GOSSIP.

In all communities there is a class of people of both sexes, who spend much of their time in gossip. Some of them are impelled to this course as a pastime...

But of all gossips in the world, none are more active and far-reaching than are the newspaper gossips. The Athenians of old had a morbid desire to "hear some thing new."

This taste for trifling novelties make the newspapers the most prominent actors on the arena of the world's gossip. It is therefore that the sports of the turf, aquatic feats to test the skill and strength of experts in playing the cards, the merits of gymnastics, and the theatrical performances, are all matters of newspaper gossip, which are highly relished by multitudes of readers.

But newspaper gossip takes a far higher and more extended range, than that employed in the trifling frivolities to which we have referred. It discusses the great interests of the world, and imparts useful information. It upholds private and public morality, and it is the guardian of popular rights and of human freedom.

Last week the visit of the Governor General and his Princess Wife galvanized the people of New Brunswick into an outburst of general enthusiasm. Their presence, as everywhere else in their journeys in other parts of the Dominion, was greeted with warm manifestations of homage and respect.

The Parisians intend demolishing what is left of the Tuileries, the building which has played for three centuries a very important part in French history. On several occasions it was stormed and sacked by the people, during the ravages of the Commune in May, 1871 it was fired and destroyed. A public garden is to be made on the site.

Last week the Quebec House of Assembly passed a direct vote of confidence in Mr. Joly's Government, 31 to 27.

Yarmouth Awake!

We hope the above heading will not startle our readers, and we beg them not to be thereby excited. We are not about to exultingly expatiate upon the present prospect of completing the western counties railroad; but to remark upon Yarmouth enterprise as regards another matter of vastly more importance to Nova Scotia than the extension of railroads. We mean agricultural and other industrial pursuits.

The United States authorities are having more trouble with the Indians in the Northwestern States and territories. The scalping knife and the incendiary torch have carried dismay, desolation and death into some of the remote and unprotected settlements of the whites. Measures are being taken to award retributive punishment to the murderous savages.

The New York "Sun" says that the Rev. W. H. Murray, of Guilford, Conn., is financially embarrassed, and most of his stock has been attached. He had a large farm, magnificently stocked, and has spent large sums of money on horses. Two of his stallions, "Brandywine" and "Live Oak" are well known to the stock-raisers and sporting men of this County. Mr. Murray's difficulties were caused by his investing heavily in a company for making backbone waggons.

The State elections in the neighboring Republic that will come off in a few weeks, has caused a shaking of the dry bones among the politicians, and of some of their most efficient party spoilers have already taken the stump.

General Sherman is addressing large gatherings in various parts of the State of Maine. The celebrated General ("Ben") Butler is again a candidate for the Governorship of Massachusetts; and he is now on an electioneering campaign through that State. It is supposed that the result of the coming State elections will have an important bearing on the contest for the Presidency that will take place next year; and therefore the political activity just now.

General News.

DUPONER.—Mr. George M. Dutcher, the temperance lecturer, was in St. John on Thursday, on his way to Bristol Island, N. S.

His Honor the Administrator of the Government has been pleased to make the following appointments:

In the County of Annapolis: To be Commissioner for taking Affidavits to hold to bail and recognizances of bail in the Supreme Court, and for giving relief to Insolvent Debtors.—Albert Moore, Bridgetown; Samuel H. Gray, Annapolis; Edwin Ruggles, Bridgetown; John B. Mills, Annapolis; Timothy C. Bohaker, Middleton; William Carleton, Bridgetown; James Wheeler, Lawrence town.

A LARGO FORTUNE.—Mr. Josiah Smith, Branch, New Germany, received a letter last week from Messrs. Unicek & Co., Victoria, Australia, informing him that Edward Smith, Esq., of Cherry Hill, who had died unmarried, had bequeathed all his real and personal estate, amounting to $240,000, to his surviving relatives. Mr. Lewis Smith, son of Gasper Smith of this town—an uncle of Mr. Josiah Smith—left London for California and Australia about 30 years ago. He has been frequently heard from since. It is thought by some that his name was Lewis Edward Smith. A search has been made in the English Church books here for the record of his baptism, but his name, and that of one of his brothers, has not been entered. Further investigation will be made by Mr. Josiah Smith's legal adviser in this important and interesting matter.—Lunenburg Progress.

