July Days at the Summer School.

The educational course at Cliff Haven which was opened so auspiciously by Rev. John J. Donlan, chairman of the Board of Studies, increases in interest as the course proceeds. The second week of the session was given over to Prof. Henry Zick, Ph. D., (Heidelberg) of Wadleigh High School, New York City, who in a series of five morning lectures treated in a masterly way "The Ethics of German Literature." Germany's great poets, the lesson of their lives and their message to the world. The evenings of Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday were devoted to dramatic recitals by Edward Abbott Thompson, B. A., Boston, Mass. The series was entitled "Literary Interpretations" and included dramatic readings with songs, Tennyson's "Beauchamp's Career" with musical settings by Richard Strauss, "An Hour of Lyric" and "An Hour of Humor." The extraordinarily large attendance and the close attendance of the audience at both morning and evening courses during the week bore testimony to the ability of these brilliant lights in their respective fields of literature.

The usual Sunday services were held at the Chapel of Our Lady of the Lake on July 9, and at the late Mass, which was a High Mass, the celebrant, Rev. M. J. Biggane of Brooklyn, delivered the sermon on the Gospel of the day which bore upon Christ's denunciation of the scribes and Pharisees. Father Biggane said in part: "The gospel portrays a characteristic denunciation by our Lord of insincerity and sham and while He selected the Pharisees as the objects of his censure, still He was in reality pronouncing His disapproval of these vices wherever they are found in the whole world. In the tenure of their system there was nothing positively bad; the Pharisees strove against adultery and drunkenness and stood for the strict observance of the ritual, and in these things Christ did not oppose them, for He was Himself the model of all virtues. But on every occasion that presented itself, He spoke against their merely outward religion (a body without a spirit); He called them "dead men," and "whited sepulchres full of dead men's bones."

The religion of Christ seeks the union of the entire man with God through supernatural grace which lifts him above the plane of nature and brings Christ to dwell within him.

At the family gathering in the evening, Mr. G. J. Gillespie of New York presided, and the features of the program were "A few words from the President" Rev. D. J. Hickey; a piano selection of his own composition by Mr. Camille V. Zookwer of Philadelphia, "A Paraphrase on the Henry Pranks of the Eulogists," a brief talk by Prof. Henry Zick; a word about prisons by Judge George A. Lewis, member of the New York State Prison Board of Pardons and Pardon, and finally "An old Friend of the School" by Clarence F. Smith of Montreal.

Last Saturday evening the Champlain Club entertained the guests of the Summer School at a bridge party.

Mr. J. M. J. Quino, who is in charge of the Boys' camp, has organized a splendid baseball team from the excellent material among the campers who represent Fordham University, Manhattan College, St. Francis Xavier's College and Clason Point High School. The golf links, from early morning until evening are dotted as far as the eye can see, with enthusiasts, young and old. Dr. P. W. Cremin, of New York, has recently broken all his past records. Mr. M. W. Holan, of Brooklyn, has lately become a golfer.

Last Saturday evening the Cliff Haven Dramatic Co. will give its first performance of the season. Under the able management of Mr. Bernard Sullivan, two one act plays entitled "My Father's Will" and "The Best Man" will be produced at the auditorium.

Nimbus.

Not many people associate the curious rings of light or color that are caught on the mountain mist of the Alps, with the delicately fashioned halo that encircles the sacred head of Christ and His Saints, yet the nexus between just such strange phenomena and the symbolical use of the nimbus in art and archaeology is charmingly established by G. Gelmann, in Vol. XI of "The Catholic Encyclopedia." Not only is its origin lucidly discussed but also its form, color and development. In poetry we learn that the symbol is chiefly used in the form of rays, flames or a diffused glow. In this respect perhaps Holy Writ furnishes the finest examples. (e. g.) "The countenance of Moses shone with a marvellous light in the presence of God."

Doubtless, descriptions of this nature suggested a conventional symbol of light for all divine and saintly ideals to the early Christian artists.

In the plastic arts a special form was early given to the symbol by pagans. Hellenic and Roman art, Pompeian wall paintings, miniature of the oldest Virgil manuscript, etc., all furnish their quota of proof that the nimbus was in use long before the Christian era.

A fact worth knowing, however, is that Holy Writ furnishes no example for the bestowal of a halo upon individual saintly personages; furthermore, we are told that it was not until the first half of the 4th century that Christ received the nimbus and then only when he was portrayed in an exalted character. Curiously enough the catacombs are of extraordinary assistance in determining the period when the nimbus was first used in the manner familiar to us.

On the sarcophagi of Christ and the Lamb alone appear with a circle or disc, but in the course of time, the saints, who according to Scripture, are children of light, began to share the honour. The rayless nimbus in pagan art signified merely majesty or power, but soon after its adoption into Christian art, it assumed a special emblematic value that rendered it appropriate for saints only. About this time Urban VIII formally prohibited bestowing the nimbus upon persons who were not beatified.

Gregory the Great first definitely determined its form (590 A. D.) when he permitted himself to be painted "bearing around his head the likeness of a square, which is the sign for a living person, and not a crown."

