CHOOSING TEAM

Splendid Practice Match on Tecumseh Park From Which International Will be Selected

A spirited and interesting practice football match was held on Tecumseh Park on Saturday between teams of J. Fisher, R. Asher, S. Courtney and Captain Kelly, of the M. Campbell Co. team for the purpose of bringing out material for the international Kent County team to play the English Pilgrims in Detroit on Monday next. The team will likely be selected at a committee meeting tonight and the players will be duly notified to get in readiness.

The English players started their tour at Montreal on Saturday when they defeated the Montrealers by a score of eight goals to nil. Their photos will appear in the windows of A. I. McColl's drug store—and show them to be a fine athletic coterie of young men.

The visiting Kent team will be banqueted with the Englishmen in Detroit. They will be accompanied by a number of local enthusiasts desirous of seeing the Englishmen play.

RANKIN LICENSE

Further Effort to be Made to Secure License for Maple City's Large Hotel

Citizens generally are desirous of securing a further consideration of the case of the Hotel Rankin and the granting of a license to this large and well equipped and conducted house. To this end a further effort is to be made to enlist the consideration of the proper authorities.

It is pointed out that the Hotel Rankin is one of the best hotels in Western Ontario and that it has proved detrimental both to the city and surrounding district to deprive it of its license. The movement has the hearty support of scores of the most prominent and active Conservatives.

BODY FOUND

Remains of Herbert Dawson, Who Was Drowned at the Eau, Found Yesterday Morning

The body of the late Herbert Dawson, of Romney, who was drowned at Eriau on the morning of Labor Day, was found yesterday morning, being washed up by the lake just back of the cottage of C. C. Greening, near Centreville.

The Crown Attorney decided that an inquest was not necessary and Coroner Hanks, of Elenheim, issued an order for the burial of the body.

REILLY ATTEMPTS HANGING.

But Other Prisoners Stop the Ballot Box Offender.

Belleville, Sept. 10.—Frank J. Reilly, who last March was sentenced to serve a year in the County Jail for conspiracy in connection with the bonus ballot boxes, tried to hang himself in the jail Saturday afternoon.

It appears that Reilly had twisted a sheet from his bed into a rope, and had made a loop in which he was about to put his head when other prisoners compelled him to desist.

It is said that Reilly has been dependent for some days, though he appeared to be in his usual health, his appetite being good and his ability to sleep all that could be expected.

The jail officials, when seen about the matter, did not deny that Reilly had made an alleged attempt upon his life, but declined to discuss the matter at all.

SHOT HIMSELF ON TRAIN.

South African Veteran Unable to Battle With Money Worries.

St. John, N. B., Sept. 11.—Manford Golding, aged 28, who fought with the Canadians in South Africa, shot himself through the head with a 45-calibre revolver Friday.

The tragedy occurred in a lavatory car on the L. C. R. train between Sussex and here. He left his mother, with whom he was travelling, telling her when the train reached here he would rush away to his work as street railway motorman.

It is thought money worries prompted the deed.

Father Wants Damages.

Ottawa, Sept. 11.—Charles Jardine, is suing the Ottawa Electric Co. for unstated damages for injuries suffered by his 6-year-old son, William. On July 10, the lad climbed a pole, and when nearing the top, fell to the ground, suffering a fracture of the skull. The plaintiff claims that the company had cleats on the pole, whereby the child was enabled to climb, and so holds the company responsible for his injuries.

A man never loves a woman as well as when he has been able to come to her rescue.

CROWN ACTS ON DUPRIS' DEATH

Coroner Dr. Bray Investigating the Suspicious Circumstances of Dover Man's Death

Some Strange Stories Concerning Hurried Burial—Crown Attorney Takes Action

Coroner Dr. J. L. Bray, LL. D., is investigating for the Crown the suspicious circumstances surrounding the sudden death of Anthony Dupris, of Dover, and the disappearance of his money, the facts of which were exclusively reported in The Planet of Saturday. On the result of Dr. Bray's investigation Crown Attorney Smith will take immediate action.

Some strange stories concerning the hurried burial of the unfortunate man are in circulation. He was found dead on Friday noon and a rough coffin was purchased for his immediate interment that afternoon.

Not a cent of the pension money which he brought home Friday has been found, nor of the hoard which he was reputed to have hidden in his shanty. The story of the neighbors is that, in view of the blackened face and discolorations on the throat, that the poor fellow was robbed and choked to death.

YANKEES WANT OLD GUNBOAT

Detroiters Want Sunken Relic in Thames River and Send Lawyer to Ottawa

Local Historical Society Know Nothing of Matter—Permit Should Not be Granted

Yesterday's Detroit News-Tribune contains the following:—C. M. Burton has his histological spirit up and he declares that he will fight gamely against the Ottawa government to have the sunken-boat in the Thames river recovered from its bed, and either taken to Detroit or set up in a public place on the Canadian side.

Swords will be crossed on Monday at Ottawa, whither Mr. Burton has despatched his attorney, Charles F. Burton, to make representations to the secretary of state for the Dominion. A despatch from Ottawa says that the minister of justice may take steps to prevent Burton from removing the boat now in question. To this C. M. Burton replies that he will contest every inch of the ground.

"I shall be content if the Dominion government will recover the historic boat and preserves it as becomes its historical value," Mr. Burton stated yesterday. "But if they do not agree to this, I shall proceed to spend my own money and have the boat removed to Detroit. It is not the property of the Canadian government. The boats were seized by Col. Proctor in 1813 from the right owners in Detroit and used to transport stores during the retreat from Malden and Detroit up the Thames."

"The boats now lie on private property, the one in question being located on property owned by a man named Arnold. I shall appeal to the president, if I am thwarted by the Ottawa authorities."

"My attorney has gone to Ottawa and he will have the assistance, I believe of the Quebec Historical Society, of which I am a member."

The Maple City Historical Association knows nothing of the matter. There is no question, however, that permission for the Yankees to carry off this valuable relic should be firmly refused.

CLEAR $250

Energetic Ladies Made Success of Parade—Splendid House on Saturday Night

Parade, the local amateur production which has been playing the Grand for the past week, had its final performance Saturday night. The house which greeted it was quite satisfactory, the performance itself excellent in splendor the preceding ones. The only changes of program were several barbaresques put on by the men. In exaggerated police costume they replied to an encore for the "Daisier" with heads of cabbage, to which they sang the song. At the conclusion of the black face Mandy chorus a watermelon was rolled on the stage, the scramble for which nearly broke up the show.

As a result of the venture the Ladies of the Hospital clear $250.00. This is quite a satisfactory issue and the ladies feel deeply grateful to all those who, in any way, assisted in its consummation—the performers and those who otherwise lent their time and energy toward the completion of the success.

Misses Beek and Emery and Manager Taylor left immediately after the last performance for Brockville, where the extravaganza will be staged next.

LIFE'S SUNSET

Demise of One of Chatham's Oldest Residents—A Long and Useful Career

At the advanced age of ninety-one years and ten days James Gardiner passed away yesterday afternoon at his home on Wellington street west, in this city. In him Chatham and the County of Kent loses a pioneer, one of the noble band of men who paved the way for present day prosperity, and whose ranks are being sadly decimated as one after another is called away to join the great Advance Guard.

The deceased gentleman was widely known and as highly esteemed; a man of probity, upright and true, whose loss will be widely felt and deeply grieved. The bereft family have the sincere sympathy of the entire community.

The surviving family consists of the widow and sons, and W. E. Gardiner and S. F. Gardiner, both of this city, the latter being manager of the Chatham Loan & Savings Co. Mrs. Isaac Coyne, of French River, and Miss Barbara Anne, of this city, are the surviving daughters. In addition to these there is one deceased, Mrs. W. G. McGeorge.

The autobiography of the deceased gentleman is the pioneer history of Kent, concerning the early days of which he had many interesting anecdotes. Born in Putnam County, New York State, the son of one Singleton Gardiner, of mixed Scotch and Irish blood; he removed with his parents to this country, when they settled in Port Talbot, Middlesex County, in 1816. At this time they lived only three miles from the residence of Colonel Talbot. For the sum of $425, 240 acres of land were purchased at Andover on the Thames, to which the family removed in 1825. In addition to this 200 acres was purchased on the opposite side of the river, where the family homestead was established. In addition to the deceased gentleman there was another son, William, who died in 1860, and two daughters, Mrs. John Gibb, nee Mary Gardiner, who died in 1865, and Mrs. Geo. Gibb, nee Deborah.

At the age of twenty the youngest son, James, the deceased gentleman began his individual career as the owner and operator of a saw mill, a grist mill, and a farm in Middlesex. In 1870, after a successful business career, Mr. Gardiner disposed of his property and removed to Chatham, where he has since resided. Of late years the only active part he has taken in business life has been as a member of the Chatham Loan & Savings Co., of whose board he was the oldest member. In 1896 he married Rebecca Fleming, daughter of James Fleming, and an aunt of Dr. Fleming, of this city.

