Urges Need of Manhood.

Cardinal Gibbons delivered a notable address at the annual commencement of Holy Cross College, Worcester, Mass., this morning.

I propose my dear young friends, to address you a few words today on the subject of Christian manhood. The question may be asked: What is the greatest need of our times for the betterment of society? Is it churches? Temples of worship are indeed very necessary at times. They bear evidence of the faith and devotion of the people. But they are not the most essential thing for the day. The primitive Christians worshipped God in the Catacombs of Rome, and some of our forefathers adored their Lord in secluded mountains and in recesses and caves of the earth. And they, we know, were most exemplary Christians. Is it hospitals and sanitariums that the times specially call for? Hospitals, indeed, are the landmarks of Christian civilization, and contribute immensely to the alleviation of human misery. But they do not constitute the greatest need of the day, for they relieve only a small fraction of the members of the commonwealth.

Again, what is the greatest need of the country and of the Church? Is it majestic and colossal state houses for our legislative bodies? Is it stately palaces for our Bishops and clergy? The convention that met in Philadelphia in 1787 to frame the most momentous constitution ever framed for the civil guidance of man, that convention assembled in a hall not conspicuous for its majestic proportions.

And external pomp does not augment the dignity nor the influence of our hierarchy. "You ought to see what a splendid episcopal house we have for our Bishop," remarked a clergyman to a brother priest, some years ago. "And you," replied the clergyman, "ought to see what a splendid Bishop we have for our episcopal house." It is not the dwelling that ennoble the bishop, but it is the bishop that ennoble the house. Is it schools and colleges that are most needed? Christian schools, like Worcester college, are indeed indispensable for the moral and mental development of the rising generation. But what would be the use of this spacious hall and the adjoining classrooms and an able corps of learned and pious professors, if there were no pupils to frequent the college? This edifice is the ark; you are the jewels that are destined to adorn and delight fair Columbia, the mother of us all.

THE NEED OF TRUE MEN.
I will now tell you what is the greatest need. What the time calls for is men, sturdy men, endowed with the courage of their convictions. We need men who are controlled by conscience rather than by expediency, who are guided by principle rather than by popularity, who are influenced by a spirit of patriotism rather than a desire for political preferment. Above all we need men of strong Christian faith, who are prepared to uphold their religious convictions in the face of popular prejudice. In a word, we need men of upright character. If you reveal to me your character as above reproach, I will reveal to you your destiny. It is probable you will not be president, or governor, or senator, or bishop. But the attainment of these high offices is not the test of genuine success. The true test of success lies in the fulfillment of duty. If you are faithful at the post to which Providence will assign you, no matter what that post may be, you will be successful in life; you will merit the esteem of your fellow-citizens; you will enjoy the testimony of good conscience, and, above all, you will have the approval of heaven. Your name may not be emblazoned on the fading pages of earthly history, but what is infinitely better, it will be inscribed in the imperishable records of the Book of Life.

But this fidelity to moral and religious principles in the face of obloquy and insult demands of you no small measure of moral heroism. Many a soldier who fearlessly rushed to the cannon's mouth, has quailed before the shafts of ridicule and the shouts of popular prejudice. The man who calmly fulfills a duty against public clamor, displays greater courage than the captain who captures cities. Let me illustrate this truth by one or two examples. Some of you are, I doubt, familiar with a book entitled "Tom Brown's School Days." George Arthur's noble character is admirably portrayed in that book. George's mother was a pious woman who inculcated in her son principles of Christian virtue. George was sent to Rugby college with the fixed idea that religion was not to be put on like a holiday attire, but was to be worn in the public school as well as in the nursery; that it was to be worn abroad as well as at home. The first night he spent at Rugby he knelt down, at his bedside to say his night prayers according to custom, before retiring to sleep. Just as he slipped off his shoes he felt a knock at the door. He opened it and found a man in a military uniform, but in spite of the officers and slippers, he went on with his prayers. No doubt his companions were secretly ashamed of their cowardly human respect, and in their hearts they applauded their victim. George Arthur on that occasion performed a more heroic deed than an older companion would have accomplished in plunging into a river to rescue a drowning comrade. For George in continuing his prayers, acted solely from a sense of religious duty, while the other youth in leaping into the river, would have been sustained by the plaudits of the spectators.

