GLADSTONE SAYS BRITISH QUESTIONS MUST HAVE ATTENTION. Asked to Take Steps to Pass the Irish Bill, the Premier States That Pressure of the Question Does Not Absolve the Government from Attention to English Interests.

LONDON, June 8.—In the House of Commons today, Mr. Sexton, National member for North Kerry, asked the majority had not a right to take adequate measures to pass the Home Rule bill at this session.

Prime Minister Gladstone said the majority ought to be guided by consideration for fulfillment of their pledges to the people. He answered Mr. Sexton's question by saying that the Government would take steps to quicken the passage of the bill.

Mr. L. Everett, Liberal for Woodbridge, Suffolk, asked whether the Premier would take steps to quicken the passage of the bill.

Mr. Gladstone: The pressure of the Irish question has not absolved the Government from attention to the great questions affecting Great Britain.

All night suggestions. This utterance of the Premier was received with cheers. Mr. E. Reardon, the Parsonage leader, suggested that the House ought to hold all night sittings until the Irish Home Rule Bill had been disposed of.

Mr. Gladstone: If the Government should propose that, considering the pressure already bearing upon the members, it would be necessary to provide a supply of undertakers. [Laughter.]

front parlor of the house, she never went into the bedrooms unless sent there. On the day of the tragedy she saw Mrs. Borden in the yard. Describing the arrangements in the house she said there was a closet in the kitchen; she always used it for her clothes; there was a window in the kitchen close opening into the back yard, but she did not know whether it was open or not. All the time she was making a window. John was unhooked from 9:30 a.m. until she got through she had told Lizzie that she did not look at the man's window after he left, but as a matter of fact she never went near it again until she went in; any person could walk in there that door was open. When at one time she stood back of the house and over the fence to the Kelly girl there was a chance for anyone to come in from the front. During all the morning of the tragedy witness never went near the door and she let him in. When she was getting her water in the barn she never saw anybody about, although she could have seen anyone who might have been there had she been looking, but she was not looking at the door. She was looking at her work. In walking along the north side from the street the dining-room window looked the way that she saw it on the morning of the murder. SOME BURNING QUESTIONS.

DISCUSSED YESTERDAY AT THE METHODIST CONFERENCE. A Pittsburg Fireman Caught in a Boiler While Working on It at Both Ends. PITTSBURG, June 8.—Caught in a boiler, like a rat in a trap, with fire at both ends, Richard S. Chapman, miller at Park Brothers & Co.'s mill, battled for his life this morning.

To remove a defect Slay crawled into the boiler, taking a flaming torch with him. He hung the torch up at the mouth of the boiler and began operations. A blow from his hammer on the boiler dislodged the torch. It fell and exploded. Slay was covered and blinded by a shower of burning oil, and his escape was out of a pool of burning oil near the boiler's mouth.

With the fire fully eating into his vital, Slay pressed himself as far away from the heat as possible, tearing off his blazing garments and tramping them under his blistered feet. It only took about three minutes for the oil to burn out, and then Slay dragged himself over the top surface of the boiler and succeeded in getting out. He was so badly burned he cannot live through the night.

The Judges Decide That the Commissioners Must Keep the Fair Closed. CHICAGO, June 8.—United States Judges Wood and Jones, while differing in opinion, agree that the injunction demanded by the Government at Washington must stand, and that the World's Fair be closed on Sunday.

The Judge (Crosby) dissenting, but his decision would not be allowed on Sunday. The contract between Congress and the fair directors would be violated by the opening of the fair on Sunday.

Mailings: A Complete Future Awaits Them. Railway engineers are now actively exploiting the problem of running railway trains at any speed up to 150 miles per hour.

They say the time is not far off when 100 miles and even 150 miles an hour will be made without more danger to life or limb than exists today when our trains make less than one-half that speed. There is a well-grounded belief in people's minds that electricity will give us such rapid transit over terra firma as the world never dreamed of before.

We want a Present Remedy. Alvin Ballard, who last Saturday advertised a lot in Bluepoint for sale at $25 a foot, has not yet had an applicant. He doubts if he could get $25 a foot for it. At $35 a foot as its value we figured that Mr. Ballard was paying 41 per cent. taxes on his property.

Passenger traffic will see the quick overland route as far as possible, and avoid the slow ocean voyage. If a New Yorker will save considerable time in making the trip to Europe via Halifax, then it is evident the people inland will be attracted to the route by the Halifax route.

