cross in place on top of it. The spire was a slender one, and it was thought that it would not be strong enough for a man to go on top of it. They advertised for two years for some one to put the cross in place, and no one undertook the job. I made up my mind that I could do it all right, and I did. Oliver made the plans for me, told me just what to do after I got to the top of the steeple. The cross was made of galvanized iron and only weighed 104 pounds, so that I was able to handle it all right with ful of earth instead of a spade. With the assistance of the men on the ground to haul on the ropes for me.

"The highest spire I ever climbed was 315 feet high. It is on the cathedral in Ottawa, Canada. I gilded the cross on that. St. John's steeple here. the one I have been at work on, is 262 feet high, including the cross, which is twelve feet high. I have left a rope around the base of the cross, so that it will be easier work when it comes to gilding the cross next spring. I always take a contract to finish a job for so much, no matter how long it takes, If the weather is bad so that I cannot work, it is my loss,

"I have never been nervous or dizzy when I was on a steeple since I stopped using tobacco. I used to be a hard smoker, and when I was not smoking I was chewing all the time. I used to be such a smoker that I would get up in the middle of the night to smoke a pipe. I got so that I was dizzy and unsteady, and felt afraid sometimes. My doctor told me that if I didn't stop using tobacco I would get a fall some time. I made up my mind to stop, and I have not used a speck of tobacco since."

A New Kind of Courage.

A suggestive article in the London Spectator calls attention to the "new form of courage" demanded of soldiers by modern military conditions. The experiences of our troops in Cuba, the trouble in China and the war in South Africa have shown that a great change in military possibilities has taken place, even in the last 30 years; and the farther back into history one goes, the wider is the dif-

The Roman soldier hewed his way with his sword throught the force that opposed him, the medieval manat-arms cut a path with his battleaxe or forced one by the fury of his charge on horseback. Even in our civil war cavalry charges and the bayonet were effective, and firearms of short range brought the combatants comparatively close together. The courage of the soldier of the past by virtue of the conditions he had to meet, was in large part the "fierce joy of battle." It had much of the fury of personal contact, the hot blood of a hand-to-hand struggle. But machine guns, smokeless powder and rifles of tremendous range have changed all this. Cavalry is now useful merely for its mobility, bayonet chiefly for digging trench-The soldier must advance against foes whose positions are not revealed, even by the flash of their rifles. He must often lie in the broiling sun of the pouring rain, a target for his invisible enemies, unsustained by the slightest evidence that his own shots are effective, or his own effort productive of any good results. courage demanded for this sort The courage demanded for the courage demanded for warfare is a tireless patience, an unfailing sense cheerful endurance, an unfailing sense of duty. It is no less valuable and no more common than the kind of courage usually associated with soldiers, but it is of a different sort. Does it not, in a sense, furnish a common measure by which the deeds both of the soldier and of the civilian may be gauged? And when we have learned that the qualities which make the best soldier are the same as those by which the farmer, the shopkeeper and the locomotive engineer so often dignify their simple lives, may we not in time learn to invest war with less of glamor, and to place a truer estimate on the heroes

The St. Petersburg municipal council has decided to issue a loan of £1,400,-000, of which £410,000 will be devoted to the telephone service, and £200,000 to the telephone service, and a to the enlargement of hospitals.

Literature.

"The Great Boer War," by A. Conan Doyle. Toronto: George N. Morang & Co.; pages 478. Price $1 50. It would seem that of writing books on South Africa there is no end. The present work, however, possesses elements of permanent value. It is too soon to look for the final word in the war. Time is required to see events in a proper historical perspective. Whatever judgment posterity may pass on his conclusions, it is certain that Mr. Doyle's book contains a vast amount of information gleaned at first hand. The author was an eyewitness to the scenes which he describes, having gone to South Africa and mingled with the Boer upon his native veldt. Mr. Doyle's living data were the wounded officers with whom he came in contact in hospital tents. Perhaps no other work will give the reader a more succinct account of the causes, the progress and the conclusion of the Boer war. The present guerilla operations are not recognized as war, but as wanton ravage and rapine. Mr. Dovle's work posseses a unity and a certain graphicness of description which commend it to a wide reading public. It reads like a romance. Five colored maps add definiteness to its contents. The book contains many references to the gallant part taken in the war by Canadians. Concerning the surrender of Cronje at Paardeburg, he writes:

