Lady Wyvernes Daughter.

"I will not keep you this evening," said Lady Lynne to her maid. "Fetch my writing-desk—there is something in it I have forgotten."

The maid soon returned, bearing with her the desk given by Lord Lynne to his wife.

"At last, my lady," she said, "as her mistress waver her hand in token of dismissal, let me remove your ornaments, and unfasten your hair."

Listlessly and silently Lady Lynne sat down in the easy-chair, drawn up to the toilet table, gazing steadfastly at the face reflected in the mirror.

One by one the skilful handmaid removed the jewels from the thick tresses of raven hair; then she unfasted it, and let it fall in all its rich luxuriance over her mistress's shoulders.

"No one ever had such hair as my lady," she murmured to herself, brushing it the while, and as proud of its glossy magnificence as though it were her own.

Very beautiful did Inez look then, with that wealth of hair flowing like a veil over her white shoulders. Steadfastly and silently she gazed at the wondrous loveliness in the mirror, the dark lustrous eyes with their jetty fringe, the rich red lips, the queenly brow, the exquisite cheeks. There were few such faces in the world.

"All in vain," she said, "all in vain." "Did my lady speak" asked Stephanie.

"No," replied Lady Lynne, wearily. "Bring me the little vial,—so that if I am in pain I need not call any one." Stephanie obeyed, and then went out, wondering why her mistress looked so long and so calmly in the mirror.

Then Inez remembered the note that had been pressed into her hand. It was in the pocket of her dress; she rose, and found it. Her hand did not tremble as she opened it, her lips never quivered as she read it, although the few lines it contained were her death-warrant.

"I shall call to-morrow at three," wrote Count Rinaldo; "I shall ask for a private interview with your sister, and make her an offer of marriage. If she accepts me, which she will do if you use your influence, all is well!"

MOTHER OF

Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Other Mothers

Hamford, N. S.—"I am the mother of four children and I was so weak after my last baby came that I could not do my work and suffered for months until a friend induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. (Since taking the Vegetable Compound my weakness has left me and the pain in my back has gone. I tell all my friends who are troubled with female weakness to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I think it is the best medicine ever sold. You may advertise my letter."—Mrs. GEORGE I. CHOUAS, Hamford, N. S.

My First Child
Glen Allen, Alabama.—"I have been greatly benefited by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for bearing-down feelings and pains. I was troubled in this way for nearly four years following the birth of my first child, and at times could hardly stand on my feet. A neighbor recommended the Vegetable Compound to me after I had taken doctor's medicines without much benefit. It has relieved my pains and gives me strength. I recommend it and give you permission to use my testimonial letter."—Mrs. IDA RYE, Glen Allen, Alabama.

Women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Coleridge, Ontario, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private "Secret-Book" upon "Affections Peculiar to Women."

if she refuses me, I shall ask for Lord Lynne. I shall tell him all about what took place at Serrano, and claim you and your fortune by prior right. Nothing will move me from this purpose. Instead of wasting your time in useless appeals to me, spent it in persuading your sister to accept me."

"I am hunted down," cried the wretched girl, as the note fell from her nervous grasp. "I am hunted down! Ruin lies on all sides of me. To-morrow Phillip will ask Agatha what she meant by not understanding his allusion to the white hyacinth; to-morrow he will know that I lied and schemed, and betrayed my sister, to win his love; to-morrow he will know that I have deceived him—he will know all the wretched story of my folly and credulity, my sin and shame—will know that I am no wife for an honorable man. Oh, Heaven, can I bear it?"

She did not weep now as she had done months ago, when she wept for the love given to another. The time for tears was over with Inez Lynne. A pallor like that of death settled on her beautiful young face.

"It must be fate," she cried, as with quick step she paced up and down the room; "it must be fate. If one shame did not hang over me another would, and I can face neither. Oh, why have I wasted my youth, my beauty, my genius? Why have I sinned?"

This was the cry of the ruined soul in her hour of remorse. "Why have I sinned?"

"To-morrow men and women will shame me. My sister, whom I have learned to love so deeply, will pass by me. I betrayed her, and took her love from her."

No idle sophistries came in this hour to ease her conscience, or take away the sting of her sorrow. She no longer excused herself or saw things through a false medium. In the stillness and dead of night she stood to face with her sins; she saw herself clearly as she had never done before, with no veil of illusion hiding the reality from her.

"And I might have been happy?" she cried, passionately. "It is too late now. I am lost! My beauty, my genius, my talent, have brought me to this; and I might have been happy, and beloved."

She went to the window, and drawing aside the silken hangings, gazed out into the quiet, serene Italian night. The golden stars seemed to burn in the depths of the dark blue sky; a soft, sweet, silvery light lay on flower and tree and distant hill. She laid her hot, wearied head against the cool glass, and gazed watching this calm and beauty. Like great restless waves, there surged through her mind the memories of her life. She saw herself a disconsolate child in the gloomy house of Serrano. Instead of making the best of things, she had given way to anger against every one connected with her; instead of seeking refuge either in her duties or her studies, she had given herself up to dreams. She had lived in a world of her own—had made herself unfit for real life by constantly indulging in day-dreams. When her mind was weakened, her morbid imagination excited, the temptation had come, and found her unable to resist.

She remembered the first meeting with that ruthless man who tracked her to her doom. Ah, if she had been but open and honest, if she had but confessed to Madame Monteleone, if she had but told her she had seen him all would have been well. But she had met him over and over again; she had worked herself into believing that she loved him, and then came that crowning horror of her life, that foolish, secret marriage. "Was I mad when I consented to it?" the poor girl asked herself; "would not a child have been wiser and more prudent?"

The crimson blood dyed her face when she remembered the dupe she had been, the grief and suspense, the sorrow she had felt for the man she now hated with so bitter a hatred—and that letter, which had killed her love and youth and faith at one blow.

Then came the remembrance of the father who had loved her, despite his neglect—if she had but told him all, surely he might have helped her. She remembered that calm, happy life at Lynnewoods when her beauty and grace won those cold English hearts, and she had learned to love her cousin with all the deep, wild force of her passionate nature.

She remembered a night, even such a one as this, when the silver moonlight had rested upon the trees, and she had sat out among the roses, happy in her passionate love.

Then came the temptation and the fall; she betrayed the gentle sister who had loved her, the kinsman who trusted her—she schemed, toiled, and lied to win his love—she was it, and now her sin had found her out.

"It has been all wrong," she cried; "wrong from the beginning—nothing could undo it. I cannot bear the shame and the exposure; there is but one escape. I have lived a coward's life—I must die a coward's death."

Then she left the window and opened the little writing-desk. A portrait of her husband, taken only a few days before, lay among the papers; she kissed it passionately, but no tear fell from her burning eyes upon the loved features.

She wrote rapidly, and her letter was to Agatha. She confessed all to her. She told her in minutest details the story of her life at Serrano, its living death, its unbearable monotony and gloom; of her fancied love, her folly and blindness, her rash hurried marriage, her brief dream of happiness, and her despairing awakening when she found the fatal letter; she concealed nothing. Then she told her of her journey home, and the anguish she had felt in bearing with her the burden of her secret.

Without praying for pardon she told the story of the white hyacinth, and owned how she had betrayed her sister and robbed her of the love and position that ought to have been hers. She told, too, how she had striven to win that love for herself, and had succeeded—how, in the very hour of her brightest triumph, her sin had found her out, and the man she believed dead had stood before her alive and well—how he had tortured her, and would only leave her in peace at the sacrifice of her sister's happiness.

"I could not betray you again, Agatha," she wrote. "I might have done so, for you love me very much, and perhaps had I tried to persuade you, you might have listened to the count. I could not betray you again; and when I saw you to-night so happy with your chosen lover, Allan Leigh, I resolved sooner to die than see you wronged."

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR DISTEMPERS

A Modern Building Material With Exclusive Advantages

Beaver Wall Board is the modern interior wall material. It comes in big, sturdy panels, 32, 36 or 48 inches wide, and in lengths from 6 to 16 feet. It fits the standard spacing of studding.

Beaver Wall Board is easily handled. Merely nail it directly to the studding or over old plaster walls and ceilings. The work is quick and economically done. The beautiful walls are permanent—will not crack or show lath stains.

Beaver Wall Board does not have to be dried. It can be decorated immediately without expensive sizing and is adaptable to a wide variety of beautiful modern wall treatments.

The cost of Beaver Wall Board is low. And the labor cost of applying it is very low.

