

This Mr. King did not deny and the Government official report proves it to be so. What then the reader may ask did the honorable gentleman say which served to convince his following that they should vote down the resolution? In the first place we will say that it was not necessary that he should say anything. The Government supporters do not require reasons for their allegiance other than certain personal ones and these are proof against all argument however strong from the Opposition. But we would not be doing justice to Mr. King who said no more than this: "I have heard nothing of the kind." He knows as well as any one else the old, time-honored trick of raising false issues when the real issue cannot be met, and he therefore, not being able to answer the resolution, confined himself to attacking certain expressions of opinion which individual members of the Opposition had used and lawfully distorting them to suit his own purposes. Thus Messrs. Covert and Burns both said that the increase of the stampage rates was just your waste. Unfortunately Mr. King said a declaration that the King had the right to impose or oppose a stampage, and he spoke long and forcibly upon the point. Although interrupted by the gentleman whom he professed to be quoting, he continued his misrepresentations and denunciations vastly to the satisfaction of himself and his fellow orators, who seem to regard noise as the summum bonum of eloquence and self-representation as the crowning glory of the art. The speaker of the Covert had referred briefly to the Carquet trials. This led the Attorney General to take a general review of them and he attempted to vindicate his course in connection with them. He also took occasion to condemn the appointment of a Solicitor General, and to express his opinion of the Ministry of Education which he

These were got through with very little delay, although there was considerable discussion over some points. Mr. Twiss made an excellent speech, when the grant for the new House was being considered, and the day after that he made a full and full report of his speech will reach the press before our quoting from it, and we do not care to use the simple published report, but will quote from his speech in a close, and on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week the House was busy with local or private bills or resolutions, and the special committees had been appointed.

On Thursday Mr. Cover moved for a Committee to investigate the affairs of the House of Representatives, and the Committee was a matter of course, and that was an objection was made and the Attorney General moved in amendment that as the Opposition did not move for the papers of the House, the Committee should not. This the Secretary announced, whereupon Mr. O'Leary informed the House that he had moved for the papers two days before, and that he had been told that they were being moved down. Thus the Government withdrew their amendment and called on their supporters to vote Mr. Cover's motion. It was carried, and the Committee was appointed. Then Mr. King moved a resolution to enquire into the negotiations between the Railway and the Government, and the Government withdrew their amendment, and it to members of the Government and the contractors with the Railway Company, the amendment was lost and the original motion was carried. The motion was a party on Mr. Cover's motion was carried, and the House adjourned. Mr. King's motion was

Mr. Ryan of Gloucester came next. He made some good points, but he did not elaborate them enough, and he leaves his hearers sometimes to guess at his conclusions. If he comes back again, and we hope he will, we would like to try to get over so much ground, that he speaks but to go more fully into the points discussed. Among other things he arraigned the Government for not protecting henlock. He claims that at the present rate of destruction the stock will be soon exhausted. So far Government and Opposition had forced man for man, but now came the turn of the Government's turn, next, but no one rose to answer the question was about being put at Cotterell took the floor. He made the best speech he has yet delivered in the House, and scored a capital point when he charged the Government with taking the money they had wrung from the people to stamp out the pest and then to be laboring at less than half a dollar a day and expending it themselves in the way of travelling expenses.

Mr. Willis was the next speaker. His speech was the best one in the whole debate in respect of the subjects dealt with and the manner of handling them. It was in every respect, except in volume of tone, a better speech than that of the Attorney General. We give some extracts from his remarks.

*Rer Mr. Willis concluded his receive pay, the provisions of which we will publish if it becomes law. The Legislative Council amended the York County Administration of Justice Bill, so that the County should pay three fourths of the expense. On the amendment being referred to the Assembly it received a three months' hold. A committee has been appointed to investigate the affairs of the Chatham Branch Railway, which makes four committees in session, taking sworn testimony. When they get through the House will be prorogued.

The Colonial Farmer.

LEGRIN & SON, ..... PROPRIETORS.

FREDERICTON, N. B. APRIL 8, 1878.

