BAN ON SHORT STOCKINGS, PAINT AND POWDER

Lebanon, Md., Feb. 9.—Arthur F. Smith, principal of Central High School, has placed a ban on the use of powder and paint by the school girls. Before the school assembly he announced that girls coming to school wearing "rolled hose" or "socks" would be subject to dismissal from school. He added that he only knew two classes that should use paint or powder. Those, he said, were women over fifty years of age or extremely ugly ones.

Police Still on Outlook for Sands—Second Handkerchief Found After Murder Has Initials "M. M. M."—Mabel Normand's Letters.

Los Angeles, Feb. 9.—The centralized investigation at the district attorney's office of the mysterious death of William Desmond Taylor, was expected to begin today, following the alleged discovery and turning over to that official last night of the missing letters written to the director by Mabel Normand.

As Thomas L. Woolwine, district attorney, is taking personal charge of the Taylor funeral Tuesday, the Normand letters, with several telegrams, were in the hands of Mr. Doran.

Although verification from him was not obtainable, the Los Angeles Times published today a statement that the Normand letters, with several telegrams, were in the hands of Mr. Doran.

As to the present whereabouts of these letters, McArthur said, Miss Normand is as much mystified as any person, despite statements by the police that they have been returned to her.

The last time she saw them they were in the top drawer of a dresser in Taylor's apartments. This was following the burglary at his place and he was showing her about the apartments and describing how they had been ransacked.

Two Handkerchiefs. A second handkerchief found its way into the investigation when about the same time the detectives said they found a letter in a book in a closet in the Taylor apartments. Henry Peary, Taylor's negro houseman, found the handkerchiefs bearing the initials "M. M. M."

A handkerchief previously reported found near the body shortly after the murder was discovered, but since said to be missing, was alleged to have borne the letter "S."

It is regarded as improbable that a complaint charging murder would be issued until after the whole affair has been presented to the county grand jury, which has not yet been impaneled for 1922.

Meanwhile, although the sheriff's deputies profess to scout the theory that Edward F. Sands, former butler secretary for Taylor, could throw any light on the case, the police detectives remain firm in their announced belief the mystery will not be solved until he has been found.

Taylor's Army Record. Army records and papers found today prove, according to officials of the Famous Players-Lasky Company, that the film director was least a lieutenant if not a captain as claimed, in the British forces during the war.

More Kidnappings Today in County Fermanagh

FOUR SPECIAL CONSTABLES TAKEN IN THE ROSSLEA DISTRICT

Sligo Unionists Return Home But Refuse to Talk—Donegal Men Also Released—5,000 Specials Guard Ulster Frontier—Griffiths and Lloyd George Confer in London—Number Reported Missing Varies.

Belfast, Feb. 9.—Additional kidnappings occurred today in county Fermanagh, one of the counties in which yesterday's raids were carried out. Four class B special constables were kidnapped in the Rosslea district. They were taken in the direction of Ballybay, where it is believed other prisoners are being kept.

Troops to Enniskillen. Belfast, Feb. 9.—Telephone and telegraph wires were cut yesterday in the affected districts and communication is still uncertain, but a county inspector of police who returned this morning from a tour of the lines said no reprisals had been attempted overnight by the Unionists.

A British regiment, transferred from Free State territory, was due to reach Enniskillen within a few days, and it was reported today the transfer would be expedited.

A prominent Ulster police officer who made a tour of the border during the night returned here this morning. "The police arrangements," this officer stated, "are now as complete as they can be made to insure immunity from invasion."

Government Orders Release. Enniskillen, Feb. 9.—Quiet had been completely restored here today. The roads are being cleared of the debris of the Provisional government, it is said, has telegraphed instructions to the commander of the British army to release the prisoners taken during the raids.

Conference in London. London, Feb. 9.—Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail, returned to Downing street early today and conferred with Premier Lloyd George and Austen Chamberlain, government leader in the House of Commons, regarding the kidnappings. Later the premier presided at a conference of the cabinet.

Mr. Griffith expects to return to Dublin tonight. Republican Demonstration. Dublin, Feb. 9.—A republican demonstration has been called for next Sunday. The speakers will be Eamon De Valera, Chas. Burgess and Austin Stack. The notice summoning the meeting says: "It is evident from Premier Lloyd George's speech before the house of commons that his policy is to divide the Irish people and to deal with Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins as he dealt with John Redmond and John Dillon."

As to the present whereabouts of these letters, McArthur said, Miss Normand is as much mystified as any person, despite statements by the police that they have been returned to her.

As Hiram Sees It

"Hiram," said the Times reporter to Mr. Hiram Hornbeam, "a man came to me saying he wanted to spend some money." "You had better meet me like that every day," said Hiram. "What this man was different, said the reporter. 'He wanted to spend without getting what we usually describe as a run for his money.' 'That kind ain't so easy to find,' said Hiram. 'They don't get-inally go round looking for the chance to spend that way.' 'This man,' said the reporter, 'regards it as a duty to spend his money. I would call a remarkably liberal proportion of his income to make things better for other people, and especially children.' 'Lots of folks 'ud be tickled to death to meet him,' said Hiram. 'I wish I could not give him away,' said the reporter, 'but I want to tell you that after talking with him a little while I think you are a better letter of human nature.' 'You are,' said Hiram. 'I wish we had more men like that man. My! that kind of good could be done if there was the money was all willing to believe part of it ought to make life better for the children that ain't gittin' a fair show. Mister—they'd change the world.'"

FIVE SHOTS IN BODY; HE WALKS TO THE POLICE

New York, Feb. 9.—A limousine stopped beside the curb on Upper Riverside drive near where Tony Bruno stood in overalls yesterday. Two well groomed men stepped from the car, fired five shots into Tony's body and drove away. Bruno got up, brushed himself, walked to a police station, told the story and collapsed. The bullets "could not have been better distributed in his body," the desk lieutenant said, amazed that the man still lived. He was in a hospital last night wondering what all the racket was about, while police were seeking his assailants.

ANOTHER BIG MONTREAL FIRE

Standard Bank Building Destroyed—Loss $600,000—St. James Street Blocked.

Montreal, Feb. 9.—A terrific outbreak of fire which early this morning destroyed the Standard Life Assurance Co. building in the heart of the business district, causing damage estimated by the Standard Life Assurance Co. at $600,000.

The fire, which, according to the janitor, originated on the ground floor in the early hours, rapidly spread throughout the building until the whole structure was in flames.

The fire was most severe at the rear, and for a time it was feared that it would spread to the premises of the National Trust Co., which is situated next door. Smoke and water damaged that building.

On the west side of the Standard Life Assurance building are the offices of the Montreal Star, which soon became filled with smoke. There was no damage here, however.

St. James street, the main thoroughfare in the business centre, was completely blocked.

Deserted His Wife, Brother Did The Same

Peculiar Coincidence in Family of Slain Movie Director—Natives of Dublin, Ireland—Was Antique Shop Manager—Disappeared for Two Years.

New York, Feb. 9.—The murder of William Desmond Taylor in Hollywood has served to bring to light the past life of himself and his brother in New York, where they were known under their right name of Deane-Tanner, and to reveal curious coincidences in the life of both men. Both apparently abandoned their wives and children and vanished, the one to turn up as Taylor, the moving picture director of unusual ability, and the younger to remain a mystery.

Taylor was William Cunningham Deane-Tanner, a member of a good family of Dublin, Ireland. He married Miss Ethel May Harrison, a member of the original Florida company, and she was the daughter of a broker. Taylor abandoned her in 1908, and in 1914 she divorced and married Edward L. C. Robbins, treasurer of the S. M. Robbins Company, which conducts a number of restaurants in the financial district and owns Delmonico's restaurant.

sought employment in a British Columbia mine, after which he went to Los Angeles. Tanner, however, is said to have shown a reluctance in discussing some portions of his adventures and did not explain why he failed to return to his family and friends.

He was never known as Tanner in Los Angeles. In 1910, he left Los Angeles and it was assumed he was going to British Columbia to resume railroad work. He had not been successful in the former city. He returned to Los Angeles about 1918 and soon obtained a position with a motion picture concern at Long Beach.

To friends he explained that he had played in theatrical stock companies during his absence from Los Angeles, and this stage experience, they believe, was the foundation of his success in the motion picture field.

When Mrs. Robbins heard yesterday that his of her former husband's past life in New York were becoming known, she issued a statement in which she definitely established that Taylor, the murdered moving-picture man, and Deane-Tanner, the former dealer in English antiques on Fifth avenue, were the same person.

He married in December, 1901, Mr. William Cunningham Deane-Tanner of Dublin, Ireland, said Mrs. Robbins. "I disappeared in October, 1908. We could assign no reason for his disappearance except possible amnesia. In 1912 I got a decree of divorce in the State of New York, and was awarded the custody of my only child, Ethel Daisy Deane-Tanner, now nineteen. In August, 1914, I married Edward L. C. Robbins.

Two and a half years ago I discovered that William Desmond Taylor had been Mr. Deane-Tanner. I have no further statement which possibly could be of interest. The name of Mr. Deane-Tanner's death was a great shock to my daughter and me."

Brother's Record. The murder of Taylor, which led to the discovery of his first marriage and his abandonment of his wife, a chapter which Mrs. Robbins had hoped was forgotten, also curiously enough resulted in uncovering the past history of his brother, Dennis Deane-Tanner, who also married in New York, and left his wife when she was recovering from a serious illness in the Adirondack and his two children. Both men had been connected with antique shops and both had vanished so completely that their New York friends never again came in contact with them.

The picture of Taylor as a man austere and scholarly, who paid little attention to women, as drawn by some of his moving-picture associates, was also shattered, for there are persons in the city who, while admitting that both the Deane-Tanners had been men of culture and pleasing personalities, said that their affairs with women had been such that no one who knew them could help noticing them.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—Chapters in the life of William Desmond Taylor, motion picture director, who was slain in Los Angeles, Wednesday night, where he was described here today by friends who said which Mrs. Robbins had hoped was forgotten, also curiously enough resulted in uncovering the past history of his brother, Dennis Deane-Tanner, who also married in New York, and left his wife when she was recovering from a serious illness in the Adirondack and his two children. Both men had been connected with antique shops and both had vanished so completely that their New York friends never again came in contact with them.

Prior to 1908, as William Desmond Deane-Tanner, an art connoisseur, Taylor was manager of a prominent New York firm of art and antique furniture dealers and had a wide circle of friends, it was said.

He was never known as Tanner in Los Angeles. In 1910, he left Los Angeles and it was assumed he was going to British Columbia to resume railroad work. He had not been successful in the former city. He returned to Los Angeles about 1918 and soon obtained a position with a motion picture concern at Long Beach.

