CHAPTER XXVII.
He stood for a moment, and wiped the sweat from his forehead. He had been calm enough until the last moment or two; but now his heart was beating furiously, and he was all of a shake. But it was because he was thinking of Decima.

He saw now how mad—how bad—he had been. He had tempted her, persuaded her to fly with him; he had tempted her to ruin. In a moment, overwhelmed by his passionate love, he had lured her to ruin. And she would have come to his lure! He saw now, as by a flash of lightning, how mad, how cruel, he had been.

Thank God she had escaped! He had lost her forever—should never see her again; but—no matter, she was saved. As for him, what did it matter what became of him?

He sunk into a chair, his head bowed in his hands. A terrible blow had fallen upon him; but the hand of Providence, which had dealt it, had, at the same time, been stretched out to save her—his dear, sweet girl—love! She had gone. She was safe at Lady Pauline's house in Berkeley Square—safe from him and his fatal love.

He was glad, and yet—and yet the thought that she was lost to him, that he should never hold her in his arms again, never, perhaps, see her again, filled him with anguish. He could have borne it all if he had not known that she loved him. But he knew that she loved him. To hear her sweet confession of love ringing in his ears, to feel her kisses upon his lips! He was almost mad with longing and with remorse.

He rose presently. It had seemed hours while he was sitting there; in reality it had only been minutes. He rose and looked round with the number feeling of a man waking from chloroform.

From this room a door led directly on to the corridor. It was always kept locked, but the key was in its place. He went to turn it, but found the door unlocked. Then he understood. Decima had escaped—yes, that was the word, escaped—this way.

He drew the key sharply from the lock. It had been in its place so long that it stuck, and as he jerked it violently, it cut his finger. He did not feel the cut, did not know that his finger was bleeding, until he saw a spot of blood on the wrist-band of his shirt.

With an impatient gesture he put the key in his pocket, wiped his finger on his handkerchief, and passed into the corridor, locking the door behind him, and slipping the key in his pocket. As he went down the corridor he heard voices, and he saw the parlor-maid leaning beside the lift talking to the porter within it.

She started guiltily at sight of him, and the man touched his hat as she maid fled hastily.

Gaunt returned the salutation and went quickly down the stairs.

CHAPTER XXVIII.
The infuriated woman tore at the handle of the door for a moment, then she stopped. There had been something in Gaunt's face, in his eyes, which, if it did not exactly frighten her, warned her that it would not be safe to follow him.

She left the door, and paced up and down the room for a moment or two.

"Yes, I'll wait. I'll stay here. It's my proper place. I'm his wife. He'll find me here when he comes back—if he does come back—if he doesn't, I'll stay here. I'll drag his name in the dirt; I'll—"

She sunk on to the couch, and rocked herself with grief. She was choking with passion. But presently the violence of the fit passed; and she rose and went to a mirror and looked at her face. She was burning hot, the perspiration had played havoc with her "make-up," and the powder and colors showed in streaks upon her face. She wiped it with her lace handkerchief and smoothed her hair; then she looked round the room searchingly, went to the sideboard, and wrenching the door open, found what she was looking for. She poured out a glass of brandy and drank some of it eagerly, greedily; then she drew a long breath, and seating herself by the fire, bent forward, her chin resting in one hand, the glass held in the other.

She emptied the glass presently, then got up and refilled it, and drank again. The neat spirit soothed her, and after a minute or two she raised her head and looked round and laughed to herself.

description of Gaunt's residences. "By Heaven! I'll have a good time! I'll enjoy myself with the best of them! And I'll have my revenge, too!" Her white, even teeth clinched together viciously. "I'll make him wish he'd never been born!" She looked over her shoulder toward the door of the inner room, and shook the book at it threateningly. "And Morgan, I'll be even with him. I'll cast him off. Not one penny shall he have. I'll be even with him!"

She rose, and stretched her arms above her head with a gesture of relief and satisfaction.

"To have done with the old life! To be respectable, some one, a great lady! It sounds good—good—good!"

She laughed, and flung herself on the couch. The spirits she had taken, and there action after the excitement of her fury and passion, were having their due effect upon her; and presently her eyes closed, though she was not asleep. That Gaunt was in love with another woman, that she, Laura, suspected that other woman to be in the rooms, did not fill her with widely indignation. She only saw in the fact a means of inflicting fresh misery and torture upon him. She could strike at him through this other woman; that was all she cared about.

Now, Trevor had dismissed his cab at the corner of the street in which the Mansions stood. He did not need to drive up to the door, for he knew where Laura was going. He got out, paid the cabman, and stood staring down the street, at the spot where she had disappeared as she entered the house.

He was shaking all over, and his brain was whirling. She—she who had told him that she loved him, had promised to be his wife—had gone alone to another man's rooms!

The fact made him sick and giddy. He looked round vacantly.

There was a public-house at the corner of the street, and he walked across to it, asked for a whiskey and soda, and lighted a cigar.

The barmaid, as she gave him the drink, noticed his deathly pallor and the bloodshot eyes, noticed also that his hand shook as he raised the glass to his lips; and she concluded that he had been drinking.

"Looks bad, doesn't he?" she remarked to a fellow-barmaid.

Lords Debate Home Rule Bill

Attempt to Postpone Discussion in Commons--Public Funeral for Military Victims of Assassination--New York Quotes Sugar at $8.75--Armenia Forced to Accept Soviet Rule.

HOME RULE BILL IN LORDS.

LONDON, Nov. 23. The opening of the debate on Irish Home Rule in the House of Lords to-day, afforded a notable contrast to the apathy displayed when the measure was under consideration in the House of Commons. The Upper House was crowded and many of the members of the Commons, including Lloyd George, Bonar Law and Sir Edward Carson listened to Lord Birkenhead's speech introducing the bill. Many Peers were in the side galleries and the stranger's gallery was crowded. Explaining the provisions of the bill Lord Birkenhead read a letter from Sir Edward Carson, in which the Unionist leader declared he and his colleagues had made up their minds to accept the bill and work under the measure loyally. Lord Birkenhead said he was convinced, however, that the only danger to the bill lay in the opinion of those thinking the bill did not go far enough and those thinking it went too far. Strange as it might seem, said Lord Birkenhead, I think this is a favourable opportunity to effect a settlement. Because the Irish people are sick and tired of the terrible reign of terrorism. The Earl of Dunraven, on the ground that the bill was not supported by the majority of Irishmen and afforded no prospect of rejection, describing the bill as an honest but ignorantly governed attempt on the part of the government to settle the Irish question.

DEBATE ON IRELAND IN COMMONS.

LONDON, Nov. 23. In the House of Commons to-day the opposition tried to postpone the debate on Ireland allotted for Wednesday, on the ground that the atmosphere is just now unsuitable, but Bonar Law, government leader, held them to their arrangement, remarking that the subject was being discussed at a political meeting at Birmingham and that what was suitable for a public platform was suitable for discussion in the House of Commons.

ROUNDING UP SUSPECTS.

DUBLIN, Nov. 23. Vigorous activities of the authorities leave little doubt that concerted efforts are being made to round up every Republican suspected of being active in the outrages. Military forces are tightening the cord on Dublin and gradually working in towards the centre as was done during the Easter rebellion. It is believed a number of Republican leaders in the provinces finding the pursuit too hot have taken refuge in Dublin.

POLICEMAN FOUND DROWNED.

DUBLIN, Nov. 23. A bound body of an auxiliary policeman was taken from the River Liffey to-day.

HEAD CONSTABLE DEAD.

NEWRY, Ireland, Nov. 23. Head Constable Kearney, who was shot here Sunday night by unknown persons, died of his wounds last evening. He was discussing Sunday morning's events in Dublin with a friend when the assassin opened fire.

IN PRECARIOUS CONDITION.

DUBLIN, Nov. 23. Patrick Mathews, who was seriously wounded at Skerries yesterday, is in a precarious condition. He was wounded in the shoulder, thigh and knee. It was learned to-day that two crates of armed men arrived at Mathews' house and knocked on the door. When Mathews opened it he was asked if he was a Sinn Féiner. He replied that he was a Laborite, whereupon the men opened fire.

PUBLIC FUNERAL FOR MURDERED OFFICERS.

LONDON, Nov. 23. A public funeral will be held in London for the fourteen British officers assassinated in Dublin on Sunday morning, it was announced to-day. A destroyer left for Dublin today to bring the bodies to England.

DUBLIN CASTLE'S EXPLANATION.

DUBLIN, Nov. 23. The Crown forces which went to Croke Park on Sunday afternoon in an effort to arrest alleged gunmen, were fired on by pickets and the resultant fighting stampeded the crowd, said a statement issued by Dublin Castle last night. The Gaelic Athletic Association officially denied that there were any pickets on the grounds or anyone fired on the troops. The City Hall and Central and Exchange Hotels were commandeered for the troops to-day.

A DAY'S DEATH ROLL.

BELFAST, Nov. 23. The death roll in Dublin yesterday totalled five. A Dublin Castle sentry shot three men when he was attacked and two were slain in raids.

CREAMERY BURNED.

LONDON, Nov. 23. A creamery at Sparrow, Tipperary, was burned this morning, allegedly by uniformed men. At Nenagh and Athlone the military made arrests.

N.S. CO. CONTINUES WORKING.

NORTH, SYDNEY, N.S., Nov. 23. The strike of fifty railwaymen here following the walkout of railroaders at the Dominion Steel Trust Plant at Sydney, has not tied up the plant of the Nova Scotia Steel Co. here. Scratch crews have been pressed into service.

