CHAPTER XLII.

Then her glance wanders and falls on Paul's face, down which the tears are streaming; and with a gesture as of returning consciousness the thin hand goes up to her blue eyes.

"Ah, yes, yes! I remember. You are here still. You are good, good, very, very good. And he—"

Rick comes forward and bends over her and she looks up at him with a smile.

"It's all right now, Rick," she says, struggling with the falling breath. "I can see—I am not so bad as—as you thought me, after all. Don't turn from me," for he has turned to choke back the tears that assuredly do not shame his manhood. "Don't do that! She hasn't; and I wronged her worse than you."

"My poor girl!" he mutters, hoarsely.

"Poor girl!" she echoes, with gentle mockery. "I never knew what it was to be happy till now. And don't pity me, Rick. I've not been used to it," naively. "Never been pitied! Besides, I am better now—I've been ill, awfully ill, awfully ill, they say; but I'm going to—London to turn over a new leaf. I'm going to try and be good like she is. And when I'm strong and well, perhaps—perhaps she will let me see her. I feel very tired, dear, very, very tired. Don't let me sleep too long—for I shall be so happy when—when I wake!"

And with a child-like smile the blue eyes close, the golden head nestles peacefully against Paula's sorrowing bosom, and all is still.

There is silence profound for a minute. Paula has bent her face and hidden it against the short, golden curls. Sir Herrick touches her gently on the shoulder.

"Is she asleep?" he whispers.

Paula lifts her head; the tears are streaming down her face.

"Yes," she says, "she is asleep!" For she knows that poor Flossie is dead.

CHAPTER XLIII.

That is a fine line of the poet's:
"Summer glids the beautiful scene and fills the soul with joy."

GROVE'S O-PEN-TRATE SALVE

Opens the Pores and Penetrates

A Remedy for Chest Colds, Head Colds, Spasmodic Croup, Sore Throat, Stiff Neck, Earache and kindred ailments. Apply freely to the skin just over the affected parts and rub it in.

To thoroughly appreciate happiness one must taste it, as the bees do the flowers in summer-time.

And it is midsummer now. The sun is streaming over the time-eaten turrets of the Court, and falling in golden rays on the verandah of Myrtle Cottage.

As if this story had not been written, as if the historic events herein set down had been but the phantasy of a dream, a girl in a muslin dress steps out on to the terrace, and flings a handful of bread crumbs to the pigeons and doves that come nestling about her feet.

The girl in the muslin dress is Paula—Paula the same as of old, but for the deeper light in the dark eyes and the increased loveliness which a year will bring to maiden beauty.

It is, doubtless, the same muslin dress which Sir Herrick loved so well; but, alas! there is a black silk scarf round the waist, worn in memory of poor, weak Flossie, fallen asleep long months ago.

Not pale and weary now is the beautiful face, for there is a flush of health and happiness upon the cheek, and a light in the dark eyes that bring back all the old girlish brightness which won Sir Herrick's heart that moonlight night when he danced the Manola waltz outside the Court window.

Her lips, half-parted with laughter at the antics of an ungainly Coochin China cock, who has stepped forward for a share of the feast, Paula looks little different, excepting that serious depth in her dark eyes, to the Paula who stood there two years back. Happiness is a grand medicine! It will bring back youth, transform tears to smiles, groans to laughter, weakness to strength. And Paula is very happy.

If you would know why, look over her shoulder and mark that stalwart form, clad in a cool linen suit that sits upon him with graceful ease—listen to that musical voice, as it says in tones fairly divided between the admiring and affectionate:

"Hallo, Paula, feeding those greedy fowls of yours? For my word, I believe you care more for that comic Coochin China, to say nothing of the cock, than for your subject slave!" And he puts his hands on her shoulders and kisses the shell-like ears, lovingly.

"Is that you, Rick?" she asks, laughing and blushing.

"Is it?" he retorts. "Is there any other man who would dare to treat you so?"

"You're very early," she says, with mock rebuke.

He shrugs his shoulders.

"I have been up for hours, wandering about and fishing; one can't stop long in that stuffy inn. Any news this morning?" And he puts his arms round her and draws her to him, much to the indignation of the feathered crowd at their feet, who resent his intrusion with a series of crows and cooings.

"Don't, sir, you'll rumple my hair, and I have only just done it." And she evades his embrace with a gentle reluctance that is an invitation in itself. "No, there is no news." And she sighs, but not unhappily.

"No news is good news," he says, cheerfully. "I've an idea that Bob is all right; he is so well able to take care of himself."

Paula throws a crum, meditatively.

"Ye—s," she assents. "It wasn't a despairing kind of letter, was it? But it was so vague. Poor May! Do you

THERE IS ONLY ONE GENUINE ASPIRIN

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Aspirin—No others!

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, refuse them—they are not Aspirin at all.

Your druggist gladly will give you the genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" because genuine Aspirin is now made by Americans and owned by an American Company.

There is not a cent's worth of German interest in Aspirin, all rights being purchased from the U. S. Government.

During the war, acid imitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. But now you can get genuine Aspirin, plainly stamped with the safety "Bayer Cross." Aspirin proved safe by millions for Headache, Toothache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Colds, Neuritis, and Pain generally.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger "Bayer" packages.

Aspirin is the trade mark (Newfoundland Registration No. 761), of Bayer Manufacturing of Monocaceticacid of Salicylicacid.

notice how anxious she is beginning to look, Rick?"

He nods.

"Yes, and Papa Palmer—confound him!—begins to chuckle and crow. He thinks Bob is beater; but I'll back him even now."

"Thank you, dear," murmurs Paula, drawing a little closer. "That is like you, you always give us hope. May says—by the way, I shall really be quite jealous of May—that she always feels as if her heart were twice as large after hearing you talk."

He laughs.

"Then she'll hear me to-night," he says. "Old Palmer—I beg his pardon—is not a bad sort after all; he has overlooked the little squabble between Stancy—"

"Rick!"—rebukingly—"you promised me you would never speak of that—that time!" and her face crimson.

"Pardon again," he says, stroking her hair; "I'm so happy that the past doesn't count, my darling. Well, Mr. Palmer has asked us to go and dine there to-night, and I accepted. Was I wrong?"

"No, only presumptuous," says Paula, smiling naively. "You should have answered for yourself, sir; time enough to answer for me when—"

She stops short, colouring at the slip of the tongue.

He laughs, and kisses her proudly.

"Next Wednesday week," he murmurs. "I wish it were to-day!"

"Then I do not!" with a pout. "I haven't got half my dress finished, sir."

"I'll marry you in this cotton one," he says, tacking up a piece of muslin with his finger and thumb.

Paula laughs.

"What would Alice say?"

"By the way, is there any news of that pink of perfection?" he asks, not over-anxiously.

"I had a letter yesterday; she seems to be enjoying herself with her new friends, and says that I am not to expect her home for a day or two. There's not much in the letter except a full and minute description of the dress she wore at a ball the other night. Fancy—with a long breath of dismay—"fancy dancing at a ball such weather as this!"

"Unless it were outside, on a gravel path," he says in a whisper.

"Now, Rick," indignantly; but she laughs. "Ah, what a dance that was! And what an awful thing it was to do. I can see the wickedness of it now."

"You have grown so much older, haven't you?" he says, with mock gravity. "Is that a gray hair?" and under the pretence of examining he kisses the golden head.

"You will have someone see you directly," says Paula, alarmingly. "Oh, Alice said that she had met Stancy de Palmer in London. And I think that was all."

"Miss Alice hasn't forgiven you for flinging away that five thousand pounds, my lady," he says, "and, 'pon my word, I think it was rather quixotic."

"No, you do not," she retorts, gently. "Money won in gambling never brings anyone any good."

"Then the Consumption Hospital you sent it to will come to grief, I suppose?"

"I don't intend to argue with you," says Paula. "Why, you know you didn't want me to keep it."

He laughs loudly.

"Fancy sending the money—one wins over a race to a hospital!"

"That's different."

"I don't want to argue with you," he retorts, mimicking her tone and laughing openly at her.

"If we are going to quarrel," says Paula, with much solemnity, "I had better go indoors;" but she only goes as far as the chair and sinks into it with a sigh of indolent happiness.

Sir Herrick seats himself on the edge of the terrace at her feet, and takes out a cigarette and smokes in silence for a few moments. They are both so happy that they will often sit there communing without words; content so that they are near each other.

Then, after a pause, he looks over his shoulder.

"I've taken that cottage," he says, referring to a picturesque little cottage in the village which they have looked at together and meditated over.

"Are you sure we can afford it?" she answers in a low voice of supernatural wisdom.

"Yes, quite. I have been going into ways and means, and I find, that our united incomes amount to exactly five hundred and twenty pounds a year. Enormous, isn't it?"

And he laughs. It is about the sum he used to spend in flowers for his button-hole and hansom cabs.

"It seems a great deal to me," says Paula. "Are you sure it is so much?"

"Quite," he says. "Show you the calculation if you like."

"Don't," says Paula, emphatically. "I never could understand figures; like poor Bob, I always get them muddled."

"A nice prospect!" he retorts, with mock despair. "You'll make a nice housekeeper. We shall be ruined in six months."

"Not by me, sir. If I cannot master figures—"

"Say 'mistress.' You are feminine."

"Don't interrupt. If I can't master figures, I can 'run' a house, as you call it. Oh, Rick, we shall be quite rich!"

"Quite," he says, with lazy content. "Yes, we are going to try 'love in a cottage.' I am longing for the experiment."

Paula flushes.

"Are you going to sit there all day?" she demands, severely.

"I was thinking of doing so," he answers, serenely.

"Then you must not," she returns. "At any rate, I must not keep you company. I have to make a pie, and see to my dress, if I am to dine at the Court. Ah, the Court, Rick! You are sure you will not think enviously of the Court when you are living in your cottage?"

And she looks at him wistfully.

"Certing," he responds, promptly. "Why, when did I think of it? If I remember rightly, a certain young lady used to peek at me for my refusal to mourn over my lost riches."

(To be continued.)

GIRLS! DRAW A MOIST CLOTH THROUGH HAIR

Let "Danderine" save your hair and double its beauty

Oh, girls, such an abundance of thick, heavy, unincorporated hair; a perfect mass of wavy, silky hair, gloriously fluffy, bright and so easy to manage.

Just moisten a cloth with a little "Danderine" and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this magically removes all dirt, excess oil and grease, but your hair is not left brittle, dry, stringy or faded, but charmingly soft, with glossy, golden gleams and tender lights. The youthful glints, tints and color are again in your hair.