A GREAT YIELD OF GOLD.—The papers contained references a short time ago to the discovery of a remarkably rich gold lead in the Montague district by Mr. G. W. Stuart. Later reports from Montague indicate that the lead, which is called the "Rose Lead," is proving even richer than it was at first supposed to be. When discovered two months ago it was six inches thick, the first crushing of the ton yielded 24 ounces to the ton. At a depth of 30 feet, the lead has increased to a thickness of 19 inches, and it is believed that the last brought out of the shaft will yield 15 ounces to the ton. Mr. Stuart brought to town yesterday a bar of gold weighing 23½ ounces, worth nearly $4,600. This is represented to be the result of the labor of ten men for one month, the quartz yielding an average of five ounces to the ton. It is said that there will be a profit about $4,000 on the month's work. The "brick" will be an exhibition in Messrs. M. S. Brown & Co.'s window, Granville Street. The discovery is being made by Messrs. D. Teague, G. W. Stuart, B. Gladwin, John A. Matheson and E. M. Davison. Messrs. Stuart and Gladwin were the discoverers; and the others were purchased interests.—H. Chron.

Caroline Clara.

THE CANADIAN GIRL WHO THROWS OFF AS SHE APPEARS AT THE SOUTH AMERICAN EXHIBITION.

From the London (Ontario) Advertiser.

About two years since a daughter of Mr. Richard Clark, Caroline by name, and then 17 years of age, living on lot No. 25, on the second of Becey, was taken ill. Her disease could not be correctly diagnosed, and had many peculiar features. Her appetite fell off, and she lost flesh till she barely weighed 87 pounds. There did not seem to be any organic complaint. The bodily functions were normal, and she was although she ate less than formerly, the falling off in this respect was not such as in itself would alarm her friends. After the lapse of a few months she took to her bed. Then it was that a change occurred in her mental condition. Formerly she was noted rather for lack of conversation than for a pectory battery, a person, unless possessed of the very strongest nerves cannot shake hands with her, nor can any one place his hand in a pail of water with hers. By joining hands she can send a sharp shock through 15 to 20 persons in a room and she possesses all the attraction of a magnet. If she attempts to take a knife the blade will jump into her hand, and a paper of needles will hang suspended from one of her fingers. So strongly developed is the electricity, that she cannot release from her touch any article of steel she may have taken up. The only method yet found for a second party to take hold of the article and pull, while the girl strikes her own arm vigorously from the wrist upward. On her entering a room a perceptible influence extends forth to all others, and while some are affected to sleeplessness, others are ill and fidgety till they leave, and even for a considerable time afterward. A sleeping partner will wake up with a start as her approach, but with a stroke of her hand she can at once coax it to slumber again. Animals are also subject to her influence, and a dog of the household will lie for hours at her feet as motionless as in death. A curious part of the phenomena is that the electricity can be imparted by her to any article with which she habitually comes in contact. The other day a younger sister, while doing the house-work, took up a score of victors to the house of Mr. Clark. Medical men are especially interested in themselves, and it has been estimated that Dr. Fye of Fayetteville will read a paper on the subject at the meeting of the Provincial Medical Association, which is to be held in London in the course of this summer. Mr. Clark is the father of a family of seven children, none of whom except Caroline shows any abnormal qualities.

EUROPE.

SEARJEVO, Aug. 9.—The fire which broke out here yesterday was extinguished by 8 o'clock this morning, after tremendous exertions, by thearrison. Help is urgently required for the homeless, numbering 20,000. Three people were killed. Some newspapers declare the fire was caused by Mahomedan fanatics.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—The "Observer's" Vienna correspondent says: It is asserted that 2,000 of the inhabitants of Searjevo perished in the flames. This is not however, by telegram direct from the spot. Searjevo, August 9.—The conflagration was prevented from spreading during Saturday. There were a few isolated outbreaks among the houses and some of the warehouses are still burning. Some of the large firms of the city estimate the damage in excess of one hundred million forins, but this is considered an exaggeration. The homeless people are camped in the squares and gardens. A relief committee has been organized. The Emperor of Austria has forwarded 10,000 forins in aid of the sufferers. It has been definitely settled that the fire was caused by an explosion of some spirits.