"The Canadians advanced in the darkness of the early morning before the rising of the moon. The front rank held their rifies in their left hand, and each extended right and grasped the sleeve of the man next him. The rear rank had their rifles slung and carried spades. Nearest the river were two companies (G and H), who were followed by the seventh company of Royal Engineers, carrying bags full of earth.

"The long line stole through a pitchy darkness, knowing that at any instant a blaze of fire such as flamed before the Highlanders at Magersfon-tein might crash out in front of them. A hundred, two, three, four, five hundred paces were taken. They knew they must be close upon the trenches. On and on they stole, step by step, praying for silence. Their hopes had begun to rise when there broke upon silence of the night resonant metallic rattle, the thud a falling man, an empty tter. They had walked into a line of meat cans slung upon a wire.

"At that instant a single rifle sounded and the Canadians hurled themselves down upon the ground. "Their bodies had hardly touched it when, from a line 600 yards long, there came one furious glare of rifle fire, with a hiss like water on a red-hot plate, of speeding bullets. In that terrible red light the men, as they lay and scraped desperately for cover, could see the heads of the Boers pop up and down, and the fringe of rifle barrels quiver and gleam. How the regiment, lying helpless under this fire escaped destruction, is extraor-

"It is difficult to understand why in man might not have carried a sackthese two flank companies the expedient was most successful. On the outbreak of the fire the sacks were cast down, the men crouched behind them and time was given for further trenching. By the morning they were not only secure themselves, but they found themselves in such a position that they could enfliade the first line of Boer trenches. No doubt Cronje had already realized that the extreme limit of his resistance had come, but it was to those two companies of Canadians that the credit is immediately due for that white flag which flut tered upon the morning of Majuba day over the lines of Paardeburg."

Mr. Doyle concludes his book with a chapter entitled "Some Lessons of the War." Among other things, he says:

"The very first of all the lessons of the war is that there must be no more leaving of the army entirely to the professional soldier and to the official, but that the great general public must recognize that the defense of the empire is not the business of a special warrior caste but of every able-bodied citizen. It is an enervating thing for a nation when it comes to be accepted that its protection depends upon a small special class. With modern weapons every brave man with a rifle is a formidable soldier. With his pen, with his voice, and with his rifle every man who has the privilege of a vote must do what he to strengthen the fighting force of his country.'

Recently The Advertiser wrote Rev. Dr. Withrow, editor of the Canadian Methodist Magazine, requesting him to write a note on "Books that have interested him." Below is given his re-

"The first book I ever owned after school books and Bible, was 'Pilgrim's Progress.' Its religious teaching has been to me a benediction all my life. The next book I owned was Longfellow's poems. In the sixtles and seventies, almost every season brought out a new book by Tennyson, the Brownings, Longfellow, Lowell or Whittier. 1 read all of these as they appeared, and they profoundly influenced my life.

"As to history and criticism, Macaulay's brilliant history and essays prepared the way for Froude, Carlyle, Lecky, and for the greatest history ever written, as I think, Gibbon's "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire." Preparatory to some work in which I was engaged, I read most of the Greek and Latin fathers, chiefly in translation-a wonderful treasury of curious learning.

