Lockwood has addressed a letter to Chief Justice Coleridge asking him to use his influence to pave the way for the admission of women to the bar in England. Lord Coleridge, in reply, has promised to make known the main parts of her communication in his country. Mrs Lockwood has been suspended from practice for receiving illegal fees and witholding pension money.

She claims the charges against her are unfounded. She says agents and claimants are treated from the outset as thieves and felons, and every possible obstacle is thrown in the way of both. For two years systematic efforts have been made to deprive attorneys of the paltry fee allowed. Every ingenuity is devised to prolong cases and magnify the business of the office by the parties in power. The pension office has become an inquisition and attempts are made to follow the money of pensioners into all of its ramifications. into all of its ramifications.

THE BOND STREET PULPIT

DR. WILD AGAIN PREACHES ON THE RESURBECTION.

Three Images of Christ—David's Hope of the Fature—Answers to Correspon-Among the quizzing letter writers who stormed the doctor with questions last evening was one who inquired after St. Paul. He was informed that the apostle, according to tradition, had once visited Wales and Cornwall, and established a church on the border of Wales. The same writer was also told that Ulster, Cornwall and Wales contained the principal upholders of protestant-ism. Another asked if two children were born into the world and never heard a word, what language would they speak? The ncients thought that in such a case the Hebrew would come naturally, but the dector thought they would invent a minia-ture language different from apything in existence. Another "Listener" was told that the Prussians are the Assyrians of the Text—"I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy ikeness."—Psalms, 17th chap., 15th v. good." "Thank the Lord the world began right," the doctor earnestly exclaimed. He further pointed out that Christ has right," the doctor earnestly exclaimed.

He further pointed out that Christ has had three images—the first when he appeared in Eden, the second when he lived on earth in the time of the apostles and the third he assumed after his resurrection. It was this last image that Daniel looked forward to, and that we are hoping for. To attain to it we must first die, when he will reclothe us with bodies—celestial bodies, and if God made this terrestial body we now see, can He not make a celestial one? The preacher thought that men mocked their reason because they mystified it so, and that any man who disbelieved in the resurrection ought to disbelieve in his own existence.

Referring to death, he said ''I repeat that when a man is asleep in death he is not annihilated, unconscious, nor has he lost his identity. He is conscious and alive." The thirteen pamphlets published criticising a series of four sermons he preached did not, he averred, deal with the real points at issue. David expects to wake up in God's own likeness, and he will not have been annihilated on the very and my dispelied on the result of the content of the

CASSIO'S COMMENTS.

This is a column which, by permission of the editorial autocrat, I hope in course of time to make "a little thing of my own," but not always to be "knocked off in hurry," as the amateur fournalist says to the disgusted manager. Writing in the first person there is greater freedom of movement, and more opportunity for direct com-munication with the reader, than there is under the continuous and stilted "we," When I have to express myself as "we," I always feel as though I were a bishop, or were speaking for both myself and Mrs. Cassio, who is quite able to speak for herself. Besides which I may have some views which the editor may not share, but which may be ventilated here without committing his "worship." And to begin with I desire to say few words about the press for a free lance ought to spire nothing, and I must from time to time prick even those able persons who modestly style themselves "the moulders of public opinion." The World excepted, the Toronto newspapers travel pretty much in the old ruts. The change of management has not made the Globe any more radical or outspoken than Text—"I chall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness."—Pealms, 17th chap., 15th v.

The doctor commenced by stating that the world is not as perfect as we could conceive—it does not seem to meet our ideal conception. Some have also formed an ideal of the Creator which would demand of him a perfect world. Why then are these ideals so far apart? Because, as in the tares among the wheat, an enemy has entered in and caused the confusion and disorder that exists. That enemy is man, who has perverted his freed m and has been the cause of sin entering into the world, and man must not attribute it to God. Never blame the Lord for sin. After the six days of creation were passed God saw everything he had made, "and behold it was very good." "Thank the Lord the world began right," the doctor earnestly exclaimed. it was before, in fact the tendency is in the How his style will "take" in evening journalism remains to be seen. The cars of the ballast train were smashed into splinters. The trucks lost their springs and the wheels were mingled together. The locomotives severed their connections with their cow-catchers and head lights and drove into each other's smoke-stacks. Their tenders were almost doubled up. The timbers in the engines and tenders were either shivered or broken, and several were splintered.