Many other interesting facts connected with the nimbus could be cited, e. g.: its bestowal upon John the Baptist, who is the only saint in the Old Testament to receive a halo; the early preference given to the blue nimbus as more symbolic of heaven, and the final adoption of the gold as giving a more obvious impression of light; the effect of the Renaissance upon the character of the nimbus; etc., but space is precious and the Encyclopedia itself is, or ought to be, easily accessible.

Pentateuch.

In view of the modern tendency toward sceptical disbelief in the sacredness and authenticity of Scripture, Protestants and others will find in this article that not a few of their cherished theories are, after all, founded upon false premises.

The Pentateuch is the name of the first five books of the Old Testament. The name of Father Maas is sufficient assurance of the scholarly excellence of the present article in Vol. XI of the Catholic Encyclopedia. He has thoroughly covered this difficult and very important subject in more than 38 columns, divided in four sections, viz. I. Name; II. Analysis; III. Authenticity; IV. Style of the Pentateuch.

Writing of the authenticity of these first five books of the Old Testament, Father Maas proves that the Mosaic authorship of the Pentateuch is inseparably connected with the question, whether and in what sense Moses was the author and intermediary of the Old Testament legislation, and the bearer of the Mosaic tradition. Modern criticism sees in the origin of the history of Israel in the work of the great law-giver, Moses, only the result or the precipitate of a purely natural historical development, but according to the trend of both the Old and New Testament, and according to Jewish and Christian teaching, the Mosaic Law is the origin and basis of the development of Israel's history down to the time of Jesus Christ.

In a very exhaustive and searching commentary on the proofs of this authenticity the most hostile and stubborn criticism is dismissed by the limp-logic of a succession of indisputable arguments, each one bearing upon and validating the other, although Spinoza, in the 17th century, rejected the Mosaic authorship of the Pentateuch, and Graf and his followers held that the Book of Moses referred to in I. E. d. r. iii. 2. eqq. etc., is not the Pentateuch. A study of the laws of Lev. xxiii and Deut. vii, 2-4, shows very clearly that the Book of Moses cannot be so restricted.

The critics have found many points in their minute analysis of the Pentateuch, due to the literary phenomenon of its variety of style. But in general the style of the work is in keeping with its contents, and while it is necessarily simple in the genealogical and ethnographic lists, etc., there is a strong dramatic note in the accounts of the Egyptian plagues and in the history of Joseph. "Moses explains the laws he promulgates, but urges also, and mainly, their practice. As an orator, he shows a great deal of emotion and persuasiveness . . . but his earnestness, persuasiveness and emotion do not interfere with the clearness of his statements. He is not merely a rigid legislator, but he shows his love for the people, and in turn wins their love and confidence."

Paul, Saint.

Protestant and Catholic alike will find in the 11th Volume of the Catholic Encyclopedia the article on St. Paul of the most absorbing interest, and one in which the author, in more than five pages of solid letter-press has prepared a thoroughly lucid and most convincing argument on the great Apostle. This article contains much that is new or very little known of the life of the saint, and in the second section the author shows us that the psychological explanations of Ronan, as of Holsten and Pfleiderer, in regard to the great apostle's conversion are worthless in face of the definite assertions of St. Paul himself. The only support of the Tubingen school in their assertion that the apostle had but a vague knowledge of the life and teaching of the historical Christ is in the misinterpretation and misinterpretation of text in II Cor., v, 16. The author has been at pains to refute the theory and completely to set other errors with regard to his theology as well, and he makes it all beautifully clear as epitomized in the antagonistic German cry of "Zurück an Jesu!" inspired by the ulterior motive "L'homme Paulus."

The article is a valuable addition to Pauline literature, both as a proof of the genuineness of his doctrine, and of the firm foundation upon which his detractors have based their reasoning. It is also a proof of the high standard of excellence maintained in the Catholic Encyclopedia.

Manners.

Manners are the hallmark of that life of quality, the foundation of which is good breeding, the native air of which is refinement, and the membership of which are all gentle folk the world over.

The bloom on the ripened fruit of civilization and the proof of its perfection is delicacy.

Whatever the form may be, and there are many forms in which good breeding may present itself—as many, indeed, as are the incidents of social intercourse, and whatever tends to the opposite is rudeness.

Whoever takes advantage of another we know cannot be a gentleman, for the first word of the law is good breeding, as the last is kindness. The Golden Rule contains the last word of manners, as it does on most other laws of living.

The express train and the "crash hour" are in many ways great advantages, but they are not conducive to good manners.

To revive ancient good breeding and bring back the old time manners it is necessary to set aside money as the chief foundation of respect, and to set upon more the ideals of courtesy and kindly conduct.

If those who are gentlemanly—who possess the rare, but often unprized, treasures of refinement, culture, taste and high ideals of living and thinking, would scrupulously hold themselves above wandering to vulgarities, simply because it has wealth behind it, a society would soon be formed which would not only have the stamp of good breeding, but as possessing the thing itself, would have the authority and power to dictate its own terms.

LEPER COLONY AT MOLOKAI.

At the time of Father Damien's death in the leper colony of Molokai in 1889, there were eleven hundred lepers. This number has not changed materially since. Death claims about a hundred a year, but these are replaced by the twenty children born each year and the sixty to a hundred new victims which the Government sends to the settlement. The administration of the leper colony at Kalaupapa is in charge of a superintendent appointed by the Government of the Sandwich Islands and five Sisters of St. Francis. There are two homes, the Baldwin for the girls, and the Bishop, where the boys and young men are looked after by the Brothers of the Sacred Heart, whose head is the famous Brother Joseph, a companion of Father Damien in his later years.