For ceilings and walls in new construction; for reclaiming attics and other idle spaces in home, factory or office; for covering old, unsightly plaster walls; for summer cottages, garages; in fact, for any purpose where a permanent heat, cold, moisture and sound-proof, fire-resisting inside wall or lining is needed, Beaver Wall Board is the ideal material.

The best lumber and building material dealers in all localities sell genuine Beaver Wall Board or can easily get it for you. Your carpenter can figure costs and apply it. You can be sure you are getting the genuine by looking for the Red Beaver Border on each panel. On request, we will send a sample of genuine Beaver Wall Board and a booklet which tells all about its uses.

THE REMARKABLE DEVELOPMENT OF A NEW "INDUSTRY" THROUGH A PROGRESSIVE ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN IN THE UNITED STATES.

VANCOUVER.—At the annual meeting of the Vancouver Publicity Bureau the reports presented showed a remarkable growth in this new industry of the coast provinces. The money left in the city by tourists amounted to over $20,000,000 which is in excess of the money brought in by the fishing industry, which yielded some $16,000,000. The fishing industry is one of the oldest industries on the coast and has been a very profitable one for a generation. Its value has been realized for many years and it has received assistance from the Dominion and provincial governments, who have devoted the efforts of many technical men to the regulation, protection and increase of the yield from the waters.

It is hard for the business man to understand that the tourist business, with practically no government assistance, has already become one of greater revenue-producing value than the old one of fishing. Vancouver had last year some 700,000 visitors who came mainly from the Pacific Coast States, the prairie provinces and the Orient and the eastern Atlantic States of America. The number of motor-cars showed an increase of some 42 per cent. over 1922—some 80,000 American cars visiting the city. The figures from various States are another demonstration of the power of community publicity, as the increase from California which had been the subject of a special campaign by the Bureau, was some 52 per cent. much higher than that from other States nearer at hand and greater, too, than the increase throughout the rest of the province.

This augmenting of the number of motor visitors has resulted in many preparations being made by the communities to take care of them. A new motor ferry has been launched by the Canadian Pacific Railway, additional tourist camps are being equipped, tea houses, new hotels, are under way, and special arrangements to handle the visitors have been instituted by the traffic department.

In speaking to the Financial Post, Mr. J. R. Dawson, manager of the Vancouver Publicity Bureau, who has directed the campaign for several years, says:

"With assistance from the government, on the people, such as has been given to the motor industries of this province there is no reason why the tourist industry should not in ten years give us a greater revenue than the lumber industry which last year yielded some $60,000,000. One of the advantages of the tourist traffic is that while the province of British Columbia has $60,000,000 worth of lumber less than it had in 1921, yet it still has the same scenic attractions that it had in 1921, although $20,000,000 has been paid for enjoying these, by the visitor from other parts and the wealth of the province has not been depleted in that way at all.

"That this money goes into every possible avenue of business, that it benefits the man on the land as well as the man in the city may be realized from the following figures:

"B.C. had last year on her farms 50,000 sheep. The tourists passing through Vancouver ate over 25,000 sheep and thus gave a market for half the total available supply. They consumed 42,000 bags of vegetables, 420,000 pounds of fruit, 3,500 cattle, 8,400 hogs, 2,100,000 loaves of bread and in each case they were the ultimate consumer and paid the highest price for these products.

"We are determined to give serious attention now to the proper development of this profitable business. We wish that the men in the other parts of Canada could realize the opportunities that are before them for the exploitation of their many beautiful playgrounds."—Financial Post.

A PRETTY SUMMER FROCK.

4410 White voile embroidered in green and finished with bindings of green organza. Is here portrayed. This model is nice for the new summer silk; also for crepe, tulle,ingham and linen.

The Pattern is cut in 7 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 38 inch size requires 4 1/2 yards of 40 inch material. The width at the foot is 2 1/2 yards. Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

A SMART SUIT STYLE.

4393-4418. This style owes its originality to the smart Eton pocket and the equally attractive wrap skirt. The vest may be omitted. Sports crepe was used in this instance. Linen, pongee, tulle or tulle would also be attractive.

The Jacket Pattern 4393, is cut in 4 Sizes: 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. The Skirt, 4418 in 7 Sizes: 14, 16 and 20 years for Misses, and 21, 23, 25 and 27 inches waist measure for Ladies. To make this suit for an 18 year size will require 4 1/2 yards of 40 inch material. To make vest and sleeve facings of contracting material requires 3/4 yard. The width of the skirt at the foot is about 3 yards.

Two separate patterns mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

A Bit of Common Sense.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to comment on a few remarks that have already been made. One of these is, "that the Tories are getting quiet." Well I should think that is common sense, and it would be much better if the Liberals would get quiet too, as they seem to be doing the most hollering at the present time; perhaps it would be much better for us all to live a quiet life, and each one do his own work.

Now I say, I never was a party man until 1919; I always chose my man and voted for him, regardless of party, sect or creed. In 1919 I was fully persuaded that we needed a change; I then fought and voted for the present Government; I never asked a five cent favor of that Government during their three and a half years neither did I expect anything from the party that I supported this spring. I leave that for those who are generally seeking for it, and who cannot satisfy themselves otherwise. Mr. Coaker also referred to the majority as proving the right of the Government to be in power. Well, I want to say, Mr. Editor, that majority is no proof of right or truth, which may be proven in many instances both ancient and modern. The Israelites were having a hard time of it in the wilderness, and so sent spies to see if there was any better way out of it; had they listened to the majority of the spies, they may have been in the wilderness yet, as we are, but they proved the truth by listening to the smaller number. Last Fall I was on the Prospero when going to Greenpond; dozens of men were on deck, and were satisfied we were all right; a few said we were wrong; one man spoke to the man in command, so we proved the few were true, to our sorrow. One wise man said follow the multitude and you will be always wrong. Well, always may not be true, but in most cases it is; I do not know why it is, but I suppose as it is easier to do the wrong than the right, and man generally pursues the easier way.

I have also been reminded that Mr. Coaker has been asking some of our people, "am I not feeling sore over the election?" I would like to say to Mr. Coaker that my sores were quickly healed, and as there were no bones broken, and I did not lose much sleep over it, my strength did not decay; so I am not suffering any inability to-day, and am pursuing my duty in life as usual. I did what I did conscientiously. But I suppose we judge others by how we would feel ourselves if we were in their places, if so, Mr. Coaker had better reserve his sympathy, for his time will come as all others have come before him. But why ramble over the past. More than half of our troubles come to us by brooding over the past, which we cannot alter, and over the future which never comes. One wise man said; "One thing I do by forgetting those things which are behind, I press forward in life." I think that would be a good motto for Liberals and Tories, Government and People. The only cure for most of our troubles is to lay aside all envy and strife, hatred and malice, forgetting those little differences, and pull together for the common good of cause and all; so why not settle down to business, and do our share as men. These are the men that Britain wants, these are the bulwarks of the State.

Trust no Party, Sect or Fashion. Trust no Leader in the Fight. Trust in every word and action. Trust in God and do what's right. And until each of us is content to settle down to work and give "an honest day's work for an honest day's pay," we shall not be much better. Complaining won't help matters, for when we are satisfied, (Government and People) to shoulder the burdens and take upon us the responsibility that is laid upon us, for the good of each and all, then we shall see the country in which we live; begin to get better, and blame no one for what I am, and blame myself for what I am not. So why not get a hustle on and employ those who are looking for employment in time of harvest.

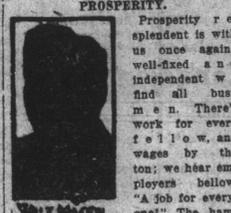

They say God comes to those with patience wait. But there's a rule is better: The man who hurries on his way. Will get there all the quicker.

Thanking you Mr. Editor, for space, I am,
Yours very truly,
E. P. PARSONS.

PROSPERITY.
Prosperity is with us once again; well-fixed and independent we find all busy men. There's work for every fellow, and wages by employers bellow. "A job for every one!" The hammer and the chisel are busy every day, and he's a hopeless fizzle who lags the hours away. The carpenter is carrying the barbor' wildly bars, the eager hard is harping, the farmer grows his yards. The publisher is printing his highly moral sheet—where'er we may be squinting, prosperity we meet. And now our skins are sunny, and fortune on us smiles, let us salt down some money in fair and decent piles. We had a legion lately, when every one was rich, and we were earning greatly, but had the spendthrift's itch. We all wore silks and satins, on luscious pies we fed, and scorned, as puffing fables the bankers' tales of dread. On all the trees around us we saw the money grow, and why should seers confound us with fables of future woe? Ah, well, you all remember the frost that came that day, the bleakness of December suppressed the bloom of May. We soaked our silken singlets, our jeweled farthingales, and tore our beards and ringlets, and sent up heartlock walls. Oh, had the valmer than wasting useful goods; so let us now be saner, be truly cautious lads.