Politically, Mr. Gardiner was a consistent Reformer. Since 1847 he has been a Justice of the Peace and has filled other local positions with credit to himself and the municipality. He was a staunch member of the Methodist church, where his loss will be deeply felt.

A funeral, limited to the personal friends and relatives of the deceased, will be held Wednesday at two p. m. from his late residence. No flowers will be received.

THEY KICK

W. J. Martin, of LaCrosse street, has circulated a petition protesting against the use of that street by the new electric road. The petition is signed by thirteen residents of the street. Harvey street residents also protest. Looks as if the road would have to come into the city over elevated tracks.

I have a farm of nearly 90 acres on River Thames, four miles from Chatham, price $4,800 if sold at once. This farm is cheap at $6,500. Terms of sale $600 cash, balance to suit purchaser with interest at five per cent. G. K. Atkinson.

SUCCESSFUL ANNIVERSARY

Special Services in Christ Church Yesterday Largely Attended by Appreciative Audiences

Rev. Dr. Arnold, of Detroit, Delivers Two Excellent Addresses—Excellent Music by Vested Choir

The celebration of the forty-fourth anniversary of Christ Church was held yesterday and was marked by special services in the church both morning and evening.

Rev. Dr. Arnold, of Detroit, was the pastor of the day and he gave two excellent sermons, the equal of which have not been heard in Chatham for some time. Dr. Arnold is a strong speaker and his sermons were earnest and brilliant. He is an orator with exceptional powers and has a manner of talking directly to every individual person in the congregation, which secures for him the attention and interest of everyone. His sermon in the morning on "Discontentment" was especially good and it was generally remarked after the service that it was a privilege to hear such a man as Dr. Arnold.

In the evening he spoke on "Faith," and again he created a profound impression.

The church was crowded both morning and evening, and the anniversary was highly successful.

One very popular feature of the services was the excellent music rendered by the vested choir. The choir was at its best and they never sang better than they did yesterday. Mr. J. W. Wilson, the capable leader, deserves untold praise for the success which is crowning his efforts with this splendid musical organization. It is becoming better every day, both in point of merit and in popular favor. In the morning, besides the special chorus singing, Miss Gertrude Potter gave a solo and in the evening Miss Peate sang. Both of these young ladies are popular Maple City soloists, and their renditions yesterday were much enjoyed.

From a financial standpoint the anniversary was very satisfactory. This church is growing all the time and since the recent renovations to the edifice the congregations are always large and appreciative.

THE JUDGE'S DILEMMA.

One of the first cases which the late Gilman Marston, of New Hampshire, had after being admitted to the bar was a civil suit involving a somewhat complicated question of inheritance. In no way daunted, young Marston tackled it, looked up authorities all the way back to Julius Caesar, and prepared an argument of a few hundred pages, which seemed to him more than unanswerable. His only fear was that it might be beyond the comprehension of the court.

When the time came the young man rose and plunged in boldly. The judge seemed interested, and Gilman took heart. But at the end of an hour and a half, in the midst of the most intricate part of his plea, he was pained to see what he thought was a lack of attention on the part of the court.

It was just as he had expected, the judge was unable to appreciate the nice points of his argument. He paused, hesitated, and then said: "Your honor, I beg pardon, but do you follow me?"

"I have so far," answered the judge, shifting about in his chair, "but I'll say frankly that if I thought I could find my way back I'd quit right here."—Boston Herald.

MENACES TO MORALS.

The Woodstock Express draws attention to a significant editorial in a recent issue of The Independent on the present menace to American morals. A deterioration already apparent, according to the writer, is revealed in "the transformation of a nation of once honorable, patriotic citizens into a nation of 'grafters.'" Formerly the only grafters of which anything was known were the Indian agents, the star-route contractors, a few bankers and congressmen; "now it would seem as if we are all grafters, as if the gentlemen of all professions and occupations carry their itching palms open behind them, with their fingers instinctively feeling for the drachmas." The indictment is a sweeping one; but The Independent is not a sensational journal, nor is it edited by men who can be suspected of either ignorance or malice. Indeed, the revelation possesses scarcely sufficient novelty to be surprising. The popular literature of the United States is teeming with exposures of the "graft" evil in all conditions of life.

But the deterioration of American morals indicated by the universal reign of graft, is, we are assured, only the beginning of the depravity that is likely to come before "certain social forces that are rapidly becoming generated have wrought out their inevitable effects." One of these forces is "the passionate hysterical emotionalism that manifests itself in race and class hatred, mob action and lynchings; in 'crazes,' 'fads,' and 'isms.'" With the working of this force and the more obvious effects the world is already familiar enough. The evil is so aggressive, so persistent and so notorious that it is scarcely necessary to refer to it.

The other social force is of an entirely different character, and is not so generally recognized. Although millions of dollars are expended annually on education, the American people take almost no interest in substantial literature. This is surely a serious charge, and if it came from any other quarter might very naturally excite suspicion. But it is evidently made in good faith, and with a knowledge of the facts. "No other people in the world boasting of its intelligence," says The Independent, "has so small a percentage of readers of serious books." The statement is not entirely an expression of opinion. It is susceptible in some degree of proof. "For example, there are at least twenty thousand somewhat pretentious public libraries in the United States, not counting the little ones. If one-half of these bought one copy each of every standard book that is published there would be a market for any volume of genuinely scholarly or scientific quality. There would be a sufficient sale to pay the author and the publisher for the labor and expense of producing it."

As a matter of fact, the publishers say that the demand from public libraries for a high-grade book seldom makes up an edition of more than 250 or 300 copies. "The reading of one-half of the American population consists of ephemeral novels and newspapers. The reading of the other half consists of the nickel magazines and 'sore heads.'"

What is to be the fate of a people liable to have riches and leisure, but without intellectual resources? The answer of history is not reassuring.

TELEPHONE TALKS.

TO TELEPHONE USERS AND THE GENERAL PUBLIC.

Government ownership and administration of the telephone has been urged as a remedy for certain imaginary grievances against the telephone service in Canada, which have been the stock-in-trade of certain professional agitators for some time.

European countries where the telephone is operated as a Government monopoly have been pointed to as examples which should be followed by the Dominion Government. We have already reviewed at length the results in Great Britain of triple administration by Government, Municipalities and Company. We shall now review the conditions which prevail in several countries of Europe under exclusive Government control.

In France the Government owns and operates both local exchanges and long distance lines. The method adopted by the Government to obtain funds for Telephone development will be considered peculiar by most people in this country and would not meet with the approval of many Canadian municipalities.

The funds required by the Government to buy out the Company which originally exploited the business were borrowed from the Savings Bank Department. These moneys do not appear in the State's balance sheet for the telephone service and no interest or sinking fund is provided for, nor is deduction made for rent of offices and other expenses inevitable to very commercial enterprise. In addition to this the subscriber has to buy his own Telephone of a pattern approved by the Government and has to pay for a portion of the line and the cost of installation.

For extending the service into various provincial towns the method of financing was still more unique. The municipality advanced to the State the sums required for all the new installations and also for working and maintaining them, the loan to be repaid to the Municipality without interest by instalments taken from the receipts. The State did not bind itself with regard to the dates at which this peculiar repayment should take place. In this manner the general taxpayer has to bear the cost of the telephone service whether he is a subscriber or not.

The rates charged to subscribers for exchange service are: Paris, $80.00 per annum; Lyons, $60.00, and in the smaller towns, $40.00 and $30.00. There is no difference in the charges between office and residence service.

In our next Talk we shall review the general results in France of Government administration of this service.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA.

Fortunately, however, there is still a large hard-working, well-meaning class, not yet corrupted by the example of its "betters," and there is a possibility that even yet the people may be taught to read and to think; "but it will be a big job."

This picture of American social conditions is of more than passing interest to Canadians. They are not merely spectators. The influences that are at work in the neighboring republic are not limited by imaginary boundary lines. It will be fortunate for Canadians if they are able to profit by the experiences of their neighbors.

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus with One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler, of Hightower, Ala., relates an experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Cleburne county, Ala. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some sausage meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would send it to me in the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner, and one twenty-five cent bottle cured the three of us." For sale by all druggists.

DEAR TOMATOES

A prominent gardener was heard to remark on the market Saturday morning that tomatoes will be very scarce and dear this year. Tomatoes are now selling on the market for 50 cents a bushel, and it is expected that next Saturday they will go up in price to 75¢ a bushel. This is caused from the shortage in the crop this year due to dry rot, the result of the continued dry weather.

Different Ways of Putting It.

This is a scientific way: "If a man falls asleep in the sitting posture with his mouth open his jaw drops. The tongue not being in contact with the hard palate, the succutaneous space is obliterated, the soft palate no longer adheres to the roof of the tongue, and if respiration be carried on through the mouth the muscular curtain begins to vibrate." And this is the popular form: "If a man doesn't keep his mouth shut when asleep he will snore."