"As for novels, I have not read many, except those which come under my notice for current review. It was only last year on a sea voyage that I read 'Vanity Fair' and 'Pendennis,' which I greatly admired. At a literary club, which you well know, a vote was taken as to the greatest novel ever written. The unanimous vote was Victor Hugo's 'Les Miserables.' In that vote I heartily concur. My favorite reading is books of science. I have been largely interested and influenced by the epochmaking books of Darwin, Spencer, Tyndall, Huxley and Drummond.

To-day, it is Only a Cough

Only a tickling in the throat. To-morrow will come the pains and soreness in the chest, the bronchial tubes and lungs. Once again is repeated the old story of consumption or pneumenia developed from a neglected cold. There is no use giving up and saying, "What is to be will be," for you can relieve and loosen any cough and thoroughly cure the cold by using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, which for nearly a third of a century has been the "stand-by" in thousands of Canadian homes as a safeguard against pneumonia, consumption and serious lung troubles.

Though turpentine had long been considered invaluable as a remdial agent for inflammation of the air passages, it remained for Dr. A. W. Chase to so combine it with linseed, licorice and half a dozen other ingredients as to make a pleasant tasting and remarkably effective preparation for coughs, colds and kindred ailments.

Dr. Chase's Syrup Linseed and Turpentine

Is different from any throat and lung treatment you ever used. When tired of new-fangled mixtures of uncertain merit you can turn to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine with absolute assurance that it is the safest, surest and most thorough cure for coughs and colds that was ever discovered. Nearly every druggist has some sort of a cough mixture to offer you in place of what you ask for, but if you want to be cured insist on having Dr. Chase's. It has stood the test and has no worthy rival. Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a bottle; family size, three times as much, 60 cents. he received a magnificent reception,

Professor McNaughton takes up the "Art of Robert Louis Stevenson," and handles it in his strong and vigorous way. "The first thing that strikes one in Stevenson's work," says the professor, "is the extraordinary vividness with which his scenes and characters are realized. In this primary artistic quality he takes rank, as it seems, to me, with the best we have. His plastic power is unique in recent literature. Every one of the tales, and some of the poems, in our list abounds in pictures which, apart from other elements of enchantment, remains stamped upon the reader's mind by dint of mere clean and vigorous drawings, of coercing and penetrating verisimilitude." THE REASON WHY

"Shiloh" Cures Consumption.

Consumption is not merely a disease of the lungs, as so generally supposed, but before the lungs become affected the blood has-from various causes-been crowded with the bacillus of Consumption. These germs are deposited in the lungs by the blood, causing inflamation, coughing and the spitting up of diseased mucopurulent matter. Shiloh's Cure arrests the ravages of the germs by destroying them-it purifies the blood and enriches it-allays the inflamation and irritation and sets up a healing process, which causes the sore parts to get well and cicatrize. Shiloh's Consumption Cure strengthens and tones up the whole system and makes it particularly repellent to the dreaded germs of Consumption.

It is guaranteed to accomplish this. If dissatisfied when 3/3 of a bottle has been used, return the remaining portion and the whole purchase money will be refunded.

J. H. Caldwell of Malta, Idaho, writes as follows to S. C. Wells & Co., Toronto. "I have used Shiloh's Consumption Curr many different times, and always received great benefit from it. I believe it saved my life in a case of congestion of the lungs-and saved me from an attack of consumption, as many people said I had it.'

In Another World.

And there shall be no night there .-Revelation, xxii., 5.

We are told very little as to the exact conditions under which we shall find ourselves when we wake from the sleep of death. Perhaps it is best so, in spite of our longing to know more about the life which lies just beyond the horizon line, and to which every fleeting day brings us nearer.

If there were no other sentence except that uttered by Christ to the penitent culprit on the cross, "This day shalt thou be with me in paradise," we ought to be satisfied. It contains a clear statement of the fact of immortality, given under circumstances of peculiar impressiveness. It is as though a guide who was leading a poor disheartened pilgrim through that deepest darkness which just precedes the dawn should say, "Patience, poor soul, for yet a little while and we shall see the sun on the hill tops."