Noiseless Trolley Cars.

Minneapolis and St. Paul and suburban territories are to have virtually noiseless street cars in the not distant future. After years of experiment the Twin City Rapid Transit Company, which operates street cars in both cities and suburbs, has had its engineers build a trolley car that it free from most of the noxious noise attendant upon present day traction operation. Work on the construction of the new car began when the motor, weighing about 900 pounds, was put on the market by large electrical equipment concerns to replace the old motor weighing 2,400 pounds. The journal box, which on the old cars protrudes out from the wheel, will be replaced inside and adjoining the wheel. The new cars also have a rubber cushion over the spiral roller which supports the weight of the truck, the car and the passenger load, and they are a great factor as a noise eliminator. These cushions will carry a load of 48,000 pounds. The trucks are also equipped with what is known as a swinging spring plank which enables the use of a combination of springs that take up the overload and are easily adjustable at all times. Compared to the weight of 43,000 pounds for the old car, the new trolleys weigh 25,000 pounds, have the same carrying capacity and will stand the wear and tear as well as the old cars, according to transit officials. One of the important eliminators of noise in the new car is the band brake, similar to the automobile brake, which works on the wheel drum rather than the old shoe brake

The Annual Regatta.

A little over four weeks now remain in which to make all due preparations for a successful Regatta on the first of August. Within the next week, therefore, boat owners and committee men should encourage to their utmost all who are capable of handling the oars to form up the necessary crews.

None of us want to see a programme at the last moment with only two or three boats entered in most of the contests, for such would destroy a lot of the interest that the public wishes to see in evidence.

It was noticeable that several of our park seats were placed on the north bank last summer for the comfort of those attending and they were much appreciated. The old timers especially would welcome improvements in this direction, for it would afford them an opportunity to get together and talk over the days when they were boys. Several long, plain board seats with a substantial back to rest against, such as the habitues of the park enjoy, would fill the bill. These should be especially reserved for elderly citizens, and not monopolized by youngsters.

To the harbor pilots of the long ago, considerable credit accrued owing to the immense interest they took in promoting the Annual Regatta. Their avocation naturally impelled them to be deeply interested in aquatic sport. Many are the records they made upon Regatta Day, and many are the names of the boats in which they figured, three of the leading ones being the John, the Elizabeth, and the Hawk.

In the summer of 1875 there was an exciting contest on the lake between a crew of English Captains, who were in port with their schooner, and a crew of harbor pilots "our native boys," they were then termed. The bold sailor man had been around the city a few weeks previous to the race listening to the usual pre-arranged discussion and so felt they would like to take a hand in a race themselves.

They were all stalwart specimens of humanity, because of their seafaring career and with considerable training and experience in handling pilot boats and oars. In the Old Country they had participated often in boat racing, and in order to show our St. John's pilots the proper way to row and to handle oars, they issued a public challenge against them.

To those of our citizens on the mercantile premises with whom they became friendly, after arriving here, they expressed themselves to the effect that our pilots were very good men but that they are rather slow and awkward, as appeared from their practice in the proper handling of the oars, where artistic skill should be used to make a decent showing against professional touches of the "college trained" oarsmen.

The native boys accepted the challenge promptly and selected to compete against the foreign captains the following crew: Frank Leary, Wm. Scott, Michael McLaughlin, Jas. Griffin, Frank Gallishaw, and Wm. Vinicombe, with Richard Vinicombe as Coxswain.

Quite a number of their friends were very pessimistic over the pilot's

Methodist Conference Notes.

YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

The first order of business on Friday morning was to fix Sunday services at 10.45 a.m. instead of 11 a.m. in accordance with the programme for Memorial Day. The report of the Sustentation Fund was presented by Rev. J. A. W. Wilkinson showing that the total claims on the fund amounted to $5000. The receipts came to $1200. Rev. Edwin Moore was appointed Treasurer of this fund to succeed the late Rev. W. H. Browning. Grants were made to the following circuits:—

Pouch Cove (2 years) . . . . .	273.00
Brigus . . . . .	20.00
Clarke's Beach . . . . .	35.00
Harbor Grace (special) . . . . .	270.00
Victoria . . . . .	160.00
Western Bay . . . . .	45.00
Lower Island Cove . . . . .	50.00
Old Perlican . . . . .	300.00
Hant's Harbor . . . . .	20.00
Newtown . . . . .	10.00
Twillingate . . . . .	20.00
Fortune . . . . .	156.00

Dr. Fenwick presented the report of the Superannuation Fund showing an increase for the year of $48,000 and total claims of $429,000. The balance from last year of $10,000 has been greatly increased while the annual pensions have almost doubled—the total capital of the fund is $2,320,000 at an average of earning of 6.25 per cent. in securities which are gilt edged. The minimum annuity of widows has been increased from $200 to $250 and for children from $75.00 to $100.00 annually. A bonus on retirement is also almost immediately in sight.

Dr. Curtis moved, Rev. Newman seconded that a letter of love and sympathy be sent to two veterans of the Conference, Dr. Cowperthwaite and Rev. Nurse who are too infirm to attend the sessions this year. This was unanimously and sympathetically carried.

Rev. O. Jackson presented the report of committee on Religious Education. There were 236 church schools and 50 young people's societies. The Conference was urged to adopt: (1) Pledge-signing campaigns; (2) The memory course of the General Conference; (3) Religious Education in the day schools, to include the daily home reading of the Sunday school lesson as found in the Church Calendar; (4) Pocket Testament Leagues and Summer Schools.

Rev. Frank Langford was then heard by the Conference. He is one of the 35 members of the Interdenominational Committee in 1923 choosing the lessons which will be studied in 1927 by 20,000,000 Sunday School folks in North America. All the expenses of the department represented by Mr. Langford are met at the Rally Day offerings. He made an earnest appeal for a whole-hearted and generous response to these offerings this year.

The standing committee was nominated to include all the preachers in the city, and in addition, Messrs. H. N. Burt, Leslie Curtis, Inspector Hutchings, Robt. Joyce, Geo. Gushue, J. C. Pratt, Arthur Mews. By vote of Conference the name of W. White was added to be added. Rev. W. B. Bugden was nominated as a member of the General Board.

The report of the Orphanage Committee was presented by H. N. Burt, the total receipts from the outports amounted to $1150. Dr. Robinson, Chairman of the Board, spoke on the general situation—the financial districts were directed to make arrangements looking to an objective of $2,200 from the outports.

A discussion on the report of the Committee in Social Service and Evangelism, ensued which was taken part in by Drs. Curtis, Darby, Dunn, and Fenwick; Messrs. Abbott, Burt and other laymen, as well as a number of the younger brethren. Much enthusiasm and earnestness marked the debate throughout. Immediately afterwards the Conference were the guests of Mr. Simmonds of the Green Lantern, who treated them to a dish of delicious ice cream.

Prime Minister Sir Richard and Lady Squires entertained the Conference at dinner at Wood's Restaurant. A vote of appreciation and thanks, moved by Dr. Curtis, seconded by Mr. Newman, supported by Dr. Trepan and Mr. Langford, was unanimously passed.

Dr. Trepan gave the second of his spiritual conference addresses at 8.30. Many found to possess a great number of instincts less developed than in the creatures—the work of Education is to draw out their instincts or turn

YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

The first order of business on Friday morning was to fix Sunday services at 10.45 a.m. instead of 11 a.m. in accordance with the programme for Memorial Day. The report of the Sustentation Fund was presented by Rev. J. A. W. Wilkinson showing that the total claims on the fund amounted to $5000. The receipts came to $1200. Rev. Edwin Moore was appointed Treasurer of this fund to succeed the late Rev. W. H. Browning. Grants were made to the following circuits:—

Pouch Cove (2 years) . . . . .	273.00
Brigus . . . . .	20.00
Clarke's Beach . . . . .	35.00
Harbor Grace (special) . . . . .	270.00
Victoria . . . . .	160.00
Western Bay . . . . .	45.00
Lower Island Cove . . . . .	50.00
Old Perlican . . . . .	300.00
Hant's Harbor . . . . .	20.00
Newtown . . . . .	10.00
Twillingate . . . . .	20.00
Fortune . . . . .	156.00

Dr. Fenwick presented the report of the Superannuation Fund showing an increase for the year of $48,000 and total claims of $429,000. The balance from last year of $10,000 has been greatly increased while the annual pensions have almost doubled—the total capital of the fund is $2,320,000 at an average of earning of 6.25 per cent. in securities which are gilt edged. The minimum annuity of widows has been increased from $200 to $250 and for children from $75.00 to $100.00 annually. A bonus on retirement is also almost immediately in sight.

