PERHAPS you hadn't thought about it but the braye soldiers now fighting in France for you will have to suffer from cold the coming winter. What about all the paper people are burning needlessly now? Could it not have gone into the funds for the Red Cross and help to keep the solders warm this winter. Think about it, then do your part by saving your paper. IT is estimated in railway circles that at least 1,500 men, with their dogs and guns, have left for Northern Ontario to shoot deer. A woman at the Union Station, Toronto, watching these men arriving on incoming trains said: "They all look good, hard fellows, but I think they could use their guns to better advantage in France hunting for Germans. My boy is there," and then her mother's heart went out in tears for the absent

A CORRESPONDENT of a Toronto paper suggests, as a remedy for the high prices of butter, the adoption of a substitute. Oleomargarine is banned by the tariff; but so far there does not seem to be any law against beef dripping. The correspondent says that since the war began he has not eaten any butter, but has gone has not eaten any butter, but has gone back to the old love of his boyhood days back to the old love of his boyhood days and moistened his bread with dripping. He finds it very palatable and healthful, and if a little pork dripping be added to the beet he finds it every bit as tasty as butter and quite as nourishing. The correspondent believes that if everybody were to fall back on the dripping for a time the price of butter would soon come down.

Possibilities of Flax Production

In The Agricultural War book for 1916 there are several pages devoted to particulars regarding the cultiv-Manitoba and Saskatchewan the plant is cultivated to some extent. The principal contributor to the subject in the War Book is Mr. James A. McCracken, Secretary of ation, with headquarters at St. Mary's Ont. In giving statistics regarding the somewhat limited cultivation of flax in this country Mr. McCracken says "Canada can do a good deal more in this direction than she is doing. The urgency grows stronger when we appreciate that every acre of flax devoted to fibre purposes means from $75 to $100 in exports. Whatever flax we export goes mainly to the New England mills and to Ireland, thereby assisting in relieving, directly or indirectly the needs of the hour." Mr. Mc. Mr. Mc-Cracken goes a great deal fuller into his subject in a phamplet issued under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, entitled "A Review of the Status and Possibilities of Flax production and manipulation in Canada" "He sketches

These questions are in many instances permitted to pass without comment by some newspapers for political reason. That old and reliable friend of the farmer, The Weekly Sun, does not allow any questions affecting the farmer or his family to pass without comment. You may not always agree with its opinion, but the Sun being free from party or political controll gives its readers an unbiased opinion on all question. These opinions are always worth reading, while the Sun's market reports have long been considered most reliable from the farmer's standpoint. #### Canada Needs More Poultry Great Britain More Eggs.

At no time in the history of the Domminion has the necessity for increased production of eggs and poultry been more apparent than at the present time. The demand is unprecedented. This is true whether for export or for home consumption. Consumers generally and even producers themselves are eating more and more eggs. The average per capital consumption of eggs in Canada this year will be greater than ever before.

The market for Canadian eggs and poultry is very firm. Prices to producers are extremely high, but even at these prices trade is increasingly active all over the country. The prospects for a continued demand are very bright. The country is facing a shortage, not only of current receipts, but of Canadian storage stocks as well. So great has been ation of flax in Canada, principally the export demand that we shall be in Ontario, although in Quebec, obliged to import to meet our own requirements. Increased production has never rested upon a more secure foundation.

That poultry on the farm are profitable needs no arguement. Eggs the Canadian Flax Growers' Associ- now rank as a staple article in the products of the farm. Poultry flocks can be increased materially without much additional outlay for buildings and equipment, and the increased labour involved is not such as will bear heavily upon the time of those charged with the care of the stock. Some object to the present price of feed, but when it is considered that the selling price of the product is from forty to sixty per cent. higher than it was two years ago, the margin of profit is such as will compare favourably with that obtainable elsewhere on the farm.

Canadian egg producers have responded well to the call for increased production. The country as a whole which was importing eggs a few years ago, has, in the aggregate, produced more than sufficient for its own requirements this year and last. Between seven and eight million dozen Canadian eggs were exported to Great Britain last year, and as an indication of what is going forward this year, nearly one million dozen were shipped during the first week of October. Yet the supply on the British market is still short, and there is a demand for many millions Increased production, more and better poultry, should be the motto of every Canadian farm and homestead.