Was Troubled With Sour Stomach and Biliousness

Miss Bessie O'Leary, Campbellford, Ont., writes:—I was troubled with sour stomach and biliousness for two years and could get no relief until I tried Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I had only taken them a short time when I felt like a new person, and now I can recommend them to all sufferers.

There are very few people who have ever suffered from a sour stomach or biliousness, but to those who are we can highly recommend our Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, as they are a specific for these not dangerous but very unpleasant complaints.

The price of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills is 25c. per vial or 3 vials for $1.00 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CO., LTD.

Gentlemen,—Last August my horse was badly cut in eleven places by a barbed wire fence. Three of the cuts (small ones) healed soon, but the others became foul and rotten, and though I tried many kinds of medicine they had no beneficial result. At last a doctor advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT and in four weeks time every sore was healed and the hair has grown over each one in fine condition. The Liniment is certainly wonderful in its working.

Suffered From Her Heart, Could Not Stand Hard Work

Mrs. Harry Smith, 31 Eagle Ave., Stratford, Ont., writes:—"I have suffered from my heart a great deal, and could not stand any hard work. I was doctoring with the Doctor and he told me I had to stop doing anything, but, however, a friend told me about your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, so I got a box and tried them. I had to take several boxes before I felt any benefit, but after doing so I found they were beginning to help me so I continued with all my own work, which I felt I would have to give up."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are a specific for all weak run down women, whether troubled with their heart or nerves, and if you will only give them a trial we can assure you that they will have the desired effect.

Price 25c. per box or 3 boxes for $1.25, for sale at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Summer Session.

According to arrangement, the Dominion Parliament re-assembled yesterday after a couple of months vacation. The recess was for the most part occupied by the Leader of the Government in attending the Imperial Conference and the King's Coronation; while the Leader of the Opposition put in the time in a campaigning tour of the prairie Provinces, discussing the reciprocity agreement and other public questions.

The "Aylesworth Ditch" Vindicated

The Newmarket Canal, profanely dubbed the "Aylesworth ditch" by certain people on the spot, has at last received a sweeping vindication. And this time not by a Liberal editor—his words could not carry the requisite weight outside his own communion—but by an independent non-partisan investigator who recently made a trip over a good many miles of the canal's course.

The occasion was a timely one on which to get first hand information concerning this Canadian waterway. The Canadian press association after a rousing Convention in Toronto took in an excursion to Collingwood and the Georgian Bay District. For many miles as the train sped northward from Toronto it paralled the celebrated canal.

How intently those editors peered from the windows of the onrushing train. Here was the bone of bitter contention right before them. After seeing more than they cared to, the Liberal pen-wielders quickly buried themselves in the folds of a newspaper or American magazine, stealing furtive glances now and again to see if they would never get out of sight of that abominable canal.

The weather is hot all round, and Ottawa is an exceedingly hot city. It may, therefore be most reasonably assumed that the members of the House of Commons will have a very hot time of it, meteorologically as well as politically. In this connection our Ottawa Correspondent says: "Officials of the House of Commons, however, are leaving no stone unturned to provide what alleviations they may of the almost certainly torrid time to be experienced. Electric fans are being installed in the chamber of the House and throughout the Parliament Buildings. Currents of cooled air will blow their grateful breezes over the perspiring brows of the wearied parliamentarians. The Public Works officials responsible for these artificial mitigations of a summer session are said to realize the absolute necessity of providing these cold air zephyrs as an antidote to the tides of "hot air" with which the Government speakers will attempt to flood both Parliament and the country. One ton of ice will be used daily in this cold air system.

The present ventilating apparatus is quite unsatisfactory, the chamber being shut off on all four sides from direct communication with the sunlight and fresh air. Without some hygienic improvements, the very thought of two hundred members sitting day and night during Old Sol's busy time might well fill the hapless representatives with dismay. But this is one of the penalties of greatness, and the nation's representatives will not allow these light afflictions of an adjourned session to becloud the exceeding weight of glory pertaining to them as the people's choice.

The session will be made still more tolerable not to say positively inviting, if a proposal now being discussed is carried through. The flat roof of the new wing, it has been pointed out, would make an admirable roof garden if properly equipped. Accordingly the roof will in all probability be covered with awnings, and when plants, tables, and suitable resting places are added it will be a pleasant place to catch an occasional lungful of the ozone of the third heaven. While not a circumstance compared to the far famed roof gardens of New York and elsewhere, yet it may be regarded as a good start for Canada.

happy days—alas, long since gone—when life to them was one long sweet, happy, idle dream and their most serious occupation was the making of mud pies. Ah, what a field is there here, my brethren, in the Newmarket Canal, for the making of mud pies. No water, forsooth. He who says "no water" knows not what water is; for water there clearly was—enough in spots to float a row boat or a canoe, enough elsewhere to carry a toy ship along a few feet at least; enough in other places to make the earth of an oozy consistency that certainly suggested that water had once been there, however, it had managed in the meantime to disappear. To be sure there were long, dry stretches where no water was at all; but these were so many that they but served to accentuate the presence of the water when it did appear and thus to give lie to the horrible Tory libel that there is no water whatever in the Newmarket Canal. There is—and as an independent newspaper the Kingston Standard wishes emphatically to set out this great truth. There is water—several quarts at least, if not more."