DECLINES PLEA FOR RESERVE CASE

Judge Chandler Refused to Grant an Application on Behalf of John Paris.

Efforts made here yesterday to save John Paris from the hangman's noose were unavailing, when Mr. Justice Chandler, in chambers, refused to grant an application for a reserve case. The application was made by G. H. Vernon, attorney for the accused, and argument against the granting of the application was made by the attorney-general, Hon. J. P. Vernon said yesterday that he would now bring the matter before the appeal court at Fredericton.

At the afternoon session the following additional grounds were submitted by Mr. Vernon: 6. Was it error in the learned judge (one of the defenses of the accused being an alibi) not to have told the jury that if they had a reasonable doubt of the presence of the accused at the time the crime was committed, they should acquit?

The third of a series of special services in Central Baptist church by Rev. E. H. Cochrane, of Moncton, was held last evening and was largely attended. Interest in these meetings is growing, with the congregation taking part in the service. By his fine address, Rev. Mr. Cochrane is making a deep impression. Douglas Mahwinney sang at last evening's service, with Miss M. Shea as accompanist.

There was a feeling abroad in the province that trial by jury had outlived its usefulness; that no matter how clearly the evidence established the guilt of a prisoner it was difficult to get a jury to render a verdict of guilty. It was not for him to say that this applied to St. John, but if this sentiment did exist it did not spell safety and security for the people of the country.

(New York Times)

Gainsborough's famous "Blue Boy" painted by many critics to be the greatest portrait ever printed, which was purchased by the Duvens Brothers from the Duke of Westminster and later sold to Henry E. Huntington of this city, arrived on the La Savoye yesterday. The painting will be placed in storage until the fifteenth or sixteenth of this month when it will be exhibited for three weeks at the Duven Galleries, 729 Fifth Avenue. The exhibition will be a big art and social event. Admission will be charged, and the receipts will be presented to the Fifth Avenue Hospital.

The big picture, since its purchase, has been cleaned of innumerable coats of varnish which had clouded the rich blue that made the portrait the sensation of the art world. Exhibited at the National Galleries in England before leaving that country, it was admired by unrepresented crowds, that viewed it with reverence, the men with their hats raised as they passed.

Many precautions were taken in bringing the picture to this country. It was accompanied by two men from the Duven Galleries in London—William Todd and Charles Hunt. The picture traveled in a roomy picture case, which was watched throughout the trip. It had previously been heavily insured, and was insured for $100,000. The picture was packed in a steel box and that again in an iron box with the "Blue Boy" in its carefully watched seclusion on the voyage.

BONAR LAW'S WARNING

Forewarn Premier's Difficulties in Irish Situation.

(Special Cable to The New York Times and Montreal Gazette)

London, Feb. 6.—Today's developments in the Irish situation have brought back forcibly to the public mind the words of Bonar Law used at the last session in the House of Commons when he made the peace treaty completely safe by coming out in its support. "This is not the time for throwing caps in the air," he said. "Six months hence I do not think this treaty will be a political asset to the prime minister, but I hope that in the distant future by the verdict of posterity it will be found to be a triumph for him. It is absurd to think that Ireland is in a state of demoralization and chaos as bad as has ever occurred in the history of any country. There are going to be terrible difficulties, but I see this prospect for us at any rate. Up to now there has never been any public opinion in the south of Ireland except hatred of this country. Whatever else happens we are more or less out of the picture. If they must fight they will fight each other."

Here arises the question, what attitude will Bonar Law take? In his speech already cited he said, "If ever the Ulster people had a right to consider that a question was settled and settled for ever, it was the question of boundaries." This was taken to mean that Bonar Law at the last session regarded the substantial integrity of Ulster as set up by the Act of 1920 as part of a fundamental pact on which the coalition was founded, and though he advised Sir James Craig to accept under the treaty a reasonable rectification of boundaries, it is contended that he could not possibly accept with contentment any such proposition as Michael Collins has put forward. Will Lloyd George, it is asked, be able to reach an understanding with Ulster before parliament meets and Bonar Law is compelled to declare himself.

BIG CHIEF SCOUT PLEADS FOR BOYS

Lord Byng Tells Toronto Business Men of Opportunity in Scouting—Gave Human Talk.

(New York Times.)
"I do tell you that this scouting is something which, to my mind, we all want both to take a hand in and give every possible encouragement to."
That is what Lord Byng of Vimy, Governor General of Canada, thinks of the Canadian Boy Scout and the organization which made the existence of that scout possible. Simple words, those, but coming as they did, at the close of an intensely earnest and characteristically human talk to one hundred and fifty prominent Toronto business and professional men, gathered last night at "Hollywood" at the guests of Sir Joseph and Lady Flavelle, they carried conviction to every one who heard.

Automatically on his becoming Governor General, Lord Byng became Chief Scout for Canada. His Excellency's words of last night were a betrayal of the fact that his occupancy of that position is far from titular.
"The question about Boy Scouts seems to me to be answered by again asking yourselves a question," stated His Excellency. "What do we Canadians—because I am a Canadian, please, wait! A happy contented Canada. What does that mean? Do we want to get up and talk about Canada and her railways and waterways? No. We want to get down to the dear old bed rock of Canadian citizenship. Keep our minds in that channel and we are going to make this country everything possible that can be done by human hands and hands."
The whole object of scouting and kindred organizations for boys and girls, continued Lord Byng, was to build up citizens. The very fact that Canada was still in the growing stage made the task at once one of greater necessity and one of comparatively greater ease. "This is a country in which scouting is needed. The funny old country from which I come is old. Society there is rather hidebound to start anything new. Here we are going to build, to make. And how, except by building with citizens?"

Need of Scoutmasters
His Excellency then went on to tell of the growing pains which bothered the scouting movement in its early days in the old country. He had always considered that Sir Robert Baden-Powell was something of a lunatic for starting the thing, and that he himself was considerably more of a lunatic in offering to help. They had got into messes, but, like the Prime Minister of England, had managed to scramble out on one side of the hole or the other. One of the most serious difficulties encountered was that of securing scoutmasters.

Lord Byng then proceeded to tell a story about a local policeman. In a village where there were fourteen scouts the local constable was a gentleman whose intelligence was bounded at one end by the north end of the village street, and at the other by the south end. But he had one saving grace—he was fond of boys. Result, the policeman became the village scoutmaster and the boys became his devoted friends. And one difficulty was surmounted.
Carrying his illustration to meet the situation in Canada, Lord Byng stated that he did not believe the difficulty of

Baby Looks Sweetest in Horrockses NAINSOOK

THE inconsistent goddess Fashion has wrought many changes since 1791, but there is one tradition which she has not molested—the choice of Nainsook for babies' dresses. HORROCKSES' Nainsook has daintily defied the whimsical goddess and to-day, in its great-grandmother's day, the tiny pin tucks, deft hem-stitching and delicate embroidery is still worked in this baby-like material.
And not only for Baby's clothes is Nainsook the most favored fabric. Its sheer softness makes it the perfect material for the intimate lingerie of the esthetic woman.
HORROCKSES' Nainsook may be bought at your favorite store. Perhaps you would also like their pastel-shaded "Disphales" for your more "fashionable" underwear and blouses, or you may wish some of their heavier Madapolams, Cambrics and Longcloths.

securing scoutmasters insurmountable and that in every community there was someone who was a natural leader of boys. Part of scouting's task was to discover that man.
J. E. M. Stewart, the newly elected provincial commissioner, expressed the feeling of the gathering when he stated that His Excellency in devoting such a large portion of his time and interest to scouting was doing a great service to the future citizenship of the country. Dr. J. W. Robertson, chief scout commissioner for Canada, outlined some of the aims of the organization and stated that there were now 38,000 scouts in Canada. The aim was 100,000 and he felt that aim would be realized. J. W. Mitchell, provincial president, from the chair thanked Sir Joseph and Lady Flavelle for their hospitality.
Following the meeting, His Excellency held an informal reception. Lord Byng left on the night train for Ottawa.

RECENT DEATHS
Thomas A. Comeau
Thomas A. Comeau of Moncton, a well known commercial traveller and formerly in Moncton dry goods houses, died on Tuesday. He was a brother of Louis Comeau, late of Shediac. Another brother is Dr. F. X. Comeau, of Carleton Place. The other surviving brother is Victor of Los Angeles, California. One sister, Mrs. Alfred LaPointe, Tracadie, has survived. Mr. Comeau was born in 1860 at Peter Roche.

WAS 99 Years Old.
The death occurred on Sunday last at Burton, Sunbury county, of Mrs. Louisa Currie, widow of George Currie, of Carleton Place, who was 99 years and ten months. Deceased was a daughter of the late Dr. Frye, of St. Andrews, of Loyalist descent and since the death of her husband resided with her niece, Miss F. L. Gilbert, of the Larches, Burton, Sunbury county.

STRONG RESOLUTIONS ABOUT PROHIBITION
The fifth quarterly session of Kent and Westmorland District Division, Sons of Temperance (fifty-eighth for Kent county), was held in the public hall in Notre Dame last week. The following resolutions were among those adopted:
"We would heartily endorse the New Brunswick Temperance Alliance in their efforts to have the prohibition act of the province properly enforced and amended in the right direction only, and urge all temperance societies and individuals to organize themselves in the closest possible co-operation with the Alliance for the purpose of making sure that no change is made in the prohibition act in the direction of allowing the sale of any intoxicant for beverage purposes."
"We respectfully request the members of the New Brunswick government and legislature to stand firm against the machinations of all those deluded or evil-minded persons and corporations who would have the public profit out of that traffic which debases and ruins their weaker fellow-citizens and to discourage and defeat at the outset any attempt to foist upon New Brunswick the selling of intoxicants by the government or any other agency for beverage purposes."
"Believing that a very powerful factor in the continuation of the liquor traffic is the profit hitherto made from it, we urge the New Brunswick government and legislature to introduce and enact legislation under which all the alcohol

Finances.
The Bank of New Brunswick had been incorporated in 1820. Its directors, representing the money men of St. John at that period, were: Hon. John Robinson, president; Hon. Wm. Black, Ward Chipman, Jr., Thomas Millidge, Robert Parker, Jr., Nehemiah Marritt, Lewis Bliss, E. Wheeler, Esckel Barlow, Hugh Johnston, Sr., Henry Gilbert, R. W. Crookshank and Stephen Wiggins. The cashier was H. H. Carmichael.

In the fifties a copper coin was in circulation, bearing the inscription "Ship, colonies and commerce." That expressed the spirit of St. John, tinctor, however, with the narrow aims of British ship owners, for St. John merchants in meeting passed resolutions to confine the British West India trade to vessels flying the British flag, a precursor of the Forney act of congress, which aims to sell United States products to all countries without buying anything else.