"Danderine" is a tonio-beautifier. Besides doubling the beauty of the hair at once, it checks dandruff and stops falling hair. Get delightful Danderine for a few cents at any drug or toilet counter and use it as a dressing and invigorator as told on bottle.

One of the first acts of the new Government at Berlin was to ask recognition from the Allied commissions in Germany. The request was ignored, the commissioners taking the attitude that they would not extend recognition even to the extent of answering the communication.

RESERVATION TO ARTICLE X.

WASHINGTON, March 15. A new reservation, drafted by the Republican leaders to deny the obligations of Article Ten of the Peace Treaty, was substituted in the Senate to-day for the reservation which was adopted last November. The vote by which the substitution was made was 56 to 24 with 16 Democrats voting for it and one Republican against.

BRANTFORD SETTLES IT.

BRANTFORD, Ont., March 15. A mass meeting in sympathy with the Armenians was held here on Sunday afternoon, when a resolution was passed demanding that massacres of Armenians should cease and that the boundaries of Armenia should be changed so that the Armenian nation would not be entirely surrounded by hostile Moslem countries, as provided in the Peace Treaty. Mayor MacBride presided at the meeting, and addresses were given by a number of prominent people, including W. F. Cockshut, M.P.

MARINE TRAGEDY.

WOODSHOLE, Mass., March 15. News of the death of three Nova Scotian seamen was brought here to-day by the coast guard cutter Acushnet, which rescued two of the crew of six of the schooner Isiah Stetson, which was wrecked off the Half Moon Shoal southwest of Cape Cod in the Nantucket Sound on Saturday night. The schooner was bound for Lunenburg, N.S., from Norfolk with a cargo of coal. The Nova Scotians, who were lost, were Nelson McKay, mate, and Manford Nickerson, seaman, Yarmouth, and Emden Ellis, seaman, Digby. Robert Hodgson, of Orland, Main, cook, was also drowned. The survivors are Captain William Reiker and seaman Jos. Watkins, of New York. They had been lashed to the rigging of their ship for fourteen hours. She sank just after they had been taken off.

CABINET RE-CONSTRUCTED.

LONDON, March 15. A joint manifesto which will be signed by Premier Lloyd George and Andrew Bonar Law, will be issued in a few days stating the principles of a new party to be led by the Premier, says the Daily Mail. It will be accompanied, the newspaper declares, by an important re-organization of the Ministry and it is said that for this reason announcement of appointment to portfolios of labor, food and the Board of Trade, now vacant, has been postponed.

CANADIAN REPRESENTATIVE.

LONDON, March 15. The Daily Mail understands that the long outstanding question of Canadian representation at Washington, at last, has been settled by agreement of the Foreign Office to the appointment of a Canadian Minister Plenipotentiary, who will be immediately under the British Ambassador to the United States and in the absence of the Ambassador will be in charge of the Embassy.

The Nation's Fund for Nurses.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—We must all have noticed with the greatest pleasure that Lieut. Commander Fenn, R.N.R., a comparative stranger in our midst—has undertaken to receive subscriptions to the above Fund.

Our fighting forces have suffered more casualties in proportion to their numbers than those of any other Dominion, and they have good reason to appreciate and remember the devoted services rendered by the Nurses. That any of them should now be allowed to suffer want is unthinkable.

It is to be hoped that all officers and men and their parents, and in fact all Newfoundlanders will show their gratitude by sending a subscription—large or small, according to their means—addressed to Lieut-Commander Fenn, R.N.R., H.M.S. "Briton," yours faithfully,

It has unmistakably proven to us that these Sale Days are going to be popular with the men folks of this city. In searching around for this week's presentation we found among other items many broken and incomplete lines of Men's Boots. Now your size is probably here, and if so you are going to profit immensely by procuring a pair at once. Then again, some splendid SHIRTS are featured, as well as SOCKS, GARTERS, and what you probably need most for the coming season, a RAGLAN. Read what we have to say about each item, it's interesting.

Fighting has occurred at Leipzig between National Guard troops and Socialists or Communists. Nine men were killed.

London reports that Pomerania, including Stettin and Silesia, have gone over to the new Government; also the Socialists in East Prussia.

French regard the situation philosophically. General sentiment is that re-acton in Prussia was inevitable, and the sooner the better. Failure now would end reactionary attempts, whilst success would reveal the true Germany and enable the Allies to take the necessary steps to meet the difficulty.

Not Very Promising.

It seems rather odd that just at the time when practically all the great English Tory leaders have become reconciled to Home Rule, the Irish people are turning their backs upon it and advocating impossible things. The Sinn Fein organization has got almost entire political control of the island, even historic Derry having a Sinn Fein Mayor. Unfortunately the disappointment of the masses in regard to the attainment of local self-government have resulted in producing what might be called a "Reign of Terror" almost everywhere. Laws are not enforced and crimes of violence are common, the reasonable frame of mind being the exception. Some years ago the overwhelming majority of the people desired a Local Government with fairly comprehensive powers and would have been satisfied with this; but the powers-that-be did not see fit to act promptly at the time, and now they come forward with a Bill only to find Ireland in a frame of mind which makes it impossible to believe that peace and contentment will follow. Had the Bill of 1914 been promptly brought into operation, there might have been a howl from part of Ulster, but long ere this all things would have settled down to quietness and order. Now, however, it is different. The deferred hope "which maketh the heart sick" has done its work among the Irish and no one seems likely to be satisfied with the Bill now under discussion in the Commons. However, even if it does not come up to any one's expectations it may in the working provide a means for the ultimate uniting of the different elements of the Irish population. Men meeting together at a common Council table to discuss matters for the common good are insensibly drawn together in sentiment, and in sympathy. This would mean a united Ireland, an answer to the prayer and the hope of centuries.—Acadian Recorder.

The Irish in Newfoundland

Their Influence in Religion, Government, Trade and Commerce.

H. F. SHORTS.

 But while much has been written of many famous Irishmen in this country such as Mesgher & Sons, O'Brien, Patrick Morris, O'Dwyer, Nugent, Cusack, Howley, Cormack, Thos. Foley, Valentine Merchant, Patrick Jeddian, Mallowney, Brennan, Ridley, Horke, McBraire (who was unjustly maligned by a narrow-minded bigot), Peter Brown, Phil Duggan, Power & Cody, Denis McGrath, Cashin, Eagan, Doherty, Doolan, Dannelly, Macassey, and who in the different spheres in life are the equals of any of them. I refer to the Rev. Moses Harvey, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, historian and broad minded gentleman; his pen and voice were ever ready to uphold the best interests of his adopted country. As books of reference his stand out the most reliable and fair-minded productions. Who in middle life does not remember that prince among men, the Hon. Moses Monroe,—whose unostentatious charity and benevolence were recognized by all. Although born in Ireland, his forefathers were Scotch, as the name indicates, but the marked peculiarities of each of those races were strongly developed in that distinguished gentleman. The hardy self-reliance the indomitable energy, and imperturbable coolness, which have from the earliest time distinguished the Scotch, were his; while the warm heart, free and open hand and ready springing tear of sensibility told in language plainer than words that the blood of Erin flowed fresh in his veins. Truly Newfoundland suffered an irreparable loss by the early demise of such a noble, broad-minded gentleman, as well as one of the most enterprising and successful business men that ever arrived on the shores of our beloved country.

Then there were William Sterling, M.D., Church of England, and Rev. William Ellis, Methodist Minister. These two gentlemen with Rev. Fr. Thomas Ewer, were the Chief founders of the Conception Bay Benevolent Irish Society in February 1814, and Doctor Sterling was President for about thirty-three years. He was grandfather of Mr. W. R. Stirling of H. M. Customs, St. John's, and Rev. Mr. Ellis, grandfather of Mrs. E. A. Payne, nee Miss Hippieley, wife of the genial and competent Secretary of the Board of Trade in this City. It was after that liberal and patriotic gentleman that Elliston, Trinity Bay, is called.

POPULAR SUPERSTITIONS.

In those days of old in the City of St. John's, many of the people were somewhat superstitious, and believed in fortune tellers, seances, table-rapping, mediums and all of those other means of penetrating the future, which are carried out even to this day. And who can blame them when we have men with such world-wide reputations as the great scientist, Sir Oliver Lodge, and the creator of Sherlock Holmes, Sir Conan Doyle, having full faith in the occult, table rapping, and all the other means, which they assert, have established communication with the other world. In every age and every clime the people of this sub-lunary sphere are more or less tinged with superstition, and even a way back amongst the ancients, those

PUNY, AILING CHILDREN NEED VINOL

Because it Enriches the Blood, Makes Sound Flesh and Muscle Tissue, and Little Thin Limbs Round and Plump

Druggists Guarantee It

When a child is tired all the time, no appetite, weak, sickly and ailing—no energy, no vitality, they need the strengthening elements of tonic iron, combined with the rare flesh, muscle and tissue building elements of good old-fashioned cod liver oil as contained in VINOL. That is what makes them respond so quickly to its use.

VINOL is easily assimilated and remains no oil to upset their delicate stomachs like emulsions. Just try it on our guarantee and you will get the same results as this mother who writes: "My little girl was weak, puny and tired all the time. She did not want to do anything. VINOL was recommended, and it built up her strength and made her healthy, and now she romps and plays like other children, and is robust and rosy."

If you have a sickly, ailing child do not wait another day, but get a bottle of VINOL, and try it on the guarantee of your druggist to return your money if it fails to benefit.

heroes, whose deeds of arms have out-lived all time, those historians, poets, etc., who have transmitted their works to posterity, and whose literary skill is as much appreciated to-day as it was over two thousand years ago; those sculptors, painters and engravers, whose wondrous works of art and science amaze the poor folk of the present day, all, all had a weakness, which though somewhat of a different nature, possessed the same effect upon the defunct, centuries ago, as does the method at present in vogue upon the minds of our own people. Two or three thousand years ago with regard to superstition, there was no distinction between the rich and the poor, the Consul and the Soldier, the master and the slave. When we of the present day peruse the pages of Plutarch and find the greatest warriors ever the world produced having their fortunes told by consulting the entrails of a calf, an ox or some other animal, and thereby risking the destiny of the nation upon the appearance of the interior portion of the beast. I say, when we see such immortals as the great Julius Caesar, Pompey, Pyrrhus, Gracchus, Scipio Africanus, and hosts of others doing such a thing, how can we in all conscience condemn our own poor fisher-folk and artisans who, at certain periods of the year, tried their luck at a toss of the tea cup, or have the past, present and future told by the fifty-two pieces of card board manipulated in the hands of a magician. For my own part I certainly prefer the tea cup or the pack of cards to the terrible mixture stirred in the famous cauldron of the "three weird sisters," so graphically described by Shakespeare, and by the effluvia, or otherwise, the three beauties were enabled to tell the future of the Thane of Cawdor and his ambitious better-half,—his wife.