SUGAR TAKES ANOTHER DROP.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. The price of sugar took another drop to-day when one refining company lowered for fine granulated. Other refiners lowered their quotations to nine cents. Retail quotations ranged from ten and one half to fourteen cents per pound.

ARMENIANS UNDER SOVIETS.

TIFLIS, Nov. 23. The Armenian government has resigned in favor of the extremists element which accepted Moscow's terms. Upon this acceptance Soviets intervened and forced Mustapha Kemal, Turkish Nationalist leader, to cease hostilities immediately. Soviet troops occupying contested territories.

RAILWAY TRAGEDY IN GERMANY.

BERLIN, Nov. 23. Forty persons were killed or badly injured in a collision between a freight and express near Marienwerder yesterday. It is feared other victims are still beneath the wreckage.

MUST HAVE CONSENT OF ALLIES.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 23. Former Emperor William of Germany could go to Corfu only with the consent of the Allied powers, the Associated Press was informed at the Foreign Office to-day. This information was elicited by inquiry relative to reports that the former Emperor's villa on the Island of Corfu was being repaired and that he was expected to inspect it shortly.

BRITAIN WARNS GREECE.

PARIS, Nov. 23. Great Britain has already taken steps to inform former King Constantine and the Premier of Greece that she is absolutely opposed to the return of Constantine to the throne.

Five-Minute Fortune.

A Greek shipowner, Valiano by name, strolled into the Casino at Deauville one afternoon recently and began to play baccarat. At half-past eight the game broke up and M. Valiano went away with every pocket bulging with packets of notes.

He asked a friend to help him count his gains, and they were found to amount to 1,800,000 francs. At the normal rate of exchange this would equal £72,000 English money. Gamblers may have made as much before in a short sitting, and even larger sums have changed hands on the result of a horse race lasting perhaps three minutes.

"Get Rich Quick" Boxers. The classes of people who make money most rapidly by the exercise of their professions are undoubtedly boxers and music-hall artists. A boxer has been known to make money at the rate of £26 per second in the course of a big fight won in a single round.

The matador, Machaquito, Spain's most famous bull-fighter, has made £100,000 in a year. He took part in about fifty performances, each, so far as his part went, lasting perhaps fifteen minutes. So his pay was over £130 a minute.

The Great Storm.

Great storms are not at all uncommon, and every year we read in the newspapers the description of one stated to be more severe than the oldest inhabitant can remember. But absolutely the worst one that ever ravaged these islands occurred a little more than 200 years ago. This was a gale of wind which, beginning on Wednesday afternoon, November 24, 1703, reached its greatest height on the following Saturday, and then gradually died away to a dead calm exactly a week after its commencement. When the storm was at its height most people took refuge in their cellars, as their houses appeared to be in imminent danger of being blown away.

exorbitant wages demanded by workmen, the inhabitants patched up their buildings with straw-thatch, old sails, boards, tarpulins, or anything. Even public buildings were patched up in this manner for a year or more, till prices fell to normal. In Kent, 1,107 houses and barns were levelled with the ground, and many thousands of fine old trees uprooted. At sea, of course, the effects of the storm were

The Biter Bit.

The well-known American humorist, Mr. Irvin S. Cobb, has been telling this story against himself.

Being desirous, towards the close of his recent visit to England, to book his passage back to New York, he applied at one of the London offices for particulars of sailing, and asked in his inimitable way: "Have you a ship called the Neurotic sailing to America?" "No, sir," came the reply, "we have not." Cobb had another go: "Then perhaps it is the Rheumatic--can you book me a first-class passage on that for New York?" "No, sir, I cannot," replied the official, and then falling in with the joke, continued: "But I think I can fix you up all right on the Lu-natic or the Idiotic!"

Chill November.

(By Onlooker in Family Herald and Weekly Star.)

November is not a favorite month; in fact, it has rather a bad name, for which it has largely itself to blame. During many of its days clouds curtain the sun and rain falls. There is a chill in the air and the wind is raw and searching.

The woodlands have now lost their golden and crimson livery that October bestowed upon them.

"Heaped in the hollow of the grove, the withered leaves lie dead; They rustle to the eddying gust, and to the rabbit's tread. The robin and the wren are down, and from the shrubs the jay, And from the tree-top calls the crow, through all the gloomy day."

Nevertheless, November has its good points, although it causes fields to be brown and sodden and roads deep with mud. The mention of roads suggests one of these points.

November's bad road are an unanswerable argument in favour of good roads; that is roads with a foundation more substantial than dirt that the rain cannot turn into mud. Nothing convinces a man that money spent in permanent road work is a sound investment, like having to drive at snail's pace over an ordinary dirt road upon which November has worked its will. The month clinches good road arguments, that might fall on deaf ears in July and August, when there is no mud and the dirt road is smooth and firm and bears the false appearance of being solid and permanent.

Farm conditions in November are cheering if looked at in the right way. If it is an open fall, ploughing will be continued well into the month, and the farm ditches will be given assistance in keeping open. "Snugging up" for winter will be the order of the day about the home and the barns. And this suggests protection against the rigors of the oncoming winter, and comfort for man and beast.

It would seem as if November in many ways should suggest to the farmers conditions of their life that possibly they do not sufficiently recognize or prize. The season of growth is at an end, and the farmers have plenty. Strikes cannot cut off their supply of food, and the scarcity of houses causes them no worry. They know where and how they are going to live. They are provided for. And among all earthly blessings this well grounded sense of security and independence is one of the most precious.

To hundreds of thousands of artisans and business and professional men living in towns and cities this feeling is never known. The independence of the farmer is never theirs. They work for others till their lives; the farmer works for himself and knows no master; those city people are for the most part tenants; the great majority of farmers are proprietors and their domains are their own little kingdoms which they administer as they will according to their industry and intelligence. And if they administer well, there is none to make them afraid.

November gives warning of approaching winter, and the evidences on all hands of the farmers' preparedness to meet what is ahead—preparedness never more conspicuous than in chilly, cloudy, rainy November—give rise to a legitimate sense of

INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes Disordered Stomachs feel fine at once!

Lumps of undigested food causing pain. When your stomach is acid, and is gassy, sour or you have heartburn, flatulence, headache or dyspepsia, here is speedy relief—no waiting.

Eat a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin and instantly your stomach feels fine. All the indigestion pain, gases, acidity and misery in the stomach caused by acidity ends.

Pape's Diapepsin tablets cost little at any drug store but there is no surer or quicker stomach antacid known.

satisfaction as the late autumn blasts roar and the rain beats upon the windows.

"The time has arrived for speculating about the character of the coming winter. Will it come early and stay late; will it curtail its going; and will it be "hard" or "open," that is, severe or mild?—These are the questions that the weather wise are turning over in their minds or already attempting to answer.

The trouble with most of these answers is that they often contradict one another, varying with the locality or according to the signs depended upon. All of which seems to show that weather predicting far in advance is not what might be called an exact science.

One set of signs made use of by the Indians and white trappers and hunters, is based on the conditions of fur bearing animals. Well-furred pelts are held to indicate a severe winter, nature providing these animals with the extra clothing that will be needed to resist exceptionally low temperatures. There probably is some foundation for this class of signs. Some farmers claim that their cattle take on unusually heavy coats during the autumn preceding a severe winter.

Another class of signs is based on the practice of certain animals like the bear and the raccoon that "den up" for the winter. The earlier they retreat the harder the winter ahead.

Conclusions are also drawn from the stores laid up by squirrels. If the winter is going to be severe, confining the squirrels to their nests, for long weeks at a time, than the store of food, principally nuts, or grain kernels of course, will be large. They prepare for a siege and do not propose being starved out.

The operation of physical forces is said to supply other signs. For instance, there is an old saying that thunder storms in the late autumn indicate that winter will set in late and will be mild.

One weakness about all these and many other statistics is this—There are no reliable statistics as to the number of cases in which the prediction based on them have been fulfilled. A conclusion drawn in cases such as these is a kind of generalization, and to be of much value, generalization must take into account a large number of cases. For example, during the past twenty years how many autumns were there when the coats of animals were unusually heavy, when the bears denned up very early, and the squirrels' stores of nuts were particularly large? If that were known, it would next be necessary to know how many of those peculiar autumns were followed by remarkably severe winters.

But there are no such statistics, and it cannot be claimed that the worth of the signs has been established. Still there may be something in them; and, at any rate, they do no harm and they add a picturesque element to life which always has a tendency to run to the commonplace and matter of fact.

Expect the best, but prepare for the worse. That is the old saying but still sound. Prepare for the average winter of the locality, and still find entertainment in observing whether the signs are fulfilled.

For many years to come November's association with world-history will be remembered. It was on November 11th, 1918 that the armistice was signed, putting an end to fighting, and paving the way for peace. That momentous event was an epoch-maker! So far as the Great Powers were concerned, it ended the war. The results of the peace treaty subsequently signed have, no doubt, been somewhat disappointing; but perhaps after such an upheaval it was too much to expect that the air would be at once cleared, and order everywhere restored. Much re-establishing has been done, and progress is being made with the outstanding problems. That is something, and it is encouraging.

"Nothing But Lies."

DELIGHTS LARGE AUDIENCE.

