Lake St. Peter

Our contemporaries, the Gazette and Herald, have obtained a sight of the Report drawn up by Messrs. Gzowaki, Childe and McNeil, the Engineers employed by the Harbor Commissioners to survey the channels in Lake St. Peter, with a view to continuing the works for procuring in them a greater depth of water. It appears that these gentlement have carefully examined both channels, and have decided unanimously in favor of deepening the old channel.

The Jews may be divided, it is said, into two classes—the indifferent or septical, and the superstitions. In Western Europe, especially in France, where legally the Jew is on an equality with the Christian, scepticism prevails very extensively. In Tanis, the Jews are superstitious. The Jews of Palestine, and Pilgrims on their way thither, appear to be the most devout and liberal. Persecution was more favorable to Hebrew learning than prosperity has proved. The French Hebrews the bars is recommended to be 600 feet wide and 16 feet deep, and the estimate of the cost is £2,007.

They also recommend closing the new cut by a dam, and further deflecting the current through the old channel by a grain from the flats of Mank. They also recommend closing the new cut by a the old channel by a groin from the flats of Monk Island. The Engineers consider that in one sea-13 feet deep, which depth can be increased to 16 feet during the operations of four seasons. The expense of excavating the channel, 450 feet wide and 13 feet deep, is estimated at £19.481-to the full depth of 16 feet, at £65.049. The Engineers are reported to have been unanimous in their re-point is finally settled, for although we were always, for many reasons, inclined to think the straight channel the best, we care not whether it be the old or the new, provided there be sufficient water in the Lake to admit of deeply laden ships coming up to Montreal, without their being obliged to transfer part of their cargo into lighters As this question has been at length settled by pro-

The total cost of the machinery alone is estimated at nearly three millions and a half sterling.

The place is so small, and now so insignificant, that the duke had always smied at their pretensions, and waived their claims, reluctant to impose unnecessary expenditure on the state. However, there were too many persons interested in sharing the municipal emoluments to let the subject drop. One wanted to be governor, another Chancellor, and another gonfaloniere, or mayor, besides some twenty more expecting submayor, besides some twenty more expecting submayor, besides some twenty more expecting unit may be attributed to the moral principle, though mixed with puritainism, that existed in the people of England. In France, the lower class was thoroughly demorable their hold over the lower class; in France, at the Revolution, they were banished, imprisoned, or put to death, and all regard for mayor, besides some twenty more expecting sub-ordinate offices. The duke was inexorable—the ordinate offices. The duke was inexorable—the duchess was assailed—and above all days in the year, on her consort's birth-day? Her royal highness never interferes in government decrees, but how could she refuse so small a boon on such a day? Dinner commenced—the feast was joyous. An old courtier gave a hint, that Camajore alone, of all the country round, was sad; "hope long deferred making the heart sick." The duke was deaf—at length the duchess apoke—his heart has always ears for her, duchess apoke—his heart has always ears for her, and he was in buoyant spirits. By his side atood his favorite dog, a splendid animal. Brilliante, he knew, had just been gorged by a large plateful the specific heard, and Brilliante was notorious for never eating bread, so, in a moment of frolic, thinking he was agre to win, his royal highness was resolved to set the fate of Camajore on a cast, and throwing the dog a large roll, he said,—" If Brilliante devours this. Camajore shall be a city." and browing the dog a large roll, he said,—" If Brilliante devours this, Camajore shall be a city." The capricious and capacious jaws opened—the teeth did their work—the bread went down—absolutely down, and Camajore was a city! I believe the duke was sorry, but his word was paged. The duchess and Princess Charlotte soon twined the ornamental flowers of the table into a garland, growned Religiants, and led him to his garland, crowned Brilliante, and led him to his royal master, amidst cheers and vivas. The pro-pitious dog was next morning taken to Camajore, and paraded about the new city, amidst a rejoic ing population, who were ready to worship him, promised to introduce a dog and a loaf of bread into the city arms over the gate, that Brilliante's into the city arms over the gate, that Brilliante's fame might descend to posterity.—Bye-Ways of heavy red curtain was hing up, disiding the room into two compartments. Observing that this moved once or twice, I endeavoured to find out the cause, when several pairs of black eyes, half hiddenfin the years old.

by curiosity to behold the while men, were thus transgressing the rules of the harem. But old Quilp looked very hard at me, and for the ladies' sakes I was obliged to desist. Behind the sultan stood a young man, very handsomely dressed in crimson silk, who held in his hands an English finger-glass sult, who held in his hands an English huger-glass. We were very much at a loss to know what his office might be, and, also, what might be the office of the finger glass; but our curiosity was soon gratified; the sultan beckoned the youth to ap-General Cavaignac's health is apparently declining. His friends are very uneasy about him.