Daniel O'Connell, the great Irish tribune, accepted in his younger days a challenge from a gentleman named D'Sterry, whom he killed in a duel. In his more mature years when sobered by religion and reflection, he refused to accept another challenge. Now, O'Connell displayed greater manhood in declining a second duel than in engaging in the first one. For, in consenting to fight he yielded to a depraved public opinion against the voice of conscience, while in refusing the second challenge, he obeyed the dictates of conscience in defiance of popular clamor which branded him as a coward.

Plato, surmised the divine, one of the most profound philosophers of Greece, was accustomed to thank the gods for two things: First that he had Socrates for his teacher; and second that he was born and reared in a country so refined and civilized as Greece.

Now, you, my young friends, have still more reason to give thanks to the one true and living God, that you have for your teachers the disciples of Christ, "Who is the Wisdom of God and the Power of God, Whose knowledge surpasses that of Socrates as much as the splendor of the sun exceeds the light of the flickering lamp." It is the characteristic of all noble and ingenious natures to manifest a spirit of gratitude for preceptors. Indeed no eminent man can adequately compensate a teacher for the blessing he imparts in a sound Christian education. If we admire a Michael Angelo, who molds a figure like Moses from the rock of marble, how much more should we admire the tutor who molds and fashions the morals of youth! Alexander, the greatest of ancient generals, had for his preceptor Aristotle, the greatest of ancient philosophers. Alexander had a great affection for his illustrious teacher. We are told that he made him a gift of 800 talents, equal to about a million of dollars. Your beloved teachers hardly expect you to be as munificent to them as Alexander was to Aristotle. But I trust you will bestow on them what they value more than earthly treasures, that is, the pure gold of generous and grateful hearts, and above all, that you will exhibit in after life the virtues they have inculcated in you. If Plato gloried in claiming Greece as the place of his birth, how much more should you rejoice in being born and nurtured in a country so free and enlightened as the United States of America! Here, the k God, there is liberty without license, and authority without despotism. Here the government holds over you the scepter of protection, without interfering with the God-given and inalienable rights of private conscience.

No citizen of the United States should be a drone in the social hive. No man should be an indifferent spectator of the social, economic and political problems which are presented to his consideration. And if every citizen should take an interest in public affairs, surely those who enjoy the advantages of a liberal education should in a special manner have a deep concern for their country's moral and material welfare. Exercise the right of suffrage by giving your influence only to candidates of clean hands and unswerving reputation. But you will best serve your country by the integrity of your private lives. Political life is the reflex of domestic life. For the stream does not rise above its source. What would it avail you to be regarded in the public walks of life as a freeborn citizen, if in the sanctuary of your homes you were the slaves of intemperance and of an ungovernable temper? Above all, you will be loyal to God and to His Church. You will take an active personal interest in all that concerns the welfare of your religion. When the Bishops and clergy and people are galled in any matter affecting the interests of God and of humanity there is no such word as fail. They form a triple cord which cannot be broken. They form a triple alliance more enduring than the compact between Germany, Austria and Italy. They form an alliance, not of flesh and blood, but which is cemented by the divine virtues of faith, hope and charity. Let the words of the Psalmist be your inspiring watchword: "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand be forgotten. Let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth if I do not remember thee, If I make not Jerusalem the beginning of my joy."

The Buffalo Union and Times advises King Edward to join the Home Rulers and help on the agitation. "Do it, Edward, and then we'll look upon you as a real King." We can imagine what a fine scorn it would show for our Canadian ignorance of the Constitution of the United States, were we to tender similar unconstitutional advice to President Roosevelt.—Oakes.

Years ago a dock-laborer's strike at Quebec sent the shipping to Montreal and made that port what it is today. Since then the Ancient Capital has been only a port of call for ocean liners till the C.P.R. decided to make it the terminus for their new steamers. Now there is another longshoremen's strike and the "Empresses" are going to Montreal. What is the matter with the labor leaders of Quebec? Are they deaf and blind?

A Great Catholic Scientist.

M. Berthelot, the great French scientist and unbeliever, has been succeeded in his office of perpetual secretary of the Academy of Sciences, in relation to the physical sciences, by M. de Lapparent, for whom a very large majority of the votes were cast. "He is," says L'Univers, "a pronounced Catholic, a firm believer of our religious beliefs and of our civil liberties." M. de Lapparent is a professor at the Catholic Institute of Paris. From his youth he has won honors. In 1857, when eighteen years of age, he entered the school of polytechnics at the head of his class, and he left it at the head. He was first out at the school of mines. Elie de Beaumont chose him as his collaborator for the geographical map of France. In 1867 he was secretary of the French Geological Society. In 1874, he was actively engaged in work on the Arago French submarine tunnel. In 1875, he received the offer of the chair of geology and mineralogy at the new Catholic University of Paris, and sacrificed the advantages of a public career in order to give himself completely to the Catholic Institute, where he organized scientific teaching of the first rank, enriched with collections which he had himself formed. There, too, he instituted lessons in physical geography, which won for him in 1890 the presidency of the central commission of the Society of Geography and the honor of being delegated from this society to the International Congress in London.