The world has advanced toward a new conception of the duties and privileges which await us. The merely po-etical theories of our fathers, in which unnatural and uncongenial employments were specially conspicuous, have given way to a larger and more rational view. We no longer dread the future because we shall be strangers there, but, on the contrary, look forward to it because we shall be more at home than it is possible to be here with opportunities which we have hoped for in this life, but have never been able to attain.

The necessity for drudgery, which consumes so much of our time, the struggle to provide for our dear ones and ourself will lapse with death, and we shall be free to follow the divine ambitions which have during our earthly career been an elusive dream. We shall deal with our souls unhampered by the needs of physical bodies, and can develop ourselves in whatever direction our bent may lie, with dust on his new automobile between an environment which will encourage the Holland House and police head-us to do and be our best. It is a very rich truth that death takes from us what we can most e sily part with—a body which claims so much of our attention is oftentimes a painful burden-but it is powerless to rob us of mind and heart, which are the basis of all conceivable excellence.

The poor violinist who makes strange music out of a wretched instrument would deem it good fortune to be presented with a Cremona, which would respond to the touch of his finger tips and give forth the sounds which he has only heard in his dreams, never been able to produce. So, I take the soul may look forward with high anticipation to the time when the noblest and purest and truest shall be placed within reach and can be had if he is willing to make the necessary effort.

One thing is certain that death changes nothing except location and now be obliged to take an engineer standpoint. Personality remains untouched. The grave covers no faculty of the soul. I myself will never go during the late winter months we may hear of the duke and his automobile speeding over the streets of Denver, into the tomb. Before my body is taken there I shall leave it, and it will go alone, its duty done, its mis-sion ended. My mind, my memory, my affections are part of my personality, and they remain undisturbed. I tenderly keep the past in view, and no future, however glorious, can obliterate my remembrance of it. I keep my love for those who have been left behind, my interest in their welfare, my desire to give them assistance. On What is the Probable Destiny of the British Empire.

Britannia Will Continue to Rule

berlain in Success: I read, the other day, that one of your millionaires expressed an ambition to be a member of congress; but, on being invited to express his views by the inevitable reporter, he said he had no such intention, adding that the enjoyments of his private life were such that he was not disposed to exchange them for the turmoil of politics. I do not think that that was a very public-spirited statement.

I do not share the opinion that the love of private life is any excuse for love of private life is any excuse for shirking public obligations. But it is true that any man who enters public life in this country or in the United States—I am sorry to say that it is now more so in this country than in the United States—must make great sacrifices, and must be prepared to brave not only criticism and abuse as a public only criticism and abuse as a public man, but also attacks upon his personal honor—attacks which, if he had clung to private life, he would never have been subjected to.

We English have reached a turning-point in our history—a critical time. We are at the parting of the ways. The last chapter has been closed; we are about to commence a new one, and it is not to commence a new one, and it is not too much to say that the fortunes of the empire and the destinies of our race depend upon its opening words.

What are those words to be?

What is to be the heading of this new chapter which will commence with the twentieth century? If I dare to speak for my countrymen, I think that they have already answered the question. I think this new chapter of our history will be rightly entitled "The Unity of the Empire." It is a great work, that will make illustrious the beginning of the coming century, Go back in the history of the country, and what do you find?

You find an older imperialism—based, bia and the Eastern Provinces, there is a magnificent expanse of timber land in fore has been generally regarded as prairie. Surprise was expressed in Canperhaps, too much upon the Roman model—an imperialism which implied the establishment by conquest of tributary countries, which were exploited for the exclusive benefit of what can hardly be called the motherland in such a case, but, rather, the step-mother at home. When that policy broke down, as it deserved to do, when the great American Revolution taught this country a lesson, then, I am afraid, we fell into the opposite extreme in colony management. Then came a period of reaction and apathy and indifference, in which we looked upon the colonies as encumbrances; then, indeed—to use the expression of a distinguished statesman with whom I do not agree—we flouted the colonies, and regarded them as servoir. Meanwhile the government is burdens and impediments. We expectportion of pine trees destroyed by fire

Well, that period lasted down almost to the present day. It is only within the last few years that we have got free from that pusillanimous repudiation of national and imperial obliga-

I think myself that it came over the people before it came over our rulersand now it has come over both. We are imperialists, and we have at last abandoned the craven fear of being great, which was the disgrace—and I can call it no less—of a previous age.