The Jews may be divided, it is said, into two classes—the indifferent or sceptical, and the superstitious. In Western Europe, especially in France, where legally the Jew is on an equality with the Christian, scepticism prevails very extensively. In Tanis, the Jews are superstitious. The Jews of Palestine, and Pilgrims on their way thither, appear to be the most devout and liberal. Persecution was more favorable to Hebrew learning than which was a curry, served up in a capacious vessel, which, in Europe, is only to be found under a bed. The curry, nevertheless, was excellent. And what matter did it make? "What's in a

A KNITTER OF LOMELLING.—At a ruined town with a musical name, Lomelling, I arst met with the beautiful head dress of which I had often seen and heard descriptions. Two peasant women were sitting at a dirty but on a stone bench, knitting in the sun, and talking to the stable people who were preparing our horses both were striking in their appearance, and I could not sufficiently admire their Madona-like heads, as they reclined carelessly and languidly against the ruined wall of their domicile. THE ENGLISH RESELLION AND FARKER AFWOLUTION,—As the mass of the population in France was more intelligent at the close of the last century than the population in England at the breaking out of the civil war in the middle of the seventeenth century, some surprise may be excited that the excesses at the commencement of the French revolution were much greater than during ours. This difference may be attributed to the moral principle, though mixed with puriin France, at the Revolution, they were banked, imprisoned, or put to death, and all regard for morality, or even the semblance of religion, was thrown aside. Andacious avowels of atheism were common. The lower class in France, at the close of the last century, had been taught the forms only, not the divine spirit, of religion. This was not the case in England. In all probability, if the revolution in France had not taken place until half a century later, the middle class by tha time would have been sufficient in power and in duence to prevent the atracities committed by an nuriated lower class.—Mackinson's History of

THE GENDING BALK OF COLUMBIA FOR RESTORING THE MAIR.

"Long hast is a groy to woman," any Paul,
And all feel the truth of the pious quotation;
Preserve is then, ladies—your glory may fall,
Ladies you protect it with this preparation.

If you wish a rica, inxuriant head of hair, free from dustrief and ecuri, do not fail to precure the genuine Balm of Columbia. In bases of insidness, it will more than exceed, your expeciantois. Many who have best their hair fosts wenty years, have had it restored to its original perfection by the use of this balm. Ag, same, or condition, appears to be no obstacle whatever; it also causes the fault to flow with which the delicate hair tubes is filled, by which means thousands (whose hair was gray as the Asiatic eagle) have had their hair restored to its material color by this invaluable resmedy. In all cases of fever it will be found the most pleasant wash that can be used.—A few applications only are necessary to keep the hair from failing out. It strengthens the roots, it never falls to impart a red glossy appearance, and on a perfame for the toilet it is uncitailed. It holds three timbs as much as other misenied hair restortaives, and is more effectual.

The Cartion.—Never buy it unless you find the name of Commisch & Co., Propictors, on the wrapper of each boutle, or you are cheated with a counterfeit article.

A BAD COUGH CUREDIN TEN MINUTES,

Mr. Rigdon, of Brooklyn, the celebrated Church Stages and Organ-Player, on the night of the 16th of December was attacked with a severe fit of compliang—so that he complied from 9 o'clock until 12 o'clock, P. M., without three minutes internissian. One of the Clerks of Radway's Cos; who skeeps in the next room, got up and gave him a tea-spoonful of the Relief internaity, and bathed his throut, neck, and chest; he also saturated a piece of flannel with the Relief, and land it over his chest. In a few seconds the coughing ceased, he could expectorate freely, and raised with perfect case a great quantity of phlegm. The Relief instantly soothed the irritation of the throut, and removed the inflammation from the laugs, and gave free action to them, produced a free and copius perspiration of the shrout and cheat; and in ten minutes be was entirely free from poin, and stuk into a cound and pleasant sleep. In the mortaing he was free from housseness and coogh, and has not been troubled since.