Canada has all the requisites for the production of a quantity far in excess of her own requirements, and with her favourable climatic conditions can, with proper care and at-the history of the production in Can- tention, produce quality equal to the best in the world. Only the fringe of production possibilities has been touched up to the present. The Western Provinces, with their volsatisfactory to know, on the same umes of cheap feed, are the natural home for the Canadian hen. The bulk of the surplus at the present time comes from the provinces of Ontario and Prince Edward Island. Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Quebec do not produce sufficient for their own requirements. They must do more; and there is now an opportunity for the Western Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta to demonstrate to Canada and the Empire as a whole what they can do in this connection in this great hour of trade expansion. The first experimental shipments of eggs from Winnipeg to the British market are either now, or soon will be, on their way, and it is hoped that the increase in production in the Western Provinces in the ensuing year will be such as to warrant the opening up of a big trade in this direction Eggs are scarce in Canada at the present time. Current prices are high, and a sharp decline immediately following the conclusion of the War is not anticipated. When prices advance gradually, as has been the case in staple food products, they decline slowly. It will take some years to re-establish the normal meat supply upon the markets of the world, and while prices of meats are high, people will continue to use increasingly large quantities of eggs. This condition will naturally be reflected in the matter of price. This is the situation. Readers may draw their own conclusions.

An Institution

The Stores Department of the British Red Cross is an institution in itself. There is nothing required for the equipment of a hospital or the comfort of a sick or wounded sailor or soldier that is not available. The remarkable thing is that these supplies are available, not only for Red Cross hospitals, but wherever there is need—in A. M. C. hospitals, hospital trains and ships, ambulances, rest stations; and not only for British troops, but for those of the Allies as well. Millions of dollars have been spent in this department, and hundreds of thousands of workers have given their servises voluntarily to make possible this all-important branch of the work. #### The Ten Commandments

Thou shalt not wait for something to turn up, but thou shalt pull off thy coat and go to work that thou mayest prosper in the affairs and make the word "failure" spell "success."

Thou shalt not be content to go about thy business looking like a loafer, but thou shouldest know that thy personal appearance is better than a letter of mmendation

Thou shalt not try to make excuses, nor shalt thou say to those who chide thee. "I didn't know."

Thou shalt not wait to be told what thou shalt do, nor in what manner thou shalt do it, for thus may thy days be long in the job which fortune hath given Thou shalt not fail to thine own integ-rity, nor shalt thou be guilty of anything that will lesson thy respect for thyself. Thou shalt not covet the other fellow's job nor his salary, nor the position he has gained by his own hard labor.

Thou shalt not be afraid to blow thine horn, for he who faileth to blow his own horn at the proper occasion findeth nobody standing ready to blow it for him.

Thou shalt not fail to live with the control of the control of the live with the control of the live with the Thou shalt not fail to live within thine ncome, nor shalt thou contract any lebts, when thou canst not see thy way debts, when thou canst not see thy way clear to pay them.

Thou shalt not hesitate to say "no" when thou meanest "no" nor shalt thou fail to remember that there are times when it is unsafe to bind thyself to a hasty judgment.

Thou shalt give every man a square deal. This is the last and the great commandment and there is none other like it. Upon this commandment hangs all the law and profits of the business world.

NEW KETHERS.

The Kind of Stockings That Go With Fall Shoes.

Whoever said that simple footwear was coming back into fashion was much mistaken. To be sure, certain styles of "fancy" shoes were marked down last winter, but other styles quite as elaborate took their place, and, as for stockings, never before have they been so varied and so far from plain or simple.

There is some thought that cotton stockings, colored ones at that, may be worn, for the price of silk stockings is soaring by the hour. But just at the moment silk stockings are made in hundreds of patterns.

Stripes form the most prominent stocking decoration or motive. Some-times they are up and down stripes, sometimes stripes running around; sometimes they extend the whole length of the stocking, sometimes only halfway down or halfway up.