A very interesting letter appeared in the Telegraph of the 4th relative to the improvement of the navigation of the St. John at the Oromocto Shoals. As we have given so much attention to this matter, and believe it is of so much importance to the community, we make no apology for publishing a lengthy extract from the letter referred to. The writer, who we know speaks from excellent authority says among other things:—

"It may seem to remove some wrong impression arising from want of information, if the facts bearing upon the history and nature of the undertaking are briefly set out and explained. The Impellentists to navigation occurred at a point in the river where the current is very strong and suddenly widens to nearly what is usually the width and two islands are formed in the channel, at some distance above the mouth of the Oronoko. The larger of these islands is between two and three miles in length, and is known as Middle Island. A smaller island, on the southern side, is about half a mile long, and is also formed, and is now some seventy-five or one hundred acres in extent. This is called Thatch Island, and is the property of Senator Wilcox. The navigable channel lies between these two islands, and it is here, and above this point that the troublesome shoals are formed. In the winter season

1870 or 1871. Mr. Perley, C. E., was sent to the place with instructions to make a thorough and exhaustive survey of the locality with a view of reporting upon the best plan of permanently removing the difficulty. Mr. Perley visited the place, and made a thorough examination of the situation and reported in favor of the construction of a shear dam, at right angles from the Lincoln shore to the head of Tiedel Island, which would be a shorter and less expensive work, and another shear dam from the Mangrove shore at right angles to the head of Middle Island. The object of these would be to increase the volume of water in the channel between the two islands, while when the force of the spring and full freshet was on would tend to scour out the dredged channel.

In the session of 1872 the attention of

The Government was again called to the subject by Mr. Burpee, seconded by Mr. Peckard, moving an address to the Governor General to have Mr. Perley report brought down, at which time they took occasion to urge upon the Government the importance of carrying out some improvement in the river St. John at this place. * * * * *

In 1874, if I mistake not, several of the New Brunswick representatives interested in the work, including Mr. Wilmot, waited upon the Government in order to determine upon some plan of action. The location of the dam, as proposed by Mr. Perley, was considered to be objectionable, and Mr. Wilmot especially urged that it might cause damage both to the Island and Intervale on the shore adjoining. These objections had a tendency to delay the work and prevent any large outlay. It was understood, however, that a large amount should be expended in building a wing dam as an experiment, and, meanwhile the dredge was promised to make further excavations. But on account of pressing for it in other parts of the country comparatively little work was done at the shoals. (It became apparent that something more effectual should be undertaken to remove the difficulty. Messrs. Barpee and Pickard again brought the matter before Parliament, at the last session, and urged upon the House and Government the great necessity of some action on the premises. Owing to the pressing demands upon the revenue only $10,000 had been put in the estimates during that year for the improvement of Dominion rivers. Of this amount the Government allotted 28,000 funds object." During the past summer Mr. Perley again visited the locality, but owing to urgent business elsewhere had only a few hours to spend, and did not have time to consult the landed proprietors interested in the matter, though Messrs. Burpee and Pickens were present. Mr. Perley declared that as the dam this year at his disposal would be small, he would take the responsibility of using it to construct the dam from the Lincoln shore to the head of Hatch Island, as proposed. In his report as an expert, although the representatives present preferred a larger dam from a point higher up the shore to a point at some distance above the head of the island. The engineers immediately left by train for St. John, after which Mr. Burpee at once called on Mr. Perley.

by the work, who went together to examine the locality of the proposed dam, and came to the conclusion that it would be dangerous to the interval land on the Lincoln shore. At the instance of these proprietors, Mr. Burpee wrote Mr. Perley, asking him to reconsider his decision and make a further examination of the locality before proceeding with the work. *

Besides, the extent of the dam required upon the Matigewville side cannot be ascertained until the location of the Lincoln dam is known, the operation of this dam, when constructed, is considered, in fact, experimental, and can only be accurately known after it has been tested.

In consequence of these complications the work was delayed till late in the fall when the men were asked for and a contract entered into for the construction of the dam, for a sum a little under $10,000. The Telegraph's correspondent states that the whole amount will be expended this year. The work is most substantial. A wide foundation of brush five feet in depth is laid upon the bottom, upon which the crib work is constructed, with a ballast of river stones upon the lower tier of logs, and filled with stones to the top. On the lower side poles are driven close together through the brush. This row of poles extends the whole length of the work (which is 1,000 feet long), and also across the outer end returning fifty feet to the upper side, each pile being butted in the upper tier of logs.

upon for the construction of the dam from a point some 150 rods above Thatch Island, on the Lincoln Shore, to a point above Thatch Island bar, and Mr. H. C. Egan, C. E., was subsequently sent up Mr. Perley to mark out the locality. Upon this occasion Mr. Barpee was present and notified the proprietors, and sent a messenger for Senator Willmot, (who lives some two miles distant), all of whom attended. Although the line just spoken of had been chosen with a desire of meeting the views of the proprietors, it failed to entirely satisfy Mr. Willmot, who asked that the dam should be placed still farther up the stream, the result of which was to delay the construction of the work.