The Report on Tuberculosis

The final report of the Royal Commission on the relations of human and animal tuberculosis was made public last week by presentation to the British Parliament. It seems to dispose conclusively of the famous declaration of Dr. Koch, made ten years ago, with as near an approach to positiveness as so careful a scientist could permit himself, that the transmission of bovine tuberculosis to man is either impossible, or, if it occurs at all, occurs so very rarely that it is not advisable to take any measures against it.

The Royal Commission finds as a result of a long and most painstaking investigation, that bovine tuberculosis can be transmitted to man, and that in point of fact, out of twenty-eight cases of tuberculosis of the lungs investigated, two were caused by bovine tubercle bacilli. The Commission accordingly recommends that existing regulations for the prevention of the use of meat or milk from tuberculous cattle be thoroughly enforced, and indeed strengthened.

This announcement that the milk of tuberculous diseased cows and butter made from it are capable of conveying the living organisms of tuberculosis into the human body and producing not only local but general and fatal tuberculosis or consumption is perhaps the most valuable part of the important work of the Royal Commissioners. It emphasizes the need of greater watchfulness and stricter precautions in preventing the products of diseased cattle or animals from being used as foods until they have been thoroughly sterilized.

No water, forsooth. How ridiculous, when before our very eyes several small boys could be seen gaily sailing their toy boats—and wading out to them when as once at least was the case, the frail craft foundered on a mud bar in the very middle of the raging stream of an inch or two which madly coursed down the canal.

No water, forsooth. How absurd when several times the train was forced to cross the canal over a trestle and those who had eyes to see could see, had they been so disposed, the trickling, gurgling water, ooze along and finally resolve itself into a muddy consistency which sent an ecstatic thrill down the newspaper spines, as their owners recalled the (Toronto Mail and Empire.) If Sir Frederick Borden is the man selected for Canada's High Commissioner in London the general regret over Lord Strathcona's resignation of the office will be deepened.

A Fiery Holocaust.

Advices of the 11th from North Bay, Ont., contained the following:—South Porcupine, Cochrane and Pottsville have been wiped out by forest fires, which are raging here. A string of fire extends north from North Bay north to Porcupine. Many lives have been lost. On the following day, the Toronto Mail and Empire resident correspondent at South Porcupine, who had escaped the fire of the previous day and reached Cobalt, sent the following to his paper: "The loss of life in Porcupine district, from yesterday's fire, will probably reach several hundred, while the property loss will reach $1,000,000.

Six hundred people were driven into the lake at Porcupine during the forest fire yesterday, many of them women and children, and two hundred of them were drowned. The fatalities of the fire so far are reported at 300. Village Wiped Out. At 12.30 noon yesterday the fire raged from the Standard mines right through to the shores of Porcupine Lake, eating up South Porcupine, Pottsville and part of Golden City, as well as many small buildings along the lake front. While part of the loss of life occurred near Porcupine Lake, the greatest havoc will be round the main mines, notably West Dome and Big Dome. Here the entrapped miners, cut off by the flames, took to the shafts, where they perished. At Preston, east Dome, safety was sought in an untimbered shaft, and there was no loss of life.

Corpses Strew Streets.

The streets of South Porcupine are strewn with dead human beings, horses, dogs and cattle, while along the mine roads charred corpses lie at intervals. The names and number of the dead can be but roughly estimated, but a large number of prospectors in the bush must have perished in the seething furnace of flames, driven by a sixty mile gale. It is known, however, that of the staff of 300 at the Dome, but a few were saved while at the west Dome but three out of 84 employees are now known to be alive. Along the highway between West Dome and South Porcupine, over a comparatively open section, there are six charred bodies. In the ruins of the town of South Porcupine there lie the bodies of William Gohr and his clerk, Mac Smith, Capt. Geo. Dunbar and Tom Geddes."

Queen Mary's Thanks.

I thank most warmly all the Marys in the Empire who have so generously contributed to the gift which has been presented to me. The thought of the affectionate impulse which prompted it, has I can assure you, deeply touched me. The beautiful insignia of the King and my son which will form the personal part of the gift, will be treasured by me throughout my life, and will be handed down as precious heirlooms to those who come after.

I look forward with special satisfaction to devoting the remainder of this noble present to a charitable object in which I am greatly interested. Mary.

Train No 5 on the Erie railway from New York to Buffalo ditched at Portage. Four persons are reported killed, including Engineer William Oliver, of Buffalo, and his fireman.

The entire train of six coaches on the C. P. R. went into the ditch Wednesday night last at Ponaka, Alberta. It was an Orangemen's excursion with 300 aboard. Ten people were badly injured.

The Canadian firing team won the McKinnon Cup at Bisley, England, with the score of 1581 out of a possible 1800. England was second, twelve points behind, Ireland third and Scotland fourth.