A large and well pleased audience attended the Casino Theatre last evening to witness the Klark-Urban Company in that celebrated comedy "Nothing But Lies." Harden Klark had the spectators in roars of laughter with his comedy to which he did full justice. Miss Maisie Cecil as the truthful Anna Nigh left nothing lacking in this popular role. The remainder of the company were particularly good in their various characterizations. To-night the bill is "The Divorce Question," a strong dramatic production with a plot as powerful as a sermon. This play bears the endorsement of the Catholic Church and should be seen by all who appreciate a good helpful story. As to-right is the last performance of the Klark-Urban Company, no doubt patrons will turn out in large numbers to see the farewell performance of their old favorites. This very popular company, throughout their present engagement has captured the entire appreciation of the St. John's theatre going public, and won new laurels for its members. Their leave taking to-morrow will be regretted, but hope is expressed that it will not be long ere they are back with us again.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THE WISDOM OF A RICH MAN'S DAUGHTER.

RUTH CAMERON

A few days ago I wrote you of a letter I had received, signed "A Rich Man's Daughter but a Poor Man's Wife." I dwelt so long on the vista of feminine readjustment to marriage that this letter opened up, that I was unable to quote the letter itself. But the letter ought to be quoted and here it is:

"The topic for to-night especially interested me for I think the majority of us had to wake up and be more thrifty in order to make things come out right at the end of the month.

Pleasure in Doing Hard Things.
"Although at first it generally comes hard to do without, in time I think the most of us find pleasure in accomplishing what once we thought was impossible!

"The thought that we must be careful need not be a hardship unless we make it so. Brooding only makes it hard, whereas if we think that by being thrifty in the end it will make someone more happy, then I think the effort seems well worth while.

"It costs little to smile, and a smiling face, a kind word, goes a long way toward helping us forget that we cannot afford to have everything we would like to.

"I find a good cure for me, when I feel that I cannot stand it to go on being careful all the time, is to go to the home of someone who is poorer than I. Then I come home and think how happy we ought to be.

"Another way is to drop my work, go to the house of someone who is lonely or ill, and do some little act for them. And by thus making someone else happier I feel happier too.

She Has Been Rich and Poor.

"We don't have to spend money in order to be happy. You see I have been both rich and poor, and so now how it feels both to spend and to count my pennies and one can be happy doing either if one just gets to looking at it in the right way!"

Truly, if anyone should know how to be happy, in spite of having to watch the pennies, it is this woman, for she certainly has all the rules for being happy down fine.

In the first place, the joy of contriving—"I think the most of us find pleasure in accomplishing what we thought was impossible." You can make thrift into a game in a hundred ways if you will. I found it difficult to get the little girl who helps me in the summer, to be saving with oil until I devised the game of seeing how long we could make five gallons last. We have a record now of ten days that we are trying to beat. There are ever so many of these little games one can play with oneself—if one will!

The Reflex Action of a smile.

In the second place, the effect of a smile, not only on the one who sees, but on the one who smiles! The reflex action of maintaining a cheerful attitude is something that is only beginning to be understood. Throw out your chest, throw back your shoulders and smile, and you simply cannot feel so badly as if you let your shoulders slump and the corners of your mouth turn down.

In the third place, contrasting what you have with the lot of those who have less—not in a smug way, but to shame oneself into a better attitude.

In the fourth place, doing something kind for somebody, and thus taking your mind off yourself and starting the glow of pleasure in your own heart that just inevitably results from such an act.

Truly, any woman who has mastered the deeper secrets of happiness as this woman has "does not need to spend money in order to be happy."

Mainly About People.

Lady Sackville, wife of a nephew of a former British minister at Washington, has a hobby for objects of art that amounts almost to a cult. She has a unique method of decorating the windows of her new home at Brighton. She has had glass shelves fitted across the windows on which specimens of her wonderful collections are displayed.

John Burroughs, the famous agriculturist and naturalist, has a handsome coat of woodchuck skins made from animals which he shot or trapped last year near his home in the Catskills. He has a rug made from the skins of three troublesome rodents. He urges all farmers to do what he has done.

Paul Poirot, a famous French costumer, recently appeared at a race course in a fashion for men who affect sports. He wore a bizarre combination of green overcoat, orange necktie, brown suit, gray hat and white spats. He escorted Mlle. Mistinguet, a noted actress, who looked like a cloud of furs.

Mrs. Carolyn Votan, of Washington, D.C., has done more political travelling than her distinguished brother, Candidate Harding, has done since given the Republican nomination. She has recently told the women of San Francisco just what they must do to elect her brother.

The late Lord Kitchener's beautiful place at Canterbury, Broome Park, has been let by the nephew, Viscount Broome, to whom he left it, to Mr. William Rich, of Portland-place. A feature of Broome-place is the superb collection of blue china. Its accumulation was one of the absorbing passions of the great soldier's life.

The first woman in New England to announce her candidacy for mayor of a city is Mrs. Eliza Brown Daggett, of Attleboro. Her platform is a clean city physically and morally. Her nomination papers are being circulated by her husband. She already has the politicians guessing.

Michael Pons, a poet of Paris, finding that he could by no means gain a living by his verses, in spite of the support of some of the most celebrated and even fashionable literateurs of the city, in despair took to keeping a public-house. In ten years he made a comfortable fortune, and has just given a farewell feast to his friends and admirers. He has bought a little property in the country, and he advised all, especially poets, to do as he had done and so come to the same haven.

General Wrangel, the new "white hope" of Russia, is a soldier, administrator of ability, with a temperament that inspires love and respect as well as fear. He has surrounded himself with capable men. He is the son of an impoverished Baltic baron, and is in his first year. He is a mining engineer.

Dr. Blanche Norton, an American woman physician, who contracted the "incurable" trachoma, the scourge of ancient Egypt, has opened a hospital in Constantinople for others so afflicted. She is back in New York for final cure. She met Osman Axon, the slaughterer of Armenians, "the most fearful creature" the doctor ever saw. He delights in murder.

Marjorie Styles, who is but 13 years of age, entered a New England high school at nine, picked up music and plays the classics, knitted sweaters for soldiers and cared for the family during influenza, plays the cello and mandolin, and is well grounded in French, Latin and mathematics, entered Wellesley at 13.

WEARY OF VIRTUE.

For months I save the dollars with energy sublime, and wear old shoes and collars to save another dime. For months I am a student of thrift in every guise; I am so beastly prudent I make men blink their eyes. I preach on self denial beneath my own roof-tree, till life becomes a trial to all who live with me. For months I keep on raving about the penny gained; then I get sick of saving, by thrift my soul is pained. And so I blow my money as though I had no sense, and live on milk and honey, regardless of expense; I patronize the tailor and buy a automobile, and like a jingled sail or I burn the hard earned wheel. Then, tired of misbehaving, I gently simmer down, and once again I'm saving the guilder and the crown. And such a course seems dotty to people safe and sane, who think such orgies naughty, and villainous and vain. But saving, though a virtue, may soon become a fault that's bound to badly hurt you, unless you call a halt before the shining dollar to you seems so immense that all the world looks smaller than its circumference. The thrifty man is wiser than the spend-thrift jake; but, oh, the greedy miser! He makes my innards ache.

Only A Hint.

Government adherents and the Government newspapers will have it that the Opposition press is not pleased because fishermen are receiving eight dollars per quintal for No. 1 Labrador fish (not White Napes). Therein they err, and err sadly. The claim being made right through on behalf of the fishermen has been that they are not and have not been receiving their due proportion, nor are they likely to. That fish (Labrador) is being bought at all at eight dollars per quintal for No. 1 prime, is mainly due to the action of the fishermen themselves at their meeting on Wednesday night last, the outcome of which was that Mr. Coaker and his Advisory Board found it wise to accede to the demands made upon them and begin purchasing. The power of public opinion expressed by the producers in that assembly, caused an almost immediate brightening up of fish activity. To no other cause can this be attributed, and the fishermen have but themselves to thank for the recent turn which buying has taken. Had they not resorted to the potency of a unanimous expression of their sentiments, conditions would be prevailing to-day similar to those obtaining previous to their meeting.

As we have stated all along, so now we again emphasize that eight dollars is not enough for Labrador fish. At that figure the average return, after cure, does not make a great deal over seven dollars. Hence no man can do more—if that—than clear the cost of his outfit, and that only with a fair trip. The schooners which were unsuccessful in securing loads, will not make both ends meet for their owners, neither will the crews do a great deal more than square their accounts. But all in all, it is very gratifying to know that sales of Labrador are being made, even at the price quoted, though that price is far from that which fishermen were led to expect, when they started on their summer's voyage, and would doubtless have received were it not for combinations and the attraction of larger profits to be made by exporters under the market regulations. But still there is need for caution. It is quite possible—and not altogether improbable—that the present boom is but with an object in view. The convention at Port Union will be on this week, and while that assembly lasts, it might—may it is—good policy to keep up the price of Labrador to the present figure, for the purpose of pointing out to those present that the price of fish is what Coaker has made it, and that but for him catches would be going abegging. Fishermen in St. John's should act quickly and get their voyages disposed of ere the gathering at Port Union breaks up. We do not say that present prices will drop simultaneously with the closing of the convention, but there is a prospect that they may.

The "Star" Humorist.