THE LOCAL FORTUNE TELLER.

In olden times fortune-telling was carried out and believed in to a far greater extent than it is at the present, although in some of the outposts to-day may be found the tosser of the cup, and the "what-you-do-wish and what-you-don't-expect," holding their position as proudly and lucratively as they did eighty or ninety years ago. In the large towns such as St. John's, Hr. Grace, Carbonear and Brigus, in years gone by, the fortune-teller, (generally a woman) was in all her glory,—dressed in a founced silk dress and well trimmed bonnet, not to speak of a velvet hair net, and well twisted curls. It was the duty of our magician to find out all she could about the family, love, business and all other affairs of her victims. She attended church regularly, and was foremost at a collection. She knew the captains of all our sailing fleets, and through her emissaries, managed to ascertain in what ships certain folks had procured berths. In those days our sealers were rollicking, jovial fellows of the comely, go day style, whose whole ambition was the frozen pans, almost sure of a bill of thirty or forty pounds should they manage to procure berths with the "jowlers." Besides they had nothing to do from the last week in October until the last week in February, unless they took a trip to Sydney, Spain, Portugal or elsewhere. During their holidays they were always clean and comfortable, with the best woolen under-clothing and gloves, manufactured from the raw by their mothers, wives or sweethearts. But this was before the era of novels and hand organs. However, previous to departure, they would invariably patronize the fortune-teller, and, strange to say, in most instances, she would tell them if they would make good bills or not. In my young days her apparently supernatural powers would hold me in awe, and we used to give the great one a wide berth as she proceeded to prayers arrayed in her varicolored silk dress, numerously fanned, and occupying the space in church of half a dozen ordinary citizens of the present day. Hoop skirts were in vogue in the days I speak about. Since then owing to the increase of the drum fish trade with Brazil, this mode of attire has been entirely done away with. But to come to my story.

THE APPLE TREE WELL SORCERESS.

Here in St. John's about eighty years ago, one of those worthies pitched her tent somewhere in the neighborhood of Apple Tree Well. By a system peculiarly her own she managed to rush a great trade and consign all competitors to financial oblivion. Besides, this lassie (widow?) possessed a fair share of good looks, jewellery and—tongue. Her establishment was high class, and the select could visit certain portions of the house, publish cards, drink rum, smoke, and in fact have a gala time, as long as they paid for what they had. It is said her "widow's" husband occupied the position of scout to pick up all news and entice the innocent into her net. As may be readily understood, in those days St. John's did not possess a courthouse, police force, dog tax, high license and all other necessities of modern civilization that we possessed later on. Ah, no. Then the duties both spiritual and temporal fell to the lot of the clergymen in charge, and seldom did he fail to make his influence felt, with no other inducements than a well-polished blackthorn stick or a contraction of the eye-brows. This particular spiritualist or whatever she was had the tables turned on her one day, and this is how it happened. For some weeks she had been reaping a rich harvest, and at last it came to the ears of the priest,—big Father Fitzgerald—who was a Tipperary man, I think, from Clonmel. But he had no proof and what could he do? He disgraced himself as an ordinary fisherman, with rosenburg hoods, checkered mitz, woollen jumper, etc., and proceeded to the castle to have his fortune told. Upon entering he invited to a seat, and the "oper: the pack" commenced in the way. According to the "Fate" of the cards, his reverence was to have a full measure of success at the fishery, that some person red, black or brown, was thinking of him; but that the party he was thinking about did not admire him at all, and that they would never agree. There were also many other truths? such as the manipulators would say to all of us, according to our sex, the appearance of our watch guards, or the number of rings (if any) upon our fingers. His reverence seemed satisfied, and then asked that he might be permitted to tell her the future, as he was a professional in the art. She shook her head dubiously, and remarked that "It was impossible for him to do so." "Oh, yes it is, madam," said his reverence, "and in proof, I have to inform you that you are near trouble." "Oh, no indeed, I have nothing to trouble me, and it goes to show that you know nothing about my profession." "I say," thundered his reverence, "you are near trouble." Accompanying the statement with a piece of advice. There was a commotion in that domicile, the magician found trouble, the professional retired, and the next day the rooms were closed, and the widow (?) left for parts unknown; and from that day to this there has never been such extreme interest manifested in fortune telling, because the forces were disorganized, fear entered the hearts of the operators, and it generally died out, until now the book is closed upon one of the old methods of swindling our hardy toilers out of their hard earned incomes.

FOR LOVE OF THE SHAMROCK.

The old pioneer Irish priests were always most convincing in their arguments, and always carried the day. Of course everything is changed since those far off days, but the old priests were always equal to the occasion. And so it will go on, although the Irishmen have nearly all passed away, to their descendants are here to-day, actuated by the same spirit of patriotism, philanthropy and fair play, as were their sires, who played such a prominent part in our country's history. The rising generation are surrounded by an atmosphere of love and veneration for their forefathers, and they appreciate the struggles they had to attain that justice and fair play, which they have handed down as an inheritance. From the schools of the Christian Brothers go forth youths each year, fortified with a good practical training, such as will enable them to become respected citizens, successful business men, and sincere lovers of Irish nationality. In loving the land of our forefathers, there is not much fear that we shall neglect our own land, and so shall the descendants of the Irish pioneers perform their work in life, emulating the noble lives and philanthropic actions of those founders of civilization and enterprise, whose record has cast a halo of immortality around their memory, and will continue to do so whilst a drop of Celtic blood flows through our a popular and attractive young woman of Lewiston, Maine, is now an ardent champion of Tanlac, since she began using it a few weeks ago.

Miss Mabel S. Deschanes, a popular and attractive young woman residing at No. 7 Bartlett Street, Lewiston, Me., is now an ardent champion of Tanlac, since she began using the medicine a few weeks ago. "I prize Tanlac above every other medicine, even that which was prescribed for me," said Miss Deschanes in relating her experience recently. "I dislike publicity, but there are so many others who, no doubt, suffer as I did, I feel that I ought to tell them about it." "I had been a great sufferer from indigestion and had been under the doctor's care for six months without relief. At the time I began taking Tanlac I was on a very rigid diet and at times could not retain food of any kind. Even cold water would cause extreme nausea. I suffered from loss of appetite, severe cramping pains after eating and extreme nervousness. Finally my condition got so bad I simply had to give up and go to bed until I got relief. I was unable to go down town to do my shopping and, although I had been under treatment for six months, there seemed to be no relief for me. Honestly, I don't believe I would be alive now if I hadn't got Tanlac, for I was suffering terribly and getting worse all the time." "Finally my condition got so bad I try Tanlac. I improved from the very first and one bottle did me more good than the six months' treatment. Why, I actually gained four pounds in weight while taking this one bottle. I have now taken four bottles and I feel just like a different person and am eating just anything I want; in fact, everything seems to agree with me perfectly. I am now able to do my shopping without becoming fatigued in the least and am no longer nervous like I was." "Tanlac is simply wonderful, and I can not praise it too highly." Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, and by the leading Druggist in every town.—adv.

Worthy Official Honored

His Majesty the King has been pleased to confer the Imperial Service Medal on Mr. Andrew J. Pearce of this town, recently Sub-Collector of Customs, for long and faithful service in that capacity, and his many friends will join us in congratulations. Mr. Pearce entered the service of the Government in 1890 being then postmaster, Sub-Collector and Inspector of Shipping, and served as Sub-Collector until his retirement through ill health last year. He has ever been most exact, particular and conscientious in his work, was of retiring disposition, neither looking for or expecting reward and the honor comes unexpectedly to him. In the great war Mr. Pearce gave both of his sons to the service of his Country. Sam a general favorite was killed in France, and Jack who was only a boy almost lost his arm and is still suffering from the effects, while both his wife and daughter were forward in every woman's effort for the relief of soldiers, and Mr. Pearce himself gave more than generously from his own salary to every call.—Twillingate Sun.

Former Crown Prince Frederick William instead of being alarmed by the demands of the Allies that he be made answerable for some of his war doings is planning to secure permission to return to his German estate in Oels, near the Polish frontier, to live with his wife and family. He has written his war memories and will publish them some day. He now speaks Dutch and wears wooden shoes. He has been instructor in boxing.

The People Want to Know.

(Twillingate Sun.)

The people of this country are watching the price of everything they produce go down, down, while the price of everything they buy goes up. They will no longer be satisfied with platitudes and assurances that all will be well when the "Houses" meet.

The Assembly will not likely be open till April. Time will then be short. A few bills on extending the time for killing beaver, time for picking partridge berries and the regulating the sale of muskels will occupy the Honourable House, and the Governor will unfortunately dangle it with the Almighty's blessing.

The people cry for bread and the Government offers them the stone of unnecessary legislation!

There is yet time for the Government to awake and to realize that outside the city of St. John's exist the outposts.

There is yet time—thought it is late—for the Government to say to the profiteer "thou shalt not." Will it? The people are beginning to doubt.

They have been fooled so much and so often.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

HOW CAN THEY DARE!

RUTH CAMERON

"We've decided," I heard a woman declare to a group of people "that she must be a dope fiend." "Why h a t makes you think so?" asked a man.

"There isn't any other way to account for the way she acts," said the woman. "Why sometimes when you go past her dog, you can hear her going at her husband in the most terrible way, and over and over again I've met her in the corridor when she hardly seemed to notice me. Oh, I don't think there is any doubt about it."

Fancy making a statement like that with no more basis than that. And yet over and over again one hears people, (mostly women, I must admit) making assertions of this kind which are based only on opinion. The above statement I heard at a little inn where I was spending a couple of weeks. Here are a few of the similar statements I heard in the same two weeks.

She Didn't Think He Was Quite Bright.

I spoke of a child who was there with his mother and wondered that his mother felt she could keep him out of school so long.

"I don't think that child is quite bright," a woman promptly informed me.

"What makes you think so?" I asked.

"Several things I've noticed," she replied, and refused to be any more specific. Naturally I watched the child closely after that and could see absolutely no grounds for such an assertion. In fact, I noticed him playing a game in a way that showed unusually quick intelligence and co-ordination.

Why They Thought Him Insane.

Another woman told me that it was the general feeling that a man who took some of his meals in his room, and otherwise held aloof from the life of the Inn, had just come out of an insane asylum.

The ground for this belief presently appeared to be first, his aloofness; second, that he came from a town where the state asylum is; and that when he came, a man came with him. Rather feeble grounds; don't you think, on which to start a rumor of insanity to pursue a man?