The biggest sins are the ones for which we have no appetite.

The devotion of a mother to her son forms the ground work of a graphic story that is depicted in the new comedy drama, "The Wayward Son," which will appear at the Grand Opera House on Friday, Sept. 15th. It is clean, clear and clever—a play in which the varied characters chosen by the author to reveal his intention are woven into action that in itself has artistic value, and is alive with such elements as rivet the attention. The story told in unfolding the plot is a beautiful one, sweet, pathetic, natural, strong, and it teaches a wholesome moral lesson. Pathos and villainy are happily blended with comedy so that laughter is mingled with tears and thrills. It is a play that portrays honest, sturdy manhood and the deepest loyalty and possesses extraordinary interest as a study of every day life. No play dealing with melodramatic incidents over "held the mirror up to nature" more accurately than does "The Wayward Son." A handsome and realistic stage equipment has been provided, also a splendid company, headed by Neil Twomey, the author of the play. A thrilling railroad scene showing a full sized locomotive is one of the principal mechanical effects.

Antiquity of Wire.

The manufacture of wire is of very ancient origin. It has been traced back to the earliest Egyptian history. Specimens are in existence which can be proved to date to 1700 B. C. The Kensington museum has a specimen which was made in Minera 800 years B. C. Ancient literature contains many references to wire. From the ruins of Heracleum metal heads have been examined on which the hair is represented by wire. There is no question that this ancient wire was made by hammering out the metal, which was always bronze or of the precious group. This held true of all made previous to the fourteenth century, during which the process of forming wire by drawing or elongating the metal by forcing it through a conical orifice, made in some substance harder than the metal treated, was invented.—Cassier's Magazine.

When a horse picks up a nail in his foot what does the driver do? Does he whip the limping, lagging animal, and force him along? Not unless he wants to ruin the horse. At the first sign of lameness he jumps down, examines the foot and carefully removes the cause of the lameness. What is called "weak stomach" is like the lameness of the horse, only to be cured by removing the cause of the trouble. If you stimulate the stomach with "whiskey medicines" you keep it going, but every day the condition is growing worse. A few doses sometimes of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will put the disordered stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition in perfect condition. Ninety-eight times out of every hundred "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure the worst ailments originating in diseases of the stomach. It always helps. It almost always cures. To cure constipation use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Peppermint. They're sure.

TOWNSHIP COUNCILS

RALEIGH COUNCIL.

The above council met at Court of Revision on the Merlon sidewalk in the Township Hall on the 28th day of August, with L. A. Pardo, Ed. Sykes, W. J. Shreeve and Wm. H. Irwin present.

The necessary vote were subscribed and filed with the Clerk. The Clerk submitted an appeal from Wm. Hickey as being assessed for too much frontage. No evidence was offered and it was moved by Mr. Sykes and Mr. Irwin that the Court of Revision be closed.—Carried.

Wm. H. Williams offered to give all the piles needed in the bridge and to give the land at each end for turning so that the bridge could be constructed straight across the drain.

Moved by Irwin and Wellwood, that the matter of building a bridge over the R. P. drain at the 3rd concession road be referred to the Reeve with power to interview our solicitor and act on his advice.—Carried.

In reference to the Wright drain the P. M. R. Company wrote that they did not consider the company responsible to enlarge the culvert across their property at their own expense.

Moved by Sykes and Irwin, that the petition of Wm. H. Chase and others to take immediate steps to compel the P. M. R. Company to enlarge the culverts on their property over the various drains repaired during the year 1904.—Carried.

Applications for collector of rates for 1905 were received from Richard Lane, Fred. C. Jenner and Martin A. Drew.

Moved by Wellwood and Shreeve, that the collector's salary be $120.—Carried.

Moved by Wellwood and Shreeve, that Martin A. Drew be collector.

Moved by Irwin and Sykes, that Richard Lane be collector.—Carried.

A by-law was passed adding one per cent. per month to all taxes remaining unpaid on the last day of February, 1905.

A petition was received from Wm. H. Chase and others to construct a drain along the south side of the 7th concession road from the Doyle drain eastward about 85 rods.

Moved by Shreeve and Irwin, that the petition of Wm. H. Chase and others be referred to J. W. Shackleton, C. E., to examine the proposed drain and report with plans, estimates, etc.

Reports.

The report of J. W. Shackleton for the proposed repair of the Slagg drain was read and considered.

Moved by Irwin and Sykes, that the engineer's report on the Slagg drain be adopted and the Clerk instructed to serve a copy thereof on the Grand Trunk Railway Co.

The report of J. W. Shackleton for the repair of the Crow drain was read.

The interested parties present considered the work too extensive and asked that the report be referred back and the cuttings be reduced one foot in depth and to a bottom width of four feet. On motion the report was referred back.

Wm. H. Irwin reported that he had waited on the owners of the Fairbanks property and they would accept $100 an acre for the land required to extend Lacroix street to the 6th concession road. Laid over.

L. A. Pardo reported having bridge over the Government Drain No. 1 on the Middle Road repaired at a cost of $40.83; commission fees $2.

The following persons were paid for sheep killed by dogs, viz.: Nelson Rosen $4.00, Mrs. Smith $7, Jno. Houston $11.33, Sidney Seaman $26.66.

Moved by Sykes and Shreeve, that the Clerk notify John A. Stringer not to issue any more orders on the Treasurer for work done on the Millar, Fuce and Waddick drains or the Lewis drain without the approval of the council.—Carried.

He Will Cure You First Then You Pay Him

The physician, who has not sufficient confidence in his own ability to cure his patient first and receive his pay afterwards, is not the man to inspire confidence in those who are in search of honest treatment.

Dr. Goldberger's acceptance of a case is equivalent to a cure, because he never accepts a case unless he is satisfied that he will give the money for the value he has given the patient, but he expects to prove his worth and show positive and satisfactory results before he asks for the fee. So, should he fail to cure the case, the patient loses nothing, while the doctor, when he cures the patient, has given him what is worth much more money—he has given him his health back.

Dr. Goldberger has 14 diplomas and certificates from the various colleges and state boards of medical examiners, which should be sufficient guarantee as to his standing and ability. It makes no difference who has failed to cure you, but it will be to your advantage to get the doctor's opinion of your case free of charge. He wants to hear from patients who have been unable to get cured, as he guarantees a positive cure for all chronic, nervous, blood and skin diseases, which he accepts for treatment. He not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, blood poisoning, physical and nervous debility, etc. All medicines for patients are prepared in his own laboratory to meet the requirements of each individual case. He will send a copy of the subject, which contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free of charge. All cases for Canadian patients sent from Windsor, Ont., duty and transportation prepaid. Adm. only, Dr. S. Goldberger, 208 Woodward Ave., Suite 511, Detroit, Michigan.

BLOTTED OUT

By CAROL MURRAY

Copyright, 1905, by R. B. McClure

They were a rough lot of men under the shadow of Diamond hill—miners, teamsters, prospectors, traders and cattlemen—but when old John Dyer, one of the mine bosses, brought his daughter Kate from civilization to live with him there and keep his humble cabin he had faith in that civility that has always made the western man respect the other sex. He knew that she would have many admirers and that there would be quarrels on her account, but he was a widower and she motherless, and he hoped he was doing what was best.

The cabin, like the rude and straggling village, was backed by the grim mountain, while along its front as far as human eye could reach there glittered the white sands of the Mojave desert. Here and there out on that dreary waste were patches of ugly cacti, and intuition told the girl as her eyes searched the desert for the first time that out there under the blazing sun the rattlesnake basked and the lizard glided swiftly over the bones of men and animals.

The desert was not always at peace, its surface resembling a placid lake. Now and then a wind, born up in the gulches of the mountain, came down and went sweeping across the sands, and then the spectator saw great clouds of dust as the driven here and there to cut and gash and wound whatever lived. The sands never swept in from the desert, but always were driven the other way. Had it not been so Diamond mine and the town around it could not have been.

The coming of the girl among the thousand men was an event. There were a few old women there—cooks and laundresses—but here was a girl, a handsome young girl. Her influence was felt almost immediately. The mine manager said that more soap, combs, handkerchiefs and looking glasses were called for from the company store in a week than were bought during the preceding three months.

At least 800 of the thousand men determined on an introduction at once, but when it came to the point, and even after three months passed, there were not a dozen callers at the cabin. A month or two later it was said that only two of the dozen stood a chance. By "chance" they meant marriage. It never occurred to any of them that a girl might have come among them without falling in love and marrying one of their number.