Dr. Curtis moved, Rev. Newman seconded that a letter of love and sympathy be sent to two veterans of the Conference, Dr. Cowperthwaite and Rev. Nurse who are too infirm to attend the sessions this year. This was unanimously and sympathetically carried.

Rev. O. Jackson presented the report of committee on Religious Education. There were 236 church schools and 50 young people's societies. The Conference was urged to adopt: (1) Pledge-signing campaigns; (2) The memory course of the General Conference; (3) Religious Education in the day schools, to include the daily home reading of the Sunday school lesson as found in the Church Calendar; (4) Pocket Testament Leagues and Summer Schools.

Rev. Frank Langford was then heard by the Conference. He is one of the 35 members of the Interdenominational Committee in 1923 choosing the lessons which will be studied in 1927 by 20,000,000 Sunday School folks in North America. All the expenses of the department represented by Mr. Langford are met at the Rally Day offerings. He made an earnest appeal for a whole-hearted and generous response to these offerings this year.

The standing committee was nominated to include all the preachers in the city, and in addition, Messrs. H. N. Burt, Leslie Curtis, Inspector Hutchings, Robt. Joyce, Geo. Gushue, J. C. Pratt, Arthur Mews. By vote of Conference the name of W. White was added to be added. Rev. W. B. Bugden was nominated as a member of the General Board.

MEMORIAL DAY.

WHEN SHALL THEIR GLORY FADE?

To-morrow, July 1st, the 7th anniversary of the memorial Battle of Beaumont Hamel, our citizens will, in commemoration of that fatal yet glorious day, pay tribute to those of her gallant sons who made the supreme sacrifice and upheld the glorious traditions of the British race throughout the civilized world. Heroes all, these gallant soldiers of Newfoundland and of the British Empire, well deserved the plaudits of the nation and her allies in the cause of right and justice. That they were "Better than the Best," a title so appropriately attributed to them by their gallant Brigadier, the pride of the oldest Colony, despite unsurmountable odds, won fame and glory. Their deeds of renown will live to fill the pages of history for generations to come. To-morrow's service will remind us of a duty we owe to the brave dead. They failed us not in the great hour of trial and, with unswerving fidelity to the cause of Justice and Right, gave up their lives. It is our privilege to honour their memory. So accordingly, with bowed heads, we solemnly commemorate their greatness, and in silent prayer we Christians of the Christian world will pay our respects to the bravest of the Brave. They died that we might live. When Shall Their Glory Fade?

There lies a land in the West and North, Whither the bravest men went forth And daunted not by fog nor ice They reached at last to a Paradise. A land to be won by those who dare. No wonder the English chose it first, And they named it Newfoundland at sight. It's rather the land of Heart's Delight.

A Twelve Mile Limit.

The question of the admission of British and other European countries' ships liquor stores into the ports of the United States is becoming more acute, fraught with the seeds of national ill-feeling as the days go by. Uncle Sam now proposes the extension of the three mile limit to twelve miles in return for permission for British and other foreign ships to bring sealed liquor stores into American territorial waters. The British Prime Minister, Stanley Baldwin, announced in the House of Commons last week that the question, whether it may be necessary in defence of British interests to resort to measures counteracting the injuries done to British ships by the ruling forbidding them to bring intoxicating liquors as ships' stores into American ports, would receive early and due consideration. An attempt has been made in the United States lately to bring about a settlement by a reciprocal treaty to solve the problem, but the maritime nations of Europe, with whom the proposal has to be negotiated, have anything but a receptive attitude towards the conditions outlined. This action was taken as a come back to Great Britain in asking for a conference two weeks ago on the legitimacy of the American ban on supplies coming in their ships to United States ports. The United States flatly refused to take part in any such conference and took the position that their nation could not confer with a foreign nation on a domestic law. France, Italy, Spain and the Scandinavian countries are equally determined with Great Britain against any interference with the immemorial custom to carry on their ships liquor supplies sufficient for crews rations and medicinal requirements of their passenger ships till the end of the round trip, and they do not feel disposed any more than Great Britain to leave the matter of ship economy to the discretion of Prohibition enforcement agents in the United States. In shipping circles in England the feeling is very intense and the principals of several shipping firms are asking that retaliatory measures be taken against the United States when the liquors on board three British passenger ships were seized a few days ago in New York Harbor by United States officers. The sealing of the stores on entering port does not at all satisfy them, and the high handed conduct accorded the British captains was almost more than their British spirit could endure without retaliation. And so the matter stands while the best minds in Britain and America are counselling patience and forbearance in the hope of finding a way out.

Vice Regal Tour.

We have been requested to state that his Excellency the Governor and Lady Allardyce, accompanied by Major P. F. Wilberforce-Bell, Military Secretary and A.D.C. returned to St. John's on H. M. S. Wisteria about one o'clock on Thursday the 28th. The gubernatorial party left town on the 21st, but owing to the heavy fog, which was followed by a high gale on the 22nd, it was impossible to make Buri as arranged, and they did not reach there until Saturday the 23rd, when a warm welcome was extended. The party went ashore in the afternoon and inspected the various places of interest and were present at a largely attended meeting in the evening. On Sunday the 24th, the Wisteria proceeded to Belloram, and on Monday morning, the 25th the party landed and an inspection was made of the township and an address of welcome received. In the afternoon of the same day the Wisteria visited Harbour Breton and on the 26th reached Grand Bank. Shortly after leaving Grand Bank at 11.30 p.m., heavy fog was met, followed by thunder storms and rain squalls. An effort was made to reach Placentia on Wednesday morning the 27th, but owing to the heavy fog the attempt was eventually abandoned, and because of the Governor's other engagements the Wisteria had to return to St. John's. The people of Placentia were notified and his Excellency promised to visit them by rail at a later date.

The Great Deception.

There are many phases of the recent election that engage the mind's retrospection, but the one that has produced the most injurious results is the "great deception" practised on the fishermen of the country in leading them to confidently believe that if they thought they could not make their wages at the fishery under present conditions, and decided not to go, they need not worry as there would be, three weeks after the election, plenty of employment in the Humber Valley for all who wished to go there. A gentleman who returned from the northern bays yesterday said that "the scenes witnessed in the harbours that he visited would break your heart. It was tragic to see the normally able-bodied men, weak with privation, rushing in hundreds to the post offices when the mails came in hoping to get the long-awaited-for ticket to go to the Humber." He was reminded of a pathetic song, entitled "The letter that never came." The people are too hopeless and too weak even to be resentful or angry and need all that an affliction sent upon them by Providence, of which it is useless to complain. Most of those men would have been at the fishery if they had not taken so confidently and seriously the professions of the politicians in the hall and on the platforms in April last. No preparation was therefore made for the fishery, and now that the summer is advanced to July it is too late to attempt anything in this direction. Never was such cruel deception practised on an innocent and trusting people, and how those responsible for it can rest with easy consciences and go about their daily avocations "sleek and fat and smiling" is something that is hard to understand. It looks as if about 1,000 to 1,500 men will be all that are needed by the contractors at the Humber in this summer. There must be at least ten thousand to-day waiting in a vain hope for that pass to the Humber. No doubt the Government will be only too glad to send them all out if they could, but they cannot do so because the contractors do not want them and they are not in this country to accommodate politicians or for the good of their health. It is a pity that the Government candidates, especially the Prime Minister, did not tell the people this before the election. He knew that it would be so, but the people received the message in well chosen words that were susceptible to only one interpretation, viz: plenty of well paid work at the Humber for all who want to go there. Who, then, will deny that this was the cruelest deception ever practised on the men of Newfoundland.

Seal's Passengers Transferred to Ranger.