LONDON, August 9.—The United Service Gazette says Wolsey will be the next Commander in Chief in India.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The Serjevo fire destroyed 288 houses, 358 shops and 48 warehouses. The loss to private property is a million forins; no insurance. Owing to scarcity of provisions, prices, especially high, have been increased. The fire was caused by accident.

UNITED STATES.

CHERRY, Pa., August 9.—The passenger steamer Mary Morgan, crowded with a moonlight excursion party, in the Delaware river, collided with the produce freight propeller Pierpont, at 12.30 last night. The latter sank in fifteen feet water. Fortunately no lives were lost, but several thousand dollars damage was done to both vessels, besides the loss of freight of the Pierpont.

MANNING, Aug. 11.—Thirty-four cases in all, twenty white and fourteen colored, were reported to the Board of Health today.

CANADA.

MONTRÉAL, August 9.—The feeling today in financial circles is much better. The run on the C. and D. savings bank is about stopped. The deposits paid out yesterday were $418,000, of which $208,000 was at the office, and $210,000 at the bank of the same name. The bank has saved in interest by the run no less than $8,360. On Monday there will be a meeting of the directors of the Ville Marie bank at which it will be finally decided whether to resume business or not. With assets of $1,556,314, and liabilities of only $596,775, deducting about $100,000 from the monthly statement of the bank ought to be in good condition, unless the report be misleading. The Hochelaga Bank meets all claims promptly, and the agitation is quite quieted down now.

SHOCKING ATTEMPT AT CRIME.—A special despatch from Fredericton to the St. John Sun, says:—On Wednesday morning a girl named Kearney, aged ten years, was picking berries about a mile from Carriboou Village, when she was approached and outraged by a Frenchman named Jerry Boutillier. Her father, getting a description of Boutillier, immediately set off to where he was employed and recognized him. He followed the perpetrator of the deed. Boutillier fled to the woods. Sheriff Barker and an assistant at once started in pursuit and soon came up with the fugitive but were unable to capture him. Meanwhile the whole village became aroused and a band of fifty men scoured the woods in every direction. A sergeant, consisting of twenty men, named Clarke, Collins and Irvine was posted near Boutillier's house, and about 5 p. m. he was seen to emerge from the forest and run towards the carriage house. His body was covered by the revolvers of the sentry, and he turned to run from them, at the same time pulling them. He was shot by Clarke, who levelled his revolver and fired at him, the bullet striking him in the lower part of the abdomen. The wounded man remained standing for a moment and then dropped, apparently dead. He was carried to the Carriboou house and his wounds dressed. The bullet was found to have lodged in the groin and could not be extracted. He now lies in a most precarious condition and is not expected to recover. The excitement in Carriboou and vicinity over the affair is intense, and if Boutillier had been captured by the infuriated crowd of men in search of him, he would undoubtedly have been lynched.

ATTEMPT AT WRECK A TRAIN.—An attempt was made on Friday to wreck the Intercolonial Railway train from Quebec to Halifax. About four o'clock, when about five miles from Hinmouqui the train running about thirty miles an hour, the engine driver observed a man putting a pole nearly as large as a telegraph pole across the track. He immediately reversed the engine and whistled down brakes, but the train had too much headway to be stopped in time to altogether avoid the obstruction, and the pole became entangled between the wheels of the engine and tender, fortunately without throwing the train off the track. The man was seen in the woods, on the side of the road, watching to see how things would turn out; but when the train stopped without injury, he disappeared, and although several passengers and men on the train started in search of him he could not be found. Had he been caught he might have been lynched, and it would have served him right.

Tidings from England are of a most depressing character. Sober-minded men are beginning to feel and say that there is something more serious to be done than the mere effort to retain or get into power, and to look beyond the exigencies of the next political contest. The whole country is suffering from extreme commercial depression, and there is no appearance of returning prosperity. Even if a change should take place in Britain, the import trade in meat must bring about a crisis in the condition of the agricultural population. While farmers could get a good price for beef or mutton, they could look calmly upon the low price of corn; but this they are fast losing. The difficulty cannot be met by any moderate reduction of rents; and landlords can only afford a very moderate reduction if they are alive. Bankruptcy stares farmers and land-holders alike in the face. A laugh, for.