"She's the kind of a woman who won't stop at anything in the moral line when she gets her eye on a man," was another woman's characterization of a young working girl who came to spend her vacation at the Inn. Her basis was the fact that she once did some settlement work and knew "that look on the girl's face."

The Qualifications Soon Disappear.

Of course all but the last of these judges did say "I think" or "We believe," or in some other way qualify their judgments.

But, as we all very well know, with a rumor like that such qualifications soon disappear.

How can people bear to start such rumors?

I should think anyone who believed in a day of judgment would be afraid that these rumors would confront him on that day.

— THE GREATER PART. —
The rain comes pelting down, and then the sun begins to shine again; One day misfortune comes along, The next we sing a cheerful song; But when it all is understood, The greater part of life is good.

What if to-day we're deep in woe? To-morrow all our cares may go; To-day as follures we come in, To-morrow we may fight and win; And when the sun of life we add, The good we'll find exceeds the bad.

There's more of sunshine than of rain, There's more of pleasure than of pain; Throughout each mortal's span of years There's more of laughter than of tears, And seldom God sends down a care That is too much for man to bear.

So let's be brave in grief or pain And wait till skies grow blue again; Let's live our hours of darkness through, Until the sun shall shine anew, And keep our faith, whate'er befall, That good is written through it all.

LITTLE THINGS.

Little dimes and nickels salted down to-day, makes the safest pickles man can put away. Little spells of sickness far a mortal's soul, if there is no thickness to his greenback roll. Little docs and nurses throng around his bed; Little wobbly hearses get him when he's dead; then his sad survivors wring their hands and whine, if he had no stivers put away in brine. Little tinhorn bosses fire him from his job, then the total losses welcome him and sob. Little cheap relatives sweat him many times, then he rants and curses if he lacks the dimes. Now a little sheriff chases him with writs, and such chaps don't care if he throws forty fits. Little pewter roules, little iron men, drive away your troubles, bring you peace again. Note the little spender, see him run amuck, wasting legal tender, blowing in the buck! He keeps going stronger, with his trail of smoke; wait a little longer, and you'll see him broke.

Household Notes.

A well-waxed floor is guarded against the marks of heavy shoes.
Dried lima beans forced through a sieve can be used for croquettes.

Every housekeeper should own a pair of rubber gloves for dishwashing. Never use bread which is not thoroughly baked. It is not wholesome.

In making utility bags to hang inside closet doors use very heavy material.
A china closet that opens into both kitchen and dining room saves many steps.

All cupboard shelves should have sorting shelves which slide under the real shelves.
Fruits of all available kinds should make a large part of the spring dietary.

A washstand with bowl and pitcher of water belongs in every sewing room.
Junket will not be firm if the milk gets too hot before adding the junket tablet.

Stand a tough piece of meat in a vinegar solution overnight and it will be tender.
Cake pans should be absolutely dry before they are greased or your cake will stick.

The household canary's cage must be kept spotlessly clean if the bird is to thrive.
To clarify fat slice a raw potato into it and let the potato cook until it is light brown.

A timetable for frying is a handy thing to have in the kitchen, where you can consult it.

As the North Sees It.

(From the Twillingate Sun.)
NOT CRICKET.

The Advocate gravely announces with all seriousness that the defeated Liberal-Reform candidates of Placentia district have been appointed by the Government to look after the wants of Placentia Bay.

A short while ago—when it was in opposition—the Advocate protested against this very thing. Now it upholds the wrong it then protested against, showing that it is simply playing party politics.

The 'Sun' protested last year when Mr. McKay came here as a candidate, and started handing out public funds. It protests against the same thing by the other side, in what defeated candidates are doing.

The proper people to attend to the wants of a district are its elected representatives, and it is high time we had an end of this "diddling" with candidates, whether before or after an election.

A defeated candidate has no right to handle public money, any more than any other private citizen and we are surprised at the Advocate countenancing such. It is not cricket.

THE VETERANS.

The returned war veterans are leaving this country as fast as they can go, yet nothing is being done by the Government to induce them to stay.

The war veterans of Canada are looking for a $1500 bonus and reports are that this country will do whatever Canada does.

But why does our Government wait for Canada? There is no need to pay these brave fellows this bonus in cash. Lots of them would like to start on their own in Newfoundland. A few of them have done so; and if the Government had been long-sighted enough to help to set them up in business for themselves—this one as a farmer, that as a mechanic, another as a shopkeeper, and another as a fisherman, each in his own line of business—it would have done a magnificent stroke of business, which would have profited and contented the men, helped the country and returned the money to the treasury by increased production. Unfortunately neither the late nor the present Government did any such thing. They are both altogether too short-sighted.

WHAT DOES THE FOOD CONTROL BOARD CONTROL?

There is a Food Control Board in St. John's. So far as we can discover its activities have been confined to gravely informing buyers that if they comply with certain forms they may get a rebate of the Canadian export tax on flour, and to notify importers of sugar that they must obtain a permit from the Board.

Now where does that touch the price of flour or food stuffs—prices that have been unwarrantedly advanced to "follow the market?"

How does this square with the "high falutin'" talk of our Premier in his manifesto? The people honestly believed that a method could be found to prevent profiteering, and they look upon many of these added profits as nothing else.

They honestly believed that Premier Squires meant what he said, and they gave him a substantial majority to that end. They are finding now, by bitter experience, that the Food Control Board is absolutely useless except to supply salaries for a few men in St. John's.

Ireland's Patron Saint.

Told in story, sung of by the poets, the life of Ireland's Patron Saint offers at once an inspiration and an incentive—not Irishmen alone, but all classes and creeds who entertain a desire to emulate the most humble but yet the most powerful of missionaries, the real servant of the servants of God, in life and action. Devoted to the extension of the Kingdom of his Lord and Master, St. Patrick braved all dangers, heroically encountered and conquered all difficulties, and laid the foundations of a career such as no builder ever dreamed of. Well might it be said of the noble, yet humble, Patrick, in the words of the poet who shone many centuries after him:

"His life was gentle, and the elements so mixed in him That nature might stand up and say to all the world This was a man."

And so it is that wherever Irishmen are assembled, no matter in what remote corner of the world, the mention of St. Patrick's Day brings to them memories of the former glories of their race, and all true sons of Erin, whether alone or in numbers do not allow this day of days to them, go by without entering into the celebrations which custom has sanctioned and time approved. More eulogies have been pronounced over St. Patrick, more panegyrics have been proclaimed to his life, work, and memory, than to any other saint in the calendar. Students and scholars, both ecclesiastic and lay have excelled themselves in giving to their auditors, from pulpit and platform the history of the life and works of the missionary saint of the Green Isle, and he is, perhaps, the most familiar figure in modern history either sacred or profane.

Wrapped up in tradition as is the life and work of St. Patrick, it is difficult to know from the legends surrounding his activities, just where his mission began and ended, but enough material has been gleaned from the past to give a fairly accurate description of his ministrations in Ireland. Preachers have declared his undisputed right to the title with which he has been honored; lecturers have proven his ancestry, his birth, his labors, his success and death, and his subsequent canonization. And, to quote that scripture of which he was so learned an exponent, "His works do follow him." Honored by all, the day of the titular patron saint of Ireland, is celebrated the world over, and for one day in the year, at least, the green and the gold of the island of saints and scholars predominates over all others, while for always the saltire cross of St. Patrick ranks with those of St. George and St. Andrew, equal in all things, in the Union flag of the Empire—one and indivisible.

The following short sketch of the life of St. Patrick, taken from the writings of Probus, in the seventh century, and compared with that of Jocelin, a Cistercian Monk of the twelfth century, and corrected, may be interesting:

"St. Patrick was born in Scotland, near where Glasgow now stands. The date of his birth was somewhere near the close of the fourth century, but as to the year itself, authorities widely differ—372, 455, 464 and 493 all being given by various biographers, but as the year of his birth is scarcely known within a century or so, it is too much to expect the month or the day, but the day assigned to St. Patrick in the calendar is March 17th. His father was of good family, and, while the future saint was still under the paternal roof, God manifested to him by divers visions that he was destined for the great work of the conversion of Ireland, at that time plunged into idolatry. Hence he resigned his birthright and social position, and devoted himself entirely to the salvation of the people of Ireland, suffering at their hands and for their sakes much persecution. He was ordained deacon and priest and subsequently consecrated bishop. He travelled over the whole of Ireland founding monasteries and filling the country with churches and schools of piety and learning. Animated by a spirit of perfect charity and humility, he demonstrated not only the faith, but the spirit of his Master, and the result of his forty years of labor was to change Ireland from a land of idolaters into a seat of learning and piety, so that it received the title of the Island of Saints, and was for centuries a land of mental and spiritual light."

Essex Motors.

You hear much these days about the car of the future. But who describes it other than that it must be light in weight, fine in quality, enduring, reliable and of superior performance.

The ESSEX has more than one economy appeal. In gasoline, oil, tires and repair cost it is distinctly attractive. And, of course, its performance is now recognized by all motorists. Not many question ESSEX ability to out-perform other cars that it meets.

Mr. C. F. Hunziker.

Mr. Hunziker, B.S.A., M.S.A. is Professor of Dairy Husbandry, Purdue University, and Chief of Dairy Department of the Indian Agricultural Experiment Station, Lafayette, Ind. In his treatise on Condensed Milk and Milk Powders he states: "The product of the Marcell and Cere process (Kilm) is without question superior to any milk powder manufactured by the various processes herein mentioned. It embodies the three all-important characteristics of a desirable and successful milk powder; namely, it contains less than the minimum amount of moisture which permits of bacterial action, its butterfat is retained in the globular form, and does therefore mix with water readily, forming a complete emulsion, and its albumen is present in its natural non-coagulated and soluble form, ensuring complete solubility of this dried milk in water."

Another Canadian 1919 Record.

THE BEST REPUTATION OF ALL.—Nothing too good can be said of the London Life Insurance Company because of the high character of its managerial policy. It has interpreted its duty to the public as an unconditional obligation to look after their interests. The result is seen in the dividends declared this year to the policyholders. These dividends are far beyond the amounts originally promised to the public. Here is the record of four such cases:—

Age at Issue	Dividends Promised	Dividends Declared	Ratio to Promise
23	$ 520	$ 966	186%
24	600	1,069	178%
29	900	1,577	175%
35	1,510	2,630	174%

Now the London Life has never aimed at size. It has long been content to go along at a reasonable pace, preferring to be of the best quality. But the public soon appreciates merit, and consequently the company has been jumping ahead recently almost in spite of itself. In 1919 its new business shot ahead to nearly $25,000,000, which is far beyond what the company expected or wanted. Its assets increased 17.5 per cent, and amount to $10,810,543, and its surplus increased nearly 25 per cent, over its liabilities on the Government standard, and is now $1,155,898 above the liabilities on that standard.