There are checked stockings, too, and plaid ones, and there are stockings with odd and irregular designs. Then, too, regular clocking at the ankles, in colors or black on white, is a prominent feature of the summer stockings. Clocks are especially smart for wear with sport shoes, and they add to the effectiveness of low shoes worn with short skirts.

One black and white combination shows half inch stripes extending from the toe to the calf, ending there in arrowheads. Another shows a panel of stripes extending the full length of the stocking, about four inches across the

One of the newer sorts of evening stockings show beaded embroidery. This is in line with the vogue for beaded embroidery and sequins and spangles that is so strong for evening frocks.

Inserts of real lace, too, in fine silk stockings are used for evening. And another evening idea is a white silk stocking painted with flowers match a painted kid slipper. This, of course, is so unusual that it may almost be considered a freak style. it is interesting and is mentioned for what it is worth.

PUNISH TO EDUCATE.

Parents Should Never Act on Impulse of Moment. Never punish a child on the impulse of the moment. The correcting of a little child is a very serious matter-a matter to be thought over earnestly and (if you are the kind that prays) even prayerfully. Always keep in mind that true punishment is not revenge; neither is it vindication nor retaliation -it is, or should be, nothing more or less than education. The time for punishment affords you an invaluable opportunity to teach a youngster but one of the many, many lessons of life it

Therefore it is extremely important that you do not punish a child when you are angry. In anger you will more than likely be unjust and also too severe. In anger you are in a fair to lose your own respect and the child's.

See that the punishment fits the fault and that it has within it the power to teach the difference between right and wrong in the particular instance under consideration.

Old Plymouth Church. Rev. Charles R. Brown in the Congregationalist relates an interesting incident of the past in which Henry

Ward Beecher, the famous minister of Plymouth church, and his venerable and hardly less distinguished father

Many years ago, he says, one of my friends was present in Plymouth church when the incident occurred. It was in the days when Lyman Beecher had come to make his home with his illustrous son, and every Sunday he was in the pastor's pew. One morning Henry Ward Beecher was unfolding some aspect of the new theology, as he had come to hold it, when suddenly up rose Lyman Beecher, saying, "Henry, may I say a word just there?"

Beecher paused in his sermon and, with a look of filial affection, at once responded, "Certainly, father; say on."
Then Lyman Beecher turned to the congregation and said, "Henry puts it that way, but it is not that way; it is this way." And he proceeded to state the truth as he saw it.

Henry Ward Beecher stood listening to his father, with an expression on his face that blessed the listening, won-dering congregation more than many a sermon. And when Lyman Beecher had concluded he paid a beautiful tribute to his father's influence upon his own life and then resumed his sermon where he had been interrupted.

Alexander in Mesopotamia.

The marshes of Mesopotamia were famous in the time of Alexander the Great. One of the last acts of his life. within a few weeks of his death, was a voyage down the Euphrates to the great dike of Pallakopas, about ninety miles below Babylon. This sluice has been constructed by the ancient Assyrian kings to let off the water of the river when it became excessive into the marshes. It was reported not to be working well, and Alexander proposed to construct another sluice lower down. He sailed on into the marshes, steering his vessel himself, with his diadem on his head, to explore them and the tombs of the kings, and so extensive were the lakes and swamps that Alexander's fleet lost its way among them.

The Canadian Patriotic Fund is Under taking to Raise Thirteen and a Half Million Dollars for 1917

NO FEDERAL AID

Ottawa, Nov. 3, 1916.— The officials of the Canadian Patriolic Fund are engaged in extensive preparations for the great campaign with which the work for 1917 is to be inaugurated. The Executive Committee decided at its recent meeting that it would be wise to forcus public attention upon the Fund and its work at a time near the beginning of the year, and the latter part of January has been selected as the time during which local campaigns for subscriptions should be carried on in as many municipalities as possible. ipalities as possible.

Sir Herbert Ames, the Honorary Secretary of the Fund, has been spending the past month in Western Canada, the past month in Western Canada, stimulating public interest in the Fund, and securing, wherever practicable, the co operation of the Provincial Governments, and of municipal corporations. His reports as to the attitude of the West towards the Fund are most encouraging. Notwithstanding that it felt the commercial depression more deeply than any cial depression more deeply than any other part of Canada, that it has been helped by the trade in munitions of war to a very slight extent, and that it has sent men to the war in very large num-bers, Western Canada is pledging itself to raise what must be considered huge sums for the maintenance of the Patriotic Fund.

otic Fund.

