CHAPTER XLII.

"SIR JOSEPH'S DISCOMFITURE." "I welcome you all in the name of the Directors, and I hope you will all go up to the Hall and get something to eat and drink and—enjoy yourselves on the auspicious occasion." Cheering vociferously, the crowd began to melt and stream out of the marquee in the direction of beer and beer. Sir Joseph shook hands with the friends who happened to be near him, and led the way in the direction of champagne and other delicacies.

He had not caught sight of Striple or Eliot in the crowd, but he was not startled when Striple touched him on the arm. Habit is a wonderful thing; even at that moment he could not refrain from taking off his hat and shirking and bowing with humble deprecation.

"A gentleman here wants a word with you, Sir Joseph," he said.

"Oh, it's you, Striple, is it?" said Sir Joseph. "Wondered what brought you here. Something very important, I suppose? Where is the gentleman?"

"What, Eliot?" said Sir Joseph, frowning with surprise. "What is it? Won't he wait? I want to go up to the 'All with my party'."

"Better wait a minute or two, for your own sake, Sir Joseph," said Striple. "Mr. Graham wants to have a chat with you about the Wally Hollow estate," he added, nodding at Eliot.

How, it has been stated several times in the course of this veracious history that Sir Joseph Ferrand was a clever man. Clever men do not start, utter exclamations of apprehension, throw up their hands or gesticulate in any way when they are confronted by a threatening danger; it is only on the stage that your villain thus gives himself away by these demonstrations; therefore, Sir Joseph, being really a clever

Dear Sir,
I am so delighted with the results of "ViroI" that I feel compelled to send you a photo of my baby. When a few weeks old I tried numerous foods, but without success. I was almost at my wits' end to know what to do, when a friend advised me to try ViroI. I did so; he is beautiful old now, and I can guarantee you would not find a more healthy child. I feel so happy that I shall be only too glad to recommend it wherever you are.

"STUARTS" AND ITS MASTER SHOWS HOW AN OLD BACHELOR MAY BECOME A NEW HUSBAND.
Their coming and going was as natural now as the sound of the church-bells themselves. Shopkeepers, postmen, policemen, and habitues of the thoroughfare would have felt any day begin awkwardly which had not brought the pair by to receive the well-differentiated bow and nod of greeting; and if the custom ever evoked question or smile, it was gravely explained as "Just one of Mr. Alwyn's pleasant bachelor ways, with which, of course, no fault could possibly be found."

Indeed, no one ever found fault with any of the worthy gentleman's ways, except that they were bachelor; and this fact had been a thorn in the flesh to, and somewhat of a stigma on, the ladies of those parts for the last thirty years.

That a man so eligible, so wealthy, and so evidently born for domesticity, should have escaped the snares of matrimony laid incessantly with more or less craftiness in his path, was an enigma provoking to spinster minds—a standing vexation to many a would-be matron! But the gentleman was apparently invulnerable to female charms. By now, all hopes of his changing his condition were given up. "Confirmed old bachelor!" was the title freely applied to him; and people were beginning to wonder who, in the absence of near relatives, would be his heir, when at this precise juncture—so fatal for him and everybody's calculations in the most extraordinary manner. In plain English, he got married!

The precise steps of this rash and marvelous act were as follows: It has been said Mr. Alwyn never entertained; but one solemn annual festivity was the exception which proved this rule.

In late June or early July, when the long, splendidly kept rows of strawberry beds in his big, south-sloping garden were in full luscious bearing; when after much nothing and tending, and watching from early dawn, to "keep the brutes of blackbirds off," Bond, their guardian, would pronounce them fit, and bid his master "hev 'em eat!" Then short-notice invitations went forth, scarcely ever to meet refusal, for every one was on the lookout for them. Mr. Alwyn's four old servants woke into unusual activity. The large, rarely-used dining and drawing rooms were set in company order, brocaded curtains were shaken out, dragon china was brought forth, such silver was so polished that the tables looked like an entanglement of sunbeams; and some four or five score guests made the most of their host's rare hospitality, ate his fruit, strolled about his broad paths, flanked by great bushes of yew, guelder roses, and such out-of-date flower-bells, and wished that their chance of such treat came oftener.