SHIP UNABLE TO PROCEED NORTH—HEAVY ICE CONDITIONS REPORTED. The Coastal Department was advised this morning that the Ranger was alongside the Seal, and took on board a large number of the disabled ship's passengers for their destination. Owing to the solid jam of ice being met with, the ship is detained from getting further North, and will await the first favorable opportunity. The Sagona left St. Anthony yesterday morning to take the balance of the passengers and freight, but their was no report of her reaching the Seal up to press hour.

Oporto Market Report.

Lind and Couto, fish importers, Oporto, writing to the Board of Trade under date of June 7, says: "Since we last reported demand for British cure has continued fair and prices are maintained. The demand for Norwegian cure has also been fair, but has not affected to any extent the consumption of British." The report adds that the position of the market is favorable, but further shipments of British and Norwegian were on the way. The concluding paragraph says: "It is with deep regret we have to inform you of the death of Mr. Manoel Jose da Silva Couto, which took place at a later date."

Shipping.

Schr. Casaria sailed to-day for Pernambuco, fish laden from Monroe Export Co. Schr. Evelyn sailed yesterday, salt laden for Sydney. Schr. Bastian, owned by Earle & Sons, Pogo, arrived in port to-day in ballast. Schr. Arctis has sailed from Pogo for Sydney in ballast. Schr. Faustina is loading codfish at Ramona from Penny & Sons, Clehant and G. H. Ingraham.

In Passing.

According to a contemporary, our reference in this column two weeks ago, respecting a proposed re-organization of the Controller's Department, is in contemplation. Also the appointment of Hon. Mr. Mews to the position of Deputy to the Auditor General at a salary of $3,500 a year, will be announced in the House of Assembly on Tuesday next when the Prime Minister will introduce a Bill to amend the Audit Act which will provide for this appointment. Hon. Mr. Mews resigned his position with the Advocate on Monday to take a short holiday before assuming his new duties. He is succeeded by Mr. Clouster, Private Secretary of Sir William Ford Coaker.

Last year the profits from the Controller's Department amounted to almost half a million dollars, and it is evident that the Government is determined to add to this figure this year. We understand that the contemplated enquiry into the recent burglary which took place at the Controller's offices, is dropped.

The investigation ceased suddenly after the report of the police detective was made to the authorities with the result that many rumors were circulated which the Government, in their wisdom, deemed it prudent not to ventilate.

Within a few weeks, however, the proposed changes will be made public, and it is probable that two additional dispensaries will be opened, and the present "obnoxious" script business will be done away with.

The appointment of Hon. Mr. Mews is to say the least, a decidedly unpopular one, as the only necessity for same is to provide a job for the compiler of the Outport Public Messages, which rendered such valuable services to the Government in the recent election.

Many of these messages are prized as souvenirs, and will be interesting in the course of time.

The Estimates will be tabled at the next sitting of the Legislature, when some surprises are predicted.

It is authoritatively stated that some well known public officials, who supported the Government, will be rewarded with substantial increases. It is learned of one in particular, who is a junior clerk in a financial department, who is voted an increase of $400, and henceforth will enjoy a salary greater than that of the First Clerk of the Customs.

The Public Accounts which were asked for by the Opposition three weeks ago, have not yet been tabled. The Prime Minister affirming they were in the hands of the binders. It was customary that these accounts be tabled the second day of the meeting of the Legislature, and it is to be hoped that the Opposition will demand them without further delay.

OVER THE TOP GOES TO SYDNEY CAPTAIN. The schr. "Over the Top," built at Birchy Bay, N.D.B., in 1919 and until recently employed in the fish carrying trade has been purchased by Capt. Jas. H. MacKinnon of Sydney. Capt. MacKinnon will leave here in ballast during next week for his home port. The purchase price for the "Over the Top" is said to be less than $10,000. Capt. MacKinnon formerly plied here in the cattle trade from Prince Edwards Island. He then commanded the Congo, afterwards changed to the Gladys C. Widdon.

Magistrates Court.

Two young men named Connors and Rumsay appeared on a charge of stowing away on board the S.S. Canadian Sapper, bound from St. John's to Montreal. Const. Doody, who gave evidence, stated that the accused were given in his charge by the captain of the ship, after calling at St. Lawrence, and were brought to the city by rail yesterday. The stowaways, who pleaded guilty, were remanded to the penitentiary until the captain arrives to give evidence. A drunk and disorderly was released.

An Eskimo, belonging to Okak, Labrador, arrested for being drunk, was granted his release. Const. Augustus Pike had three young men summoned into court for kicking football on the public street. The charge was not pressed. Each of the accused was allowed to go upon paying costs.

JUVENILE COURT.

Mr. John J. Duff had five boys before the Juvenile Court for malicious damage to property. The boys were let go with a caution. A 15 year old laborer George Street, arrested by the police for being drunk and disorderly was sentenced to 10 lashes.

PARADE AND PRESENTATION.

Thursday night at 8 p.m. the C.C.C. paraded in their Armoury in full strength, under the personal command of Lt-Col. Conroy, O.B.E., O.C. A full staff of officers were on duty. No. 1 Company under the command of Capt. Chas. McGrath; No. 2 Company was under command of Captain Lacey. The newly organized brass band, consisting of thirty-six instruments was under command of Lieut. N. Murphy, Band Master. The drum and bugle band was under command of Sergt-Major McGinn. The Lt-Col. was attended by members of his staff including Major J. J. O'Grady, M.B.E., second in command, and Capt. J. M. Spearns. The Battalion was put through the different military maneuvers by Major O'Grady. At the close of drill the Lt-Col. presented the new trumpets to the Bugle Band. All arrangements are now completed for the first of July Memorial Parade. Again it is urgently requested that all members of the Corps, who are in possession of uniforms and who did not parade on Thursday night will attend to-morrow, and show honor to the memory of the fallen. We are greatly pleased upon once a year to show our love and respect to those who laid down their lives for King and Country and the greatest evidence of our love and remembrance to our deceased members can be shown by an unreserved parade. The Assembly will go at 15 a.m. at the Armoury.

A most enjoyable card party was held last evening at the bungalow in Bowring Park and was attended by about one hundred people. The party assembled at Springdale and Water Streets and at 8.30 were conveyed by several busses and motor cars to the Park. The drive through the valley of Waterford, "The Avoce of Newfoundland," with its beautiful scenery and picturesque bungalow dotting the green hill sides, was most enjoyable. The game chosen by the party was auction forty-five and the prizes were keenly contested. Mr. T. J. Freeman being the lucky one on the gentleman's side, winning a tin of baccos and Mrs. Leahy winning the prize for the ladies, a gold piece. The Misses Hynes and Allan, who promoted the party are to be congratulated on their success and also in the selection of the place. The refreshments served were pleasing to all. The party returned to town at midnight after a most enjoyable evening.

Obituary.

MRS. CATHERINE DEVINE. Word of the death of Mrs. Catherine Devine, of King's Cove, B.B., has recently been received in the city. This remarkable lady, who had attained the 80th milestone, was a life-long resident of King's Cove, and was hale and hearty practically up to the time of her death. Mrs. Devine was a woman of exemplary Christian character and was endeared and beloved by all who knew her. The deceased lady was the daughter of John Martin, an old-time planter and seakiller, and married Michael Devine, who predeceased her about twenty years ago. Four sons are left to mourn, John M. New York; Maurice, Boston; Const. Pat., Hr. Main; and William, at home, to whom the Telegram offers its sincere condolences.

Master or Man?

(By SIR SYDNEY M. SKINNER.) Opportunity comes to every man, not once in a lifetime, but thousands of times.

This statement will be challenged, I know, but in my long experience of business I have been forced to admit the truth of it. The man who succeeds is the man who recognises opportunity when it comes, and by every means in his power, consistent with honest principles, uses that opportunity to further his business interests.

At first sight it appears difficult to lay down any fixed rules as to whether a man should strive for success by sticking to his job under a master or going into business for himself.

"It all depends on the man," you may say. Certainly it does; but it is my firm belief that the man who succeeds while working for others is of exactly the same type as the one who achieves success in business for himself.

Stick to It!

There is the matter in a nutshell. The one man, by sheer continuous hard work, makes himself indispensable to those who employ him, and the other, by the same methods, makes himself indispensable to the community.

The one desire of a great many people is to possess a business of their own. Some are out merely to gain personal liberty, but it often happens that a man, although his own master, becomes a slave to everyone else.

Others are ruined by lack of control. An engagement, more attractive than business, turns up during business hours. "And why shouldn't I go?" they argue. "Who is there to dictate to me?" And so their business suffers.