So far as Ontario is concerned the object of the approaching campaign is to raise the six million dollars which that Province is being asked to contribute for 1917. In the past, Ontario has given more than she has received from the Fund, the surplus going to the West, where large enlistments created a demand that fell with peculiar heaviness upon communities suffering from business depression. In 1917 the situation ess depression. In 1917 the situation will be changed, and Ontario will be asked only for the money it is estimated will be spent in the Province.

The total of the sum to be raised in

The total of the sum to be raised in 1917 is thirteen and a half million dollars. Ontario's share of this is six million, of which about four million have to be raised by private subscrip tions. To ensure that this large sum be available is no slight task, and the campaign of general publicity and of local solicitation soon to be launched is based on the belief that the Fund should be assured, early in the year, that it will be in a position to meet all demands on it by dependents of Canada's soldiers.

There is no foundation for the report that the Dominion Government is to that the Dominion Government is to be asked to assume responsibility for the Fund. For it to do so would imply the equal treatment of all dependents, whether in need or not, thus throwing on the country an increased liability of millions of dollars. The purpose of the Fund is to assist those, and those only, who require a greater measure of help than is given by the Government separation allowance and assigned pay. Of every three persons receiving separation every three persons receiving separation allowance, two are on the Patriotic Fund. the other one not being in need of fur-

An insurance report shows that women start most of the fires. The poor things haven't yet learned how to handle cigarettes. Some ardent reformers will be sorry to hear that a soldier's life was saved by cigarettes—a package of 'em stopped a builet. Maybe the shortage, costliness and un-reliability of the dyes is responsible for the scarcity of blonds reported 'from Pittsburgh.

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

Neil Appleton, a young American who had been to the pan-European war and had been discharged as unfit for service on account of wounds, returned to his home in Maine with a Belgian bride. Appleton was the grandson of a G. A. R. man, and young '16 was swapping stories with old '61.

"The only difference between you and me, grandfather," said Nell, "is that in my case the 1 comes before the 6, while in yours the 6 is before the 1. Come: tell us another yarn about fighting in Virginia."

"There's only one yarn I haven't told you," said the old man, "and that I don't like to tell. It has been a sad memory for me for more than fifty years.

All insisted on hearing the story, and the old man continued: "I'll not make much of a yarn out of it. I'll cut it short. As you know, I was on scouting service during the peninsular campaign. One day I was resting on neutral ground. I was on a hillside from where I could look down on a road running between McClellan's and General Lee's armies. While I was looking down on this road I saw a man on horseback riding in the direction of the Confederates. It struck me that he had been in our lines and was going toward the Confederate lines. Being out for information myself, I was ready to suspect any one else of doing the same thing. He stopped at a house rear the road, and a woman and a girl came out to greet him. By this I felt confident that he was a Confederate, for the woman embraced him in a way that told me he was her son. I couldn't near what they were talking about, but I knew she was trying to persuade the young man to go in and get a rest or something to eat. He demurred for some time, then yielded to her. That yielding cost him his life.

"I reckon he had been to our lines for information and was carrying it to the Confederates. Mounting my horse I rode down to a lower eminence farther northward toward Richmond, where I could see the house he was in much more plainly and waited for him to come out to ride on. I didn't have to wait long. He soon appeared, his mother on one side of him and the girl on the other. He kissed his mother and then the girl, and I knew by that second kiss that they were lovers. It wasn't like the other at all. Then he rode on toward me, looking back and throwing kisses with his fingers.

"I was posted beside the road behind thick bushes. As soon as he came within pistol range I called out:

'Halt! Hands up!' "He knew he was covered by some one he couldn't see and obeyed the order. though he told me afterward that if he could have seen me he would have opened fire instead. I disarmed him and drove him before me to one of our outposts, where he was searched and information of the utmost importance was found on him. He turned out to be a Confederate soldier and, being in citizen's dress, fulfilled all the conditions of a spy.