The city financed itself in 1820, issuing scrip of small denominations, 6d, 1s, and 2s, 2,500 of these obligations were put in circulation. Until the Bank of New Brunswick was established all currency was specie—gold and silver—doubloons, piasters, Spanish dollars, etc. The sale of a cargo or a vessel was completed by the transfer by a porter of one or more bags of gold or silver.

Up to fifty years ago nobody was allowed to do business in the city unless he became a freeman. The process of becoming a freeman was to pay a fee and subscribe to a prescribed list. Wages were low, 2s, 6d. for a laboring man and 6s. for a skilled mechanic. Produce generally was cheap, placing the necessities of life within the reach of everybody. For instance, butter was 8d. per pound, but some classes of goods were expensive. Shingle nails, made by hand those days, cost 1s. 8d. per pound. A day's work chopping wood was required to pay for a yard of Scotch cotton.

The First Foundry.
There was no foundry in 1822, the first being established by Harris & Allan in 1831. From the first importation of twenty tons of pig iron was cast the first Franklin stove. The first mill castings were also made about the same time for a Mr. Vanwart of Long Reach. In 1806 Mr. Fleming built the first engine and boiler. In 1790 two saw mills were built by water power were built at the marsh aboiteau. Another mill also was built at Portland bridge. The first steam engine was built by Captain Otty at the Strait Shore. "Ready Made Smith" was the title given to one William Smith, who in 1820 commenced trading in ready-made or "slop" clothing. Matthew Partlow was the first tailor. He dates at 1809.

The first tanning business was started by William Melick, in 1790, followed by Messrs. Jordan, Harding and Anderson—the latter introduced steam in 1888. The first maker of hats was Thatcher Sears—a Loyalist, Colonel Billoy, who started a business at the foot of the foot of King street, North side. Brass foundry was started in 1818, by John Barry. The first smelter of iron was Robert Cooper of Duke and Prince William street in 1825. The date when the manufacture of edge tools began is not known. The first blacksmith in Loyalist times was one Oustral, who commenced the making of scythes. He was followed by his two sons. One John Ward had a factory at York Point. James Hendrick, a former hardware merchant, sent an order to England for two hundred dozen axes. He sent a wooden one as a model. The order was filled too perfectly, for when the axes arrived it was found that they were without eyes for the handle—no eye having been put in the sample sent. The first cut nail was made in 1837, by Harris and Allan. At Cooper's Alley, now the lower end of Church street, was located the activities of James Smart, who made tubs, water pails and casks for the Loyalists. The name of James Smart deserves to be preserved as the first manufacturer of harness—back as far as 1785.

The merchants in business at that period were: Thomas Millidge, Alexander Edmond, Kinnear and Higdon, Merritt and Van Horne, George Donald, D. and T. Leavitt, Coats and Barr, Hugh Johnston & Co., J. L. Verner, Samuel Langshaw, William Harris & Co., Henry Gault and Co., Gilbert and Tisdale—Thomas Robinson was inspector of vessels for insurance—B. Sands and Co., McLeod, Robinson and Co., and Isaac J. Bedell. The only trades advertised were Alexander Lawrence, upholsterer, Robert Shaw, cabinet maker, and T. Cooke & Co., soap and candles. few names current in 1822. Prominent is the Rankine biscuit making firm. The founder, Thomas Rankine, learned the trade in Strirling, Scotland, serving as apprentice four years for food and lodging. The foundation of Britain's trade and prosperity rested largely on the efficiency of tradesmen who, as apprentices, learned and knew their business. Boys were not taught slipshod hurry methods prevalent at the present day, to obtain big wages before they earned them, nor could half a dozen lads strike and close up a large industry employing hundreds of men as has late been witnessed in Scotland. Mr. Rankine came to St. John when he was nineteen years of age and worked with a baker doing business on Cooper's alley—now Church street. His pay was a shilling a day with board and lodging. He was a man of prodigious physical strength. He was known to shoulder a barrel of flour at Peter's wharf and carry it to his bakery in Cooper's alley. In 1826 he went into business himself, and in course of time established the successful business of T. Rankine & Sons in Mill street.

It was not until 1844 that machinery was introduced. Robert Rankine, a lumber shipping fame, came to St. John in 1822 and commenced shipping square timber to Great Britain. He received the Glasgow firm of Pollock, Gilchrist & Co., which at one time owned the ship. The first mill owned by the company were those on the Nashwalk, sold later on to Alexander Gibson. Mr. Rankine went to Liverpool, in 1840, to conduct the business there, while in 1831 Mr. Francis Ferguson, of Ayrshire, Scotland, came to St. John. William Hutchinson sailed from London for Philadelphia, but his vessel, the "N. S.," he settled here in 1819 and commenced business in the line of chronometers and watches at the Coffee House corner. The firm continued in business for four generations. The present owner of the name is the government official, regulating the time in the public service.

The London House will, in 1830, be able to celebrate its centenary. Thomas Daniel, the founder of the firm, came from Bedfordshire in 1803, and established the business in connection with Matthew Holdsworth. Mr. Holdsworth fell through the hatchway down five storeys and was killed. Mr. Daniel, in 1847, returned to England—being succeeded by his nephew, Thomas W. Daniel. In 1852 John Boyd became a partner after fourteen years' service as a clerk. He was then twenty-five years of age. He died in 1890, lieutenant-governor of the province.

Dr. Nathan Smith, a Loyalist, hhd son, William Hare Smith, a physician as well as an apothecary, in business here in 1821. His son, William O. Smith, succeeded him, and he in turn was succeeded by a son, Chipman Smith, in 1871. Another Old Business.
Another firm having a record of a hundred years, is that of J. & A. McMillan, who suffering by fires and failures of others maintain an honorable position in the province.

A man could by handpicking clean only a pound a day, but one Eli Whitney, a Yankee school-master, invented the cotton gin in 1792. While that invention changed the social life of the world, it is said he never saw cotton before he invented the machine and he had to go South in his search for the article. Sheep's wool was a great commodity in those days and for a long time the man of the house provided himself with a coat procured from the back of a bear, or with skins from beaver traps, or a buck skin. To make clothing for the family from the fleeces involved much skill. To clean up pitched or tars red locks and spin them into coarse yarn needed deft fingers and then to dye them into shades of brown and yellow, from red oak or hickory, or green from the goldenrod, required much domestic knowledge. "Dyed in the wool" means the genuine article, and "all wool goods a yard wide," means an absence of shoddy or fake-belted, which is good for a moral lesson. The next process was carding, with coarse brushes set with wire teeth, and the fibres parted, then they were carded into fleecy rolls, ready for the spinner. One Whittemore invented a machine for the making of wool cards. It was so ingenious that John Randolph, of Roanoke, declared that it had everything but an immortal soul. The hum of the wheel, familiar to those of us of the older generation, embraces the spirit of home and home comforts and domestic ease. The spinner with her quick backward and forward steps in a day would walk twenty miles. When spun it was placed on a "swift"—a revolving frame, ready to be woven. A pound of fine yarn was sometimes spun into a length of forty-eight miles. Think of the toll! Portman, in his "Old Regime," tells that in the year 1706, when a ship was lost that was to bring cloth and wool to Quebec.

Madame de Repentigny, belonging to one of the four aristocratic families of New France, spun and wore coarse blankets of nettle and linden bark. When spun the yarn had to be woven, on the hand loom, common in most farm houses a hundred years ago. It was a large machine and needed much room. It consisted of four square posts, about four feet apart. At one end is the yard beam, upon which were wound the warp threads—the cloth is wound on the cloth beam.

Until the introduction of machinery, spinning was a domestic industry in the American colonies universally followed. The loom without a spinning wheel was the exception. In the eighteenth century, women rich as well as poor appeared in numbers on Boston Common with their wheels; a brick building costing £15,000 was erected there to teach the art to young girls. On an anniversary there in the middle of the century three hundred young women spun wool in the streets. In the middle of the last century the spinning wheel was in universal use in the maritime provinces and they learned to spin. A minister was generally present to preach a sermon—thus religion, patriotism and industry enabled them to win the war. The expertness of the New England people in the wool industry was ascribed to their fact that they learned from the numbers of clothiers or wool workers who had emigrated from the Shires, where wool was grown and cloth made. The first woolen mill in New Hampshire was set up in New Hampshire were remarkably skillful in manipulating wool.

Those of the Loyalists who were wealthy brought to this country much mahogany furniture, silver ware, household linens, and also fashionable clothing of silk, satins and velvets. The costume of the period was expressed in silk stockings, shoe buckles of silver, slashed waistcoats and coats, frilled shirts and powdered wigs. The men wore officers wore the brilliant red or scarlet coats of the period, long trousers and breeches, and the women wore brass buttons followed early last century, when shirts became plain and stiff necks and powdered hair. The men's collars. The dress of the women gradually progressed towards the present style.

The Young Ladies of Fashion.
At the end of the 18th century, it was required of a young lady to learn dancing—the stately and proper minuet—much carrying and holding of the "cogger de Coverly" romping; play on the spinnet and guitar; spin linen thread and woolen yarn; knit Irish stockings and fine penmanship at a writing school, and by way of pleasing relaxation the grand work of the time, "Harvey's Meditations amongst the Tombs." A young lady dressed for the street is described as dressed in a yellow coat, black bib and apron, pompadour shoes, cap with blue ribbons. The cap had long ears, and the shoes were worn. Head rolls made of cotton, wool and false hair carried together and stuck up, weighing about a pound, raising the natural hair to an absurd height, was one of the ridiculous fashions of the time.

These Spirit Survives.
Critics say that the families of those Loyalist families that formed the governing circle when the province was organized, ceased to be prominent in public affairs after the first generation. While this is partially true, it need not be inferred that the old Loyalist spirit is dead or there is any degeneracy, for good blood will tell in whatever situation it may be found. The chances are that the true aristocrat is not the possessor of great wealth, nor of superior intellectual endowments nor even high social position. The spirit of public service, of conferring benefits on the people without need of compensating rewards is the true test of superiority. The individual who performs monotonous or heroic deeds expecting any receiving his rewards as he goes along is more like the day laborer, who received his pay slip at night. Of another class are those men of Loyalist descent in Ontario and the maritime provinces, who waited for no second summons to be prominent in public life to make their lives in the hazard of war against the German invaders of France and Belgium. Honor the brave, honor them forevermore. The spirit of loyalty and self sacrifice was in their blood—a more splendid patrimony and not to be inherited.