I have known men who spend valuable time, which might be used to advantage in furthering their business interests, in politics, and even billiards or golf. These "side lines" are excellent in their way, but they should come after business.

It must not be thought that I wish to decry interest in politics or public affairs—indeed, the civic spirit is to be encouraged. But by sticking close to business, making trade, circulating money and providing work for others, a man can often serve society and his country in the best way possible.

The man who is in business for himself needs vision. He must know just what the buying public wants. He must be able to provide those things that will make his business grow, because of the increasing demand for them. He must be able to choose the right position for his premises, in keeping with the reasonable rent and charges that he can afford. In the case of a shop, this has more to do with success than is usually supposed.

Some men who do not find enough scope for their brains within the limits of one successful store, open others, and thus we get multiple stores. Such a man, when he commences fresh enterprise, has the ball at his feet.

No Such Thing as Luck.

For my own part, my opportunity lay in sticking to my job as one of the staff of a growing business, and I hope I may say that I have made the best of it. I don't believe in luck. If a man has made up his mind to succeed, he will do so in spite of circumstances.

That "Heaven-sent opportunity" does not come by accident to the man who works hard; he makes it himself. Because of his diligence, he is singled out by those above him as the right man for the job. They recognise that he will put his whole heart and soul into the work and get the best possible results.

And the cronies, looking on, say: "So-and-so's a lucky fellow! Seems to get all the opportunities! Wish I had his luck!" But "luck" had nothing to do with So-and-so's success. Because he put more into his work than the other fellows he got better results. Surely an employer of labour has the right to give the most responsible position to the man or woman from whom he gets the best work? I have no sympathy with the fellow who says: "I never get a chance! I

Large and Red. Itched and Burned. Cuticura Heals.

"My face was itchy and broke out with large, red pimples. They were scattered all over my face and itched and burned so that I scratched which caused them to grow larger. I could hardly sleep at night. They were a real torture and my face was a sight. The trouble lasted about three months. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and the first treatment stopped the itching and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." can't get on!" He must make a chance for himself, and he can do that by working hard at the job for which he is most fitted.

When trade is bad chiefs of big business houses have to perform the unpleasant duty of decreasing their staff. It is not a task that any man with a heart would take pleasure in doing, yet it is sometimes a necessity.

But mark what happens. The chief goes to the manager of the department where the trade slump is being most felt. For the sake of illustration, we will suppose that the departmental manager has a staff of ten, which the chief proposes to reduce to eight. Because he wishes to be quite fair, he might suggest that Jones and Brown, the two men who have been with the firm the shortest time, must go.

The Man Who Is "Aired."

The manager says: "I can't do without Jones. He is one of the most useful men I have. From the moment he arrives in the morning until he leaves in the evening he works hard, and already he knows more about the department than some who have been here twice as long."

Thus the process of elimination is begun. Jones must not go because he is too valuable. And who shall say that Jones does not deserve his "luck"? He has made himself indispensable to the manager, who, when he has to reduce his staff, naturally gets rid of those who are of least use to him.

Brown, perhaps, is one of those men of whom I have spoken, who allows his private affairs to interfere with his business—discusses them in the office, and wastes both his own time and that of others. Brown is certainly one of those who will go when trade is bad.

The principle is the same in the case of the two men in business for would be the more likely to succeed in themselves. Whom do you suppose a business of his own—Jones or Brown?

Young men of the right sort are of vital necessity in the business world, to take positions of responsibility. They bring with them the ideas of the new generation.

Younger people are earning money and spending it. To supply their needs young men and women are wanted who understand them and can provide them with what they want.

Records in Thinness.

Platinum wire has been drawn so fine that 20,000 pieces of it placed side by side would not cover more than an inch, while 150 pieces bound together would be necessary to form a thread as thick as a filament of raw silk.

A mile of this wire would not weigh more than a grain, while seven ounces of it would extend from London to New York.

Fine as is the filament produced by the silkworm that produced by the spider is even more attenuated. If, for instance, a thread of a spider's web measured four miles, it would weigh little more than a grain.

As a soap bubble floats in the light of the sun it reflects to the eye an endless variety of gorgeous tints. Newton showed that to each of these tints corresponds a certain thickness of the substance forming the bubble; in fact, he showed that all transparent substances, when reduced to a certain degree of thinness, would reflect these colours.

Near the highest point of the bubble, just before it bursts, can be seen a spot which reflects no colour and appears thick. According to Newton, the thickness of the bubble at this black point is the 2,500,000,000th part of an inch!

First Aid for Clothes.

Nothing is more annoying at holiday-time than to find that one's smartest clothes have been disfigured by a stain of some kind. If the wrong methods are used matters will become worse, for the stain may be increased in size and made permanent. Sea-water has a staining action on account of the chemicals it contains. Any fabric that has been wetted by it should be placed as soon as possible in fresh water and steeped for a short time. If this is done there will usually be no stain.

Do not use soap for dealing with fruit stains. Use hot water, and if this does not remove the discoloration try spunging with weak acetic acid, afterwards rinsing well.

Ink stains should never be sponged with water, for this causes them to spread. Place the stained material in a saucer of milk. A subsequent sponging with cold water will take out any marks made by the milk.

If a spot of grease is dropped on clothing, as much as possible should be removed by gentle scraping. The material should then be placed under a sheet of clean blotting-paper and a hot iron applied. The heat melts the grease and the blotting-paper soaks it up.

Our Montreal Letter.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Montreal, June 22nd.—The financial report of the Catholic School Commission of Montreal for the fiscal year 1921-22, has just been issued. It covers 248 pages of printed matter, and contains all the receipts and expenses of the Commission, the number of pupils attending in each District, the average daily attendance, the number of teachers, both religious and lay, the salaries paid, the cost per capita to educate each child, the names of the different schools and the number of pupils attending each school, the report of the Comptroller of Finance, and the assets and liabilities of the Commission. This report simply deals with primary schools, and does not include private schools, Colleges, High Schools, or Technical Schools. Here are a few facts about the Catholic primary schools of the Metropolis of Canada which may interest your readers.

1. There are 191 schools managed by the Commission.
2. There are 2458 teachers employed, of which 1479 are religious and 979 are lay teachers.
3. 86,487 pupils are in attendance. This does not include Westmount, Outremont, Verdun, and Montreal West.
4. The total cost per capita is $25.44 or with additional expenses $52.48.
5. The daily average attendance is 86 per cent.
6. The total cost of maintenance is $3,923,659.52.
7. The assets amount to $19,850,669.06, and the liabilities to $17,109,989.85, including loans amounting to $7,900.00 bearing interest from 4 to 8 per cent and payable from 5 to 40 years.
8. The School Buildings and Furniture are valued at $18,751,077.49.
9. The School Taxes paid by the City of Montreal were $3,927,548.34, and Government Grants were $43,619.83.
10. The salaries to teachers and caretakers were $1,970,359.28.
11. 20,384 pupils deposited $51,783.57 in the School Saving Bank in all the schools.
12. There are 5 School Visitors, four French and one English-speaking, whose salaries range from $1800 to $2000.
13. Lay Principals receive $2500 and with extras about $2800. The teachers $1200 to $2400.
14. Superiors or Directors of Religious Institutions $850, and each member of the teaching staff $610. The house, light and heat are also furnished by the Commission.
15. Sisters of the different congregations and the Superiores each receive $500 and the dwelling, light and heat free.
16. There are 31 Commissions, 6 in each of the four districts, and 5 on the Central Board whose work deals with the finance of the different districts. The chairman of each district receives $900 a year, and each member $600. The Chairman of the Finance or Central Board receives $1400 and each member $900. There are four Director-Secretaries, and each receives $4,000 a year.
17. Each school is visited twice a year by two school visitors, French and English, and the Provincial Government Inspector.
18. At the end of May each year, each lay teacher receives his or her notice of dismissal, and unless you're given your contract papers to sign for another year, your services are no longer required. This year probably about twenty in all the districts will not be re-engaged.
19. No teacher is allowed to be engaged in any of the schools without his or her Diploma. Up to two years ago, the Provincial Government School Inspectors had the right granted them by the Department of Public Instruction at Quebec to give such teacher or teachers a permit for one year on conditions that the candidate or candidates would write for a Diploma in June of the following year, but this privilege has been abolished.

Track and field athletics are on the upgrade here of late, but even in the record-breaking which accompanies every school meet, such a Saturday of new records as marked the Loyola College annual on Saturday is unusual. No less than thirteen former marks were by the board, of which W. Montabone made two. He won the open half mile in 2:12 3/4, and the 120 yards hurdles in 15 seconds flat, both new records, and in addition won the one mile race in 5:05, and the open broad jump, in which he cleared 19 feet 10 inches. It was the second year in succession he has won the senior aggregate.