"Well, he was tried by drumhead court martial and sentenced to be hanged. Before he was executed he wrote a letter to his mother and one to his sweetheart. I was ordered to deliver them. I'd rather have been hanged myself than obey the order. But I had no choice. Besides, some one must take the letters, and I had to do it because I knew the location of the house

"I carried also the news that the son and lover had been executed for a spy. Don't ask me to describe the delivery of this news and the letters, for it breaks me up even to this day. This is the last time I shall tell the story."

Young Appleton and his bride looked at each other at the conclusion of the narrative, then suddenly were locked in each other's arms. There was a story between them similar to the one that had been told, but which had resulted differently. Appleton, having relished scouting service, volunteered to go hunting for information in territory that had been conquered by the Germans. Within that territory was the home of the Belgian girl whom he later married and brought to America. Appleton had sought a place of rest and refreshment in the house, for he knew that any Belgian would harbor him. He was eating a supper prepared for him when a company of uhlans rode up to the house. Their commander dismounted and entered. Appleton had no time to evade the officer and, not being able to give an account of himself, was arrested. On his person were sketches of German works, and death stared him in the face. When he was taken away the girl followed, and when the uhlans went into a deserted house with their prisoner for the night she set fire to it. This gave Appleton a chance for his life.

THE POWER OF QUIET

& Son, druggists.

By F. A. MITCHEL

Did you ever notice the difference between the quiet of a library and the busy whirl of the outside world? Doubtless you have. In a way it is the difference between a cemetery and that which is without the inclosure. But the cemetery contains the ashes and the living souls are elsewhere, while the library contains the living souls, the ashes being elsewhere.

Yet who has not realized the effect of situations? The influence of the atmosphere of a library once came home to me in a very telling effect. I am something of a dreamer, and doubtless any such influence would draw me powerfully than another. that is merely a matter to be noted. It is this effect of the atmosphere of a library upon myself, an effect that influenced my whole after life, that I am going to recount.

After a season of hard work I was enabled to take a rest. Instead of going pleasure hunting I sought a quiet country town where there were no pos-sible means of excitement. The people living there must have been intellectu ally above the average, for they had established a very good library. It seemed to me that this was the very place I needed, so I went inside. There was not a person there save the librarian, and, since there was no one to disturb, it was not necessary for me to tread softly in going to her desk and speaking to her in a low voice. She doubtless had become accustomed to a uniform tone no matter how few or how many persons were there. I received permission to nose about among the books and passed the morning doing so. Frequently during hours when there was no one but the librarian present I went to her desk, ostensibly to ask her a question about some book, but really to chat with her. There was that in her voice, being in keeping with the place, that added to its other influences. Under this spell she grew to be to me a thing of beauty. Perhaps it was because she was the only living thing except myself there. Just as man chooses a representative—even if a stone idol—to symbolize his god, so did I choose the librarian to embody the myriad of thoughts inclosed in the silent books. She became to me the goddess of wisdom, of romance, of science, of poetry.

I spent a month in the place, and nearly every day I was in the library. It is to be expected from what I have said that I was falling in love with the librarian. Whether or no I was, I thought I was. At any rate. I made love to her. There is a difference be tween mere making love and making an avowal of love. In other words, I looked love and acted love.

One day the librarian asked me to come to see her at her home. I went in the evening. The house was such as a woman would be likely to live in who was obliged to give all her time for a mere pittance of $500 or $600 a year. The furniture was worn, but not in bad taste. The librarian came into the room, and the moment she spoke down fell all the illusion that had been growing up in me for a month.

She spoke in her natural voice. It was not harsh. It was a fair ordinary, woman's voice, but it was not the modulated voice of the librarian. I must have shown the change in me by my expression, for suddenly the cordiality, of her welcome vanished. I spoke in the voice I had been used to speaking in the library, but since my hostess did not drop to that tone I at once abandoned it. It seemed to me that my embodiment of those who had transcribed their thoughts in the books had vanished and this person who was her wax figure had appeared in her place.

I passed an uncomfortable half hour with her, making an effort to be what I had been to her in the library, then left her.