The casualties were as follows: John Taylor, brakeman, of this city, sustained a fracture of the right hip and was otherwise hurt; Hirsm Phillips of Eldorado had his head badly cut, one of his hips was injured and two ribs fractured; and Mrs. Wright of Madoc was badly injured about the neck. MONDAY MORNING, OCT. 29 ,1889. MR. CROOKS AS A PHILOSOPHER

VI am " returns to his native Canada to-day. Not to be considered wanting in reverence towards the returned minister of education, we state that it was on the historic occasion of a university dinner that this appellation was first bestowed on him, Bestowed on him in fact by the direct objects of his ministerial regard and love-the students themselves. This absolves us from any credit to originality we might have ssessed in the matter. At the same time it confirms a suspicion that we have long had -that youth, especially university you is uncommonly penetrating. It is in a spirit of disinterested kindness that in welcoming Mr. Crooks back to us, of a new principle, more important even than we welcome him with a suggestion, There is even a pleasure in making the suggestion, for it would never have occurred of itself to him and yet cannot fail to recommend itself to him. It is in regard to the portfolio he holds and the embarrassment he must feel in continuing to hold it. In fact we suggest that incidentallysay at another university dinner—he should admit this embarrassment. He might admit for instance that having been minister of education now for some years his am- tainly do not indicate the probability of its bition was satisfied and that he now yearned for the Horatian fig has been for twelve years preparing for antree. He might touch on the other war with Germany, which every pa fact that it was a big position and that he trictic Frenchman believes to be surely had well, he had filled it , that he had, as it were, projected his personality into the all the time, and of late has been giving department, and that his personality had left, well had left marks. He might mention that he had labored hard in the interests of his province, and regretted slowly but surely drifting into a war with that his province had not seemed unani- Germany and Austria. On both sides of mous, well, unanimous in its approval, as it Russia's western frontier garrisons are being were. All these things he might say, quite increased and fortifications are being choly and reproach, that graceful commingling of pathos and submission which is would not be surprised to see the experience so becoming the philosopher when he looks of centuries reversed, and Turkey taking back on life and feels that it has not altegether done its duty by him.

In the interests also of the picturesque, for the promotion of our struggling Canadian it a menace to Russia, and in some degree to art, he would hasten to complete the picture, and Crooks from education would gide into the even and gracious ways of philosophy. Thus would the elegantly graceful picture be complete and Mr. Mowat having proved himself a consummate artist would then turn his face sorrowfully towards the task of getting an- year by year the materials for a tremendous other minister of education. THE WHISKY-HEAD MUST GO.

Nearly every business, nearly every home, is curred with a whisky-head. We are told. and we hope it is true, that their number is reducing, that the cause of temperance is advancing, and that the proof of this is seen in the wide-spread agitation for more stringent laws regulating the sale of intoxicants. But we take it that a still more hopeful sign is in view: namely, the great change that has come over society in its attitude toward drinkers. The old ideas of the " weak and erring brother," of "lifting up the fallen," of "moral sussion," of "give him another chance," are being abandoned: a more heroic and, let us add, kindlier method is coming in to practice. It is to let the whisky. head go. If he wants to finish himself, why, et him. When he is the source of so much misery, so much suffering to his relatives and to himself, why nurse him into being the cause of more? Let him go. The sooner he has finished himself the better for all. A deep wound will eventually heal; but a ting big prices for everything they have to s a ller wound that is ever being torn afresh testers in time. Business men more than ating drunkards: they refuse to have sheep are bought up and sent off to Engdesign with them, and it in their employ land and the Eastern States. Some manufacturers over of life come hard upon the poor man, to be there are posting up notices that they cannot have work spoiled by drunken or half sure, but it does not very clearly appear what we are going to do about it. Is the drunken workmen and that the whisky-Globe prepared to argue that lower prices of farm produce would be for the country's heads must go. The call in every department, in every line, is for men of clear good? If so, that will be new doctrine in heads. And in Canada here the whisky-Canada; and we wish our contemporary joy heads are being crowded out. How many whiskey-heads! How many accidents! The great majority of mean, low-lived things are done by whisky-heads, by the fellows who are such sticklers for being prices of farm produce were lower. It is a delusion to imagine that high prices at the shops of butchers, bakers, flour dealers and grocers are caused by the duties, in a country which has a surplus of the articles concerned to export. The high prices complained of are due mostly, o on the civilizing character of the great course, to the sweeping foreign demand but in part, also, to serious defects in our system of distribution, which we should endeavor, if possible, to discover, and find a remedy for.