It was strange that among Kate's earliest and most persistent admirers was Pedro Diaz, a full blooded Mexican. He had charge of the company's transportation, and he managed through the father to force an introduction. He was kindly received by the girl, but no more. He was tolerated by the father, but there was no welcome for him. Pedro was a swaggerer. He was an egotist. He thought he was in love, and once having made up his mind to this he was ready to maintain what he called his right by fair means or foul.

The thousand men said that Pedro's rival was Tommy Britt, the keeper of the company's store. He was an American, young, fair looking, and down on the books to be promoted for his energy, ambition and integrity. Perhaps he admired, as all others did, but he had never asked himself if he was in love. He found both father and daughter congenial company, and that would have been his excuse had any one asked him why he paid two visits a week to the cabin.

There came a day when Pedro Diaz made up his mind to know his fate. He chose an hour when he knew the girl would be alone, and he dressed in his best and knocked on the cabin door. He believed himself irresistible, and he smiled and smirked and offered his love. There was a moment of astonishment, and he found himself rejected. The girl tempered her refusal as much as possible. It was her first offer, but womanly instinct told her to soften the blow even though the man was obnoxious to her.

"What! You refuse Pedro Diaz?" exclaimed the man in reply. "You refuse me—me, who am worth $5,000 and could marry any senorita in my own country! Do you quite understand me?"

"I have no love for you," replied the girl. "But that makes no difference. You shall love me later on. I am Pedro Diaz. It is the first time I ever did a woman the honor of asking her to marry me."

The girl's reply was a firm one, and Pedro flung himself out of the cabin with anger raging in his heart. He had been snubbed, humiliated, made a fool of. There was a man in the case, of course, and it could be none other than the storekeeper. Whoever opposed Pedro Diaz in any of his cherished schemes must die. He was not five minutes deciding on the death of Britt.

That morning the young man had ridden away across the desert, a stretch of twenty long, hot miles, to strike the railroad on the other side and order further supplies by telegraph. The ride was twenty miles over and twenty miles back. He would cover the distance in a day, but it would be late in the evening when he returned.

"I will meet and kill him as he returns," decided Pedro, and when darkness fell he eluded observation as much as possible and rode out on the desert. There was no trail across the sands. He who would hold a straight course must depend upon the compass, and he must consult it often. There was fair starlight—light enough to see his rival many rods away. The sky was clear of those scudding clouds which might be taken as warnings that the whirlwinds were being born in the cold air of the gulches, and no noise came from the mountain except the whispers of the pines to the cedars.

When Pedro had made five miles straight out from the base he pulled in his horse and sat and waited, his face to the west and his ears alert for the slightest sound. For an hour he waited, and then of a sudden a cold chill struck the back of his neck. He whirled his horse about with an oath on his lips.

"It is the sand storm!" he muttered as he jumped to the ground. He had a blanket for himself and one for his horse. The animal lay down at the word and suffered his head to be wrapped, and just as the first sharp grains began to fly the man snuggled down beside the animal and muffled his head and snore.

He had seen a hundred sand storms on that desert. They came with a puff and went the same way. In five minutes he would be up and watching again, but when five minutes had passed the gusts were stronger. At the end of ten they began circling and running across the sands like wraiths. They also dug deep into the sands, and when they met with an obstruction they covered it in. Man and horse were soon in danger of suffocation and had to struggle up to throw off the weight. They were just in time to be caught by a circling breeze and spun around as if they were straws, and when the man was flung on his face at last and covered a foot deep in an instant the horse uttered a neigh of terror and snorted heavily away.

"It will pass, it will pass, and I will have my revenge!" muttered Pedro as he stood up with his back to the blast, but it did not pass.

He was flung this way and that, carried along or left half senseless on the sands, and not for a full hour did the wind scream out its goodby to the desert and return to its sleep. Then the surface of the desert was smooth again, and the man who came riding from the west could not tell that under his horse's feet lay a human body buried two feet deep. There had been a Pedro Diaz. The sands of the Mojave had blotted him out.

It is much easier for a woman to confide in the average man than in the average woman. She knows that the man will respect her confidences and keep them to himself. He is strong, has more experience of the world and can help the woman who needs advice. There is every reason why women should not trust their delicate constitutions in the hands of unskilled persons. It requires a thorough medical education to appreciate and understand the womanly organism. When a woman has ill and pains that she cannot bear—when life seems dark for every woman, she should confide her troubles to a physician of standing in the community, or one who has a national reputation. Certainly it would not be the part of wisdom to confide in an ignorant person without medical education simply because she was a woman. There is every reason why she should write to some great specialist, one who has made the diseases of women a specialty for a third of a century, like Dr. K. V. Pierce, founder of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. All his correspondence is held sacredly confidential, and he gives his advice free and without charge.

So uniformly successful has Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription proven in all forms of Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb, and Leucorrhoea, that after curing the worst cases of these distressing and debilitating ailments, Dr. Pierce now feels fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in cash for any case of these diseases which he cannot cure. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Sarah Bernhardt has an almost superstitious affection for a necklace of gold nuggets given her by California miners.

Podjeska, it is said, will sell her ranch in California and will return to Poland to pass the rest of her life in her native land.

Mrs. Howard Gould has the finest private collection of birds in the United States, in some respects excelling the aviaries at the New York zoological gardens.

In Paris the Countess Boni de Castellane (one of Jay Gould's daughters), who continues to lavish money on all possible objects, is said to display more jewels than the old noble families approve.

Adelina Patti's explanation of keeping youthful is that she never loses her temper. Another fact in connection with this great singer is that she owns a parrot, which amuses her by trying to imitate her singing.

Miss Margaret W. Tatum of Trenton, N. J., has notified Booker T. Washington, principal of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, that she will pay for the erection of a building at the institute in memory of her father, the late Dr. James B. Tatum of Trenton.

Mrs. G. M. Lake of Zanesville, O., has more enterprise and courage than many younger women. Although seventy years of age, she has taken a homestead in Idaho, and has just begun the five years' term of residence necessary to acquire a title to the property.

Miss Ida Smalley, daughter of George W. Smalley, the New York correspondent of the London Times, has accepted an appointment as stenographer for Charles W. Anderson, colored, the collector of internal revenue of the Second New York district. Miss Smalley is not yet twenty-seven years old.

PEN, CHISEL AND BRUSH.

Mr. Edward Hughes, the well known painter, exhibited at the Royal academy when he was fifteen years of age. F. Wellington Ruckstuhl has been commissioned to model a monument to Washington, to be erected in Denver by the German societies of that city. The cost will be about $35,000.

The first volume of the unpublished writings of the late Theodore Mommsen has been prepared for publication by Professor Otto Hirschfeld, the literary executor of the deceased historian.

Direc St. Cyr has recently obtained the right to translate the plays of Tommaso Salvini, the Italian tragedian, together with the rights of translation and production of the Italian League of Authors.

A school of artists in England is endeavoring to revive the antique method of painting with the yolk of eggs instead of oil. This method was superseded about five centuries ago by the modern method.

CURIOUS CULLINGS.

A curious effect of the recent earthquake in Switzerland was that it lifted sixty-five pipes in the famous organ at Berne out of their holes.

The Abyssinians, even at the court of Emperor Menelik, still eat their meat raw, inserting a strip in the mouth and cutting it off when there is enough for a bite.

A Frenchman who died in Constantinople recently left $45,000 to his nephew, M. d'Albi, who lives in Paris, on condition that the young man cycle to Constantinople to get the legacy.

Plans to build electric street car lines in Peking have aroused a great protest from the natives, who say the cars would be very harmful to the poor, as a large number of coolies now make a living by hauling passengers in rich shaws or on wheelbarrows.

NORWAY AND SWEDEN.

The spectacle of a throne going a-begging suggests that possibly the bomb has rendered crowns less popular than they once were.

An alliance between Germany and Sweden would bear a marked resemblance to an alliance between the family cat and a young robin.

Would not the Norway-Sweden dispute be a good one with which to start the proposed international arbitration—compulsory, if necessary?

KEROSENE.

After handling a paint brush, kerosene will remove the sticky feeling better than anything else.

An enameled bathtub or one of zinc can be cleaned in a few moments by rubbing with kerosene.

Ironing is smoother and clothes more glossy if a few drops of kerosene are added to the boiled starch.

When the kitchen sink is rusty and the set tubs from neglect become coated with accumulations of wash waters, rub them over with kerosene.

RUSSIA'S UNREST.

There is no disguising the fact that the red terror in Russia is daily becoming redder and more terrible.

The fates never sleep. Even if they did, they would be kept awake nights now inventing new kinds of trouble for Russia.

What Russia needs most, if the dream of a republic is ever to come true, is a large number of little red schoolhouses.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The Difference.

There is a good story told of Sir Chieh Chen Lo Feng Luh, who was formerly Chinese minister to England. Years ago he was secretary to Li Hung Chang. He is a very able man, and among other accomplishments speaks and writes English perfectly. The story is given in "The Navy as I Have Known It."