I did not go to the library again for several days. When I did go there stood my embodimeint of the shades of authors set up again on the pedestal on which I had placed her. She spoke to me in her library voice, but did not greet me with the smile she had often greeted me before. I made a few commonplace remarks, then went to an alcove, took down a book and began

But I did not keep it up. I was troubled about my disillusion. I might not have been troubled had not the illusion returned. Which was the real condition, the library condition or the other? If I accepted the one what would I do with the other? I could not accept both. The home condition would be the one I would have to live by if the librarian became my wife. Surely one could not dwell in a library. I left the place and went home. But I did not leave the library or the librarian behind me. I pined especially for the latter. I returned after awhile to see her. This time I went directly to her house. After much bungling I made a confession. I admitted that I had fallen in love with her as a librarian, but not as her other self. She burst into a laugh.

"I have been engaged to be married for a long while," she said. "So you see it doesn't make any difference to you whether you love me as a woman or a librarian.

But it did. Her engagement came to nothing, and a year later we were married. Fate decreed that I should get a treasure. As for me, I had nothing to do with my good fortune. I fell in love with a librarian and married a splendid woman.

Caused by Mental Trouble Somewhat Akin to Epilepsy.

Is there such a thing as temporary insanity?

Many people think that the expression merely covers the kindly intentions of a jury to save relatives pain. but numbers of doctors who have made a study of mental disorders emphatically declare it is no idle term.

One doctor has stated that temporary insanity is a condition of double consciousness, not dissimilar to epilepsy. A person normally quite sane have attacks of temporary aberration lasting little more than a few minutes, especially after long bouts of hard, continuous mental work, being particularly liable if insomnia supervenes.

Crimes have been committed in the early morning, when the perpetrator has not really been properly awake and has been horrified to find what he has done. This is a true case of temporary insanity, but it is comparatively rare, and a man in normal health would not suffer in this way.

A specialist in mental diseases has stated that he knew a case in which a person was insane during a certain time each day and that others have been known when the patient was quite normal at ordinary times, but suffered from a temporary fit of mania regularly once a month.-Pearson's

THE NEWEST REMEDY FOR Backache, Rheumatism and Dropsy.

Kidney, Biadder and Uric Acid troubles bring misery to many. When the kidneys are weak or diseased, these satural filters do not cleanse the blood sufficiently, and the poisons are carried to all parts of the body. There, follow depressions, aches and pains, heaviness, drowsiness, irritability, headaches, chilliness and rhemmatism. In some people there are sharp pains in the back and loins, distressing bladder disorders and sometimes obstimate dropsy. The uric acid sometimes forms into gravel or kidney stones. When the uric acid affects the muscles and joints, it causes lumbago, rheumatism, gout or sciatics. This is the time to try "Anuric," Send 10c, for trial package.

During digestion uric acid is absorbed into the system, from meat eaten, and even from some vegetables. The poor kidneys get tired and backache begins. This is a good trace to take "Anuric" the new discovery of Dr. Pierce for Kidney trouble and Backache. Neglected kidney trouble are resonable for many deaths, and Insurance Company examining doctors always test the water of an applicant before a policy will be issued. Have you ever set aside a bottle of water for twenty-four hours? A heavy sediment or settling sometimes indicates kidney trouble. The true nature and character of diseases, especially those of the kidneys and urinary organs, can often be determined by a careful chemical analysis and microscopical examination—this is done by expert chemists of the Medical Staff of the Invalids' Hotel. If you wish to know your condition send a sample of your water to Doctor Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and describe your symptoms. It will be examined without any expense to you, and Doctor Pierce or his Staff of Assisting Physicians will inform you truthfully.

A DANISH LEGEND

Once upon a time the daughter of one of the underground people, the Bergmen, was married to a smith who lived in Mors.

Kirstin was a good and most patient wife, although her husband, the smith was cross and surly and sometime even beat her when he was in an in temper. Kirstin did not like this at all, and one day when he had taken up a stick ng to strike her she seized a great horseshoe which was lying on the anvil and broke it in two without any difficulty.

The smith was astonished. "Are you that strong?" he asked. "Then why have you never resisted when I struck you?