Out-of-town delegates to the Canadian Medical Association paid a visit to the Montreal General Hospital where they inspected the big centrally located hospital where thousands of accident cases are treated in the outdoor department, and where men, women and children are cared for and treated daily.

The delegates found much to ponder over in the various wards and departments where doctors and surgeons attend to the wants of the patient in a thorough and scientific manner. Many of the worst cases were being studied during the visit of the delegates, who expressed their admiration for the thoroughness of the preparation for handling the slightest cut to the most serious cases.

The "dope" habit is even practiced in public. Here is a case from a personal observation of a friend, which will show how this thing is spreading. One evening recently while strolling around Mount Royal he passed a couple sitting on one of the benches. They were apparently only the ordinary sponsor man and girl, and the former appeared to be writing in pencil on the girl's arm—possibly some love phrase. As he passed with muffled and unheard steps thru the grass at their back the girl uttered a warning, and the man with an embarrassed laugh, secreted the "pencil" but not before it was evident that it was more than a pencil, but nearer a hypodermic syringe, that was the object with which he was "writing."

Five years in the penitentiary was the sentence imposed on Jas. Murphy by Judge Perrault in the Court of Special Sessions. Murphy was convicted of stealing parcels from the Dominion Express Office, containing silks, valued at $400. When he appeared before Chief Judge Decarie in Enquete Court recently, he made a desperate attempt to escape and actually reached the revolving doors at the entrance to the court house. He was stopped, however, by two lawyers, who barred his way long enough for the guards to catch him.

In passing sentence, Judge Perrault reviewed the past criminal career of the prisoner, which showed that he spent many years behind the prison walls. His last term was two years.

Another penitentiary sentence was passed by Mr. Justice Wilson, of the Court of King's Bench, when Edmond Leclerc was condemned to three years at St. Vincent de Paul, Leclerc, who was charged with attempted murder, but who pleaded guilty to wounding, fired several shots at Mrs. Victor Marcotte, of 353 Sanguinet Street, wounding her very seriously. The passion crime was recognized, and it was understood that it was a case of jealousy, although the case never was tried in the higher courts. When the sentence was imposed, Leclerc, who had so far adopted a stoical attitude, broke into tears.

Our Dumb Animals.

Report of Chief Agent for Week Ending June 29th, 1923.

Attended to the landing of forty-five head of cattle from the Sable I.; also forty-eight head from the train; all in good condition. Saw them all watered, and taken to pasture. Attended two sales of cattle at Campbell & McKay's and one at G. Neal's. Two injured animals were taken away on a sloop. There is a great need of a better conveyance for removing injured animals, which if kept in a central place, it would be an easy matter to secure a team to remove the sick and injured beasts.

Perhaps some of our humanly disposed citizens, who are in sympathy with our dumb animals, would make us a present of one. There are also complaints about pigs and hens arriving by steamers being overcrowded in crates. We have written the agents who will attend to this matter with the shippers in Canada. At the instructions of the Municipal Council Agent, I put to sleep four unlicensed dogs. I was called to Topsail Row about a cow belonging to Mr. Fred Lester, which was struck by a motor truck, owned by the N.B. Brewery. The Veterinary Surgeons, Drs. Smith and Steward are attending to it. I have had to put to death several diseased domestic animals. Quite a number of calls have been attended to regarding lame horses and over-driving. I also humanely put to death a very valuable five-year-old horse owned and raised by Mr. Thomas Murphy, Hamilton Avenue. The horse, in some unaccountable way broke its leg while on pasture. Vet. Surgeon Bishop attended it but was unable to make a cure. The loss a very severe one to the owner. Protect the birds.

WEEK-END NOTES.

CHAPTER XXVI.

INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS.

Long hours and late, were the order of the day in the sixties and seventies, and the question of extra pay was not considered, nor was it at all spoken of. The shops opened at seven in the morning, and for nearly six months of the year they were open until ten and ten-thirty at night. On the arrival of the first sealers, about the first week in April, the Spring's business began to move, and cash began to circulate; and the shops usually opened about the twentieth, and continued so until the second week in June. In the fall they opened about the first of October, and continued so until the New Year. The transport of business at that time, was chiefly by way of the narrows, that is, the most of it had to be shipped by water in that direction. There were not any railways, nor many roads, and the outport trade had to be done within a limited time. Everybody was alike; owners and masters, and men, all were the victims of the system. None of them seemed to stop or to pause, or to enquire as to whether there was a possibility of a better way. Even though the time for the season's trade was limited, there was no necessity for the long hours, which men put in. In the matter of the laborers on the wharves, there was not much overtime, but occasionally vessels were loaded in a hurry, or discharged, as required. There were cases where vessels arrived on one morning and were discharged and ready for market by the next evening. Such cases of course meant a great rush in discharging the cargo, or the ballast, and preparing the ship for cargo, and then loading up and getting supplies on board. It meant all night for everybody, for laborers at the ship and cargo, the tradesmen at their different arts, and the office staff almost the same. In such cases the cargo was usually ready; and being packed before hand, it was a mere matter of rolling the packages on board as fast as many hands could do it. Sometimes in September and October, when several lots of new fish would be landing, there would also be overtime for a couple of evening a week, for the purpose of moving away the fish, and keeping the wharves clear. The men and boys went back at seven o'clock in the evening, and worked until midnight, for which they received the regular daily rates of wages; that is, they received one shilling and sixpence, or thirty cents for the five hours over-time, or as it was then called, the half day. There was no gas in the fish stores at that time, but they were lighted with candles, which were set in the old-fashioned sconces. The only extra consideration that was given the laborers was a preparation of sweetened water and some Hamburg biscuit. The water was usually contained in a ship's bucket and was mixed with about a quart of molasses, which, with a few biscuits, were placed near the store door, inside. This drink of sweetened water was considered a great compliment, and was eagerly availed of by several of the men and lads. Before that period it was the rule to supply a certain amount of liquor to workmen and fishing crews, and daily rations of grog were quite in order. That was before the writer's time and men who drank the sweetened water often spoke about it from their seats out in former days. These were quaint and crude customs, but they were accepted none the less, and were taken as a matter of course. Life at that time seems a much simpler game than it does to-day. We were told by our superiors, and especially by the men who were responsible for our spiritual welfare, that "men wanted but little here below, nor wanted that little long," and that teaching was accepted and followed out in daily life. It was taught as the will of God, and to oppose it would be considered almost felonious. The theory of men wanting but little here below, nor wanted that little long, does not apply to-day; for life has become a much more complicated experience than it was two generations ago. If then, a laboring man had his little house, or tenement, and a barrel of flour, and a hog-head of coal, a gallon of molasses, and some tea, and a pair of boots, a Jimcrow hat, a pair of black pants, and a decent coat, he had all that was considered necessary. His clothes would last him for years. But all that simplicity of life, and plain fare are of the past, and may not be understood by the average person who indulges in the bounties and the luxuries of the present time. The present and future generations have much in their favor, but it has been gained by the price of penury. There may not be any monument erected to the endurance of our fathers, or to the inconveniences which they bore; yet at the same time, the better day that is now up on the world, is in reality a monument, and one that will increase in worth as the century grows.

At the House.

PETITION ON BEHALF OF UNEMPLOYED PRESENTLY CHARGED MADE AGAINST A MINISTER OF THE CROWN MUST BE INVESTIGATED.

House met at 3:15 p.m. Mr. C. Hunt, Senior Member for St. John's West presented a petition from a large number of the unemployed of the District whom he alleged are in a desperate plight owing to the scarcity of work in the City.

Mr. Hunt related some impressive incidents to bear out the story of the hardships borne by these men and their families. In many instances they have been compelled to sell their furniture and household effects to purchase fuel and groceries. He asked the attention and consideration of the Prime Minister who was elected by the people of this District. For his kind consideration to the prayer of this petition. There is a great deal of necessary public work to be done and the sooner it was started the sooner these men who were ready to give honest returns would be in a position to provide for their families.

Mr. Higgins supported the petition knowing the major portion of the unemployed were residents of the Western District. These men, said Mr. Higgins, have set an example worthy of commendation and he was ready to do all in his power to help them.

