I thank you for the liberal provision you hav ade for the service of the state. I trust that made for the service of the state. I trust that the financial measures you have sanctioned will materially increase the public resources of the country without adding to the fiscal burdens.

country without adding to the fiscal burdens. My Lords and Genilemen: The measures you have passed for extending the functions and improving the machinery of local government in England are calculated to increase the bayl attachment of my people to their institutions. I trust you may be able to promote the successful working of these changes in your several localities, and that in this and all other fields of duty the blessing of Almighty God may be with you.

The regular report of the Superintendent showed that for the two weeks ending Dec. 15 there had been 153,246,264 gallons of water pumped and 344 tons of coal consumed, and up to date 3000 services had been put in. He recommended the Crown meter as the best for all purposes. New mains were urgently re-guired on College-street, Coxwell-avenue and Major-place. He recommended that a new water main, composed of cast iron pipe, be laid in Jarvis-street to take the place of the present dement-lined conduit. Accounts to the amount of $5512 were submitted for pay-ment. From Paris says: It is stated in financial circles here that the American committee of the Pan-ama Canal Company has offered to refund to the liquidators the sum of 9,000,000 francs, this being the amount of commissions received from the company. This would keep the works going for a fortnight or three weeks, and the offer will probably be accepted. If other simi-lar offers are forthcoming the company might be kept afloat for some time even if the lot-tery loan proves an absolute failure.

There was an out-break of fire in the wholesale grocery store of Eby, Blain & Co., corner Scott and Front-streets. As the firemen galloped to the scene they were cheered by the crowds, among whom there was much excitement. The fire had broken out in the basement of the building from, it is supposed, the care-less manner in which the furnace had been left when the warehouse was closed. When the firemen arrived dense volumes of smoke were bursting from the cellar and windows of the first story. The men soon located the fire, made three entries to the basement and in less than a half hour had the flames quenched. In the part of the basement a large quantity of sugar, molasses and symp was stored. Threse were greatly damaged: The flames also spread to the ceiling, and though it was badly burn-ed damage to the building is therefore small, though a large number of the windows were broken to emit the smoke. Something important yet remains, which Saturday's decision has not cleared up. The Globe admits this in effect, for it regrets that the court, in giving judgment, did not add thereto the reasons why. Bit our magnates of the bench doubtving performers had their just share of appre-ciation. Miss Lamont, the prima donna of the com-pany in the part of Elsie Maynard, displayed a sweet and pure soprano voice and carried off first honors. Mr. Joseph C. Fay (formerly Joe Fahey of Toronio, had little to do, say and sing, but did them well; Miss Allce Carle, as Phoble, sang nicely and did some bits of noat comedy work. The usual Gilbert comedy busi-ness was left to Jack Point (the scrolling ainger in the person of Mr. James Gilbert) and to Wilfred Shatbolt thend jaller, in the person of Mr. N. S. Burnham), both gentlemen doing the best that they could with weak roles. "The Yeoman of the Guard" will never be as popular as the previous writings and singings of Mess. Gilbert's Sullivar. But our magnates of the bench doubt-less had their own good reasons why they gave no reasons for their judgment. At present we merely make this remark, that something yet remains to come. By-and-by we shall see what we shall see.

Who Pays the Duty ?.

Who Pays the Buty 7 This is a question frequently asked, and now we have it put to us by a friend, who just wants to know-you know-whether, if the Americans took off this duty on Canadian barley, our farmers would pocket the 10 cents. Well, those who think it a handy way of doing to "splnt the difference" would probably say that half would go each way-that the Causdian seller would get 5 cents mare, while the American buyer would get his barley for 5 cents less. The difference would go somewhere or other, we suppose. But it is our un-biassed opinion that the actual, bona fide Cana a farmer would never finger two cents of Both The Globe and The Mail, arguing on general free trade principles, hold that the onsumer (the American buyer of barley) pays the duty. But in another way, as advocaters of commercial annexation, they hold that the duty is paid by the Canadian producer. The exigencies of annexationist journalism are no

THE TORONTO WORLD : TUESDAY MORNING DECEMBER 25, 1888.