We are beginning to think that the Star is beyond salvation. Day after day it treats its readers to the most ridiculous statements in its editorial columns, statements which it knows are false and will not be believed by any person possessing of an atom of common sense. But last night, was the limit for even the Star. Amongst other things, the man of wisdom who graces or otherwise, the Star's editorial chair, gravely announced that the Telegram gave an untrue account of Coaker's last Thursday's meeting. The Star goes on to say that it is false that Mr. Coaker had a squad of police on duty at the C.C.C. Hall that night. Well, if Mr. Coaker did not bring them there, the C.C.C. Hall must have been the scene of a convention of the St. John's police. However, there is no necessity for us to prove our statements for a few lines further down in this brilliant editorial we find that the police were brought to the meeting in case Opposition supporters should cause a disturbance. Unfortunately for Mr. Coaker, there were so many Opposition supporters at his meeting as to cause him to deem it unwise to use his bodyguard. The poor, suffering, forbearing, patient Mr. Coaker was too liberal, too kind-hearted, to have his "hecklers" removed. Oh, no, by keeping up his part of the strong silent (3) President he covered himself with glory, earning the good will of all present by his generosity and forbearance. Now, having given Mr. Coaker a great deal more space than he is worth, let us see what the Star has to say about Mr. Penney. So that gentleman was repeatedly interrupted. Is it any wonder? At times like these, a man who has just been on a Government picnic to Norway and other places, and has the awful nerve to come to a meeting of people, half of whom may be facing poverty this winter, and tell them of all the glorious things he saw and all the splendid places he put up at. After that, is it surprising that "His Honor the Speaker" was not permitted to have his say without interruptions? The marvellous part about it is that he managed to leave the building unharmed.

Coaker's meeting was called, says the Star, to explain foreign market conditions to our fishermen. The noble Minister did his duty manfully, talking so much utter rot and getting so far out of his depth that he became unintelligible to his audience and as for himself, it is doubtful if he knew whether he was standing on his feet or his head.

As regards the "Wordy" President's offer to resign if 1500 Bonavista Bay Union men asked him to do so, we doubt if there are that many Union men in Bonavista. In any case, what an old Bonavista Bay fisherman told us the other day might also apply. He said: "There are some d-d fools who will never have any sense knocked into them."

Questions Fishermen Ask.

Does the F.P.U. constitution say that the organization shall be non-political?
Is Coaker's position analogous to Morine's under Governor Murray when, as Reid's Solicitor, he had to surrender the Finance portfolio?
How many positions does Mr. Coaker hold and what salary does he draw as Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Acting Premier, Chairman of the Railway Commission, President of the F.P.U., etc., etc.?
Is six hundred dollars still sufficient income for Mr. Coaker, and did he draw his sessional pay?
Who will pay for the Premier's trip, and will the expenses of his suite be included in the total?
What is going to be done with the White Nape Labrador fish?
How much did the Sugar Control Board cost the people of the Colony?
How much will the revenue be short of the estimate this year?
Did the tax on Bell Island ore have any connection with the recent curtailment of work?
Did Mr. Coaker lie when he said all the cargoes shipped to market had been sold without a cent loss to the shippers?
Is the Model Farm $12000 colt "Azwerty" thirteen years old?
Why did not Mr. Cave attend Coaker's meeting a few nights ago?
Does Ragnoll read the Advocate and Star?
Ladies' Black Kid High Laced Boots, with a good walking heel. Worth $11.00 per pair, only $8.75 at SMALLWOOD'S.

Charity Dance.

A big charity dance will take place in the Cadet Hall on Friday night, with full brass band. This is being gotten up by a party of young ladies for a much deserving charitable case, and they are leaving no stone unturned to give everyone attending a good time. It is quite a while now since we have had the full Cadet band to play for a dance. There is no need to say any more on this subject. The floor managers will be Messrs. G. Brownrigg and E. Brophy who are always there to help out a worthy object.

Sanctuary Guild Sale.

This afternoon at 5.30 the St. Mary's Sanctuary Guild will open a sale of plain and fancy work in the Parish Hall, South Side. A splendid selection of useful articles suitable for Xmas presents are on display and will be sold at reasonable prices. Teas will also be served.

Archbishop Opens Sale of Work.

His Grace Archbishop Roche opened the Presentation Ladies' Association sale of work yesterday afternoon. The sale was well patronized, quite a respectable sum being taken in. The sale will be continued to-day and to-morrow, when it is hoped all the goods will be sold.

Send Flowers.

Nothing is more acceptable or more delicately expressive of just the right sentiment than flowers. To the sick friend, to the sorrowing home, to the wedding, birthday, reception, or at any time when the occasion demands some token of expression of friendship and good wishes, flowers are always appropriate. We are prepared at all times to supply your needs with cut flowers. Our service and our advice is yours to command. "Say it with flowers."

Time and Talents.

We are asked to make a correction to the notice of the above, published recently in the Telegram, which follows: "Will members also please note that a request has been received from headquarters for 40 cents extra per annum from each member, to meet increased cost of the magazine, and in order to do this it was agreed by vote at the last meeting of T. & T. to increase our annual subscription to $1.90 (one dollar ninety cents), instead of taking it out of the present rate of subscription ($1.50), which would reduce the balance of our funds at the end of the year for some local use."

McMurdo's Store News.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 24.
The casual observer may be inclined to think sometimes that the variety of Tooth Pastes and dentifrices generally is merely another evidence of the fadism of the day which has invaded Newfoundland. Those who perhaps know more about it, however, are inclined to believe that each dentifrice among the widely known ones at any rate—has its own clientele, its own number of persons who find their own favorite best for their own use. For instance there is Hutax (Mouth Health) with its Peppermint flavor, appealing to those who do not favor the usual wintergreen flavor of most of the tooth pastes in the market. If you are one of those who are tired of wintergreen, get a tube of Hutax. Price 50c. a tube.

C.L.B.C. Officers' Dance.

The Grand Dance of the Officers' Mess of the C.L.B.C. will be held in the C.C.C. Hall to-night. The sale of tickets has been quite a large one and there is every reason to expect that it will be THE social event of the season. The committee in charge has been working very hard during the past few days, and everything that can be done to make the dance a success has been done. The music which will be furnished by the C.L.B.C. Band will consist of all the latest dance selections, and everybody is assured of a good time.

Express Passengers.

The following passengers are on the incoming express, which left Port aux Basques this morning: R. B. Murcell, S. and Mrs. French, W. Kelly, C. Curtin, Mrs. E. Swyers, L. Change in Price.

The current issue of the Royal Gazette contains a proclamation, changing the price of fish to be sold in Greece, and further placing all the grades of Labrador in one category. Prices fixed in Gazette of October 26th, were as follows: Shore—Choice Small . . . 95/- Shore—Prime Small . . . 90/- Labrador—Choice . . . 87½/- Labrador—Prime . . . 82½/- Under the new regulation the prices and grades of Shore are unchanged, but Choice and Prime Labrador have been merged into one, the fixed price being 80/- When will such tinkering end?

Wesley Sale of Work.

This evening at 5.30 the Ladies' Aid of Wesley Church will open their sale of work. A large assortment of plain and fancy goods has been prepared and will be disposed of at reasonable prices. Besides plain and fancy work various stalls have been well stocked with pantry goods, candles and refreshments. High teas will be served each evening of the sale, beginning at 6 o'clock. The sale will conclude on Thursday night with a concert.

Mentioned in Despatches.

The War of 1914-1918, Royal Garrison Artillery, 172006, Gun. S. E. Foran, 188 Siege Bn, was mentioned in a despatch from Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, K.T., G.C.B., O.M., G.C.V.O., K.C.I.B.E., dated 14th March, 1919, for gallant and distinguished service in the field.

I have it to command from the King to record His Majesty's high appreciation of the services rendered. WINSTON CHURCHILL, Secretary of State for War. War Office, Whitehall, S.W., Est. July, 1919.

Sebat Edward Foran is the son of the late Patrick and Martha Foran, formerly of Argentina; born at Little Bay Mines on June 8, 1893; enlisted in Grand Falls in 1914 in the Nfld. Regiment and went overseas in March, 1915; transferred to English regiment in May, 1917. He was wounded with the Royal Guards in 1917 in the big retreat when the Germans were within 20 miles of Paris. Mr. Foran was demobilized and returned to Newfoundland in July, 1919, and is now at Grand Falls. He is pitcher for the Grand Falls baseball team.

Will Demand Correction.

The committee of the fishermen's meeting held last Thursday, have waited patiently for the retraction of the distorted account of the proceedings as published in the Advocate next day, and of which a correction was promised, are determined not to let the matter drop. Another demand will be made on the Advocate management for an explanation.

THANKSGIVING DAY—To-morrow November 25th will be celebrated throughout the U.S.A. as Thanksgiving Day.

A Matter for the F. C. B.

During last winter farmers sold milk to consumers at 18 to 20 cents per quart. When the matter of a rise in price was proposed it was taken before the Food Control Board for adjudication and they allowed the retail price to go to 24 cents per quart. Now, however, the price of feeds of all kinds has dropped nearly 75% and hay is 5 or 7 dollars per ton cheaper, what action will the Board take to see that the already hard pressed people of the city are given a fair deal. Also it may be noted that at the cattle sales, the price of animals has taken a considerable drop, owing to large local sales. The butchers, however, have not dropped the price of meat accordingly. Is it not time?

To-Day's Messages.

SYDNEY MINES PLANT CLOSED.
SYDNEY, N.S., Nov. 24.
Final heats were drawn from blast furnaces and open hearths at Nova Scotia plant, Sydney Mines, to-day, and all seven hundred employees have been laid off, with the exception of a small staff to keep the works in repair. All the collieries are still working, and it is not expected they will be affected by the walkout of steel and railway workers, at least not for the present.

THOMAS SAID IT.

LONDON, Nov. 24.
During discussion of a resolution on international policy, moved by a German delegate at the International Trades Union Congress to-day, S. J. Hatford of Hamilton, Canadian representative, protested against the revolutionary policy of the congress, and said he could not continue working with a body holding such doctrines. J. H. Thomas, President, replying, said that Canada need have no fear that the congress was a revolutionary body. On the contrary, he added, "it is the mildest mannered group of people that ever scuttled a ship."