Minister of Public Works. It is understood that at this time Mr. Whitnott proposed to the Minister that the dam should be made further up the stream, and jutting out into it at right angles from the shore. This would probably have had the effect to throw the current across and enlarge the shore of Ormouke Island. It is understood that the Minister declined to entertain this proposition, but moved the site of the dam further up the stream on both ends, so that while narrowing down the stream, the lower end would still be above the sand bar at the head of Thiake Island, thereby directing the current between the Islands and through the dredged channel.

It is considered important that the Lincoln Dam should be built before the

The dam on the Mangerville side for the following reasons: The current already flows strongly towards the Lincoln shore in flood-tide time, and the proposed site of the Mangerville dam being higher up the stream, would, if built before the Lincoln dam, throw a great stress of water against the Lincoln shore and Thatch Island, an endanger both."

The writer of this letter goes on to answer certain allegations made by Mr. Senator Willard and our contemporary the Reporter; but as we have not published what they said our readers will not be interested in the reply.

It is with great pleasure that we record the action which has been taken in reference to the improvement of the navigation. Whether the engineer's plan is the best that can be adopted we do not know.

But thus we do say that Messrs. Bartlett and Pickard who have neglected the matter with so much success are deserving of the highest credit. If the effects of the broad water are not what is expected, the fault will be, not with our representatives, but with the engineer in charge of the work and if it should be that he is in error, and we have no reason to think he is—then some persons say that his plan is wrong—the Government which has recognized the importance of the work will remedy such defects which may occur in it.

not have been elected if they were no temperance men. The same majority are anxious that total abstinence principles should prevail, and are by no means an example in this done more than in them. Their error is one of judgment. The matter may have been brought up little easily and the question taken before the Assembly had a full opportunity to be heard and to give its opinion with bearing. Therefore we have only to repeat our regret that a decision should have been reached which will be claimed though wrought by the liquor party as a triumph over the temperance cause. It is a sad sentiment, and is not encouraging to the great army here and elsewhere who are laboring in the cause of temperance.

The investigations of the Committee moved for by Mr. O'Leary to enquire into certain corrupt bargains between Mr. C. Brown and the Hon. Messrs. Young and Kelly hid safe before to light very extraordinary circumstances. The Assembly in its wisdom has seen fit to withhold the evidence from the public to its full use, and an impression seems to prevail that the doings of the Committee are strictly private and must not be reported. All we have to say on that point is that had we not been under the impression until it was too late to remedy the mistake that arrangements had been made for the publication of the evidence as it was given, we would have afforded the Assembly an opportunity to test its powers in preventing the publication of the testimony. As it is, we refrain from stating what the facts of the case are, as we have gathered them from chance visits to the Committee rooms. We may say in passing that the evidence points clearly to Mr. Kelly, and we believe we are warranted in saying

The FARMER is not quite so large this week as it usually is, but we cannot put any larger sheet on the press we are now using. We expect to be fully equipped with new stock at an early day, when the FARMER will assume its old proportions. In the meantime, by condensing advertisements, we hope to give the usual amount of reading matter.

ENTERTAINMENT.—On Saturday night, last the Women's Christian Temperance Union gave one of their ten cent Concert in the City Hall. The day and evening were very stormy but an excellent audience was present. The programme was varied and highly entertaining. It was as follows:—

Instrumental music by the Orchestra.
Solo and Chorus, "See that My Grave Be Kept Green," Soloist, Mr. J. O'Brien.
Solo, "Come Back to Erin," by Mrs.
Plinir, with a verse of the "Brook." In response to an encore. An amusing sketch entitled "Off to Mauro," by Miss Craig.
Mr. Wm. Gairnes and Master Rosal solo, "The Two Pictures," by Miss Wood. Solo, "The Daw Old Village," by Miss Paisley. Solo, "Old Folks at Home," by Mr. J. Blyss, with "Brother Joe and I" as an encore. Solo, "My Grandfather's Clock," Soloist, Mr. Wm.
son. Solo, "Nora," by Mrs. Naitien with ——— as an encore. Instrumental music by the Orchestra. Tableau
"The Mistletoe Bough," with song.