Li Hung Chang is reported to have said to him, "I don't know how it is we send our men to Europe and America, and have foreign instructors in our colleges, as do the Japanese, but we do not seem to derive the advantage from their instruction which the Japanese do."

To this Chieh Chen Lo Feng Luh replied:

"That is quite true. I was a classmate of the Marquis Ito in England. He is now prime minister of Japan, and I am your excellency's secretary."

All Right in His Case.

The teacher was giving the school a little lecture on good conduct. "Let me caution you on another point, children," she said. "Avoid criticizing. Don't make a practice of finding fault with other people or picking flaws in what they say or do. It is a very bad habit to form and will make your own life unhappy."

"Why, teacher," spoke up a little boy, "that's the way my father makes his living."

"You surprise me, Georgy. What is your father's occupation?"

"He's a proofreader, ma'am." The teacher coughed behind her fan. "Well, Georgy," she said, "I will make an exception in the case of your father."

RUNAWAY

The horse attached to E. Leverton's Singer sewing machine rig was left standing on Raleigh street this morning while Mr. Leverton was in a house on that street. Tiring of the monotony of this the equine stampeded down Raleigh street to Lorne avenue. Here the rig was turned but righted itself again at Queen street. The rig was somewhat damaged but a machine which was in it escaped injury.

Those who saw the runaway say the horse gave a vicious exhibition of kicking during the course of it.

AMUSING

A rather good story is being told concerning one of the inspectors of a sewer being put down on one of the city streets. The workmen had put in the trap and they had been covered over when the inspector in question came along and gave directions where they should be placed. The incident merely shows the intimate knowledge of the work they are supposed to superintend, possessed by the inspectors.

TO HEAR PROTESTS

The Mayor has returned from his Montreal visit filled with enthusiasm and has started right in by calling a special meeting of the Council for Wednesday evening. The meeting is for the purpose of hearing the protests of Harvey street ratepayers against the Windsor, Essex & Lake Shore electric road being granted a franchise over that street. In addition to this general business will be transacted.

THE DUPLIGRAPH

An invention which satisfies a long felt want in the business world especially, has been perfected by a Canadian. It is a duplicating machine for reproducing fac-simile copies from a type-written or pen-written original. The process consists in simply writing on ordinary paper and reverting the original on a secret composition and reproducing copies as fast as possible. It does away with stencils, wax paper, silk, rollers, etc., and costs nothing to operate. The patent rights have been secured and the machine is being manufactured and sold by Penman & Sprang, Toronto.

CITY ENGINEER IS RIGHT

Mayor Cowan Finds this is the Opinion of America's Leading Expert re St. Clair St.

Gains other Valuable Information at Convention in Montreal—Spends Pleasant Time

Mayor Cowan returned Saturday from Montreal, where he has been attending the 12th annual convention of The American Society of Municipal Improvements, as the delegate from this municipality. When seen by a Planet reporter this morning his worship chatted entertainingly concerning his trip and reported having the best of times.

"A great number of prominent men were present," said the Mayor. "Some of the brightest intellects on the American continent were there to discuss vital questions. Perhaps the best informed man present was Major J. W. Howard, consulting engineer for New York City. Mr. Howard was educated on the continent and speaks several languages. He seemed to have an inexhaustible fund of information on every subject broached, stating his opinions in a quiet and unpretentious manner, which made him a general favorite. Seeing he was looked up to as the intellectual giant of the occasion, I asked him," continued his worship, "his opinion concerning the St. Clair street pavement and the electric road. The City Engineer has claimed all along that the tracks should conform to the grade of the street. This has been contested by the railway people. After asking several pertinent questions Mr. Howard stated emphatically that the engineer was right, under the conditions that obtain here."

"Another matter that impressed me," continued the Mayor, "was the high esteem in which bitulithic pavement is held. Major Howard read a paper on paving materials, in which he paid this class of pavement the highest praise. The representative of Pawtucket, R. I., was also present. This is the first place where this class of pavement was laid. After five years' steady use the pavements were as good as new. The matter is all the more important since it was a discussion, free from prejudice, on the respective merits of paving materials."

"We were given a royal good time," the program including a reception the first day and a review of the Fire Department. The brigade is very strong and very efficient, and went through several manoeuvres, including the extinguishing of a building erected especially to be set fire to. The delegates were driven around the city in carriages, with a splendid lunch on the mountain as a climax to the drive. In addition to this the Harbor Commissioners took the entire party around the extensive and pretty harbor by boat, and pointed out the various places of interest."

"The Canadian representatives—very few in number—were the guests of W. E. Lighthall, M. A., one day at luncheon at the Canadian Club. On the whole I spent a very pleasant and instructive time," concluded his worship, "gaining experience I hope to put to practical use."

POWDER MILLS BLOW UP

Concussion Like Earthquake—Shock Felt For Miles.

Disaster at Connellsville, Pa.—Complete Devastation Marks the Site of the Rand Powder Works—None of the Ten Buildings That Made Up the Plant Remains Standing—Twelve Are Dead.

Connellsville, Pa., Sept. 11.—The Rand Powder Works, near Uniontown, Pa., blew up about 8.15 o'clock Saturday morning. Fifty men are employed at the works. At least 12 have been killed.

It is said the explosion started in a car of powder, and spread to all the buildings of the plant. One of the odd features of the affair is that a passenger train on the Baltimore and Ohio, northbound, from Morgantown to Connellsville, was passing the scene at the time the explosion occurred. The train was jarred tremendously, and every window was broken. A number of the passengers were cut by the showers of glass which fell about them.

The concussion was like an earthquake to the country round about, and in the surrounding towns caused great excitement, which was not lessened by the fact that communication on the trolley line was broken off several miles from here.

Hundred to Rescue. The rescue work being carried on by hundreds of willing hands in hopes some will be taken from the ruins alive. Manager Rand was seriously hurt.

The scene of complete devastation in the vicinity of the site of the Rand Powder Works, beggars description. Men were at work Saturday plowing over and digging in the debris in the hope of finding more bodies, but only an arm, shoulder, foot or portion of charred bone could be found now and then, and it is likely that the bodies of the twelve missing will never be identified.

A child of Isaac Mathews of Leith was run over by a wagon on its way to the scene of the explosion and killed.

Some of the employees of the company believe the explosion was planned. A man living on the mountain side claimed to be looking in the direction of the plant and saw the first explosion. He says: "I was quickly than I can tell you the other mills went off one after another, and I am sure there was not a minute before the first explosion and the last, showing plainly that the fire from one could not have been communicated with the others as they were from 500 to 1,000 feet apart."

Bringing in the Mutilated. All Saturday at short intervals searchers would bring in bits of bodies or clothing. Some of these finds were carried in dish-pans, or damaged powder cans, which were found in the ground strewn for acres. One little boy carried in on a single part of a man's hand.

The hole where the magazine stood is about 15 feet deep and 50 yards square. The earth, black and soggy, is thrown up in huge chunks. This is the third explosion at the Rand plant within two years. Three men were killed in the first explosion and two were hurt in the second.

None of the ten buildings that made up the big powder works remains standing.

Later—Nineteen out of thirty-two men working in the mills are now known to be dead.

CREW LOST, CAPTAIN SUICIDES.

Tragic Tale of the Sea Brought by Boston Fishing Schooner.

Boston, Sept. 11.—The death of Capt. Isaac Frazer by suicide, and the loss of eight men by going astray in a fog, was reported by the remaining members of the crew of the Boston fishing schooner Joseph H. Cromwell, who brought the vessel into this port. The missing men were lost while out in dories on the Georges last Wednesday. The captain jumped overboard and was drowned early on Friday. He left a note declaring his intention to commit suicide.

Capt. Frazer hailed from Cape Breton. Four of the missing sailors also came from there. The other four were from Ireland.

York, Pa., Sept. 11.—Five persons were killed and 75 injured in a collision between a passenger and freight trolley car Saturday on the New York and Dallas Town Electric Railway, about six miles from here.

Two of the victims were killed instantly and three died later at a hospital here.

The accident is supposed to have been due to a mistake in signals.

Their Lives For Others.

Dover, N. S., Sept. 11.—Four persons were drowned in the Cocheo River here yesterday as the result of two accidents. In each case one of the victims met death in trying to save another person.

As the schooner Kimball was passing Dover Point house the main boom struck Thomas Keenan, a seaman, and knocked him overboard. George Jones was preparing to go to the rescue when he lost his balance and fell from the railing, striking his head on the small boat lowered. He sank instantly. Keenan, too, disappeared.

An hour and a half later, while Edward Durkin was out in a rowboat with three of his children, one of the little ones fell into the river. The father dived for the child, but was

His son, who was with him, was also injured, but not fatally. He leaves his mother, wife and large family.

Engine and Train Collide.