By agreement of the parties Timothy Healy, Independent Nationalist, and John Muldoon, Nationalist, have been returned to parliament unopposed for the northeast and east division of Cork County respectively.

The number of steamships companies at Liverpool involved in the recent shipping strike have decided to advance the passenger rates to Canada and the United States by from $1.75 to $2.50 to offset the increase of wages they were obliged to grant the strikers. It is possible there will be some increase in the freight rates.

"La Correspondencia de Espana," of Madrid, commencing on the developments in the work of raising the battleship Maine, declares that in the light of recent revelations it is the duty of the United States to publicly proclaim Spanish innocence in the matter of the explosion that sank the battleship.

Although the cholera situation at quarantine is at present regarded as being well in hand Dr. Doty, health officer, does not conceal his apprehension that New York is in the very midst of a threatened invasion of cholera. There are 15 cases at Swinburne Island hospital and four cases symptomatic of the disease. One more victim has died.

Sir Henry M. Pellatt, of Toronto, says that Sydney may not be the site for the big $10,000,000 ship building company which will construct the Canadian navy. The plant will be located somewhere in the Maritime Provinces and will have the largest docks in the world. Representatives of the company expect contracts to arrive in a few days and then definite plans will be made.

King George and Queen Mary concluded their visit to Ireland on Friday, and with the Prince of Wales and Princess Mary sailed on the Royal Victoria and Albert for Holyhead, Wales. The investiture of the Prince of Wales took place in Carnarvon castle Saturday. Dublin gave their Majesties a memorable send-off. As they passed through the streets there were frequent cries from the crowd of "Come back soon."

The German Government has decided to fortify the Island of Heligoland, which was ceded to her by Great Britain twenty years ago. The Island has attracted considerable attention in the past year or two because of the arrest of British and French officers on charges of espionage in that vicinity. According to the last report the Government will establish a regular military station under the control of an army officer.

The United States Senate will vote on the Canadian Reciprocity Bill on July 22nd, on the Wool Tariff Revision Bill on July 27th, the Free List Bill on August 1st, the Congressional Reapportionment Bill on August 3rd, the Statehood Bill for Arizona and New Mexico on Legislative Day, August 1th, and will adjourn according to the general understanding quickly thereafter. The voting programme was decided upon after prolonged conference a few days ago.

Among those who fell victims in the destructive fire at Port Hope, Ontario, was William J. McLean, son of the late Thomas A. McLean, formerly of Esdale Foundry, in this city. He was a master mechanic in one of the Heinz mines, and his body was found lying by a length of charred hose, to which he had been attending. He was 30 years of age, and leaves two sisters and three brothers, all absent from this Province. These will have the sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement.

LOCAL & OTHER ITEMS

The Birmingham Post says that Sir W. H. Jones, High Commissioner for New Zealand, proposes shortly to retire and adds that it is expected that he will be succeeded by Hon. Mr. Findlay, who accompanied Sir Joseph Ward to the Conference.

His Excellency Mgr. Stagni, Papal delegate accompanied by Mgr. Sinnott his Secretary left Ottawa last Friday night for Montreal on his way to St. John's, Nfld. It is understood that he will spend some time in Newfoundland.

James Casford, of Portage Road, about five miles from Charlottetown, was fatally injured by the tramping of a horse at the home of Arthur Stead, Winslow, on Saturday last. The unfortunate man died from his injuries about an hour after the accident. He was 69 years of age.

The Anglo Japanese alliance has been modified to exclude the United States from Great Britain's possible enemies, and the life of the alliance has been extended nearly six years by a new version of the treaty which Sir Edward Grey, British Secretary of Foreign Affairs and Count Kata, Japanese ambassador at London, signed Friday.

The House of Lords on Thursday concluded the report stage of the veto bill and fixed July 20th as the date for the third reading. It seems certain the bill will go to the House of Commons with considerable changes made by Lord Lansdowne and Lord Cromer unmodified. Premier Asquith will move the rejection of the amendments en bloc, will state what the Government intends to do with respect to securing the creation of new peers to overcome the opposition in case the Lords reject the bill.

The present outlook according to Ottawa advices is that if dissolution comes early in August, polling will follow within six weeks. Extra printers will have to be put to work at the bureau on the voters list, but more than half of them are still in manuscript stage and it will take at least a fortnight and positively more for them to be completed. Then there is the necessity for a readjustment of the lists in Manitoba and preparation of the lists in the unorganized districts of Ontario, orders for which have yet to be promulgated.

Cipriano Castro is in Venezuela and seems practically assured of regaining the presidency. Military authorities assert that the present regime is tottering and only foreign interests can save it. Castro already has an army of more than two thousand men. These troops are equipped with modern army rifles using steel jacket bullets. In Credit Lyonnais of France Castro has $7,000,000 and has the additional backing of the banker Silveira who has asserted that unlimited means would be at the disposal of the exiled dictator from all sides. Castro's former friends are rallying to him.

Thousands of acres of forest land in New England, chiefly in Maine and New Hampshire have been swept during last week by fires which on Friday were raging unchecked in many sections. It is estimated that already damage amounting to half a million dollars has resulted in Maine, the worst conflagration being in the Moosehead Lake region where flames have licked up great tracts of virgin forest. The fire which destroyed South Waterboro, Me., last Friday night, spread to the woods over many square miles, threatening buildings. Hundreds of men were at work fighting the flames.