PAINTING THE LILY. The Montreal Herald and the New York amins are at loggerheads. This is distress ing because we have noted that the gamins have lately been getting virtuous, as witness their recent disapproval (publicly displayed) of Mrs. Langtry's romantic friendship with Freddie. We do not wish to infer that the Herald is falling from virtue, but we must allow that the gamins have a superior intinct. This is what the Herald says : Mrs. Langtry has maintained her womanly dig nity and propriety, mingled with an almost childnce and grace, in spite of more blandishnents and flattery, perhaps, than even was This is throwing down the glove to the ramins with a vengeance. Our patriotism

Perhaps, however, we Who that is aware of the habits of many would have had greater faith in the young men, and the arts they use with a come after Mrs. Langtry's performance in Montreal instead of before. At present it looks a little providential.

MARIA MCCABE.

To the Editor of The World. Sik: In this particular case there is proof that the girl was seduced, and that she received no aid from the father of her child. But, aside from that, it is preposterous to assert that the "seduction" is often on the part of the female participant in immorality Who that knows men will believe that virtue? Who, having a sister, will believe that view of it correct? I deny that it is. Bu! from the nature of the subject under discussion. it is obviously impossible to sub-mit proof, and it had been better for "M. s' reputation as a respecter of women had he been less bold in his assertions, I agree been less bold in his assettions. I agrae with him that a proposal to hang the sadue I as well as the murderer is not feasible or just. The good and elever ladies who occasionally, and from the best of motives, write to the newspapers will appreciate "M.'s" sneering reference to them. It seems to me that the writer is exceedingly afraid that public opinion is so shaving trait it will call for the publishment of the male seducer as for the punishment of the male seducer as it already punishes the female. May that time soon come when it will not be possible for a man to seduce an innocent female and for a man to secure as afterward live in good society. [Society has now the power to enfor such a law.—The ED.]

IN ANSWER TO "M."

To the Editor of The World. SIR: I would admit it is true that the woman is guilty of the crime of infanticide as well as the offence against womanly purity, but we will not dwell on her guilt. Grievously has she sinned and grievously she answers it, even though man's law ac quit her entirely. As to the man, were imsame gallows." It would not do to hang men same gallows." It would not do to hang men for immorality, would it? But it is not all, he robbed her of the esteem of her friends, and even her own selt respect, and then deserted her, leaving her his child to care and work for, homeless and friendless as she was. (Who and where is the coward, anyhow?) It is true that she committed the deed, but in the name of common sense which is the more culpable, the first cause of the crime or the instrument that performs of the crime of the instrument that performs it? We, do object most at onely to the injustice of both law and society in all cases of the kind in freely forgiving the man and letting the woman bear all the consequences.

We cannot see that there is any hysterical sentiment, gush, or senile spite either, our wishing to see justice done, nor anythin unwomanly in even "writing letters to the news apers" about it. SENNEX

A FIGHT FOR PLASTERERS. The Masters and Men Have a for Two French Canadians—The New Arrivals Side with the Men.