And now we find that our people the democracy-understand the nature and extent of the possibilities of this great empire of ours. Think of it-an empire such as the world has never before seen! Think of its area, covering a great portion of the globe! Think of its population, embracing four hundred millions of people of almost every race under the sun! Think of the diversity of its products! Everything that is necessary or useful, or grateful to man, is produced under the Union Jack.

Think also of the responsibilities and the obligations which the possession of such an empire entails! We have to bring to all these dependent races-as to all kinsmen abroad we have al-But not one word will Manchester say of his plans, except to admit that ready brought-freedom and justice, and civilization and peace. What should we be without our empire? Two small islands, with an over-crowded population, in the Northern Sea. What would they be without us? Fragments—nations, indeed, but without the fullness of national life, without the cohesion that enables them to Mountains and up the perilous slopes the world in the face. We are bound together, also, by something which, in international and national affairs, is, perhaps, even stronger than material interests—by the ties of sentiment, by common ideals and common aspirations. That does not mean that we are hostile to other nations. On the contrary, we desire their friendship, too. We we desire their friendship, too, We should be glad to have their approbation if it were not purchased at the cost price of more essential objects. We hope that they will reciprocate friendly feelings which we express and feel for them; but, if not, we will humbly submit to our destiny—we will en-deavor to do without it, conscious of our rectitude.

If we cannot persuade them, then we must be isolated; but, if, even then, we are surrounded and buttressed by these groups of sister nations, I say, in the words of the Canadian statesman, our isolation will be a splendid isolation. I do not say this in any spirit of vulgar ostentation. I do not think that the view I am putting before you is an ignoble view of our national destiny. No: it is better for all of us; it widens our horizon and broadens our view to be free men in a company of nations, to be citizens of no mean city. We have the comfort of knowing that, if even the worst of disasters were to overtake this country; if we were to be, as is often prophesied by our critics abroad, a fallen state; or if, by some physical convulsion of nature, we were to sink like a volcanic island in the seas that we have ruled so long, even then we should leave behind kinsfolk across the

Any of the children ever have it? Then you will never forget it, will you? Don't let it go until midnight again, but begin treatment during the evening, when that dry, hollow, barking cough first begins:

Get out your Vapo-Cresolene (for you surely keep this in the house), put some Cresolene in the vaporizer, light the lamp beneath, and let the child breathe-in the quieting, soothing, healing vapor. There will be no croup that night. If it's midnight, and the croup is on, inhaling the vapor will break the spasm and bring prompt relief.

For asthma, bronchitis, sore throat, coughs and colds, it is a prompt and pleasant cure, while for whooping-cough it is a perfect specific. Your doctor knows, ask him about it.

"The apparatus is simple, inexpensive, and I believe, unequalled in the treatment of whooping-cough. The vapor is not injurious to healthy persons. It has a beneficial effect in allaying the irritation and the desire to cough in bronchitis. I earnestly recommend it." JOHN MERRITT, M.D., of Brooklyn, in the N. Y. Medical Record.

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. Confining myself to the self-governing colonies, what have they done for us? At the first threat of war, they hastened spontaneously. It was not our suggestion, but was their own good thought to offer their aid, and they have given us their best and bravest. They have fought and some of them have died, to maintain the honor of the flag and the interests of the empire. They have done something more—they have given us their moral support, the support of great, free, independent nations, proud of their liberty, and able to take an impartial and judicial view of the merits of the struggle in which we were engaged.