The Herald is quite caustic, though more a own expense than at ours. It is not, as we mid above, the Americanization of Canada by our neighbor that we fear, but we protest against the attempt of The Globe and Mail and other dissatisfied Canadians to bring about Annexation in underhand ways and by putting up fads like C.U. and U.R., which were mere pretences. We gave these gentry to understand that sooner than be forced to change their citizenship "the fighting men will fight to remain Canadians." They seem to have taken the lesson to heart, and they have for the time being weakened in their

No, neighbor, the "ever increasing number who are talking louder and louder about the advantages of annexation" exists only in your nind. Our annexationists are comparatively few, and they are likely to be fewer as time

If it pleases you to think that we tore our hair and the language as well, and that we are awfully sensitive on this subject, you are welcome to the thought, but we imagine it was the twin annexationist organs that we tore up and that Chang and Eng thought so too before we got through with them.

And that you may not forget the lesson o The World's articles we repeat for your enenment these truths : That all this agitation for veiled or open annexation comes from soreheaded and disappointed politicians of the Cartwright, Bunting, Cameron stripe ; that these men would not fight for their project ; but that the great bulk of Canadians wish to remain Canadians, and that sooner than be taken into the United States they would fight. And don't you forget it !

The Importance of Canadian Papers, We do not here reter to any productions of the Canadian press, not even to "The Globe or The Mail. Our present reference is to those official "papers" which authorise American fishermen, on payment of a reasonable sum, to fish away, more or less, and to enjoy certain would be readily complied with and the other privileges within Canadian jurisdiction. These papers are issued in accordance with upon at Washington last year. The told. Dr. Carscadden may be the Govern-fishery treaty was thrown out by the American Senare but the name. The fisitery treaty was thrown out by the American Senate, but the modus vivenci, being within the limits of Erecutive power alone, was still safe, and still continues to be worth a good deal in the way of saving both sides from getting into trouble. It appears that the Canadian "papers" alluded to are still very much sought after by the Yankee fishermen, and that they are likely to be so for at least one year more. the same of the same distribution of the same distribution of the same distribution total and the same distribution of the same distribution sature including the same distribution of the same distribution total sature including the same distribution of the same distribution one year more. A stranger to the village came, And at the inn assigned his name That night, and early sought he rest And to the host made full request To call him early ere 'twas eight, Being weary he might sleep too late. The morn awoke in golden sheen, The village shone a fairy scene, To him no city seemed so fair— And when the smoke rose on the air, In purple spiral columns high, He wandered down the street e'en nigh Into the coltage, past the door, There for a moment paused, before. And with full heart he sought the inn, And they who knew him strove to win His full companionship that they In joyful round might pass the day. He thanked them all, each old school boy, And scarce could hide the tears of joy That seemed like flowing on his cheek, Or strove to check him when he'd speak. The morning meal so soon was o'er He sought again the cettage door-And entering demanded cheer, And asked of her, Who dwelleth here! Assured—he more and more would ask, Till weary of disguising task He threw his furry robe aside. And rising in his manly pride-She saw her young son manlike stand, And rose to greet him by the hand. And fondly on his youthful breast The head of hoary grey way pres't; "Tis many a dear good mother's joy or hopeful than Canon Taylor's estimate of mission work in Africa. A potent cause of barren effort is our hope-less divisions. There is the Church of Eng-land with her Thirty-nine Articles, her Prayer Book, and her formularies, all translated, and whe is a triving and hoping to impose them in all their entirety upon Ghina; there are the Preabyterians with the Westminster Confes-sion, their longer and shorter cateohisms, their system of church government, allo translated, equally zealous and sanguine. Further, there are the Methodists with their elaborate organizations, the Congregational-ists' with their form of government, the Lutheran Church seeking to reproduce in Ghina a fao-simile of itself. And so with other denominations. No wonder the Chinese sky setter, and then we may listen to you." But this is not the worst aspect of our divisions. There are the Methodists, two Congregationalists, 'two Baptists, besides several other minor bodies. Its Shanphai alone, with which neighborhood Dr. Williamson is best acquainted, there are, we are told, seven sets of foreign missionaries working seven differents. Churches: seven sermons every Sunday, seven sets of prayer mettings, seven sets of communing services, seven sets of buildings, seven sets of expenses, four or five versions of the Bible, and seven different seym books at least.