For those who scorn delights and live laborious days in loneliness and isolation as the forest settlers, beside the streams and lakes of this new province, there were compensation beyond the dreary intercourse of daily life in the big city. Trouble or disaster in one household evoked the active aid and sympathy of the neighbors, and when sickness or the black shadow of death appeared there was no limit to the human kindness and helpfulness, as free and fragrant as summer showers over a parched land.

A NOBLE BEQUEST (Toronto Globe)
A Boston business man, the late George Robert White, who bequeathed $5,000,000 to his native city to be devoted to "works of public utility and beauty for the use and enjoyment of the inhabitants," struck a little known chord in the new world. Rectangular streets, buildings uniform in style and ugliness, sordid surroundings, have suppressed in most of us the natural sense of beauty. But the increasing attendance at our museums and art galleries shows that it can be revived, and the inspiration received from these institutions will be turned to material account. An appreciation of beauty, even more than music, unites a man for treason, stratagems and spoils. The wealthy, if they have it not themselves, might well regard the general cultivation of the beautiful as a kind of insurance against unrest and discontent.

"What's the hubb in the inside of thee?"
"The old man is savage today and the foot office boy let in an agent with a 'Life of Cromwell.'"
"Suppose he is selling his life dear?"

PONTIFICAL MASS OF REQUIEM FOR LATE FR. MEAHAN

Touching Sermon Delivered
by Rev. D. S. O'Keefe.

Bishop LeBlanc Also Pays
Tribute to His Memory—
Rev. Roy McDonald Will Act as Parish Priest—Funeral Tomorrow.

Pontifical high mass of requiem was celebrated this morning by Right Rev. E. A. LeBlanc, Bishop of St. John, in St. John the Baptist church for the repose of the soul of the late pastor, Rev. Dr. Arthur W. Meahan, whose death occurred on Tuesday evening. The body of the dead priest, clad in the vestments of his sacred office, lay in state in the central aisle of the church before the main altar. In the sanctuary were more than thirty priests and monsignors from all parts of the diocese of St. John, and the congregation, assembled from every quarter of the town, filled the body of the church.

The sermon was delivered by Rev. D. S. O'Keefe, parish priest of St. Andrew's, N. B., who took for his text, "I am the Good Shepherd; I know Mine, and Mine know Me, and I lay down My life for My sheep." The late Father Meahan had discharged all the high responsibilities of a priest in a singularly faithful manner, and there could be no doubt that he had fulfilled even the supreme test of laying down his life for his flock, said Father O'Keefe.

In paying a tribute to the late Father Meahan, Bishop LeBlanc said that he was a man singularly gifted by God both physically and mentally, a man who had done a great deal of good wherever he went. His Lordship instanced as the most beautiful trait in the character of the late Father Meahan his devotion to his mother, with whom he spent an hour or more every day of his life while he was rector of the Cathedral parish in St. John.

At the funeral mass this morning Rev. C. P. J. Carleton of Silver Falls was deacon; Rev. Henri Cormier of Moncton, sub-deacon; Rev. George P. Pettit of Calais, Me., high priest; and Rev. A. P. Allen of the Cathedral, master of ceremonies.

The final absolution was given by His Lordship Bishop LeBlanc.

The body of the dead pastor will lie in state in the church until eight o'clock this evening, when it will be removed. It will be taken on the early train tomorrow morning to Miramichi, N. B., for interment in the cemetery in which Father Meahan's mother is buried.

After announcing his text, Father O'Keefe said that all were familiar with the beautiful parable of the Good Shepherd, which was depicted by the hand of God Himself and which was usually associated in the minds of the people with the picture of a young man carrying upon his shoulders a wounded sheep.

The Good Shepherd tended his flock, healed their wounds, went after the sheep when they strayed away from the fold and brought them back, cared for his sheep, worked for them, led them and knew them. When the flock was threatened by wolves the Good Shepherd was always ready to defend them.

The priesthood, said Father O'Keefe, was a shepherdhood. Responsibilities almost incredibly great lay upon a priest's shoulders, and because of the commission "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations," the priest was an ambassador of Christ. It was a great responsibility, and it required a special vocation to represent the Good Shepherd.

The priest must feed his flock, heal them, go after them when they strayed and know them intimately. He must be quite prepared even to lay down his life for them if necessary.

"Our pastor was a priest of God," said Father O'Keefe. "How has he carried out his duties since he was ordained twenty-five years ago?" Then the speaker went on to point out how careful Father Meahan had been to celebrate mass daily, how he had spent long hours in the confessional healing the spiritual wounds of his flock and giving advice that might often have changed the whole course of people's lives.

Father Meahan was a man of fine presence and gracious countenance, of fine intellect and good heart. He appealed to both the heart and head of his people, and was a real leader. He knew his flock well. In instances of which he had been placed in charge he knew all the people intimately.

"Gave Up His Life." "And as to the supreme test, was he ready to give up his life for his flock?" asked Father O'Keefe. "He did give up his life for his flock," declared the speaker. "There is no question about that." He went on to substantiate his statement by telling of Father Meahan's continued ministrations to his people in spite of physical pain and incapacity.

There were few dry eyes in the church when Father O'Keefe, speaking for the congregation, bade a final farewell to the dead pastor. "We are asking God to send eternal rest to you," he said, "and to let perpetual light shine upon you—We are asking you, in your turn, to pray for us here so that after our wanderings and trials on this earth, when we go before the judgment seat we may hear the Good Shepherd say, 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant. Enter thou into the joy of the Lord.'"

Bishop LeBlanc.

It was a particularly sad occasion, said Bishop LeBlanc, even though Father Meahan's death was not unexpected. The diocese, and particularly St. John the Baptist parish, had sustained a very great loss, said His Lordship. Father Meahan was a man particularly gifted by God. He was a man of great intellectual power, wonderful personality and genial manner, an outstanding priest in the diocese, whose great gifts allowed him to do a great deal of good wherever he went.

Although Father Meahan had never been called upon to build churches or schools, yet he was a good administrator. "Wherever he went he always left the parish in a better financial condition than that in which he found it. And not only did he leave it financially better but he left it spiritually better. After paying a touching tribute to Father Meahan's devotion to his mother, who died a short time ago, Bishop LeBlanc sympathized with the people of St. John the Baptist Church, who had lost

The president, Robert Langman, presided.

MANY SHIPS LAID UP

Some indication of the state of trade in shipping circles may be seen from the number of vessels which are laid up in Rodney slip since last fall. The following schooners are laid up for indefinite periods in various parts of the harbor and along the river: E. M. Roberts, Quaco Queen, Cutty Sark, Peter McIntyre, Martha Parsons, Seaman A. O., Gertrude Parsons, Karmse, Alfaratta, Frederick H., E. F. Northam and Margery Austin. It has been some time since twelve schooners have been laid up in this port at the same time, but their owners expect that with the return of spring, trade will pick up.

Another Member of Foreign Legion in City.

Tells of Experiences While Fighting for Spain in Morocco—Was Prisoner After Vimy Ridge Battle.

"I would rather go through ten years of the war again, than spend two days in Morocco." These were the words of W. H. Clarke, one of the members of the Spanish foreign legion, who landed in this city from the steamer Canadian Trapper on Sunday.

In conversation with a Times representative, Clarke said that he was an ex-corporal of the C. E. F. and that he had been seven or eight years in the Spanish foreign legion, and had offered his services, which were accepted.

His assignment was to the Spanish consulate at Bloomsbury Square was that he should receive 700 pesetas, a peonía being seven or eight pence a British money, on the day of joining, 450 a day field allowance, free medical attention and free food. On arrival in Ceuta, however, he was told that he would get only 350 and that the payment of the other 350 would be spread over five years. The legionaries had to buy their own food, clothes and medicine, if they were sick or wounded. When he demonstrated, he was told that if he was not satisfied he would be sent to the nearest port in Spain and left to find his own way home.

Not having any money, and being constantly ill-treated, he agreed to fight for one peseta a day field allowance, plus two for food and one and six for clothing.

When the little company was sent to the firing line his members were ill treated. "When action one day, I was wounded in the face and lay for three hours, simply because I was a British subject they would not attend to my wounds," said Clarke. Finally the last of the legion, made up of Clarke, Jack G. Harris of London, C. London of London, Thomas McNulty and Benny Morgoles, found their way to the coast and arrived at Newport Mons in Wales on the steamer Achroite. They were penniless, with no money to pay for lodging, or their train fare home. The men reported to the police and through the kindness of police officers at Newport, they finally reached London. Here Clarke and Morgoles appealed to the High Commissioner for Canada, who arranged for passage on the Canadian Trapper to Canada.

The two men worked as firemen on the trip over, through the kindness of the captain of the Trapper, and thus they landed here with sufficient money to outfit themselves with clothes, but they do not know how they are to reach Montreal.

He asked the people to pray for the repose of the soul of their pastor, who had done so much for them and for the city.

Bishop LeBlanc announced that until such time as a successor was appointed to the late Father Meahan, Rev. Roy McDonald, who had been assistant to Father Meahan, would act in the capacity of parish priest of St. John the Baptist.

SOUND OPTIMISM MARKED THE ADVERTISING CLUB SPEECHES

"Just smile" was the remedy advocated for the cure of the present business depression by Charles M. Schwab, of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, in an address given a short time ago before the Illinois Chamber of Commerce. This prescription was extensively elaborated, recently analyzed and largely justified last evening in a series of addresses given by W. Shives Fisher, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association; Mayor J. D. McKenna, of Sussex; Horace A. Porter, manager of the St. John Exhibition Association, and A. M. Bell, president of the Advertising Club, at which R. A. Macaulay, the president, was in the chair and about forty members and guests were present.

of ours. Work is the panacea for all ills." Big Developments Possible. After referring in a general way to the inexhaustible natural wealth of the Dominion, Mayor McKenna localised his remarks in a series of addresses given by W. Shives Fisher, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association; Mayor J. D. McKenna, of Sussex; Horace A. Porter, manager of the St. John Exhibition Association, and A. M. Bell, president of the Advertising Club, at which R. A. Macaulay, the president, was in the chair and about forty members and guests were present.

After pointing out that, in comparison with other countries, the world of Canada was in a relatively peaceful condition and indicating the great industrial development of Canada and particularly the attraction of United States capital to this country during the last fifteen years, Mr. Fisher declared that, in view of Canada's immense natural resources and her splendid climate, Canadians had no reason to be down-hearted and every reason to smile. In a recent book published in the United States, Canada had been called "The Land of Achievements" and American people were encouraged to buy Canadian bonds and to plant their money in Canada.