The Queen's Veil.

It was vacant!
She bent her head forward to listen, but a horrible silence prevailed.
The woman was as pallid as a corpse; a look of wildest fear shone in her staring eyes; her knees trembled and sunk beneath her, and moaning with terror she fell to the earth.
"What have I done?" she groaned, shudderingly.

She had not realized how near to the edge of the cliff they had been standing; she had been so absorbed in her own selfish emotions that she forgot entirely that the huge rock was just upon the brink of a fearful precipice; neither had she realized how much angry force she had expended when she had thrown the girl's arm so fiercely from her.

Now she knew, all too late, to what lengths her passion could carry her; she knew that when she had cast the poe girl from her she had lost her balance and fallen over the cliff.

with an almost superhuman effort Lady Holborn dragged herself to the margin and looked over.

A giddy blindness seized her for a moment, and she could see nothing.

Then, far beneath, there gradually became outlined to her horrified vision a slender form, lying silent and motionless; the bright head was thrown back, the lovely eyes closed, the beautiful siender form, lying silent and motionless; the bright head was thrown back, the lovely eyes closed, the beautiful face colorless, and the fair hand hanging limp and still by her side.

There was not mar or blemish, that she could distinguish, upon that perfectly chiseled countenance; there was nothing in the attitude that told of the agony of death; she lay like some woodland nymph reposing upon a couch of emerald, and it was hard to believe that she could be dead.

The cliff from which she had fallen was a sort of overhanging table or shelf, and so the lovely face and form had not come in contact with sharp or jagged rocks; there had been nothing to break her fall.

But Lady Holborn knew what dangerous crags lay just beneath those innocent looking vines; she had played about them when a child, and she shuddered to think that no kuman being could fall upon them without becoming a mass ing her jeweled hands, as she looked down upon that motioness form and felt that she was a muraeress—an unintentional one, perhaps, but guilty, all the same, of the foul deed.

"Oh, I told her I would find some means of getting her out of his way, but I never dreamed of anything so horrible as this," she cried, shudderingly, her eyes still fastened, as if fascinated, upon the immovable form below, while her senses recled and an ague seized her senses reeled and an ague seized her, as she thought what the future would be with that fair, white face for-

No one had seen the deed—they had been alone in that lonely place; she could go quietly away, and no one ever need know that she had been connected in any way with the tragedy; people would naturally think that the girl had strayed too near, become dizzy and fallen.

But she felt that there would be no more peace for her; she might succeed in hiding the awful truth from every eye, but all her life long, and all through eternity she must carry this dreadful burden on her soul, and it seemed as if her punishment was greater than she could bear.

She could not get down to ascertain just where the girl had been so fatally injured, for the cliff was so steep; it was five miles around to the road below, and even then it would be impossible to get to her without difficult climbing over the rugged rocks. She climbing over the rugged rocks. She seemed chained to the spot, and yet she knew she must not remain there, or she would be discovered and implicated in the tragedy; she dare not seek help to convey the body back to Carisford, for the same reason; she would rather die herself than have her son mistrust the or to tell her son how far his own mother was concerned in the dread deed.

Moaning with terror, gasping for breath, the half-crazed woman crept back to her carriage, pulled herself with difficulty into it, gathered up the lines, and drove away to her home, passing Carisford on the way, but hurrying by,

as if already it was haunted by some ghost or avenging spirit.

CHAPTER XXXIII Evening came on, and the earl, who had been feeling quite unwell all day, made his appearance at dinner time, expecting to find the family all to-

The earl frowned. Such remarks were getting to be altogether too common, and he had about determined to make a separate home for himself and Tina, at least until she should be married—an event which he did not dwell upon any more than he could help, as he could not bear the thought of being parted from her. He rang the bell, without deigning any reply to his daughter's remark, and told the servant who answered it to go to Mademoiselle Florienz's room and say that dinner was ready. $ protectoral control control

The man soon returned with the in-formation that the young lady was not with a look of anxiety on his face the earl immediately left the table to institute inquiries regarding her absence.