It was at one of these strawberry gatherings that a stranger appeared. "An old schoolfellow of mine whom I'd not seen for years—not since she lost her husband; and she is only with me for a short time, so I ventured to bring her," explained Mrs. Morton, wife of the musical doctor; upon which Mrs. Villiers, a most distinctly handsome woman of perhaps five-and-thirty, drew near, made a very graceful bow containing just enough beauty to be appealing, and "did so hope she was not intruding!" and John Alwyn, in his courtliest manner, hastened to assure her he was only too much honored, and—two years short of sixty though he might be—certainly it is that for the first time in his existence his fancy was caught, the heart that had resisted every species of maiden blandishment succumbed to the widow!

"What the lady knew of him and his position before her visit could not have been much, but she skillfully made the most of it on that June afternoon.

"Had Mr. Alwyn always lived here?" she asked, as he gallantly accompanied the stranger of the party along the lime-tree walk. "Oh, what a pleasure to feel rooted to such a charming spot!" looking round with dark, liquid eyes. "Now, she had to live in London. Ah!"—with a shrug of her very handsome shoulders—"the dust, the noise, the unrest, were frightful. But"—with quite a touching sigh—"she supposed she was doomed to do it. Poor people such as herself had no choice. And were those trees actually planted just when Mr. Alwyn was born?" as her host pointed out the beauties of Stuart's. "Why, how fast they have grown, then! To a smother-dried moral like her"—with a becoming blush at the self-titteredlander, for her complexion was still brilliantly clear—"the place seemed a perfect paradise. But Mr. Alwyn was a very naughty, naughty man." "Why?" "Why, because," indicating the gay groups upon the lawn, "among so many charming friends he had chosen on Eve!"

Perchance the bright audacity of the lady's manner took the lawyer a little off his head.

Britain and America.

If the spirit in which Mr. Lloyd George and Colonel Harvey, the new American Ambassador, spoke at the Pilgrims' Dinner—the spirit manifest in every utterance of Sir Auckland Geddes in America—were permitted to determine the relations of Great Britain and the United States, there would soon be an end to the activities of "the mischief-makers and scandal-mongers," eager only to keep the two nations apart. Mr. Lloyd George welcomed America's decision to resume her place among the Allies still engaged in the anxious task of rescuing Europe from the revived blood feuds of which centuries of repression and repose seem only to have imparted new strength. America will participate in the settlement, always provided she is not expected to join the League of Nations, against which a seven millions majority of her people recorded their vote. Colonel Harvey takes up his duties with the assurance that there is nothing to prevent a perfect understanding between the two peoples. He rejoices in the knowledge that "King and President" see eye to eye and sense the yearnings of the peoples to whose services their lives are proudly dedicated." He is convinced that nothing ever has been, or can be impossible to Anglo-Saxons, if they face realities "without mincing or wining." In place of the grotesque caricatures of John Bull and Uncle Sam of half a century ago, he sees "in personification of our splendid nations, the beautiful figures of Britannia and Columbia, hand in hand, side by side, erect and glorious upon a plane of perfect equality in the eyes of each other and all the world. So we would have them stand forever." It was a great opening to what should prove a memorable Embassy even in the long line of distinguished representatives from the Republic who have found their way to British hearts.—United Empire.

TIMES IMPROVE.

The hammer rings throughout the land, they're building shacks on every hand, and normally returns; the honest workman sheds coat and builds a hammock or a boat, and blows in what he earns. The war is over, and at last we're cutting out the gritty past, of which we talked so long; the present is a bully time for buying lumber, lath and lime, and we are going strong. The Problems we were wont to ride now have a rest, we let them slide, until the Harvest Home; and now we spend our afternoons in planting peas and stringless peaches, and disking up the loam. The heifers do not thrash the street, emerging from their dark retreat in alley or in court, and

In my jaunts I do not rub against the Spitt and Argus Club, which used to hold the fort. The signs and tokens everywhere—a better state of things declare, and men are growing sane; less foolish clamors do they raise, and they forsake the dotty ways that gave the gods a pain. They are discordant notes, I know, and there are strains of strife and woe, by which the world is sore; but through the wall of grief and wrong you hear the grand triumphant song of industry restored.

DROUGHT IN BRITAIN.

LONDON, July 3. (By C. A. P.)—Great Britain is suffering from serious drought, scorching weather having prevailed for nearly six weeks. During June less than a quarter of an inch of rain fell, the month being the driest for more than a century. The supply of water is causing much anxiety, while crops are poor and pasturage is burnt up.

MORE HOSTILITIES.

PEKING, July 3. Hostilities between followers of leader in Eastern Siberia, and General Merkuloff, head of the Provisional Government in Vladivostok, are imminent. Stenoff is at Grodokova, near the Manchurian frontier, to which city he retired after having been refused admittance to Grodokova by a Japanese convoy, and it is said that many of his followers, who attempted to leave Vladivostok and follow him, were arrested by the Provisional Government there.