"When men in that rich and powerful country speak of Canada in those terms they should be down-hearted," Mr. Fisher asked Mr. Fisher. "But," he continued, "we must get down to brass tacks and work and realize what a magnificent heritage we have in this Dominion."

A Million Dollar Smile. "I'd give a million dollars if I had Charlie Schwab's smile," was the way one big United States manufacturer had of expressing his opinion on the value of a smile in business. The man with a smile was always able to get closer to other men and to understand them.

One of the greatest reasons why Canadians should be optimistic was pointed out by Mr. Fisher. He said that the head of the Canadian manufacturers, because they were living in a country that was highly favored, "Provinces rest found in other countries. Even in the United States with all its wealth there was discontent and pessimism. In the maritime provinces opportunity was limited, and to a certain extent this was true. But he asked, where could there be found a more hearty, wholesome, genuine, contented race of people than was to be found in these provinces? Unfortunately, he said, the pessimism of the middle west did not know so much of the people down by the sea as they should. This was because Canada, as it were, was made through the three lower provinces. In these provinces, with their wonderful climate, beautiful coast and great natural resources, there were, he declared, great opportunities for young men.

Industrial Development. Advertising to Canada's industrial development, Mr. Fisher said that during the last fifteen years there had been established in Canada between 600 and 700 branches of United States industries. Although some people looked askance at this influx of American capital, Mr. Fisher declared that it ought to be hailed with delight. "We want dollars, brains and energy from every quarter," he declared. "Such industries should be encouraged to locate in this country because the money made remained in Canada. These Canadian branches were now doing a great amount of export trade with other countries that was formerly done by the parent houses in the United States," Mr. Fisher said. "As a member of the British Commonwealth of states, enjoyed certain trade preferences, and because there was also a 'drawback' of ninety-nine per cent. on raw materials imported into Canada for manufacture here.

Speaking of the interdependence of business, Mr. Fisher said that the spirit of cooperation must thrive. He likened the dominion to the human body and said that no part of it could be injured without the effects being felt in every other part. Every part of the country must have consideration for every other part. On the transportation question, Mr. Fisher declared that the maritime provinces would have to have the central part of the country with them, and he thought he saw evidences indicating that the upper provinces were now lining up on the side of the maritimes.

The maritime provinces controlled the situation for five or six months of the year, he said, because it was only through the maritime province ports that Upper Canada could obtain access to the Atlantic without going through a foreign country. "We hold a key position in the development and welfare of this country," Mr. Fisher declared. Maritime Resources. The great variety of maritime resources, he thought sometimes, might be the very cause of their weakness. And yet this should not be for in these provinces there were resources of forest, field, sea and mine, and were not the fundamental factors in the creation of these things? These things constituted of all wealth, and were a great opportunity for vigorous development.

Plain Facts for Stomach Sufferers. Digested food makes us strong, vigorous, healthy. Dyspepsia are invariably weak and ailing. All they need to make them strong and well is the power to digest food, and that is just what Mother's Digestive gives. It helps the stomach, liver and bowels to do their work efficiently. ment and a reason for confidence, thankfulness and a smile. Immigration. "We should try to get the right kind of immigrants, especially in the maritime provinces, to fill up the vacant spaces," said Mr. Fisher. "Going forward to the building of the industry, Mr. Fisher said that the war and its restrictions had given an impetus both to home manufacture and to the importation of goods made in Canada. In this respect it had been a great educator and time saver, for without it might have taken Canadian industry and the consumption of Canadian goods a quarter of a century to arrive at the position they now occupy. He said that the women who did about ninety per cent. of the buying should be encouraged to ask for "Made in Canada" goods.

Speaking of the national debt of Canada, which was undoubtedly the largest in the world, Mr. Fisher said that it was owing to ourselves. Most of the interest paid on the debt was in the hands of non-residents. He contrasted the taxes here with what they were in some of the other countries where the interest was as high as fifty per cent. At the conclusion of the address, H. P. Robinson moved, and S. K. Smith seconded a vote of thanks to the speakers which was extended to them by Mr. Macaulay. Mr. Macaulay said that the address had been educational and inspiring. He referred to the speaker as a man of the population of Canada as a whole that would be exerted by the half million Canadian who were present. By going abroad many, who previously had a provincial outlook, had gained a broader, more charitable outlook. They had learned to appreciate and to understand the people of other countries. As a consequence, the country would be richer mentally and this was further reason for Canadians to smile.

HALIFAX EXPLOSION WRECKED HER NERVES

The reader, who no doubt, remembers when a Halifax, N. S., harbor and one of the munition ships was blown up, causing the death of many and the destruction of the city in ruins, and causing a great deal of suffering and distress to the inhabitants, Mrs. Winifred Dill, now of Windsor, N. S., was living in Halifax at that time and went through the trying experience and the shock wrecked her nerves. She writes as follows: "I was living in Halifax at the time of the explosion, and it wrecked my nerves so that I could not do my housework. I would take such nervous spells I would be under the doctor's care. I saw Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills advertised, so I took two boxes, and they helped me so much I took six more, and now I am completely relieved. I can recommend them to anyone suffering from heart and nerve trouble." To all those who suffer from nervous shock we would recommend our MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS as the best remedy to tone up the entire nervous system and strengthen the weakened organs. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the original heart and nerve food having been on the market for over 27 years. Price, 50c. a box of all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of the enclosed check to The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

LITTLE HOPE OF SAVING SCHOONER OR HER CARGO

There seems to be little hope now of saving the Boston owned schooner Senator, which capsized in the Bay of Fundy last week and is now lying on her beam-ends off Chance Harbor. John J. Ready, of Boston, representing the owners of the vessel and also the owners of the cargo, said last evening that the chances of salvaging either the vessel or the cargo were slim. The weather had been too rough the last few days to carry on the work of taking the cargo out of the schooner. Mr. Ready said that the waves, which were breaking over the vessel, were

BOARD OF HEALTH ISSUES WARNING

If medical aid had been secured as soon as the sore throats were developed, the four cases of diphtheria which resulted in death last month would, in all likelihood, have been cured and the victims of the disease would now be living. It was said at the board of health yesterday in a discussion on the means of preventing diphtheria and the importance of calling in a doctor immediately in cases of sore throat. In this connection, the following extract from "Prevention," a pamphlet issued by the department of health of New Brunswick, was quoted with the request that it be given publicity.

Could Not Eat

Constipation is caused by a torpid condition of the liver. Dosing with salts, castor oil, etc., to move the bowels, cannot afford more than temporary relief. If you are to rid yourself of this ailment and the scores of annoying symptoms and diseases which come in its wake, it is necessary to get the liver right by such treatment as is suggested in this letter: Mrs. Alvin Richards, R. R. No. 1, Seely's Bay, Ont., writes: "For many years I was afflicted with indigestion, and in the morning when I got up my breath was bad. I had a poor appetite, and just felt like eating. I used many different medicines as a laxative without benefit, and the doctor's medicine did not help me at all. Finally I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and found them better than anything I had ever tried. I can highly recommend them to anyone who is troubled with constipation or kidney troubles." Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c. a box, all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Kumfort HEADACHE POWDERS

Relieves Rheumatism. Musteroe loosens up stiff joints and drives out pain. A clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard, it is the best remedy for rheumatism you start to rub it on. It does all the good work of the old-fashioned mustard plaster, without the heat and burn of the latter. Doctors and nurses often recommend its use. Get Musteroe today at your drug store. BETTER THAN A MUSTARD PLASTER. WILL NOT BLISTER.

SORES SPREAD ALL OVER FACES AND BODIES

Mr. Howard Houlette, Waukegan, Sask., writes: "I wish to tell you of a remedy that has done for me what no other medicine could. I was afflicted with a skin disease that covered my face and body with sores. I was in great pain and was unable to work. I tried many different remedies, but nothing helped. Finally I tried Burdock Blood Bitters, and after a few days I began to feel better. After a few more days I was completely cured. I can highly recommend Burdock Blood Bitters to anyone who is afflicted with a skin disease." Burdock Blood Bitters, manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SCOUTS HAD GOOD TIME

The Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs of the city, under the leadership of their scoutmaster, had a very successful evening last night. Mustering some fifty in all they hunted into sleighs and went for a drive to the shore and back and the sounds of their enjoyment were heard afar. Everybody was having a good time. Returning to the school room the boys did full justice to a bountiful bean supper, which was served by the committee of ladies consisting of Mrs. G. B. Peat, Mrs. J. G. Bishop, Mrs. A. S. Pattison, Mrs. Frederick Kee, Mrs. N. A. Hornbrook and the Misses Upham, Whelpley and Bartsch. After the supper there came a joyful sing-song in which every one took part. R. S. Coupe as pianist gave splendid assistance. Rev. Canon R. A. Armstrong, the rector, addressed the boys on scout principles, neatly illustrating his points from the words of the many songs which had been sung. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the ladies and the national anthem was sung at the close of the programme. C. E. Upham, the scoutmaster, was general manager for the evening's programme and it was voted a splendid success.

RENT APARTMENT TO ROB PAWNSHOP

Burglars Cut Through Floor and Get Loot Valued at Several Thousand Dollars. (New York Times.) A robbery, apparently planned three weeks ago when John Murphy and his wife rented rooms at 78 Eighth avenue, was discovered Sunday afternoon when the lessor of the apartment, almost fell through a large hole in the floor. It was through this opening that the shop was plundered. Immediately reported to the police, the robbery was secretly investigated. Detectives found, hidden under a coal stove and in closets of the Murphy apartment, several counterfeiting tools with metal used to make bogus coins.

End Rheumatism, Weak, Lame Back

Stop "doing" rheumatism. St. Jacobs Oil will stop your pain, and not one rheumatism case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating St. Jacobs Oil right on the tender spot, and by the time you say "Jack Robinson" out comes the rheumatic pain and distress. St. Jacobs Oil is a harmless rheumatism liniment which never disappoints and does not burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; aches and neuralgia. Limber up! Get a small trial bottle of old-time, honest St. Jacobs Oil from any drug store, and in a moment you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

A few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur bring back its vigor, color, luster and youthfulness. Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. While wispy, gray faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, making one small strand at a time, by morning all gray hairs have disappeared and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautiful dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

Cinniform Pastilles

PERILS OF MOHAMMEDISM

The Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the Queen square Methodist church held its monthly meeting last night in the lecture room of the church. After the devotional exercises were conducted and the regular business transacted, Miss Yera addressed the meeting on the perils of Mohammedism in Africa. Miss Yera spent several years as a school teacher in South Africa and was quite at home in dealing with the subject. In an interesting manner she spoke of the size, resources and population of Africa and then graphically dealt with Mohammedanism as a peril to the white man's supremacy. At the close of her address a vote of thanks was presented to the speaker of the evening and the attendance of the members and women of the congregation were present to hear Miss Yera's address. Mrs. C. W. Dickinson presided.