Mr. Fox also supported the petition. He related many incidents of the past weeks, which illustrated the dire distress and destitution of these men. He agreed with the sentiments thus expressed by the two previous speakers and hoped work, not exactly of a relief character would be found within the next few days.

Sir M. P. Cashin in recording his view told of the election promises of plenty of work. He said that fully 700 men are now seeking relief work in St. John's West. The petition received his hearty support and thought the Government should have some programme that would assist those men who, through no fault of their own, were compelled to thus petition the House. He was going to stand by them through thick and thin and if the Government refuses to do something that he personally would move in the matter.

Hon the Prime Minister.—To ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 23 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Auditing of Public Accounts.'" Hon the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.—To ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled, "An Act to Amend 12 and 13 Geo. 5 Cap. 17, entitled 'An Act for the encouragement of Ship-building.'" Both Bills were read first time.

Mr. P. J. Cashin.—To ask the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture and Mines, if fire wardens have been appointed on other branches of the Railroad except Ferryland. If they have, why is it that this discrimination has been practised.

In reply the Premier said he would seek the information requested and table same on Monday.

This question with some others has been on the order paper for some weeks, but for some unknown reason a reply is not forthcoming. Fire Wardens are appointed in every district except Ferryland.

Mr. P. Cashin informed the House of a series of scandals committed in that district during the past two months. A resident of Bay Bulls was down for $1,500 which he did not receive. Another in Aquaforte was paid $400 out of which sum he repaid his own wharf, built an ice house and painted his own residence. He protested against such outrageous conduct to buy a district which was a scandal that every member of the Assembly should denounce.

Sir M. P. Cashin likewise deplored the manner in which the Government ignored the questions asked by the Opposition. He had made grave charges against a Minister of the Crown but no attention was paid to him or the accusations set forth. He then gave notice that after Monday he would personally take the necessary steps to demand an impartial investigation. He was prepared to sub-

The Antiquity of Linen.

The fragments of linen found in the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen provide unquestionable evidence of the almost everlasting character of flaxen fabrics. Some of the material is in a wonderful state of preservation, especially the sails of certain of the small boats, while most of the linen discovered in the royal chests is merely a chocolate-colored mass of disintegrated fibre. The sails, though yellowed, are of a lighter hue, and seem to be fairly sound.

It appears to be quite certain that linen which has been preserved from contact with the air will retain its strength for many centuries. Mr. A. Lucas, director of the Chemical Department of the Egyptian Government, states that the direct cause of the "browning" has not been determined. It is probably the result of oxidation, caused by the dryness and warmth of the atmosphere of the tomb.

It may be wondered why for the purposes of ceremonies linen is preferred to woolen textiles, seeing that the latter are probably older than the former. The explanation is threefold. Flaxen cloth is less liable to undergo parasitic life than animal fibre, and consequently will last longer than a woolen fabric. Linen too has always been a symbol of purity. In addition it has invariably been regarded as the aristocrat of textiles—probably because of its cost in preparation.

As the outcome of discoveries made during 1918-1920 it has been established that in 3000 B.C. the Egyptians had mills in which were carried on all the numerous processes of linen manufacturing. Among the models—pictures of everyday life in the ancient Nile Valley now in the Cairo Museum—is one representing a linen mill. It dates back much farther than the time of Tut-ankh-Amen, for it was found in the tomb of Wah, a Chancellor in the royal household during the reign of King Menhotep II.

In this model, which combines both spinning and weaving, the women spin and weave in one shop or factory. In all ten operatives are represented. Three women are seated preparing the flax with combs and putting it into buckets. The buckets are conveyed to the other side, where the spinners are shown standing with distaffs in their left hands and turning their spindles with their right hands. When the spindles are full they cross to the opposite side of the room to stretch their newly spun yarn on three pegs on the wall. The spinning wheel did not come into existence until some centuries afterwards.

It is astonishing that with such primitive mechanical appliances, yarns of extraordinary fineness could be produced. The yarn was wound upon a kind of bobbin and so conveyed to the weavers. In this model there are two looms stretched on the floor, and while a woman is engaged at one of the looms, the weaver at the other is attended by several helpers, thrust for what purpose is not clear.

With regard to the loom, Sir Gardiner Wilkinson in his "Manners and Customs of the Ancient Egyptians" describes what may be termed three distinct stages in weaving. In the first, in which two transverse bars are pegged to the ground, the warp is extended between the bars, and the weft is inserted by passing over and under alternate sections. Owing to the warp threads resting on the ground, the weaver was compelled to sit upon the cloth as it was being woven. No selvage existed in fabrics of this construction. In the second stage a frame is raised from the horizontal to the vertical position, and warp threads are suspended from a fixed beam.

The transverse rod, in being operated by the weaver on the left hand, corresponds to a modern heddle shaft in that it separates the threads necessary to form the shed to receive the weft of filling from the weaver on the right. It is supposed that the stick was used both for conveying the weft and for beating it into position. There is only one selvage on fabrics made in this way.

How the second shed was obtained is not certain. Nevertheless, careful inspection of Egyptian fabrics shows that many of them possess selvages that are as perfect as those produced to-day. This leads to the conclusion that the weft was used in lens lengths, and was conveyed through the shed by a shuttle or its equivalent. When the lid of Wah's coffin was raised it was found to be filled with linen bed-sheets. Thirty-eight were counted. One of them when unfolded was nearly twelve yards long and one-half yard wide. It had been beautifully ironed and starched. Several others bore Wah's name and a date—marked with ink in the corner as household linen is to-day!

Speaking from Experience

STEEDMAN'S SOOTHING POWDERS Contain no Poison

Analyses of Egyptian mummy linens show that they contain yarns of such a character as to suggest the highest degree of skill in both spinning and weaving. The "set" is much closer in the warp than in the weft. This may be due to the method then practised of inserting the shuttle into the warp shed with one hand, and receiving it at the opposite side with the other hand.

Then, too, since there was evidently no "lay" for beating up the weft, the operation had to be performed with the aid of a stick. This necessarily meant very tedious work, however skilful the weaver might be. Nevertheless some of the textiles woven compare favorably with modern productions. Probably the following extract will best describe the high standard then attained:—

The most remarkable piece of fine linen is one found near Memphis, which well justifies all the praise bestowed upon the manufacture in former days, and excites the admiration of all who see it. It is of unrivalled fineness and is really linen. The number of threads in the inch are 540, or 270 double threads in the warp, and only 110 in the weft. The perfection of its threads is equally surprising as the knots and breaks seen in the finest cambric are not found in holding it up to the light. This was a mode of proving fine linen cloth known to, and practised by, the ancients.

Singularly enough, the preparation of the fibre as then practised in Egypt corresponds in many respects with the method still applied in Northern Ireland. As a matter of fact some authorities consider that this warrants the theory that the origin of the linen industry in Ireland was due to the migration thither of Egyptians skilled in the art.

The Summer's Holiday.

If you intend going to the country or seashore you should remember to take along a pot of Three Flowers vanishing cream. You will need this fine soothing cream for your face and hands, when the sun shines hot. No cream is better, no cream is finer in its perfume. Three Flowers vanishing cream possesses a charm and fragrance that will appeal to your sense of the beautiful. Fine, smooth, vanishing quickly, but not before it does its work, this lovely and beautifully perfumed toilet need will suit your taste admirably. It is a mark of refinement to use Three Flowers toilet goods. They are high class, distinctive and luxurious. At drug and department stores.—June 30, 11

FELDIANS DEFEAT C.L.B.

The attendance at last night's football game was not as good as that of other games. The contesting teams were the Feldians and the C.L.B. and the game was disappointing in that it proved a walk-over for the Feldians who had an easy victory by seven to nil. The Feldians played very well together and some excellent combination was shown. The C.L.B. players were all in very bad form and missed many shots. Several of the C.L.B. players were obviously out of place and did not attempt to play their proper positions. The game was referred by Mr. Ern Churchill.

Dr. Kinsman's Heart Tablets and Powders

COULD NOT SLEEP ON LEFT SIDE.

Your Heart Tablets and Powders are a wonderful medicine, and I wish all to know what they have done for me. Before I commenced their use I could not lie on my left side at all nights, and had such a choking sensation in my throat, that I could hardly breathe. I would have to sit up in bed nights my heart would beat so hard, and my left arm and side pained me very badly. My heart would also flutter terribly when I would go upstairs, and I would have smothering spells. I have felt none of these symptoms since using your Tablets and Powders, and can lie on my left side with ease. Please accept my gratitude for ever offering so good a medicine.