Mrs. C. H. Lugin. The ladies and gentlemen participating in the tableaux were Mrs. S. Barker, Mrs. Creed, Mrs. E. Paul, Mrs. J. H. Randolph, Miss Milburn, Miss Atherton, Dr. Ellis, Messrs. Gannon, Lugin, Edgewood, Creed and Atherton. The song was sung before the curtain rose and there were five scenes given with accompaniment of soft instrumental music, the ladies and gentlemen on the stage being dressed in fancy, but rich costumes, and colored lights being burned. The effect was really excellent.

A correspondent has written to us from Fairview complaining that the Grand Southern Bellway has not nor is it likely to pay "lind owners for their lands and

A proposition to give Frederickton one of the four members for York as its representative, and that the other three shall be elected by the City and County is being discussed, and meets with a good deal of

"EXTRA LANGUAGE" was the subject of Mr. John Lloyd's lecture on Tuesday. Considering the walking, the weather and everything else, including the lay-sermon of the Telegraph, Mr. Lloyd had a good audience, and gave his lecture in which occupied about two hours in delivery, in his usual phrasing style. If

We stepped for a few moments the other day into the room where the Committee of the Kent Railway matter was in Session. The occasion was the cross-examination of Mr. J. C. Brown by the H. M. Mr. Youg. Whatever other parliamentary committee may be this one certainly does not seem calculated to elicit the truth of matters into which it enquires or rather it does seem calculated to secure a garble! version of the truth. The reason is that the chairman of the committee, Mr. Marshall, conceives himself to be clothed with judicial functions and departing from the ordinary course in parliamentary investigations, undertakes to rule as to the admissibility of testimony. The consequences of his so doing is apparent at once to any professional mind. He admits much that is irrelevant and excludes the great deal that is relevant. It also places him witness at a disadvantage, because it practically deprives him of the advantages of explanation which are always allowed in a court of law and which re-examination secures him. It is no answer to say that the party who calls the witness may re-examine him, for this is producing the witness may not know how to re-examine, and even if, he does it, he is not his interest to do so. On this occasion we refer to Mr. Brown insisting on a right to explain because he did not want to be branded by the public as a perjurer. After some dispute the right was accorded him. The occasion of the explanation was an irrelevant question, the answer was necessarily irrelevant. The explanation was relevant to the answer, but because it was irrelevant to the issue it was not allowed except in such a form as Mr. Brown complained would put him in a false position. It is not for us to say that Mr. Marshall's rulings are not honestly made. We have no right to impeach his motive; but we are justified in doubting his ability to decide the points in the law of evidence and therefore, without expressing any opinion as to the wish of the majority of the committee to do justice, in saying it would be more conducive to the elicitation of the truth if a full examination were had into all matters in any way connected with the subject before the committee without any attempt being made to analyze the

We also visited the committee which Mr. Mackenzie had struck to examine into some imaginary sin committed by Mr. Burns in respect to the expenditure of great roads in Gloucester. Dr. Dow was a acting in the position of chairman and was t must give him the credit for exhibiting e while we were present, a desire to do so e charge his duties with impartiality. Mr.

 e acting as prosecutor and e was endeavoring to make e examination of Mr. McLean, formerly a M. P. P., now a supervisor, and was sus-eeding in making himself ridiculous e Hon. Messrs. Young and Kelly were e and without indicating by word or deed t that the charge against Mr. Burns was eally an attack by the former of them
 t first named gentlemen upon the latter.
 e the performance with intercourse with e petal Illumism, and at one time gave e committee to understand that he e "not one devilish bit afraid" of them e The climax was reached when Mr. Burns
 e that the latter begged for the protection
 e committee and when to claim it
 e, and he had no right to claim it—said
 e would bring the matter up to e place.

We publish in another column London despatches relating the circumstances attending the resignation of Earl Derby as premier, and the calling out of the reserves. The decisive events were followed by a circular from the British Government to the European powers the most important portions of which we publish below. The pretensions and cabinets of Europe have since been discussing this circular. The Berlin Post-Bismarck's organ, expresses warm approval of it. Favorable replies are expected from Austria, Italy, and France. The attitude, it is said, will reflect on the status of the Russian Government. Meanwhile England is aiming to the teeth and Russia is preparing for a struggle; but as the outlook becomes more and more imminent, public opinion in Europe set more strongly in favor of England. A high Austria in authority states that England the champion of International Law, the Hungarian Premier informs the Austrian Emperor that if action is taken against the British interests he will not be responsible for its effect in Hungary. France refuses to form a secret treaty with Russia, and even Turkey is disinclined to submit any longer to the dictation of her conqueror. The reasons of this are first the firm, unwavering course which the British Government has taken, secondly the manifest ability of England to maintain her rights. The Times says if we are to war we will be prepared to continue until resistance is crushed, and England begins to acknowledge that such a course can be carried out. The World has been deceiving itself about the power of England, and the nations have about concluded that reconquies, made without are scarcely to be depended upon. We have a stronger hope for peace now than for some time past; but so little can we understand what the Information at St. Petersburg the actual position of affairs, that any attempt to forecast the result would be the merest guesswork. The selection from the British circular is as follows:—