Montreal, Sept. 11.—A serious accident was narrowly averted Saturday at West Brome, on the C. P. R., when engine 25, running light, collided head-on with a southbound passenger train. It is supposed the engineer of the light engine forgot his crossing order. The passengers were thrown from their seats, and several were slightly injured. The engine crews jumped, but Engineer Robertson of the passenger train was picked up unconscious. He will be out of the hospital in a few days.

SWELL SHOW

Chatham is to be Treated to the Real Goods in Isle of Bong Bong Next.

Monday—Mr. Brisco's Enterprise

Perhaps no better attraction was ever booked in Chatham than the Isle of Bong Bong, which comes here on Monday night next direct from the Detroit Opera House, and Manager Brisco is to be commended on his enterprise in securing the production.

The company includes as its prima donna Alice York (Miss Coddie Hill) sister to Miss H. Eytine Hill, of this city, and she will doubtless be accorded a very warm welcome.

The Detroit Free Press asserts in yesterday's issue "that no musical such popularity, and at the same time, won so great a measure of critical approbation as this mirthful concoction."

"The action, as the title implies, takes place on the island of Bong Bong, Percy Fitzmaurice, an English Lord, visits the island to look after an estate inherited by him. He is accompanied by Gordon St. Bernard, who held the position of master of the hounds on Lord Percy's estate in England. Lord Percy is in love with an American girl. The latter has an aversion to men of title. Gordon is mistaken for the nobleman, and, as a joke, Lord Percy allows it to go on. While Gordon is elevated to the title of Lord, Percy poses as the servant. This gives rise to many amusing and ludicrous situations."

The musical score is encircled with excellent songs and effective ensembles. Among the former are "Diplomacy," "My Uncle Sam," "If I Were the Man in the Moon," "Oh, the Duce," "What's the Use?" "Ask the Man," "I'm Lonesome for You," "The Revel of the Brownies," and "Heap Love," a seductive Indian serenade.

The company numbers more than 100 people. The leading comedy part is entrusted to John W. Ransome, the comedian, who won international renown as the Cincinnati Brewer in the "Prince of Pilsen." Alice York is the prima donna. Others are Anna Boyd, Kate Uart, Elizabeth Thomas, Edith Depew, John Hendricks, Walter Ware, Clement Johnstone, Charles R. Haig, and Leonard B. Hoyt.

The plan for this splendid offering opens at Brisco's on Wednesday morning.

ASPIRES TO A THRONE

PRINCE CHARLES OF DENMARK, WHO MAY BE NORWAY'S KING.

Although Danish Navy Furnishes Little Opportunity He Made a Very Creditable Sailor—Married the One Woman in the World For Him, His Cousin, the Princess Maud of Wales.

Prince Christian Frederick Charles George Waldemar Axel, known in ordinary parlance as Prince Charles of Denmark, who has become prominent recently on account of the suit for the throne of Norway, is the second son of Prince Frederick, heir apparent to the throne of Denmark. He is thirty-three years of age, having been born in the old feudal palace of Amalienborg, the early home of so many of the royal heirs of the aristocratic Oldenburgs, on Aug. 3, 1872.

At the age of nineteen Prince Charles became a lieutenant in the royal Danish navy. He was put in command of a cruiser and sent to Iceland to enforce the fishery regulations against foreign steam trawlers engaged in illegal acts on the coasts of that island. He did the work so satisfactorily that the citizens of Reykjavik thanked him publicly and banqueted him and his fellow officers. There was little opportunity to distinguish oneself in the Danish navy, but Prince Charles made a very creditable sailor. He was also stationed for a while in the Danish West Indies and made a good record there. At twenty-three he was over six feet in stature and correspondingly muscular in development. The Danish royal family, the most enthusiastic and successful of monarchs in Europe, determined that it was time Prince Charles was married.

The Prince, however, although he was entirely willing to yield to the family determination to marry him off, maintained a stubborn preference. Between the royal families of Denmark and Great Britain there had existed the most friendly and intimate relations ever since the marriage of the Danish Alexandra to the heir to the English throne. Once a year at least there was a family reunion at Copenhagen, and the Danish cousins were often seen at Sandringham. The sailor Prince declared that when he married, he should wed the one woman in the world who had long held his robust heart in safe keeping—his cousin, Maud of Wales. His mother was furious. As a last resort Louise appealed to the British relatives. To her amazement and disgust, she found them ranged against her. The Princess Maud declared that she was fond of her Danish lover and meant to marry him. The Prince of Wales was devoted to his youngest daughter, and so was her powerful grandmother, Queen Victoria, who made no secret of the fact that she regarded it as an excellent match. Most potent of all, the British people took a fancy to the match and set up a clamorous demand. The Dane was well liked in England, and "Princess Harry" as her father dubbed her, was a prime favorite. King Christian and his amiable queen were won over and the lovers were married in the Chapel Royal in the presence of a great gathering of relatives and friends. The entire British nation smiled benignly and gave itself up unreservedly to a general holiday.

For the daughter of a King Princess Charles of Denmark is inclined to be quite democratic. As Princess Maud, third daughter of the British monarch, she was quite popular with the English public and was noted for her beauty, her talents and her unconventionality. She often used to complain about the duties of being "royal."

Princess Maud was born in 1869 and married Prince Charles, second son of the Crown Prince of Denmark, in 1886. She is a good linguist and is an accomplished Russian scholar. Is a clever bookbinder and photographer, can sew well and even spin and used to spend hours at her spinning wheel. On his marriage to Princess Maud the young man who converts the Norwegian throne received a settlement of $2,500,000 as his wedding gift and a splendid residence in Copenhagen.

OLD INDIAN PIPES.

Each Feather in a Stem Represented an Enemy Slain.

It need scarcely be told that in the pipes of long ago each feather appended to the stem represented an enemy slain. If one doubted the record of the war eagle feathers, the warrior then showed the scalps of the enemy, which were kept as a sort of a sacred proof of his word. Such pipes were used only on occasions of peace and war. Speaking roughly, the best pipes of eastern tribes were in molded clay, the best of the western tribes in slate pipe stone taken from the famous quarry west of the Mississippi. Before the great buffalo and antelope hunts, when herds of game were driven into a pound or an inclosed area of snares, it was customary for the Indians to whiff the incense of propitiation to the spirits of the animals about to be slain, explaining to the Indians the desire for food compelled the Indian to kill and that the hunt was the will of the Master of Life, or "Master of the Roaring Winds," who would compensate the animals in the next world. The pipes used for this ceremony usually show the figure of a man in conference with the figure of an animal. Others show the figures of Indians with locked hands. This typifies a vow of friendship to be terminated only by death. It was usually between men, but sometimes between a man and a woman, in which case the platonic bond not only precluded, but forbade, the very possibility of marriage. After that who shall say that the stolid Indian has no vein of sentiment in his nature?

One of the most curious pipes I have seen I bought from a Cree on a reservation east of the refugee Sioux. It is in the shape of a war hatchet, of a metal which I do not know, though I suspect it is galena mixed with clay, the edge being sharp enough, but the back of the ax being a bow and the handle a pipe stem. The odd lines in Indian carvings and woven work are not without meaning. Fighting Mistah could read a legend where we saw nothing but bizarre markings. There were the circular lines, hollow down, meaning clouds; the cross, meaning the coming of the priest; the tree, a type of peace with its branches overshadowing the nations; the wavy line, signifying water; the arrow, war. The ordinary Indian can read a tribal song or chronicle from obscure drawings on the fave of a rock, or crazy colored work on a scraped buffalo skin.—Out-lag.

It has been on the market for 60 years. Surely this is reputation enough as to its efficacy.

Mr. Henry Voll, Carthage, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry with the best of results. Last summer I had the diarrhoea so bad that I had to give up work. A friend of mine persuaded me to give Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry a trial, which I did, and can say that it cured me entirely. I can recommend it to all who are troubled with Diarrhoea."

IV, Grand Duke of Hesse, K.G., and Princess Alice, daughter of the late Queen Victoria. He is a personal A.D.C. to the King, is a Rear Admiral in the British navy, and has been Director of Naval Intelligence since 1902. He is a Protestant. He is a naturalized British subject and entered the Royal navy as a naval cadet in 1868, became sub-lieutenant in 1874, lieutenant in 1876, commander in 1885, and captain in 1891. He served in the Egyptian war of 1882, and holds the medal and Khedive's star. He is an elder brother of Trinity House. He has no property in the United Kingdom, but owns Helligberg castle and an estate in Hesse, Germany. He is a brother of Prince Henry of Battenburg, who married King Edward's youngest sister, Princess Beatrice, and who died during the Ashanti expedition in 1896.

Simple Life in Iceland.

There are no manufactures in Iceland. Each home is a factory, and every member of the family a hand. Shoes are made from goat skins. The long stockings worn over these in the women and children, and even the beautiful broadcloth comes, smooth and perfect, from the hand loom found in every home.