A COMMITTEE OF THE COMMITTEE

GENEVA, Nov. 24.
There will be no amendments to the Covenant of the League of Nations at this session, Arthur J. Balfour, Chairman of the Committee, suggested in Committee meeting that it was too early to draw conclusions as to the working of the League, or to form an idea as to how the Covenant may be improved. He proposed that the Committee recommend the appointment of a special committee to consider proposed amendments, and report to the next meeting of the Assembly. The Committee adopted the suggestion.

ARCHBISHOP'S VALET ARRESTED.

LONDON, Nov. 24.
Soldiers to-day, at Drumcondra, raided the residence of Archbishop Walsh, and arrested the Archbishop's valet, Wm. Kelly, says a Central News despatch from Dublin.

SIX PEOPLE INJURED.

CORK, Nov. 24.
An explosion occurred in Patrick Street this evening. Apparently it was a bomb, but it is not known from where it came. Many persons were in the street, and six of them were injured. Numerous windows were smashed. People scattered in a panic when

MORE OUTBREAKS.

Authorities believe that many raids and murders came from country districts, under the pretence of attending the big football match in Dublin yesterday. During the afternoon, therefore, military and police went to the match and on approaching the ground were fired on by Sinn Fein pickets. They returned the fire, and several people were killed and wounded. Some of the assassins were arrested red handed, the arrest of three of them being effected by a party of police cadets. The cadets were driving past, when a woman rushed out and gave the alarm. They entered the ground and returned with the men whom they took into custody.

In official circles it is considered that the motive for murder was not a desire to kill military officers, but to cripple the machinery of justice in Ireland. This is borne out by the fact that nearly all officers and civilians killed were engaged in court martial of the legal side of the administration, and the fact that their houses were searched for papers by the assassins. One of the main objects of the murders was apparently to safeguard Sinn Fein Extremists from capture. It is understood that in the last week or ten days a large amount of evidence had come into the hands of the authorities, implicating Sinn Fein Extremists and resulting in the arrest of a number of them. It is also understood that a number of arrests were pending. These daring crimes horrified the whole city and infuriated the military and police. Soldiers in Dublin garrison were kept in barracks last night, and in view of the fierce anger which murders have produced among the military authorities are taking precautionary measures to prevent reprisals.

Portia Leaky.

Bollermakers are to-day engaged in making repairs to S.S. Portia. She is leaking in the forward hold and concrete is being used to make temporary repairs. There will, however, be some delay in her sailing, but the leak will not cause inconvenience. The other holds can take all the freight offering so far.

Harbor Grace Notes.

The schooner Fortia is on dock having necessary repairs effected.

The schr. Nevis, Captain J. Baker, left port on Saturday last for Bay Roberts.

Miss Violet Pugh of the Cable Staff Heart's Content, who has been confined to her home for the past six weeks, suffering from an attack of pneumonia, is now able to get out again. Her many friends will be pleased to hear this and will join in wishing her a speedy recovery to health.

Christ Church annual missionary meeting took place last night (Monday), the chief speaker being the Rev. H. V. Whitehouse of Carbonear.

The annual sale of work held in St. Paul's Hall on Wednesday and Thursday night's of last week, by the Women's Association and St. Catherine Girls' Guild of St. Paul's Church, was highly successful, being very largely attended. The whole proceeds amounted to $484.00.

Rev. W. H. Browning, Pastor of the Methodist Church here, has been confined to his home for the past few days, suffering from a slight cold. His many friends are hoping to see him around again in short. Rev. F. S. Coffin, Pastor of St. Andrew's Church here, closed his own church on Sunday last, and very kindly helped Rev. Mr. Browning out by occupying the pulpit of the Methodist Church, during that day's services. Rev. Coffin is ever ready to perform an act of kindness, and the Methodist congregation feels very grateful to him for his great assistance.

The Women's Guild of Christ Church intend holding their annual sale of work in the School Hall on Wednesday next, the 24th inst. We wish the ladies every success.

The schooner "Innovation," Captain M. H. Randell, left port this morning for Bahia, Brazil; having been on dock and had repairs effected, after striking a rock, while going out of Port Union some few weeks ago. We wish the gallant Captain a safe and speedy voyage.

Mr. E. Simmons left town yesterday for the city, to spend a few days there on business.

Trade has been a bit slow here again for the past few days, but we are hoping it will soon get brighter in St. John's, and thereby help the exports out.—COR.

Master Mariner's Appreciation.

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir,—Kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to join with the many others in sounding a note of praise and appreciation for the Marine Railway Dock at Harbour Grace.

I wish to make special reference to the schooner "Innovation," which underwent extensive repairs here, during the past few weeks; and may say, much credit is due the foreman of the Dock, Mr. J. Yetman, who superintended the job, and together with his staff of workmen, performed their duties faithfully and well; so that now the ship is in first class condition. I am quite prepared to endorse Captain Kean's remarks in the "Daily News" of recent date, regarding the popular Secretary-Treasurer, E. Simmons, Esq., and I may add also a word of appreciation for his accountant, Mr. F. Sullivan, and his stenographer, Miss M. Simmons, who each in turn rendered valuable assistance to me, during my stay at Harbor Grace; and during which time I made many good friends, and on my departure from amongst them, I wish to tender my best wishes to the Harbor Grace Marine Railway Docks and its officials, and to the town in general, my heartiest felicitations for 1921, in advance. Thanking you Mr. Editor, I am,
Yours truly,
CAPTAIN M. H. RANDELL.

One of The Greatest Blessings of Her Life.

St. John Woman Says She Has Not Been Sick a Day Since Tanlac Restored Her Health a Year Ago.

"No one ever comes into my home without hearing me talk about Tanlac for it has been one of the greatest blessings of my life," declared Mrs. George A. Dunham, a life-long resident of St. John, N.B., who lives at 71 Lombard Street.

"For sixteen years I have suffered awfully from indigestion and during the last five years have been getting worse rapidly. I kept on giving up things I could not digest until there was hardly anything left I could eat. I was growing weaker fast and often became so faint I couldn't stand up. All the time there was a bloated and distressing feeling in my stomach and my heart beat so fast I just had to struggle for breath. At night, especially, I felt like I was smothering and was often afraid to lie down for

I thought I might suffocate. I have suffered all my life from constipation and frequently have such severe headaches that I had to go to bed. My back ached awfully and I was getting worse in spite of everything I could do.

"About a year ago I began taking Tanlac on the advice of a friend and in just a few days I felt lots better. In less than two months I was free from all my troubles and I haven't been sick a day since. My appetite and everything I eat digests perfectly. I have gained a lot in weight and can do my housework without tiring one bit. I will never have anything but praise for Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, in Paradise by Mrs. Martin P. Byrne, in Upper Gullies by Heber Andrews, in Portland by H. C. Haines, in St. Joseph, Salmonier, by Mrs. J. Gush, in Miramichi by Ex-Imperial Valley Royal Stores, Ltd., in Plant Island by William Samson, in Jamestown by Christopher Haines, and in Lewisporte by Uriah Freake.—adv.

Slang Phrases and Sayings.

While a school is now a place of industry, it was not always thus. In fact, the word itself is derived from the Greek "schole," meaning leisure. Possibly this arose from the fact that only people with leisure were able to attend school.

The old Grecian athletes were in the habit of stripping for exercise, and the competitors in the old Olympian games wore little if any clothing. Hence the word meaning naked has sprung into modern use as gymnasium, a place where one may exercise.

Incidentally the Grecian women were forbidden entrance to the stadium where the games were being held, because of the nudity of the competitors, and any woman found therein was thrown from the Tarpaeian rock. Several exciting stories have been built around the efforts of a mother to enter the stadium to watch her son compete in some game or conflict.

No longer, as in olden days, does a woman retire to her boudoir to sulk, yet that seems to have been the original purpose of the room, for its name springs from the French verb, "boudier," to pout or be sulky.

When does the day begin? The Church holds that it begins at sunset, hence we have the eve of a feast-day; the Jews in their "sacred year" also hold that the day begins at sunset. The ancient Britons thought so, too, and from this practice we have the modern phrase, "fortnight." The Albanians, Chinese, Mohammedans, Italians, Austrians and Bohemians all hold this idea. Ancient Babylonians, Syrians and Persians thought it began at sunrise, as do the modern Greeks. Modern astronomers believe with the ancient Egyptians that the day begins at midnight, 1 a.m., being the first hour of the day.

There does not appear to be much connection between humming and humbug, yet both are believed to have sprung from the same word. To hum once signified to applaud, to pretend admiration, hence to cajole, to deceive, which gave rise to the old saying "it is all a hum." There is another and more ingenious derivation of the word humbug. It appears that James II. issued from the Irish mint a coin composed of lead, copper or brass. This was a sovereign, but was only worth two pence; after the Revolution it was worth about a half-penny. Now there is an Irish word "um bog" pronounced um-bug, which means soft copper or worthless money. These false sovereigns were called um bogs and in consequence sterling and "umbug," became expressive of merit and humbug.

Chaff refers to the throwing of chaff instead of bird-seed to allure birds, and consequently we get the phrase an old bird is not caught with chaff, that is a wise man, with all his wits about him, is not to be deluded by humbug. But "you are chaffing me," springs from an entirely different source. Here the reference is to the French world chaffer to cook, chaff or vex, and the English expression still survives in the phrase to "roast" a person, which does not necessarily mean to cook him, although he may become heated.

Lenine's Message to British Reds.