MORE OUTRAGES.

DUBLIN, July 3. An Official message states that a Sergeant and constable were killed and four constables wounded, two of them seriously, when they were ambushed at Cohn, County Limerick, yesterday.

IRISH CONFERENCE TO-DAY.

DUBLIN, July 3. Ambushes to-day at MORA, County Tipperary, and TULLO, County Waterford, an unsuccessful attempt to blow up a troop train at Colbride, County Kildare, and other incidents, on the eve of a conference of representatives of Northern and Southern Ireland here on Monday, indicate no arrangements for a truce. Southern Unionists will urge and insist that the conference on the maintenance of British connection. Men here, in close touch with the situation, say Mr. Lloyd George has decided on granting fiscal autonomy to Ireland. These men suggest that Northern Unionists' objections to entrusting such autonomy to a Central Irish Council, might be obviated by giving Ulster Parliament the right of veto on taxation affecting its area.

SMUTS AND IRELAND.

LONDON, July 3. Rumors reached London to-day that General J. C. Smuts, the South African Premier, had been in Ireland in connection with the peace movement. Neither the Dublin, nor the Associated Press, however, was able to give any corroborative evidence, beyond the fact that General Smuts' secretary had been in Dublin.

ALLEGED MURDER OF PRISONERS.

DUBLIN, July 3. Many men are believed to have been killed in fighting following an ambush of a police patrol by civilians on the Ballina-Sligo highway, near Dromere on Friday. Seven constables were ambushed twice in quick succession by civilian parties operating close together. One of the constables was wounded and two captured. The remaining constables secured military reinforcements who rushed the ambushers toward the mountains. The official report of the affair states that the civilians thereupon murdered the two prisoners. Military forces encircled miles of country and fought the ambushers, a number of whom were seen to fall and it is believed CARPENTIER DEFEATED IN FOURTH ROUND.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., July 3. Jack Dempsey this afternoon retained the heavyweight championship of the world by knocking out Georges Carpentier, champion of Europe in the fourth round of their bout here to-day.

Carpentier entered the ring at 2.57; Dempsey, two minutes later. They were sent away at 3.10. Carpentier landed a light left and clinched. Carpentier landed a right. Carpentier missed right, but connected with left hook. Dempsey punished him, beating him unmercifully. Carpentier was groggy and bleeding at the nose. Carpentier fell through ropes to avoid punch. He fell into Dempsey as he crawled back into the ring and landed several blows at the end of the round.

Round 2.—Carpentier missed with left. He backed away and Dempsey hooked to jaw, beating him around the head. Carpentier staggered the champion with lefts and rights to jaws. Dempsey split the Frenchman under the eye. They exchanged body punches as the bell rang.

Round 3.—Carpentier ducked left hook; Dempsey ducked into ropes and hit with short right. Carpentier landed two upper cuts to body in clinch. Dempsey punished invader in body and Carpentier nearly fell down when he missed right swing. Carpentier's left swing was short and Dempsey slugged him on the jaw with left hook in clinch. Dempsey battered Carpentier into the corner with rights and lefts at bell. The bell saved Carpentier from knockout.

Round 4.—Dempsey rushed Carpentier to ropes with left to body and made him wince. Carpentier landed right to head and tried to bang. Carpentier was floored with left to body and right to chin. Carpentier took count of nine before springing to his feet, where, grimly determined, Dempsey measured him with a punch to the chin which ended the battle.

Dempsey stood over the fallen French idol until the count was finished and then tenderly picked up the bleeding and dazed Frenchman and dragged him to his corner. Dempsey gave Carpentier an unmerciful beating. He opened up the cut under the Frenchman's eye and battered him viciously around the head with vicious rights and lefts, until Carpentier's face was swollen and blood-purging. Carpentier fought gamely back at the champion but he was outclassed.

Railway Commission Report.

PORT AUX BASQUES TERMINAL.