He has, moreover, not ceased to continue and to perfect the works which have won for him an international reputation, as his "Treatise on Geology" and his "Course of Mineralogy." The "Treatise on Geology," finished in 1882, at once acquired such an authority that a new edition became necessary in 1885. This was at first a volume of 1,200 pages; today there are 2,000. More than 40,000 copies of this incomparable work are in circulation; half of them in foreign lands. A resume has been made of the book, and has had six editions. A "Compendium of Mineralogy," "Lessons in Physical Geography," "Geology in Railroads," ( pamphlets containing scientific and apologetic studies); a number of articles published in the Correspondant, of which a partial collection has been made in the form of a volume entitled "The Age of Iron;" other articles in the Revue des Questions Scientifiques de Bruxelles—all this does not complete the list of works that we owe to M. de Lapparent's pen.

His many conferences have been found delightful by various audiences, comprising specialists and most exacting judges. Many times international congresses have heard and applauded M. de Lapparent. He spoke in German at Berlin and at Munich, and in the latter city he presided at the International Scientific Congress of Catholics.

Medals of gold and prizes of honor have been awarded him often by his peers, before whom, and before his pupils, he has never dissembled anything in regard to his religious convictions, convictions of his mind as of his heart.

In fact, in his great work, the "Treatise of Geology" which was destined to have so magnificent and so legitimate a success, M. de Lapparent affirms the existence of a Creator. With the clearest he has

KIDNEY COMPLAINTS

The kidneys form a very important channel for the outlet of disease from the system, carrying off accumulations that poison the blood. The kidneys are often affected and cause serious disease when neglected. When the back aches, specks float before the eyes, the urine contains a brick-dust sediment, or is thick and stringy, scanty, highly colored, in fact when there is anything wrong with the small of the back or the urinary organs then the kidneys are affected.

THE HERALD

WEDNESDAY, JULY 17, 1907. SUBSCRIPTION—$1.00 A YEAR. PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY. JAMES McISAAC, Editor & Proprietor.

Please send in your subscriptions. Increased Dominion Subsidies.

In discussing the question of Provincial Subsidies in our last issue, we pointed out the correctness of the position taken by the Opposition regarding this matter, as proved by subsequent events. How very different was the conduct of our delegates to the Ottawa Conference from that of the Premier of British Columbia. Prince Edward Island representatives to the Conference remained dumb, they not only failed to present our claims for additional subsidies but they likewise allowed the safe-guarding words of clause C to be removed without a word of protest. They appear to have been afraid to open their mouths in behalf of their Province lest Sir Wilfrid and his colleagues might look askance at them. In striking contrast to this cringing attitude was the course pursued by Premier McBride, of British Columbia. As soon as the work of the conference commenced, Mr. McBride presented a written statement setting forth the claims of his Province to special treatment. The members of the conference admitted that the Pacific Province was entitled to special treatment, and asked Mr. McBride what he claimed. His answer was that the question should be referred to an independent tribunal to investigate and determine. This reasonable request was refused by Sir Wilfrid, who recommended that a special grant of $100,000 for ten years be allowed to British Columbia. This concession Mr. McBride refused as a settlement of the claims of his Province, and then withdrew from the conference. The resolutions went through with this $100,000 for ten years included. But this did not cause Premier McBride to discontinue his exertions on behalf of British Columbia. He went to London and pressed the consideration of his claims so forcibly upon the attention of the Imperial authorities that the bill ratifying the increased subsidies has been so framed that the door is left open to British Columbia or any other Province. As we pointed out last week, the words "final and unalterable" have been eliminated from the amendment of the British North America Act. Some idea of the success attending the efforts of Mr. McBride may be gathered from the following extracts from the Canadian Gazette (London): "It has been contended that the Dominion Government need not have come to the Imperial Parliament for a confirmation of an arrangement already embodied upon the Canadian statute book. Canada, as was suggested, being mistress of her own revenues, could dispose of them as she pleased. But Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues, desiring as far as possible to give finality to the readjustment and to relieve Canada from further Provincial demands, decided to have recourse to Imperial legislation, and with this end in view the resolutions of the Dominion Parliament declare the readjustment to be 'final and unalterable.' Since he came to London Mr. McBride has had prolonged conferences at the Colonial Office, and especially with the Under-Secretary, Mr. Winston Churchill, with results of the highest importance to his Province. In the first place, Mr. Churchill, when introducing the Bill to the House of Commons, made it clear that while British Ministers and the British Parliament do not know enough about the relative interests concerned to judge on which side the merits of the claim lie, yet it must not be assumed that in a case of this kind his Majesty's Government will always be prepared necessarily to accept the Federal point of view; and he added:— "Such a deduction would be of too sweeping a character. The question we have to ask ourselves is: Do the constitutional amendments which are now demanded, do they command the support of the great majority of the people of Canada? And about that I think there can be no doubt whatever. The Federal Government in which British Columbia is represented has before expressed its opinion, and all the Provinces are in favor of the arrangement embodied in this Bill with the exception of one of the smallest Provinces. Five millions of the population of Canada are represented in support of the measure, as against 178,000, the population of British Columbia. We have therefore decided that we shall introduce a Bill to give effect to the wishes of the great majority of the Canadian people."