A few days ago at St. John's, Nfld., acting Judge Knight handed down the finding in the Marine Court of Enquiry held to determine the cause of the loss of the S. S. Bruce. The Court found that the Bruce was well fitted and equipped; her compasses were in good order—the errors known and properly applied to the courses steered. She was under the command of Richard Drake, who is the holder of a Colonial Certificate of Competency, but not of a Certificate of Competency. The Court also found that the loss of the Bruce was caused by the master setting and steering an improper course after 4 a.m. on the 24th March last, due to a failure to adopt the precaution of verifying the ship's position by taking reliable bearing of Seattarie Light.

LOCAL AND OTHER ITEMS

Dr. Murphy of Tignish has been unanimously nominated as the Conservative candidate for the House of Commons, for Prince County.

Michael Thomas, the fleet footed Miemac long distance runner won the ten mile road race in one hour two minutes and thirty nine seconds on Friday evening last. Having thus won the prize cup, three years in succession, he is now its permanent owner.

There was a grand rally at the club rooms of the Young Liberal Conservative Association on Monday evening. Rousing speeches were made by Mr. A. A. McLean, Mr. Charles Lyons, Mr. W. E. Bentley, Mr. N. A. Campbell and others. Much enthusiasm prevailed.

Murdoch Kennedy, M. P., has been re-nominated for the Legislature for the first district of Queen's County, and Mr. J. H. Myers, who ran the by-election against Crosby, has been re-nominated as Mr. Kennedy's colleague. Their chances of carrying the Conservative banner to victory are excellent.

In threading her way up the channel of Boston harbor on Monday last shrouded in a bank of fog the Plant Line steamer Halifax from here ran aground on Georges Island and became so firmly attached to the sandy beach that tugs had to bring her passengers to the city, leaving the steamer to be floated at high water in the afternoon. Before the fog lifted and while still aground the steamer Prince Rupert from Yarmouth came into collision with her. No serious damage followed.

We are extremely pleased to learn of the splendid success which has attended Mr. W. A. Scott, Barrister, of this city, since making Vancouver, B. C., his home. After passing a brilliant examination Mr. Scott was admitted to the Bar of this Province last year. He had the distinction of being the youngest, as he certainly was one of the brightest men ever admitted here. Having decided to make British Columbia his home, he left here in March last for Vancouver, where he entered a law office. It was necessary for him to pass an examination before he could be admitted a Barrister of the Supreme Court there. It did not take him long to prepare for this. A few weeks ago the examination took place and out of eighteen Barristers and Solicitors who took it at the same time, Mr. Scott came out second. He has now been admitted to the Bar and sworn in. We congratulate him on his splendid success and we bespeak for him a bright career in his chosen profession in the Province of his adoption.

The Will of God.

(By Father F. W. Faber.)

I worship Thee, sweet Will of God, And all Thy ways adore, And every day I live I seem To love Thee more and more.
Thou wert the end, the blessed end Of our Saviour's toils and tears; Thou wert the passion of His Heart Through three-and-thirty years.
And He hath breathed through my soul A special love of Thee, A love to lose my will in His,
And by that loss be free.
I love to see Thee bring to naught
The plans of wily men;
When simple hearts outwit the wise, Oh, Thou art loveliest then.
The headstrong world, it passes hard Upon the Church full oft,
And then how easily Thou turn'st To hard ways into soft.
I love to kiss each print where Thou hast set Thine unseen feet; I cannot fear Thee, blessed Will, Thine empire is so sweet.
When obstacles and trials seem Like prison-walls to be,
I do the little I can do,
And leave the rest to Thee.
I know not what it is to doubt,
My heart is ever gay; I run no risk, for come what will,
Thou always hast Thy way.
I have no care, O blessed Will!
For all my cares are Thine; I live in triumph, Lord, for Thou Hast made Thy triumph mine.
And when it seems no chance or change From grief can set me free, Hope finds its strength in helplessness, And gaily waits on Thee.
Man's weakness waiting upon God Is and can never miss,
For men on earth no work can do More angel-like than this.
Ride on, ride on triumphantly, Thou glorious Will, ride on;
Faith's pilgrim sons behind Thee Take the road that Thou hast gone.
He always wins who sides with God,
To Him no chance is lost; God's Will is sweetest to him when It triumphs at his cost.
Ill that He blesses is our good,
And unblest good is ill;
And all is right that seems most wrong, If it be His sweet will!

Economics.