Miscellaneous.

Stolen from Canada. A PARTY DESTINED FOR MANITOBA IS SEIZED BY THE ONLY POLICE OF AN AMERICAN RAILROAD.

From the Chicago Times.

The arrival of over two hundred ice leasers on Wednesday evening was a most welcome visitation at this season of the year. The temperature has been entirely comfortable ever since they struck the town. In counteraction of the summer solstice they beat the Manitoba wave out of sight. They were a cool looking crowd. This party went by sailing vessel from Iceland to Glasgow, where they took the steamship "Waldensian" for Quebec, where they arrived on July 13. Their destination was originally Manitoba; but, being captivated by the only speech of an emissary of the Chicago and North-Western Railway, the party was induced to change their programme, and instead of going to the Canadian prairie, they proposed locating at Minnesota, a border settlement on the Winona and St. Peter Railway. Not grants from the frozen zone understood a word of English. Of course an interpreter accompanied the party. But for him they would have been obliged to pick up a little English education. The children of whom there was a good sized list, were all looking like kids, with blue eyes and "tow heads."

The Mother's Remorse. The child was sensitive, so like that little shivering plant that curls at the breath and shuts its heart from light. The only beauties she possessed were an exceedingly transparent skin and most mournful blue eyes. I had been trained by a stern, strict, conscientious mother. I was a hardy plant, rebounded at every shock, misadventure, or disappointment, though discipline tamed me. I fancied, alas! that I must go through the same remorse with this delicate creature as one day, when she had displeased me exceedingly by repeating an offence, I was determined to punish her severely. I was very serious all day, and on sending her to bed, little cough, said: "Now, my daughter, to punish you, and show you how very, very naughty you have been, I shall not kiss you tonight!" She stood looking at me, astonished, personified, with her great mournful eyes wide open. I suppose she had forgotten her misconduct till then; and I left her with big tears dropping down her cheeks, and her lips quivering. Presently I was sent for. "Mamma, you will kiss me, I can go to sleep, if you don't," she sobbed, every tone of her voice trembling as she held out her hand. Now came the struggle between love and what I falsely termed duty. My heart said give her the kiss of peace; my stern aunt urged me to persist in my correction, that I might impress the fault upon her mind. This way I had been trained until I was a submissive child, and I remember how often I had thanked my mother for her straightforward course. I knelt by her bed and whispered, "Mother can't kiss you, Ellen," though the words seemed to choke me. Her hand touched mine; it was very hot; but I attributed it to her excitement. I blamed myself, as the fragile form shook with suppressed sobs; and saying, "Mother hopes Ellen will mind her better after this," I left the room for the night. I might have been about midnight when I was awakened by the nurse. Apprehensive, I ran to the child's chamber. I had had a fearful dream. Ellen did not know me, but with her hand on her forehead to the forehead to the throat, her eyes so bright that I almost drew back aghast at the glance. From that night a raging fever drank up my life—and what do you think was the incessant plaint poured into my anguished heart? "Oh! kiss me, mother, do kiss me, I can't go to sleep, you'll kiss your little Ellen, won't you? I can't go to sleep. I won't be naughty if you'll kiss me, dear mamma. I can't go to sleep."

Holy little child, she did go to sleep one grey morning and never woke again—no, never! Her hand was locked in mine, and all the while she gazed at me with her eyes fixed on my face. Faintly, like a ghost, she breathed, "I will be good, mother, if you will only forgive me."

Well, grief is unavailing now. She lies in her little tomb; the eyes turned to the side from whence the voice came; and the fact is attested by Fontanelle, Mogore, Guilloine, Nauche and Alidit. On the wall "mamma" being called into the ear of a criminal executed for that crime at Coblenz, the half-closed eyes opened wide with an expression of reproach on those who stood around.—Ez.