No one knew anything about her movements during the day save Louis Arlesbury, and he, having learned of the change in Time's circumstances from

The house and grounds were thoroughly searched for her the earl growoughly searched for her, the earl growing more anxious every moment; but, of course, every effort was fruitless.

Men with lanterns were then dispatched in every direction over the estate, and down by the seashore, and a vigor-ous hunt was kept up all night long. All to no purpose, however. The missing girl was not to be found, nor any vestige of her to show them which direction she had taken on leaving the house, and the earl was nearly heartbroken on her account.

He interviewed his daughter and He interviewed his daughter and granddaughter, sternly demanding if they knew anything, or if they had said anything unkind that would be likely to drive her to any desperate deed; but they both solemnly affirmed that they knew nothing, and had not exchanged a word with her during the entire day. The earl felt assured that she could not have mediated leaving. Confident not have meditated leaving Carlsford, for, on going to her rooms, he found her dress laid out for dinner, some fresh, dainty ruffles basted into the neck and sleeves, a pretty fichu spread out beside it, while some scarlet geraniums, evi-dently intended for her throat and hair, stood in a glass upon her dressing table, and nothing was missing from her wardrobe.

Louis Arlesbury, without saying anything to anyone, went by himself over the path through the woods where he had met her, hoping to find some trace of her.

He walked the entire distance to Castle Demaire, but found nothing to attract his attention, save a place in the road where Lady Holborn's horses had stood, and, being somewhat uneasy at having to stand so long midway upon a hill, had disturbed the gravel consid-

But he did not suppose this had any connection with the lost girl, and he continued to keep his own counsel. For two or three days the search was kept up unremittingly, and the earl offered large rewards for even the slightest intelligence concerning her, but none came to him.

In the midst of all this excitement In the midst of all this excitement.

Lord Holborn returned, and who can describe the shock to his fond heart when the dreadful news was broken to him?

"Can she have gone away from us of her own free will?" the earl asked him, her own free will?" the earl asked him, with quivering lips, as they sat together talking the matter over.

"No!" his lordship said, decidedly. "Something that she dropped before my departure made me fear that she could not stay here and bear the slights and scorn which I feared she might be subjected to, and I made her promise that she would not go away. My darling would not violate her pledge. I—am afraid—there has been some foul play."

By whom or what he suspected he did not say.

"Such as what?" the earl demanded, in a shaking voice, and with an ashen comforting words to him about the sad affzir, and no one would have dreamed from her appearance that day and night she was haunted by that dreadful sight under the cliff, while she marveled, and her terror increased tenfold, when nothing was found there.

To satisfy herself that the body of the young girl was not lying there still, she had ordered her horses and driven there again—had crawled to the edge of the precipice, and peered over the rocks beprecipice, and peered over the rocks be-low, her very soul quaking with terror all the while. But no; all trace of the girl had dis-appeared.

"Can wild beasts have devoured her?" she asked herself, with a shudder. No; there were no wild beasts on the island—nothing more ferocious than deer or sheep, who would not harm anything. Besides, if anything of the kind had occurred, the clothing would have remained and been found.

It was a mystery that tortured her continually, for she believed if the girl had not been killed, if she had come to herself, her first act would have been to return immediately to Carisford, where she would have been kindly cared for by the earl.

Lady Arlesbury and her daughter expressed wonder and some anxiety at her strange disappearance, yet they were both secretly relieved to have her well out of their way.

"She has, in all probability, come to realize the impropriety of marrying a man so far above her socially, and she has doubtless run away again. It seems to be a favorite way of hers to get out to be a favorite way of hers to get out of scrapes," her ladyship said, with an ill-concealed sneer.