Continuing its consideration of the matter, the Canadian Gazette says:—"The Bill therefore must go through; but it goes through with an important modification conceived in the interests of British Columbia. What Mr. Winston Churchill went on to say was most most inadequately reported in the English journals. It was as follows:—

"Mr. McBride, the Prime Minister of British Columbia, has also stated his case very fully to us. He has with great frankness and much force placed up in possession of the views and grievances of British Columbia. We have endeavored so far as possible—to while we are unable to adopt his opinions entirely—to make the legislation agreeable to him, and we have not introduced into the legislation the words "final and unalterable," which it had been proposed to introduce, and which would have prejudiced British Columbia's chance of making some other friendly arrangement in the future with the Dominion and with the other Provinces."

From all this our readers will understand how successful Mr. McBride has been in the mission which he undertook for the benefit of his Province. But British Columbia is not the only Province that stands to gain from Mr. McBride's successful fight against Sir Wilfrid Laurier. By having the words "final and unalterable" removed from the Imperial amending act, the door is left open to Prince Edward Island to press for additional claims and for special treatment in consequence of our special condition. This is one of the points upon which our opposition last session took exception to the form in which the then proposed amendment was originally presented. That the above stated change so advantageous to Prince Edward Island has been made, shows the position assumed by our opposition was correct. For this change the people of this Province are much indebted to the energetic Premier of British Columbia.

Since the foregoing article was written, the following intelligence has come from London by cable, under date of the 15th:—"The British North America Act Bill is to be subjected to further amendments in the House of Lords. For instance the words "final and unalterable" which Premier McBride induced Winston Churchill to strike out of the Bill are to be replaced at the instance of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, thus closing the door against further British Columbian agitation for increased subsidy, which Winston Churchill at Mr. McBride's instigation expressly left open. The official papers indicate that the Earl of Elgin, the Colonial Secretary, means to add to the bill as a schedule, an address of the Canadian Senate and of the Commons which expressly declares that the new arrangement is a final and unalterable settlement. Lord Elgin also gives notice to move the following new sub-section. In the case of the Province of British Columbia and Prince Edward Island, the amount paid on account of grant payable per head of population to provinces, under this act, shall not at any time be less than the amount of corresponding grant payable at commencement of this act; if it is found on any decennial census that the population of the province has decreased since last census the amount paid on account of the grant shall not be decreased below the amount then payable notwithstanding the decreased population.