HAND OF LAW FALLS ON FEWER BAD BOYS

Juvenile Delinquency Decreased 796 Cases Last Year from the 1920 Record—Uplift Efforts Praised.

(New York Times.) Juvenile delinquency in this city is decreasing year by year, according to the annual report on the Children's Court, issued yesterday by Franklin Chase Hoyt, the presiding justice. He gives credit to the Boy Scouts, churches, community movements and other agencies striving to guide children along the right way.

"Again we report a reduction in the number of our cases," says Justice Hoyt's report. "There were 10,445 individual children brought before the court in 1921, as compared with 11,882 in 1920, a total decrease of 1,137. Of these, 5,200 were arraigned in special proceedings or cases of improper guardianship, a decrease of 341, and 4,886 in cases of juvenile delinquency, a decrease of 796. The commitments to institutions also declined materially during the year, our records for 1921 showing 1,768, as compared with 1,992 in 1922. These figures completely refute, as far as this city is concerned, the assertion so often made that juvenile delinquency is increasing at an alarming rate.

BEAUTY OF THE SKIN
is the natural desire of every woman, and is obtainable by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Pimples, blackheads, freckles and redness of the skin, roughness and eczema disappear, and the skin is left soft, smooth and white. All druggists and chemists have it. Dr. Chase's Ointment, 100c. Sample free if you mention this paper.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

"All this does not mean, however, that the work of the court has materially diminished. During the past year the court held 46,854 hearings, or an average of 4.88 to every child arraigned, which is the highest ever recorded.

"There are certain changes in our legal procedure which are sorely needed and concerning which there can be no dispute, as, for example, the redefining of archaic and crude provisions in the codes and statutes, the granting to the court of the power to appoint guardians, the abolishment of the present practice of prosecuting children for the 'crime' of being neglected!

MISS NELLIE COLLINS.

"I have been thankful a thousand times that I took Tanlac when I did. It is simply wonderful the way it has benefited me," said Miss Nellie Collins, 1380 Connecticut Ave., Bridgeport, Conn.

"About eighteen months ago my appetite began to fail and I seemed to be going into a decline. Nothing agreed with me and my nerves were keyed up to such a high pitch I was actually afraid they would snap in two. But Tanlac has brought about a wonderful change in my condition. My appetite is almost ravenous, my digestion is perfect and I feel as well and strong as I ever did in my life. I never dreamed there was a grand medicine in this world."

NOTE—The International Proprietary Co., distributors of Tanlac, have on file in their offices at Atlanta, Georgia, over fifty thousand signed statements from representative men and women from every State in the Union and every Province in Canada. Many of these are from prominent people in this city and section and have been previously published in this paper.

Tanlac is sold by The Ross Drug Co., Ltd., and F. W. Munro, and by leading druggists everywhere.

questions for which it will be fore difficult to find solutions: Should the Children's Court and the Court of Domestic Relations be consolidated? Should all adults contributing toward juvenile delinquency be tried in the Children's Court? Should the age limit of the children coming before the court be raised to eighteen years? How should the new court be created, and how should its justices be chosen?

SAYS DISEASE FEAR OVERTOPS MALADY

How Man Hurts Himself by Terror and Worry Explained by a Physician—Answer is, See a Doctor.

It is probably true that more people are crippled or weakened by the fear of disease than by the disease itself, in the opinion of the medical correspondent of The London Times. Worry is a grave factor in disease. The answer is, of course, don't fear disease and don't worry. For if one does not fear disease and not worry, he stands a far better chance of avoiding and overcoming ailments than if he does both those useless and debilitating things.

The physician tells a story to illustrate the fear of disease: A great novelist once went to consult a famous heart specialist about a pain which was causing him grave anxiety. Before he came the doctor took occasion to read one of his stories which dealt with terror of a child in the dark night.

"The doctor asked the novelist this question: 'Why did you come to describe what it was the child saw?'" "Ah," said the other, "that is my craft. The child did not know what it saw. I would not have the reader know either. The secret of terror is mystery."

Then came the medical man's opportunity. He faced his patient and told him that his own anxiety sprang from the same mystery. Not what he suffered distressed him, but what his pain might signify.

Every doctor, says the physician, has had the same experience. Indeed, it is probably true that more people are crippled or weakened by the fear of disease than by the disease itself. The mystery is supposed to surround, certain symptoms is so great that their appearance causes something like a panic. The victim gives way to imaginings and broodings of every sort and often becomes so nervous as to hide his trouble in case his worst fears are confirmed.

The policy is fatal, says the writer, because a man with a trouble of that kind on his mind becomes incapable, or nearly incapable, of doing justice to his work. If he is the bearer of important responsibility he becomes a danger to his associates. It may sound paradoxical—it is none the less true—that he would be better in every way if he knew that his complaint really was deadly, in the opinion of the physician.

For uncertainty saps courage and opens the door of the mind to a hundred evils. The pain in the chest may be "angina pectoris." The dyspepsia may in the end turn out to be cancer of the stomach, and so on. No man, and particularly no business man, he asserts, can do justice to his work or himself with fear of that kind in his mind.

Consult the Doctor. There is only one safe course to follow, the physician declares: The moment any symptom begins to prey on the mind recourse should be had to a competent medical adviser and a thorough examination invited. This latter caution is important, says the writer, for human nature is so constituted that a man can actually—as in a case known to the writer—go to his doctor and then shrink the issue which brought him.

"This is the point to remember: Even in mild and early old age the majority of symptoms are not serious, the physician assures us. Consequently, the chances of a favorable issue of examination are much greater than the chances of an unfavorable. That is to say, there is every probability that the self-tormented person will leave his care behind him in the consulting room and return to his work with new vigor.

On the other hand, if his fear is not misplaced, he will at least know the worst. More than that, he will afford his doctor a chance of helping him. Almost every disease—and this does not even exclude cancer, says the physician—is curable if recognized early enough. But there are narrow limits to the period of curability. To go early is therefore to secure chances of recovery, which may be lost altogether five months, or even weeks later, the writer warns.

Cancer, he says, furnishes a good illustration of this very point. If every case of that disease was recognized at the first onset and dealt with thoroughly the death rate would be cut in half. In point of fact, he declares, most of the operations which are undertaken are undertaken too late.

Don't Worry. There is, therefore, no reason why a man should "nurse his fear," and there are many reasons, in the writer's opinion, why he should avoid this bad policy. Worry he calls a potent cause of disease. It leads to disaster in the working life and so, by breeding trouble, adds fresh sources of anxiety. Appetite and other bodily mechanisms are interfered with. Exercise—especially in the case of people who think they have got heart disease—is abandoned. Very often sleep is lost. The victim becomes miserable and unfit and supposes that this condition is due to the disease he so greatly dreads. In the end, he may easily fall a victim to disease, for his bodily resistance is greatly diminished.

There is no more astonishing right-tration of this very point, in the range of a professional reassurance on such an individual. Almost at once the anxiety passes from his face. The man who entered the consulting room with a halting step leaves it in the vigor of a new purpose. Once again he is a free man to pursue his way of life. Within a few weeks he has lost the untidiness that was due to his fear—and not, as he supposed, to his disease—and is able to see how foolish was the policy pursued by him. His business friends and his family can scarcely credit the miserable habit of attempting to treat himself, his recovery will be even more striking, the physician assures us. There are

New Complexions for Old in 14 Days!

How Ironized Yeast Gives New Freshness and Charm to Pale, Sallow and Pimpled Faces

Thousands whose complexions only recently were marred with humiliating skin blemishes today possess entirely new complexions—complexions which were completely re-made in ten to 14 days—and which are entirely free from even the slightest imperfections.

These surprising results were achieved not by using lotions, "beautifiers," or cosmetics of any kind, but by simply removing the real cause of the trouble, and supplying their systems with two vital substances, essential to health but lacking in the modern diet—vitamines and iron.

Make This Startling Test
If your complexion is a source of embarrassment to you—if you are thin, or feel the need of more "pep"—simply go to your druggist and get IRONIZED YEAST on our positive guarantee of satisfactory results from the very first package—or money refunded. Or mail coupon below for our famous Three-Day Free Trial Treatment. Take these pleasant-tasting tablets—two with each meal. Then get ready for a surprise.

Pimples, blackheads and other skin blemishes begin to disappear almost "while you walk." Certain types of yeast and iron have absolutely no medicinal value. IRONIZED YEAST on the other hand means not only specially cultured yeast, but the exclusive process through which this yeast is ironized. There is only one IRONIZED YEAST. SOVIET TO GRANT
CIVIL LIBERTY TO RUSSIAN PEOPLE

Officially Stated That Dreaded Vetcheka Has Ceased to Exist—Arbitrary Commission.

(Special Cable to the New York Times and Montreal, Feb. 9.)—Civil liberty is the next great concession to be made by the Soviet Government. For the last ten days there have been meetings of legal experts and judicial executive authorities to organize a new system that will guarantee to the people of Russia rights as enjoyed by other countries in a state of peace. In other words, Russia is now writing the "preamble" to her "constitution" and has been carrying it to the courts for summary arrest and court-martial.

It was officially stated yesterday that the dreaded Vetcheka—the all-Russian extraordinary commission, corresponding to the all-powerful secret police of arbitrary tribunals instituted by Robespierre during the French reign of terror—had ceased to exist. At the late hour when statement was made no explanation or qualification was forthcoming for what seemed a direct contradiction to the positive assertion of Trotsky last week to American correspondents that the Vetcheka must be maintained. It is now learned that what is really contemplated with regard to the Vetcheka is not its abolition, but its transformation from a state of siege to peace time conditions, and as such merely forms a part of the whole big scheme of judicial reconstruction.

Instead of a terrible agency with unlimited powers of search, arrest, arbitrary judgment and execution the Vetcheka is to be assimilated like the American Department of Justice, or the English Scotland Yard, under control of the Home Office.

The restriction of the Vetcheka's powers, which Lenin promised in a speech before the all-Russian Soviet Congress, is now being accomplished, and the black sheep in the Soviet fold, is being transformed into a peaceful watchdog, whose teeth will only be used against enemies that attempt to break in. After six months of Soviet Russia, I do not believe the theory one often heard outside that the reason for those events was fear in the heart of the Soviet shepherds, lest one of the wolves might turn against its master. The view of the Vetcheka as a power behind the throne, or a government within a government, may seem acceptable enough to those looking at Russia from without, but it will not stand the light of day.

