Big Exhibition Crowd Thursday Though Conditions Were Not So Favorable

Dog Show Closing—Prize Cattle in the Ring an Attraction—Results of the Judges' Work in Many Classes—Interesting Happenings in the Merry Throng.

Notwithstanding the showery weather, 14,831 people passed the turnstile of the exhibition Thursday. The announcement of the returns proved a pleasant surprise to those who had anticipated that the rain and the dark and threatening sky would seriously affect the total. Two years ago Thursday was the banner day of the week. The weather was perfect and the result was nearly 3,000 more paid admissions than yesterday. The figures for the present exhibition, however, still lead by 400, and, given anything like fine weather for the two remaining days, all previous totals should be eclipsed, especially as in 1904 on the last Saturday it poured rain all day.

Table with 2 columns: Date and Attendance. Rows for Saturday, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Total to date.

Thursday was another busy day for the live stock judges, and except in one or two cases their labors are concluded. Among the cattle the awards were given for Ayrshires and inspecting the Jerseys occupied the greater part of the day. In the butter making competition, it was finally another stage, and will be brought to a conclusion this afternoon. To the list of the dog show in the machinery hall had closed at 10 o'clock Thursday evening and exhibitors were permitted to remove their animals.

But punctually at 8:30 o'clock the opening shell announced that the display was about to begin and the thousands of spectators were treated to a performance fully equal to those on the previous evenings.

WINSTON CHURCHILL ON IMPERIAL UNITY

(Special to The Telegraph.) "What you must try to do, so far as may be possible, is to convince your friends and kindred in Canada that this change in England, great and far-reaching though it has been, does not imply any weakening in the affection of the British people towards their kith and kin overseas. The sea or in the error and vigilant efforts of the colonial office to render the colonies every legitimate service, military, diplomatic or commercial, that may be in our power. There are new men, there are other principles, there will be different methods, but in the guiding spirit, in the central impulse, in the ultimate aim, namely, a solid defensive league of free democratic communities, animated by a love of peace and justice under the leadership of the British crown—that there is no change, no sign of change, no expectation of change of any kind or sort whatever.

WINSTON CHURCHILL ON IMPERIAL UNITY

(Special to The Telegraph.) "The British government has for so long implied 'The Conservative party' that the terms had become almost synonymous. Canadian and Australian statesmen have been accustomed to deal only with one set of British politicians and alike by their weariness from other party controversies, by their loyalty to the mother country, they have come insensibly to regard a particular political party as having an especial claim upon their confidence. In a great measure, and certainly until the last few years, that confidence has been worthily repaid, and the long period of Conservative predominance has synchronized with and generously aided the growth of the imperial idea.

WINSTON CHURCHILL ON IMPERIAL UNITY

(Special to The Telegraph.) "At the last general election a great change was wrought in the balance of British political parties and in the disposition of political power. The consequences of that change are likely to govern our affairs for a long time to come. I do not now examine the advantages of that change, nor do I wish to minimize its importance. It involves a considerable alteration in political principles and in the points of view and modes of thought of public men and in the character of domestic legislation.

WINSTON CHURCHILL ON IMPERIAL UNITY

"Yours very sincerely, WINSTON S. CHURCHILL."