It is not too much to say that the London Life is one of the best managed life companies in the world, from the policyholder's point of view. It is one of the few which have been able to maintain policyholder's dividends throughout the war and the influenza epidemic, and it is almost alone in paying far greater dividends than the policyholders were led to expect.

Had Nothing to Do With It.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—Having spent the greater part of the day in denying the fact, I now ask you to please publish that I had absolutely nothing to do with the letter in last Saturday's Star, signed "One of the Spares," nor have I the slightest idea as to whom the writer is. I can easily understand why the fans look to me in the matter, as the letter was written in such a way as to make one think it came from an "Old Timer," and as I was the only one of the so-called, acting as a spare for the city team, naturally there was only one conclusion to arrive at. If at any time I wish to write the press, you may be sure it will be over my own name, as I have no desire to have others blamed for any doings of mine.

Thanking you for space, I am, sincerely yours, KARL TRAPNELL, March 16th, 1920.

A Gala Day at Pope's Furniture Factory.

Yesterday afternoon the Governor, Sir Alexander Harris and Miss Harris paid a visit to Pope's Furniture Factory, and were shown through the different departments by the management. Sharp at 3 o'clock His Excellency and Miss Harris entered the showroom by the north door on Waldegrave Street, and were received by Messrs. Thomas, William and Henry Pope. The first branch of the industry to be examined by His Excellency was the Mattress Department. The small looms were sawed to a regular length, put in the Excelsior Machine and turned into Excelsior of a very superior grade. This excelsior was taken to the top storey and put in the mattress machine, operated by Mr. Antle and his assistants. First a layer of wool, then a layer of excelsior, then the machine was put in motion and out comes the mattress at the other end finished. The first Kapok mattress ever manufactured at Pope's factory, was manufactured yesterday in the presence of His Excellency and Miss Harris, and Miss Harris was asked if she would kindly give this Kapok Mattress a name, and after a little consideration she named it the "Homestead," called after Sir Alexander's country seat in the Old Country. This mattress will be stock and catalogued under the name of "Homestead," and customers can rest assured that when they order a "Homestead Mattress" that they will get the very best that is manufactured.

The next place of interest was the assembly rooms, where the different parts of furniture, viz. parlor suites, dining and bedroom suites, after being machined on the bottom flat, comes to this department to be finished. Next they visited the upholstering department, and His Excellency and Miss Harris had the pleasure of seeing a beautiful Chesterfield couch and easy chair, completed by the firm's popular upholsterer, Mr. T. Ryan. His Excellency paid special attention to some beautiful oak chairs being completed by one of the firm's head mechanics, Mr. J. Spurrell. Miss Harris was particularly interested in the wood turning done by the firm's turner, Mr. W. McDonald. His Excellency was very much pleased with the work done by Messrs. O'Brien, Scarlet, Ryan and Noseworthy, and could see at a glance that the whole staff was composed of skilful mechanics.

Ten tie Warerooms were visited where mattresses, springs and furniture are all stored ready for shipment. The showroom and office were decorated with bunting in honor of His Excellency's visit. Mr. Parsons, the genial photographer, was on hand with his camera and Sir Alexander and Miss Harris kindly consented to have their photo taken. The management take this opportunity of thanking Sir Alexander and Miss Harris for their visit to Newfoundland's oldest furniture factory, the business having been founded by the late Henry Pope, in 1860.

About 1890 the first machine was installed, and nearly every year since that date, the firm has been adding extra machinery, taking down old buildings to make room for new additions. A big staff of mechanics is constantly employed, and the furniture, mattresses and bed springs turned out by the firm is of an excellent design and workmanship, and in some cases superior to the imported article. The whole plant is lighted by electricity and heated by steam and the machinery is driven by motors.

The English women make great political campaigners. They seem to take great delight in stumping. Lady Bonham-Carter, daughter of former Premier Asquith, takes part in all her father's campaigns. She doesn't believe in "gas or claptrap" as substitutes for arguments and reasons. Her sister Elizabeth, now Princess Antoine Bibesco, has some of the oratorical abilities of the distinguished father. Another stumper is Vesta Tilley, once the music hall star, now the wife of Sir Walter de Frece. She amuses the voters.

Mrs. J. C. Baird's prize for highest aggregate score won by Mrs. Gosling, with a score of 190; Mrs. Kennedy coming second with a score of 183. Congratulations to the winning teams and individuals. Hats off to the Newfoundland team who beat the Canadians, and to Mrs. Gosling, to whose splendidly steady play may be attributed the winning of so many trophies and prizes. It was very disappointing that illness prevented the President, Mrs. Rennie, from taking part in 8 out of 14 of the events. Mrs. John Harvey's absence from the rink was very much regretted. Her keen interest in the game, high scoring and all-round sporting qualities made her a very interesting opponent or partner, and we all missed her.

New Overland 4 with Three-Point Springs Lessens Motor Car "Rough Riding"

ALL that goes up must come down—but why go up? With the new Overland 4 Motor Car the wheels and springs go up and down, following the bumps and roughness of the road, but car and passengers are remarkably free from ordinary jolts and jars.

The exclusive new Three-Point Cantilever Springs in Overland 4 establish an entirely new standard of light car riding comfort.

Instead of twisting, swaying, jolting, bouncing, vibrating—instead of rough riding, the passengers in the new Overland 4 glide smoothly along.

The spring attachment at the ends of a 130-inch (3.3m) Springbase secures for this car of 100-inch (2.54m) wheelbase the steadiness and road holding ability of a heavy car of long wheelbase. Overland 4's equipment is complete.

To Ration Liquors.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—We are instructed by the Committee appointed by 200 citizens who met on Friday night last in connection with the matter of prohibition to set forth the aims of those behind the movement. The general desire is to have the Prohibition Law altered so that it may have the support of the majority of the people of this country. There is no attempt being made to have the return of the open saloon. The Committee is just as much opposed to that as are the Prohibitionists themselves, but we do think that everyone should be put on the same basis with regard to obtaining limited quantities of pure alcoholic beverages, so that rich and poor may be treated alike, and reputable citizens not deprived of necessary stimulants. The Committee stands for the rationing of liquor on the system of a Government License, bearing coupons.

A public meeting will be held in the Casino Theatre Friday night next when the whole matter will be placed before the public for consideration.

Yours truly,

Chairman of Committee.

Allied Governments' Attitude.

Significant Negotiations Between German Parties.

FIGHTING AT FRANKFORT.

LONDON, March 15. Heavy loss of life is reported in disturbances at Kiel, Frankfort and Essen, according to a Berlin despatch to the Central News. The demonstrators have seized a depot at Frankfort, containing arms and ammunition.

ITS POSITION STRENGTHENED.

LONDON, March 15. Premier Lloyd George, referring in the House of Commons to the German revolution, said the Allied Governments would regard with anxiety any movement representing monarchial or military reaction, but that it was well to await developments before taking any definite action. The Premier read to the House a telegram from Lord Kilmarock, British Charge d'Affaires at Berlin, stating that the position of the new Government appeared to have been strengthened.

SMUTS ELECTED.

CAPE TOWN, March 15. Jan Christian Smuts, Premier, was the successful candidate for the House of Assembly in the elections held on March 10th.

SIMS' DISCLOSURES.

WASHINGTON, March 15. A hitherto unpublished story of war time anxiety in London and Washington, lest German battle cruisers attempt a forlorn hope raid against American transports, was disclosed today to the Senate naval investigating committee by Rear Admiral Sims. The messages exchanged by Admiral Benson, chief of operations, and Admiral Sims in July, 1918, were presented by the latter to correct "implications," which he said Secretary Daniels had made to the committee, that the general plans and policies were none of my business. Included in the plans formed by the navy department to meet such raids, and rejected by Admiral Sims as "impracticable," was the proposal to call on Japan for a battle cruiser division to serve with the American Atlantic fleet.

MAY SETTLE IT AMONG THEM.

BERLIN, Mar. 15. The counter revolution in Germany appears to-night to have reached the end of the road. There is a strong probability that shortly one Govt. will be in control, and that President Ebert will come back to Berlin with his ministers. Basis of agreement between the Govt. set up by Dr. Wolfgang Kapp, as Chancellor, and the Govt. of President Ebert is enunciated in a declaration issued by the present Berlin Govt. to-day, an announcement is made that negotiations, with a settlement in view, have been opened between the two Govts. at the instance of Ebert and his associates. There is no direct confirmation of this from Ebert, who is understood to be at Stuttgart. Briefly Chancellor Kapp is agreeable to a continuation in office of the "present Imperial President," who is Frederick Ebert, but he renounces the formation of a new ministry and places the direction of affairs in the hands of the Under Secretary of State. The agreement, as set forth by Chancellor Kapp, provides for a cabinet which shall include "Professional Ministers" or experts and election within two months for members of the Reichstag and Prussian National Assembly, and subsequently an election for an "Imperial President" by the people until such time, Ebert shall hold the reins of power. One significant clause in this pronouncement says, "the new and old Govts. shall issue a joint declaration that under present condition a general strike is a crime against the German people."

MANDATES ARRANGED.

LONDON, March 15. Lloyd George to-day in the House of Commons announced that the following had been allocated. German East Africa mandates to Great Britain and Belgium; German South West Africa to the Union South Africa; German possessions in the Pacific Ocean, south of the Equator, other than Samoa, to the commonwealth of Australia; Samoa to New Zealand, and the German Islands, north of the Equator to Japan.

LITVINOFF BARRED.

LONDON, March 15. Replying to a question in the House of Commons to-day, Lloyd George announced that the Government would permit the visit of a delegation of Russian co-operative Societies, subject to the right to exclude individuals. In this connection the Premier emphasized that Maxim Litvinoff, Bolshevik assistant commissioner of Foreign Affairs, could not be admitted, because on a previous occasion he had taken advantage of his diplomatic privilege to engage in political propaganda in England.

RAIDED PROFITING GROCERS.

NEW YORK, March 15. A drive against profiteering in army food was opened here to-day, when hundreds of dollars of canned goods were confiscated in raids on grocery stores by an armed squad, led by Capt. Jeffrey Peterson, who is in charge of Retail Stores conducted by the Army.

TO STUDY EVENTS.