The secret advice to British revolutionists which Sylvia Pankhurst is alleged to have brought from Lenine on her return from London to Petrograd, do not reveal much that was not already known about Bolshevik secret diplomacy. Lenine's original declaration that Sovietism in Russia could only be made a permanent success by the establishment of a similar system in other countries still stands, although Trotsky, in a recent utterance, claimed that the Bolshevik administration of russia had receded from that position.

The gist of the instructions that Miss Pankhurst is alleged to have brought to the "Red" wing of the British Labor Party was that moderate labor leaders must be removed from office in that organization by lawful or unlawful means. It would perhaps be unfair to assume that Lenine, by the use of the phrase "unlawful" signified a crime. What he probably meant was that moderates should be excluded and expelled from office in all labor bodies, even though the rules and constitutions of such organizations had to be violated. There is no news in this. He has already excommunicated the moderates of Italy for compromising with capital. It is what the "Reds" have been attempting in every land ever since the Soviet Government attained real power in Petrograd, and sent forth its missionaries to all parts of the world.

In Canada we have seen Lenine's policies in operation for the past eighteen months at Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton, Toronto, Montreal and lesser centres. The efforts of the Leninists to exclude moderate labor leaders from office of any kind was carried on in the open this summer at the Convention of the American Federation of Labor in Montreal, and at the Canadian Trades Congress in Windsor. This internecine warfare against every moderate labor leader, however sincere, and however fruitful his past efforts in securing benefits for Labor, has been carried on in and out of season in every Trade Council in this country. There have been numerous local victories for the "Reds," but in almost every instance the moderate leaders have, in the end, defeated the revolutionaries.

From the outsider's standpoint the most striking fact about Lenine's international plan of campaign is its autocratic character. Moderate leaders are to be eliminated even though they represent a majority in their particular organizations, and though theoretically opposed to militarism. Lenine pledges himself that the "Red" armies of Russia will come to the assistance of any foreign group which succeeds in setting up Soviet rule on Russian lines. Labor is to be coerced into accepting Sovietism against its will, even if every tried and trusted representative of the cause is driven from its councils. This is the new democracy!—Saturday Night.

Carpentier Gets an Enthusiastic Welcome Home.

Paris.—Twenty thousand fans welcomed Georges Carpentier back to Paris on Saturday at Gare Saint Lazare. To escape them he had one of the toughest fights in his career. Long before the train had stopped hundreds had clambered on to the running board to try to shake his hand and when he appeared at the carriage door, the roof of the station was nearly raised by cheers.

Never in the history of Paris had such a reception been accorded anyone. Those who were foremost in the crowd lifted the boxer to their shoulders and tried to carry him through the crowd, but half a dozen times he was down and up again. After a struggle of ten minutes his supporters managed to get him out of the crowd and into one of the waiting cars. The door was immediately shattered. Wood and glass went down with a crash and the mob surged in. Francois Descamps, Carpentier's manager, had to struggle the same as his champion. They were engulfed in the swirling maelstrom of humanity.

The tripple cordon of police that had been ordered to the station to keep order was swept away like one man. Carpentier himself needed all his strength to keep his feet and his temper. Even his immense hand must be sore from the shaking it got. After half an hour's uproar he saved himself as cleverly as he has often done in the ring. As the crowd surged out of the stations gates with him in front, he seized the opportunity to shake himself clear and bolted. In twenty yards he had outdistanced everyone and flung himself onto the footboard of a moving taxicab. Then he turned and waved farewell to the howling crowd, and speeded home.

Home-made, but Has No Equal for Coughs

Makes a family supply of really dependable cough medicine. Specially prepared, and saves about $2.

If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with cough and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes 16 ounces of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds.

There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

What They Say.

Plato said, "Music is to the mind as air to the body."
 A great military and civil commander said, "Let me make the songs of a nation and I care not who makes its laws."

The N.F.M.C. says, "We believe that music is a powerful curative for mental, moral and physical ills. This belief is attested by facts."
 The Scripture tells us that Saul and David played the harp to charm away their ill humor and bodily ailments. To-day in many hospitals quiet music is being used for nervous troubles and bright music for melancholia. Many cases of memory loss were cured by the hearing of familiar melodies. Mr. Winship says: "Music is not a frill on the border of education, but it is that which puts the vital thrill into education." It is the long sought panacea for all ills, the sovereign alchemy that transmutes all baser metals into gold, the divining rod that finds water where there isn't any, the weightiest argument against polygamy.

Furthermore: Music is color. It is hypnotism, it is spirit revelation, it is telepathy, it is the fourth dimension. It is conscience, it is the unmet tear and the unseen smile, the ineffable words that human lips were never known to speak, the sphynx, the cube root and ouija in one.

All this is well and good. It reassures us with regard to the poetry of our race. It proves imagination is keeping pace with the dollar. It establishes that we know something of analogy and hyperbole besides that which finds expression in the bartering of all stocks.

She Knew.

Here is a story the Archbishop of Canterbury is fond of telling about a visit he once made to a Sunday school.

A class of girls were going over the story of Solomon, and he asked: "Who was the great Queen who travelled so many miles to see the King?"

There was no response, so Dr. Davidson went on: "You surely must know; the name begins with an S."

At this hint a small hand was raised. "I know," said its owner, "the Queen of Spades."

Wit and Humour.

Sir P. Lloyd-Graeme, the new Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade, is a man of ready wit, as the numerous stories about him abundantly prove.

On one occasion, for instance, an acquaintance of his who happens to be a staunch vegetarian stated in his presence that he declined ever to eat eggs, giving as his reason that they "would turn into chickens."
 "The kind of eggs I eat wouldn't," objected Sir Philip.
 "Oh, what sort of eggs are those?"
 "Boiled eggs!"
 Another time somebody said to him that labour troubles cropped up nowadays with the regularity of clockwork.
 "Yes," was his quick reply, "they do seem to have the strike habit."

To serve with plum pudding make a simple cornstarch sauce and flavor with jam or jelly.

The answer of most fat people is that exercise and dieting is too hard, too troublesome and too dangerous a method to force the weight down. However, in Marmite Prescription Tablets, all these difficulties are overcome. They are absolutely harmless, entail no dieting or violent exercises, and have the added advantage of cheapness. One little tablet after each meal and at bedtime—as pleasant to eat as candy—will reduce your weight two, three or four pounds a week, and leave no bad results such as wrinkles or flabby skin. A good size box is sold by druggists at the reasonable price of one dollar, or if preferable they may be obtained by sending the amount to the Marmite Co., 54 Corfield Building, Detroit, Mich. They will reach you by mail, prepaid, in plain, sealed cover.

Now that you know this you have no excuse for being too fat, but can reduce two, three or four pounds a week without fear of bad after-effects.

The Happiness That Came to Sir Henry Lawrence.

(John o' London's Weekly.)
 "You know the inner chambers of my heart more than most," Lady Lawrence wrote to a friend in the first year of her wedded life, "so you will understand the force of my words when I tell you I am happy, and that in Henry I find that on which my understanding heart can fully rest. Mamma understands the beauty of his character. His mind is like a house in which the commonest vessels are of gold, and their value is hardly known until we look at the stuff other vessels are made of."

It would, indeed, be difficult to find a more ideal union than that of Henry Lawrence, great soldier and hero of Lucknow, and Honoria Marshall, the lovely and gifted girl who won his heart at first sight of her beauty, as a boy of twenty-one.

Love at First Sight.

Four years earlier Lawrence, following in the steps of his father and two elder brothers, had set sail to India. And it was on his first home leave in 1827 that he first met Honoria, the bosom friend of his beloved sister, Letitia, and his own second cousin, and she walked straight into his heart. But though Lawrence succumbed thus quickly to Honoria's unconscious onslaught he gave no sign of his surrender.

And we see him parting from Honoria after a day's sight-seeing in London, with a friendly grasp of the hand as if he expected to see her on the morrow, and returning to India carrying the secret of his love with him. Indeed, nine more years of exile and separation, during which he wrote at last he considered he was in a position to declare himself; and his long and weary waiting was rewarded when her answer came to him that she loved him so dearly as he loved her—had, in fact, loved him from the first; and that she asked no greater happiness than to share his life. Thus, one summer day in 1837, we see her setting sail for India, to stand at the altar of the small Mission Church in Calcutta with the man for whom a woman she had waited so long.

Home in a Tent.

And never has greater happiness crowned a wooing. Lawrence was now engaged in the Government service at Allahabad as a revenue surveyor, spending a restless life in travelling over a wide district, superintending the work of his assistants; and into this nomadic life his bride threw herself with zest. The home to which he brought her was a tent in the jungle, pitched, folded, and repitched at intervals of a few days or weeks as his work required.

But this idyllic gipsy-life was not to last long; for trouble in Afghanistan called Lawrence from his wife's side.

But Captain Lawrence was not to fight after all. He remained on the borders of Afghanistan with a portion of the troops, and soon after was appointed Political Agent at Ferozepore. And it was there that sorrow first entered their life with the death of their second child, a baby girl. "It is a bitter cup," Mrs. Lawrence writes; "but it comes from a Father's hand, and I say, with joy and praise to Him, that on the 21st August, our fourth wedding-day, we were happier—yes, happier—in each other than we had ever been. We could never so have loved had we not sorrowed together."

Ideal Love.

Thus the years passed in a love and ideal comradeship which the inevitable sorrows and trials of life only seemed to strengthen; and meanwhile Lawrence rose slowly but surely on the ladder of fame and influence in Indian affairs. There were periods of separation bravely and patiently borne—as when he faced death daily on the historic march to Kabul—when the only thought of each was for the other. "Darling," he wrote to her, "don't fear for me, or think I expose myself unnecessarily. I do not, and am mindful of you, of my boy, and of myself."