The provision of better facilities at Port aux Basques was one of the first improvement works undertaken by your Commissioners. The work carried out consisted in largely increasing the capacity for the storage of freight, the freight shed being practically doubled. The passenger station was also enlarged with a view of giving proper accommodation for passengers (for whom much needed lavatory accommodation has been provided for both sexes) and enlarged space for clerks and checkers. A much needed private office has been provided for the station agent. The Customs Department which was very crude has been replaced by a new and up-to-date suite of offices consisting of collector's private office, public and private clerk's offices, stationery and bond stores; and a comfortable and much needed space has been allotted for the examination of incoming baggage. A dismantled locomotive boiler has been installed in a new boiler house which provides steam heating for the station and customs department and for keeping cars warm while standing in the station. In conjunction with this boiler has been installed an electric lighting plant sufficient to adequately light the wharf, station yard and all the buildings. If nothing else had been done at Port aux Basques this innovation of electric light will constitute an inestimable boon to travellers, who under the old lighting methods encountered many dangers in their passage to and from the steamer. Your Commissioners have also rearranged the grading and sidings at Port aux Basques and added to their capacity with the result that the freight and passenger traffic is more easily and expeditiously handled and with more comfort and less risk to travellers. The increased berthing accommodation provided and the addition of coaling facilities are calculated to have a similar effect on the handling and despatch of steamers. The cost of these improvements to 1st May has been $50,278.34, and the total cost will be about $55,000.00.

The remaining item of new equipment referred to in paragraph three of the Agreement, viz.—the provision of a new freight terminal at St. John's must, we are afraid, be deferred until better financial conditions obtain. This, and many other items of general improvement to the railway, which have come under our discussion have had to be deferred to a more convenient season in view of the much heavier than expected losses in operation. The freight traffic has fallen off so considerably at St. John's that the need of new freight sheds was not experienced and will not be until general trade conditions again become normal. The same strain on our finances accounts for our failure to provide the new fish plates referred to in paragraph 2 of the Agreement; and, further more, we are not agreed that the benefit derived from the introduction of these plates would be commensurate with the expenditure which might with much greater advantage be merged, later on when funds permit, in a re-rolling scheme using heavier rails which is the logical solution of the track problem that must be faced sooner or later.

Amongst the many other items referred to above that we were compelled to abandon were, firstly, the provision of additional passenger rolling stock. The minimum additional requirement in our opinion was the make-up of two complete cross country expresses with the addition of two or three modern first class cars in order to enable the retirement to the second class of an equal number of first class cars that are not up to the standard of the cross country express. Your Commissioners went so far as to invite a representative of the Canadian Car and Foundry Company to come and evolve in collusion with our technical men a set of designs for the different classes of car required. The main features sought after were vestibuled connections between the cars, improved internal arrangements especially, in relation to the smoking compartments and lavatories to secure greater privacy and space, more headroom in the upper berths of sleeping cars and improved facilities and space in the ladies' toilets, and generally an increase in the seating capacity of the cars, more particularly in the dining cars which is at present so limited that the service is hampered and unnecessarily prolonged. The general comfort of the passengers was combined with a neat but plainly finished interior. This entailed longer cars than hitherto in use and advantage of this was taken to introduce improvements in the trucks, wheels, etc., for greater comfort and safety. Before we were in a position to ask your approval for the provision of these cars we realized that the funds would not be available; a fact which we deeply regret forced the abandonment of this necessary provision. Meantime the services can be run, but cars cannot be retired so frequently as they should be for examination and general repair.

character and leaves it open to the ally not first involved in the war, to decide whether the war was or was not due to unprovoked and aggressive action on the part of an outside belligerent. Italy exercised a similar judgment in 1914 under the terms of her defensive alliance with Germany and Austria-Hungary. The revised treaty also recognised Japan's paramount rights in Korea.

On June 13, 1911, the alliance was again renewed for a term of ten years. It was then modified by the insertion of this clause: "Should either high contracting party conclude a treaty of general arbitration with a third power, it is agreed that nothing in this agreement shall entail upon such contracting party an obligation to go to war with the power with whom such treaty of arbitration is in force."

Jury Finds True Bill

AGAINST WIFE OF CAPT. PERRY.
 Yarmouth, June 28.—The case of Mrs. Clara Elizabeth Perry charged with the murder of her husband, George Henry Perry, on or about February 28 last, was presented to the Grand Jury this morning by Justice Humphrey Mellish, presiding over the supreme court, which opened its sittings here this morning. Justice Mellish in his charge to the jury said the accused was not to be indicted upon mere suspicion, but they were to consider the evidence to see if there was a prima facie case. The evidence in the case was largely circumstantial, he said, and when it was sought to establish a case on such evidence it was usual and proper to look for motives.