PARIS, Mar. 15. M. Bruyer has been appointed by the French Government as its official representative at Stuttgart, the provincial seat of the Ebert Government in Germany, where he will watch the course of events.

TURKS ADMITTED.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Mar. 15. The appointment of Turkish delegates to the Peace Conference was announced yesterday. Tewfik Pasha, former Foreign Minister, heads the delegation.

SENDING OUT CHILDREN.

TRIESTE, Mar. 15. General Caniglea, commander of the Italian troops along Fiume-Jugoslavia armistice line, has agreed to allow D'Annunzio to send children out of Fiume to Italian cities in small groups, beginning Tuesday, the food situation being critical.

REACTIONARY METHODS.

LONDON, Mar. 15. The strike against the coup d'etat in Germany has increased in dimensions and significance, says a despatch to the London Times from the Hague, dated Monday. According to reports received here, the despatch adds, the new Govt. is acting in accordance with old Prussian methods, imprisoning old Democratic Ministers and Labor Leaders, and all who are offering opposition to it.

IS WILLIE A PLOTTER? AMERONGEN, Holland, Mar. 15. Frederick William, former German Crown Prince, who is very reserved in expressing his ideas about the counter revolution, seems to be entirely unperturbed. He may go wherever he likes about the island. His friend, Von Zoellitz, who arrived here Saturday, has been expected for four weeks.

EX-KAISER SAYS WOOD.

AMERONGEN, Mar. 15. The former German Emperor was up early yesterday morning. He seemed much calmer and sawed wood all day until noon. The former Emperor is well again. Guard about the castle is very strict. A high placed government official assured the Associated Press to-day that "the Allies and the world may safely rely upon Holland to guard the ex-Kaiser though no more measures will be taken than are necessary to prevent his escape."

McMurdo's Store News.

TUESDAY, March 16.

You have gotten over grippe or influenza, but you are inclined to waver if your strength will ever come back again, you feel weak and easily tired, your brain seems weary, you find it difficult to co-ordinate ideas almost impossible to concentrate your mind or think to any purpose, your appetite is poor. In a word, you are making a slow convalescence. Why not assist—you must not try to force—nature. One of the best ways to do this is to invest in a bottle of our Nutritive Hypophosphites. This remedy is a tried and potent one, and will bring you back to normal and assist you to keep there, by imparting in the first place bodily and nervous strength, by stimulating the appetite, and helping the digestive organs to perform their functions properly. Nutritive Hypophosphites is non-alcoholic. Price 50c. and $1.00 a bottle.

"The Heart of Paddy Whack."

Among the many entertainments promised for to-morrow afternoon, the presentation by the B.S. Dramatic Company of "The Heart of Paddy Whack," as produced by Chauncey Olcott, will without doubt prove the principal attraction. The company has been hard at work rehearsing and doing all possible that will make for a successful production of the best Irish comedy shown here for some time. Mr. P. F. Moore, who is managing the performance, is putting forth every effort to give a presentation that will surpass any of previous years. From the rehearsals we have been privileged to see we predict an excellent performance and a surprise for the public in those who are making their debut on the stage for the first time to-morrow. To make the performance the more attractive, Messrs. P. Halley and C. Trappell will contribute items. Mr. Trappell will be heard in a recent Irish song success and Mr. Halley will recite that excellent Irish poem, "Shemus O'Brien."

Those who were not fortunate in securing tickets for the night would do well to attend the matinee and avoid the disappointment of not seeing an excellent Irish comedy.

State Control.

(Twillingate Sun.)

The experience of the United States with state control of the railways, which that Government took over in December 1917, and which will probably go back to private ownerships on March 1st, has not been a happy one. Anywhere 100,000 to 200,000 employees will lose their jobs should this happen, as the railroads have cost the United States Government a great deal of money over their income to run.

The lesson is one that should not be lost on those people in this country who sometimes glibly talk of this country talking over the railway from Reid's.

Reid's management is bad enough in all conscience, but management by government in this country would be worse even than the experience of the United States.

What this country wants is a government which has the courage to make Reid's live to their contract.

INCREASED CART FEE—The Telegram has been informed by Mr. Lester that the cartage on coal has advanced from 70 cents per half ton to 80, and from 50 cents to 60 cents per quarter, the reason for this increase is that the condition of the streets is such that there is an extra amount of wear and tear on gear. The charge of 60 cents per quarter cartage would be justified when it is considered that most of the quarters go to the extreme limits of the city, and in some cases have to be transferred from carts to catamarans to make delivery.

The Annual Entertainment in aid of the Cowan Mission will be held in the Methodist College Hall on Wednesday, St. Patrick's Day. ### THE FORTY-FIFTH ANNUAL REPORT

The London Life Insurance Company

Shows Unparalleled Progress during 1919

Items From Report.

	1918	1919	Increase
Income	$ 2,782,540	$ 3,452,768	$ 670,228
Assets	9,189,657	10,810,543	1,620,886
Surplus (including paid-up capital $50,000, Standard of Dominion Insurance Act)	926,605	1,155,898	229,293
Insurance issued	16,433,580	24,818,776	8,385,196
Insurance in force	59,804,430	76,381,638	16,577,208

Notable Features.

SAFE INVESTMENTS—No losses on investments during the year. Overdue interest at end of year considerably less than at end of the previous year. No speculative securities of any nature held.

PROFIT SCALE MAINTAINED—Emergency Funds held have been amply sufficient to meet the extra strain of the war and epidemic and the Company is, therefore, able to maintain its very liberal scale of profits, with only slight adjustment at the older ages, to maintain equity between policyholders. The following example shows actual payments due in 1920, as compared with estimates issued when present rates were introduced.

Estimated and Actual Results.

Age 25	20-Payment Life	$10,000	Premium $300.00
Policy Issued In Year	Profits Payable End of	Original Estimate of Profits for 5 Years	Actual Payable Profits	Per Cent. Actual to Estimated
1915	5th Year	$172.50	$317.20	183.9 %
1910	10th Year	270.00	464.30	172.0 %
1905	15th Year	397.00	634.00	159.7 %
1900	20th Year	510.00	818.00	160.4 %

QUALITY BUSINESS—In every respect the Company's business continues to be of a very high standard. Endowment Plans comprise over three-fourths of the total business issued and the total business in force. The Liabilities, as provided for on the Company's own standard, make full provision for profits accruing but not due, Investment Reserve and Accruing Commissions Accounts and for every ascertainable liability. On the great bulk of the business the Reserve Liability is on an interest basis of 1/2 per cent. higher than required by the policy guarantees. The normal mortality for the year was only 36.8 per cent., the total mortality, including epidemic claims, being 54.8 per cent.

Statement Showing Company's Progress.

Year	Income	Assets	New Business	Business in Force
1899	$ 268,140	$ 875,422	$ 1,712,922	$ 5,778,622
1904	429,826	1,643,183	2,080,150	8,200,297
1909	754,305	2,927,053	4,812,652	14,189,613
1914	1,464,819	5,294,262	9,619,219	30,849,326
1919	3,452,293	10,810,543	24,818,776	76,381,638

A more detailed statement of the Annual Report will be mailed to every Policyholder in due course and to others upon request.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held subsequent to the Annual Meeting, Mr. John McClary was elected Honorary President, Dr. A. O. Jeffery, K.C., President, and Messrs. W. M. Spencer and J. G. Richter, Vice-Presidents.

Lieut. Garland Replies.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Sir—When I sent my letter of March 15th to the newspapers (Star included) for publication, I did not think that the Star would deem itself to be the opportunity of making a political issue out of it. Let me inform the Star that in matters relating to sailors and soldiers I know no politics. It has come to the Star that they have made a serious blunder by publishing the conduct sheets of Ptoas, Milley, Doran and Tracey, and that all sailors, soldiers and the community at large are up in arms at the action, and justly so. It surprised me to read that the Star misunderstood me, whether intentionally or not, when I stated that there were Nfld. soldiers taking courses in Canada who were being paid Canadian rate of allowances. It seems to me that I made perfectly clear that the payment of these allowances were authorized by the Nfld. S.C.R. Far be it from me to state that which is untrue, as I had the facts which I mentioned in my letter from good authority. Furthermore, when I made the statement regarding the payment of the Canadian rate to Newfoundland soldiers, there was nothing other from my mind than the desire to question the system of the present Government regarding their attitude in this matter, for let it be understood that the Canadian rate was paid whilst the late Government was in power and continued to be paid when the new Government succeeded it. Also, when in Halifax, I sent the Canadian allowances, etc., to the Star, which was published in the War Veterans' column, and commented on favourably by the editor.

The Star, referring to my statement that the late Government guaranteed to bring the rate of pensions, allowances, etc., up to the Canadian rate, says: "It does not know whether the late Government gave that pledge or not." But "it is quite likely that they did," which would mean an additional expenditure amounting to a couple of hundred thousand dollars a year. It so says:

"The truth of the matter is that the total amount of money paid by the Newfoundland Government to-day is greater per capita to the returned soldiers, having regard to disabilities, than is being paid in Canada. Canadian maximum figures are higher, but the Canadian medical examination is very much more severe. Cases in which liberal allowances are given in Newfoundland would be turned down without a dollar under the Canadian regulations."

And again: "If the G. W. V. A. desire to have the Canadian regulations enforced in Newfoundland, they can have them enforced. The cost to the taxpayers of the Colony per year on the enforcement of the Canadian regulations in Newfoundland would be less than under the enforcement as at present of the Newfoundland regulations. If the Newfoundland soldiers do not know then they ought to be told it, because a few men who do not know that they are talking about a bunch of men are merely trying to pull the legs of a few of the soldiers for political purposes, are calling upon the soldiers to introduce into Newfoundland regulations which will on the whole give the soldiers and their dependents more than they are getting to-day under present Newfoundland regulations enforced."

In my letter to the press to-day I have stated my case clearly and truthfully. It behoves the S.C.R. to be just and assure the public that my case in all points. I am fully prepared to have my case investigated by a committee that is appointed. Let the said committee be composed of sailors, soldiers or civilians, so long as they are honest and upright men. What more can I say in the matter? Is not the Star slightly mistaken when it states that a soldier gets more money than a civilian? He would be a very poor civilian who only earned $14.00 a week, and allow me to say that the majority of courses taken by soldiers only extend over a period of six months and many of them under this period. I hope the Star is in a position to prove the statement it made regarding the wasting of time by soldiers taking courses here.

It seems to be the Star's vocation to belittle the sailors and soldiers when it terms them drunkards, wastrels, etc., for such an infallible paper might not be in existence were it not for the sailors and soldiers.

Praise for the I. O. D. E.

The Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire made a magnificent war record and the Order is rendering an equally splendid service for Canada and the Empire since the return of peace. The watchword of the Daughters of the Empire is: "One flag, one throne, one empire."

In emphasizing such ideals at the present time the I.O.D.E. is rendering a patriotic service that compares favourably with their "six million dollars of war effort." While the war lasted the patriotism and loyalty of individuals and organizations was justly measured by the extent to which they helped to win the war. At the present time the loyalty of organizations is proven by their attitude towards British institutions—the British flag, the British throne, and the British Empire. It is useless for any organization to pretend no service in the war, and which seldom passes a resolution except to denounce the British Empire or destroy confidante in British institutions.

The British commonwealth of free democratic nations is held together by noble sentiments, high ideals, mutual respect and common purposes. This tie is "almost imperceptible" to the scientific mind, the self-styled practical person, the selfish individual, and all enemies of the Empire. That is what deceived the Germans; they did not know that the cords of love are stronger than bands of steel. Those who help to strengthen that tie are loyal and those who try to sever it are disloyal, no matter what claims they make or what name they may be called. The Daughters of the Empire express themselves in such a way as to prove that they are inspired by the spirit that has held the British confederacy together. They have proven themselves loyal in peace and war. These patriotic ladies deserve the support of all good Canadians in all their patriotic undertakings.—The Sentinel.

STARTING CHURCH DRIVE.

The Llewellyn Club held its regular monthly meeting last night, Rev. Dr. Jones presiding. His Lordship Bishop White, who was the first speaker, described his visits to various parts of the Island, and pointed out the great difficulties encountered in ministering to the needs of some parishes. Many of the clergy are overburdened, and he explained how Queen's College would be valuable in equipping young men to assist in parishes and missions. Rev. Dr. Pacey spoke next and he dealt with the needs of Queen's College, which it is proposed to equip for the training of twelve students. Rev. Dr. Jones announced that next week a drive to raise $21,000 would be undertaken, this amount to be used to defray church expenses for the year, thus abolishing the present system of collections. Some 20 teams of single and married men and women will be organized and it is expected that the desired amount will be raised in four days.

MRS. ROBERT BAIRD TELLS OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Belmore Lady states that she was weak and run down till she found Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.
Belmore, Ont., Mar. 15th.—(Special.)—"I can assure you that Dodd's Kidney Pills helped my aching back as no one else ever did or ever will do."
It is Mrs. Robert Baird a well known and highly respected resident here who makes this statement. She is an enthusiastic believer in Dodd's Kidney Pills as a remedy for weak and run down women.
"I was both weak and run down all last summer," she states further. "And before my baby was born I used Dodd's Kidney Pills. They helped me in every way. I also had my little boy take them and they benefited him greatly."

Women who are weak and run down should look first to their kidneys. No woman can be strong and healthy if her kidneys are not doing their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood. Weak kidneys are the cause of nine-tenths of women's ills. Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills do not make strong healthy kidneys.

UNANIMOUSLY CONDEMN GROSS BREACH OF FAITH AND DEMAND REPETITION OF THE OFFENCE BE MADE IMPOSSIBLE.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—I shall be glad if you will kindly publish the following resolutions which were passed unanimously at a special meeting of the Executive Committee of the Great War Veterans' Association, held at their Headquarters on March 15th.
Yours faithfully,
A. E. BERNARD, Lt.-Col.
President Great War Vet. Assoc.
St. John's, March 15th, 1920.

WHEREAS the Executive Committee of the Great War Veterans' Association learn that the officer or officers responsible for the safe custody of the military records of the members of His Majesty's Services have given out certain information hitherto regarded as confidential;

AND WHEREAS this information has recently been permitted to be published by authorities having access to these records;

BE IT RESOLVED that the Executive Committee of the Great War Veterans' Association view with great disapproval and condemn in the strongest measure this breach of faith and military etiquette;

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that, as the Executive Committee have no assurance that the offence will not be repeated, steps be taken forthwith by the proper authorities either to destroy these confidential documents or to dispose of them in such a way as to prevent the repetition of an action which is considered unfair, inequitable and likely to injure permanently an ex-soldier's character.

STATES PLAIN FACTS AND ASKS POINTED QUESTIONS.

Dear Sir.—Whether, from a moral point of view, the publication of records from the Conduct and Military Sheets of a discharged soldier is justifiable, the public must decide for themselves.

From a military point of view, it is not only unjustifiable, it is contrary to the spirit and the letter of military law, as set forth in King's Regulations. More, it constitutes a breach of faith on the part of the person or persons responsible; for those documents are of a confidential nature and can be made use of only by a competent military authority and for military purposes only.

Previous to the Great War, a soldier upon being discharged was given a certificate of character by his Commanding Officer, based partly upon the records in the conduct sheet, and with a view to assisting him in obtaining civil employment. K. R., para. 417, reads in part:

"The guiding principle in examining a Soldier's Conduct Sheets with a view to assessing his character is to differentiate between a man's character as a soldier, and his character as a man. The main object of giving a soldier a certificate of character is to assist him in obtaining employment in civil life . . ."

K. R., para. 418:—"It should be borne in mind, (i.e. by the C.O.) that no greater injustice could be done to men of really good character and attainments, than, for the sake of an individual, running the risk of discrediting army character in the eyes of the civil employer of labour."

With regard to physical disabilities, let me again quote from K. R., para. 416:—"When a soldier is discharged as no longer physically fit for War Service, the actual physical disability will not be specified on the discharge certificate unless the disability is due to a wound or injury. In the latter case a brief statement of the nature of the wound or injury . . . may be inserted on the certificate, unless it is clearly to the disadvantage of the soldier that such an insertion should be made."

Can the person responsible for the publication under discussion be said to have acted in the spirit of fairness evinced in the above quotations, and, indeed, throughout King's Regulations? By whose authority did that person gain access to official and confidential military documents? Is any responsible person allowed to examine these documents, (and if these, why not others) at the Militia Department? How long has this practice been in vogue and for how long longer will it continue?

These are questions the answers to which must be of great interest to all ex-service men, and possibly to the public generally.

Yours faithfully,
A. E. BERNARD, Lieut.-Col.
(late) 1st Battalion The Royal Nfld. Regiment.

Much to Do.

(Mr. Grace Standard.)

St. John's is now in the grip of an epidemic of the "Flu," and the various complications which accompany that supposedly modern form of human affliction. According to the city papers there are over three thousand cases and several deaths have been reported. The malady apparently came from the westward as many Canadian and American towns have been similarly afflicted. Up to the present very little of the epidemic exists here and it is to be hoped that we will escape it.

We wonder if the general cleanliness of a city affects the health of the people—whether in an epidemic of "Flu," dirty surroundings, bad sanitation, bad air, etc., tend to increase the virulence of such an outbreak. If so, we fear St. John's has much to do before it can successfully combat such epidemics. The capital should be a clean city—its location and natural means are or should be sufficient to make it cleaner than it is.

Epworth League Social.

The Gower St. Epworth League Social last evening was attended by about 175 of the young people of the congregation, and was much enjoyed by all present. Mr. S. Tucker acted as Chairman, and opened the social with the singing of some rousing hymns and the offering of prayer. A short programme was then rendered, as follows:—Piano Solo, Miss Elsie Tait, Duet: The Misses Kendall, Reading, Mr. R. Hearder, Solo, Miss Sadie Soper. Guessing Competition conducted by Mr. R. Hearder. A half hour was then spent in games, and much interest was taken in a bagatelle tournament by eight teams, the winners being Frank James and James Mayo. A bountiful supply of refreshments were served, and the evening closed with short devotional exercises conducted by the Pastor. Twenty-seven young men and women signified their intention of joining the League, and will be received into membership at the regular meeting next Monday evening. The social was one of the best the League has had in recent months and reflected great credit on the Social Committee, of which Miss May Field was Chairman, and the President of the Society, Mr. Frank Parsons. The Gower St. League has taken on a new lease of life, and those who attend its meetings will be amply repaid for their trouble.

KILBANE LOST TO VALGER.

New York, Feb. 28.—By a whirlwind finish in the seventh and eighth rounds, Benny Valger, outpointed Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight champion in his eight round bout at the Newark Sportsmen's Club last night. Up to the sixth round the boxers had battled on even terms. Both were cautious and neither was able to gain any decided advantage, but in the last two sessions, Valger threw caution to the winds, and cut loose with a cyclone attack that completely bewildered the champion and earned the popular decision for the little Frenchman.

A forfeit of $1,000 put up by Valger under an agreement to weigh 124 pounds or under at three o'clock this afternoon was claimed by the title holder when his opponent tipped the beam at three quarters of a pound over the mark, it was announced. Kilbane, who was not forced to make the weight, weighed 125 1/4 pounds. The start of the contest was delayed when it was found that Kilbane wore hard tape bandages on his hands, which referee "Slim" Brennan ordered removed.

Valger sent in five left jabs to the stomach without a return in the first round, but Kilbane uncovered a sharp attack which made honors even. In all the succeeding sessions Valger forced the pace. When able to get into close quarters, he landed lefts to the wind and short right uppercuts. The champion favored exchanges at a longer range. In the second round, Valger came out the better in a rapid exchange of blows.

Kilbane sent across several stiff lefts and a right to the head in the fourth, but received considerable body punishment in return.

In the sixth Valger rushed into a straight left, which landed on the point of his nose. The blow failed to stop him from boring in. Valger hammered the titleholder about the body in the seventh and shot a punch to Kilbane's mouth cutting his lips.

The champion was content to clinch or block in the closing round.

DUNDEE AND JACKSON MATCHED.

New York, Feb. 28.—Willie Jackson of New York, and Johnny Dundee of New Jersey, were matched yesterday to battle in Jersey City on Monday, March 8th.

Jackson is one fighter whom Dundee would delight in knocking out, if for no other reason than to efface the blot Willie put on Johnny's escutcheon knocking him cold in a round one night in Philadelphia.

Dundee has claimed it was a lucky punch that laid him out for the only knock out of his long ring career. Since then they have met a couple of times and Jackson has been unable to repeat his sensational performance.

JOHNSON STILL IN MEXICO.

Although it was reported that Jack Johnson had decided to return to Chicago and give himself up to the authorities, the one-time champion still is in Mexico, and he appears to be living a care-free existence. The big black is located in Mexico City, where he is the best patron of taxis in the town. He frequents the cafes, dresses as well as ever, orders the best food and the waiters all battle for the chance to serve him because of the liberal size of his tips. Johnson is reported to have invested some money in business ventures that are prospering.

JIMMIE WILDE — ACCOMPLISHED HITTER.