The years that followed this turbulent interval, when Lawrence was appointed Resident at the Court of Nepal and, later, Governor-General's Agent in the Punjab, were, to quote his own words, "years of quiet ease, health, and competence, in lieu of toil, discomfort, and sickness"; for his wife's delicate health caused him great anxiety, and he himself was "the wreck of two African fevers."

Left Desolate.

Lawrence's excellent work in the Punjab, and later in Rajputana and Oudh, made him a marked man. He was now a K.C.B. and recognized as one of the ablest officials in India. But all his success was but Dead Sea fruit to him when he saw the beloved companion of his life fade away. And when the end came one January day in 1864 his life was left empty and desolate. "My house," he pathetically writes to a friend, "is indeed dark."

But as he would have wished it, his pilgrimage of loneliness was fated to be short. Three years later his own end came with the bursting of a shell in his room in the Residency of besieged Lucknow. And as he lay dying he dictated his own immortal epitaph: "Here lies Henry Lawrence, who tried to do his duty"; adding—as the tears streamed down his cheeks at the memory of the woman he had loved so well—"I should also like this text: 'To the Lord our God belong mercies and forgivenesses, though we have rebelled against Him.'" It was on my dear wife's tomb.

French Champ.

Praises Dempsey.

Paris.—Georges Carpentier, the heavyweight champion of Europe, returned from America richer by 1,000,000 francs and with a great respect for the fighting ability of Jack Dempsey, world's title holder.

Carpentier, who was never boastful, even before leaving France when he had not seen Dempsey, said on his return that Dempsey was considered in America to be a "super-fighter," but that he would meet him with as much confidence as he did the British fighters, Wells, and Beckett, whom he knocked out.

"The newspapers," said Carpentier, "reported Dempsey as saying he would lead me to the slaughter like an ox. I don't believe it. I have met Dempsey, who is really a very amiable gentleman. I even had one match with him which I won—but that was at golf. Dempsey's kind thought in sending me a wireless message when off Nantucket wishing us God speed was very gentlemanly."

"The boastful remark attributed to Carpentier's manager, Descamps at the Jersey Club ball park, that Carpentier would beat the champion in two rounds, has now been modified to such expressions as: 'The difference in weight of 14 pounds will be a great handicap,' and 'the man who lands the first blow will win.'"

Descamps appeared proud of the concession he succeeded in obtaining from the promoters—the privilege of making Carpentier's forfeit deposit in scrip of the new French loan, which will be placed in J. P. Morgan & Co.'s bank this week, bearing six per cent. interest.

And no one could tell the difference!

This test of direct comparison was made by Anna Case, world-famous soprano, before 2500 people, at Carnegie Hall, New York City, on March 10, 1920. See the three diagram sketches below:

First—Miss Case stood beside the New Edison and sang.

Suddenly—the lights went out, but Miss Case's voice went smoothly on.

Then—the lights went on again. Miss Case was gone. The audience gasped with surprise to find that her voice had been coming from the New Edison.

Mr. Santa Claus! Come in and hear the phonograph that did it

We want you to see it, listen to it, test it for yourself. This marvelous phonograph can give the family more pleasure than any other instrument you can buy them for Christmas.

Here is why:

This phonograph has actually proved that it can match the performance of the living artist,—and match it so perfectly that no one can tell its RE-CREATION from the living performance.

It did this on March 10, 1920 before 2500 people at Carnegie Hall, New York City—with Anna Case, the world-famed soprano. It did this on September 30th, 1919, before 2500 people at Carnegie Hall, Pittsburgh—with Marie Rappold, prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company. It did this on November 5th, 1919, before 6500 teachers at the State Armory, Albany—with Mario Laurenti of the Metropolitan Opera Company. It did this over 4000 other times, with more than fifty great vocalists and instrumentalists. You can read the facts of these amazing achievements in the leading newspapers of the United States and Canada. They are the talk of the music and scientific world.

And the phonograph? It's the Official Laboratory Model of the New Edison, "the phonograph with a soul." Every Official Laboratory

Model in our store is an exact duplicate of the famous original Official Laboratory Model which cost Mr. Edison three million dollars to perfect. It is capable of sustaining the test of direct comparison; we guarantee this.

Get an Official Laboratory Model for Christmas. You will have the one phonograph which brings you the living performances of great artists exactly as those artists have given them. You know this is so! The proof has been given! The absolute, scientific proof!

Say the word,—and we'll save an Official Laboratory Model for you, and deliver it in time for Christmas.

The NEW EDISON "The Phonograph with a Soul"

Test It Yourself

You'll be able to recognize its superiority with your own ears—in every kind of vocal and instrumental music. Come in and see whether this isn't so. We'll gladly give you Mr. Edison's famous Realism Test.

Money Help

Joe Miller's Jest.

Eighteen years hence somebody will find in August a reason for celebrating a bicentenary of Joe Miller, for the name has now outlived the man these 182 years, and may be counted upon to last much longer, says the "Christian Science Monitor." Everybody has heard of Joe Miller; and nearly everybody probably thinks of him as the author of "Joe Miller's Jest"; or the "Wit's Vade-Mecum." But Joe himself provided no more than a well-known name for the cover of a shilling book, although the title stated that the specimens of humor had been "first carefully collected in the company"—for Joe was an actor—"and many of them transcribed from the mouth of the facetious gentleman whose name they bear." Almost anybody except Joe Miller himself might in this manner have contributed some of the jests. But Joe was no joker, and the book was a joke book containing the "Jests" then current in London, and Miller's name given it to attract popular attention.

Such books were then common, and it was also common to commit selections of their contents to memory as an aid to social conversation. John

Mottley, a mediocrity in the writing world of London, happened to turn out a joke book which became what we would now call a best-seller among its kind, and the people found them conversationally useful, and as time went on the bearer of an oft-repeated joke, no matter what book it came from, was likely to reproach the teller by remarking, "That's a Joe Miller."

Yet those who knew him personally declare that Joe Miller never made a joke, and that his demeanor in the company of lighter tongues than his, was so serious that it became the custom of these wags to attribute jokes to him; to say that Joe Miller had made this joke or that was a joke itself. A fictitious reputation as a "facetious companion" was thus attached to serious Joe, and no doubt contributed to the sale of "Joe Miller's Jest"; or the "Wit's Vade-Mecum."

"Although he really made no jokes, Joe Miller was an excellent comedian, whose name first appears on the bills of Drury Lane Theatre in 1775. He remained for most of his life a successful comic actor, popular with his companions, despite his solemnity and apparently highly respected for his personal character. An old painting shows him as a rather round-faced, serious man in a curled wig and cocked hat. His professional appearance at the fairs that then occurred regularly in the vicinity of London added no doubt to his wide popularity and to the later value of his name on the cover of a jest book. For these miscellaneous outdoor entertainments, famous in their day at Bartholomew's Fair, Smithfield May Fair, or Greenwich Fair, extended the working season for industrious actors. They came at the time of year when the regular theatres were temporarily closed, and companies of actors were formed to appear in booths erected at the fair. Joe Miller at one time was manager of such a booth theatre.

"The success of 'Joe Miller's Jest' ran to several editions and a number of other collections were brought out from year to year under similar titles, until the name of the comedian became inseparable from the idea of an old joke. Joe Miller himself might not have appreciated this odd and far-reaching fame, but it would undoubtedly delight those facetious companions who regarded it as a chuckling matter to attribute this joke and that to their friend, Joe Miller."

Roman Roads

Still in Use.

Two thousand years ago the Romans built roads, some of which are still in active service. These roads have lasted through the centuries, simply because of their massive construction. The Romans built four successive courses or layers, on an earth subgrade, carefully prepared and drained. First came the statumen, or foundation; then the rudus, next the nucleus, and finally the pavimentum, or wearing surface. The statumen and pavimentum consisted of large flat stones, while the two intervening courses were built of smaller stones laid in lime mortar. To carry the chariot and packhorse traffic of Roman times these roads were seemingly ridiculously heavy, yet the wisdom of the builders was amply demonstrated by the eight hundred years during which the Roman road system formed the backbone of the transportation system of the ancient empire.

Just Folks

SUCCESS. Well, I'll tell you the way—

There are things you must do and a price you must pay.

You must catch the broad vision and see how great in your hands may your task come to be.

The humblest of duties soon looms very large whenever a great mind shall take it in charge.

You really are eager to climb to success. You must give to your task everything you possess.

No "just good enough" will bring honor to you. Success demands always the best you can do.

You must carry your burdens with never a whim. Nor grumble whenever your sun falls to shine.

There is grief to be suffered and heartache to meet. And you must learn how to accept a defeat.

Success is the goddess of merit alone. By no other way can its glory be known.

You must work for it, strive for it, dream on and plan. And truly deserve it by being a man.

Plain Girls Attract Men.

No Girl Need Sigh When She Looks Into Her Mirror!

You may not have a film face, nor stand any chance in a prize beauty competition.

A girl can always get a boy, just because she happens to be that wonderful and incomparable thing, a girl.

The sweet face of our mother is a feast for our eyes. But strangers could look upon the dear old lady unmoved.

Love is the divine artist who transfigures the faces of parents, sisters, brother, lovers and friends.

Therefore, ugly girls attract men by their beauty. This sounds ridiculous; nevertheless, it is incontrovertibly true.

Why Plain Girls Keep Boys. Just as nine men in ten drift into matrimony without even going through the formality of "popping the question."