The sweet simplicity of their national costume does away with the necessity of fashion books. Young girls who are about to be married need take no thought as to "where-withal shall they be clothed?" When they array themselves in the wedding garments of their ancestors, when even three generations remote, they are perfectly up to date in the matter of attire.

This simple life is conducive to a state of high morals, higher, probably than in any other part of the world. There is not a drop of liquor manufactured on the island, and for the 28,000 population there is but one place of incarceration for criminals, nor yet is there a court in which high crime could be tried. When a criminal trial becomes necessary the offender is taken to Denmark to answer to the law for his misdeeds.

The women are among the most advanced in the world, and they enjoy more civil rights than the women of almost any other country, having a voice in all elections save that for members of their Legislative body.

Vulcan a Theoretical Planet.

Strictly speaking, Vulcan is nothing more or less than a theoretical planet. No one claims ever to have seen it, and thus far it has eluded the search of the most wonderful revealing lens ever invented. All the evidence in favor of its existence is purely circumstantial but it has obtained a certain recognition from all astronomers since Le Verrier many years ago asserted his belief in its existence and further demonstrated his faith in it by giving it the name of Vulcan. It derives its being from the fact that Mercury has a fashion of varying its movements in a way not to be accounted for by gravitation, exactly as if some unknown body were influencing its course. During the eclipse of 1878 two separate observers Professor Watson of Ann Arbor in Colorado and Dr. Swift of Rochester in Wyoming, claimed to have seen several small planets near the sun. These claims were discredited by the astronomical world in general and then the search for the elusive planet or planets has been prosecuted at every opportunity, but nothing has ever come of it. Some scientists declare that influence that causes Mercury's erratic performances is a cloud of meteors so minute that they never can be discovered. Modern improvements in photography, it is believed, will make it possible to solve the problem, and astronomers will endeavor to fix it during the eclipse of the sun on Aug. 30.

Woman's Kidney Troubles

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is Especially Successful in Curing This Fatal Disease.

Mrs. J. W. Lang and Mrs. S. Frake

Of all the diseases known, with which women are afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal. In fact, unless early and correct treatment is applied, the weary patient seldom survives.

Being fully aware of this, Mrs. Pinkham, early in her career, gave exhaustive study to the subject, and in producing her great remedy for women's ills—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—was careful to see that it contained the correct combination of herbs which was sure to control that fatal disease, woman's kidney troubles. The Vegetable Compound acts in harmony with the laws that govern the entire female system, and while there are many so-called remedies for kidney troubles, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the only one especially prepared for women, and thousands have been cured of serious kidney derangements by it. Derangements of the feminine organs quickly affect the kidneys, and when a woman has such symptoms as pain or weight in the loins, backache, bearing down pains, urine too frequent, scanty or high colored, or deposits like brick dust in it; unusual thirst, swelling of hands and feet, swelling under the eyes or sharp pains in the back running down the inside of her groin, she may be sure her kidneys are affected and should lose no time in combating the disease with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the woman's remedy for woman's ills.

The following letters show how marvelously successful it is.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; a Woman's Remedy for Woman's Ills.

Mrs. Samuel Frake, of Prospect Plains, N. J., writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

I cannot thank you enough for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I first wrote to you I had suffered for years with what the doctor called kidney trouble and congestion of the womb. My back ached dreadfully all the time, and I suffered so with that bearing-down feeling I could hardly walk across the room. I did not get any better, so decided to stop doctoring with my physician and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am thankful to say it has entirely cured me. I do all my own work, have no more backache and all the bad symptoms have disappeared.

I cannot praise your medicine enough would advise all women suffering with kidney trouble to try it.

Mrs. J. W. Lang, of 636 Third Avenue, New York, writes:

I have been a great sufferer with kidney trouble. My back ached all the time and I was discouraged. I heard that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure kidney disease, and I began to take it; and it has cured me when everything else had failed. I have recommended it to lots of people and they all praise it very highly.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from kidney trouble, or any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Out of the great volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than likely she has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

Oxford Chancellor Range

One of the troubles with most wood-burning ranges is the lack of hot water. The usual reservoir is of small capacity and not placed near enough the fire to raise the water to a sufficiently high temperature, and it takes considerable time and fuel to heat the water at all.

The Oxford Chancellor wood-burning range is fitted with a large reservoir of planished copper, which is easily kept clean. This reservoir is placed next the fire-box, and therefore the water heats very quickly and to a high temperature. The reservoir may be detached or attached to the range in five minutes by anyone.

Write us for booklets about the Oxford Chancellor Range, and the address of the nearest dealer who can show it to you. A post card will do.

Then Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured His Diabetes

Starting Case of Thos. Harrison, of St. Mary's Ferry—He Tells The Story Himself.
St. Mary's Ferry, York County, N. B., Sept. 11.—(Special).—That Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure Diabetes, one of the most deadly forms of Kidney Disease, has been satisfactorily proved by Mr. Thos. Harrison, of this place. Speaking of his cure Mr. Harrison says:
"I began to suffer with severe pains above the region of the kidneys. When I lay down it was torture to get up again. My appetite failed and I lost flesh rapidly. I doctored with several physicians but it was all no use. Shortly after this I began to urinate blood and then I knew I was in the grip of that dread monster, Diabetes. At this time a friend prevailed on me to try a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and they did me so much good I continued the treatment till I had used three boxes. They cured me completely."

Dark Rooms.
There ought not to be a dark room in any human habitation. To have too much sunlight for health is not possible. Its extraordinary intensity under exceptional circumstances can always be moderated as occasion may require, but its plenary supply should always be provided for. Of artificial light generally it may be said that in all its forms, except that of electricity, inasmuch as it is produced by the combustion of some compound of hydrogen and carbon, previously volatilized or brought into a gaseous condition, it is more or less injurious to the atmosphere by consuming the oxygen and emitting mephitic gases.

WOMEN WITH WEAKNESS.
For all weakness which girls and women suffer no surer remedy exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They maintain that bracing health every woman so earnestly desires; they uproot disease, and bring strength that lasts till old age.
"No medicine could be more beneficial than Dr. Hamilton's Pills," writes Mrs. Mary E. Ayerton, of Victoria. "I have been strengthened, my digestion is better, I have improved in color and feel considerably better since using Dr. Hamilton's Pills." Sold everywhere, 25c. per box or five boxes for one dollar.

Jealousy.
Jorkins—My dear, I wish you would not sing that song about "falling d.w." Mrs. Jorkins—Why not? Jorkins—I remind me too much of the house rent.

In Harmony.
"What color does madam wish me to give her hair today?"
"Black, please. I'm going to a funeral."

Nothing can work me damage but myself.—St. Bernard.

WHY THAT WEARINESS?

You're uneasy, restless, without appetite. Still worst, you are thin and fagged out. Work must be done, but where is the strength to come from?
Make your blood nutritious and you'll have lots of strength. Your only hope is Ferrozone, an instant blood-maker, blood-purifier, blood-enricher. It brings keen appetite, digests food and supplies nutrition for building up all the bodily tissues. Ferrozone makes muscle and nerve-fibre, increases your weight, instils a reserve of energy into the body that defies weariness or exhaustion from any cause. To have virility and healthy vigor use Ferrozone, which all dealers sell in 50c. boxes.

Too Many Vindications.
"Man named Bill was always getting in trouble. 'But,' he would say to his friends afterward, 'I was vindicated.' Wicked men said cruel things about me, but I was vindicated." After this had happened seven or eight times an old fellow said: "Bill, I quit you right here. You have been vindicated oftener than becomes an honest man."

DON'T SQUANDER YOUR MONEY.

On worthless cures for catarrh. There is only one remedy that's successful—"Catarrhzone"—it cures when the doctor says your case is hopeless. No drugs to take, no atomizer to bother with, you simply inhale the fragrant vapor of this unsatisfying cure and get well quickly. Relief is instant, cure is guaranteed, so you run no risk with Catarrhzone. Don't experiment, don't put off, get Catarrhzone from your druggist today.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

By FRANK H. SWEET

Copyright, 1905, by Frank H. Sweet

The train stopped only a few moments, but the conductor and a porter bustled out, with deference in their every movement, and assisted the one lady into the car with much bowing. The train was already in action again when Enos stumbled breathlessly up the steps and sought to enter the car. The conductor was standing inside the door.
"This is a parlor car, sir," he said.
"Oh, that's all right," Enos answered quickly. "Extra, I s'pose?"
"Of course; but I doubt if there's any unoccupied space. Porter!"
The car attendant was just returning from the lady's chair. He stopped inquiringly, dusting cloth in hand.
"Have you any spare seats?"
"Just one, sah, down 't'other end."