Again, we ask, in an effort to be made forthwith to reduce the load under every property owner is at present staggering. The controllable expenditure of money in business is the most important factor in any business.

There is a great deal of talk among commercial men about the urgency of an insolvency law for this country. Such a law is badly needed in the interests of the solvent and his creditors.

It is not a long way off. With general agreement in the market, and from other causes over which they have no control. These causes will arise in the near future.

Spending Other People's Money. Al. Hewitt, Joffile and Bell are three aldermen who have the audacity to recommend the expenditure of $45,000 for the purchase of the ground upon which to erect a new firehall.

How long are the restrictions to be allowed to dominate in a policy whose principal feature is the beheading of the human intellect every seventh day? The restrictionists themselves, in the pulpits and in the platform, use their powers of reason and of imagination, of argument and of persuasion on Sunday the same as on other days.

MCCABREY'S PLATFORM

It bears a striking resemblance to that of the late Mr. E. J. McLaughlin. (From The Woodstock Sentinel-Review.) Mr. McCarthy's program bears out the interpretation which we put upon his speech here. It is a tariff reform platform with an equal rights plank in it.

It is a platform which will commend itself to a majority of the people of Ontario at least, and probably of the whole Dominion. But its weakness is that it is not a platform which will commend itself to a majority of the people of Ontario at least, and probably of the whole Dominion.

A HEARTLESS LANDLORD

Life is charged with stealing a Poor Tenant's Dishes. A Toronto man who was missing tried to prove himself. The World last Friday contained this paragraph: Walter Fide, 7 Humbler-street, was reported by his wife to the police last night as missing. He left home on Tuesday morning to draw money from his employer, a painter at Mimico, and has not since been seen.

Nothing was heard of Mr. Fide till yesterday morning on the streets of the inner city. He was seen at the home of a friend at Mimico, and was reported to the police as missing. He was seen at the home of a friend at Mimico, and was reported to the police as missing.

FOREIGN FARMING NOTES

Interesting Items About the Products of the Earth Elsewhere. Madagascar is well supplied with fruit, some indigenous to the country, other kinds introduced. Among the former the banana holds first place. It is very plentiful, of many varieties, and all good. The mango and lime, the raspberry, and guava, also abound. The orange, one of the introduced fruits, has become an article of commerce. It is raised, while the vine, properly cared for, furnishes splendid crops of grapes, which are harvested during the months of December and January. Besides these are the citron, melon, pineapple, loquat, apricot, pear, custard-apple, mango, peach, mulberry, pomegranate, and quince. Figs in great quantities, but of poor quality, grow wild in many parts of the forest.

Glomer and cinnamon flourish in the hot climate and damp soil of the lowlands of Madagascar. The wild pepper of the forests produces abundantly, and the berries have become an article of trade in all the markets in the interior of the country.

A new French variety of potato is the Giant Paris. It is of extraordinary vigorous growth and is said to mature in 70 days, and to give a crop of 100 tons per acre. It is a large tuber often weighing two and one-half pounds, and is of a beautiful yellow color. It is claimed for this variety that it meets all needs, as it can be used for industrial purposes as well as for food.

New Zealand apparently has no limit to its wool-producing capacity. There are vast tracts of land that can scarcely be utilized for any other purpose than sheep raising. There is a great deal of land now used for sheep runs that could be profitably adapted for agriculture. The wool of New Zealand is admirably adapted for sheep and wool growing purposes, the average annual increase in some of the best runs being 100 per cent. Flocks of Merino clip four pounds all around, and sometimes as high as five pounds. The natural staple of the country consists of forest, fern and grass.

Ireland is improving the manufacture of its dairy products to such an extent that it is largely superseding Denmark in supplying the English market. A large number of tea plantations in India are offered for sale, the owners finding that they have not been paying expenses and are not desirable property to hold.

In England there are about 3000 owners of estates above one acre in size, and in 1928 there were 7,000,000 owners. In England the average extent of a single farm is 300 acres, in France 100 acres, in the United States 100 acres, and in the United States 100 acres. The average extent of a single farm is 300 acres, in France 100 acres, in the United States 100 acres, and in the United States 100 acres.

The flux industry of New Zealand is very fluctuating. In 1928 this colony produced 61 tons of wax. Between 1928 and 1929 the output varied between 200 and 6000 tons per annum, but in 1928 it fell off again to 640 tons. In 1928 it was 17,000 tons and in 1929 it was 18,000 tons. In 1928 it was 17,000 tons and in 1929 it was 18,000 tons.