The King and Queen Visit Ireland. The first day of the visit to Ireland of King Edward and Queen Alexandra, to Dublin, the 11th inst., was a great success. The weather was fine, and the city gave the sovereigns a royal welcome. Both wore the royal colors—the King a green necktie, and the Queen a green and marve bouffe. His Majesty delivered brief speeches at various functions of the day, expressing grateful thanks for the warm reception accorded himself and Queen, and congratulated the country on the progress and prosperity indicated by what he had seen. His stay would be shorter than he would wish, but he intended to make the most of it. The prosperity of the country and the happiness of the people were objects near the hearts of himself and Queen. Their Majesties arrived from Kingston Wednesday afternoon. After visiting the Exhibition they passed in procession through the streets of Dublin to the Vice Regal Lodge, and everywhere dense crowds of people accorded them a hearty welcome. Earl of Aberdeen, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and his Countess, gave a garden party in honor of their Majesties. Invitations were sent out broadcast and thousands had an opportunity to see the King and Queen. After this function the royal party returned to Kingston in a motor car, greeted everywhere with hearty demonstrations of good will. They went on board the Royal Yacht Victoria and Albert in the Bay at half-past six. The warships in the Bay were beautifully illuminated. (A rumor is current to the effect that a portion of the state Regalia, valued at $250,000,000, which was stolen from Dublin Castle, and for the return of which the Government offered a reward of $5,000 was removed by an important official who disappeared.) King Edward wrote a letter to the Earl of Aberdeen asking him to express to the Irish people his Majesty's and the Queen's warmest appreciation of the reception accorded them.

DELAY IN APPOINTING JUDGES. February 28th Mr. Borden proposed a motion protesting against the practice of delaying judicial appointments, thus impairing the efficiency of the Courts and impeding the course of justice. Among the vacancies to which he referred was one which had existed for a year on the Nova Scotia Bench, and had caused numerous postponements of trials and appeals, while the appointment was held to meet party convenience. Mr. Borden's motion was defeated on a party vote of 83 to 50.

PUBLIC OFFICIALS MAKING PRIVATE GAIN FROM THEIR POSITIONS. On March 6th Mr. Northrup, of Rest Hastings, brought up the case of an Immigration Commissioner at Winnipeg, salary $3,000, who had carried through a land deal, giving him some $30,000 profit and had been sued successfully on the claim that he had deceived the purchasers. In his own testimony at this hearing the officer confessed that he had made use of the services and reports of other Government officers in order that he himself "might make money on the side." One of these reports received by the Commissioner officially had been carried off bodily by his land customers leaving no copy in the office. On a straight party vote the conduct of this officer was endorsed by a Government majority of 94 to 54.

Suppressed Accounts of the G. T. P. On March 20th Mr. Barker moved a resolution authorizing further inquiry by the Public Accounts Committee into a claim presented to the Government and accepted by the Railway Department for alleged expenditure of the Company on the G. T. P. line. A part of this claim, amounting to $160,000 was disallowed by Mr. Shannon, Government auditor, on the ground that the payments were for promotion expenses and not expenditure on construction. As to other portions amounting to some $50,000 the auditor objected that no details or vouchers were given. When investigations of these accounts became necessary the Company rather than have them examined, withdrew the claim, and the Government took from the public files all the documents relating thereto and gave them back to the Company. Under these suspicious circumstances the Conservatives in the Public Accounts Committee undertook to ascertain the particulars of this expenditure, asking for the return of the accounts and calling the Grand Trunk auditor as a witness. Ministers and their supporters in the Committee refused to ask for the accounts and the Grand Trunk auditor disregarded the summons and immediately sailed for Europe.

LABOUR DISPUTES. On January 9th Mr. Borden submitted a resolution expressing the opinion that legislation should be adopted for the prevention and settlement of labour disputes and asking for a select committee of nine to inquire into this whole question and report what further enactments are desirable and necessary. This motion was opposed by the Government and was finally shelved by a Ministerial amendment stating that existing legislation with certain proposed amendments was all that was necessary. The amendment was adopted on a party division of 78 to 40.

ROBINS IRRIGATION DEAL. On February 5th and 7th the House debated a resolution moved by Mr. McCarthy of Calgary condemning the deal by which a block of 380,000 acres of Government land was sold to a group of party favorites at $1 an acre, with irrigation conditions, which concession was immediately transferred to English capitalists at a straight profit of half a million dollars to the promoters before they had paid a cent for the property. In the same sale the favorites turned over another land concession at a profit of $350,000, selling for $12 an acre a land grant just obtained from the Government at $1 per acre. The Government party by a majority of 86 to 53 voted down Mr. McCarthy's motion and endorsed the deal.

THE GALWAY DEAL. February 21st Mr. Heron moved a resolution condemning the above transaction. One Brown applied for a closed twenty-one year grazing lease of 60,000 acres of land early in 1902. Brown disappeared without taking the lease or paying the rental and all departmental letters to him were unanswered. Contrary to the law and the advice of officials the concession was held for this unknown and undecipherable person for some two years. Then it was found that a Member of Parliament had been carrying round an assignment from him nearly the whole period. This Government supporter came forward when the lease was about to be cancelled, was allowed to take over the land, under an irrevocable tenure, a privilege that had been long previously repealed, and was forgiven all the back rent. Thereupon he immediately sold out his concession to a genuine cattle man for some $20,000. His only investment was $650. This deal was endorsed by a straight party vote of 80 to 49.