Conservation of natural resources is becoming important in economics.
It should have become so long ago.
More than fifty years have passed since the great Lord Derby raised a warning voice in Parliament.
But prophets have to cry in the wilderness for many a long day before the hour of listening to them comes.
And in 1837, when free trade doctrines were the only gospel, any suggestion speaking of their restriction stood no chance of hearing.
Swedenborg has been in demand for a long time on account of his purities. A congress of Swedish economists has been considering the propriety of restricting its export order to conserve the supply; and this led to the discussion of the question, whether iron or coal is in greater need of conservation.
Considered in the abstract, it has an obvious solution. Iron is not utterly consumed in the using. Much perishes by oxidation in the working, by friction, by the sinking of ships, etc.; but most of it remains to be worked over and over again. Coal on the contrary, perishes in its first using. Considering it in the concrete, however, a member of the congress attempted to prove that iron has the greater need. He argued that there is no substitute for the metal, the demand for which grows year by year, whereas the increasing use of electricity for light and heat tends to diminish the demand for coal. His argument may have seemed conclusive in a land of lakes, rapid rivers and waterfalls, but there are other countries not so favorably circumstanced, and in these coal is being used up at an enormous rate.
Of all such countries the most extravagant, perhaps, is England.
Australia, looks to the future and conserves its coal; there is only one idea in England, turn it into money for the proprietor of the mine. The best steam coal is found in the Welsh fields. Not all Welsh coal is such, and it is far from being inexhaustible.
Nevertheless, it is being dug up and burned with a recklessness almost incredible. The captain of the Olympic is said to have stated that he took six thousand tons into his bunkers at Southampton, and very little of it remained when he reached New York. This means that his ship consumes about a thousand tons a day. The Mauretania and Lusitania burn at least as much.
The Titanic will soon be doing the same, and the new German and Canadian ships will be as wasteful.
These six ships alone will devour upwards

Aching Joints

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, are joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.
Sufferers dread to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and their condition is commonly worse in wet weather.
I suffered dreadfully from rheumatism but have been completely cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, for which I am deeply grateful." Miss Frances Smith, Prescott, Ont.
I had an attack of the grip which left me weak and helpless and suffering from rheumatism.
I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and this medicine has entirely cured me. I have no hesitation in saying it saved my life." M. J. McDougall, Trenton, Ont.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Removes the cause of rheumatism—no outward application can. Take it.

of a million tons of the best coal every year!

Coal is to be burned sooner or later, and one must not grudge it if there be sufficient reason for its consumption.
But let us ask, what are England and America the better for what we have mentioned? The people who cross the Atlantic in the first cabin get a week, more or less, of barbaric splendor, and the second cabin people get proportionately the same. Why, then, not stretch out these experiences for ten or twelve days? What practical advantage comes out of crossing the ocean in a week or less, to justify the consumption of coal? The mails do not call for it, since in urgent matters one can always use the cable. Vanity, rivalry, the mad desire for speed and present gain seem to be at the bottom of the whole affair. One could read in the papers that the Mauretania and Lusitania are outclassed in public estimation. The passage money for the Olympic on her first voyage from New York to Southampton was $250,000.

Conservation of coal could bring another advantage to England. The Welsh steam coal has, in addition to other advantages, that of being practically smokeless if properly managed.
It is, therefore, the very best for war vessels, and adds greatly to their efficiency. The English nation is growing under its burden of naval expenditure, and the English coal owners, intent upon profit, are filling every foreign arsenal with fuel which, if kept at home, would give the British fleet a superiority above that of mere numbers, and would allow a considerable reduction in construction, without the impairing of efficiency. Moreover, it would be a permanent superiority; that obtained by Dreadnought building is almost ephemeral. Some may say that foreign navies have oil.
The history of oil shows that its deposits are not comparable to those of coal. A few years ago a field greatly, and though new fields are being discovered, the consumption of oil is proportionately more extravagant than that of coal, and it is far from clear that oil is to take a prominent place among fuels.—H. W., in America.

A Handy Man

The original settlers of southern Texas devoted themselves to cattleraising, and, having no roads, had little or no use for carriages. Consequently, when a complete set of new harness came to hand the conscience had some difficulty in arriving at the why and wherefore of the straps and buckles. An old man giving the name of Smith said that he had worked in a harness shop and had made that kind of harness, and in a short time he had the thing together and fitted on the team.

About the career of this old man some extraordinary things are related by a correspondent of the Youth's Companion.
"I thought I recognized him," says the correspondent, "and asked him if I hadn't seen him working as a carpenter on the new hotel. He replied that he had worked there as long as they could see him, and had then become assistant to the plumber, but as they had run out of pipe for the last few days he had been painting signs for the grocery store. He was through with that, and had come over to see if I had anything he could do."

"I told him I thought not; I had no signs to paint; what I wanted most just then was someone to shoe my team. The ranchers never shod their horses; and, as I was driving them a great deal, and they had always worn shoes, their feet had got into bad shape."

"Smith said he had been working as a blacksmith in a lumber camp all the winter. If I would lend him money to get some tools he would keep my team shod until he had paid for the outfit. This I did, and he soon had regular work."

"The next I heard of him he was putting in a gasoline engine in a boat, and when my essays was run

Living Machines
A few years ago flying machines were hardly thought of, now was Scott's Emulsion
in summer. Now Scott's Emulsion is as much a summer as a winter remedy.
Science did it. All Diseases over by one of the wagons Smith promptly mended it.

"So it went on until the town put up a shop for him. There seemed to be nothing he couldn't do. One day he came to me with the request to use our office for a Sunday school, which I of course permitted. The next Sunday I heard the sound of a violin. I went over to the office, Smith was playing hymns on his violin and leading the singing."

"The new hotel was finished by this time. A traveller had been there over Sunday. On Monday morning he was bewailing the fact that he needed a shave and that there was no barber within twenty-five miles. With a great deal of dignity the hotel clerk informed him that he was mistaken; and there was a barber in the town, and he pointed out Smith's shop."