The position of the masters and operative ins unchanged. The masters stated during the week that some seventy five sterers had been engaged in the province of Quebec and would arrive on last Saturday evening, they having sent a Mr. Sharpe who speaks French, down there to secure the men. Anticipating such a move, the peratives sent a French-speaking member of their body some distance along the rail-way to meet the men engaged. On boarding the train he found two men accompanied by Mr. Sharpe, and he at once entered into a nversation with them and explained the maiton. Meanwhile several of the master situaiton. Meanwhile several of the master plasterers proceeded in a buggy to Union station, and leaving the horse and buggy outside entered the station to enquire when the train would arrive. On learning this tray returned to the outside and jumped into their leaves. Instant this moment a nto their buggy. Just at this moment a their horse, and to the amaze-of the occupants of the which he suddenly parted company with the buggy and ran off along York street to his stables. Failing the capture of the horse, the party jumped into a hack and drove to the Don station where a picket of operatives were found in advance of them. When the train came along all scrambled isto the passenger cars as best they could and rode to Union station. Here a lively jostle began for possession of the two arrivals, two and three hundred dollars being offered the new arrivals as a bonus by the masters on condition of scing with them. offered the new arrivals as a bonus by the masters on condition of going with them. Utimately the picket party captured one and the plasterers escotted the other one to the Revere house. But he, too, was captured by the operatives on Sunday morning. Both say they were told that there was I quarrel with the union, but there was carcity of workmen and that they would ellow-plasterers in Montreal on their way home. They say that owing to the decep-tion practiced, under no circumstances could they be persuaded to work in Toronto at present and that independent of that they are unionists in sentiment in any event.

A Gang of Overcoat Thieves in Custody. During the past three or four weeks there have been wholesale complaints to the police of overcoats and valises being stolen at Union station and from the hotels. Detectives Burrows and Sheehan have been at work on the case, and the former officer has succeeded in locking three of the gang up, with plenty of proof to convict them. On succeeded in locking three of the gang up, with plenty of proof to convict them. On Wednesday two overcoats were stolen from the Revere house. Before the matter was reported to the police Detective Burrows had recovered one of them, belonging to Mr. Ben. McIlhargy. Mr. Hugh Colwell of Queen street east reported the loss of an overcost, which was also recovered. On Saturday D. tective Burrows, after following two men for half an hour, met Sergt. Davis Saturday D. tective Burrows, after following two men for half an hour, met Sergt. Davis of the Grenadiers at Queen and Sherbourne streets. The detective and the sergeant made a descent on the men and they were taken to No. 4 station. It was generally believed that he would get at least fifteen years.

Parkdale Court of Revision A court of revision sat at Parkdale for the earing of appeals in the matter of local imvements on several streets and all were onfirmed except that relating to Dowling evenue. In this case it seems that last year's avenue. In this case it seems that last year's council passed no bylaw and gave no notice; therefore any appeal against the rating would necessitate the preliminary steps being taken for the passing of a bylaw and the local legislature must be asked to sanction the issue of debentures to defray the cost thereof. It was strange that the only appellant appearing was the late reeve who with his colleagues last year sanctioned the above illegal proceeding. It is to be hoped that before the end of the year the present council will be able to straighten up all the uncil will be able to straighten up all the omplications left by their predecessors.

The Zulus and the Editor. The Zalus on exhibition at Jacob's Mu eum spent yesterday in the company John Pretty, a pressman in The World office, who has lived in their country and office, who has lived in their country and who speaks their language fluently. In the company of John they called on the editor last night and shook hands with his nibs amid the astonished gaze of the horse reporter, the sermon editor and the devil. Their names are Umkano, and U. Z. I Kiay. They are fine specimens of free Africans and native gentlemen. In the afternoon Pretty and they visited Mr. Montiford, a gentleman on the Davenport road, who gave them a sumptuous lay out. excitement they upset the skiff. Young Tinning rowed out a quarter of a mile and with difficulty got them into his boat. Tinning's father was on shore to receive them and produced a restoring flash of brandy The young men, Cooper and Hopkins by name, were profuse in their thanks and said a moment or two longer in the water would have finished them.

Resuming the Fast Trains. There has been such a howl among the traveling public during the past week about discontinuing the fast trains between this city and Montreal that the Grand Trunk railway has decided to replace them this morning. Travelers going east all last week were invariably held here till 8,30 or later in the morning. Trains will leave for the east this morning, at 6.52 and 8.07. The time table of June 24 will be re-issued.