THE BLAIRMORE TOWN SITE. April 13th Mr. Lark of Quebec moved a resolution condemning the course of the Interior Department in giving to a party supporter, who also was a Government candidate for the House of Commons, the town site of Blairmore, which at the time it was granted, was worth $100,000 or more and would have cost about $30,000, and for which the Government received $430 or $1,700 less than was paid from the treasury for expenses in the transaction. This grant was made to the beneficiary as an assignee of the squatter's rights of an Italian railway man whose claim had been shown before the Exchequer Court to be based on fraud and perjury. Mr. Lark's motion was rejected by a party majority of 66 to 27.

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS AS CAMPAIGNERS. Mr. Borden on April 15th brought to the attention of the House a resolution which had been adopted two years before, and was then supported by the Premier himself, declaring that no official should be permitted to engage in partisan work of any description in Federal or Provincial elections. The Opposition leader showed that this rule had been violated in subsequent elections, and especially in the election of Mr. Fielding in Shelburne and Quebec, where Federal officers, custom house officers, postmasters and other officials acted openly as campaigners, three or four of them serving as agents of Mr. Fielding at the polls at his own request, and some of them exercising corrupt or coercive influence. In view of these and similar instances in other parts of the Country Mr. Borden moved a resolution expressing regret that the rule adopted in 1905 had been violated. This resolution was rejected by a straight party vote of 70 to 40.

BALLOT FRAUDS. April 16th Mr. Borden introduced a resolution in reference to fraudulent practices at elections and asking that provision be made for the more effective suppression of bribery; for the prevention of fraudulent marking, counting or substituting of ballots; for the better regulation of the conduct of elections on the part of both officials and candidates; for preventing the accumulation of huge campaign funds; for prohibiting contribution thereto by corporations, contractors and promoters; and also to expedite the hearing of election petitions, to prevent arrangements for their discontinuance and to provide for the thorough investigation of corrupt practices. This resolution also called attention to the fact that a measure for the amendment of the election laws in these respects had been proposed in the speech from the throne and expressed regret that no such measure had been introduced. This motion was rejected by a straight party vote of 78 to 44.

INCREASED EXPENDITURE, EXTRAVAGANCE, GRAFF AND CORRUPTION. On the 29th of April Mr. Borden moved a resolution setting forth that the rapidly increasing public expenditure was a matter of grave concern, that the expenditure authorized during the session then just closing amounted to $121,428,299, exclusive of railway subsidies of $5,000,000 and loans of $9,678,200, making a total of $136,106,429, or about $212 for every inhabitant of Canada and $110 for every family of five.

Mr. Borden showed that the taxation had increased from less than $28,000,000 in 1896 to more than $80,000,000 in 1906 and that the taxation per head had grown from $5.46 ten years ago to $10.00 now.

The resolution also stated that the public assets had been depleted by grants and concessions by which designating partisan intrigues had become rampant at the expense of the people, that the Public Committee had during the last two sessions disclosed the operations of middlemen who had made enormous profit and raked-off in public business, and also that election frauds exposed had been carried out by the expenditure of large sums of money and the aid of such middlemen.

Mr. Borden's motion asked the House to condemn the mal-administration and corruption. The motion was defeated by a straight party vote of 91 to 43.

This list of motions and divisions gives a fair idea of the policy and position of the Laurier government and the Conservative opposition led by Mr. Borden.

DIED. In Charlottetown, on the 16th inst., Mary, beloved wife of H. B. Smith, aged 74 years. May her soul rest in peace. At Forest Hill, on the 2nd inst., Mary Ann McCormack, aged 30 years. May her soul rest in peace. At Clear Springs, on the 4th inst., Michael A., son of Clement McDonald, aged 20 years. May his soul rest in peace.

At the home of her nephew, J. W. Stewart, Lot 48, on July 9, Mary Chahagan, aged 75 years. May her soul rest in peace. At Monticello, Lot 42, on July, the 9th instant, Ronald H. McDonald, in the seventy-seventh year of his age, leaving a sorrowing widow, three sons and three daughters to mourn their loss. May his soul rest in peace.