Justice Mellish then reviewed the evidence tending to show disagreement between Captain and Mrs. Perry and their subsequent reconciliation. "Since then, he said, there was no evidence to show that there had been any serious disagreement between husband and wife, but on the other hand there was evidence to show that Mrs. Perry had been very attentive to her husband during an illness. In closing his charge Justice Mellish said:

"Your task is an important one. You have to find out whether there is a prima facie case of not against this woman." The Yarmouth Curling rink, transferred into a hall of justice, was crowded at this morning's hearing. Fifty per cent of the attendance were women. The Grand Jury retired at 11.45. The Jury later in the afternoon brought down a true bill against the prisoner.

murder of her husband, Capt. George Henry Perry, before Mr. Justice Mellish in the supreme court here this morning. Her answer to the charge was clear and distinct, and despite the roar of torrential rain which beat upon the roof of the curling rink, where the trial is being held, it could be heard by everyone of the great crowd of spectators that thronged the building.

Nfld. Atlantic Fisheries Ltd. Outing.

The employees of the Newfoundland Atlantic Fisheries, Ltd., held their annual outing Friday. The company, which numbered in the vicinity of 100, started off from the Plant in Motor Buses and journeyed to the Octagon Pond where a pleasant day was spent. A programme of sports was gone through and eagerly contested by practically everyone present. During the day dinner and tea were served and towards evening dancing was engaged in. This is the first outing organized by the Company and it was an unqualified success. The Company intends organizing one or more Outings during the summer season.

Summary of Anglo-Jap Treaty.

Great Britain and Japan first entered into alliance in 1902. The treaty signed in that year resulted from the joint action of Russia, France and Germany in depriving Japan of most of the fruits of her victory over China in the war of 1894-95 and from the subsequent Russian exploitations in the Far East. It bound the contracting powers to maintain the status quo and general peace in the extreme East and especially, to maintain the independence and territorial integrity of Korea. In case either should, in defense of its interests, become involved in a war with a third power, the other was to maintain strict neutrality and to endeavor to prevent other powers from joining in hostilities against its ally. In case of attack by other powers the neutral ally would be obliged to enter the war.

Under this agreement Great Britain remained neutral in the Russo-Japanese War of 1904-05. On August 12, 1905, while the peace conferences were still in session at Portsmouth, the alliance was renewed. It was broadened so as to apply to India. The neutrality provision was eliminated. Article 2 stipulated that "if, by reason of unprovoked or aggressive action, wherever arising on the part of any other power or powers, either contracting party shall be involved in war in defense of its territorial rights or special interests mentioned in the preamble (i.e. in the regions of Eastern Asia and India), the other contracting party will at once come to the assistance of its ally."

The treaty is thus defensive in

THE TENDER BLOSSOMS.
 "I will gather some flowers for our friend," she said,
 So into the garden with her I went
 And stood for a while at the rose's bed
 As she stopped to her labor of sentiment.

"Why not the full blown blossom
 Why do you leave it and pass it by?"
 These were the questions I asked of her.
 And she answered me: "It is soon to die."

"Here is a withered and blasted rose,
 Better without the plant would be;
 Cut it and mingle it now with those
 You are taking away for your friend to see."

"Here is a poony stained and torn,
 Take it and cling to your choicest bloom."
 But she answered me with a look of scorn:
 "These flowers are to brighten a sick friend's room."

"Only the tenderest bud I'll take
 Never the withered and worn and old;
 Of my fairest flowers is the gift I make
 By which my love for my friend is told."

"So, when the angels call," said I,
 "And fold in their arms a little child,
 Passing the old and the broken by,
 Think of this and be reconciled."

"Always the tenderest buds they take,
 Pure and lovely and undecayed.
 When a gift of love unto God they make,
 Always they come for a little child."

Anticipated Trouble.
 Fearing that the negro portion of the crew of S.S. Carpiaka would cause trouble, the American Consul and the ships captain invoked the assistance of the authorities, and Friday night a squad of police under a sergeant was sent aboard. During the latter part of the week some 10 of the negroes were paid off but they refused to leave the ship. Saturday morning, however, the men were given their passage by the Consul and left by S.S. Rosalind.

There are solid reasons for this achievement. No company commencing business at the beginning of December could furnish a statement at the end of the month showing insurances in force of $1,053,300 and assets of $174,984.76, and announce five months later that on May 31st its Business in Force totalled $3,004,350, without being able to point out the concrete reasons for its success.

First of all, the affairs of the Ontario Equitable are in the hands of a capable directorate of experienced business men. The Head Office staff has had a long training in insurance work. The Agency Force comprises practically the entire Canadian field force of the Equitable of the United States, besides experienced Agency Managers who joined the Ontario Equitable from other Companies. THE EXPERIENCE OF THE MEN BEHIND THE COMPANY IS AN ASSET TO INSURERS.