There are no ugly girls. But there are many beautiful girls. These inspire everybody with love; and, as often happens, may easily marry the wrong man.

The plain girl makes no such mistake. Her choice is easier. There isn't the same competition for her hand.

It isn't easy to say why a plain girl can always attract and keep a lover. Certainly he has the satisfaction of feeling that she will not betray him.

The Big Fight May Be Staged in Connecticut.

Georges Carpentier, the French heavyweight champion, according to cablegrams from the other side, is due to arrive in Paris to-day. Prior to his departure last Saturday all articles for a bout with Champion Jack Dempsey were signed, and Bob Edgren, a New York sporting writer, has the agreement in his possession.

That the big fight, financed by the now famous triumvirate of sporting and theatrical promoters, William A. Brady, Tex Richard and Charley Cochran admitted this week that the Cuban bidders had failed to come through with the offer they had promised to make.

Cochrane later supplemented his first announcement with the statement that the fight would be staged "within easy reach of New York."

It is now stated authoritatively that the city now being considered and negotiated with for the championship battle, which will be staged in an outdoor arena on July 4, is none other than Bridgeport, Conn.

Joe Mulvihill, a life-long friend of "Tex" Richard and one of his assistants in Toledo last year, was commissioned this week to go to Bridgeport for the purpose of "feeling out public sentiment there and also to locate a site for the arena."

The war record of Georges Carpentier seems to have washed away whatever opposition existed in Connecticut against championship bouts in which Jack Dempsey was a participant.

America and the League

Nothing has occurred to cause any one to abandon the opinion that the United States will yet enter the League of Nations. President-elect Harding speaks of an 'association of nations' which the Republic would be willing to enter; the future will probably show that the 'association of nations' is the League of Nations.

Whatever differences of opinion there may be among American people regarding the Wilson League of Nations . . . It is clear that American public opinion, like the public opinion in other civilized countries, is insistent that there shall be put into operation an effective system of international relations which will reduce the menace of international war.

Extremists and persons whose mental processes have more of quickness than thoroughness usually make the most noise in election campaigns but they are not the people who direct party policy after the victory is won.

Irish Meeting in St. John's.

minority had been shown by the Government subsidies granted to the linen industry. The result was that there was in Ulster a homogeneous industrial community, that in the main was Protestant. In the other parts of Ireland there was a homogeneous agricultural community that in the main was Catholic. This had given rise in Ireland, as in other countries where this problem had arisen, to the natural fear on the part of the industrial community that under any system of parliamentary government in which the agrarian community was predominant, the industrial section might suffer through unjust taxation and unfair legislation. That was not peculiar to Ireland. It existed in Canada between the agricultural west and the industrial east. It was found in the United States in the difference between the agricultural West and Wall Street. The industrial community in Ulster was represented by the men who to-day are the chief supporters of Carson and who, to prevent any political change that would give the farmers undue powers in an Irish Parliament, had deliberately raised the religious issue in defence of interests that was purely economic. Superimposed upon this domestic economic problem was that which arose through the relations between England and Ireland. On the one hand there was a practically homogeneous industrial England and on the other hand a practically homogeneous agricultural Ireland. The problem as they must recognize, was purely economic and not religious. To prevent economic freedom in Ireland it was necessary to prevent political freedom, but as in the case of the Thirteen Colonies in their struggle for national independence in the eighteenth century, it was found that no people could be economically free that was not politically free, and it was the knowledge of this fundamental principle of government that led the American colonists—men of the same race and creed as England herself—to find a national salvation in complete political independence. It was ridiculous, Mr. Crawford continued, for any intelligent man who professed to be a leader of public opinion to suggest, as had been suggested in that city, that the industrial supremacy of Ulster was due either to the racial, educational or social superiority of the Ulster minority. One only had to follow the Irish into exile in Newfoundland, Canada and the United States to realize the absurdity of this suggestion.

In what countries could it be said that the native Irish when given a fair chance under a free Government were the inferior of any other race. The industries of Ulster, in so far as they existed had not enriched the Province of Ulster as a whole, and their establishment was due to causes other than those suggested by a prominent local speaker. The linen industry had been subsidized by the Government and the shipbuilding industry had been built up by outsiders, the most prominent of whom was Gustave Wolf, a full-blooded German financier. The only thing that Ulster had contributed to the building up of the shipbuilding industry of Belfast was the cheapest casual male labor that was to be found in any part of the British Isles. This labor had been casualized by the linen industry which employed women and children to the virtual exclusion of male labor. Another factor that went to the making up of this fictitious history with regard to Ulster prosperity was the close proximity of Belfast to the shipping ports of Scotland and England. Belfast was the great clearing house for the rest of Ireland for imported goods, but it is absurd to credit to Belfast or to Ulster, customs and excise duties on goods that were consumed by the whole of Ireland. In conclusion, Mr. Crawford appealed for a broader spirit of toleration in the discussion of this Anglo-Irish problem. The right of the people to govern itself, was not debatable, the right to self-determination inheres in the Irish people. It is not a thing that can be given by England or any outside power. Give Ireland her freedom, declared Mr. Crawford, and in a very short time the closest and most friendly relations would exist between the two countries now so divided. At the close of the lecture a vote of thanks to Mr. Crawford was passed and the meeting was concluded with the National Anthem.

Bonavista Notes.

The ladies of the R. C. congregation held a very successful hot supper and dance in St. Joseph's Hall on Wednesday the 17th inst. The affair was well patronized and we feel safe in saying that those present enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent. The "light fantastic" was indulged in by old and young till the early hours of the morning. A goodly sum was realized by the efforts of the good ladies, who, no doubt, feel proud of the success of the event.

Messrs. F. J. Hann and G. W. Snow, who had been canvassing the town in the interests of their respective companies, left by Thursday morning's train after an enjoyable stay at Bonavista.

On Sunday His Lordship Bishop White administered the rite of Confirmation to a number of youthful members of the Church of England. His visit had been eagerly looked forward to by both old and young. The elder members of the congregation had a beautiful evergreen arch erected over the church entrance as a token of welcome to the distinguished prelate. Bunting was also displayed from various residences and public buildings in his honor. From hence His Lordship proceeded to dedicate the church at Port Union.

On Thursday last an enjoyable tea was given in St. Andrew's school-room at Bayley's Cove. A large number of citizens attended to partake of the delicacies offered and help out a good cause by their patronage. The event was a splendid success financially and the promoters are to be congratulated on the result of their labours.

Mr. John S. Rowse left by Saturday's express to visit his daughter at Trinity East, Mrs. (Rev.) H. F. Blackledge and present at the christening of a baby that has lately come to the Rectory. He was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Mildred.

Miss Ellen Sheehan of Brigus, who had been visiting friends here during the past couple of weeks, returned home by Saturday's express, taking with her pleasant memories of hours well spent, and favourably impressed with both town and people.

The Rev. Charles Lench, who had been on a holiday to the neighbouring continent, returned by train on Sunday.

Owing to the closing down of the steel works at North Sydney, quite a number of our young men who had gone there to work for the winter are out of employment. Trains arriving during the past few days have brought in many who were unable to obtain work.

Sugar Sells at New Low Prices.

NEW YORK, November 19.—Continued weakness prevailed in sugar to-day. Prices again fell to new low records for the season. There were sales of 6,000 bags of Porto Rican November-December shipments at 5.60, and 7,000 bags of Cuban on spot at 5.18 cost and freight, equal to 6.14 for centrifugal. Refined was easier at $9.00 and $9.50 for fine granulated. Futures were weak and prices made new low records under renewed selling prompted by the weakness in raws. At noon values were 22 to 26 point net lower.

Must Have Been Strong.

Lieut.-Col. L'Estrange Malone, member of Parliament for an English constituency, has been arrested and is under process of trial at Bow Street for using language calculated to cause sedition among the civil population. His words were described by the Crown prosecutor as nothing but an incitement to murder. They must have been strong. Outside of Ireland, and even in Ireland under ordinary conditions, the rule with the Government of the United Kingdom has been to let a man say what he willed.—Montreal Gazette.

The Right Island.

Miss Joan Barry, who has made such a hit at the St. James's Theatre in "His lady Friends," fired off a neat little joke the other evening while waiting behind the scenes for her cue. A certain well-known actress was complaining that her maid had objected to going to the Isle of Wight for a holiday, giving as her reason that the island added, "What am I to do with such a girl!" "Take her to the Isle of Man," advised Joan promptly.

Household Notes.

Nightgown bottoms make serviceable petticoats. Mince meat should be made a month before using. Barberry berries give a delicious flavor to apple jelly. Cream puffs are delicious filled with whipped cream. Season a veal casserole with a bit of caramelized sugar. Mahogany furniture should be dusted with soft old silk. Green peas and fresh salmon are excellent served together. Slice cold plum pudding, fry in melted butter and serve hot. Large, heavy picture frames tend to make a room look smaller. Cucumbers in some style should always be served with salmon. Potato shells filled with crab meat and baked is a novel idea. Sprinkle cauliflower soup with grated cheese just before serving. Plain doughnuts served with maple sugar make a nice dessert. Before stuffing duck sprinkle lightly inside with black pepper. Delicate collars of lace are best bound around the inner edge with net. An old cloth luncheon set painted in fruit design makes an attractive gift. In the nursery can be hung a bag of heavy romper cloth to hold all toys. It is a good idea to keep hotted potatoes on hand for quick French fries. Add a little baking powder to your meringue—it will "stand up" better. Mark each child's stockings with a different color and save time and trouble.