During the epoch of civil and foreign war that ended with the invitation to Geneva, the Soviet leaders judged the Vetcheka necessary and the restriction of individual liberties imperative. Now they greet the dawn of a new and less violent epoch with curtailment of the Vetcheka's powers and extension of liberties.

This does not mean that trial by jury or universal vote by ballot will immediately be instituted. Careful as it may seem to people of the American democracy, the Soviet leaders believe their electoral and judicial systems better—or at least better suited to the Russian people today—than the electoral and judicial systems which obtain in America.

So the jury, which they think is too easily swayed by the eloquence of a defending lawyer or prosecuting attorney or overawed and browbeaten by a judge, will still be replaced in Russia by the "lay judges," if one may so term them, sitting on a bench behind the presiding judge, nearly—or any way nearly than—a jury—on an equality with him. Before them a defendant will be assured, it is claimed of a fair, unbiased hearing. But there will be no more extraordinary tribunals or "Star Chamber" courts, where one man is judge and the prosecuting attorney simultaneously, and where defendants may employ no counsel, summon no witnesses, nor do anything in their own defense save to try and rally their exhausted, terrified brains to meet the hail of pitiless questions and accusations.

Henceforth the procedure of the Russian courts will be a sort of combination

SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH FOR QUEBEC PROVINCE

Hon. Mr. David Has Bill to Establish a New Health Branch.

Quebec, Feb. 9.—A sweeping change in the provisions for the public health of the Province of Quebec is provided in a bill which Hon. Athanasius David will lay before the legislature this session. There will be appointed, under the provisions of this act, a superintendent of public health of the Province of Quebec, who will be head of a health branch formed under the jurisdiction of the Province.

At present public health in the province is looked after by the Superior Board of Health. This body is composed of a number of physicians, including several medical members of the legislature, and, as its chief executive officer, the Bureau of Health and the Bureau of Sanitation. The link between the Superior Board of Health and the government is the nominal, the board merely being obliged to submit an annual report of its work. For the past few years the government has been spending a great deal more money for public health through the Superior Board of Health, and it is felt that the time has come for a health department under the provincial jurisdiction.

The government this year in its estimates asks for $190,000 for public health, whereas a few years ago the amount was under $40,000.

The superintendent of public health will have his office in Quebec and have general direction of measures for the preservation of the public health and report to the minister. It is not yet known to what extent his powers will go as to contact with the Superior Board of Health, but in a general way it will be a parallel system to that of the superintendent of public instruction and the council of public instruction.

No definite information has yet been given out officially as to who will be the first superintendent of public health of the province, but it is said that Dr. A. H. Lesloges, now superintendent of the insane asylums of the province, and in charge of hygiene services, will be named.

POLICE DOUBT STORY.

PIGEON BRINGS AN ODD MESSAGE

Alights at Home in Brooklyn—Location is Not Charted.

(New York Times.) From over the sea, starving and weak from what may have been a 2,000-mile flight, a brown mourning pigeon came to a Brooklyn home yesterday, bearing fastened to its foot, a message as mysterious as one from the dead, perhaps a message from those long thought dead. The message—a few words scrawled in lead pencil on a weather-beaten piece of a manila paper bag—is a cry for help, it is thought, of men stranded on some uncharted island in the Atlantic, a thousand miles off the west coast of Africa.

The pigeon, a stranger, came to the home of a man whose son a pigeon fender, disappeared at sea three months ago. If it is a message from that son, and the entire family believe that it is, it makes a strange coincidence. If it is not, it may be a call for aid from mariners on some island, so small that it does not appear on the charts.

In Nov. 12 August Hill, Jr., twenty-five, 748 Rushwick avenue, Brooklyn, with two companions, Pierelli and Hill, twenty-seven, 175 Sheridan avenue, Brooklyn, and Walter Drews, twenty-five, Springfield, L. I., set sail from Hill's summer home at Bayside Place, Rockaway Beach, in a small boat on a hunting expedition. The next day, when the birds came back, two were missing. Hill managed to catch one in his pigeon net, but the other flew away, and has not been seen since.

Hill went to the room of his store at 1265 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday morning, and let loose for their two-hour exercise flight his 200 pigeons. When the birds came back, two were missing. Hill managed to catch one in his pigeon net, but the other flew away, and has not been seen since.

Hill lifted the captive bird out from the net he saw a piece of brown paper tucked into its leg. He broke the string which held it and saw a message scribbled in lead pencil. Then he shouted: "It is from my son. I knew he would come. I knew it!"

On the piece of crumpled and torn paper bag were the words: "Stranded on island 82 degrees by 47 degrees. Help."

Hill hid the pigeon with corn, which it ate ravenously. Hill said he did not believe that it had come from a pigeon. The message was so roughly scrawled that Hill could not be sure that it was the work of his son. But he did not lose faith.

"I know it is from my son at least," he cried. "He is alive. I know it."

Hill hurried home and told his wife and children the story of the bird, writing carefully. The second son, Frederick, twenty-one years old, said he was almost sure that the letter "H" in the word "Help" of the message had been written by his lost brother. The Bureau of Missing Persons and the naval authorities were notified at once.

There are puzzling points in connection with the arrival of the brown pigeon. The message did not correctly orient the position of the sender. It failed to specify whether the latitude was north or south, and whether the longitude was east or west. The only probable position would be 22 1/2 N., by 47 deg. W., in which case the location would be 1,080 miles east-northeast of San Juan, Porto Rico, and about 1,100 miles off the coast of Africa, and 2,200 miles from New York. A position of 23 deg. S. by 47 deg. W. would be on the mainland of South America.

Then, too, such a long flight over water is considered almost impossible for any type of pigeon. Though carrier pigeons can fly thirty miles a day, and can go for long distances, they must stop for food and drink. To cross the Atlantic a pigeon must fly continuously night and day. Another improbability is the position of the supposed island. According to naval authorities, there is no island charted at this point.

IN QUEST OF N. S. SPOOK

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 8.—Reporter Harold Whidden and Detective P. C. Carroll, who have undertaken to investigate the alleged haunted house near Caledonia Mills, Antigonish county, have passed on their way and are negotiating with Alexander MacDonald, owner of the house, with the idea of having him and his family keep them company on their quest, according to a report received by the Halifax Herald. Mr. MacDonald and his family left the house because they became alarmed by mysterious fires.

WILL NOW APPLY TO GOVERNMENT

Ratification of Federal Body for Bank Amalgamation Necessary.

Ottawa, Feb. 9.—Now that the shareholders of the Merchants' Bank of Canada have agreed to the absorption of their institution by the Bank of Montreal, permission of the government will be necessary before the two banks can be merged. Following the meeting of the Merchants' Bank shareholders, application must be made to the government for authority to go on with the undertaking. This application will be dealt with by the treasury board and permission will be granted if the board sees fit to do so. There is no reason to think that it will be refused.

THE PEACE DOLLAR

St. John, Feb. 8.—I noticed in the Times on February 8 an article dealing with the American "Peace" Dollar. It stated the article that the chief criticism brought against this coin was in regard to the position of the wings of the American eagle, which, as the article states, are held close to the bird's body, instead of being outstretched as on every other coin of the U. S. A. I wish to say that this criticism should not be taken into consideration at all, no less as a chief one, for in the United States two-and-a-half-dollar gold piece the wings of the "eagle" are held close to the body. Therefore the person who wrote the article made a mistake in saying that the eagle's wings were outstretched on every other American coin except the "Peace" dollar. In view of this, I think the criticism not justifiable, for what is good for the "Peace" dollar.

LOCAL NEWS

The tug Harbinger, bound from St. John with a cargo of liquor, ostensibly for the Bahamas, was seized yesterday at North Amby, where she put into dry dock for repairs. It is alleged that three members of the crew were caught trying to smuggle part of her cargo of 300 cases of whiskey ashore, and the three are held in $2,500 bonds. She has been followed and escorted by revenue cutters since she neared U. S. ports.

FIND WORK ON FARMS

Toronto, Feb. 9.—By the end of March, 2,500 laborers, at a minimum estimate, will have found employment on Ontario's farms at reasonable wages, according to Superintendent William Meath of the Government Employment Service. Superintendent Meath based his estimate upon the number of men employed by farmers during January and the five days of February.

NEW YORK-DETROIT DEAL CALLED OFF

Washington, Feb. 8.—The proposed player deal between the New York and Detroit clubs by which the Yankees give outfielder Veach in exchange to some extent desired by the Tigers has been definitely abandoned, Manager (Cub) of the Detroit Club announced tonight after the adjournment of the annual schedule meeting of club owners of the American League. The Yankee owners, Cobb said, declined to enter any proposition involving Shortstop Scott and the Detroit Club was unwilling to take any other players New York was willing to give up for Veach. Failing to negotiate with the Yankees it was said, an effort was made by the Detroit Club officials to interest President Frazee, of Boston, to a deal for infielder Dugan, recently acquired by the Red Sox, but it was said that Frazee asserted Dugan could not be obtained from Boston for any consideration.

Much of the time was spent in discussing plans for the restoration of the draft, but no definite decision was reached. Whether there shall be a joint meeting with the National League, it was announced will be determined later if it develops that the advisory council cannot amicably adjust the difference between the majors and the five dissenting minor league clubs.

Aside from the presentation of the playing dates for this year and creation of a memorial to Benjamin Squire, late of the Philadelphia Club, who died recently, the only action taken was in deciding to make an award of a prize at the end of each season "to the player who has been of greatest value to his team on the basis of his performance on the diamond and conduct off the field."

President Johnson of the American League and Presidents Ruppert and Navin of the New York and Detroit clubs, respectively, were appointed a committee to select a suitable emblem for the award, the cost of which was fixed at $1,000. Playing managers will not be eligible for the award.

The club owners were received at the White House today by President Harding and were guests at the dinner given by Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Club.

THE N. B. SKATING CHAMPIONSHIPS (Moncton Transcript.)

Moncton will get the N. B. skating championships, while St. John gets the marine championships. Frank White, St. John, president of the M. P. S. A., has sanctioned the meet here which will be held in the Sunny Brae rink on February 23.

Every effort will be made to bring the fastest skaters here. Frank Garrett, the present provincial champion, will be on hand and it is hoped that Charles Gorman, now competing at Lake Placid, N. Y., for the amateur championship of the world, will also be here, as well as a host of others from different centres of the province. In recent years Moncton has not been to the front in speed skating owing to the lack of a large rink, but with the new Sunny Brae rink, which has the largest ice surface in eastern Canada, and a large seating capacity, this objection has been done away with, so that the meet here should be highly successful. The championship events include the following—220, 440, half mile, mile, and three miles, senior; 220, 440, half mile,

A strange burial on a floral raft. An attack by a tribe of savages. A fire dance by an island tribe. The most wonderful lions in captivity. Thrills by Miss Pearl White. Wonderful tropical and ocean scenes. A thrilling automobile crash. A marvelous fire at night. A drama with a comedy twist. Plenty of outdoor action.

