REPORTS OF GOVERNMENT CHEMISTS . As to Purity and Wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder.

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder, which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substances.

E. G. Love, Ph.D." Ospasies, or other injuries.

"It is a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure.

"II. A. Morr, Ph.D.".

"I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the market. I find it entirely free from alum, terra alba, or any other injurious substance. HENRY MORTON, Ph.D., President of Stevens Institute of Technology."

"I have analyzed a package of Royal Baking Powder. The materials of which this composed are pure and wholesome. S. Dana HATES, State Assayer, Mass." The Royal Baking Powder received the highest award over all competitors at the Vienna World's Exposition, 1873; at the Centennial, Philadelphia, 1876; at the American Institute, New York, and at State Fairs throughout the country.

No other article of human food has ever received such high, emphatic, and universal endorsement from eminent chemists, physicians, scientists, and Boards of licalth all over the world.

Note-The above Diagram illustrates the comparative worth of various Baking Note—The above Diagram illustrates the comparative worth of various Baking Powders, as shown by Chemical Analysis an experiments made by Prof. Schedler. A pound can of each powder was taken, the total leavening power or volume in each can calculated, the result being as indicated. This practical test for worth by Prof. Schedler only proves what every observant consumer of the Royal Baking Powder knows by practical experience, that, while it costs a few cents per pound more than ordinary kinds, it is far more economical, and, besides, affords the advantage of better work. A single trial of the Royal Baking Powder will convince any fair mitted various of these facts. fair minded person of these facts.

* While the diagram shows some of the alurn powders to be of a higher degree of strength than other powders ranked below them, it is not to be taken as indicating that they have any value. All alum powders, no matter how high their strength, are to be avoided as dangerous.

A board of army officers sometime since convened at Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis, U. S., for the purpose of determining upon the best method of shoeing cavalry and artillery horses. The result of the conference was an order from army head-quarters rescinding all previous regulations governing Government farries, and substituting new rules, as follows: "In preparing the horse's foot for the shoe do not touch with the knife the frog, sole or bars. In removing surplus growth of that part of the foot, which is the seat of shoe, use the cutting pinchers and rasp, and not the knife. The shoeing knife may be used, if necessary, in fitting the toe clip. Opening the heels or making a cut into the angle of the wall at the heel must not be allowed. The rasp may be used upon this part of the foot when necessary, and the same applies to the pegs. No cutting with a knife is permitted, the rasp alone when necessary. Flat-footed horses should be treated as the necessity of each case mayrequire. In forging the shoe to Reary Everybody in the little town of Lyresur-Ys was astonished when it became known that Mr. Mathias was dead.

He was barely 45 years of age and was a robust man, as straight as an arrow. About three years before, he had become the husband of a young girl of 20, a niece of the tax collector, and whom he had loved with frenzy.

Of course, once dead, Mr. Mathias was credited with having been, during his life-time, the possessor of every virtue. It would have dared speak of him as having been a usurper or miser, as people termed him while living.

No one would have dreamed of publications was assisted him in putting on the sheet and arranged it so that the folds fell gracefully.

'I have just left my tomb,' began Mr. Mathias in a hollow voice.

'So I see,' said Grimbot, interrupting him. 'You seem to be in a much gracefully.

Mr. Mathias, not a little embarrassed, kept on trying to wind his shroud about him, hoping that a ghostly appearance would rid him of his incoporation. It did not, however. On the contrary, Grimbot, kindly assisted him in putting on the sheet and arranged it so that the folds fell gracefully.

"I have just left my tomb,' began Mr. Mathias did not listen to him. He was taking long strides, walking on tip toe, just like a ghost.

Grimbot kept up with him, and con timed.

No one would have dreamed of publishing anew the account of that celebrated marriage, which certainly did him ne honor, and which would have brought back to mind the remembrance how all had feared that tall, artful, brought back to mind the remembrance how all had feared that tall, artful, avaricious and rich man whom people supposed to occupy his spare moments in concocting poisons, with which he experimented on dogs. It was no time to talk about that then. He was dead. Peace to his ashes!

After all, in thinking the matter over, was there anything so very extraordinary in this death? It was plain that Mr. Mathias had had forebodings of its approach, for had he not, but a short time before, sent to Paris for workmen to erect in the cemetary the mortuary chapel that was at that moment waiting to receive his mortal remains? Besides, it had been noticed that of late he had prowled about his house as if fearing mysterious robbers. He sequested his wife and closed himself up for weeks at a time in his lating the sequested his wife and closed himself up for weeks at a time in his lating the sequested his wife and closed himself up for weeks at a time in his lating the sequested his wife and closed himself up for weeks at a time in his lating the sequested his wife and closed himself up for weeks at a time in his lating the sequested his wife and closed himself up for weeks at a time in his lating the sequested his wife and closed himself up for weeks at a time in his lating the sequested his wife and closed himself up for weeks at a time in his lating the sequested his wife and closed himself up for weeks at a time in his lating the sequested his wife and closed himself up for weeks at a time in his lating the sequested his wife and closed himself up for weeks at a time in his lating the sequested his wife and closed himself up for weeks at a time in his lating the sequested his wife and closed himself up for weeks at a time in his lating the sequested his wife and closed himself up for weeks at a time in his lating the sequested his wife and closed himself up for weeks at a time in his lating the sequested his wife and closed himself up for weeks at a time in his lating the sequested his wife and extended both in a function of

She soon felt all the consequences of the catastrophe. Mr. Mathias (and perhaps he was not far wrong) was convinced that his wife hated him. From this conviction to the belief that she was deceying him, there was but one.

His plans had all been well laid.

The walls of the graveyard bounded his property. He had on hand a complete suit of black clothes in which to array himself as a phantom druggist. In the himself as a phantom druggist. In the graveyard only would he wear his shroud, to be in keeping with the predominating color of the locality. Once over the wall, he would hie straight to his wife's apartment. Then the fun

Mr. Mathias dressed himself, and everything being all right, he tilted over the marble slab covering the vault, climbed up into the mortuary chapel, opened the door and walked out into the graveyard, with his wind-ing sheet on his arm.

As soon as he got into the alley he unfolded the ample shroud and tried to cast it around his shoulders. But the sheet was quite heavy, and he failed in his attempt. Just as he was out to try it over he heard a voice behind him say:
'Hold ou, I will give you a hand.'

Not to realize what a disagreeable surprise this was, would be a certain proof that one had never been seen, at midnight, in a graveyard trying to put on one's shroud. The voice that had addressed Mr.

Mathias came from the sexton of the graveyard, Old Grimbot, an odd fish, well known in all the neighboring taverns. He drew near and looking Mr. Mathias full in the face, exclaime 'Hello! is that you, Mr. Mathias?