"The traveller went to Smith, who was working at his forge.
'I beg pardon, but will you tell me where to find the barber?' he asked."

"I'm your man," said Smith,
"but you will have to wait a while.
I am just finishing a ploughshare!"

Why it is So Difficult to Determine the Precise Moment of Death.

In discussing the question of real and apparent death in the Irish Ecclesiastical Record (No. 220), the Rev. John J. Sheridan, C. C., comments on the strange fact, which must have struck every thinking man, that while medicine has made such progress within recent years as to perform almost miraculous cures, it has not yet been able to discover any means whereby we may know with absolute certainty the precise moment at which death takes place.
We have several signs of greater or less degrees of probability, but the most eminent members of the medical profession are agreed there is really no certain and universal sign of death other than decomposition of the whole body, and that is a somewhat advanced stage. As this change in the body, however, cannot take place except a considerable time after death, it merely shows us that the person is dead without giving us any infallible means of judging when death actually occurred."

Whence does this difficulty of determining the moment of death arise? Fr. Sheridan thinks, and we are inclined to agree with him, that it arises "in great part, if not altogether, from our inability to comprehend the nature of the human soul of body and soul. We learn from psychology that the human soul is noted to the body as its substantial form (in quibus forma substantialis), and from this union results the composite, Man." We know, too, that the union is produced by or at generation, that it is maintained during life, and that it is dissolved at death, but as to how this union is effected, or how it is dissolved we can no more explain than we can explain how from the union of the divine and human nature there results but one suppositum in Christ. And indeed this comparison is made in the Athenasian Creed: Sicut anima rationalis et caro unum est homo: ita Deus et homo unum est Christus."

It follows that three forms of life—the vegetative, the animal, and the rational—there are not in man three principles of life corresponding to these three forms, but only one; the rational life being principium from which all three spring. It was held by some theologians that the fetus existed for some time before the human soul was infused, but that opinion, although supported by the weighty testimony of St. Thomas, is now rejected as erroneous, and the unanimous opinion on this question is that the vegetative, the animal, and the rational life begin and end simultaneously.
Fr. Sheridan concludes (1) that in no case does death occur until the soul absolutely ceases to inform the body; and (2) that in no case does the rational soul cease to inform the body as long as any vital function takes place therein.

"Now let us take a case in which the heart suddenly stops, while the lungs, by means of the reserve force of nutrition stored up, continue to act.
Can such action be considered a vital action produced by the agency of the soul really present? or is it merely an effect produced indeed by the soul, but continuing after the soul has departed? just as when we press an electric bell it continues to ring for some time after we have withdrawn the pressure."

"That such actions may take place after death seems to be the opinion of an eminent professor of University College, London. I shall quote his words: 'I take it that just at the heart may beat for a few minutes after sudden death... as the growth of the hair may, theoretically, proceed for a few minutes after death.' If we take death here, according to our definition in the beginning, as being the separation of soul and body, I fail to see how such an opinion can be sustained.
These cannot be considered other than vital functions since they are motus ab intrinseco in principium, and as such they must proceed from the principium vite, or, in other words, they must be informed by the rational soul actually present." The same arguments hold good in cases where the heart stops while respiration goes on for some time after wards.

WAS TROUBLED WITH HEADACHE FOR OVER TEN YEARS Dr. told him to try Burdock Blood Bitters

Mr. Henry Strot, Dumas, Sask., writes:
"For over ten years I have been troubled with headache every morning, accompanied by an acidity or bitter taste in the mouth. Thinking the cause of it was the too great use of smoking tobacco, I have quit the pipe for two months, but it was always the same. I went to the doctor and he told me to try some of your Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle and found quite a relief before I had done with it. I then bought another one and used it all. Now I can say that I am perfectly cured. I used to be without appetite especially in the morning and now I feel as good as a new man. I cannot too highly recommend Burdock Blood Bitters to all persons suffering from headache and sour stomach."

Homeseekers' Excursions.

The Grand Trunk Railway has issued a circular authorizing all Agents in Canada to sell Home-seekers' Excursion Tickets to points in Western Canada. This is interesting information for those desiring to take advantage of these excursions on certain dates from April to December 1911. The Grand Trunk route is the most interesting, taking a passenger through the populated centres of Canada, through Chicago, and thence via Duluth, or through Chicago and the twin cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

You can save money as well as add to your character and appearance by wearing made-to-order clothes. You Cannot Buy Made-to-Order CLOTHES Cheaper than WE SELL THEM. MR. MAN---We Can Save You Money on Your CLOTHES. Some men think that when they spend their money for a Ready-made suit, that they are buying their clothes at the smallest possible cost. They think only of the first cost. They do not consider that if they would spend a few dollars extra and have a suit made for them by a good tailor, that it would wear at least double as long, and from this standpoint alone, they would be saving. And then again, in a tailor made suit along with getting at least double the wear, you get style and good looks that stay, you get comfort and satisfaction that can only be had in a made-to-order suit. Are not these features worth from three to five dollars extra? Buy Your Next Suit Here. When you want your Spring Suit come here, look over the hundreds of different cloths we have, pick one that pleases you and let us build you a suit.