New York, Feb. 28.—Jimmy Wilde will have to meet a better man than Mickey Russell before it will be possible to get a true line on the little Englishman's prowess. While Thursday night's affair did not prove anything definitely, it served to demonstrate that Wilde is an interesting performer and that it will be well worth while to match him with a high class opponent, even though the match may cost considerably more than the average bantamweight attraction.

Since Jack Sharkey defeated Wilde quite decisively according to those who saw their battle at Milwaukee, the local boxer appears to be the logical man for Wilde to meet the next time he appears in this part of the country. Sharkey, however, seems to think that since he defeated Wilde he should come in for the lion's share of the purse.

Ordinarily his stand would be entirely logical, but in this case the fact that Sharkey outweights Wilde by so many pounds, detracts from the merit of his performance. Still, Sharkey is but a good second rater. If they meet again Wilde will be the attraction and Sharkey will deserve no more than he is willing to accept for meeting Pal Moore, Pte. Herman or any of the top notch bantams. At any rate, if both Sharkey and Wilde continue to set their figures at $10,000, there will be no match.

Exact Weight a Mystery.

Wilde's exact weight is considerable of a mystery. Thursday night he refused to allow any one to alter the scales after the machine had been set for 116 pounds. With all his clothes on he did not balance the beam at that notch, but what he did weigh was not made known.

It was rumored around that Wilde scaled a fraction under 107 pounds, but it may be that he weighed less. That means that Wilde must scale around 107 pounds or go without matches; and that may be the reason for the secrecy.

Wilde's manager, David Hughes, would not tell what Wilde weighed last Thursday night, but he declared that the records of the London National Sporting Club show that thirteen months ago Wilde fought a battle in that arena scaling 98 1/2 pounds.

Despite his lack of weight, Wilde has plenty of strength. His long arms are like steel springs, and his reach is greater than most of the bantams. Only Pal Moore has anything on him in the matter of height and reach.

Wilde is 28, and those who have seen him in most of his battles say he is not as good as he used to be. He has gone back he certainly must have been a marvel for right now he is easily the best little man of his weight since the time of Jimmy Barry.

Wilde is about the most accomplished hitter in the ring to-day. He uses every known blow and he appears to play no favorites. Jabs, hooks, uppercuts, chops and full arm swings, all are delivered in perfect form. He is a master of the half arm blow used at close quarters, something that few English boxers ever learn.

DEMPSEY WILL NOT BOX JACK JOHNSON.

New York, March 3.—Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion of the world, and now a fugitive from justice, is slated to start back to Chicago to face the music. Johnson says that after he has served his term of one year he will challenge Jack Dempsey for the title.

When Jack Dempsey was asked recently what his attitude would be in regard to a match with Johnson, the champion declared that under no circumstances would he consider such a bout, but that his would match his sparring partner, Billy Tate, against Johnson and back him for any amount Johnson can raise.

PLANNING FIFTEEN ROUND MATCHES.

New York, March 3.—When fifteen round bouts are made legal in this state we can expect to see a better class of fighting men in action. For years old time followers of the ring have bemoaned the fact that the boxers of to-day do not compare with the men who flourished during the Horton law. Sentiment rather than cold facts may be back of much of that sort of talk, but there really is no doubt that from an athletic standpoint there has not been as much improvement in boxing as in other line of sport.

Instead of keeping pace with the improvement in other branches of sport in which records constantly are broken, boxing has retrograded, and this despite the fact that at the present time boxers are many times as numerous as they were in the old days. This retrogression began with the advent of the short, no decision out.

The idea that twenty round bouts are more decisive than ten round bouts is not altogether correct. Ten rounds are ample in which to bring about a decisive result if the men are willing to try their hardest. It is simply a matter of regulating the speed according to the distance in travel.

The real advantage of longer bouts is that they make for the use of ring generalship. It requires little headwork to carry a boxer over eight or ten rounds. Only one gait is required for the short dashes. But in boxing twenty rounds one must constantly guard against becoming exhausted, and that is where headwork counts.

A boxer who knows how to fight properly can keep a less skillful opponent working at top speed, while he himself is resting. The long distance boxer learns to make no false or unnecessary movement. Every move he makes is the result of a well thought out plan of action. He cannot afford to swing wildly on the chance that he may happen to land a knockout, because if he fails it means that he is left in an exhausted condition with many rounds to go.

Requires More Generalship.

When a boxer finds that he cannot afford to keep both hands flying like the sails of a windmill, he naturally

Note how the teeth glisten. You can see that the film is gone.

Learn the Cause of Decay

Dental science has now traced most tooth troubles to a film. To that slimy film which you can feel.

That is what discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substances which ferment and form acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

The film is clinging. It enters crevices and stays. No ordinary tooth paste can dissolve it. A soapy tooth paste makes it more viscous.

So, despite your brushing, much film stays. Night and day it does its damage. It is the great tooth wrecker.

Science now has found a way to combat that film. The fact has been proved by many clinical tests. The method is now advocated by leading dentists everywhere.

For daily use it is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. And we are mailing 10-Day Tubes so that every home may try it.

Do This and See

We urge you for your own sake to write for this 10-Day Tube. See the results for yourself.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to constantly combat it.

Pepsin must be activated, and science has discovered a harmless activating method. The usual method is an acid, harmful to the teeth, so pepsin long seemed impossible. Now everyone may apply it, morning, noon and night. And the evidence is that this invention brings a new dental era.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how teeth whiten as the film disappears.

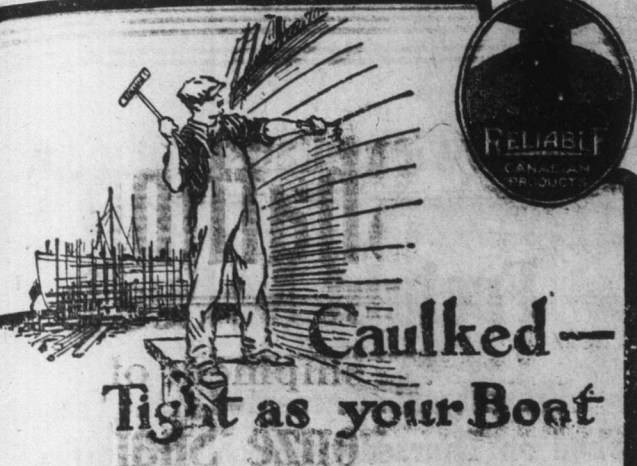

Compare results with the methods you use now. Then judge for yourself what is best. Cut out the coupon now.

The Flu and Its Heroes.

It is much to the credit of our poor an nature, so oft described as unkindly in its deeds, that no great city or widespread disaster occurs food or field, by fire or battle that not call out some acts of self, if not at actual heroism. It is necessary to turn to the wonderful deeds of heroism furnished up in recent great war for illustrations. The "Quebec Telegraph," "of has just been said. We can find in the quiet and less tragic incidents generally speaking of the influenza epidemics of 1918 and of the winter. Nurses and doctors who number gave up their lives in the name of 1918 through their noble sense of self in attending to the needs of their patients there just came to light a case of very hardy heroism which occurred last year in Northern Ontario, in which a priest and two nurses had narrow escape from "killing" in their efforts to save the lives of a few suffering Indians in the same district. Dr. Arnold, of Haldern, with two nurses and a priest, the railway in the early morning only reached their destination at 1 o'clock on the following morning. The journey was but twenty-five miles distant into the wilderness. The party had two teams of horses at their command. In one sleigh were the four travellers, while in the other were provisions for the destitute Indians, who owing to illness had been unable to get food. The second sleigh also carried a number of coffins. On Timagami Lake heavy slush was encountered, lying between the heavy coating of snow and the ice. This resulted in one team playing out, and the abandonment of one of the sleighs. Later on, the second team played out, and the driver was compelled to abandon the second sleigh and its occupants. It was only by chopping the sleigh-box into fuel that Dr. Arnold was able to get a fire started so as to prevent himself and his companions from freezing. Several hours passed between the time the driver left and the return of Indians with two dog teams and toboggans, together with extra snowshoes. The priest was placed upon one toboggan, one nurse upon the other, while the doctor and another nurse travelled on snowshoes to their destination. One nurse was remained, and will do what she can to prevent the further spread of the "flu" in that district. She will make known from time to time the requirements in the way of drugs and further assistance. This kind of thing comes close indeed to the heroic.

is what makes great hitters like Bob Fitzsimmons and Joe Gans.

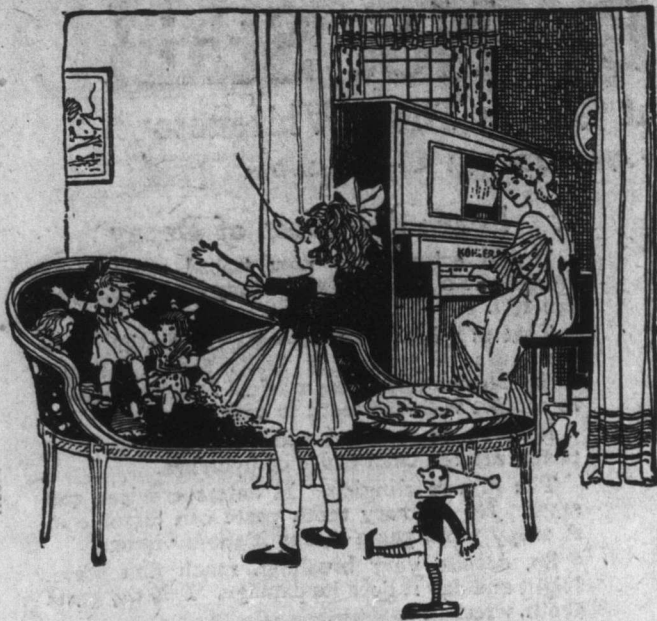

When a boxer is called upon to go twenty rounds he naturally is far more anxious to score a knockout, because a knockout shortens the time he is in the ring, and the quicker the bout is over the less chance there is of an accident. When a decision is at stake a knockout does away with the chance of an unjust verdict. But although the incentive for scoring a knockout is greater, the danger of becoming tired also is greater in long battles. It is that condition that puts a premium on brains and effective hitting.

The real art of long distance boxing is in making the other fellow do most of the work, for the moment a boxer becomes tired, he becomes an easy victim. That does not mean that one contestant could afford to fold up and refuse to do any fighting in the early rounds, because if he did that he would lose the referee's decision.

It does mean that a fighter must learn how to feint a branch of the tactic art that ceased to exist twenty round bouts until referees' decisions went out of fashion. Also to take full advantage of an opening when one presents itself.