A Fox Special direct from New York, where it created a decided sensation. It is the story of a girl living alone in the jungle, with wild animals as her companions, and her translating to civilized society and contact with its hypocrisy. It is played by an all-star cast headed by Pearl White.

NOTE—Owing to the length of the feature Friday and Saturday the Serial will only be shown once in the evening, at 8.40. NO ADVANCE IN PRICES Afternoon . . . 2.30; 15c to all. Night 7 and 9; 25c to all.

GIRLS BREAK WORLD SWIMMING RECORDS

Wellington, N. Z., Feb. 8.—In the national swimming championship held here on Monday, Miss Hoelt swam fifty yards in 29 3-5 seconds. Today Miss Schanda swam 440 yards in six minutes, 26 2-5 seconds. In both instances world records were created.

Both the above records were held by Rhelda Blebray, who swam the fifty yards in 29 2-5 seconds and the 440 yards in six minutes and thirty seconds.

MORE COMMENT ON THE CLEAN-UP (Sydney Record.)

DOG DIED OF GRIEF FOR HIS MASTER

A news despatch on Monday said that "Colonel," a collie dog in Toronto, had pined to death because Andrew Boyle, aged fourteen, had died. A fuller report says: "The dog grew up with the boy, according to Mrs. Boyle. They were pals and went to the store to buy candy, he came home sharing the sweets with the dog. During the boy's absence at school the dog fretted and worried. Then on the 10th of January, Andrew was taken ill and became gradually worse. The boy died on January 20. While he lay sick in bed for twenty days the dog was a constant companion, and only with difficulty could be driven from the room. After the boy died the dog staggered about the house and refused to take any food. After several days of this, 'Colonel' was sent to the humane society headquarters, but nothing could be done there to make the collie eat, and he finally lay down and died from what the officials declare was grief over the loss of his friend."

"THE HEART OF MARYLAND"

"That old familiar line 'The Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight,' has been repeated the world over, yet comparatively few people know the significance of its meaning; but those who saw the film version of David Belasco's great play, 'The Heart of Maryland,' at the Star Theatre last evening will long remember why the curfew failed to quell forth its usual 'clang.' In producing 'The Heart of Maryland' the Vitaphone company have spared no expense in making it a veritable film masterpiece and its presentation last evening before two packed houses, raised a great deal of favorable comment. It will be shown again this evening at seven and eight-forty-five."

GIRL CLAWS A ROBBER, SAVES $795 PAYROLL

Fingernails and Screams Foil Hold-up and Police Recruit Arrests Fugitive—It Happens in Broadway.

(New York Times.)
A diminutive girl cashier and a police recruit on his second day of Broadway patrol yesterday frustrated the attempt of two hold-up men to snatch a payroll of $795 and landed a badly slapped and scratched prisoner in the police station after an exciting chase at Thirty-ninth street and Broadway. One would-be robber escaped, but only $22 of the payroll was lost.

"I guess I slapped and scratched that guy silly," said Miss Laura Latin, the twenty-year-old cashier, as she counted out the payroll for the employees of Radom & Neidorf, music printers, of 225 West Thirty-ninth street. "He tried to tear the package of money out of my hand, and he ripped the sash off my coat. Then I started something. I wasn't going to let the big stiff get away with that stuff. He was a big boy, but I swung on him, from the shoulder. Yes, I scratched, too, and then he let go and started to run. The cop nailed him, though—you've got to hand it to those coppers—they're all right."

"I'll say they're all right," interjected David Radom, president of Radom & Neidorf, Inc., as he rubbed his hands together, smiling as he saw the intact piles of currency, "and so is our cashier all right. Only $22 gone—and think of all the publicity Radom & Neidorf, Inc. music printers, gets for $22 and a little slapping and scratching by you, Laura. Well, well, it's all in a life time, Laura. Make up the payroll fast now, Laura—there's a good girl. Tell the reporters now—was she scared?—no, I'll say not. She don't shake, see, or get pale. She's a good worker and fast—see, what a nice girl!"

She Tells of Her Experience.
As her fingers leaped through pile after pile of currency, Laura told of her experience, which, she admitted, was better than anything she had seen on the screen in the theatres at 110th street and Fifth avenue, near her home at 21 East 107th street.

"My picture will be in all the newspapers tomorrow," she explained. "There was a lot of photographers at the West Thirtieth street police station, and one guy had a movie camera. I bet I'll be in the movies next week. No, not like Mary Pickford, she's a blonde. I'm a brunette."

Then, with money counted, Laura took her ruined hand bag and torn coat in her hands and told the story of her adventure with two would-be hold-up men in broad daylight at Seventh avenue and Thirty-ninth street and of the chase through crowded Broadway.

"Every Friday for a year and a half I go to the Hudson Trust Company in the Metropolitan Opera House at Thirty-ninth street and Broadway for the payroll. Today it was $795, and I had it in my hand bag when I left through the ladies' entrance in Thirty-ninth street. From our office it's only a little walk down one block to Seventh avenue and then a little ways in the next block to our office, next door to the post office. I am never scared and I never saw any hold-up man before. And I don't want to see any more. But I should worry."

"I was just next door to the office here, where they are tearing down the old building, when this guy grabbed the hand bag, without saying a word. I didn't see a pistol, and I'm not sure another guy was with him—maybe so; I was busy. He tears the handbag and my coat. Then the money packages break and the money blows around."

"Help! She Cries, Then Scatches."
"Those men working on the building don't come to help me. Nobody does. So I start something. Believe me, that guy knows something happened. I said: 'Help, people! Robbers! Money! Thieves!'"

"And I hits and scratches that guy. He gets scared and starts to run in Thirty-ninth street, and a lot of people hurries up to help me pick up the money—yes, they were nice people; where that other $22, I'd like to know! I runs into the Chatham and Phoenix Bank, in the Pictorial Review Building, and the guard there helps me straighten out the money."

Patrolman John Wood, on his second day of Broadway patrol, and in the police department only eleven months, was the next active figure in the attempted robbery.

"I saw this bird cutting across Broadway with a crowd after him," said Patrolman Wood, "and I scented the trouble. He was running fast, and, believe me, he could run. I got in behind him and cut loose with all the speed I had. He was some runner, but I kept close enough to see him duck into a cellar at Sixth avenue and Thirty-ninth street, and I got him out. He was some scared!"

"I didn't see a pistol, and I couldn't find any along the way."

Patrolman Showered With Praise.

The patrolman turned his prisoner over to Detective Burns from the staff of Inspector John Coughlin, after he had been identified by Miss Latin, and went off post at four o'clock. He was showered with praise and theatre tickets, and last night was in the best orchestra chairs, with his wife, in one of the theatres he had passed so swiftly in the chase. Patrolman Wood, was transferred two days ago to the West Thirtieth street station from the West Eighteenth, and it was his second tour of duty on busy Broadway.

The prisoner said he was John Mills, seventeen years old, a printer, of 518 West Thirty-ninth street. The detectives thought he was accompanied by a second boy, who had been employed in one of the several printing offices in the building at 225 West Thirty-ninth street.

"Another printer in the building told me he had seen the prisoner here," said Radom. "Had you seen him before, Laura?"

"No, and I don't want to see the big stiff again," she replied, "but I wonder was he hungry and desperate—he fought so hard to get the money?"

DANGER OF JUST LETTING A COLD RUN ITS COURSE

Public Warned to Beware of a Three Days' Cough and Break It up Before It's Too Late, by Taking Asprolox, the New Scientific Discovery.

Money Refunded if Asprolox Fails to Bring Relief.

Leading authorities are using every effort to arouse the public to the danger of letting common colds just run their course, for it is definitely known that many serious lung complications such as pneumonia, grippe, etc., develop from colds that hang on persistently.

Colds are curable and preventable, and Asprolox provides the safest, surest and quickest, as well as the most practical treatment for colds yet discovered.

Asprolox is almost magical in its effect. The first dose usually stops the tendency to sneezing and coughing, and relieves the feeling of discomfort, and the second and third doses usually suffice to stop the progress of a cold altogether.

The wonderful efficiency of Asprolox is best shown by the fact that all druggists are instructed to refund money where it fails to give satisfactory results.

HOUSEWIVES WANT WAGES

Toronto, Feb. 8.—The Ontario provincial committee of women protest against the economic position of the wife and consider that she should be legally entitled to a certain proportion of her husband's income.

"Whereas the wife is the business partner of her husband in conserving, if not producing the wealth that supports the family;

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the wife be recognized as equal partner in the marriage relationship and entitled to income.

The above was one of the important resolutions submitted to Attorney-General Ranney today by a deputation.

BIBLE SOCIETY QUILTS PRINTING ITS BOOKS

Finds It Cheaper To Contract Outside For Its Mechanical Work After 100 Years.

After more than a hundred years of manufacturing in its own plant, beginning today the American Bible Society which owns Bible House, Astor Place, New York, will close up its press, electrotyping and composing rooms. To save money the millions of Bibles which it issues will hereafter be manufactured by contract with outside firms. The society issues Bibles in seven different languages and a number of the society may sell the entire building and relocate. The structure is too old and the rooms too small to house modern presses and the fire insurance rates are heavy, as the building is not fireproof.

In 1853 the Bible Society moved its manufacturing plant and general offices from Nassau street to its present site. At that time Astor Place was surrounded in large part by open country.

According to a statement issued by the society, during the last few years the cost of manufacturing has increased tremendously. In 1915 good Bible paper cost little over 4 cents a pound. During 1920 it rose to five or six times this amount, and it still about 100 per cent. above the 1915 figure. The increased cost of labor over the same period reached its peak only in 1921.

After considerable experimentation in manufacturing through outside printing and publishing houses, even in Asia Minor, China and Siam, for many years, it was decided on Dec. 2 last to close the press, electrotyping and composing rooms on Feb. 1.

A FATAL DRUG PARTY.

Montreal, Feb. 8.—Elie Lafortune, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of J. B. P. Rolland, who died here on January 19 last from the effects of an overdose of morphine, was today committed to stand trial.

Several witnesses testified last week that Lafortune had produced a "deck" of drugs at a "dope party" held in an apartment at 122 St. Denis street, following the "sniffing" of which from nail files by Rolland, the latter's death had occurred.

Mrs. L. C. Macnutt of Fredericton, who went to Boston a few days ago to consult a specialist, has been advised that an immediate operation is necessary. In response to a telegram her husband, Collector Macnutt, left for Boston on Monday.