"Because I love you," said Kirstin. "I'll strike you no more!" said the smith, and he kept his word.

The people of Mors, however, were not friendly to the Bergman's daughter and in spite of her desire to be on pleasant terms with them avoided her and would scarcely even nod to her when they met.

One day, as she and all the people were standing in the churchyard, waiting for the arrival of the minister, Kirstin said to her busband: "Listen to me-my father is coming to see me, but he is angry.' As she thus warned her husband the Bergman appeared, and a most awe inspiring person he was! Indeed, he was so terrible to look at that the people would have liked to creep into the earth to avoid him.

"My dear daughter," said the Bergman, "I hear the people here will have naught to do with you, so I have come to remedy that!"

"Yes, father," replied Kirstin. toss them up in the air a bit," said he. "Will you pitch or catch?"

"I'll catch," said Kirstin, for she feared the Bergman would handle the people very roughly.

Then began a merry game. The Bergman stood on one side of the church, Kirstin, his daughter, on the other, and the Bergman tossed all the people in turn over the roof of the church to Kirstin, who deftly caught them.

No one was injured, but every one was badly scared. But the plan worked to a charm, for so long as Kirstin lived she was treated with the greatest respect and consideration.

THE WASTE OF FEEDS.

Failure to Use Many Farm Products Increases Cost of Cattle Raising.

American farmers are either wasting outright or putting to unprofitable uses vast quantities of farm products that could be used advantageously in feeding cattle. This has been disclosed by a comprehensive survey of the meat situation in the United States recently completed by the United States department of agriculture. Failure to utilize the vast amounts of feed now wasted, says the report, has increased the cost of producing meat and has diminished profits from cattle feeding and has therefore discouraged many farmers from engaging in an industry essential to their permanent prosperity.

According to the report, the loss in grain straw and corn stover amounts to more than $100,000,000 annually. Both of these products are disposed of most economically when fed to cattle in connection with some form of concentrated feed. Straw is especially valuable in carrying the breeding herd through the winter, in wintering stockers and as a supplementary roughage for fattening cattle. Stover, too, is an excellent feed for wintering cattle, especially mature breeding cows. Nevertheless in many sections of the counry where these products are abundant little attempt is made to take advantage of their value for these purposes.

on annual straw eron of annrovi mately 120,000,000 tons it is estimated that only two-thirds is put to its best use-live stock production. Of the renainder a little more than one-half is sold or turned under and the rest-15 per cent of the total crop-is burned. Burning is practically an absolute waste, and, although plowing under loes contribute something to soil fertility, the benefit of the land is less than that which would be derived from the use of the straw to produce manure.
"Of all systems of obtaining permanent soil fertility," says the report.

"none is so practical or as easily available as that of feeding live stock." The production of corn stover is about twice that of grain straw, amounting to approximately 245,000,-000 tons a year. A larger percentage-81.5-of this is fed than of the straw, but the waste is nevertheless astonishing. Stripping the leaves from the stalks which are subsequently burned, removing the stalk above the top ear only, leaving the stalks to stand in the field until the loss of leaves and leaching have removed much of their fertilizing value, are all unthrifty methods. Furthermore, almost 4 per cent of the stover is burned, as though, instead of being a potential source of revenue, it was merely a nuisance to be gotten rid of as a preliminary to plowing. In some states the percentage of stover that is thus thrown away is as high as 7 or 8 per cent, and the total loss to the country from the practice is estimated at nearly $15,000,000 a year.

To obtain satisfactory results from the feeding of farm roughages, such as straw and stover, they must be combined with some form of concentrated feed. At the present time large quantities of such feed, in the form of cottonseed meal and cake, corn, molasses, peanuts and beans are exported for the use of European feeders. If the straw and stover that are now wasted were employed to feed more cattle these concentrates could be consumed at nome. The result would be a tremendous saving, not only in the cost of producing beef, but in the cost of enriching the soil as well.

The efficient use of these and other feeds discussed in the report is of the utmost importance to the American farmer, it is pointed out, because the day when close calculation in feeding was not necessary is, in all probability, past. Hereafter it is likely that success will depend upon ability to put to the best use all available products. A greater knowledge of what these prodnets are and of the ways in which they can be fed will result in the elim ination of enormous waste.