"Her Majesty's Government deeply regret Russia's decision. Even if a considerable portion of the stipulations of the treaty were likely to be approved, Russia's reservation relative to their discussion would, nevertheless, be open to most serious objection. Every material stipulation of the treaty involves a departure from the treaty of 1856, and by the declaration signed in London in 1871 it is declared possible for Her Majesty's Government to acquiesce in a withdrawal from the significance of the powers of articles which are modifications of existing treaties. The combined effect of the stipulation upon the interests of the powers also furnishes a conclusive reason again separate discussion of any one portion of them. By the articles relative to new Bulgaria a strong Slav state will be created under the auspices and control of Russia, who will thus secure a preponderating political and commercial influence in the Black and Aegean seas. The considerable Greek population, although it views the prospect with alarm, will be merged into a Slav community akin to it. The provisions by which Russia will practically choose a ruler for Bulgaria while a Russian administrator frames and

A Russian army controls the first working of its institutions, sufficiently indicative of what political system it will in the future form a part. The stipulations for a better government of Thessaly and Epirus in themselves highly commendable, are accompanied by conditions the general effect of which will be to increase the power of Russia to the prejudice of Greece and every other country having interests in the Eastern Mediterranean. The territorial severance of Constantinople from the European provinces still left under its government will deprive the Porte of any political strength which might have been derived from their possession, and expose their inhabitants to serious risk anarchy. The acquisition of Bessarabia and Batoum makes Russia dominant over all the vicinity of the Black Sea, while acquisition of the Armenian stronghold secures her influence over the population of the province and enables her to arrest trade between Europe and Persia. Indemnity stipulated for is evident beyond Turkey's means, even not considering the portion of her revenue heathened to other creditors. Its mode of payment being vaguely stated, it must be demanded immediately, lest the weight down the Porte's independence many years, consumed for more territory or be made the means of entirely subduing Turkish to Russian policy. The combined effect of the treaty stipulations to depress almost to the point of extinction the political independence and subjection the political independence of the Porte. It cannot be otherwise than matter of extreme solicitude to Great Britain that a Government, whose jurisdiction extends over geographic positions of the deepest interest to him should be so closely pressed by the political cal outpost of a great movement over which it is independent actions and decisions, is almost impossible. Large changes will doubtless be necessary, but hitherto existing treaties, England and its allies desire good government and peace and freedom for the population to whom these blessings have been strange. Still, it would willingly have entered a congress in which the populations could be examined as whole; but neither British interests nor the well being of the Turkish provinces would be consulted by the assembling of a congress restricted to Prince Gortschakoff's latest reservations.

The City Council held its regular meeting on Tuesday evening. The Mayor reported that an action had been begun against the city by William McLang, and the City Clerk that an action had been begun by Geo. Taylor, against the city and the Chief and Assistant Engineer, for the loss by fire of his building on the corner of Charlotte and Northumberland Streets. A little routine business was transacted, after which Alderman Bull moved that the fee for Tavern Licenses be $100. Alderman Moore moved a amendment that it be $50. The amendment was carried on the following decision. Yeas—Cliff, Ester, Beck, Smith, Moore, Grieves, Ribney.—7. Nays—Bully, Simmons, Dykeman.

The Bazaar of the Women's C. T. Union

The following is the assessment on district for the current year:—

Interest on S. F. engine debentures, 1898-99	4
" Funded bill	5
" Railway	5
" New City Hall	5
" Fire Department	25
Roads and streets	25
Police Department	25
Support of Poor	25

[illegible]

February last, was brought before the Western District Court at New York, and sentenced to be hung on the 22nd day of June next. We learn he has made a confession of his guilt, which will not be made known at present.

---

AN IMMENSE STOCK

OF

New Goods

Personally selected by the subscriber in

Ireland,

Scotland,
England
and France

NOW OPENING

Everything Newest Design.

Further particulars next week

P. M'PEAKE.

Fredrickton, April 3, 1878.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.