ON THE FARM.

FOR THE COW STABLE. Here are some rules for the cow-stable, which although not new, are none the less important:

1. Thoroughly clean the stable every day, and sprinkle the gutters and all wet spots on the floor with land plaster (gypsum) or road dust. 2. Give each cow a liberal supply of dry bedding at all times.

3. Use the card and brush daily on each animal. Such attention is as important for the cow as for the horse. 4. Feed, water and milk with regularity, always at the same hours and in the same order.

5. (a) Before commencing to milk brush the udder and flanks carefully, and wash the teats if necessary. (b) Never milk with wet hands, but use a few drops of clean, sweet oil if teats are dry and rough. (c) Draw the milk as rapidly as possible, but always gently. (d) Get all the milk each time and then stop. Do not "trip" with thumb and finger.

6. Weigh each mess of milk accurately, and record it. 7. Never leave cows out of doors in a storm, or when it is so cold that a man out with them would be uncomfortable. 8. Loud or angry words cannot be tolerated, and blows are strictly forbidden. Never forget that a cow is a mother; everything which approaches unkindness—not to say brutality must be scruplously avoided.

9. Keep these commandments, not only to the letter, but in their spirit

SORGHUM AS ENSILAGE.

A writer in the Country Gentleman speaks of sorghum for ensilage as fol-lows: My corn was short, did not fill the silo; so the risk was run of ensilaging the sorghum, without full informa-tion as to what the result would be. The result was in every way satisfactory. All of it has now been eaten; there was no waste. It was cut into half-inch lengths; it settled well, heated well, was sweet, and the cows liked it. No difference whatever between it and the corn ensilage could be noticed. The milk was used for butter, and both quantity and quality were the same as with corn ensilage.

GROWING PROTEIN.

To the dairy farmer the element of protein is of the greatest importance. Protein is only another name for nitrogen, and it is needed very greatly by the dairy cow, in order that she may give milk up to her full capacity. It is for this reason that we buy protein foods, such as linseed meal, gluten meal, cotton seed meal, bran and meal. It is for this reason we find that clover is of such great value as a feed for cows. So the dairy farmer needs a constant and good supply of But there is a second and very important reason why he needs it. He must keep up his land. His profit largely depends upon the ability of his land to produce cow feed in great abundance. For this reason, red clover is greatly valued. But red clover has become a very fickle crop, because of the severe winters and because the farmers kill it the first mowing season, by letting it form seed before it is cut. If we wish to keep up our clover meadows and prevent our own practice from killing it, we must cut each crop during the season just before the seed forms. Farmers wait too long. and the seed has already formed in half or two-thirds of the crop, when they commence to cut. If the plant is kept from seeding, nature struggles to fulfill her mission, and so sends up another growth, which in turn must be cut before it seeds. This is but simply obeying one of the laws of its plant life. Every farmer needs to know more than does about the botany of farm plants.

FOR THE HORSES.

Dip the bridle-bits in water in cold weather before putting them in horses' mouths. If you doubt the necessity, put your tongue to a frosty nail. Use oil on the wagon in winter. Axle grease stiffens in cold weather-becomes dry and hard. Uncheck while standing, and blanket cold weather.

Horses like a kind voice, and are not deaf as a rule. Don't yell at them. Horses get tired and nervous and hungry and thirsty. Give them good beds to sleep on.

Don't make the load too heavy. Sharpen their shoes in icy weather. Give them always a lunch at noon.

CANADIAN CHEESE.

Although returns to Canadian factorymen, for cheese, during the past season show an increase of $1,862,000 over the previous season, the returns for butter show a decease of $2,416,000. making a falling off of $544,000 in receipts for dairy products this season, as compared with last. The make of cheese in Canada during the past year was the largest in the history of the country, sales amounting to 2,007,000 The amount received by factorymen for their product also far exceeded the returns for any previous year, being $16,560,000.