After a brief but painful illness, at Cable Head East, on the 13th July, inst., Pe'ar Sutherland, aged 81 years. Deceased was a native of Cable Head, and his father's homestead where he was born, was but a few phases from the farm on which he himself settled and where he spent his whole life. He was a kind, industrious and quiet man, well informed, and much respected by his neighbors. He reared a family of six sons and four daughters, and had the happiness of seeing all his sons settled in life. Five of them are married and settled on farms right round the old homestead, and one has made his home at Gloucester, Mass. All of them are prospering. His four daughters preceded him. His funeral took place at St. Peter's, on Sunday, and was very largely attended. After the Requiem service in the church, Rev. R. T. Gillis officiating, the remains were laid to rest in the adjoining cemetery. A distinguished widow and six sons remain to mourn a kind husband and father. May his soul rest in peace.

LEGISLATION BY ORDER IN COUNCIL. April 3rd on the third reading of the Tariff Bill Mr. Borden moved an amendment setting forth that legislation with respect to tariff belongs to Parliament and declaring that the clauses of the Tariff Bill giving the Governor in council power to bring the intermediate tariff into operation without Parliamentary authority be struck out. It was rejected by a straight party vote of 84 to 36.

NORTH ATLANTIC TRADING COMPANY. Mr. Monk moved on April 4th that the names of the persons representing the North Atlantic Trading Company, who had received over $300,000 from the Government for alleged immigration services, should be made known by the Accountant of the Interior Department, and also that he should give further details as to granting bills connected with the corporation. The Government has hesitated in keeping secret the names of the persons with whom Mr. W. T. R. Frieson made his establishing deal, opened this question which was rejected by a vote of 80 to 50, three independent Liberals voting for the motion and condemning the suspicious policy of secrecy and misrepresentation.

The lobster season along the north shore of the Island has closed. Although starting late, in consequence of the presence of ice, the season has been most prosperous. A very large number of cases have been packed, and the price is unusually high. It has probably been the best season in the history of the industry on the north shore of this Province.

One day last week a man named McDonald was harrowing on his farm at Howland Road. Leaving the horses for a short time to go to a well for a drink, they started to run, overturning the harrows and the well box. One of the horses fell into the well, which is about forty feet deep with six feet of water. After some trouble he was got out uninjured.

During the thunderstorm on Tuesday of last week a barn was burned and a horse was killed at Pownal. A horse was killed at Lot 40, and the church at that place was struck. Nuns as Farmers and Blacksmiths.

A community of nuns called the Sisters of St. Dominic, who engage in farm labor and the arduous work of the blacksmith, is very interestingly described by "J. T. O'M." in the woman's section of Sydney "Daily Telegraph."

When the Sisters of St. Dominic first arrived in South Africa, eager to sow seeds of religion, they purchased an extensive farm, with the object of employing laborers to cultivate it for the support of their convent.

When the Sisters of St. Dominic first arrived in South Africa, eager to sow seeds of religion, they purchased an extensive farm, with the object of employing laborers to cultivate it for the support of their convent.

From that time the Sisters have done their own blacksmith's work, and there are no more vexatious delays in the cultivation of their farm land, and they plod on from morn till night, attired in their brown habits, hoeing, ploughing, pruning and grafting, or driving and herding strong-limbed oxen.

One of the most striking effects in the appearance of the Sisters of St. Dominic in South Africa, is their rosy, tanned faces, so different from the white faces of the nuns under ordinary circumstances. This natural bronze is well earned. Day after day, week after week, month after month, and year after year, the Sisters toil at the large and in the field, exposed to the heat of the tropical sun, and the fiery heat of the forge.

It is, indeed, not too much to say that the women blacksmiths of the Dominicans are experts. To watch them at work is, indeed, an education to man on the energy, courage and adaptability of the so-called weaker sex. The strength and precision of the hammer swinging by these Sisters is a fascination, and many visitors go miles out of their way to gaze in awe-struck wonder and admiration at the hard-working women of the smithy.

Aching Joints

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, are joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

It is indeed desirably from rheumatism, but have been completely cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, for which I am deeply grateful." Miss Frances Berry, Prescott, Ont.

good sense. She was practical, and her personal spirituality was aided and tempered with a knowledge of human nature and a sense of humor. After an inspection of the vineyards, orchards, and the fields of growing crops, the Abbess conducted him to the blacksmith's shop. The smithy was a long, narrow building, with a strong frame, the sides boarded, and the whole surrounded with a red copper, with slatted sides, through which the smoke from the whitely fires filtered. Within were a well-built brick forge, a strong-capacious bellows of ox-hide, and all the customary paraphernalia incidental to the vocation of the votaries of Vulcan, such as hammers of various sizes, pinces, pincers for making holes in horseshoes, etc., and monster anvils.