A valuable crop—worth while to offer to beekeepers—is the buckwheat. Many people do not like buckwheat honey. It may not be so white nor so delicate in flavor as some other kinds, but it is very rich in nutriment. It probably will not wear so well as clover honey, but until the apiculturist begins to try it he will be satisfied. But there is one use for it that all beekeepers ought to agree is a valuable one. The plant produces a rich nectar, which is a very rich source of nutriment. It is a very rich source of nutriment. It is a very rich source of nutriment.

It was a Civil Contract Bill. It was not until the council of Trent in 1439, that the intervention of a priest was deemed, in Europe, indispensable to a marriage. Hundreds of people here are on the verge of starvation. Scores of families have nothing but cornmeal and water, and not too much of that. The failure of the Improvement Company's contract for the bridge over the falls of the Appalachian Steel Company, which owes its employees over $75,000, has caused the bridge to be abandoned.

BOUGHT TOO EARLY

A Yonge-Street Store in Trouble. Difficulties Accumulating. We are tempted to ask: "When will the merchant learn to buy no more goods than he can easily handle?" Every day we hear of cases where failure has followed from reckless buying, from overloading with stock that cannot be realized on, and no one seems to profit by the lesson. Each man who happens in his own case and inclined to believe that he shall escape the fate that has overtaken so many, and keeps on buying till the cracks come, knows that he is not always trustworthy, but from facts in our possession we know it to be certain that the firm of Gustave Bross, 214 Yonge-street, who have lately been advertising extensive alterations to their store, find themselves in serious trouble. Owing to certain negotiations which they have not been able to push through as quickly as they expected, they cannot begin the alterations for several months. It is more than probable that by this time their store would be three times as large as it is, they ordered just three times the quantity of goods that they can handle in their present premises. Hence they are in trouble.

Their cellars and store-rooms are all very valuable space is crowded with cases of goods of every description, piled from floor to ceiling, so that it is impossible to move amongst them and really impossible to bring before the public one-third of the beautiful and unique styles in shoe-wear they have on hand. There is only one thing to be done in such circumstances—sell the stock at a sacrifice, and clear it away regardless of loss and trust to better luck next time. This firm, though, thought of time through no fault of its own, is too wise to hesitate in such a case, and is prepared to adopt the only feasible plan to free itself from its increasing difficulties. Therefore, they have decided to sell their goods at a sacrifice, and the citizens of Toronto will be able to get bargains in shoe-wear that will be a matter of difference to them whether the city fathers make the tax rate 10 or 18 mills. When a person has to buy a pair of shoes, with a boot for $1.25, what does he care for one mill more or less on the dollar, and no one will be willing to buy a pair of shoes for $1.25, when he can buy a pair of shoes for $1.25, when he can buy a pair of shoes for $1.25.

There are two or three grass crops in Switzerland every year, the first in the month of May, the second in the month of July and a third, often at the end of October. Extensive coffee plantations are being set out on the Hawaiian Islands, one of them expecting to have between 50,000 and 75,000 trees set out this season before April 1. There are also several foreign companies formed and just beginning to break ground.

Various kinds of vegetables are cultivated by the people of Madagascar and are of a comparatively little value. Rice forms the staple article of consumption, while manioc, the sweet potato, yams, peas, beans and earth nuts are among the articles cultivated to increase and vary the food supply.

MONTEAL, June 8.—The Bel-Air Jockey Club was favored with the most favorable weather for the opening of the spring meeting today, but the attendance notwithstanding was somewhat small.

Six pacifiers did business, but the spectators who made off for little speculation. The wheels and sweatbands around the necks of the horses were in evidence as usual by any respectable organization.

Mr. Joseph DeLoe, who is in charge of the Ontario Jockey Club executive for the Red Cross Race, May 27, instead of riding out, surprised the other of the doctor's starters.

The Executive Committee of the Woodbine Driving Club has made a slight change in its program for their summer races, to be held at the Woodbine, July 5, 6 and 7.

New York, June 8.—Twelve days from today one of the big racing events of the year will be decided. The turf-going world has its eyes now upon the horses who are candidates for the Suburban Handicap, which will be run on the Turf, June 20, under the auspices of the Cayuga Island Jockey Club.

There are few, if any, of the horses which are eligible that have not a host of ardent admirers. From present indications Pierre Lorillard's crack Lightyear will go to the post in glorious defeat by Diablo in the Brooklyn Handicap, which is not in doubt.