TRY IT ON THE DISK.

A Test That Proves the Human Skull a Good Sounding Box.

An interesting experiment that proves what a good sounding box the human skull is can be performed by any one who has a disk phonograph, says Electrical Engineering.

Stop up both of your ears with cotton as tightly as possible, so that no sound will be heard from the outside. Now place an ordinary darning needle between your teeth by biting on it hard, taking care that the tongue or lips do not touch the needle. The latter is important, because if either lip or tongue touches the needle the sound will be decreased considerably.

For the best results the needle itself should project not more than one or one and a half inches from the mouth. For that reason the darning needle should be broken off about one and onehalf inches from its sharp point. It goes without saying that the sharp point should project out of the mouth. while the broken off end should be inside the mouth.

Now start an ordinary disk phonograph and carefully press down upon the record with the needle's point held at the same angle as the reproducer's needle is held ordinarily. As soon as the needle touches the record with sufficient pressure the inside of the head will be filled immediately with music exceedingly loud and clear.

Brignoli In a Temper.

On one occasion Bianchi, the noted teacher, went on the stage to see Brignoli, the famous singer, whom he found pacing up and down like a madman, humming over his part.

"Why, Brig, what is the matter with you? Are you nervous?" he asked.
"Yes, I am nervous," was the reply as he walked harder and faster than

"But, Brig, you ought not to be nervous. I've heard you sing the part 200 I heard you sing it thirty vears ago."

"Thirty years ago! Who are you that should know so much?"
"Who am I? You know who I am, and I know who you are." "Very well; you know what I am, but I am sure you do not know what you are, and if you wish I will tell you. You are a fool!"

TAUGHT THEM A LESSON.

The Czar's Rebuke to the Officers of One of His Regiments.

The czar is greatly loved by his.own soldiers, and no wonder, for the following story is typical of him:

A certain Russian lieutenant who was none too well off was one day seen riding in a tram. The other offi-cers of his regiment were furious at what they called an insult to the uniform, and they told the lieutenant that he must send in his papers. The unfortunate young officer had no alternative, but before he could do so the czar heard of the affair. Immediately putting on his colonel's uniform of the regiment in question, his majesty left the palace, hailed a passing tram and, entering it, sat calmly down until it stopped in front of the barracks. There he got out and, assembling all the officers, said to them:

"Gentlemen, I have just ridden from the palace in a tram, and I desire to know if you wish me to send in my papers. I presume I have disgraced my uniform.' Naturally the officers were dumfounded. "Sire," stammered the major nervously, "you could never do that." "Then," answered the czar, smiling, "as I have not degraded the uniform Lieutenant — cannot have done so and will thus retain his commission in this regiment even if he, like me, dares to ride in a tram."

After that snobbery died a speedy death in that particular regiment-Pearson's

THE DOOR TO HEALTH

Is Through the Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams Pink Pills Actually Make.

Actually Make.

The blood is responsible for the health of the body. If it is good, disease cannot exist. If it is bad, the door is shut against good health, disease is bound to appear in one form or another. One person may be seized with rheumatism or sciatica, another with anaemia, indigestion, heart palpitation, headaches or backaches, unstrung nerves, or any of the many other forms of ailment that comes when the blood is weak and watery. There is just one certain, speedy cure—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make new, rich blood, and this good blood strengthens the whole system and brings good health and happiness. Thousands owe their present good health, some life itself, to the pills. Miss Devina Laliberti, St. Jerome, Que., says: "Last year I seemed gradually to grow weak and run down. I did not sleep well, had a poor appetite, and grew pale and generally lanquid. I consulted a doctor who told me I was anaemic, and gave me a tonic. This I took faithfully for some time, but it did not help me, and I appeared to be growing worse, and finally I was hardly able to go about the house and almost wholly incapacitated for work. While in this condition a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got several boxes. It was not long after I began their use when I could see an improvement, which just manifested itself in an improved appetite and better rest at night. From this on the improvement was rapid and I was not long in regaining perfect health. I think Dr. Willnams' Pink Pills are a real blessing for all weak girls."