"Tied up to a strong rack in the centre of the shop was a draught horse. With nail-box beside her, a nan bent over the near hind foot, with a foot resting in her lap, and with a pair of tongs was fitting a red-hot shoe to the scorching hoof. With the assistance of a Sister the nan nailed the shoe, and patting the horse soothingly proceeded to lift up another hoof and repeat the performance with a second shoe, which she had hammered into a perfect fit at the anvil.

"Once or twice she drove a nail in a direction that did not satisfy her. She withdrew the nail in a workmanlike manner, and substituted another, and at last the big horse was shod as neatly and as well as the average blacksmith could do it.

Pope Pius X. and the Bible.

The official organ of the Vatican (The Roman Observer), contains an address or letter by the Pope to the Society of St. Jerome, in which he commends the Society for the zeal with which they are spreading the Gospels over the civilized world.

The Pope calls attention to the prejudice which exists as to the Catholic Church not wishing the general reading of the Scriptures. The Pope's letter is written in Italian and is addressed to Cardinal Casazza, "Honorary President of the Society of St. Jerome for the diffusion of the Gospels." It says: "To our Venerable Brother, Francis di Paola, of the Sacred Roman Congregation, Cardinal Casazza, Protector of the Pious Society of St. Jerome for the diffusion of the Holy Gospels." Our Venerable Brother: Greeting and Apostolic Benediction.

"We who since the time when Patriarch of Venice, blessed the Pious Society of St. Jerome, and conceived happy wishes for it, now, after a few years, looking at it from the Supreme See of the Church, find reason of high satisfaction, in seeing how, in such brief space of time, it has made so much progress and has brought such notable advantages. For with its edition of the Gospels, the Society of St. Jerome not only has overrun Italy so as to establish action in order to reach the end more largely, but it has also penetrated into America, caring for the dispersing of its volumes wherever the Italian tongue resounds, and aiming to help especially the emigrants. It is certainly necessary to recognize that the fact of having published and spread among the people, with the guide of an opportune discernment, about five hundred thousand copies of the Gospels, constitutes a splendid proof of the extraordinary zeal manifested by the members in said enterprise, and of the very large sphere of action touched by the Society. These facts are evidently worthy of every man's admiration, because the means which the Society had at its disposal have been very limited; a fact also consoling and of good omen, if we consider the object intended by the institution, which proposes to offer to everybody the opportunity and facility to read and meditate upon the Gospel, in view of the special needs of our age, when, compared with other times, the avidity for reading is too great in general and not wholly without damage to souls; a fact also very beautiful, not only in itself as one which brings us to the narrative of an all-divine force, namely, to the story of the life of Jesus Christ, of which nothing could be conceived more eminently effective to enlighten us as to holiness; but also very fruitful, chiefly because it renders a signal service to the magister of the Church and because the reading of the Gospels prepares the souls to receive well the message of the Divine Word, and because when the sacred text has been read previously, the explanations of the parish priests will remain better impressed on the memory, and ripen better. We wish to add that, considering the present times, certainly it is not the least advantage of such publications to be able to say that, in virtue of their diffusion, and of their consequent reading, the echo of the voice of God goes and makes itself heard even among those unfortunate persons who, through despair, or hatred, or prejudice, flee from any contact with the priest. This is a thing which, in our eyes, is of precious and very desirable usefulness, in so far as it gives us a way to obtain the salvation of souls; if not with the voice, at least with the books, and with the teachings, emanating from the life of Christ we heal the evils of society and of the individual.

"We well know with what care the Association of St. Jerome attends to its work; and therefore we deem it superfluous to give its members any recommendations and incitements to push forward with growing activity their initiative. But, if we wish the Society to make every day more propitious advances, it should keep ever present this maxim, namely, that of all the enterprises none is more useful than that which best corresponds to the inclination of the times, and that when a work, in the brief running of years, has so nobly affirmed itself in the field of benefits, it is necessary to redouble the efforts in order to favor it. Therefore, now that the Association has produced among the people so much desire for the reading of the Gospels, it must feed that desire and second it with the continuous increase of the copies of the same Gospels, well persuaded that such increase of copies will be crowned with advantageous result.