"Very well. Give it to this gentleman."
The conductor turned as he spoke and preceded him a few paces down the car, then stopped and bent over the chair of a lady. As he passed, Enos leaned toward her with a diffident "Hello, Martha," but the increasing noise of the train drowned his voice, and he stumbled on with crimsoned face. The lady had not even perceived him.
Enos followed the porter through the car, but in hand, with a feeling that he was intruding into some one's drawing room. Passengers were seated or reclining in various attitudes—some reading, some talking, but most of them with their attention fixed upon the chair over which the conductor was leaning. Enos had never been in a drawing room car before, but even amid all this elegance and among these strangers he perceived that Martha was understood and appreciated better than he had understood and appreciated her himself. He heard a subdued "Who is she?" from one side and a "Don't know, but evidently a somebody," from the other.

He turned his chair so that he could watch her and still not be especially conspicuous. The conductor or porter was at her chair every few minutes trying to devise new means for her comfort. Curtains were drawn or raised, a ventilator opened to let in more air, the window closed to keep out a draft. Even the paper boy seemed to catch the infection, for he was continually leaving periodicals for her to examine at her leisure.
Enos watched her with mingled feelings of surprise and pleasure and perhaps with some depression. Heretofore he had looked upon her as in a way belonging to him. Now, with the entire car paying her homage, he wondered at his audacity. He wished that he had been bold enough to ask straight out to be her escort on this little trip instead of watching over her, as he was, from a distance. He wished that he had pressed his suit more assiduously and marveled at his presumption in pressing it as strongly as he had.

The conductor came through the car, and a man in the next chair reached out and touched his arm.
"Can you tell me who she is?" he asked in a low voice. "The car seems to be getting curious over so much attention."
The conductor answered in a voice equally low, but Enos caught the words.
"She's Mrs. Roche, wife of Cattle King Roche, you know. He's making a deal for our railroad. That's why our management is anxious to show him attention. We received notice that she would take our train at a certain point and for us to show her all the courtesy in our power. Seems a very nice little woman, but a little, just a little, too pleased with everything. Gives one an impression that she hasn't traveled much. But I have heard that Roche made his money very suddenly, so perhaps the attention is a little overwhelming."

Enos had turned away before this and was again watching Martha. He had heard that a man of the name of Roche was negotiating for the railroad, and he now allowed his glance to wander up the car, finally fixing upon a richly dressed woman in the chair beyond Martha as the one who was a little overwhelmed by attention. She did look self-conscious and, he thought, just a little supercilious too.
As they stood upon the platform at their destination a half hour later watching the train glide away Martha saw Enos turn toward her, not slowly and diffidently, as was his wont, but with head erect and both hands out. And somehow after the experience on the train it did not seem strange, but rather a natural sequence. To have seen him awkward and ill at ease just then would have been a shock. It was so much nicer for men to be easy and courteous, and Enos was king among men.

She put her hands into his naturally, impulsively.
"Oh, Enos," she breathed, "wasn't it beautiful? I never imagined it could be so nice in a train. Why didn't you tell me?"
"Well, I don't reckon I knew," he acknowledged frankly. "I was never in one of these parlor cars before, and it isn't so awfully nice in one of the others when it's crowded with folks. But say, Martha," still holding her hands and allowing something to come into his voice which she had never heard there before, but which brought a soft color to her cheeks, "you looked awfully pretty in those nice clothes, the prettiest I have seen. There wasn't a woman in the car who could touch you in looks, not even the one who's to buy the railroad. I just sat and looked at you and wished I'd got things settled more solid and wondered if I'd ever dare to speak to you at all. But I just can't wait any longer, Martha"—his voice quivering with suspense—"not a minute. Do you s'pose you could learn to love me a little—not all at once, you know, but just a little at a time, as you can. I didn't intend to be so hasty and inconsiderate, but that ride seems to have stirred me all up somehow. But don't you feel upset, Martha. Just take all the time you want to think it over, dear."

The flush deepened. Did she hear aright? Had that last word really come from Enos' slow lips?
"I don't need any time to think it over, Enos," she answered in a low voice, but firmly. "I do love you."
She might have added that this answer had been ready and waiting for him more than ten years.
"No; do you really, Martha?"
He made an impulsive movement, but was suddenly conscious that the platform was well filled with people and that some of them were looking at him curiously.
"I'll get a carriage for you, dear," he said hurriedly, "and—and I guess, if you don't mind, I'll ride alone. I never have ridden with you yet—not right close by, you know."

When the carriage was procured and he had helped her in, almost timidly, she looked up into his face, and he felt that he believed that I ever shall forget that train ride, Enos," she said.
"No, I," he heartily. "Sitting there watching you and seeing all the men round made me hasty and inconsiderate. But I'm glad of it now. I suppose it might have been a long time before I felt I'd a right to speak."
She caught her breath suddenly, her face paling.
"Oh, Enos," she whispered, "I never ever paid them. You told me about getting a ticket, but I was late, and they hurried me to the car and were so nice to me that I—I never thought about paying. What shall I do? And they were so awfully nice too."

He looked puzzled.
"It does seem sort of funny," he acknowledged. "Generally they're pretty particular about pay. I wonder they didn't ask."
"They didn't want to hurt my feelings, Enos. They were awfully nice, but I'm so ashamed."

He considered a moment.
"You—we don't want to be beholden to them," he said warmly. "I reckon I'd better meet that same train tomorrow and settle with the conductor."
"If only you would," in a relieved voice.

So the next day Enos was at the station, and when the polite conductor reached the platform he was the first to accost him.
A few minutes and the puzzled look left his face, and presently he turned away chuckling.
But he only told Martha that there had been a mistake and that the conductor had accepted the money and asked to be remembered to her.

Overreached Himself.
An old farmer had a choice lot of cows, and a neighbor, seeing the herd in the pasture, asked for how much he could have his pick of one. "Twenty-five dollars," said the owner. "All right. I'll be around tomorrow and select one." The next day the owner of the cows told his hired man to drive the only poor cow in the lot to the barn. Soon the buyer put in an appearance to buy a cow. He missed one, however, and was suspicious. "How is this? You said I could have my pick of the lot. Where is that other cow?" "Oh, that cow you don't want," said the owner. "She is old and no good, so I placed her in the barn. You don't want her." But the buyer insisted on having that cow. He suspected she was the best one of the lot. "All right, then," said the seller. "Drive that cow out, John." The cow was driven out, and the buyer would not look at the rest, but purchased her at once and drove her home. A day or two afterward he came back and accused the seller of cheating him and wanted him to take the cow back, but the old fellow refused, saying that the buyer had had his pick.

Economy of Space.
When Henry Ward Beecher was on a trip to the far west many years ago he was visited at his hotel in a little mining town by a local celebrity, a man noted as a hunter and scout, and the great preacher was especially cordial to him. After the caller had gone away one of Mr. Beecher's traveling companions took him to task.
"I marvel at the warmth of your greeting to that man," he said.
"Why?"
"Didn't you notice his eyes—how remarkably close together they were? That is a bad sign."

"Not in his case," said Mr. Beecher. "Didn't you observe his nose? It is high and thin—the nose of a great man. With a nose like that, why should his eyes waste space by sprawling wide apart? The man is all right."
Mr. Beecher's judgment of his caller was correct, as subsequent history attested.

Short on K's.
During the early days of New Zealand an apologetic paragraph appeared in an Auckland paper in which the editor explained the absence of lower case "K's" in his issue. He had foolishly lent these letters from his font to the government printer, who, having failed to return them, the indulgent reader would please notice that wherever a blank space appeared in a word the letter "K" was to be understood. There are only fourteen letters in the Maori alphabet, and the letter "K" is used in that language as frequently as the letter "E" in English.

MAKE YOURSELF KNOWN.

A Little Story That Shows the Value of Acquaintances.

How professional men make acquaintances can be illustrated by the story of two men whom I know. One of them, a dentist, had a practical father, who taught him how good an investment good clothes and many friends might be. This doctor lived for many years at leading hotels and at evening mingled socially with the guests. There was never a pleasanter man than he at these leisure times, nor a man of better appearance, although during the early years he was constantly in debt to his father, and in all this social life he never mentioned his profession or his work unless such personal talk came naturally into the conversation. Each year he went to Europe and dined at the captain's table, always in immaculate evening clothes. Sometimes he went and returned by the same ship, for there was little to gain by staying abroad. Everybody liked him, and today he has an immense practice, a considerable proportion of which he admits frankly can be traced to his steamship acquaintance. One day a year ago he met a lawyer of about his own age and degree of success at their club.

"I'm going abroad Saturday," said the lawyer. "Come along," he added, half in jest. The doctor hesitated for a moment in thought. "All right," he said. "What boat?" The lawyer told him and then asked with some surprise how he could manage to be away on such short notice, and if he had intended to take his vacation at that time. "I've been over eighteen times," said the doctor, with a genial smile, "and for the same reason that you have gone and are going. We'll work the boat together, you and I."—Arthur Goodrich in Leslie's Monthly Magazine.