The Double Indemnity Provision provides for payment of DOUBLE the amount insured in the event of accidental death.

Head Office or any of the Company's Agents will be glad to give further information to inquirers. A number of Agency openings available to the right men.

Ontario Equitable policies mean what they say. Low level premiums throughout the term of the contract. No high premiums during the first years under promises of future reductions which can not and dare not be guaranteed. No disappointments over unrealized dividends on policies for which extra premiums were charged for the CHANCE of getting them lowered later on. Ontario Equitable policies "take" because their plain terms appeal to the business sense of those who need insurance. The proof is—Three Millions in Six Months.

Special features can be obtained with the Company's policies. The Double Disability Benefit provides for a Monthly Income to the insured in case of a permanent injury by accident, of $20.00 for every $1,000 of insurance.

Ontario Equitable Life and Accident Makes Record

The Ontario Equitable Life and Accident Insurance Company of Waterloo, Ont., set a new record in Canada by placing $2,012,300 of insurance on its books during its first four months of active business life. Another record made was the closing of its first month's business with $1,053,300 of insurance in force. The Ontario Equitable issues clear, unambiguous policies at level premium rates, with double disability and double indemnity provisions. It is managed by men of experience, and its head office staff has had long training in insurance work. Sydney C. Tweed is president and managing director, and the agency force comprises practically the entire Canadian field force of the Equitable Life of the United States in addition to experienced agency managers who were formerly with other companies. As of December 31 last the Ontario Equitable reported about $175,000 of assets.
—The Spectator, New York, April 21, 1921.
(This announcement was made after four months' operations. The Company's success at the end of six months was even more pronounced.)

TO-MORROW NIGHT'S GAME.
The Cubs and B.S. will be the contestants in to-morrow night's game and it is thought a good amount of ball will be handed out. There will be some changes from their last line-up.

FUTURE GAMES.
The baseball schedule will now com-mece in earnest, and the games will be played on each Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

THE FIGHT.
A message from "Doc" Power states that the Carpenter-Dempsey mill was a thriller. The champion had the first, second, and fourth rounds all to himself but the third was the Frenchman's all through. He states that Dempsey is full of class and a real champion.

STERNE STUFF.
It is evident that maps are made of sterner stuff than rats—judging by last week's events. But as that advice is line castor-oil, it is one thing to prescribe it and another thing to take it. All of us should remember that a minute of silence is worth an hour of talk—if you have to talk it back.

LAST YEAR'S HEROES.
Muss, Billy Callahan, and Robertson were the season's sluggers last year according to the official records. All three of them are Lions. Fred Phalen, Dicky Power and Char. Quick are the topnotchers in the fielding department.

FISH FOR COLD STORAGE.—The Atlantic Fisheries Co. are now making purchases of large quantities of caplin which they will hold in cold storage for export. During the spring the company purchased both salmon and halibut, quite a large quantity of which was sent to England by the last Digby.

Have you seen them? What? The Prizes for the Dominion Championship Sports—1921!

PRESENTATION.—A very pleasing event took place at the East End School on Thursday morning when the Rev. H. Clayton, on behalf of the schools, presented the retiring principal, Mr. John B. Wadland, with a handsome pipe.

The Dominion Sports.

OFFICIAL RECORDS WILL BE KEPT.

The Dominion Sports, which are being held Wednesday next, will be an unique event in the annals of Newfoundland athletics as, for the first time special efforts will be made to keep official records of each event. These sports, which will take place on St. George's Field, are being held under the auspices of the C.L.B. Athletic Association, who have been fortunate in obtaining the services of Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., M.H.A., as Captain of the Field Committee, whilst Mr. C. J. Ellis will act as official time-keeper and manager. As the championship in each event will be decided by these sports, all of our best known athletes have entered, and some dark horses have also put their names in. In the mile races a special prize is to be offered to the competitor who breaks the local record, which is 4 min. 52 sec., and was made by F. W. Marshall. The 10 mile road race is the feature of the sports and will be run from a selected point just outside of Donovan's to which the competitors will meet at 2 p.m. at the C.L.B. Armoury, will be taken by motor cars. The course will be along Topsail Road, Cornwall Avenue, LeMarchant Road and Parade Street and will finish with two rounds of St. George's Field. Besides the splendid prize offered for this event a special certificate will be presented to every competitor who finishes. Amongst the competitors for this 10 mile race is a dark horse from Heart's Content. The splendid collection of prizes is now on exhibition in the window of James Baird, Ltd.