Training Steers to Work. It is a well trained mind which is fully equal to the task of training animals to labor, especially animals that cannot understand that labor has any result. It is not the nature of the ox or the horse to labor. It is little wonder, then, that he should be unwilling to labor until, by dint of sufficient training, he is brought into its practice from habit. Man in training the animal should remember that he is the thinking and reasoning being—the he must do all the thinking of both parties. It is too often the case that he, too, allows himself to be overcome by passion and rendered as little capable of thinking as the brute.

It is a good rule always in breaking animals to require nothing which they cannot easily perform, and to place them in such circumstances that they cannot avoid performing it. Beating should never be resorted to. If you want gentle, kind animals, treat them so as to make them kind. The following method of training steers to work will be found a good one: First, have a yard so well and thoroughly fenced that they cannot run far away from you—not so far that you are close by their side all the time. Get your steers in the yard and having familiarized them to your presence, start them around you, they do not mind you, and you do not mind them, talking mildly to them and motivating as you want them to learn. Control your voice. There is no brute so low in the scale of intelligence as not to be able to read an angry or excited voice.

So long as you keep your voice calm, you may have the mastery—allow yourself to become excited or adopt the same kind of manner as you have lost a portion of your control over them—that is all gained by controlling yourself. A day's time in a small yard with a yoke of steers is well spent thus, and by night they will have learned that you require certain things of them, as walking forward at your beck, etc. They may generally be yoked on Friday day and unyoked several times. This will accustom them to being handled. Above all, be patient. If you discover that they cannot understand you when you talk to them, you should remember the greatest difficulty is for them to understand what is wanted. When they obey the motion of the hand, and stop and start at the word, you may drive them where you like. Study what they need teaching, and use your reason in teaching well. When the work is done it will be a proud monument to your patience and skill, or the contrary. You can succeed only in producing faults instead of avoiding them, you have wrought ill, and the result of your labor is its own condemnation.—Western Rural.

Joker's Corner.

A Sensational Story. The following proposition has reached us from an aspiring young author. He wants us to publish his story, but we shall have to refuse. At the same time it is impossible to suppress a feeling of admiration for the desire manifested by him to meet the public demand. He says:—

"I have been engaged for some time upon a serial story; it is to be written for the solitary purpose of satisfying the public. I am not going to fetter myself with any of the restrictions which novelists ordinarily impose upon themselves. When I publish the first chapter, if people don't like it, I will publish the last chapter next and run the story backward, winding up with the table of contents, or may be I will begin in the middle and run it both ways." It makes no difference to me if the public are accommodated; and if, when I get the story fairly under way, anybody is dissatisfied with the characters, I will very willingly collect them over a powder-magazine and blow them into eternity, and start afresh with a new lot, if that will suit better.

"It will not have any particular plot. My idea is just to run it along, putting into it anything that happens to turn up, marrying somebody every now and then, and killing off any villain who has been fooling about in the narrative too long, or who seems in a conventional place to be murdered.

"But at the same time I reserve the right to resurrect any such assassinated person and run him in again on the old basis whenever I want to. It is my story, and if I choose to have a lot of dead people flying round, I'm going to do it.

"The hero will be a man who is remarkable for his fondness for bay rum and adjectives, and who quarrels with his wife because she uses so many personal pronouns and prepositions, and wastes upon marketing the money which he has consecrated to the purpose of making his hair smell nicely.

"Gradually, as the story proceeds, he will become bald headed, and fonder of having his underclothes silver-plated, while she will develop a passion for playing the bass drum while he is asleep.

"I am not certain yet how I shall arrange for the villain to annoy the heroine. A very good way might be for him to drop her over a precipice ten thousand feet high, and then to climb on a tree by her back half way down. But if anybody would rather that the villain should mesmerize her, and make her become into a raven, or a con of coal, and cause her to seat her self on the kitchen range and burn to death, I will try to arrange it in that manner—it is immaterial to me.

"I am perfectly willing to marry that woman to four hundred different men, and to make her jump into a volcano, and be shot out of cannon, and to have light upon a church-steeple until she cools off, and slides down by a fire escape, if anybody prefers that method. The possibilities of fiction are simply incalculable.

"The story will be published in parts. It will probably run through the paper about three or four years, and will contain about fifteen thousand characters.