Despondent Passenger Suicides.

Saturday evening, Capt. Mitchell, of s.s. Rosalind, sent a message to Messrs. Harvey & Co. informing them that one of the passengers, John Beggs, had jumped overboard, when the ship was in the vicinity of Cape Race, and was drowned. The unfortunate man is a native of Lunenburg, and was landed from the schooner R. M. Symons, on Saturday morning, suffering from melancholia. He was being sent home in charge of a guard. It is understood that the deceased was a married man, but his wife died two years ago, since when he had been subject to fits of depression. When the alarm was given that a man was overboard, Capt. Mitchell had his ship stopped, and a thorough search was made, but the unfortunate man was not seen.

LOCKE, GIRL STOWS AWAY ON KAISAR-I-HIND.

Because she was an ardent admirer of Madge Kennedy, the movie star who is making the cruise on the Kaiser-I-Hind, the ship of which so many fabulous tales have been spread, a young girl aged 15 years, belonging to St. John's, stowed away on the ship and is now being looked after by the captain who will take the first opportunity of returning her to her home. This news was received in a message from Commander Palmer on Saturday in which he stated that the girl's parents need not be uneasy regarding her safety. The disappearance of the girl in question had naturally caused her parents a great deal of anxiety which has now been allayed. But is this not carrying enthusiasm for a favourite actress to extremes.

Disgusted With Flour Tax.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—You may like to know how the fishermen of Ramona are taking the latest act of the Government in putting a tax of seventy cents per barrel on flour, and also taxing the few hogheads of coal we use. Everything that was not taxed before, now comes under the ban, and the roundabout way it has been done that is under the guise of a Sales Tax is ridiculous. One would need several years at college to enable him to make out an entry. Well, all that we fishermen can say is that those who are not already made paupers by the Fish Regulations soon will be, by the present taxation, which is more than we can stand. Putting a tax of seventy cents on flour hits the ordinary man more than anything else, more especially if he has five or six small children to feed. Instead of making the burden heavier on him the former tax of 25 cents should have been removed and transferred to some luxury. Giving us cheaper flour would meet with general approval.

Yours truly,
DISGUSTED FISHERMEN.
Ramona, June 27th.

The Newfoundland Flag.

We have received the following communication with reference to an advertisement which appeared in our columns of June 24th:—

Editor Evening Telegram.
In the issue of the 24th June of the Evening Telegram, there appeared an advertisement stating that the Flag of Newfoundland is the Union Jack with the Arms of Newfoundland in a circle thereon. This is hardly correct. Strictly speaking we have no distinct Flag of our own, separate from the Union Jack of Great Britain. The official Flag is the Union Jack. The Governor, when aboard, flies the Union Flag with the Badge of Newfoundland in the centre, as per paragraph 150 of the Colonial Regulations. Vessels in the service of the Government use the Blue Ensign with the Badge in the Fly. All other vessels registered in Newfoundland may wear the Red Ensign with the Badge in the Fly, approved for Newfoundland by Admiralty Warrant.

The above sets forth the actual facts of the case, and it might be well if you prepared a paragraph for insertion in your paper, setting forth the above so that people may have an opportunity of learning the real facts of the case.

Yours truly,
ARTHUR MEWS.

The Declaration of Independence.

To the average Briton of to-day, the 4th of July has but little significance; but it is an anniversary kept with the greatest rejoicing by our American cousins, for it was on July 4, 1776, that the famous Declaration of Independence was signed by the American Congress, and the United States came into being from that date. To decide what was exactly the cause of the secession of America would be a hard task indeed. Some blame the Stamp Act; others the Writs of Assistance, while the majority attribute it to the reduction of the Tea Tax. To put it in a nutshell, however, the fact of the matter was that the colonists of America were sick of British rule. This was not to be wondered at when it is remembered that the majority of colonists in Boston and other towns on the Eastern side of America had left the British Isles owing to persecution in some form or other. England, then, was not the free country it is now, for Catholics, Protestants, Quakers, and Nonconformists suffered the grossest persecution at different periods. These men could not be expected to make the most loyal colonists, and the emigrants began to entertain a most bitter hatred of England. Riots became common, and England with characteristic apathy, allowed the Americans to gain such power that when the War of Independence opened, the British troops were hopelessly outnumbered. At the Battle of Bunker Hill a desperate encounter took place, in which British valour and bayonets would not be denied. Although, virtually, Bunker Hill was a British victory, the moral effect was such that it encouraged the Americans to greater effort. Matters moved rapidly after this. Washington, the idol of every American, formed his famous army and prepared for a desperate resistance; the Declaration of Independence being the result. This freedom of America was hailed with joy throughout the country. Hostilities with England, however, continued intermittently until 1815, when a peace was proclaimed, by which we recognised the independence of the United States.

Thoughts on the Colosseum of Rome.

By STEPHEN GRAHAM.

Rome—It is sometimes included in the wonders of the world, and it is certainly one of the most remarkable ruins of antiquity. If all modern Rome were swept away by pestilence and earthquake, the Colosseum would no doubt still stand and be as prominent a feature of the city as the Pyramids themselves. It has already survived many earthquake shocks and nineteen noisy centuries. It stands to-day in grey serenity—a mighty stone structure of great height and massivity, with tier upon tier of galleries where could be accommodated nearly all the Rome of its day. There is no other place like it—with its two hundred and forty arched entrances and its cages and prisons. It is vast and cruel and vain even now. All the circles glare down into the empty arena.

A Symbol of Decay.

You imagine a festival at the Albert Hall when that little fragile building is packed from the expensive fringes of the stalls and the boxes to the mysterious height of the gallery, then magnify many times and charge wood into hevn rock and take off the roof and give Roman air and sunlight, and change the character and dress of the people, and make them just for blood and for strange sights, and give voices to their bellies and violent animation and excitability to their limbs and their features, and you have the Roman amphitheatre which Flavian built A.D. 70, to be butcheries for Christians and captives of war, an arena for gladiators and a place of circus.

The Colosseum is the symbol of the decay of Rome. Bede is said to have prophesied: "Whilst the Colosseum stands Rome will stand; when the Colosseum falls the world itself will fall," but that was merely testimony to its mighty structure. Five or six palaces have been built of the marbles and other materials which have been taken away, and still the Colosseum stands in all its architectural impressiveness. But the thing this amphitheatre was built for ruined Rome. The taste for brutal pleasure which the emperors encouraged devalued the spirit of the Romans, and deprived them of that traditional virtue of which they had been so proud. Famine of circuses, the giving of bread unworked-for and the making of grand gladiatorial shows for the plebs.

Thumbs up or Thumbs Down.

Standing-room for twenty thousand plebeians was actually given free, and the other eighty thousand people who could be accommodated paid little enough. The shows which gave pleasure also gave glory, and emperors and magistrates sunned themselves in the people's favour by the entertainment they could procure for the masses. Wild beasts were let out upon the little crowd of kneeling victims, and tore them to pieces amid the guffaws and delighted yells of that vast concourse of people. Or men fought with infuriated beasts—the foundation of the bull-fight. Bears and lions and rhinoceroses and elephants and many other animals were opposed to men for the popular delight. Or men fought men with swords, and champions arose and championships in plenty. We read of one gladiator working hundreds of other gladiators in the arena of the Colosseum to the joy of the people, who got extremely excited as to whether the fight had been a sporting one, and whether they should hold their thumbs down and have the gladiator killed, or thumbs up and let him go.

A Dead Lust.

Rome fell; its era was supplanted by another greater era. The barbarian whom the Romans had enslaved and tormented at last threw down the mighty empire.

I see before me the gladiator he butchered to make a Roman holiday. Shall he expire? And unavenged? Arise! Ye Goths and glut your ire!

so Byron wrote. Now little children are playing where wild beasts were held, and tourists peep into the empty dens where the Christian prisoners are were kept.

A great war has lately been raging when all manner of anachronistic tendencies of mankind were displayed, the popular lust for cruelty and blood, which once raged from all those burning Roman eyes about the great arena, has not returned. Few people now can bear to look on at cruelty. Even executions are hidden from men's eyes, and even if, upon occasion, we will cruelly, we demand that it shall be accomplished away from our eyes, and that we shall not be confronted with the details. Here, where such gory things were done, if one of us saw an organ-grinder threatening a monkey with a knife we should leap to save the monkey—and ourselves.

It may be the heaven of Christianity or the development of man, or the mental performance of the sympathetic Northern European, but it is none the less a remarkable fact that that cruelty which was once public meat and drink for everyone is now a hidden thing, lurking only in the secrets of prison-life or in places like those parts of the New World where the mob still burns its negroes alive and looks on and feels no shame.

Let us put a smile on your countenance. Try a bottle of Erick's Tasteless at Stafford's Drug Store. Price $1.00; postage 20c. extra.—apr26,tf
